Pillory: Tools and Fools of the USA

A fictional book as a speculative simulation between the Donegan's, Kennedy family, and others in Boston and how because of the Donegan factual history in that matter led to a Mockingbird pillory of me by the CIA, FBI, and others when my and other evidence on the JFK and RFK and other murders should not be retaliated against or conspired against by the very agencies this information should be useful to in those agencies and the US sovereign self-interest. In the fictional version RFK escapes assassination and we will learn of the underlying connection between Marilyn Monroe and Dysgraphic Albert Einstein.

Ted Gunderson was the right-hand man to RFK fighting the mafia that was run by Vice President Richard Nixon in the 1946 to 1960 years. As the Kennedy's gained power in the USA and world global dirty business operations subverted the USA and other nations. JFK and RFK attempted to shut down the CIA but it was too globally located to respond to the US Presidency and and held too much allegiance from British trained and supported Espionage in the USA operating as the US Government but through NGOs that again were difficult to control from inside the US Government. It would be comparable to NASA trying to control a long gone satellite past its available connections back to Earth.

Deep State Cabal range from Mocking them to assassinating them to denying the truth of revelations but history is being continuously revised as theories Lee Harvey Oswald was a patsy are gaining growing support. The patriots fighting against Free Masonry, Vatican history, Knights of Malta, Council on Foreign Relations, British Pilgrim Society all experience media abuse of their theories find any publicity at all but these patriots still speak out at the risk of their lives and leave death-bed statements.

The Chessboard by Move

Averall Harriman and his large business interests planned a post WWII world at least after WWII most say during WWII and the best informed say before WWII.

1949 and the beginning of Marshall Plan activities as espionage agencies formed-up and jockied for role (FBI v. CIA, CIA v. internal competitors within that camp) and much this happened in the 1949 Paris summit.

By 1951 plans were underway as operational facilities like Grace Ranch formed up and formal bases like Tokyo became forard commands of the military and CIA.

By 1954 Guatemala was toppled and Nixon by this time was Vice President still leading this and I assert in 1958 he was planning two off shore island overthrows. Papau New Guinea, that is to say Indonesia just off the coast of Australia and that in conjunction with the British using Bermuda as part of the plan, and Cuba just off the US Florida shore.

A shadowy figure named Jack Youngblood shows up several times per Chauncey Holt and Col Fletcher Prouty. He leads the CIA team in Guatemala and alter is used to organize the assassination of JFK. While Holt makes only possibly oblique mention of the CIA hit on RFK Prouty is quite specific about it and Younglood.

Chauncey Holt after Guatemala is at Dealey Plaza with E. Howard Hunt dressed as hobos but weapons under the baggy clothing showing through and Lansdale is there as well in disguise.

E. Howard Hunt and Chauncey Holt confess in detail, in each case days before their deaths, and each leaves documents.

The document places Bush working with the now famous CIA agent, Felix Rodriguez, recruiting right-wing Cuban exiles for the invasion of Cuba.

It was Bush's CIA job to organize the Cuban community in Miami for the invasion. The Cubans were trained as marksmen by the CIA. Bush at that time lived in Texas. Hopping from Houston to Miami weekly, Bush spent 1960 and '61 recruiting Cubans in Miami for the invasion. That is how he met Felix Rodriguez.

That is exactly how evidence was uncovered placing George Bush working with Felix Rodriguez when JFK was killed. A memo from FBI head J. Edgar Hoover was found, stating that, "Mr George Bush of the CIA" had been briefed on November 23rd, 1963 about the reaction of anti-Castro Cuban exiles in Miami to the assassination of President Kennedy. (Source: The Nation, 8-13-88)

On the day of the assassination, Bush was in Texas, but he denies knowing exactly where he was. Since he had been the supervisor for the secret Cuban teams, headed by former Cuban police commander Felix Rodriguez, since 1960, it is likely Bush was also in Dallas in 1963. Several of the Cubans he was supervising as dirty-tricks teams for Nixon, were photographed in the Zapruder film.

In 1959 Rodriguez was a top cop in the Cuban government under Batista. When Batista….(was overthrown ..) …

Félix Ismael Rodríguez Mendigutia (Soldier) (born 31 May 1941) is a Cuban American former Central Intelligence Agency Paramilitary Operations Officer in the Special Activities Division, known for his involvement in the Bay of Pigs Invasion and the execution of communist revolutionary Che Guevara as well as his ties to George H. W. Bush during the affair.

Rodríguez came from a wealthy family of land owners in his native Cuba. His uncle was the Minister of Public Works during Fulgencio Batista's dictatorship.

He attended the Perkiomen School in Pennsylvania but dropped out to join the Anti-Communist League of the Caribbean, which had been created by Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo with the intention of ending communism in Cuba.

Rafael Leónidas Trujillo Molina, nicknamed El Jefe, was a Dominican dictator who ruled the Dominican Republic from August 1930 until his assassination in May 1961. Wikipedia

Trujillo was certainly murdered with weapons supplied by the CIA. In a 1975 report to the Deputy Attorney General of the United States, CIA officials described the agency as having "no active part" in the assassination and only a "faint connection" with the groups that planned the killing.

The invasion of Cuba was a failure, and Rodríguez went back to Perkiomen. He graduated in June 1960 and went to live with his parents in Miami, where thousands of Cuban exiles had moved.

In September 1960, he joined a group of Cuban exiles in Guatemala, supported by the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) to receive military training. They were called*Brigade 2506*.

From Chauncy Marvin Holt:

1954 - Two areas of the Caribbean were of primary interest to the IRC (CIA front International Rescue Committee) ; Cuba, where dictator Fulgencio Batista y Zaldivar was in power and Guatemala, where Juan Jose Arevalo (since 1944) was president.

I (Chauncey Holt) was advised at the very outset that the administration was very upset with the situation in Guatemala, where a new day had begun with the fall of Jorge Ubico, the dictator who reigned with an iron fist for almost fourteen years, until the revolution of October

Soon after his first speech as Guatemala president-elect, in which he declared that there had been a lack of sympathy in the past for the working man, Guatemala's ruling class with its quasi-feudalistic mentality, branded him a communist.

Powerful interests in the United States were positively terrified. In the forefront were the stockholders of United Fruit Co., which actually owned over 50% of all the land in Guatemala. These powerful enemies persuaded the fledgling CIA to turn its attention to Guatemala.

Arevalo proposed that the government build a highway from Guatemala City to the Atlantic seacoast, paralleling the railroad, owned by United Fruit, which held a monopoly. The manager of International Railways of Central America, subsidiary of United Fruit opposed the idea.

So the decision was made to intervene in the politics of Guatemala, by fair means or foul.

At this point, President Eisenhower decided that Arbenz had to go and this ignominious duty was assigned to the CIA, who, in turn, delegated this odious task to the International Rescue Committee (a CIA front group Holt was working for.)

[After trying other avenues] We then turned to our second choice, Carlos Castillo Armas, who was in jail, after having been sentenced to be executed for his part in a military coup attempt that failed.

I (Chauncey Holt) was part of a five man team, headed by Jack Youngblood, sent to Guatemala and we were successful, with obvious collusion at a high level, in freeing Armas, who immediately began arming for a coup attempt against Arbenz.

[Story continues but a little on Youngblood and the RFK hit conducted by the CIA first]

Chapter 6

The Assassinations of Robert Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King and Lyndon B. Johnson's Withdrawal in 1968

The Power Control Group (Majic 12 aka NSC54/10 that George Bush and Council of Foreign Relations leaders were on including Averell Harriman) faced several dangers in 1968. While President Johnson had cooperated fully with their desires in Viet Nam and in other parts of the world, he had not met their requirements in other areas. He had gone too far in appeasing the blacks and had shown some signs of giving in to the young people in America in early 1968. Through threats to expose his role in covering up the truth about the JFK assassination or personal threats to the safety of his family, the Group forced his withdrawal from the 1968

https://archive.org/download/genoracketeering_202001/majestic-12-and-the-secret-government.WC.fEPD.epub

By secret Executive Memorandum, NSC 54/10, Eisenhower had preceded NSC 5412/1 in 1954 to establish a permanent committee (not ad hoc) to be known as Majority Twelve (MJ-12) to oversee and conduct all covert activities concerned with the alien question. NSC 5412/1 was created to explain the purpose of these meetings when Congress and the Press became curious.

Majority Twelve was made up of Nelson Rockefeller, the director of the CIA Allen Welsh Dulles, the Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, the Secretary of Defense Charles E.Wilson, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Admiral Arthur W. Radford, the Director of the FBI J. Edgar Hoover, and six men from the executive committee of the Council on Foreign Relations known as the "Wise Men". These men were all members of a secret society of scholars that called themselves "The Jason Society", or "The Jason Scholars" who recruited their members from the "Skull and Bones" and the "Scroll and Key" societies of Harvard and Yale.

The "Wise Men" were key members of the Council on Foreign Relations. There were 12 members including the first 6 from Government positions thus Majority Twelve. This group was made up over the years of the top officers and directors of the Council on Foreign Relations and later the Trilateral Commission. Gordan Dean, George Bush, and Zbigniew Brzezinski were among them. The most important and influential of the "Wise Men" who served on MJ-12 were Jogn McCloy, Robert Lovett, Averell Harriman, Charles Bohlen, George Kennan, and Dean Acheson. It is significant that President Eisenhower as well as the first 6 MJ-12 members from the Government were also members of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Robert Kennedy and Dr. King posed real threats to this plan. Dr. King was beginning a movement in the direction of a coalition with Malcom X followers and other black militant groups. He was speaking out against the Viet Nam war. His influence might help defeat Nixon at the polls. So the Power Control Group created an environment in which he could be assassinated by his arch enemies.

The FBI and J. Edgar Hoover had become a vital part of the Power Control Group by 1968. Hoover had no love for King and was harassing him in several ways. The Power Control Group undoubtedly let Hoover know that it wouldn't be a bad idea to have King out of the way before the election campaigns really warmed up. They also passed the word along to some of the groups who were out to murder King that the crime would probably not be stopped. Fletcher Prouty has described this approach in some detail.[1] The net result of these actions was the assassination of Dr. King by a group of wealthy white bigots who employed two of the intelligence community's own expert assassins. One of these men, Frenchy, had fired shots at JFK. The other, Jack Youngblood, was a soldier of fortune and CIA contract killer. They recruited James Earl Ray and set him up as a patsy.

The FBI removed King's protection in Memphis and after the assassination they took the case out of the hands of the local police to control and suppress the evidence of conspiracy. Hoover did not know exactly who was going to assassinate King or where. He did not know in advance who the patsy was supposed to be. The best evidence in support of this is that from April to June 1968 the identity of the patsy was a mystery, first unidentified, then identified as Eric Starvo Galt, then as Raymond Sneyd, and finally as James Earl Ray. If Hoover had been in on the plan, Ray's identity would probably have been revealed immediately. In fact, the scenario might have been similar to the JFK case, with Ray being killed in a shoot-out.

After Ray was identified and arrested in London, Hoover and the Justice Department had to manufacture some evidence to get Ray back to the U.S. They had no qualms about bribing one witness, Charlie Stevens, to do this. They forced him to say he had seen Ray. Then a new problem arose. Ray began telling the truth to his lawyer and a writer, William Bradford Huie. He almost revealed Frenchy's true identity. The Power Control Group, led by J. Edgar Hoover, solved this problem by getting rid of Ray's lawyer, Arthur Hanes, and they hired Percy Foreman to keep Ray quiet.

They also were forced to pay off or frighten off author Huie who had by then become convinced Ray was telling him the truth. Huie had found several witnesses who had seen Ray and Frenchy together.

The mechanics of the assassination are as follows: Youngblood and Frenchy recruited Ray in Montreal for smuggling drugs into the U.S. from Mexico and Canada. They recruited him in the assassination plan in such a way as to make him believe they were smuggling guns to Cuba.

Frenchy (Ray knew him as Raoul) set up Ray as a patsy by planting evidence with Ray's prints on it near the fake firing point. He persuaded Ray to rent a room opposite Dr. King's motel, to buy a rifle with telescopic sight, and a white Mustang, and park the Mustang outside the rooming house to wait for Frenchy to come out. Youngblood stationed himself on a grassy knoll beneath the rooming house where Frenchy was located. When King came out on his balcony, Youngblood killed him with one shot fired at an upward angle. Frenchy ran from his perch overlooking King's balcony. He made plenty of noise to attract attention, and dropped a bag full of items with Ray's prints on them in front of an amusement parlor next door to the rooming house.

All of the information above has been reported with factual evidence backing it up in several articles, one book, and at Ray's legal hearing for a new trial in Memphis in 1975.[2]

After Dr. King was eliminated, the Power Control Group faced a much greater threat. Robert Kennedy began his quest for the presidency. There was little doubt in the minds of anyone in the Group that Kennedy would be nominated as Democratic candidate at the convention, and would have a very good chance of defeating Richard Nixon. This would be a near certainty if Eugene McCarthy decided to drop out and support Senator Kennedy. Robert Kennedy represented a double threat to the Group in that he would undoubtedly expose them after becoming president and seize control.

The plan they adopted was again to create an environment in which it would be easy for an enemy like the Minutemen or the Mafia or certain local hate groups in California to assassinate RFK and get away with it by setting up another patsy. Available at the time was a CIA agent planted inside the Los Angeles police department. Strong influence was brought to bear on chief of police, Ed

Davis, to remove all official protection for Senator Kennedy in the Ambassador Hotel. Arrangements were made for the Ace Guard Service to supply three extreme right wing, militant guards at the hotel to guard the Senator after his victory speech. One of these was Thane Eugene Cesar, a known Kennedy hater and friend of a group of Southern California Minutemen. He was also almost certainly a CIA contract agent or "blind" assassin. At the same time another group was recruited to hypnotize Sirhan Sirhan and to program him for firing some shots in Robert Kennedy's direction. Two hypnotists and at least three other people were involved in the framing of Sirhan.

After the crime, the FBI, the CIA agent (Manny Pena), the District Attorney's office (Evelle Younger and Joseph Busch) and the Los Angeles Police Department (Ed Davis, Robert Houghton and others), knowing the truth, all teamed up to suppress all other evidence except that which was aimed at framing Sirhan. The Power Control Group has since wielded its influence to keep the RFK case under wraps. They pushed legislation through the California legislature to lock up the evidence. They put Thomas Noguchi, the L.A. County Coroner who wouldn't keep quiet about the autopsy evidence which proved conspiracy, in an insane asylum. They arranged for the FBI report on the assassination to be classified and locked up. They killed at least one person who knew what had happened. They controlled the media on the subject, especially the Los Angeles Times through its owner, Norman Chandler, and his friend Evelle Younger, who became California State Attorney General.

After Al Lowenstein, Jerry Brown, Paul Schrade, Vincent Bugliosi, Robert Vaughn, Tom Bradley and others began to try to expose the truth, the Group fought back by setting up their own expert ballistics panel and buying or frightening them into distorting the evidence proving there were two guns fired (Holt hints a special silencer custom for that gun). The Group is certainly not through yet. More planted disinformation can be expected and more bribing of judges and expert witnesses. There may be more killings. Cesar's life and the lives of the two hypnotists won't be worth much if they ever start talking.

Now back to Guatemala and Youngblood, Holt, and three others.

In short the US would find potential allies in business who wanted access to world bananas, gold, oil, places to run casinos and tourism, liquor, sugar, tea, coffee or spices rights, etc.,

Upon removal of the Communist regime claims stakes for properties and resources would be granted to those CIA allies who helped rid the nation of the old government.

Such interest would pony-up with funding for rebel groups, participation in rebel groups, etc., This sometimes meant Narco gangs or gambling, it also meant elite oil, banking, and other interests, or fake non-profits run by the CIA secretly.

For help in overthrowing non-aligned nations these business would be give claim-stakes to the resources of the nation likely holding in poverty as the Republic of Ireland farmers were held under keeping the foreign nation subdued

George H.W. Bush was a part of this and keeping the program secret was part of Zapata Oil's interests, the Rockefeller's interests, and the Mafia's interest. He was not having young boys from Franklin Nebraska for sex parties but to interview for oversees covert work and being planted very young under fake identities with new families of government connected people.

2) Deep cover sleepers born, raised in, or moved to foreign nations in youth or adulthood.

A Secret Aristocracy. Adoption out of orphanages is one way this was sometimes done.

Few knew often these were "bastard" children from Windsors or others who had that secret relative helping them in life as they matured. I come from a family tied to secret hidden identities from this cold war period and the Kennedy Assassination and underground railroads newborns arrived in who later could be placed with influential people and placed into influential CIA front organizations.

Aristocrats keep a close eye on who hidden relatives were progressing and helped them along. Edward Paul Donegan suspect Julie Andrews was a bastard daughter of the Windsors and Norma Jean liklye was as well, the latter getting help from Joseph Kennedy Sr early in life.

A secondary and still missing part of this story available only from Ed Donegan, the last living witness to the real motive for the death of JFK and others is that the new puppets to be installed sometimes were created as newborns without real parents in the family sense, but donor DNA and faked identities from the beginning who could be sleeper agents, agents of influence, or other types of CIA OSS help to the West as they grew up on NGO travels through the world such as church groups or aid or diplomatic workers.

Edward Donegan and Wayne Madsen assert Barrack Obama Jr and other newborns were meant to be planted under fake identities as CIA backed agents of influence around the world including Indonesia. Ed Donegan assert the CIA planted a birth certificate (faked) in Kenya and other may have been planted and destroyed elsewhere.

Donald Barr and others were part of the CIA plot underway under MKULTRA. The Ford Foundation, USAID, Joseph Kennedy Jr. fund, Peace Corps, East-West Center in Hawaii all were called in or created to help this one (of many) CIA sleepers planted under deep cover in other nations.

My goal (though an acceptable outcome) is not to convince corporate media of conspiracy theory, they reject it; rather I try to get the message outside of the United States only speaking English. If it breaks in other countries or by Law Enforcement in this country and epiphany will happen breaking the oligarchy on news content and a new competition might emerge to find and tell the reals story even in Corporate Media.

I am not the only one who doubts the open mindendess of media. U.S. GOVERNMENT RUNS ‘GANG STALKING’ VIGILANTISM, SAYS EX-FBI OFFICIAL

http://www.nowpublic.com/world/u-s-govt-runs-gang-stalking-vigilantism-says-ex-fbi-official Official confirms what thousands of victims have long known: an evil U.S. shadow government is conducting a covert, taxpayer-funded genocidal purge of American society — while Congress and an apparently entrained Obama administration sleep.

Author’s note: Former FBI official Ted Gunderson died of cancer on July 31, 2011. Was his illness induced by silent electromagnetic assault or by other nefarious means? We will never know — and that’s just the way certain entities want it.

A former senior official of the Federal Bureau of Investigation says “rogue” military intelligence and law enforcement units of the federal government oversee a nationwide network of community-based “gang stalking” harassment, intimidation and domestic terrorism directed at thousands of U.S. citizens who have been extrajudicially targeted as “dissidents” or undesirables.

Ted Gunderson, 82, who has served as the special agent in charge of the FBI’s Los Angeles, Memphis and Dallas field offices, has stated in a series of public speaking appearances that he is now targeted by these same elements, and fears for his life and for the safety of his family. He reports that the windows of his home have been shot out, and he believes he has been poisoned and physically sickened by those seeking to silence him.

Since his retirement from the FBI in the 1979, Gunderson has been a Southern California- based private investigator. He is most noted for his defense work on the murder case involving former Army physician Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald.

Introducing the 3 Kennedy Assassination sources

- Col Fletcher Prouty Wrote Guns of Dallas, VP Nixon Indonesia 1958, became basis of JFK movie by Oliver Stone and same book introduced by Jesse Ventura. Ed was in Donegan family as friends of Prouty but as child too young to understand it all.

> Specific Contributions Col Prouty wrote about Big Business and disputes between Nixon controlled Los Angeles Aerospace and LBJ controlled Texas Aerospace, and the Military Industrial Complex generally, regime change, and to over throw Indonesia and the entire world with a CIA Coup De Tat.
> Prouty was an insider to the Eisenhower-Nixon 1950s CIA overthrow plans and later in the JFK admin in the same role.

His books most notably were JFK: The CIA, Vietnam, and the Plot to Assassinate John F. Kennedy and the very similar book The Secret Team: The CIA and Its Allies in Control of the United States and the World the latter being team of big business buddies tied of world commerce and CIA plans for that activity.

He also wrote articles such as The GUNS of DALLAS published separately showing the CIA killed JFK and he also wrote Indonesia 1958: Nixon, the CIA, and the Secret War showing from his own work the plan to overthrow Sukarno with Suharto and that plan underway in 1958 as Eisenhower signed off on it in 1957. This was one of the Secret Teams Secret Wars.

Edward Paul Donegan and the Donegan family are also connected to this peice as was the birth of Barrack Obama Jr under CIA plans for Indonesia.

- Ted Gunderson FBI picks up trail The well placed well informed Ted Gunderson suspects an inside job of big businesses as Prouty said, and is correct but dies under FBI harassment.

I believe the US Government has allegiances to foreign entities based on their previous actions have exposures to charges of treason for acts committed in the name of unconstitutional allegiances called the NWO and the US participation on COINTELPRO that extends to outright murder of journalists and others makes the government a threat to me and others. The basic mechanism must be looked at as only the covert or semi-covert part of the United States (secret) team in each country. The rest of the team should be playing in the same game, towards the same goal. If it isn't, the United States loses. Thus the critical task falls upon the Executive, for clear statement of our Policy towards each country and compliance of officials to both spirit and letter of that policy.

The second part of my suggestions concerns the application of the basic > mechanism to each country. The start should be a penetrating review of what we know of each country. From this review, by individual country, we list the real targets to be destroyed, the assets (including names of persons) in that country which will destroy the targets, and a sketch of how an agent or agents make those assets viable.

Speculative Meyers Lansky CIA Chauncy Holt Business Card
by Edward Paul Donegan 1959

Bugsy Segel, Meyers Lanski and his accountant-pilot-forger Chauncey Holt are part of Casino Muscle and clandestine combatants against socilist or communist governments.

Murder, Inc. (Murder, Incorporated) was an organized crime group active from 1929 to 1941 that acted as the enforcement arm of the National Crime Syndicate – a closely connected criminal organization that included the Italian-American Mafia, the Jewish Mob, and other criminal organizations in New York City and elsewhere.[1] Murder, Inc. was composed of Jewish and Italian-American gangsters, and members were mainly recruited from poor and working-class Jewish and Italian neighborhoods in Manhattan and Brooklyn. It was initially headed by Louis "Lepke" Buchalter and later by Albert "Mad Hatter" Anastasia.

The Bugs and Meyer Mob was the predecessor to Murder, Incorporated. The gang was founded by New York Jewish mobsters Meyer Lansky and Bugsy Siegel in the early 1920s. Sicilian mafioso Charles "Lucky" Luciano created the Commission and began to closely cooperate with his friend Lansky and the Jewish Mob in general, establishing a multi-ethnic alliance that eventually was deemed the “National Crime Syndicate”. Soon after, Siegel and Lansky disbanded the Bugs and Meyer gang and helped form Murder, Incorporated.

Members of Murder, Inc. were Italian and Jewish gangsters from the gangs of the Lower East Side and the Brooklyn neighborhoods of Brownsville, East New York, and Ocean Hill. They committed crimes in New York City and acted as enforcers for New York Jewish mobster Louis "Lepke" Buchalter, and they accepted murder contracts from mob bosses all around the United States.

The killers were paid a regular salary as retainer as well as an average fee of $1,000 to $5,000 per killing. Their families also received monetary benefits.[Thus as it said on Charles Harrelson's business card most likely (it was redacted by someone) Enemies, debtors, skimmers ofLa Cosa Nostra or other mob enemies on case-by-case basis "shot for free."

James Jesus Angleton in WWII used the Mafia to hunt Nazi and this continued after WWII to subvert communism in Latin American countries. Plausibly deniable in the USA this ducked legal accountability of the CIA or US DOD since we denied using front groups or people as intermediaries. George H.W. Bush was among the CIA front mechanisms (Zapata) tied to aristocracy that worked for regime change.

The Kennedy's resented what was the same scheme and ends the Great Britain wanted in Ireland. A nation depleted of resources to rebel with since Robber Barons had robbed the wealth. Those Robber Barron's gained power with Mafia recruits. The scheme of hiding national acts behind mafia fronts has been as useful for saving the politicians from scrutiny as it has been saving the Cabal from international retaliation for assassinations and assassination or acts-of-war attempts.

Bugsy Seigel left for Vegas and and Myers Lansky to Florida as they grew apart. In Vegas gambling was legal. I Cuba gambling was legal. Short flights to Cuba during Batista of the 1950's allowed travelers Havana club life the Florida mob could offer up and use printed numbers cards inside Florida to work with Batista run lotteries.

Chauncey Holt was was the mob accountant to Meyers Lansky and could do the graphics and other work on altered books, etc., This mob was offered Havana back if they could help the CIA hit Castro. J. Edgar Hoover recruited and used them. Holt tells the story of being under Lanskey and how the orders reach him though he did not have the higher level knowledge of what was planned, did do things like print fake Secret Service IDs and Fair Play for Cuba fliers and work with Lee Harvey Oswald in the plan.

The Men Who Killed Kennedy is a video documentary series by British television network ITV that depicts the assassination of U.S. President John F. Kennedy on November 22, 1963. Originally broadcast in 1988 in two parts (with a subsequent studio discussion), it was rebroadcast in 1991 re-edited to three parts with additional material, and a fourth episode added in 1995. The addition of three further episodes in 2003 caused great controversy, particularly in the final episode implicating Lyndon B. Johnson and the withdrawal of these additional episodes.

'Forgive My Grief' Volume I was published by Penn Jones Jr. way back in 1966, a year which saw the publications of 'Rush to Judgment' by Mark Lane, Epstein's 'Inquest', Weisberg's 'Whitewash II' and Popkin's 'Second Oswald'. The Lane, Epstein, Weisberg and Popkin books have been on my shelf for quite a while, but the Jones volume has been omitted owing to the high cost and it's rarity. The cover shows that back in the day this sold for $2.95.

Fortunately a copy was available to me via a co-member of Dealey Plaza U.K. The books value to me is more from the rarity value than the content. Jones has published selected transcripts from the Warren Commission volumes for his critical review of that report, and the vast majority of the text is taken directly from Earl Warren's fairytales. Anton Chaitkin's Treason in America is the original, authoritative inquiry into this criminal apparatus, the British Empire and its arms in Wall Street, Boston and the South.

George Bush: The Unauthorized Biography This is the groundbreaking classic expose of the Bush family, cited by all that followed it, yet still unmatched. Exhaustively documented by intensive search of dozens of archives and months of interviews with government insiders, this biography digs up all the dirt - frightening, gory, hilarious - on the Bush dynasty: how the Bushes made their fortune building up Hitler and the Nazi war machine; Iran-Contra; Zapata's Watergate burglars; the Reagan shooting; the 'war hero' story; the secret government; 'Eugenic' population reduction plans; Kissinger, China, and genocide in the Third World; Luring Iraq to attack Kuwait; The Bush Leveraged Buyout Mob, theft of a nation; Jupiter Island, Skull

The British model was to cripple satellite countries with imposed poverty keeping them from rising to be a threat and that was done to Republic of Ireland. Guess what JFK thought about all of this. Profile in Courage

Written in 1955 by the then junior senator from the state of Massachusetts, John F. Kennedy's Profiles in Courage was ghost written by Ted Sorenson to represent the thinking and beliefs of the Kennedy family who had boycotted a British events in the US Congress. In 1991 Kennedy boycotted a speech to the U.S. Congress by the United Kingdom's Queen Elizabeth II "in protest to the British occupation in Northern Ireland" https://www.nytimes.com/1991/05/17/us/queen-s-address-to-congress-celebrates-mutual-respect.html. Growing up on Boston and Irish Catholics from the Republic of Ireland (Wexford) resentment against the British abuses of colonies was deeply ingrained morally and geopolitical in these Catholics as the Troubles have dominated the Emerald Isle's history since William of Orange. The book with a forward by Robert F. Kennedy served as a clarion call to every American against global oppression. The inspiring true accounts of eight unsung heroic acts by American patriots at different junctures in our nation's history, Kennedy's book became required reading, an instant classic, and was awarded the Pulitzer Prize. Now, a half-century later, it remains a moving, powerful, and relevant testament to the indomitable national spirit and an unparalleled celebration of that most noble of human virtues.

Jackson was born in New York City. After graduation from Princeton University in 1924, he entered the private sector. In 1931, Jackson took a position with Time Inc. In 1940, he was President of the Council for Democracy. From 1942 to 1943, he served as special assistant to the Ambassador to Turkey. From 1943 to 1945, he served with the OSS. From 1944 to 1945 he was Deputy Chief at the Psychological Warfare Division, SHAEF.

After the war, he became Managing Director of Time-Life International from 1945 to 1949. He later became publisher of Fortune Magazine. From 1951 to 1952, he served as president of the anticommunist Free Europe Committee. He was a speech writer for Dwight Eisenhower's successful 1952 presidential campaign. He was assigned to be Eisenhower's liaison between the newly-created CIA and the Pentagon.

The Free Europe Committee. was founded by Allen Dulles, later to be Director of Central Intelligence, in conjunction with DeWitt Clinton Poole. Early board members included Dwight Eisenhower, Lucius D. Clay, Cecil B. DeMille, Henry Luce, Mark Ethridge, Charles Phelps Taft II and DeWitt Wallace.[2][3] From 1951 to 1952, Charles Douglas Jackson served as its president. The organization created and oversaw the anti-communist broadcast service Radio Free Europe.[4] CIA subsidies to the Free Europe Committee ended in 1971 which caused restructuring to its operations.

The Free Europe Committee sent leaflets with balloons from West Germany to the Eastern Bloc countries. Each balloon was able to drop 100,000 leaflets.

From February 1953 to March 1954, Jackson served as adviser to the President on psychological warfare. He worked closely with the Psychological Strategy Board and was a member of the Operations Coordinating Board. He was also a member of the Committee on International Information Activities, which was known, after its chairman, William Harding Jackson, as the Jackson Committee.

During 1953 and 1954, Jackson was key in establishing the Bilderberg Group and ensuring American participation. He attended meetings of the group in 1954, 1957, 1958, 1960, 1961, 1962, 1963, and 1964.

Jackson was a defender of Radio Free Europe, stating, “Over the years, Radio Free Europe has never, in a single broadcast or leaflet, deviated from its essential policy, and did not broadcast a single program during the recent Polish and Hungarian developments which could be described as an ‘incitement’ program.”

He later served in a position at the United Nations. From 1958 to 1960, he served as a speechwriter and White House manager after the departure of Sherman Adams and the death of John Foster Dulles. In 1960, he was publisher of Life magazine.

Jackson became acquainted with Whittaker Chambers at Time Inc. He developed a harsh opinion of Chambers as a psychopath.[citation needed] During the first two years of the Eisenhower administration, Jackson urged strong action by the President in dealing with personalities like Senator Joseph McCarthy and Chambers.[citation needed] In Jackson’s opinion, they were damaging the anticommunist cause with self-serving and unstable behavior. Sherman Adams, Chief of Staff urged a more moderate, political approach, which the President followed.

After Abraham Zapruder took the famous film in Dallas on November 22, 1963, Jackson purchased it on behalf of Time/Life to “protect the integrity of the film.” Upon viewing it on Sunday morning, he ordered it locked in a vault at the Time/Life building in Manhattan.

CD Jackson is susepcted by government experts of the alteration of the Zapruder film from whent the CIA first saw it to when it was returned from the private vault of Life Magazine

The representatives of Jackson bought the film from Zupruder for $150,000. After it was made public (a odd altered version of it in 1975 the bootleg copy of it) it was sold back Zupruder for $1. They key time is during the days that followed the assasination and the lost of CIA posseion of what would be depended on later by assassination researchers.

While serving as chief analyst of military records at the Assassination Records Review Board in 1997, Douglas Horne discovered that the Zapruder Film was examined by the CIA’s National Photographic Interpretation Center two days after the assassination of President Kennedy.

In this film https://youtu.be/J_QIuu6hsAc?si=YRf9uF1OYJBVVSO4 The Zapruder Film Mystery Horne interviews legendary NPIC photo interpreter Dino Brugioni, who speaks for the first time about another NPIC examination of the film the day after the assassination. Brugioni didn’t know about the second examination and believes the Zapruder Film in the archives today is not the film he saw the day after the assassination (he saw it prior to Life Magazine taking possession of it).

Drawing on Volume 4 of his book “Inside the ARRB”, Doug Horne introduces the subject and presents his conclusions.

This man saw the original film. Dino Antonio Brugioni (December 16, 1921[2] – September 25, 2015) was a former senior official at the CIA's National Photographic Interpretation Center (NPIC). He was an imagery analyst and also served as NPIC's Chief of Information. During his 35-year career, Brugioni helped establish imagery intelligence (IMINT) as a national asset to solve intelligence problems. Even after retirement, Brugioni was considered to be the world's foremost imagery intelligence analyst.

After retirement, he has been active in encouraging the use of declassified photographic intelligence for historical research. His book, Eyeball to Eyeball[4] is an extensive unclassified history of US imagery intelligence.

Brugioni flew in 66 bombardment and a number of reconnaissance missions in World War II over North Africa, Italy, Germany, Yugoslavia and France. He received the Purple Heart, 9 Air Medals and a Distinguished Unit Citation. After the war, he received BA and MA degrees in Foreign Affairs from George Washington University. He joined the CIA in March 1948 and became an expert in Soviet industries. In 1955, he was selected as a member of the cadre of the newly formed Photographic Intelligence Division that would interpret U-2, SR-71 and satellite photography.

JFK

Based on On the Trail of the Assassins by Jim Garrison Crossfire: The Plot That Killed Kennedy by Jim Marrs

JFK is a 1991 American epic political thriller film written and directed by Oliver Stone and starring Kevin Costner as Jim Garrison leading along with an ensemble of casts. The film examines the investigation into the assassination of John F. Kennedy by district attorney Jim Garrison, who came to believe there was a conspiracy to assassinate Kennedy and that Lee Harvey Oswald did not act alone. The film features performances from Tommy Lee Jones, Gary Oldman, Sissy Spacek, Kevin Bacon, and Joe Pesci. The film also features supporting performances from Laurie Metcalf, Donald Sutherland, Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau, Michael Rooker, Ed Asner, Brian Doyle-Murray, John Candy, Beata Poźniak, Wayne Knight, Jay O. Sanders, Vincent D'Onofrio, Sally Kirkland, and Martin Sheen.

The film's screenplay was adapted by Stone and Zachary Sklar from the books On the Trail of the Assassins (1988) by Jim Garrison and Crossfire: The Plot That Killed Kennedy (1989) by Jim Marrs. Stone described this account as a "counter-myth" to the Warren Commission's "fictional myth". JFK has been considered controversial due to its embracement of conspiracy theories.[2] Many major American newspapers ran editorials accusing Stone of taking liberties with historical facts, including the film's implication that Kennedy's Vice President (and eventual successor) Lyndon B. Johnson was part of a coup d'état to kill Kennedy.

Despite the controversy, JFK received critical praise for the performances of its cast, Stone's directing, score, editing, and cinematography. The film gradually picked up momentum at the box office after a slow start, earning over $205 million in worldwide gross, making it the sixth highest-grossing film of 1991 worldwide. JFK was nominated for eight Academy Awards, including Best Picture, and won two for Best Cinematography and Best Film Editing. It was the first of three films Stone made about American presidents, followed by Nixon (1995) and W. (2008).

Ted L. Gunderson An Edited and Approving Biographical Anthology of his Life and Works

Ted Gunderson was the right-hand man to RFK fighting the mafia that was run by Vice President Richard Nixon in the 1946 to 1960 years. As the Kennedy's gained power in the USA and world global dirty business operations subverted the USA and other nations. JFK and RFK attempted to shut down the CIA but it was too globally located to respond to the US Presidency and and held too much allegiance from British trained and supported Espionage in the USA operating as the US Government but through NGOs that again were difficult to control from inside the US Government. It would be comparable to NASA trying to control a long gone satellite past its available connections back to Earth.

A former senior official of the Federal Bureau of Investigation says “rogue” military intelligence and law enforcement units of the federal government oversee a nationwide network of community-based “gang stalking” (harassment, intimidation and domestic terrorism) directed at thousands of U.S. citizens who have been extrajudicially targeted as “dissidents” or undesirables.

“Based on my thirty years’ experience and research, I have determined there are thousands of victims who have been targeted by an illegal U.S. government rogue criminal enterprise - military intelligence, probably, tied into CIA and FBI and so forth - that is active 24 hours a day throughout the United States,” Gunderson stated in an October 2008 speech posted last fall on YouTube.

Majic 12 and the Secret Government by William Cooper Introduction by Edward Donegan

With Ed Donegan provided Introduction and in-context commentary and de-anonymized cartoon space aliens as real people under Hidden Identities talked about in anonymized fictionalized ways for un-traceability of any real figures. William Cooper was tied to Free Mason families in his personal life and was part of that overlay of that in US Government activities and became an NWO whistle-blower. Ed Donegan shows the real people and real stories under the clouds of fictionalized obfuscations. Eisenhower GOP and Truman and NIXON worked with Free Masonry and likely formed the CIA as un understudy of MI5 and MI6 Jedah assassins and covert operatives with exchanges of espionage teams between the USA and Great Britain.

The Super-conspiracy by Ed Donegan and in parts of this others as well

The Kings Speech and efforts to help the Windsor family and Great Britain in its imperialism.

Also called Minimal Brain Dysfunction and can include Borderline Personality, Dyslexia like grammar problems, and at times symptoms like multiple personality when emotions can for a while get carried away from norms of the normal character, but is rational and not Bipolar. My book with this theory is The Great Treason

The John F. Kennedy Assassination

Ed Donegan asserts that Dean Rusk, the Dulles Brothers, and many more long knew (as royal families do) there are "bastard" Windsors US Army intelligence were studying. The plan was from Rockefeller Psychiatry and others to watch the children in orphanages or placed in CIA backed families and often using fake birth certificates perhaps from forgers place children in celebrity or diplomat or aid worker families traveling abroad and use these children as sleeper agents, agents of incluence the CIA would back as regime changes were planned or business were made as front companies employing these people. JFK soured on it all and the assassinations team that were the fullback for sleeper agent running backs were turned on JKF.

Barrack Obama Jr.

Ed Donegan asserts biological samples were taken from GLorian Donegan and Malcom X. There never were really attached parents to Barrack Obama Jr. A CIA backed plan moved him around as a youth, but most was CIA cover-story. I assert at two years old November 18 1963 Barrack Obama was passing childhood developmental metrics that I was failing. It was anticipated he did not show the FOXP2 gene and it was hoped he become an influential person in Indonesia, Kenya, or the USA. His real US birth certicate in Los Angeles (with JFK Present) was likely destroyed but a Hawaii one was created.

Robert F. Kennedy Assasination

The Manchurian Candidate 1962 contains plot-lines of planting "blue" flowers around the world, were there was a lack of them. LIke say; for instance, in the USA. When he found out or started to find out while in Los Angeles and while meeting with John Frankenheimer that his brother Robert F. Kennedy was killed when they were trying to create CIA controlled agents for the future (like Barrack Obama Jr but others) he RFK was assassinated. The plot his brother wanted stopped, subverting foreign governments and planting puppets in those countries is the plot. Marilyn Monroe, Malcom X, and Dr Martin Luther King also knew of the plot and were assassinated as RFK was to keep the plot and the identity of the sleepers and the identity of the assassins secret. Malcom X resented both England and Christians as opressors.

The Media Conspiracy of Silence

English propaganda fills the US Media infrastructure. They reject conspiracy theories and by eupemism or allegories in outer space tell the tale of great kingdoms of in various movies. Ed

Donegan and William Cooper think major movies have messages about 33s and Finest Hour overlords who stay hidden from view, espionage agents, Jeda, who assassinate a few here or there and groom their youth from early on to become part of the fabric of thousand year society.

GangStalk

Espionage Agents in treason run illegal programs in the USA. Many cooperate. Ted Gunderson and Gene Chip Tatum say the NWO can plant people everywhere and operate secret programs and can get away with anything. That is true and the US CIA FBI DOD AND NDAA system uses illegal programs to target law abiding people

A book Called Hidden Evil of how elites can use undercover thugs and spies to ruin the lives of Targeted Individuals and not admit to doing it.

Pizzagate

Jen Moore says the mother of Ed Donegan Glorian Donegan and Ed Donegan and her were targeted for illegal espionage criminal activity including money laundering and staged events, the affect was someone like Ed Donegan would get sex ed lessons, perhaps fantasy role play when he would be discovered of having child porn or been around children, and that event using a fake Ed Donegan would be talked up everywhere, and it was a smear campaign to discredit her, me, and others,

Kindle Your Imagination

Self-Portrait of a Scoundrel

Holt, Chauncey On Kindle

Released in 2013 for the first time (16 years after his death) this startling autobiography by one of the so-called “three tramps” from the John F. Kennedy assassination reveals the details of Chauncey Marvin Holt’s many claims.

Much mystery and suspicion still swirls around that fateful day in November 1963, and theories abound in nearly every form of media. But one of the major mysteries revolves around the three men spotted and later arrested in Dealey Plaza. Holt’s controversial confession to being one of the three tramps has a history of its own, and in his own words he delves into his unique and wild background and life.

From his United States Air Force service during

Pearl Harbor to his associations with the mob and the CIA, Holt discusses his experiences and encounters in great detail. From a man who truly lived a rare and unique life, the book explains the ins and outs of his associations with Lee Harvey Oswald and the assassination in this unique retrospective of a complex and occasionally dubious life.

Rush To Judgment (August 1966)

Rush to Judgment is Mark Lane's seminal work on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. This groundbreaking number one bestseller opened the eyes of the people of the United States to the possibility that their government was involved in a cover-up of monumental proportions. In his mesmerizing book Lane explores the Warren Report's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald was the lone assassin despite overwhelming evidence to the contrary. Lane's exhaustive investigation provides a roadmap to the body of evidence about the assassination. By interviewing witnesses throughout the country, comparing each of the Report's conclusions with its own corresponding evidence, and searching through the 26 volumes of evidence the President's Commission collected and thousands of documents found only in the National Archive in Washington, DC., Lane truthfully investigates the assassination. Meticulously detailed, with over 4,000 citations, yet immensely compelling, Rush to Judgment set forth cataclysmic ripples through the fabric of our nation. This work, still unparalleled after nearly 50 years and scores of other explorations, is where it all began. No serious study of this event is complete without it.

While the CIA influenced news media bought the story of Oswald as the shooter and mocked conspiracy theorist Mark Lane and Pen Jones gave speeches at colleges and universities to wild applaue after the two had followed in the footsteps of the FBI and found out what the witnesses really said (and said again on camera as the two re-interviewed) them and showed the FBI investigation was wrong and not following the facts. Events like these that led to the rise of Robert F. Kennedy for President, departing his US Senate role. Did you know when they transposed the order of frames in the Zupruder film it changed the bullet that his hit head coming from the front into coming from the back?

An excellent book maybe still the best there is. Mark Lane who had some level of closeness to JKF is pictured on the cover with JFK. Like Penn Jones Jr Mark Lane, Jim Mars, and others see evidence right away that the official version was incorrect, shots came from the Grassy Knoll area and that is what the witnesses in the area were attesting to.

Since that book and other books like Penn Jones Jr book Forgive My Grief about the same time much has happened. Scientific techniques have been used to forensically analyze photographs and other evidence. Patters of deaths have occurred that lead to suspicion of an ongoing cover-up themselves raising questions. Death bed confessions have come out as have classified documents. Still he has a list of about 100 deaths then he considered suspicous and on details revealed since now seem homocides.

In recent months I have been working from the 2014 released book Self Portrait of a Scoundrel along with ST John Hunt E. Howard Hunt data and similar sources such as Lisa Pease and James DiEguenio books, other books and his now.

Since these early books were written technology has added a lot such as Web 2.0 with videos and speech to text on sites like YouTube that are searchable and indexed. Anita Ward's book Rush To Conspiracy leads to a different conclusion but in the discussion an organization something like the Standard Model of physics of forming in understanding the layout of Dealy Plaza and the names of witnesses and available theories such that more and more of a common base of information reasonable minds can explore are getting more detailed and finely honed a picture of what really happened and the terminology like Grassy Knoll, pagodas, various rifle types, groups of people like Hobos or Tramps and the train yard, train tracks and Triple Underpass begin to become common understanding.

His book is still an important read, thorough read, and the lawyer (himself) who put it together and deposed witnesses himself exceed and contradicted the Warren Commission.

Mark Lane (February 24, 1927 – May 10, 2016) was an American attorney, New York state legislator, civil rights activist, and Vietnam war-crimes investigator. Sometimes referred to as a gadfly, Lane is best known as a leading researcher, author, and conspiracy theorist[5] on the assassination of United States President John F. Kennedy. From his 1966 number-one bestselling critique of the Warren Commission, Rush to Judgment,[6][better source needed] to Last Word: My Indictment of the CIA in the Murder of JFK, published in 2011, Lane wrote at least four major works on the JFK assassination and no fewer than ten books overall.

In December 1963, Lane traveled to Dallas to question Oswald's family, and three days later suggested to Marguerite Oswald that she sue the city of Dallas for the death of her son. Lane said: "It would be an attempt to give Lee Oswald in death what he could not obtain life—a fair trial." Marguerite Oswald announced on January 14 that she had hired Lane to represent her son before the Warren Commission. After Lane notified the commission that he had been retained by Marguerite Oswald to represent her deceased son, the Commission's general counsel J. Lee Rankin replied: "The Commission does not believe that it would be useful or desirable to permit an attorney representing Lee Harvey Oswald to have access to the investigative materials within the possession of the Commission or to participate in any hearings to be conducted by the Commission." Although Warren reversed that position with a statement released on February 25 that said Walter E. Craig, president of the American Bar Association, had been appointed by the Commission to represent the interests of Oswald, Lane remarked that he still considered himself to be Oswald's counsel.

I Edward Paul Donegan believe I am representing deceased Ted Gundeson's interest against the FBI and CIA and NSA and Lee Harvey Oswald and my own family too, myself included.

JFK vs. Allen Dulles: Battleground Indonesia

Poulgrain, Greg On Kindle

For those interested in the assassination of JFK, the untold story of Indonesia, gold, JFK, Allen Dulles, the CIA, and secret military coups.

Two of the most fascinating figures in history, John F. Kennedy, thirty-fifth president of the United States, and Allen Dulles, our nation’s longest-serving CIA director, often clashed over intelligence issues and national security. However, one such conflict has remained in the shadows until now. JFK vs. Allen Dulles: Battleground Indonesia takes reader to the vast archipelago 3350 miles wide where this secret showdown occurred.

In 1936, an Allen Dulles-established company discovered the world's largest gold deposit in remote Netherlands New Guinea. In 1962, President Kennedy intervened, and Netherlands New Guinea was added to President Sukarno's Indonesia. Neither Sukarno nor JFK was aware of the gold, since Dulles had not informed Kennedy.

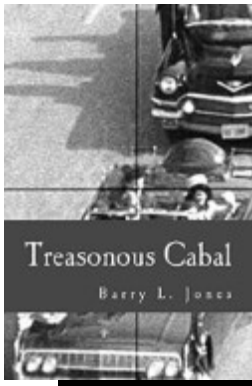
Dulles planned a complicated and ruthless CIA regime-change strategy to seize control not only of Indonesia itself, but also of its vast resources, including the gold. This strategy included a push to start Malaysian Confrontation. Yet Kennedy's plan to visit Jakarta in early 1964 would have sunk Dulles' master plan, which included the destruction of the Indonesian communist party as a wedge to split Moscow and Beijing. Only an assassin's bullet put an end to Kennedy’s plan of peace. Did Allen Dulles arrange for JFK to be killed to save his plan and his gold? Was his coup for gold successful with JFK out of the picture?

Using archival records as a basis, Greg Poulgrain adds word-of-mouth evidence from those people who were directly involved—such as Dean Rusk and others who worked with President Kennedy and Allen Dulles at the time; or the person who was with Michael Rockefeller when he mysteriously disappeared in West New Guinea during this whole affair.

Treasonous Cabal: A Primer on the Violent Overthrow of John F. Kennedy and His Presidency



Jones, Barry On Kindle

As assassinations go, the JFK assassination was unique for at LEAST a few reasons. First, the very nature of the crime was astonishingly brutal...and visible. Second, an alarming number of key assassination witnesses died violent...and unexplained deaths. Third, the subsequent investigations created more questions than answers. This book is an attempt to answer three of those questions. Why was President Kennedy killed? Who benefited? And who had the power to cover it up?

As Dwight Eisenhower's Vice President, Nixon was fully involved in a covert CIA plan to assassinate Fidel Castro. What made this operation a stick of political (and legal) dynamite was the involvement of Sam Giancana and his crime syndicate. The federal government and the mob were partners! Giancana described the arrangement as the CIA and Cosa Nostra being "two heads of the same coin."

President Johnson later characterized the relationship as a reincarnation of the 1940's-era hit squad, "Murder, Inc." It began in August 1960 when the CIA recruited ex- FBI agent Robert Maheu to approach mobster Johnny Roselli and pass himself off as a representative of international corporations that wanted Castro killed because of their lost business enterprises in Cuba.

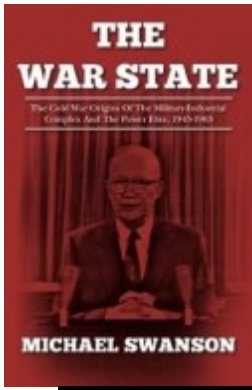
After the successful meeting, Roselli introduced Maheu to "Sam Gold" — Sam Giancana — during which a deal was struck to work together. Later, The Agency gave the Chicago outfit six poison pills. The plan was to have someone put them in Castro's food. Naturally, Vice President Nixon was rooting for this plan to succeed before the 1960 election so the Republicans could claim credit for having rid the world of the Castro scourge.

[After the Bay of Pigs and still connected to the CIA cabal the CIA will use Murder Inc. (Meyers Lansky, Charles Harrelson, others, Peter Licaovoli, Chauncey Holt partially aware only of his role, to it JFK. -edp relying on Holt.]

The War State: The Cold War Origins Of The Military-Industrial Complex And The Power Elite, 1945-1963



Swanson, Michael On Kindle

Today when you factor in the interest on the national debt from past wars and total defense expenditures the United States spends almost 40% of its federal budget on the military. It accounts for over 46% of total world arms spending. Before World War II it spent almost nothing on defense and hardly anyone paid any income taxes. You can't have big wars without big government. Such big expenditures are now threatening to harm the national economy. How did this situation come to be?

In this book you'll learn how in the critical twenty years after World War II the United States changed from being a continental democratic republic to a global imperial superpower. Since then nothing has ever been the same again. In this book you will discover this secret history of the United States that formed the basis of the world we live in today.

By buying this book you will discover:

- How the end of European colonialism created a power vacuum that the United States used to create a new type of world empire backed by the most powerful military force in human history.

- Why the Central Intelligence Agency was created and used to interfere in the internal affairs of other nations when the United States Constitution had no mechanism for such imperial activities.

- How national security bureaucrats got President Harry Truman to approve of a new wild budget busting arms race after World War II that is still going on to this day.

- Why President Eisenhower really gave his famous warning against the "military-industrial complex."

- Why during the Kennedy administration the nuclear arms race almost led to the end of the world during the Cuban Missile Crisis.

- How President Kennedy tried to deal with what had grown into a "permanent government" of power elite national security bureaucrats in the executive branch of the federal government that had become more powerful than the individual president himself.

In this book you will discover this secret history of the United States that formed the basis of the world we live in today.

In Russia -The State strove to make use of the developing economic groups, to subject them to its own specialized financial and military interests. The dominating economic groups, as they arose, strove to use the State to consolidate their advantages in the form of estate privileges. In this play of social forces, the resultant went much more in favour of the State power than was the case in the history of Western Europe. The exchange of services between the State power and the upper social groups, at the expense of the working masses, which finds its expression in the distribution of rights and obligations, of burdens and privileges, was less advantageous to the nobility and clergy in Russia than in the mediaeval estates-monarchies of Western Europe. This is beyond doubt. Nevertheless, it would be a great exaggeration and contrary to all sense of proportion to say that while in the West the estates created the State, in Russia the State power created the estates in its own interests (as Milyukov does).

Leon Trotsky (on the Permanent Revolution and the Russian Revolution Betrayed) Results and Prospects I. The Peculiarities of Russian Historical Development

Introduction to the on-line version of Permanent Revolution and Results & Prospects

Along with the theory of “combined and uneven development”, one of Leon Trotsky’s major contributions to Marxist thought was the theory of “permanent revolution”. The first is the idea that a backward country does not need to pass through the same sequence of stages already achieved by advanced countries. It can combine elements of both backward and advanced countries and leads to the idea of the permanent revolution. The expression “permanent revolution” was borrowed from the Address of the General Council to the Communist League, 1850, by Marx and Engels. Trotsky wrote: “The permanent revolution, in the sense which Marx attached to this concept, means a revolution which makes no compromise with any single form of class rule, which does not stop at the democratic stage, which goes over to socialist measures and to war against reaction from without; that is, a revolution whose every successive stage is rooted in the preceding one and which can end only in complete liquidation.”

The theory of permanent revolution was first formulated in the wake of the 1905 Russian Revolution as an attempt to explain what class would need to lead the coming revolution in Russia. Trotsky agreed with the other Russian Marxists that it would have to initially be bourgeois-democratic in character in order to accomplish such tasks as the overthrow of the Tsarist regime and the transformation of agrarian relations. In Results and Prospects, Trotsky took this idea a step further and analyzed how the conditions unique to Russia meant the working-class would need to join the peasantry to overthrow the capitalist class. Trotsky outlined the theory of permanent revolution from his cell while awaiting trial for his participation in the Petersburg Soviet of 1905. Some 24 years later, The Permanent Revolution (1929) was written in response to an attack on the the theory by Karl Radek, a Soviet journalist and former Left Opposition member who advocated Stalin's theory of "socialism in one country". It's purpose was to clarify the relationship between Trotsky's and Lenin's perspectives on class relationships and objectives of the Russian revolution in the international arena.

The Revolution Betrayed is in The Great Treason as Trotsky opposes support for capitalist ventures in farming. The Farming Industrial complex as incentivised private actors farms are created after the Russian Revolution.

Strange Deaths Of People Who Knew Too Much About The JFK Assassination
Witnesses, police officers, CIA agents, FBI agents, reporters, politicians, researchers, authors, friends and other people who knew too much who died strange deaths now numbers almost 100 people!
An Investigative Report By Ralph Thomas

Thomas, Ralph On Kindle

Now includes new information from the 04.2018 JFK Files Release!

When the Jim Garrison trials started, there had already been a huge number of witnesses, reporters, police officers and others who had suddenly died who knew too much about the Kennedy Assassination. On March 1, 1967 New Orleans district attorney Jim Garrison arrested Clay Shaw for conspiring to murder John F. Kennedy. Shaw promptly had his attorneys file a motion for dismissal based on the fact that the Warren Commission proved that there was no conspiracy in the JFK Assassination. The court ruled in the state's favor claiming that the Warren Commission was hearsay. Garrison had wanted to bring to trial David Ferrie and was about ready to do so but he suddenly died. Since that time, the death toll has slowly risen to almost 100 people.

Here are a few samples of silenced victims: Organized crime figures Johnny Rosselli, Sam Giancana, Charles Nicoletti had all been murdered right before they were to give testimony before the House Select Committee On Assassinations. CIA handler of Lee Harvey Oswald George DeMohrehschildt also died of a gunshot wound to the head after he was notified he was to give testimony before the House Select Committee On Assassinations. David Ferrie died right before he was charged with conspiracy to assassinate JFK.

Intelligence officers And FBI agents David Sanchez Morale- CIA, William Guy Banister- FBI, James Cadigan –FBI, John Garrett Underhill Jr. – Intelligence Officer all died because they knew to much. Rolando Masferrer , Dorothy Kilgallen, Bill Hunter and Jim Koethe were going to expose too much but their exposure died with them.

Assassination researchers Joe West, Larry Howard and Larry Harris were all about ready to bring forward new evidence of a conspiracy but their evidence was taken to the grave with them when they died. Material witnesses Jean Hill, Roger Craig, Hank Killam, Karen Carlin, Marily Walle, Rose Cheramie and Lee Bowers were just a few of the witnesses who saw and heard too much. The evidence they had died with them. Congressman Hale Boggs was a member of the Warren Commission that wanted to reopen the investigation. He disappeared in a small plane over Alaska.

Lt. William Bruce Pitzer took photographs of the autopsy that revealed shots from the front. These photographs disappeared and he died of a gun shot to the head.

This investigation details the strange deaths of 92 people who knew way too much about the Kennedy Assassination. Inside there are 92 Witnesses, Researchers, CIA Agents, Police Officers, Reporters, Politicians and Girlfriends who just knew way too much! Some of them were outright murders like Mary Pinchot Meyer who was the girlfriend of John F Kennedy. Some of them are highly suspicious suicides, accidents and other strange incidents. In the profile of each victim, you will sometimes find links to online videos you can watch by clicking on the link.

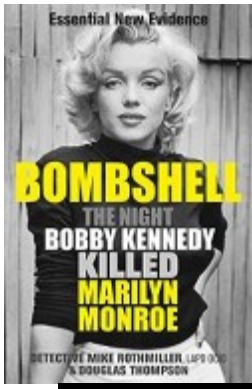
Bombshell: The Night Bobby Kennedy Killed Marilyn Monroe



Douglas Thompson (Author), Mike Rothmiller (Author)

Bombshell: The Night Bobby Kennedy Murdered Marilyn Monroe tells the essential truth of the death of Marilyn Monroe at the hand of Robert Kennedy, Attorney General of the United States. Drawing on unseen police files, Marilyn Monroe's private diary, and first-hand testimony, this book proves that Robert Kennedy was directly responsible for her death. It details Marilyn Monroe's tumultuous personal involvement with him and his brother, President John Kennedy. The new evidence and testimony is provided by Mike Rothmiller who, as an agent of the Organized Crime Intelligence Division (OCID) of the LAPD, had direct personal access to hundreds of secret files on exactly what happened at Marilyn Monroe's Californian home on August 5, 1962. With his training and specialist knowledge, Rothmiller used that unseen information to get to the heart of the matter, to the people who were there the night Marilyn Monroe died—two of whom played major roles in the cover-up—and the wider conspiracy to protect the Kennedys at all costs. There will be those with doubts, but to them, the lawman—who has advised the White House, the Pentagon, and international crime agencies—says the printed, forensic, and oral evidence are totally convincing. He insists: "If I presented my evidence in any court of law, I'd get a conviction." Includes eight pages of black and white photographs.

Was What's My Line TV Star, media icon, and crack investigative reporter and journalist Dorothy Kilgallen murdered for writing a tell-all book about the JFK assassination? If so, is the main suspect in her death still at large?

Book Publisher: These questions and more are answered in former CNN, ESPN, and USA Today legal analyst Mark Shaw's 25th book, The Reporter Who Knew Too Much. Through discovery of never-before-seen videotaped eyewitness interviews with those closest to Kilgallen and secret government documents, Shaw unfolds a "whodunit" murder mystery featuring suspects including Frank Sinatra, J. Edgar Hoover, Mafia Don Carlos Marcello and a "Mystery Man" who may have silenced Kilgallen. All while by presenting through Kilgallen's eyes the most compelling evidence about the JFK assassinations since the House Select Committee on Assassination's investigation in the 1970s.

Called by the New York Post, "the most powerful female voice in America," and by acclaimed author Mark Lane the "the only serious journalist in America who was concerned with who killed John Kennedy and getting all of the facts about the assassination," Kilgallen's official cause of death reported as an overdose of barbiturates combined with alcohol, has always been suspect since no investigation occurred despite the death scene having been staged. Shaw proves Kilgallen, a remarkable woman who broke the "glass ceiling" before the term became fashionable, was denied the justice she deserved, that is until now.

Project Northwoods, Operation Mockingbird And The Assassination Of JFK – MLK And RFK: An Investigative Report

Thomas, Ralph On Kindle

Based in Austin, Texas, Ralph Thomas spent most of his life as a private investigator and director of the National Association Of Investigative Specialists.

At age 14, he read the Warren Commission and concluded something was not correct about it. Since that time, he has researched and investigated the murder, has read and studied the works of over 1,600 other researchers and followed the case very closely.

Thomas has been to Dallas, Texas and Washington DC several dozen times to conduct investigations and interviews. Using networking and an army of other researchers investigators and inside contacts, Thomas has been in a unique position to take old information and correlate it with new information that has been developed in the case that proves beyond a doubt with absolute proof that John Kennedy, Martin Luther King And Robert Kennedy had been assassinated as a result of a conspiracy. His material reads much like investigative reports. Each one is riveting with evidence on every page.

Thomas's main work, JFK Beyond A Question Of Conspiracy, turned into almost 2,000 pages of information. Because it is so long, he had broken the main material down into some 20 sections which can be obtained individually. In the course of his investigative projects, he has exposed the facts in the assassinations of not only JFK but also MLK and RFK.

Project Northwoods was a plan to stage fake attacks in the United States and make it look like Cuba did it in order to get into a war. Operation Mockingbird was an operation set up by the CIA to obtain assets in and control what was said in the news media.

This investigation contains details of these two operations that had an influence on what was going on pertaining to the John F. Kennedy Assassination, the Martin Luther King Assassination, The Malcolm X Assassination and the Robert F. Kennedy Assassination. All four of these assassinations had been the result of a conspiracy. Note: This material is an excerpted from the investigative report known as JFK: Beyond A Question Of Conspiracy. The Investigative Report JFK: Beyond A Question Of Conspiracy is over 1,900 pages long.

Clear statements on the record by a person is part of a usable record. In tech we use digital certificates to "sign" in a checksum based way emails or other things. If we stated it in a signed email it can not then be repudiated as a statement. There is mathematical proof a person DID say that. It is even bettern than attacking a handwritten signature to a document. That could be lifeted from another document or forged. Digtial signing of an entire doc with your own key for doing so is proof you atest to saying it. Suggestive and abusive mockery is meant be deniable should it be confronted.

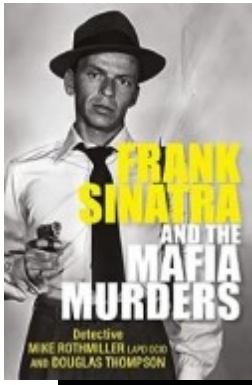
Frank Sinatra and the Mafia Murders



Rothmiller, Mike; Thompson, Douglas On Kindle

It was said of the young Frank Sinatra that he came across as "St Francis of Assisi with a shoulder holster."

Mike Rothmiller and Douglas Thompson draw on previously secret LAPD intelligence files, a cache of FBI documents released to the authors in 2021, and extensive interviews with prime sources, including many who worked with Frank Sinatra and many more who tracked his long and fatal association with the American Mafia, notably his ongoing connection, after his original godfather was assassinated: Sam 'Momo' Giancana, who shared a lover with President John F. Kennedy.

Sixteen days after the assassination of John F. Kennedy on 30 November 1963, while the singer was 'consoling' the president's widow, nineteen-year-old Frank Sinatra Jr. was kidnapped at gunpoint from his hotel room in Lake Tahoe, Nevada. A $240,000 ransom was demanded from his father. While the FBI and Nevada and California law-enforcement agencies sprang into action, Frank secretly contacted his Mafia friends for help. The Mafia believed they could free young Frank much more quickly through their underworld connections. In the end, nine people died, having been beaten for information.

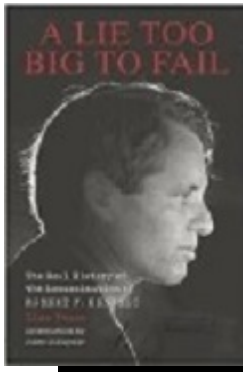
Revealed here as never before is the extent to which Sinatra was adopted by the Mafia. They promoted his career and 'watched his back' and, in return, Sinatra danced to their tune. New information disclosed here shows that Sinatra also offered to spy for the CIA. Inside sources say Sinatra wanted the CIA to intercede to stop an investigation into his gaming license in Las Vegas. But the CIA declined because they were already working with the Mob and were concerned Sinatra would learn of the Mafia's connection to the CIA and leak it.

A Lie Too Big to Fail: The Real History of the Assassination of Robert F. Kennedy



Pease, Lisa On Kindle

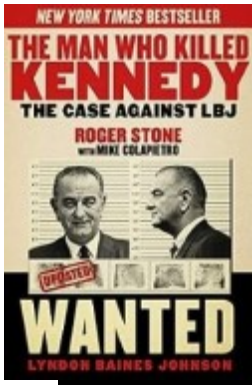
In A Lie Too Big to Fail, longtime Kennedy

researcher (of both JFK and RFK) Lisa Pease lays out, in meticulous detail, how witnesses with evidence of conspiracy were silenced by the Los Angeles Police Department; how evidence was deliberately altered and, in some instances, destroyed; and how the justice system and the media failed to present the truth of the case to the public.

Pease reveals how the trial was essentially a sham, and how the prosecution did not dare to follow where the evidence led. A Lie Too Big to Fail asserts the idea that a government can never investigate itself in a crime of this magnitude. Was the convicted Sirhan Sirhan a willing participant? Or was he a mind-controlled assassin?

It has fallen to independent researchers like Pease to lay out the evidence in a clear and concise manner, allowing readers to form their theories about this event. Pease places the history of this event in the context of the era and provides shocking overlaps between other high-profile murders and attempted murders of the time. Lisa Pease goes further than anyone else in proving who likely planned the assassination, who the assassination team members were, and why Kennedy was deemed such a threat that he had to be taken out before he became President of the United States.

The Man Who Killed Kennedy: The Case Against LBJ



Stone, Roger J. On Kindle

From the mind of legendary political insider Roger Stone, here is the sensational New York Times bestseller that reveals the truth about who was behind the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

From the mind of consummate political insider Roger Stone, unofficial adviser to Donald Trump and subject of the documentary Get Me Roger Stone, comes a compelling case that Lyndon Baines Johnson had the motive, means, and opportunity to orchestrate the murder of JFK.

Stone maps out the case that LBJ blackmailed his way on the ticket in 1960 and was being dumped in 1964 to face prosecution for corruption at the hands of his nemesis attorney Robert Kennedy. Stone uses fingerprint evidence and testimony to prove JFK was shot by a long-time LBJ hit man—not Lee Harvey Oswald.

President Johnson would use power from his personal connections in Texas, from the criminal underworld, and from the United States government to escape an untimely end in politics and to seize even greater power. President Johnson, the thirty-sixth president of the United States, was the driving force behind a conspiracy to murder President Kennedy on November 22, 1963. In The Man Who Killed Kennedy, you will find out how and why he did it.

Legendary political operative and strategist Roger Stone has gathered documents and uses his firsthand knowledge to construct the ultimate tome to prove that LBJ was not only involved in JFK's assassination, but was in fact the mastermind.

The Kennedy Assassination:
what really happened
The 'Oswald letter,' JFK archive releases, and a deathbed confession implicating
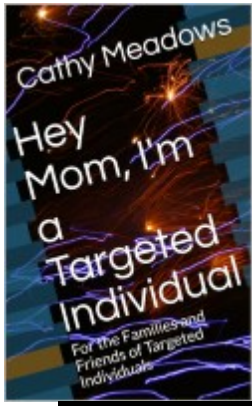
President Johnson in the murder

Kroth, Jerome A. On Kindle

Professor Kroth decodes a mysterious letter written to a "Mr. Hunt" by Lee Harvey Oswald sixteen days before Oswald was murdered. Oswald's dyslexia provides a final clue to the actual events surrounding the assassination.. This leads us to Howard Hunt and his dramatic deathbed confession implicating LBJ in the murder. In addition Trump's dramatic disclosure of over 50,000 secret JFK files in 2017-18, plus more documents disclosed in 2021, changes our understanding of virtually everything. In late 2022, 13,000 more documents were let go, and these too have been sifted and sorted here. All of the releases together are absolutely revelatory.

Publisher reviews follow: "These documents, as he says, over 80 of them, blew me away. I'll never believe the Warren Commission was anything but a whitewash. Johnson did it through the CIA and the Mafia. No doubt in my mind it was a coup d'etat." —M.S. Forrest, Ph.D

Hey Mom, I'm a Targeted Individual: For the Families and Friends of Targeted Individuals



Cathy Meadows on Kindle

Defamation of Character

[Creating a *"Legend"*that some person is threat and doesn't belong there, creating a basis for retaliation on the record against a person framed off of the record, the Abuse of Process system that is Obstruction of Justice and Conspiracy Against Rights.]

[Creating By Undercover Operatives Deceived Emotional Lynch Mobs]

Slander can rally many people in the community, particularly financially marginalized people, young people, emotionally damaged persons, and angry middle-aged men (David Lawson, Cause Stalking: Terrorist Stalking in America) against targets. Slander is free, easy, and effective and it's the foremost tool used by the perpetrators because it fuels hatred for the target.

It's virtually impossible to carry off the targeting without it. Slander can get an entire community mobilized against an individual, and induce the community to commit felonies against that person, for fun and relaxation.

Kind of like what throwing Christians to the lions did for citizens in Ancient Rome. Further, it can cause psychological confusion in the target who'll worry about what's being said about him or her that's so horrific that their neighbors, co-workers, and other associates have turned against them.

As an added bonus, this tactic often lowers the self esteem of targets, and damages their egos. This, along with sleep deprivation, 24/7 harassment, worry, and confusion could lead to an agonizing descent into mental illness (or at least the perpetrators of the crime hope so).

Quite Often, fake police documents are distributed around the locality of the target that falsely describe the target as some kind of a community danger.

From what the targets themselves report, it appears that the false documentation against them usually has to do with sex crimes, theft, violence, and associations with terrorism.

Those who introduce the illegal and slanderous "offcial" documentation into the community usually show fake police badges, or something similar, to prove their point. However, law enforcement doesn't knock on doors. They simply put the stats on the internet and in 99 percent of the cases I've worked on, all accusations are criminally false.

The good new is that sometimes these kinds of attacks work against the stalkers because spreading disgusting slander, and falsified documents goes towards proving that the target is not imagining that people are out to get him or her. It's proof that someone is, and it's illegal as hell. Prison awaits those who find themselves in the cross-hairs of some of the more retaliatory targets who have resources.

Homeless and indigent people are often used to harass targets and all it takes is $5.00, a threat, a sandwich, a cheap bottle of booze, or a very small amount of their favorite drug to draw them in. In fact, because they have nothing, almost anything you give to indigent people could seduce them into committing a felony.

You may not suspect that someone who is driving a car and is dressed well is poor but think again. Many of the vehicles that the stalkers use are lent to them. Also, they may be given free haircuts, clothes from a 2nd hand store, or other goodies that the overseers got for free on Craigslist.

Sometimes people who have their own places and cars have over-extended themselves financially and will work for as little as $20.00 a day, to follow a target around, menacingly. Plus, figure in those stalkers who have been deluded into thinking that they're some kind of James Bond who are saving their communities by harassing a "dangerousperson who has done bad things" and the criminal perpetrators have themselves a free army [of "Noble Savages", punks and prison snitches, trustees, etc. helping the police now.]

The pay scale, if there is one, is very low and people who work at fast food restaurants make more. However, the stalking schedule is often flexible and many guys do it just to impress the females, and vice versa.

Sometimes, sex is involved. Seduction is used as much as possible to get people to commit these types of felonies. Most of the time, the top stalkers just have to flirt with the recruits and offer the promise of something that's probably never going to happen. [Frequently they are Targted themselves like Veronica Hoffman, Bobby Courtney, and Jimmy of Corpus Christi.]

Illegal Entry

What occurs in 99 percent of all cases is illegal entry, and gaslighting. Illegal entry is done either the good old fashioned way, with credit cards, lockpicks, etc.,

Why don't the targets report the illegal entry to the police? Sometimes they do but in the majority of cases there's no extreme evidence that anyone other then the tenant (or someone posing as the landlord) was in the home.

These criminals don't break and enter; they illegally enter. Further, the stalkers usually don't break or steal any of the target's possessions, but when they do it's minor or can be explained away as normal breakage. The more targets call the cops, the crazier they look, and some cops have been know to call a 51-50 (involuntary psychiatric hold) out on a target out of fear for the target's safety.

[If they do break in they pose as rescuers to children being held or other emergenices that do not exist.]

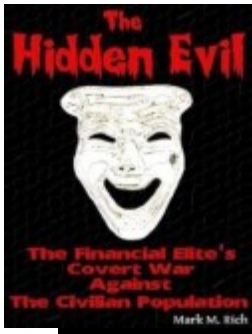
Gaslighting

[Black bag jobs planting items, removing them, or altering them in the absence of the home owner or leasor of the property]

The term "gaslighting" is taken from a 1944 movie thriller starring Ingrid Bergman (wife) and Charles Boyer (husband). In the movie, the husband tries to drive his wife into madness by assuring her that there's no gas with which to light up the lanterns in their home. Yet, every night while she lies in bed the lanterns light up. She continuously tells her husband what's happening and he continuously tells her that she's imagining it, thereby making her question her own sanity.

When stalkers illegally enter the home or vehicle of their target they let them know that they've been there, but in a subtle way. They leave one little thing out of place, for example. They may do small but noticeable vandalism, move things around, or take things and bring them back at a later date. This is not really confusing for most targets, who know exactly what's happening, but it can be infuriating that their right to privacy is being trampled on.

The Hidden Evil: The Financial Elite's Covert War Against The Civilian Population



Rich, Mark M. On Kindle

Mark provides compelling evidence that wealthy satanist-psychopaths are waging a covert war right in your neighborhoods as they establish a global dictatorship known as the New World Order.

Their potential enemies are placed under constant surveillance by the security forces and attacked with silent and traceless directed-energy weapons that leave no visible injury. These attacks are combined with psychological warfare used to inflict recurrent emotional pain.

Use of Blacklisting is a main tool of destroying lives and credibility often staged compromising appearaces then talking them up behind the vicitims back in the office, etc.,

Job opportunities will be trashed. Most Targeted Individuals are unemployed. Many would be in the street if it weren't for parents, siblings, or friends. Those who are employed are usually mobbed.

"Progressive financial impoverishment, [isl brought on by termination of the individual's employment, and compounded by expenses associated with the harassment," wrote McKinney. Most of the targeted individuals she was able to observe during her early investigations were mobbed out of employment by their coworkers.

There are blacklists and software packages used to check these lists for suspected terrorists and threats to national security. Apparently this is a flourishing business, according to the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

Blacklisting has also been used on Russian dissidents. In his book, The Persecutor, Sergei Kourdakov, a member of the plain- clothed PeopWs Brigade, declared that once a person was targeted they could only get the worst jobs, if they were employed at all.1 To accomplish this, the government of the USSR used something called a workbook, which could advance or destroy careers. If you were cooperative with the state, your career could be very successful. If not, you would live in poverty.

In East Germany dissidents were blacklisted as well, and their careers were destroyed. After the wall came down they were allowed to inspect their files, and learned why they were unable to get jobs or enter into universities.

Targets may regularly experience acts of vandalism. Electronic equipment may fail or act strangely. People have reported this happening with electrical systems in their cars, brand new appliances, TVs, radios, PCs, and other electronic devices. Ongoing computer problems which do not follow any logical pattern may also occur. They include hardware and software issues that span from the file to the internet level.

Many times this vandalism is just below what you'd report to the police. For instance, a small but noticeable portion of your wall has been chipped off, and a crack has appeared in one of your windows. This may be restricted to minor vandalism, just to let you know that you're under surveillance.

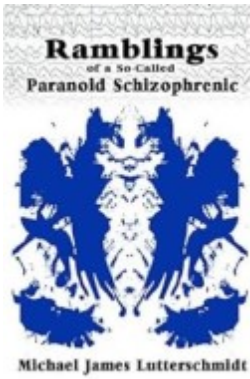
However large-scale property damage is also done to homes and vehicles. Some people have reported that their pets die suddenly of a mysterious illness. Vandalism and pets being tortured may also be in retaliation for you taking action to expose them. "Automobiles are one of the biggest targets," said Moret.

People have reported that tires are slashed, oil is drained, windows are smashed, electronic components are tampered with, and breaks and clutches are sabotaged.

McKinney wrote: "Vehicles invite peculiarly ferocious attacks in these harassment campaigns—slashed tires, smashed windows, oil drainage, oil contamination, destruction of electronic components and batteries grounded fuel gauges" and "suddenly failed brakes and clutches," are common, as are recurrent auto thefts.

According to Moret and McKinney citizens are being used to conduct staged vehicular accidents. They are deliberately colliding with the vehicles of targeted individuals.

Ramblings of a So-Called Paranoid Schizophrenic



Lutterschmidt, Michael On Kindle

In this follow-up to his ground-breaking memoir "Extrajudicial Execution," Michael Lutterschmidt—who was targeted for surveillance, intimidation, torture and death—presents a series of reflections and theories on subjects ranging from the frightening to the bizarre.

Labelled a paranoid-schizophrenic by professionals attempting to discredit his knowledge of government secrets, the author's perceptive mind weighs in on the abuses and vagaries of religion; the manipulation of society by unseen forces; the presence of magic in our world; exotic new technologies used to spy on citizens and influence minds; explanations for aliens and other paranormal entities; criminal conspiracies in major organizations; and a host of other issues. These must-read "rambles" will both startle and illuminate anyone with an open mind.

In his own words, this Targeted Individual (TI) exposes his tormented life and the heartless, sadistic and invasive methods used covertly to undermine his credibility, cause illness and excruciating pain, ruin him financially, tear apart his family, drive him mad and lead him to consider suicide. This dramatic and cautionary tale may seem extreme and far-fetched, but thousands of other Targeted Individuals throughout the world are suffering in silence right now. In this candid account, the author describes the psychological, emotional, mental and physical torture that he has endured for over six years, hoping that he will survive long enough to see this book in print.

Hornberger, Jacob G On Kindle

Jacob Hornberger's bestselling The Kennedy Autopsy detailed the mysterious events surrounding the autopsy that the U.S. military conducted on President's Kennedy's body on the night of November 22, 1963. Hornberger's new book, The Kennedy Autopsy 2, expands on his earlier work. In this new book, you will learn: • The important role that Lyndon Johnson played in the U.S. military's fraudulent autopsy on the president's body. • The significance of various meetings at the National Archives prior to the 1968 presidential race, where autopsy pathologists signed false affidavits relating to the inventory of autopsy photographs. • An alternative explanation as to why Johnson suddenly decided to drop out of the 1968 presidential race. • How and why Lee Harvey Oswald escaped the U.S. government's Cold War anticommunist crusade.And much more.

A Farewell to Justice: Jim Garrison, JFK's Assassination, and the Case That Should Have Changed History

Mellen, Joan On Kindle

Working with thousands of previously unreleased documents and drawing on more than one thousand interviews, with many witnesses speaking out for the first time, Joan Mellen revisits the investigation of New Orleans district attorney Jim Garrison, the only public official to have indicted, in 1969, a suspect in President John F. Kennedy's murder.Garrison began by exposing the contradictions in the Warren Report, which concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald was an unstable pro-Castro Marxist who acted alone in killing Kennedy.

A Farewell to Justice reveals that Oswald, no Marxist, was in fact working with both the FBI and the CIA, as well as with U.S. Customs, and that the attempts to sabotage Garrison's investigation reached the highest levels of the U.S. government. Garrison interviewed various individuals involved in the assassination, ranging from Clay Shaw and CIA contract employee David Ferrie to a Marine cohort of Oswald named Kerry Thornley, who at the very least was a Defense Intelligence Agency asset.

Garrison's suspects included CIA-sponsored soldiers of fortune enlisted in assassination attempts against Fidel Castro, an anti-Castro Cuban asset, and a young runner for the conspirators, interviewed here for the first time by the author.

Building upon Garrison's effort, Mellen uncovers decisive new evidence and clearly establishes the intelligence agencies' roles in both a president's assassination and its cover-up, set in motion well before the actual events of November 22, 1963.

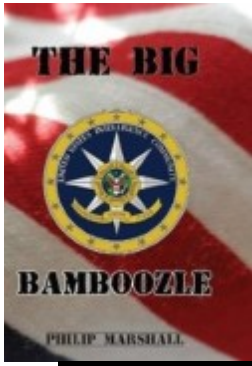
The Big Bamboozle: 9/11 and the War on Terror



Marshall, Philip On Kindle

From the perspective of a Boeing 767 captain and former "special activities" contract pilot, Philip Marshall straps the reader into the cockpits of hijacked commercial airliners to tell the story of the most sophisticated terrorist attack in history. Based on a comprehensive ten-year study into the murders of his fellow pilots on 9/11, he explains how hijackers, novice pilots at the controls of massive guided missiles, were able to beat United States Air Force fighters to iconic targets with advanced maneuvering, daring speeds and a kamikaze finish.

But, as Marshall explains, the tactical plan was so precise that it rules out car-bombers and shoe-bombers known as al Qaeda, KSM and Osama bin Laden. So then, who was it? That's what you are about learn. Backed by official NTSB, FAA and black box recordings, Marshall finds the most capable and most documented group of conspirators buried deep within a Congressional Inquiry's report and retraces their work in gripping detail.

Fasten your seatbelt--- the sad truth is that all of the solid evidence points to a dark collaboration between members of the Bush Administration and a covert group of Saudi government officials. This is a game changer that will finally set the record straight on the most horrific crime in US history.This book is a compilation of official reports that disputes the Bush Administration, the Bush Intelligence Community and the American media's account of the 9/11 attack.

United States Senator Bob Graham's Congressional Joint Inquiry in 2002 revealed that Saudi Arabian Intelligence agents met the 9/11 hijackers in the Los Angeles in January of 2000, harbored them and led them to 18 months of flight training in Florida and Arizona. Marshall follows reports from FBI field agents that warned George W. Bush's Administration that a "cadre of individuals of investigative interest were engaged in flight training" in the Arizona desert in the spring of 2001.

Marshall identifies three top federal investigators who complained that Dick Cheney obstructed justice by refusing access to suspects who supposedly confessed to the greatest crime in U.S.

history. None of the federal investigators were ever allowed to verify the confession of Khalid Sheik Mohammed who had been water boarded over 180 times at Guantanamo detention facility.

The book disputes the video and media confession of Osama bin Laden and points out that none of the accusations by the Bush Administration could be proved. Marshall asserts that the Saudi government was the true executioners of the 9/11 attack and framed their enemies while CIA special operations set up an elaborate decoy named Osama bin Laden to divert attention away from the Saudi operation. He follows the hijackers to flight training airports and finds that Saudi agents led the hijackers to the Arizona desert where Boeing 757 and Boeing 767 airliners were parked at a secluded CIA operated airport.

The operators of the CIA airport were traced to suspicious insider stock trades on two airlines, United Airlines and American Airlines, the only two airlines used in the 9/11 attack. Marshall breaks down the tactical flight plan that was used by the hijackers and chronicles the actions of Condoleezza Rice, Donald Rumsfeld, Saudi Arabian Prince Bandar bin Sultan, Dick Cheney and George W. Bsuh to learn that their account of the attack was severely flawed.

Three top investigators wrote that Dick Cheney had obstructed the investigation and redacted the involvement of the Saudi government agents who were employed in California by the Saudi Civil Aviation authority. The Congressional Inquiry reported that the Saudi agents had "seemingly unlimited funding from Saudi Arabia" and had traced the hijacker financial support to Prince Bandar through a Riggs Bank account. Finally Marshall chronicles the media trial that allowed

Bush and Cheney to derail American Justice by trying the 9/11 case with media propaganda and away from the American federal court system.

Justice for Captain Philip Marshall

In February of 2013, the Calaveras County Sheriff determined that Captain Philip Marshall shot his two teen-age kids, the family dog and then himself in a murder-suicide. However, Marshall's friends, neighbors and investigative journalist Wayne Madsen believe that Marshall and his family were assassinated by others Marshall threatened to expose as conspirators in the terrorist attacks of September 11th.

Why is this important?

There are a number of reasons someone may have wanted Phil Marshall silenced. Marshall had maintained relationships with colleagues from his days as a contract pilot for the CIA who had provided inside information.

Marshall had written a book about Government sponsored drug smuggling flying the notorious cocaine smuggler, Barry Alderman Seal. Later, based on his experience as a commercial airline pilot with over 15,000 hours flying heavy passenger jets, Marshall had also published two non-fiction books investigating those responsible for the support and training of the 9/11 terrorist pilots.

The Calaveras County Sheriff's findings were based largely on hearsay and innuendo rather than on solid forensic evidence, suggesting that other factors may have influenced the Sheriff's investigation. In order that all lingering questions be adequately answered, an impartial and unbiased investigation into the deaths of Philip Marshall and his family is clearly called for.

Deep State Hit List- Strange Deaths Of People Who Knew Too Much: JFK- MLK - RFK Assassinations And The Clinton Scandals

Thomas, Ralph On Kindle

On November 22, 1963 John F. Kennedy was murdered in the streets of Dallas by gunshot in broad daylight in front of some 500 people. 54 years later, the debate rages on as to who was involved in the JFK conspiracy. Within five years, Robert F. Kennedy, Martin Luther King Jr. and Malcolm X would also be murdered as a result of a conspiracy. The debates on the assassination conspiracies of these leaders also rages on.

On May 15, 1972 Alabama Governor George Wallace was shot at a campaign rally in Laurel Maryland while campaigning for President. Wallace lived but was crippled for life and confided to a wheel chair.

The Laurel Maryland rally would be his last campaign event for President. On March 30, 1981 President Ronald Reagan had been shot in Washington D.C. and came close to death but lived on. The American public didn't understand how serious his injury had been and how it effected his overall life in his remaining years. George Bush had been Vice President and took over many of the duties of the office of he Presidency. A close Bush family friend was the parents of John Hinckely, the gunman who shot President Reagan.

In 1987 the Congress conducted hearings on the Iran Contra Affairs. What was uncovered was a massive conspiracy to sell arms to the contras and import drugs back into the United States on the same planes that delivered the illegal weapons.

Recently a movie was made about this smuggling that had been going on called American Made. American made was a the story of Barry Seal who was a drug smuggler involved in these affairs that had set up a small airport in Mena Arkansas as a drug smuggling base. Barry Seal ended up being murdered in New Orleans in the aftermath of the operation. He is just one of hundreds of casualties involved in the deep state hit list.

On July 20, 1993 White House deputy counsel for the Clintons Vince Foster was found in Fort Marcy Park Virginia a stones throw away from CIA headquarters with gunshot wounds to the head. His death was ruled a suicide. Foster had been in charge of containing the Clinton scandals. His death is highly suspicious and he likely did not die in the park but was moved there.

This material combines related deep state deaths involved in the JFK- MLK- RFK assassinations as well as involved in the Clinton scandals and how it all relates to Watergate.

Profile in Courage

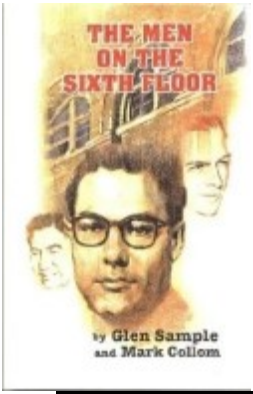
Written in 1955 by the then junior senator from the state of Massachusetts, John F. Kennedy's Profiles in Courage served as a clarion call to every American. The inspiring true accounts of eight unsung heroic acts by American patriots at different junctures in our nation's history, Kennedy's book became required reading, an instant classic, and was awarded the Pulitzer Prize. Now, a half-century later, it remains a moving, powerful, and relevant testament to the indomitable national spirit and an unparalleled celebration of that most noble of human virtues.

This special "P.S." edition of Profiles in Courage commemorates the fiftieth anniversary of the book's publication. Included in this new edition, along with vintage photographs and an extensive author biography, are Kennedy's correspondence about the writing project, contemporary reviews of the book, a letter from Ernest Hemingway, and two rousing speeches from recipients of the Profile in Courage Award.

The Men on the Sixth Floor: The "Must Have" JFK Assassination Book for the Serious Researcher.



Sample, Glen; Collom, Mark On Kindle

The Men on the Sixth Floor has charted a new course in the research of the JFK assassination. Containing fascinating, never before seen documents, the JFK book was a major focus of Nigel Turner's History Channel Documentary - "The Men Who Killed Kennedy/The Guilty Men" in 2003.

But legal action was threatened by LBJ associates, leading to the banning of further sales or broadcasting of the program. "The Men on the Sixth Floor" was the first book to introduce Malcolm Wallace to the assassination community. It was the first Jfk conspiracy book to tie Wallace to the owner of the Texas School Book Depository - D. H. Byrd, and it was the first book to release the never before seen "Estes documents" to public scrutiny. There is good reason why this JFK assassination book is considered 'required reading' by serious JFK researchers around the world.

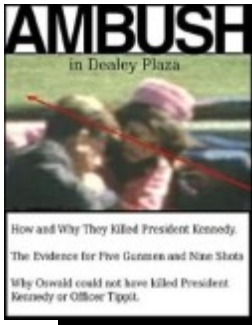
Ambush in Dealey Plaza: How and Why They Killed President Kennedy



AMBUSH
in Dealey Plaza
How and Why They Killed President Kennedy.
The Evidence for Five Gunmen and Nine Shots
Why Oswald could not have killed President Kennedy or Officer Tippit.

Murdoch, Robert On Kindle

A split second description of the assassination of President Kennedy and the killing of Officer Tippit, based on the acoustic recording, photos, videos, expert witnesses, affidavits by witnesses and time-line analysis. Demonstrating the evidence given to the Warren Commission by members of the Dallas police was created.Document contains 44 photos and illustrations. Many prove Lee Oswald did not kill President Kennedy or Officer Tippit.

Customer Reviewer: Very well researched. I remember the murder of John Kennedy - was a high school senior in Nov ,63 - have NEVER believed that poor Oswald was anything more than a patsy for those in high places pulling the strings.

Mr Murdoch reveals so many things hidden from the general public. We the people have been fed so many lies over the years; not just about the Kennedy assassination but many things (the lie of what really happened on 9/11/2001 being just one of so many). I walked through Dealey Plaza on a late Sunday afternoon in June 2001 with my brother and spotted the storm drain mentioned in the book and shown by acoustic testing to be the spot from which the fatal shot came.

I pointed it out to my brother and said that it would be a great spot for an assassin.

Murdoch‘s book, so hard to put down each night, is one that every adult American should read.

Unfortunately it is too late to haul before the public and bring to justice the vile “public servants” (CIA, FBI, Secret Service, Dallas PD - the list goes on) and hired gunmen who that day changed American history thereby leading to the deaths, life-long physical & emotional wounds of countless young Americans in Viet Nam.

It is so sad that John Kennedy didn’t get to crush the CIA into a thousand pieces as he had hoped to do! Don’t dare think this is the only thing your government has lied to you about - I truly believe that WE ARE LIED TO ABOUT EVERYTHING!

Don’t live your life believing the government & news media tripe - READ, DIG, RESEARCH! There are many revealing books on this subject written by independent researchers - find & read them. Don’t waste your time reading the lies written by government sanctioned “authors” who try to sell the absolutely laughable crap the Warren Commission managed to squeeze into a mere 26 volumes. This terrific book lays it all out - you will be absolutely spellbound & astonished!

This material is written much like a professional investigative report setting out clear and convincing evidence of what happened and breaks the Warren Commission into a thousand pieces scattering it to the winds.

The author of this material is the founder and director of the National Association Of Investigative Specialists. Using networking and team work consisting of a small army of investigators, researchers and specialists, he was able to slowly piece together different aspects of the case that exposes two conspiracies that involve the assassination itself.

This includes the massive cover-up that took place after the actual murder, and the reasons it was done. This investigation unravels the smoke and mirrors related to the case that peel away the layers of deception that then expose the truth. Along the way, various forms of deception detection techniques have been used to separate and rule out deception and false leads that separate what is fact and what is fiction. JFK Beyond A Question Of Conspiracy is filled with thousands of new documents, witnesses, photographs, diagrams and charts that hand you the final answers.

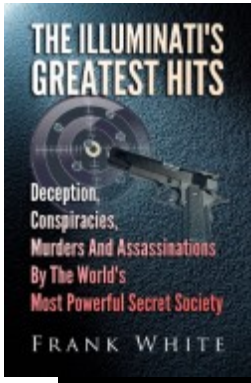
The Illuminati's Greatest Hits: Deception, Conspiracies, Murders And Assassinations By The World's Most Powerful Secret Society



THE ILLUMINATI'S GREATEST HITS
Deception, Conspiracies, Murders And Assassinations By The World's Most Powerful Secret Society
FRANK WHITE

White, Frank On Kindle

Birth through Adam Weishaupt in 1776 the secret society group known as the Illuminati have been wreaking havoc on the world ever since. They have fomented wars and have manipulated events from behind the shadows to sinister and diabolically implement their agenda of a New World Order.

People have heard of the Illuminati through popular culture, but most brush off their existence as nothing more than some “conspiracy theory” hatched by conspiracy theorists without doing any valid research that would perhaps discount their existence.

Shame on them, because if they did the necessary research they would conclude that the Illuminati do actually exist in the annals of history. However, they supposedly disbanded which of course is not the case. Nonetheless, this powerful secret society is headed by 13 distinct bloodlines consisting of prominent families that you've probably heard of like the Rothschilds and the Rockefeller's.

Behind the scenes the Illuminati are planning and implementing their New World Order agenda through organizations that they've created like the Council on Foreign Relations, The Bilderberg Group, The Trilateral Commission and many other entities.

They are shaping the world right in front of our eyes, but many are unable to see their hidden hand. They have toppled countries and their leaders not only through the acts of deception, corruption, and theft, but also through flat out murder and assassinations, all in the name of creating a New World Order. They have disrupted progressive movements like the Civil Rights movement of the 60's and have disposed of people who opposed them and refused to surrender to their Global Empire.

In his book entitled The Illuminati's Greatest Hits: Deception, Conspiracies, Murders And Assassinations By The World's Most Powerful Secret Society author Frank White in a follow up to his best-selling book "Who Are The Illuminati?" covers the major historical figures from various time periods who simply stood in the way of the Illuminati and their New World Order Global Empire Machine or flat out rejected its overtures and as a result were assassinated and eliminated. The following events and people will be covered.

The French Revolution and the execution of Louis XVI, The Sinking of the Titanic, the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, John F. Kennedy, Robert Kennedy, and John F. Kennedy Jr. The assassination of the Archduke Franz Ferdinand, Patrice Lumumba, Malcolm X, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Pope John Paul I, Jaime Roldas, Omar Torrijos, Muammar Gadhafi and the murder of Princess Diana. Simply put this is the most controversial and explosive book of the 21st Century!

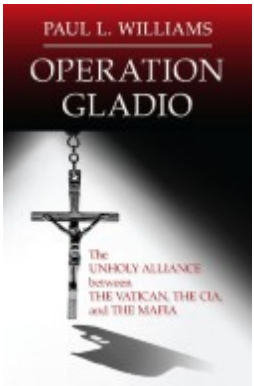
Operation Gladio: The Unholy Alliance between the Vatican, the CIA, and the Mafia



Williams, Paul L. On Kindle

This disturbing exposé describes a secret alliance forged at the close of World War II by the CIA, the Sicilian and US mafias, and the Vatican to thwart the possibility of a Communist invasion of Europe.

Journalist Paul L. Williams presents evidence suggesting the existence of “stay-behind” units in many European countries consisting of five thousand to fifteen thousand military operatives. According to the author’s research, the initial funding for these guerilla armies came from the sale of large stocks of SS morphine that had been smuggled out of Germany and Italy and of bogus British bank notes that had been produced in concentration camps by skilled counterfeiters.

As the Cold War intensified, the units were used not only to ward off possible invaders, but also to thwart the rise of left-wing movements in South America and NATO-based countries by terror attacks.

Williams argues that Operation Gladio soon gave rise to the toppling of governments, wholesale genocide, the formation of death squads, financial scandals on a grand scale, the creation of the mujahideen, an international narcotics network, and, most recently, the ascendancy of Jorge Mario Bergoglio, a Jesuit cleric with strong ties to Operation Condor (an outgrowth of Gladio in Argentina) as Pope Francis I.

Sure to be controversial, Operation Gladio connects the dots in ways the mainstream media often overlooks.

The Claim Staking of Indonesia by Gregg Poulgrain

JFK vs. ALlen Dulles: Battleground Indonesia

Greg Poulgrain On Kindle

World War 1

1915

Allen Dulles in US embassy, Vienna, begins career in intelligence (USA enters WWI on April 6, 1917); elder brother John Foster married (1912) into Rockefeller family.

1919

Standard Oil New Jersey (part of Rockefeller oil empire) secretly purchases Humble Oil and Refining Company, the largest producer in Texas and next year buys into Baku oil fields in Russia; oil fields then held by Noble Brothers soon under Red Army control. (Later, Russia becomes USSR.)

1920 - 1921

Allen Dulles in US embassy Constantinople (Istanbul), on behalf of Rockefeller oil, negotiates with head of Baku oil, von Mohrenschildt, father often-year-old George (de Mohrenschildt), who in 1938 emigratesfrom Belgium to USA. In 1940—41 George works with Allen Dulles in Humble Oil, selling oil to Vichy French. (George de Mohrenschildt in 1964 is key witness for Warren Commission in which Allen Dulles is dominant figure.)

1933

Hitler's Nazi party on the rise; Japan quits League of Nations. USA recognizes USSR. In Netherlands East Indies, new oil company formed: Standard-Vacuum (Stanvac).

1934

Standard of California (Socal) gets oil concession in Netherlands East Indies: ten million acres in Sumatra for drilling. Rockefeller since WW1 has been denied entry into Netherlands New Guinea (NNG) or West New Guinea; Indies oil mogul Henri Deterding publishes pro-Nazi memoirs

1935

NNGPM starts oil exploration in NNG: 40 percent Royal Dutch Shell, 60 percent Stanvac and Socal. (NNGPM has Dutch name, Dutch staff, and headquarters in the Netherlands, but majority share held by Rockefeller interests.)

1936

NNGPM expedition to highest peak in the territory (16,000 ft.) Ertsberg and Grasberg discovered but not announced (only much later described as world's largest primary deposit of gold.) Freeport, the US company still mining today, starts producing in 1972.

1941

Humble Oil conducts oil exploration in West New Guinea; 26,000 barrels per day (b/d) is largest well ever discovered in Southeast Asia, but not announced, as Japanese Imperial army about to invade and war starts a few months later. ("Rediscovered" in 1972 after Sukarno replaced by Suharto; this oil has no sulphur, is exceptionally pure and light, and needs no refining.)

1945

President Sukarno proclaims Indonesian independence from Dutch colonial rule; four years of armed struggle before Dutch transfer sovereignty of Indies, excluding NNG.

1958

Allen Dulles (now Director of Central Intelligence) uses CIA to start Outer Islands Rebellion (PRRI) supporting disparate Indonesian army commands in Sumatra and Sulawesi to attempt break-away from Java; Dulles' actual aim is to create unified central army command in Jakarta.

When CIA covert operation in PRRI is perceived as failure, Moscow offers Jakarta huge arms deal to oust Dutch colonial presence from Netherlands New Guinea (NNG).

1961

President Kennedy reappoints as DCI Allen Dulles, who already has arranged for Bay of Pigs and Dutch-Indonesian NNG sovereignty dispute to be Cold War crises awaiting JFK. DCI Dulles fails to inform Kennedy that Sino-Soviet dispute is real, not an intelligence ploy. UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold agrees to intervene in NNG, but is assassinated in the Congo.

1962

Kennedy intervenes in NNG sovereignty dispute in favor of Indonesia and proposes follow-up program of US aid (against earlier advice from Dulles).

1963

CIA gun-running in Sarawak helps to start Konfrontasi between Indonesia and Malaysia. US Congress disapproves of Indonesian aggression against (British) Malaysia and stops US aid program for Indonesia; JFK decides to visit Jakarta (set for early 1964) to stop Konfrontasi in order to restart US aid package. JFK unaware that his support for Sukarno will end Dulles' plan for regime change and jeopardize Rockefeller brothers' plans (which involve Allen Dulles and Henry Kissinger) to "drive a wedge between Moscow and Beijing."

Kennedy assassinated.

Self Portrait of a Scoundrel Table of Contents Reviewed by Edward Paul Donegan

Chauncey Marvin Holt (October 23, 1921 – June 28, 1997) was an American known for claiming to be one of the "three tramps" photographed in Dealey Plaza shortly after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Self-Portrait of a Scoundrel, which was posthumously released by TrineDay Publishing in August 2013.

Subtitled "A Memoir of Spooks, Hoods and the Hidden Elite" speaks of a secret government of assassinations run by the CIA and the most powerful figures in politics. Holt used the term "secret government" buried inside business, high-office politics and military, and front groups and is consistent with Col Fletcher Prouty books on a Secret Team of CIA that controls the US and other governments..

Introduction

The introduction is written by Wim Dankbaar who interview many important figures in the Kennedy assassination including Jim Mars. Dankbaar writes on this Self Portrait "You will never be given a look inside on the preparation for and cover-up of the de coup d 'etat on 11/1/1963" and he is correct. No matter how much you have read on the subject in any other places you will learn more and come to be convinced of a coup more here than anywhere else.

Lee Harvey Oswald exclaimed at once he was "just a patsy."

Numerous other witnesses and participants spilled the beans on the conspiracy, some of them paying with an untimely death.

The list is endless but includes Jack Ruby, Rose Cheramie, David Morales, David Atlee Phillips, Charles Nicoletti, Sam Giancana, Charles Harrelson, Johnny Roselli, Carlos Marcello, Tosh Plumlee, E. Howard Hunt, Santos Traficante, Luis Posada Carriles, David Ferrie, Dorothy Kilgallen, Lyndon Johnson to his mistress Madeleine Brown, Oswald's girl friend Judyth Vary Baker, and on and on.

Last but not least, the grassy knoll gunman himself talked. (James Files)

Others say that the JFK assassination happened too long ago to be of interest today.

I disagree wholeheartedly and blame it on ignorance.

I maintain that the political landscape of today is a direct result of the assassination.

A sitting, elected President was removed through a secret, illegal coup d'etat and the ones who committed the crime, seized power. At least 4 succeeding Presidents were in some capacity involved in the planning and/or cover-up of the murder. Lyndon Baines Johnson, Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford and George Herbert Walker Bush. It is therefore safe to say that George W. Bush, the most recent ex-President, also knows that JFK's death was a coup d'etat, a crime against the American system and thus its people..

The assassination may be some time ago, but the power structure built on it, is still at the helm today.

Not so long ago at all.

We Never Forget Our Debtors: Mafia, Inc

By Ted Schwartz with Chauncey Holt. "An Insider Tells of Organized Crime, Big Business, and America's Political Elite." And also future chapters. After WWII Holt lands a pilot bucked from the US Army Air Force after an altercation and in Detroit encounters the mob.

Meyers Lansky Bugsy Siegel La Kosa Nostra from prohibition days smuggled booze across the Great Lakes and ran gambling outlawed in the USA. This was later the basis for Casinos. Bugsey Segal was also dealing arms and after meeting Hitler had a strong distaste for him and put a contract out on him.

James Jesus Angleton was using the mob to fight Hitler in occupied Germany. The relationship between the CIA and fighting common foe is called Gladio the Unholy Alliance with the mob. The Detroit and New York parts are the Yiddish Mob. They become Murder Inc., Having their own internal hit men they also outsource the capability to others on a contract basis. Murder Inc is likely who Charles Harrelson worked for "Debtors to other mobs shot (by Murder Inc) for free."

An artist (fine paintings and scenic sketches) Holt was used for forgeries and for flying. Private flights to casinos in the USA or to 1950s Havana or carrying mob or CIA figures around was part of privat plane trips. Later Grace Ranch with Peter Licavoli and Bugsy Siegel and himself will modify planes likely train for Latin America in the hills and deal in munitions, documents provided in the book.

Meyers Lansky co-founder of Murder Inc with Bugsy Siegel and Holt's boss is part of mob history. "The story is that Lansky first became involved with Luciano and Siegel on October 24, 1918, when he was approximately 16 years old. Lanksy was Jewish and a Polish immigrant whose real name was Maier Suchowljansky. Lansky was an auto mechanic and gunsmith and that is how he drifted in to mob connections and mob work. Various incidents brought them all together in gambling, prostitution, and mob in-fights.

"What made Lansky a legend by the time I (Chauncey Marvin Holt) heard of h im was the consolidation of criminal activities on an international scale. He had developed a business chain of command with representatives of the syndicate in every city.

"In 1936, he went to Cuba to align himself with Fulgencio Batista. Havana was a wide open city for gambling, prostitution, and tourism. Where other gangsters of the era would try to coerce the dictator, Lanksy simply made him an equal partner. He knew so long as Batista gro rich, he would not interfere in the growing wealth of all involved."

"Similar situations existed in corrupt cities (including J. Edgar Hoover's friend Frank Costello and Pelican Novelty Company in Louisiana.,"

Thus Bugsey Seigel takes Nevada and from Florida a short private flight Havana Lansky with Holt as his accountant takes 1950s Havana.

At times Holt's mob bosses will send him invitations to meetign with the CIA and be asked to assist the CIA with forgeries for fake IDs, falsified documents and records, help with flights including C-47 with munitions in to Latin America, Surplus B-52s, etc, and be given CIA aliases like Jack Moon to use as he worked through CIA Proprietary (front) groups.

Hot states "The roles played by William King Harvey, Robert Maheu, Sam Giacanca, and Jonny Rosselli have been well publicized. However, the roles of some other players, including Peter Licavoli (Grace Ranch), friend and long time associate of Rosselli and Giancana, as well Tony Materna, a clos associate of Howard Hughes, legendary gambler Ray Ryan and his partner Ernie Dunlevie, have never been exposed before"

Holt shows in the chapter containing scans of documents William King Harvey setting meetings with these figures just about the time Marilyn Monroe was assassinated and the plans for Operation Mongoose were underway by William King Harvey.

Holt will show he was a Technical Sargent of freelance work as the mob worked to give Lee Harvey Oswald and others fake credentials and fliers for CIA work and later for infiltrating JFK's visits to Dallas.

Photographs & Documents (the last chapter of Self Portrait)

In plentiful documents between himself, William King Harvey and the CIA, photographs he provides of himself with Lee Harvey Oswald, the Tramps at the JFK assassination, and himself and family there and elsewhere identifying scars can be see on both him and Lansdale, a broken wrist area bone note properly set while he had been a prisoner somewhere (according to Prouty) and Marvin Holt

https://adst.org/2016/06/cleaning-americas-backyard-overthrow-guatemalas-arbenz/

Association for Diplomatic Studies and Training.

The Central Intelligence Agency launched a covert operation on June 18, 1954 to overthrow the left-leaning government in Guatemala. The coup, code-named Operation PBSUCCESS, deposed Guatemalan President Jacobo Árbenz Guzman, ended the Guatemalan Revolution and installed the military dictatorship of Carlos Castillo Armas. Armas would be the first in a series of U.S.-backed strongmen to rule Guatemala.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower authorized the CIA to carry out Operation PBSUCCESS in response to growing concerns over the spread of Communism in what was considered “America’s backyard.” Árbenz permitted the Guatemalan Communist Party to operate openly and his land reform program threatened U.S. commercial interests, in particular those of the United Fruit Company.

U.S.-backed invading forces numbered at most in the hundreds, but through psychological warfare operations, the CIA convinced the Guatemalans that a major invasion was underway, broadcasting propaganda messages and jamming Guatemalan radio transmissions. American pilots bombed Guatemala City; the Guatemalan Army refused to fight. Árbenz resigned on June 27, and following negotiations in San Salvador, Carlos Castillo Armas became President on July 7.

Who knows exactly who did it? But I think it was a group in the military itself who wanted Colonel Arbenz to be president. He was a much more leftist-thinking individual than Arana was and probably even than Arevalo was. The election took place and he was elected.

What [Arbenz] did was allow the Arevalo program to go farther and farther. He was very much in favor of the liberalization of the labor laws, which again hurt the United Fruit Company right away. He encouraged the importation of arms from Czechoslovakia. We didn't like that.

In general he took a very, very liberal path and soon he was being called a communist in the eyes of the Americans, the United Fruit Company in particular. I cannot say that he wasn't a communist. When it was all over he took refuge in Cuba. But there is a body of thinking that he wasn't actually a communist. I am inclined to think that myself.

IUFCO any event he was a communist for the United Fruit Company and they were not only lobbying in the State Department but were up on the Hill. They wanted him out because he was affecting their interests very severely….

There wasn't any question about the fact that they were hurting the United Fruit Company and there wasn't any question that some of the things that were being done down there were, even if not communist-inspired, off the wall and the United Fruit Company was going to be driven out of there one way or another. So, certainly you had to be sympathetic to their problem. They were getting screwed. So what to do?

You make your representations telling them that it was going to affect our relations very severely, and it did. Things were very ticklish and confrontational between the United States and Guatemala in those days…. -Association for Diplomatic Studies and Training.

Two areas of the Caribbean were of primary interest to the IRC (CIA front International Rescue Committee) ; Cuba, where dictator Fulgencio Batista y Zaldivar was in power and Guatemala, where Juan Jose Arevalo was president.

I (Chauncey Holt) was advised at the very outset that the administration was very upset with the situation in Guatemala, where a new day had begun with the fall of Jorge Ubico, the dictator who reigned with an iron fist for almost fourteen years, until the revolution of October 1944.

Juan Jose Arevalo, teacher-philsopher, was elected to the presidency after a hard electoral campaign, in what has been described as the freest election Guatemala has ever seen. His social awareness, however, made him as feared and hated by the powerful few, as he was loved and revered by the weak.

He was an idealist and dreamer, an anomaly in the political life of Guatemala.

Soon after his first speech as president-elect, in which he declared that there had been a lack of sympathy in the past for the working man, Guatemala's ruling class with its quasi-feudalistic mentality, branded him a communist.

Powerful interests in the United States were positively terrified. In the forefront were the stockholders of United Fruit Co., which actually owned over 50% of all the land in Guatemala. These powerful enemies persuaded the fledgling CIA to turn its attention to Guatemala.

Arevalo proposed that the government build a highway from Guatemala City to the Atlantic seacoast, paralleling the railroad, owned by United Fruit, which held a monopoly. The manager of International Railways of Central America, subsidiary of United Fruit opposed the idea.

Arevalo considered the input and desires of the common man. The implications of such a radical approach was very unsettling for the wealthy landowners, especially United Fruit.

So the decision was made to intervene in the politics of Guatemala, by fair means or foul.

At this point, President Eisenhower decided that Arbenz had to go and this ignominious duty was assigned to the CIA, who, in turn, delegated this odious task to the International Recue Comitte (a CIA front group Holt was working for.)

[After trying other avenues] We then turned to our second choice, Carlos Castillo Armas, who was in jail, after having been sentenced to be executed for his part in a military coup attempt that failed.

I (Chauncey Holt) was part of a five man team, headed by Jack Youngblood, sent to Guatemala and we were successful, with obvious collusion at a high level, in freeing Armas, who immediately began arming for a coup attempt against Arbenz.

Get Castro (Chapter 11)

, Traficante and other syndicate bosses had been involved in Cuba since prohibition, when they ran booze in from Havana to the U.S., and Lansky's influence over Batista was so pervasive that he practically owned him.

Still, when Castro was mounting his revolution that Lansky thought was virtually hopeless, Lansky hedged his bets and gave support to Castro, despite the fact that he was very close to Batista.

During Batista's first reign as dictator, he was being pressured by the U.S. government to hold free elections.

Lansky, in response to overtures from the state department, urged Batista, for effect only, to declare elections. Lansky was certain that Batista would be elected.

Toward the middle of 1958, I believe he realized his mistake but then both he and Traficante had what they thought were firm promises from Castro and Prio, that syndicate operation of the casinos would continue as usual.

It is impossible to sort out, even now, the loyalties and the disloyalties of many of the colorful and, regrettably, deceitful characters I (Chauncey Holt) met during that period.

I will point out, however, that in hiring its contract agents or "cowboys" as they are called, the CIA, or card carrying CIA agents, routinely, cull the "201 " files of the military, looking for talented, albeit immoral and unscrupulous, veterans to do their dirty work.

They would, in all probability, have been glad to hire someone with Morgan's talents for deception.

In saying this, it is not my intention, or even my inclination, to comment on the morality of these recruiting practices, or the projects these devious individuals were hired for.

As a matter of fact, one of the projects, most abhorrent to most Americans , which involved our attempts to assassinate Castro had, and has, considerable merit. I see no moral reason to oppose such a project and if I were again asked to participate in this regard, I would be most happy to volunteer.

It is a brutal fact of life, that the double and triple cross is a way of life with the CIA and the same can be said for the syndicate, a fact that all professional criminals appreciate.

So when various agencies are looking for the truth, regarding certain illegal operations, involving the syndicate and the agency, both of these factions feel that the truth must be avoided at all cost and the list of victims give mute testimony to this fact and demonstrate clearly the lengths to which the CIA and the syndicate, whose incestuous partnership goes back a long ways, will go to, in an effort to insure that details of operations are not divulged.

Those participating in this type of operation are fully cognizant of these brutal facts and most would agree - it comes with the territory.

So, in March of 1959, I flew Morgan and a friend of his, Frank Nelson, to the Dominican Republic to meet with Jose Eleutherio Pedroza, formerly chief of staff of the Cuban Army, Arturo Espaillat, chief of intelligence for Trujillo and a former race track tout, Johnny Abbes Garcia, who was in charge of Trujillo's security forces. In 1956, that old friend of the syndicate, Richard Nixon, who was vice president, visited the Dominican Republic and the CIA established a base there, soon after.

I never met the first chief of station; actually I never knew his identity.

The second COS was Lear B. Reed, an ex-FBI agent, who was involved in the cold blooded murder of John Dillinger. Incidentally, a goodly number of ex- FBI agents, who incurred the wrath of that closet homosexual, Hoover, were cashiered out, or resigned because they couldn't abide by the asinine rules established at Hoover's whim, and were picked up by the CIA.

This included William King Harvey, who was in charge of "Operation Mongoose," which involved Peter Licavoli and two other ex-agents, who were drummed out of the FBI, due to an incident that occurred in Tucson and involved Peter Licavoli.

The two agents had been assigned to keep tabs on Joe Bonanno and Peter Licavoli, two ranking and elder statesmen of the Mafia, who lived in Tucson.

The agents became frustrated that nothing was happening and so, the over zealous agents decided to foment a gang war between the two Mafiosos.

A complaint was filed; the agents were allowed to resign quietly and were picked up by the CIA.

Back to the Dominican Republic meeting. In 1958, I was approached by Reed, through a mutual acquaintance and asked to participate in the removal of Trujillo. I told Reed that I was leaving for California, to establish and operate proprietary gunrunning, gun modification and documentation interests for the CIA. He said that this would be no problem, and, in fact, the two projects might mesh,because weaponry was needed for the project they had in mind.

First, they tried to generate trouble by indulging in gossip; when that didn't work they ran out to Licavoli's Grace Ranch, on Wrightstown Road, and bombed some vehicles, parked at the ranch.

(Extensive other details in the chapter like all chapters supported in an appendix of scanned documents from the CIA, mob, and elsewhere photos, etc. This includes :Peter Licavoli owned Grace Ranch as the base of the mob operations as supported by the CIA),

CH: Operation Mongoose was an ill conceived operation, an operation between organized crime and the CIA to actually simply kill Castro, and they had some various memo's, as a matter of fact I have a few memo's how I ended up, how they were talking about what they were going to do and so forth...

VO: Here are some of the memo's Chauncey refers to (picture of memo's). These men participated in a meeting held at a small airport between Palm Springs and Indio California, the name: Bermuda Dunes.

CH: For that meeting Peter Licavoli and I flew in from Arizona. Sam Giancana and Johnny Roselli came in from Chicago. William King Harvey came in from Langley. William King Harvey was a legend in the CIA. He was the only member, he was the only CIA-member there, but of course he was the one that was laying out the plans.

VO: Chauncey was well aware of his involvement in other CIA operations.

CH: William King Harvey was the head of Taskforce W. That had been renamed, originally, that was a part of ZR/Rifle, an Operation called ZR/Rifle. ZR/Rifle was nothing more than an assassination group, that went around the world assassinating people, and Harvey happened to be the head of ZR/Rifle.

VO: On December 14th 1961 top echelon leaders of the CIA and the mafia met at Bermuda Dunes airport in Palm Springs to discuss ground rules for Operation Mongoose. Chauncey's memo's of that meeting show an Executive Action was planned. Executive Action means assassination. The target: The Beard, Castro.

The ground rules: CIA only, maximum security, non attributability, plausible denial, need to know basis. Harvey set the tone of the meeting at the Bermuda Dunes airport.

CH: They were going to eliminate the Beard and how was going to be done and just starting as to what personnel they were going to hire. First of all they were trying to decide what cryptonym they were going to use, because they had decided that they would assign a cryptonym to end up in the official CIA-files. AM, normally, operations involving Cuba had an AM-start to their cryptonym.

VO: It is also decided any further discussions about operation Mongoose would be face to face, nothing in writing. The CIA's William King Harvey was clearly in charge.

CH: It was a very short meeting because of the fact that, 20 minutes to an hour, it didn't take very long, I mean, he laid it out in precise terms, but these guys wanted to get out, you know, and take off and uh guys like Giancana and Roselli, they were reluctant to get together, and Licavoli too, these high-ranking mobsters don't like to meet with each other and they rarely do that, so we kept it short and sweet and that was it.

VO: An August 14th 1962 inter office CIA-memo from William King Harvey to the Director of Clandestine Operations says in part: "Our contract agents in Miami and in Los Angeles have been assured by me that no reference to this operation appears in our central files."

The Mob Memo of the same meeting also in the book.

Jack: Dec 14 1961 Bermuda Dunes

The meeting is tentatively scheduled for Dec. 14th at Bermuda Dunes. JR, SG and Mr. H. are arriving today and will be staying in Ray's bungalow. Ray is driving down from LV tonight. Why don't you and Pete fly in from Tucson Grace Ranch so Earle can start work on the Aero Commander. You can use Frank's Baron to fly back to Tucson or LA. The 100 hour check has been completed and the DME equipment installed.

Bermuda Dunes Airport (IATA: UDD, ICAO: KUDD, FAA LID: UDD) is a public use airport located in Bermuda Dunes, a town 13 nautical miles (15 mi, 24 km) east of the central business district of Palm Springs. Meeting set for Dec 14 (and that meeting will occur 10 days after Marilyn Monroe was silenced and about to leak the Mongoose program)

The Patsy

Edward Paul Donegan (me) is equally resolute on this point Holt makes. LHO was a patsy and was assasinated. Ed Donegan has from his own life deep hatred and distrust of police and has considered Ghost of Lee Harvey Oswald or other nom de plumes of "beware of police in the USA" messaging. Thugs have bosses, and the crime bosses of the USA control those filthy worthless pig thugs.

CH: What bothered me from day one, was the vilification of Lee Harvey Oswald. Because I KNOW that Lee Harvey Oswald was a patsy. I KNOW that he was executed just the same as everyone else.

VO: Chauncey is absolutely convinced that Oswald was framed.

CH: Although my revelations probably won't add too much to what has already been said. But all I wanted to do is set the record straight. I felt that the American people is entitled to know.

VO: The editing for the next portion of the Holt interview will be minimal. You will hear Chauncey Holt's words as he spoke them. He is talking about his New Orleans assignment. It is late spring 1963.

CH: It turned out that this work was for Lee Harvey Oswald. We did documentation ... identity documents, in the name of Lee Harvey Oswald, Lee Henry Oswald, Leon Osborne and Alek Hidell.

We weren't sure at the time who we were actually doing it for, or who this person was, for the simple reason that the same picture that appeared on Lee Harvey Oswald (ID card), also appeared on Leon Osborne. So we didn't know if this guy was actually Leon Osborne or that, or he might have been neither. We didn't know exactly who this was. So we delivered that. Some of that stuff, the documentation, was redoing some other documentation that someone else had done.

And it was very amateurish, and it would never pass, if you looked at it very closely, you knew it was a forgery. So it was merely a matter of cleaning it up. Some of it was new. One of the new things that we did for him, was a card to show that Lee Harvey Oswald was a member of the Communist Party.

Well that presented a little problem for us, because we did not even know what that card looked like.

And we hunted and hunted and hunted, trying to find what it looked like, and then we were finally told by an expert: "Hey, Communists don't carry cards, a communist is not carrying a card." But they wanted it, so we just had to wing it and made them a nice looking card that he was a member of the Communist Party. So we completed that in May or June.

In August we made a trip to New Orleans, to deliver some guns and so forth. I had a note, another note from George Reynolds.

(Letter Of Reynolds shown on screen)

The Motorcade, Coup d' Etat, and Run for Cover

The Motorcade

VO: The crowd had begun to gather along the route in anticipation to see the president and the first lady. It was noon. Chauncey was pacing in the parking lot behind the grassy knoll, waiting for the staged demonstration to begin.

CH: I was told specifically by Phillip Twombly that there was going to be a non violent demonstration, an incident that was going to be laid at the door of the pro-Castro Cubans. I just assumed it was going to be serious enough to inject some life into the anti Castro program.

That it would be more than a few placards, more than those "We hate Kennedy" placards. I would assume that they were going to take a shot at that motorcade, with no intention of hitting anyone. Maybe that's why they were going to use that Mannlicher Carcano because they couldn't possibly hit anyone with that.

VO: On the surface the plan seemed simple. The demonstration would lead to public outrage. CH: You know that there was going to be a swell of public opinion.

Hey, it would turn the screws on Castro. They would have been yelling again to invade Cuba and everything else.

VO: The presidential motorcade was moving closer and closer. Chauncey could hear the crowd growing excited. It was 12:30.

Coup d' Etat

CH: When the shooting started at 12:30, then immediately after the first shot, which was a weak type of shot, I realized that this was not any simple demonstration. You know, in addition to the shots people were screaming and running in all directions. I didn't actually see the shooting although I was behind the picket fence within 3 5 yards of the motorcade, but I didn't see it.

VO: Chauncey didn't see the president shot, but he sure heard something.

CH: Oh, I heard it very well, and enough to know there were more than the three shots they are claiming. And it seemed to me, as somewhat of an expert in shooting, that the shots did not all come from the same direction. I am quite sure that the shots were from different caliber guns and from different sources and I know there were 4 shots, possibly 5 shots.

It's very hard to distinguish shots fired with an automatic or a semi automatic because the sounds merge together, but believed there were probably 5 shots and that they came from different sources. It was just a fuselage of shots in a very short period of time.

Run for Cover

CH: My first instinct was just to get out of there. You know, mix with the crowd and go. But I had been given specific instructions, and when you are given specific instructions, that is what you do. I had barely enough time to get to the boxcar and when I arrived there these two individuals, known to me as Harrelson and Montoya, were already there. It indicated they were close by. We jumped in the box car and settled down just to wait everything out.

There was a search party that came by many times, but this boxcar appeared to be locked. It had a seal on it and they kept passing it by. We could hear them outside, we could hear their radio's and so forth.

VO: The three sat in the boxcar for over an hour, listening to a police radio receiver that Chauncey had concealed in a brown paper bag. Then around 2:20 PM the boxcar started to move.

CH: It moved up the track and then it moved back down the track and then it stopped. What actually happened was that Lee Bowers, who happened to be the tower operator that supervised all the train

[This is supported by facial recognition of the Hobos by experts, the death bed confession of three of them (Holt, Hunt, and Harreslon, Harrelson recanting after a new leas on life) publicly available photos marked up by Holt of LHO and himself in New Orleans, police records, video of the assassination, CIA records, mob records, all of it and more in his book. The difficulty in discounting Holt's deathbed confession is that you can not study the assassination of JFK in any way without encountering this evidence. Only some theoretical alternate reality assassination of JFK does not have this conclusive evidence as part of it. The conclusion that the CIA killed JFK is not just conclusive, it is unavoidable.]

Chauncey Marvin Holt interviewed near the Train-yard Observation Tower Lee Bowers Jr. was in while walking to the Wooded Fence about the Grassy Knoll several individuals have been wrongly accused of having been the tramps possibly some of them deserve to be accused of that or something else and I specifically referred to someone like Frank Sturgis who incidentally ran afoul of the law for something else and ended up in prison Howard hunt that was falsely identified as as the person that I claimed to be you see the there's a lot of mystery surrounding the assassination I felt that my information is from a point of view that would probably if if I am believed it would lay to rest these ideas that Jack Ruby and Lee Harvey Oswald were just nuts that passed in the night and that I have felt I always felt a sympathy for Oswald (holding back tears) and I don't I just don't think that's right and he would be or his children should be stuck with that sick stigmatism that's all Self-Portrait of a Scoundrel · A Memoir of Spooks, Hoods and the Hidden Elite.

October 2013 Released for the first time 16 years after his death, this startling autobiography by one of the so-called “three tramps” from the John F. Kennedy assassination reveals the details of Chauncey Marvin Holt’s many claims. Much mystery and suspicion still swirls around that fateful day in November 1963, and theories abound in nearly every form of media. But one of the major mysteries revolves around the three men spotted and later arrested in Dealey Plaza. Holt’s controversial confession to being one of the three tramps has a history of its own, and in his own words he delves into his unique and wild background and life. From his United States Air Force service during Pearl Harbor to his associations with the mob and the CIA, Holt discusses his experiences and encounters in great detail.

Prof. James Fetzer: If Chauncey Holt was not working as a contract agent for the Central Intelligence Agency, if it is not he who forged Secret Service Credentials, then it was somebody who looked like Chauncey Holt, who walked like Chauncey Holt, who talked like Chauncey Holt, so if it wasn't Chauncey Holt, then it had to be his double.

The Great Treason book I have written is the treason scheme I assert and this book names the leakers and the theory I assert of who did it and why.

This is a matter of at least Four Presidencies.

Presidency One was Eisenhower and V.P. Nixon who since 1946 Marshall Plan Congressman Nixon created became Vice President in 1953 and run regime change subversion and overthrow around the world creating puppets. Puppets are being installed by funneling monetary and non-monetary supported to State favored political parties while cover State acts including State use of fronts subvert other political parties up to and including assassinating them and assassinating journalists who are too close to the truth though denying the anti-democratic State dirty-tricks to keep power in the hands of the corrupt. I fit into the journalist being attacked telling or trying to tell my life story which is linked the Deep State through my mother and father.

Presidency Two was the Kennedy admin inaugurated in 1961 who disliked the moslty British run and British model plans and was assassinated by the CIA system built by the Republican Party from 1946 to 1960. That era might be called What Can Oil Money Do to gain office.

Presidency Three is Nixon Bush Reagan republicans gaining power after assassinating JFK.

Presidency Four is what the plan was for. Puppets in the USA including Barrack Obama Jr and others.

THe start point here is about 4 hours 2 minutes in and to understand my books set and Jen Moore and Ted Gunderson I recommend up to about 4 hours 22 minutes 45 seconds. It shows how as a Nation we are fighting against solving the assassination of JFK, RFK and others and the truth our our Deep State from coming out.

I have totally guessed what the Donegan family story might be. I have not guessed on violent attacks on me, the worst and most defamatory and abusive that can be conducted. I am sure truly insane police and government employees if not by their hands but by snitches in public would love to put bullets in my head as I write on these subjects, just as Jen Moore and others knew. Part of that is profit motive, but the Stalkers are allowed profit motive attacks on me as needed when I am making progress in my book writing.

This is not my experience alone and that is reflected in many stories.

Police have watched and encouraged death threats and other attacks on me as I write on this subject.

This book relies heavily on my own family story 1952 ATSUGUI Tokyo where E. Howard Hunt, Bissle Jr. and Prouty and others were, and ST John Hunt (son of E. Deathbed Interview with Chauncey Holt

Q. Who do you believe orchestrated the assassination of President Kennedy?

A. We will certainly never know. If I can be permitted to conjecture I would point the finger at friends of the two happiest men in the world on Nov. 22, 1963. These two men were Lyndon Baines Johnson and John Edgar Hoover, two men who would stop at nothing to obtain power. This does not mean that they orchestrated the assassination, themselves. Their friends, the right wingers and the oil men could have planned and implemented the assassination, confident in the fact that would have the blessing of Hoover and Johnson.

Q. Who do you believe orchestrated the assassination of President Kennedy?

Initially, I felt it was orchestrated by high level CIA agents such as Desmond Fitzgerald, Cord Meyer, J. Walton Moore and others. It was common knowledge that Kennedy, after his re-election, intended to appoint brother Robert as Director of Central Intelligence. All the high ranking CIA offcial shuddered at the thought of this possibility but I do not believe that this was motive enough.

Military leaders, of course, opposed Kennedy's planned withdrawal from Southeast Asia but, here again, I don't believe this to be sufficient motive.

That leaves only the powerful Texas oilmen, some of whom, were friends of Twombly, Eadington, Frank Long and others, who I know for certain were connected to the CIA, organized crime and the Cubans and could have pressed them into service on a "need to know" basis. The secret, I believe, lies somewhere between the murky connections between the rogue elements of the CIA or their contract agents, organized crime and perhaps powerful corporate/military interests whose names have never come to light.

Q. Do you believe that there was a hidden power structure, a secret government of sorts that was perhaps pulling the strings/ dictating policy on a number of projects you were involved in during the 1950s, 60s and 70s.

A. I am sure of it.

Q. Do you believe this concentration of power has ever been checked or ever could be?

A. It has not been checked to date, even though small dents are made in the facade. However, I feel it is more powerful than ever and contains more foreign elements than during the time you referred to.

Q. Do you believe it was possible that John F. Kennedy, the president of the most powerful nation on earth, gave his life for some reason that put him into conflict with this hidden power structure, a cabal so powerful that they could assassinate a sitting president, cover it up and get away with it?

A. I think that is a fair assessment.

Q. Towards the end of his life, did Phillip Twombly, your CIA paymaster, a man who came from an old money family, a senior executive vice president for one of the world's largest multinational corporations (The Coca-Cola Company) a man who maintained a friendly relationship with one of the ranking Mafia dons in the country and a self described cold warrior, write you a very revealing letter shortly before you went to prison in 1977?

A. Yes.

Q. What did Twombly tell you?

A. The letter was written in response to a letter I wrote him asking for assistance because it seemed a foregone conclusion that, sooner or later, I would be arrested and charged with crimes too egregious to contemplate. He informed me that he, along with Belcher and Ball, was trying to use his influence at high levels to make a deal for me that I could live with. He reflected on his long career, commented on the change in the political climate since he was first approached by CIA and pointed out that no event should be criticized except in the context of the period in which it occurred. He admitted that he had made many mistakes but had always operated out of a sense of patriotism, right or wrong, Twombly was a no nonsense sort of spymaster and this letter, which I still have in my possession, was a revelation to me.

A group of CIA contract agents operating at least since 1951 and 1954 (most likely formalized in 1946 as a Marshall Plan component under Nixon who recruited Jack Ruby about that time) began interviewing covertly in the Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Iran, Latin America, and elsewhere.

Ties to businesses like United Fruit Company, the Vatican as a Spy Agency, Vatican Bank, James Jesus Angleton, Will Bill Donovan CD Douglas, and others formed ties with prohibition muscle, also used for strikebreaking toughguys inside the USA.

Chauncey Marvin Holt tells much of this history and who this led into the JFK assastion in his books.

The Prohibition era was a period in the United States from 1920 to 1933 during which a nationwide constitutional law prohibiting the production, importation, transportation, and sale of alcoholic beverages was enacted.[1] The alcohol industry was curtailed by a succession of state legislatures, and finally ended nationwide under the Eighteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, ratified on January 16, 1919. Prohibition ended with the ratification of the Twenty-first Amendment, which repealed the Eighteenth Amendment on December 5, 1933. Wikipedia

Batista initially rose to power as part of the 1933 Revolt of the Sergeants, which overthrew the provisional government of Carlos Manuel de Céspedes y Quesada. Batista then appointed himself chief of the armed forces, with the rank of colonel, and effectively controlled the five-member "pentarchy" that functioned as the collective head of state. He maintained control through a string of puppet presidents until 1940, when he was elected president on a populist platform.[3][4] He then instated the 1940 Constitution of Cuba[5] and served until 1944. After finishing his term, Batista moved to Florida, returning to Cuba to run for president in 1952. Facing certain electoral defeat, he led a military coup against President Carlos Prío Socarrás that pre-empted the election.

Back in power and receiving financial, military and logistical support from the United States government,[7][8] Batista suspended the 1940 Constitution and revoked most political liberties, including the right to strike. He then aligned with the wealthiest landowners who owned the largest sugar plantations, and presided over a stagnating economy that widened the gap between rich and poor Cubans.[9] Eventually, it reached the point where most of the sugar industry was in U.S. hands, and foreigners owned 70% of the arable land.[10] As such, Batista's repressive government then began to systematically profit from the exploitation of Cuba's commercial interests, by negotiating lucrative relationships both with the American Mafia, who controlled the drug, gambling, and prostitution businesses in Havana, and with large U.S.-based multinational companies who were awarded lucrative contracts.[9][11] To quell the growing discontent amongst the populace—which was subsequently displayed through frequent student riots and demonstrations—Batista established tighter censorship of the media, while also utilizing his Bureau for the Repression of Communist Activities secret police to carry out wide-scale violence, torture and public executions. These murders mounted in 1957, as socialist ideas became more influential. People were killed, with estimates ranging from hundreds to about 20,000 people killed.

These tactics ultimately failed to quell unrest and instead were the catalyst for more widespread resistance. For two years (December 1956 – December 1958) Fidel Castro's 26th of July Movement and other rebelling elements led an urban- and rural-based guerrilla uprising against Batista's government, which culminated in his eventual defeat by rebels under the command of Che Guevara at the Battle of Santa Clara on New Year's Day 1959. Batista immediately fled the island with an amassed personal fortune to the Dominican Republic, where strongman and previous military ally Rafael Trujillo held power. Batista eventually found political asylum in António Salazar's Portugal, where he first lived on the island of Madeira and then in Estoril. He was involved in business activities in Spain and was staying there in Guadalmina at the time of his death from a heart attack in 1973. - Wikipedia

The Mafia in Cuba

> "We invented Havana, and we can goddamn well move it someplace else if Batista can't control it.' - Meyer Lansky in Sydney Pollack's film 'Havana"

The organised mafia in United States had initiated its activities in Cuba in the early 1920's, running rum and other alcohol; but the creation of a criminal empire as such began toward the end of 1933, when the first arrangements were made between the recently promoted Colonel Batista and "the Mafia's financier", Meyer Lansky, on direct orders of the great Charles "Lucky" Luciano.

Operations were immediately organised under the supervision of four Mafia families directed by the Corsican Amleto Battisti y Lora, Amadeo Barletta Barletta, Santo Trafficante (father) and Meyer Lansky himself.

The Cocaine Era

Lucky Luciano had been using Cuba as a midway point between heroin sources and consumer markets in the US and the representative of these channels in Havana was Corsican Amleto Battisti Lora.

In the prologue to the book La nueva era (The New Era), in which Battisti theorizes about the economic strategy of his time, journalist Fernando de la Milla affirms that Don Amleto was a tall, thin, slender man, with an elegance contrived through sobriety, with only a stark ring on his finger, never a tiepin or even a watch on his wrist, Amleto Battisti, a slow speaker, always piercingly attentive of his interlocutor, with his shining crescent-shaped bald head, looks like a young French Foreign Minister or a lecturing professor of immaculate appearance - mimicking Bergson´s style - well-loved by feminine audiences. The suggestive image of his figure could be multiplied in atmospheres of courtesy, diplomacy, exclusive gatherings, artistic circles, in short, refinement. However, comparative imagination falls short in an attempt to somehow associate the appearance of the man with his specific activity.

In summary, that Amleto Battisti physically resembles anything except what he really is: a businessman. Neither his silhouette, apparently Gallic in style, the attention with which he listens, his imperturbable serenity, minimal gestures or constantly muffled voice suggest that his mind is a mind of numbers, of probabilities and risks, of profits and losses.

During the thirties, Battisti was occasionally seen in the company of the President of the Republic, and was well known and accepted as an important industrial businessman and financier. Later, despite that he was a foreigner involved in notorious mafia activities which were already common knowledge, he was granted parliamentary immunity by the Partido Liberal.

The Mafia found in Havana its safest link: if drugs reached the Cuban capital, they were virtually in the United States, transported through the active air and sea traffic. Not only were military airports used for these purposes but also private air strips owned by members of the Batista political-military hierarchy and followers of the Partido Autentico, located in increasingly numerous country estates purchased in the western provinces.

But above all, it should be noted that the cocaine era was introduced in Cuba by the US mafia thirty years before it became popular in the United States. The drug most extensively consumed then was heroin and the distribution of South American cocaine in US markets would pose an open challenge by mafia families in Havana to the interests of Lucky Luciano in the United States.

Politicians and Organized Crime

By the end of 1946, important meetings were also being held in the residence of former president Batista. Meanwhile, Grau was still intent on running for reelection, whilst the poorest sectors continued to endure unemployment, black market, privileges and larceny committed by the ruling Partido Authentico and its "democracy." This is the moment when gangster groups involved in Cuban politics launched a McCarthyist repression through operations that acquired special dimensions against communists, progressive intellectuals, workers - trade unions - and peasant movements for the purpose of preventing unity among all the patriotic forces of the Cuban nation.

Behind this project conceived to oppose, divide and annihilate any revolutionary influence were the mafia and the US intelligence apparatus. Imperial concerns had not changed: they feared an insurrection that would rally the oppressed sectors of Cuban society which represented the majority of the population.

Both the special services and the mafia agreed that the apparent power of Grau and his clique would not last long. In fact, during its rise the Partido Autentico - Grau - had assumed many commitments, thus making it difficult to explain its alliances and connections with Machado and Batista's followers, such as Aquilino Lombard and Guillermo Alonso Pujol. But of all the political stratagems that Grau was forced to enter, none was more incomprehensible to public opinion than the shady deal he struck with the man who would occupy the vice- presidency. An outsider - he was not a member of the Partido Autentico - and considered a fuming conservative. In 1922, he published a book denying the existence of US imperialism and justifying its policy of intervention in Cuba. He favored the Platt Amendment and his ideas had nothing to do with the political platform embraced by the leadership of the Partido Autentico when he was called to be part of the government.

As a result, Grau organised his cabinet in 1944 under the best auspices. He appointed Dr. Felix Lancis Sanchez Prime Minister, a person given to sinecures and absolute negligence. Another of his cabinet members was Dr. Segundo Curtis - the son of Italians living in Havana - who, in a gesture of extreme admiration, affirmed that Grau San Martin was the loftiest president in Cuban history. Doctor Curtis was appointed Minister of Interior. The position of Minister of Agriculture went to the owner of drugstores, ranches and other businesses in Camaguey, Dr. Alvarez Fuentes, host of Q Airlines flights at the Camaguey international airport. His drugstore was situated in the heart of the province's capital city and his success transcended the Caribbean Basin.

Scandals, Robbery and Frauds

Apart from other low passions, personal interests, settling of scores, vendettas, executions and countless criminal actions, Cuban McCarthyst gangster practices or gansterism represented an effective means of corruption that would be used mainly against the old Communist Party and the vigorous workers movement led by Lazaro Peña.

The organization of gangsterism also allowed Dr. Carlos Prio Socarras, first from the Ministry of Labor and later as Prime Minister, to glide into the presidency of the Republic, and a second term for the Partido Autentico, with a vice-president who responded entirely to General Batista's political-military faction. In a report to the National Auditing Office published by the press at the time, Fidel Castro, a young lawyer, accused President Prio for his close links with gangsterism:

[…] Prio is no stranger to dealing with gangs. They escorted him zealously throughout his political campaign. He assumed power overwhelmed with commitments.

[…] Thus, for example, apart from other smaller groups, Guillermo Comellas' group was given 60 positions; the Tribunal Ejemplar Revolucionario received 110; Union Insurreccional Revolucionaria, 120; Accion Guiteras, 150 positions; Colorado'a group, 400 positions; Masferrer, 500 positions and Policarpo's group, the most fearsome, 600 positions. This makes a total, according to data in my possession, of 2 120 positions which were being paid for services not rendered in the Ministries of Health, Labor, Interior and Public Works.

In some cases, the number of positions per person was alarming. Manuel Villa, for example, had thirty positions: Guillermo el Flaco ("Skinny") had 28 positions; Pepe "El Primo" (Cousin) had 26 positions; the "Boxer" (I do not know his name) had 26 positions, collected from payrolls or fees under different names.

[…] The guns used for killing were paid by Prio.

The cars in which they commit these killings are paid by Prio.

The men who kill are supported by Prio.

[…] to conclude these lines written with utmost honesty and sincerity, I can only repeat the words of Jose Marti when he exhorted Cubans to the struggle: "For you, our homeland, the blood from the wounds of this world and the smiles of the martyrs as they fall. For you, our homeland, the sensible enthusiasm of your children, the satisfying pain of serving you, and the resolution of enduring to the very end!

In 1951 - in a very general outline - the political forces in Cuba exhibited the following features:

A force established as a government - apparent power - in an unbridled process of corruption, with the three Prio Socarras brothers trying to give continuity to the Partido Autentico, through alliances with the Liberal, Democrat and Republican Parties, surrounded by numerous characters who hoped to inherit positions or carrying out covert operations, among them Manuel Antonio (Tony) de Varona, Miguel Suarez Fernandez, Hevia and the Jose and Eduardo Suarez Rivas brothers.

A second group - also an outgrowth from the Partido Autentico - headed by Dr. Grau San Martin who, from the opposition, expected once again to reach power positions with the use of his false 1944 image.
Grau had been encouraged to form a new party, which weakened the Partido Autentico block even more. In July 1951, Senator Santiaguito Rey Pernas was appointed Grau's right-hand man for the purpose of arousing contradictions and ambitions between Grau's and Prio's followers.

Money Laundery

On December 22, 1950, Dr. Felipe Pazos, President of Banco Nacional de Cuba, granted Don Amadeo Barletta Barletta License No. 62, which authorized him to convert Banco Internacional de La Habana (Havana International Bank) into Banco Atlantico S. A. (Atlantic Bank S.A.).

Henceforth, Banco Atlantico S. A. would have its offices on the ninth floor, at 16 Menocal Avenue (formerly Infanta) and later on 23rd and P Streets, in the heart of La Rampa district in the Vedado, in the same building occupied by General Motors, of which Barletta was also general manager.

Banco Atlantico commenced operations with the following executives: president: Don Amadeo Barletta Barletta; vice-president: Amadeo H. Barletta Jr. (Barlettica); secretary: Dr. Luis J. Botifill and general manager: Dr. Leonardo Masoni. From the onset, its operations were required by the functionaries of the Banco Nacional de Cuba, however the manipulations of that delinquent state were such that Banco Atlantico never encountered any problems, neither during Carlos Prio Socarras' term in office or later when Batista's tyrannical regime seized power.

The Great Tragedy

For a full understanding of the domination scheme imposed in Cuba after 1934 a study of the situation of Cuban economy is of particular importance. In this sense, a paper by Dr. Julio Le Riverend shows that already in 1932 an economic cycle had concluded; however, the great danger posed by an economy based "[…] on sugar production in large amounts for export to a single country […]" remained. At the time, the Cuban nation had only an alternative: either to export more sugar to the United States or to produce domestically "[…] most of what was being imported […]".

The great tragedy Cubans faced was caused by the US domination of Cuba's economy. Due to its condition as a producer and exporter of a single commodity, it could not enter the international market. The country had nickel, which was occasionally exploited; it produced some tobacco and coffee, but depended entirely on its sugar production to satisfy its basic needs. It should be taken into account that up to fifty percent or more of the food Cubans consumed was imported from the United States. Even ice-cream, candy and flowers were imported.

The old single commodity economic structure - the sugar bowl of the world, inherited from colonialism - was particularly reinforced by US financial groups from the very beginning of the Protectorate. We would continue to produce and export a single commodity even after the 1920 and 1929 crises and became much more dependent after the formation of a state with a criminal background.

It is necessary to underline that this single-commodity economy was a virtual straightjacket that stifled most vital Cuban interests in the early fifties.

The Front Companies

The Havana Empire functioned as a gigantic corporation with many specialised departments. This differed significantly from the methods used by the Sicilian mafia when it began its activities in the United States. Illicit operations quickly began using the legal means provided by contemporary capitalism for organizing interests based on legislation, agreements, covers, etc., all very respectable. However, in recent years, the mafia in Havana not only depended on the initial power deployed by the families living in Cuba since 1934, the growth of businesses and contradictions with other US criminal groups promoted the entry of new ally forces.

Like the imperialist domination scheme itself, these families upheld the practice of multiple links for the organization, exploitation and control of businesses in Cuba.

The New Investors

On June 11, 1952, Dr. Joaquin Martinez Saenz, president of Banco Nacional de Cuba, received a notice requesting authorization to open Banco de La Habana. This bank would have its main branch in the town of Niquero, a municipality in Oriente province and also site of the Niquero, Media Luna and Cabo Cruz sugar mills. The Campechuela, San Ramon and Santa Rita sugar mills were also located in the neighboring municipalities, as well as other agricultural and commercial companies, where no banking entity had ever existed before.

According to the proposal made to Banco Nacional de Cuba, this bank would have a national character and its central office situated at 104-108 San Ignacio Street in Havana. The persons interested in the opening of the bank were Mr. Julio Lobo Olavarria, shareholder and director of the companies that owned Tinguaro, Escambray, Niquero, Cape Cruz, Caracas and other sugar mills, as well as the international trading house known as Galban Trading Company S. A., and a number of related companies; Mr. German S. Lopez Sanchez, shareholder and/or owner of the Santa Maria, El Pilar. Caracas, Najasa and Siboney sugar mills, member of the Cacicedo Bank in Cienfuegos and of trading and port companies in that city; Mr. Gregorio Escogedo Salmon, shareholder and/or director of the Fidencia, Perseverancia, El Pilar, Caracas, Najasa and Siboney sugar mills, livestock and rice companies.

The War Breaks Out

Lansky was convinced that war with the New York groups was inevitable and started to adopt a series of measures. The first of these precautions, in late 1956, was to feign his retirement from business, but instead he created a typical mafia syndicate headed by Santo Trafficante, Jr. Consequently, since early 1956, Lansky established a number of alliances with key personages from Las Vegas, Chicago and California, made arrangements with important political and financial figures and strengthened old links with intelligence services to provide greater solidity to his business in Cuba. Interests represented by Sam Giancana, from Chicago, started operating.

The brothers Josef (Joe) and Charlie Sileci moved to Havana, as did as a large detachment of Italian-American gangsters, together with Hollywood film stars linked to these families, such as Tony Martin, Donald O'Connor, Frank Sinatra and George Raft, and also a select group of U. S. businessmen, with many relations and political influences which reached all the way to the White House itself. Additionally, Nick di Constance - whose real name was Nicholas di Constanzo -, an extraordinarily feared man known as Fat Butcher, came to the Cuban capital and very soon controlled all the casinos in Havana.

It is interesting to note that among the files processed by the National Identification Office which granted the immigrant cards, Fat Butcher was number 396315 and Joe Sileci number 396316, which indicates that they applied together to legalize their immigration status. People who knew him say Nicholas di Constanzo was almost two meters tall and was once seen in the Capri or the Riviera Hotel lift a man by the lapel with only one hand and smash him against a wall.

It Was Too Late

In his memoirs, United States President Dwight D. Eisenhower affirms that:

"[…] during 1958, and in keeping with the Charter of the OAS, the United States strictly observed a policy of non-intervention in Cuba, although the sentiment of support towards Castro was very extensive. "We repeatedly seized shipments of arms destined to Castro and in March we stopped sending weapons to Batista […]"

This statement does not withstand the least confrontation with historical events. After March 1958 and until the final days of the war, Batista continued receiving arms, military supplies, material resources and support from US politicians and special agencies; his troops continued training under the advisory of the US military mission in Havana and above all, the operations of their intelligence services became more intense and bolder.

Even during the days when Batista's air force systematically bombed vast peasant areas in the former Oriente province, the dictator's air force was replenished with supplies from U S arsenals in the Guantanamo Naval Base.

In September of 1958, CIA General Inspector Lyman Kirkpatrick made his last trip to Cuba. He met with the head of the CIA station in Havana, advisors and military attachés, representatives of the Federal Bureau of Investigations (FBI), secret agents, financiers, executives from US companies, the US embassy's political staff, other agents and private and official personalities. The conclusion reached was that - according to what Kirkpatrick wrote ten years later in his book The Real CIA - Batista had lost control of the country and all hope was hanging from a miracle.

When arrested for the Woods killing Harrelson claimed killing a judge was nothing to someone who had killed a President..

Harrelson was eventually caught and convicted of being the gunman after Chagra discussed the assassination with his brother Joe during Joe's visit to Jimmy in United States Penitentiary in Leavenworth, Kansas, after FBI agents bugged the rooms in which they were speaking. This was among over a thousand recorded conversations that the government had collected as evidence. The position of federal authorities was that even though Joe Chagra was a lawyer, he was also suspected in conspiracy to conceal the crime; therefore, their conversations were not covered by attorney-client privilege.

W. Averell Harriman

One of the elite Robber Barron Anglo Elites tied to England, WAPS, Brahim, including French industrialists (DuPont) but mostly J.P Morgan, Rockefeller (Standard Oil) Bush and Walker families

(banking, oil, military industrial) whos plans for the world were worked out throught the State Department and CIA activities of John Fost and Allen Dulles and various law firms.

Early life and education [edit]

Better known as Averell Harriman, he was born in New York City, the son of railroad baron Edward Henry Harriman and Mary Williamson Averell. He was the brother of E. Roland Harriman and Mary Harriman Rumsey. Harriman was a close friend of Hall Roosevelt, the brother of Eleanor Roosevelt.

He attended Groton School in Massachusetts before going on to Yale, where he joined the Skull and Bones society and Psi Upsilon.[1]:127,150–1 [2] He graduated in 1913. After graduating, he inherited one of the largest fortunes in America, and became Yale's youngest Crew coach.

Career [edit]

Business affairs [edit]

Using money from his father, he established the W.A. Harriman & Co banking business in 1922. His brother Roland joined the business in 1927 and the name was changed to Harriman Brothers & Company. In 1931 it merged with Brown Bros. & Co. to create the highly successful Wall Street firm Brown Brothers Harriman & Co. Notable employees included George Herbert Walker and his son-in-law Prescott Bush.

Brown Brothers Harriman & Co. (BBH) is the oldest and one of the largest private investment banks in the United States.[3][4] In 1931, the merger of Brown Brothers & Co. (founded in 1818) and Harriman Brothers & Co. formed the current BBH.

Brown Brothers Harriman is also notable for the number of influential American politicians, government appointees, and Cabinet members who have worked at the company, such as W. Averell Harriman, Prescott Bush, Robert A. Lovett, Richard W. Fisher, Robert Roosa, and Alan Greenspan.

Harriman's main properties included Brown Brothers & Harriman & Co, the Union Pacific Railroad, the Merchant Shipbuilding Corporation, and venture capital investments that included the Polaroid Corporation. Harriman's associated properties included the Southern Pacific Railroad (including the Central Pacific Railroad), the Illinois Central Railroad, Wells Fargo & Co., the Pacific Mail Steamship Co., American Ship & Commerce, Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt-Aktiengesellschaft (HAPAG), the American Hawaiian Steamship Co., United American Lines, the Guaranty Trust Company, and the Union Banking Corporation.[citation needed]

He served as Chairman of The Business Council, then known as the Business Advisory Council for the United States Department of Commerce, in 1937 and 1939.[3]

Prescott Goes to War President George Herbert Walker Bush was born in 1924, the son of Prescott S. Bush and Dorothy Walker Bush. We will begin the George Bush story about a decade before his birth, on the eve of World War I. We will follow the career of his father, Prescott Bush, through his marriage with Dorothy Walker, on the path to fortune, elegance and power.

Prescott Bush entered Yale University in 1913. A native of Columbus, Ohio, Prescott had spent the last five years before college in St. George's Episcopal preparatory school in Newport, Rhode Island.

Prescott Bush's first college year, 1913, was also the freshman year at Yale for E. Roland ("Bunny") Harriman, whose older brother (Wm.) Averell Harriman had just graduated from Yale. This is the Averell Harriman who went on to fame as the U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union during World War II, as a governor of New York State, and as a presidential advisor who was greatly responsible for starting the Vietnam War.

The Harrimans would become the sponsors of the Bushes, to lift them onto the stage of world history.

In the spring of 1916, Prescott Bush and "Bunny" Harriman were chosen for membership in an elite Yale senior-year secret society known as Skull and Bones. This unusually morbid, death-celebrating group helped Wall Street financiers find active young men of "good birth" to form a kind of imitation British aristocracy in America.

World War I was then raging in Europe. With the prospect that the U.S.A. would soon join the war, two Skull and Bones "Patriarchs" , Averell Harriman (class of 1913) and Percy A. Rockefeller (class of 1900), paid special attention to Prescott's class of 1917. They wanted reliable cadres to help them play the Great Game, in the lucrative new imperial era that the war was opening up for London and New York moneycrats. Prescott Bush, by then a close friend of "Bunny" Harriman, and several other Bonesmen from their class of 1917 would later comprise the core partners in Brown Brothers

Harriman, the world's largest private investment bank.

World War I did make an immense amount of money for the clan of stock speculators and British bankers who had just taken over U.S. industry. The Harrimans were stars of this new Anglo-American elite.

Averell's father, stock broker E.H. Harriman, had gained control of the Union Pacific Railroad in 1898 with credit arranged by William Rockefeller, Percy's father, and by Kuhn Loeb & Co.'s British-affiliated private bankers, Otto Kahn, Jacob Schiff and Felix Warburg.

William Rockefeller, treasurer of Standard Oil and brother of Standard founder John D. Rockefeller, owned National City Bank (later "Citibank") together with Texas-based James Stillman. In return for their backing, E.H. Harriman deposited in City Bank the vast receipts from his railroad lines. When he issued tens of millions of dollars of "watered" (fraudulent) railroad stock, Harriman sold most of the shares through the Kuhn Loeb company.

The First World War elevated Prescott Bush and his father, Samuel P. Bush, into the lower ranks of the Eastern Establishment.

As war loomed in 1914, National City Bank began reorganizing the U.S. arms industry. Percy A. Rockefeller took direct control of the Remington Arms company, appointing his own man, Samuel F. Pryor, as the new chief executive of Remington.

The U.S entered World War I in 1917. In the spring of 1918, Prescott's father, Samuel P. Bush, became chief of the Ordnance, Small Arms and Ammunition Section of the War Industries Board.@s2 The senior Bush took national responsibility for government assistance to and relations with Remington and other weapons companies.

This was an unusual appointment, as Prescott's father seemed to have no background in munitions. Samuel Bush had been president of the Buckeye Steel Castings Co. in Columbus, Ohio, makers of railcar parts. His entire career had been in the railroad business-- supplying equipment to the Wall Street-owned railroad systems.

The War Industries Board was run by Bernard Baruch, a Wall Street speculator with close personal and business ties to old E.H. Harriman. Baruch's brokerage firm had handled Harriman speculations of all kinds.@s3

In 1918, Samuel Bush became director of the Facilities Division of the War Industries Board. Prescott's father reported to the Board's Chairman, Bernard Baruch, and to Baruch's assistant, Wall Street private banker Clarence Dillon.

Robert S. Lovett, President of Union Pacific Railroad, chief counsel to E.H. Harriman and executor of his will, was in charge of national production and purchase "priorities" for Baruch's board.

With the war mobilization conducted under the supervision of the War Industries Board, U.S. consumers and taxpayers showered unprecedented fortunes on war producers and certain holders of raw materials and patents. Hearings in 1934 by the committee of U.S. Senator Gerald Nye attacked the "Merchants of Death" -- war profiteers such as Remington Arms and the British Vickers company -- whose salesmen had manipulated many nations into wars, and then supplied all sides with the weapons to fight them.

Percy Rockefeller and Samuel Pryor's Remington Arms supplied machine guns and Colt automatic pistols; millions of rifles to Czarist Russia; over half of the small-arms ammunition used by the Anglo-American allies in World War I; and 69 percent of the rifles used by the United States in that conflict.@s4

Samuel Bush's wartime relationship to these businessmen would continue after the war, and would especially aid his son Prescott's career of service to the Harrimans.

Most of the records and correspondence of Samuel Bush's arms- related section of the government have been burned, "to save space" in the National Archives. This matter of destroyed or misplaced records should be of concern to citizens of a constitutional republic. Unfortunately, it is a rather constant impediment with regard to researching George Bush's background: He is certainly the most "covert" American chief executive.

Now, arms production in wartime is by necessity carried on with great security precautions. The public need not know details of the private lives of the government or industry executives involved, and a broad interrelationship between government and private-sector personnel is normal and useful.

But during the period preceding World War I, and in the war years 1914-1917 when the U.S. was still neutral, interlocking Wall Street financiers subservient to British strategy lobbied heavily, and twisted U.S. government and domestic police functions. Led by the J.P. Morgan concern, Britain's overall purchasing agent in America, these financiers wanted a world war and they wanted the United States in it as Britain's ally. The U.S. and British arms companies, owned by these international financiers, poured out weapons abroad in deals not subject to the scrutiny of any electorate back home. The same gentlemen, as we shall see, later supplied weapons and money to Hitler's Nazis.

hat this problem persists today, is in some respect due to the "control" over the documentation and the history of the arms traffickers.

World War I was a disaster for civilized humanity. It had terrible, unprecedented casualties, and shattering effects on the moral philosophy of Europeans and Americans.

But for a brief period, the war treated Prescott Bush rather well. George Bush: The Unauthorized Biography --- by Webster G. Tarpley & Anton Chaitkin

Richard Milhous Nixon

Richard Milhouse Nixon was the 37th president of the United States, serving from 1969 to 1974. A lawyer and member of the Republican Party. After being discharged from the US Navy at the end of WWII in 1946 he served as a representative and senator from Southern California on an anti-communist and CIA formation agenda and was the 36th vice president from 1953 to 1961 under President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Wikipedia He traveled Europe on the Herter COmmission to fact find for the Marshall Plan that would be implemented under Averall Harriman. He was said to be backed by big money secret donors he later had to dissavow in his Checkers the Dog speech of only being given a puppy by an elderly supporter of his campaign. (It worked.)

It has been asserted by Chauncey Marvin Holt Cocaola directly or indirectly and Nixon directly had a role in the assassination of JFK or at least close enough connection to it for it to be a liability for himself (Nixon.) Nixon was in Dealy Plaza at a bottling conference though exactly why he would have wanted or needed to be in the area is hard to guess, one reason might be in hotel room meetings in is more secure for the purposes of no trail at all in any conversations should they need to be had and his klout or directives was needed in some matter as events unfolded

During the 1950's as the CIA was being geared up for the cold war people like Allen Dulles and John Foster Dulles through their law firms of Lovett Jr the the Undersecretary for Defense were creating CIA front groups to operate through in including George H.W. Bush's Zapata Oil. USAID and other NGO's like International Rescue Committee were aslo fronts for the CIA.

Robert Mahue and others were tied to the JFK assassination as details unfold over history, and Larry O'Brein may have had some campaign dirt to drop on Nixon or at least Nixon worried O'Brien may have it.

Nixon two years later. (ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE PHOTO)

Larry O’Brien belonged to John F. Kennedy’s Irish

Mafia, but later – and inadvertently – helped end Richard Nixon's presidency.

Larry O'Brien, 1961 Time magazine coverLarry O'Brien, 1961 Time magazine cover Lawrence Francis O'Brien was born July 7, 1917 in Springfield, Mass., the son of Irish immigrants. His father introduced him to politics at an early age. At 11, he volunteered for Al Smith's (Roman Catholic Presidential candidate) campaign for president. In 1952, Kennedy appointed him to run his Senate campaign, along with Dave Powers of Boston and Kenny O'Donnell of Worcester.

Demiocrat O'Brien directed Senator John F. Kennedy's reelection campaign and then JFK's presidential campaign as JFK defeated incumbent Vice President Richard Nixon (and Nixon's assassination team NSC) in November 1960 for the Presidency, JFK Sworn in January 20, 1961. In 1964 he directed Lyndon Johnson's presidential campaign. Then in 1968 he worked for Hubert Humphrey, who lost to Richard Nixon.

During the Nixon administration, Larry O'Brien chaired the Democratic National Committee. He also secretly went to work for Howard Hughes as a lobbyist.

Watergate

That connection to Hughes got his office at the Watergate robbed by Nixon's campaign operatives called the 'plumbers.' Nixon worried that O'Brien had evidence of embarrassing information about his own relationship with Hughes.

On June 17, 1972, five burglars got caught robbing O'Brien's office at the Watergate. The burglars had links to Nixon's campaign committee. The subsequent investigation then brought down Nixon's presidency.

In 1975, Larry O'Brien got a most appropriate job for someone from Springfield, Mass. He was named commissioner of the National Basketball Association. https://newenglandhistoricalsociety.com/larry-obrien-kennedy-mafioso-richard-nixon/#google_vignette he Washington Post dubbed it "the smoking gun tape." It was the recording that doomed the presidency of Richard Nixon. The transcript of a conversation that took place on June 23, 1972, when made public by Supreme Court order in July 1974, became the climactic revelation of the Watergate affair, proving beyond all doubt that Nixon used CIA director Richard Helms to suborn the FBI's investigation of the Watergate burglars.

Fifty years after the botched break-in that transformed American politics, the gangsterly dialogue of the smoking gun tape is less shocking than Trumpian. Blackmail as a mode of White House politics? President 45 had nothing on President 37.

"We protected Helms from one hell of a lot of things," Nixon growled on the tape. "You open that scab there's a hell of a lot of things, and we just feel that it would be very detrimental to have this thing go any further. This involves these Cubans, [ex-CIA man and Watergate burglar Howard] Hunt, and a lot of hanky-panky that we have nothing to do with ourselves."

Nixon advised chief of staff H.R. Haldeman on how to get the CIA director to kill the FBI's probe.

"Say, 'Look, the problem is that this will open the whole, the whole Bay of Pigs thing, and the President just feels that, ah, without going into the details ... don't, don't lie to them to the extent to say there is no involvement, but just say this is sort of a comedy of errors, bizarre, without getting into it, the President believes that it is going to open the whole Bay of Pigs thing up again.'"

The June 23 tape was incontrovertible evidence that Nixon had obstructed justice. The last vestige of support for Nixon on Capitol Hill evaporated. Two weeks later, on Aug. 8, 1974, Nixon resigned.

But the "smoking gun tape" was not only the denouement of the Watergate affair. It was — and is — an unsettling glimpse into the dark heart of the Watergate scandal, and the workings of American power in the mid-20th century. The commander in chief voiced ominous threats that reeked of unspoken crimes to his intelligence chief, whose agency had employed four of the seven burglars. For the next 50 years, Nixon's entourage, JFK conspiracy theorists, journalists and historians pondered the June 23 tape as a Rosetta Stone of Nixon's psyche. What "hanky panky" was Nixon referring to? What did he mean by "the whole Bay of Pigs thing?" What story was going to "blow" if the CIA didn't cooperate? https://www.politico.com/news/magazine/2022/06/05/nixon-helms-cia-jfk-assassination-00037232

Watergate Break-in, 50th Anniversary June 14, 2022 Dear Educators,

The Education and Public Programs Team at the Nixon Library is pleased to remind you that the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) continues to be an excellent source for entertaining and historical content! Simply follow the links below for additional information.

Watergate Break-in, 50th Anniversary June 17

marks the 50th anniversary of the break-in of the Democratic National Committee (DNC) headquarters located on the 6th floor of the Watergate Hotel and Office complex in Washington, DC. The investigation into the break-in exposed a number of controversial actions (collectively known as “Watergate”) that led to the highest levels of the Nixon administration and ultimately to the President himself.

The June 17 break-in was not the first burglary conducted by the intruders (also known as the “Plumbers”). They had successfully gained access to the DNC offices on May 28, during which they planted listening devices and photographed documents.

The police apprehended five men: Virgilio Gonzalez, Bernard Barker, James McCord, Eugenio Martinez, and Frank Sturgis. They were accused of attempted burglary and telephone and other communications eavesdropping. "Police found lock-picks and door jimmies, nearly $2,300 in cash, most of it in $100 bills with serial numbers in sequence... a short-wave receiver that could pick up police calls, 40 rolls of unexposed film, two 35-millimeter cameras, and three pen-sized tear gas guns," according to the Washington Post. …

As news of the break-in unfolded, a group of Washington Post reporters, including Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, who helped identify the five burglars the next day, discovered that James W. McCord was linked to President Nixon's reelection campaign – the Committee to Reelect the President (CRP). The reporters described McCord as a "salaried security coordinator for President Nixon's reelection committee." https://www.nixonlibrary.gov/news/watergate-break-50th-anniversary

The Brothers: John Foster Dulles, Allen Dulles, and Their Secret World War

The Brothers: John Foster Dulles, Allen Dulles, and Their Secret World War By Stephen Kinzer Times Books, 2013, 416 pp.

At a time when so many viewers are captivated or repelled by Mad Men's portrayal of the lascivious, liquor-drenched behavior which characterized Madison Avenue decades ago, one remarkable true story in the United States during the Cold War trumps that fictional depiction: Don Draper's behavior seems genteel compared with that of the man who ran the Central Intelligence Agency during its frenetic expansion into one of the largest espionage enterprises assembled by any nation in history.

Allen Welsh Dulles, the C.I.A.'s longest-serving director, (from 1953 to 1961), had affairs which numbered well into the dozens despite being married to the same woman for most of his adult life. He carried out some of his liaisons while he was the preeminent spymaster of the United States, overseeing operations including the overthrow of leaders in Guatemala and Iran, secret wars in Indonesia and Tibet and the spectacularly botched invasion of Cuba's Bay of Pigs in 1961.

Times have changed. David Petraeus, for example, resigned as C.I.A. director in 2012 over one extramarital affair, with his biographer. Dulles maintained many of his flings without even bothering to hide them, as Stephen Kinzer documents in his new book, The Brothers: John Foster Dulles, Allen Dulles and Their Secret World War. Pointing to how standards for public officials have evolved, one 1958 dalliance, with Queen Frederika of Greece, was carried out in Allen's own office at C.I.A. headquarters within earshot of his aides.

Such episodes, dutifully not reported by journalists at the time, did not prevent Allen from seizing on womanizing as a weakness to exploit in others. For instance, he oversaw what may have been the C.I.A.'s first foray into pornography, a film called "Happy Days" in which an actor in a latex mask made by the agency's Technical Services Division claimed an uncanny resemblance to Sukarno, Indonesia's founding president, whom the Dulles brothers despised for not aligning himself with the West. The Sukarno lookalike was filmed in bed with a blonde actress (playing an agent of the Soviet Union!), a scene that aimed to damage the Indonesian leader's reputation. It flopped, like many of Allen's other plots meticulously described by Kinzer in a thoroughly entertaining and informative book.

Allen's older brother, John Foster Dulles, loomed even larger in 1950s Washington, when he roamed the world as Dwight D. Eisenhower's Secretary of State. The brothers were born into privilege. Their father, Allen Macy Dulles, the son of a Presbyterian missionary to India, became a theologian and pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Watertown, a bastion for New York millionaires. Their mother, Edith Foster, was the daughter of a lawyer who had served as U.S. minister to Czar Alexander II's court in St. Petersburg. The Princeton-educated brothers benefitted from a web of family connections at a time when the United States was on the rise as a superpower, but their personalities were remarkably different.

Allen was an extroverted diplomat, lawyer and partyer who spent World War I in Bern, the capital of neutral Switzerland, debriefing spies over glasses of cognac. Around the same time, Foster was an ambitious lawyer with Sullivan & Cromwell, the powerful New York law firm. He cut his teeth by representing clients with interests in Latin America, lobbying with success, for instance, for the United States Navy to send warships to Cuba to protect U.S. owners of sugar mills and railroads from protests shaking the Caribbean island. Commissioned as a captain during World War I, he worked as legal adviser for the War Trade Board, helping the Mumm Champagne Co., a German-owned concern, to avoid being seized by the U.S. government. More subdued than Allen in his personal life and something of a scold, employing a preacher's tone in his public remarks, Foster evolved into an anti-Communist zealot.

By the time Foster was appointed Secretary of State in the 1950s, he had emerged as an undiplomatic symbol of Washington's browbeating and condescending approach to enemies and allies alike. Prince Sihanouk of Cambodia called him an "acidy, arrogant man" and Winston Churchill said he was "the only case of a bull who carries his own china shop around with him." Undeterred, he floated ideas like bombing China in 1954 with nuclear weapons, only to be told that such a plan could kill between 12 million to 14 million people. Named Time magazine's "Man of the Year" in 1954, Dulles, a fixture of the foreign policy establishment who spoke fluent legalese, was known to some as "the most boring man in America."

Such quips obscured the way the Dulles brothers deployed missionary zeal over the role of the United States in world affairs and made use of Cold War paranoia in their games of brinksmanship against the Soviet Union. Working with British spies, they engineered the 1953 coup toppling Mohammed Mossadegh, the Iranian prime minister who had nationalized Iran's oil industry. The brothers collaborated again on the 1954 ouster of Jacobo Arbenz, Guatemala's left-leaning democratically-elected president. At the time, the Boston-based United Fruit Company, a prominent client of Sullivan & Cromwell which had provided both Allen and Foster with legal fees over the years, felt threatened by Arbenz's ambitious land reform project. Irritated by potential diplomatic obstacles to the coup, Foster removed both the U.S. ambassador to Guatemala, Rudolf Schoenfeld, and the assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, John Moors Cabot, replacing them with more pliant officials. Allen, meanwhile, picked Tracy Barnes, a product of Groton, Yale and Harvard Law School, to oversee the plot's psychological warfare. The C.I.A.'s "nerve war" included death threats made to Guatemalan army officers and government officials and character-assassination warnings issued in pre-dawn telephone calls.

Predictably, Allen and Foster viewed Arbenz' overthrow as a success. But the coup reinforced a pattern of blatant disregard by some in Washington for political sovereignty in Latin America, ushering in brutal military rule in Guatemala and what Kinzer calls a "cocoon of groupthink and overconfidence" within the C.I.A., poisoning sentiment toward the United States in the region for decades. The errors of the Dulles brothers are vividly described throughout the book, offering, perhaps, a present-day warning of the unforeseen consequences of wielding American power abroad in an age when the C.I.A. has grown accustomed to carrying out so many remote-control killings in its covert drone wars. While Allen's tenure is still viewed as something of a golden age at the C.I.A., Kinzer, a former foreign correspondent for The New York Times, compiles the places where the C.I.A.

For his part, Foster, a man who thought he held moral superiority in his dealings with political leaders around the globe, saw nothing wrong in doing years of legal work on behalf of corporate clients in Nazi Germany. Kinzer, a prolific author of books about U.S. international relations, including the classic Bitter Fruit about the Arbenz overthrow, deftly delves into these ties.He describes how Foster wrote admiringly of Hitler, even weeping when Sullivan & Cromwell finally felt obliged to stop representing German concerns. For Allen, his biggest blunder arguably was in Cuba, when he oversaw the disastrous invasion by commandos of the island in April 1961, an effort aimed at overthrowing Fidel Castro. Poorly trained and over-budgeted, and with details about their training camps reported by Tad Szulc of The New York Times, the invasion force was overwhelmed by Cuba's military, producing one of the Kennedy Administration's most embarrassing episodes.

President Kennedy forced Allen to resign after that fiasco, saying, "I probably made a mistake keeping Allen Dulles." Allen shifted into after-dinner speaking, writing about espionage and editing collections of spy stories. Some of his top agents also drifted away from the agency. Before he died in 1969, the C.I.A.'s reputation was already coming under increasing strain. In one story collection, he included an excerpt from Sir Compton Mackenzie's Water on the Brain, a satirical 1933 novel about the British secret service's attempt to restore a king to the throne of Mendacia, a fictitious nation in southeast Europe. Mackenzie, who drew from his own experiences as a spy in wartime Greece, described how the headquarters of Britain's Directorate of Extraordinary Intelligence in London were turned into an insane asylum “for the servants of bureaucracy who have been driven mad in the service of their country.”

Simon Romero is the Brazil bureau chief for The New York Times, based in Rio de Janeiro. He joined The New York Times in 1999, and was previously the paper’s Andean bureau chief, based in Caracas, and a correspondent covering the global energy industry, based in Houston. Born and raised in New Mexico, he graduated from Harvard College in 1994 with a degree in History and Literature.

Charles P. Cabell

On April 23, 1953, while still an active air force officer, he was appointed Deputy Director of the CIA under Allen Dulles. In 1956, along with the CIA's Richard Bissell, he flew to Bonn, to brief the West German Chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, on the ultra-secret U-2 spy plane. Cabell personally negotiated with Chancellor Adenauer for permission to station the U-2 in Wiesbaden and from there to fly over the Soviet Union in violation of air space rights.

Cabell was promoted to full general in 1958[5] and retired from active duty effective January 31, 1962.

Cabell was forced to resign as deputy director by President Kennedy on January 31, 1962, following the failure of the Bay of Pigs Invasion.[7] Cabell's brother, Earle Cabell, was Mayor of Dallas when Kennedy visited that city and was assassinated, on November 22, 1963.

In autumn 1961, following the Bay of Pigs incident and the Algiers putsch against Charles de Gaulle, Dulles and his entourage, including Deputy Director for Plans Richard M. Bissell Jr. and Deputy Director Charles Cabell, were forced to resign.

Edward Lansdale

Edward Geary Lansdale was a United States Air Force officer until retiring in 1963 as a major general before continuing his work with the Central Intelligence Agency. Lansdale was a pioneer in clandestine operations and psychological warfare. Wikipedia

Lansdale and OSS Officer General CD Jackson formed plans for Latin America and Indonesia Vietnam and other locations for Psychological Warfare. He was recognzined by those who knew him as bing in the vicinity of the Tramps at Dealey Plazza when JFK was assassinated.

L. Fletcher Prouty

Leroy Fletcher Prouty (January 24, 1917 – June 5, 2001)[1] served as Chief of Special Operations for the Joint Chiefs of Staff under President John F. Kennedy. A colonel in the United States Air Force, he retired from military service to become a bank executive. He subsequently became a critic of U.S. foreign policy, particularly the covert activities of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), which he believed was working on behalf of a secret world elite. Prouty's commentary on the Kennedy assassination circulated widely from the 1970s-90s, as a key source for conspiracy theories about it. He was the inspiration for the character "Mr. X" in Oliver Stone's film JFK.[2]

The Roman Catholic Boston area native was friend of the Donegan family (My own and we socialized with is family) and asserted the CIA killed JFK as part of continuing the Regime Change plans PsyOps had planned but which JFK wished to stop.

Col Fletcerh Prouty and James Donegan were flying in the Korean War era 1952 under Richard Bissle Jr. and E. Howard Hunt and many other figures of the CIA were connected to this place and time in the Cold War.

One of Prouty's main roles was as a go between of all the parties (CIA, Air Force, State Department) that made up MKULTRA and work to coordinate and deliver the resources for the intervention in foreign affairs the CIA had planned.

Officer Jenny Moore (ret.)

Investigative Journalist Jen Moore was found dead in a suburban Washington D.C. hotel room Monday. August 20, 2018, according to police and shocked and distraught friends and colleagues.

Moore died of an apparent seizure. Police are closely investigating the cause of death after former FBI Agent Robyn Gritz, a friend of Moore’s, made inquiries with homicide detectives Monday afternoon in Prince Georges County, Maryland. Preliminary reports from police said the death was not the result of suicide.

Since her death, a recording has surfaced of Moore, often referred to as “Task Force” as a nickname, being interviewed by radio and YouTube journalist Farmer Jones. The recording was made just a month before she was found by employees at the Country Inn & Suites by Radisson in Washington, D.C. East-in Capitol Heights, Maryland. Police have ruled out suicide and on Tuesday, True https://www.facebook.com/TracyPolice/photos/it-is-with-deep-sadness-we-announce-the-death-of-retired-officer-jenny-moore-who/2135155453183266/ It is with deep sadness we announce the death of retired officer Jenny Moore who passed away on August 13, 2018 in Millersville, Maryland. Jenny served the community of Tracy from 1993 until her retirement in 2004. Jenny held the rank of Corporal, served in the then named Street Crime Unit as a narcotics investigator and worked in the Tracy Unified School District as a DARE officer. As a Field Training Officer, Jenny taught new officers how to police in Tracy and gave them an appreciation of what it meant to grow up in a town and later serve the same community. She also was a member of our adventure racing team competing in several events on the west coast.

Jenny graduated from Tracy High School in 1986 and later completed a Master's Degree in Psychology, which she put to good use as a psychologist at a non-profit organization. Her mother, Jane Moore of California, survives her; her Father Bob Moore of Texas; her sisters Robin and Kelli, and brother Bobby, all of California. She also had numerous nieces and nephews.

Her memorial and internment are private.

Rapport is a close and harmonious relationship in which the people or groups concerned are "in sync" with each other, understand each other's feelings or ideas, and communicate smoothly. The rapport between members of a dyad (e.g. a teacher and student or doctor and patient) allows the participants to coordinate their actions and establish a mutually beneficial working relationship, or what is often called a "working alliance."

The fraud being conducted by an illegal trafficking scheme attempts to show I am rapport with fraudsters surrounding me. Since I am not in communication with them they thank me for things are not communication with them (POS workers, etc.,) as though that were in fact my communication back to them. This fakes my involvement in activities I have no links to. Jen Moore asserted this was plotted at the highest levels of government and operate(s) as Pizzagate, an allegation I hope when order food or drink a teen will arrive and be my victim, and later, my need to pay a victim's fund and protection racket operation,.

She asserted this was an illegal CIA operation and Ed Donegan asserts it includes most government agencies that when the decide to stage events request the cooperation of others as well.

Ed Donegan asserts this goes back to atomic testing (my father at above ground testing as a test subject exposed to radiation while wearing goggles) and scientific and commercial trafficking that DNA over time still continuing. My father was part of the Manhattan Project developing and delivering the atomic bombs used on Japan in WWII.

Frank Belcher

Chauncey Marvin Holt in his book Self-Portrait of A Scoundrel will also discuss some of the CIA covert operations such as the assassination of Rafael Leonida Trujillo, one of the most vicious butchers ever to operate in the Caribbean.

Aspects of the Kennedy assassination are discussed. At the time of the murder, Holt was working for KG & Co. The "K" stood f or former California Governor Goodwin Knight. The "G" stood for Alfred Gitelson, a sitting Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge.

Among the many partners in the company were Frank belcher, Joe Ball, and Doc Stacher. The combination of political clout from the named partners, and the money of the organized crime relatively silent partners, led to tremendous profits, often at the expense of the taxpayers.

The conduit for all CIA operations in California and Arizona was Phillip Twombly, former executive vice president of Coca Cola, the eyes and ears of the CIA in the Caribbean, who owned the University Bank of Fullerton, California.

Through Twombly, we met and controlled many bank officials, particularly the Bank of America, whose key officers cooperated blindly in whatever schemes were being perpetrated.

[Holt] suspects that they, like himself, were sent there as a diversion. He feels that if the Dallas Police had done their job, there would have been massive confusion since all of them, if they could be properly checked, would have been discovered to have histories involving violence and crime.

Much of Holt's post-Bay of Pigs work for the CIA was in California where his job included establishing proprietary interests for the company.

He took strong recommendations from his close associates Meyer Lansky and Peter Licavoli in order to be able to begin associating with powerful Californians. These included Frank Belcher, Joseph A. Ball who was later a senior counsel for the Warren Commission, as well as Goodwin Knight, Alfred Gitelson, and other influential partners in KG & co.

"I operated five different proprietary interests including a documentation mill, two fixed based operations for aircraft, a weapons modification plant, and a business management firm which disbursed contingency funds to contract agents and carried out money laundering operations.

Frank Belcher and I had a joint bank account at the Bank of America in Burbank, California, that was used to launder contingency funds, pay contract agents, and receive funds from those clients of the CIA fronts that availed themselves of our services.

Belcher was a relative of J.A. Belcher of Belcher Oil Company, another firm closely connected to the CIA. He was married to Ruth Reynolds, who was related to George Reynolds of Morgan City, Louisiana, another asset, and Bob Reynolds, who was chief of station of JM/Wave, the huge CIA complex located on the campus of the University of Miami.

"Belcher and Ball were partners, along with actors John Wayne and Fred MacMurray, in a luxurious house in Acapulco, next to Las Brisas.

we requested a tape-operated lathe, so that we could mass produce the tubes, and the stainless steel washers and baffles, necessary to produce silencers, the money, amounting to over fifty thousand dollars, was remitted to us, through Twombly, without delay.

Funds to purchase the weapons from Sam Cummings at Western Surplus and the new STOL equipped aircraft, were transferred to my account, at the Union Bank, upon request. I was making daily withdrawals — in cash — from the "big money" teller at Union Bank, for distribution to other contract agents.

From these funds, in one month, in early 1963, I purchased two brand new Cadillac convertibles, a Chrysler New Yorker station wagon, three specially equipped DeHavilland Beaver aircraft, and a piece of property with a short, paved and lighted, landing strip on it.

Most of the equipment, that we were producing, was supplied to George Reynolds, who operated several companies, including the Atchafalaya Labor Camp, located in the Atchafalaya Swamp near Morgan City, Louisiana. Reynolds was related to Bob Reynolds, who was chief of station in Miami, during the Bay of Pigs.

Q. Who was George Reynolds?

A. George Reynolds was another important CIA asset. He was related to Bob Reynolds, former chief of station at JM/Wave and by marriage of his sister, Ruth, to Frank Belcher. I know nothing about his background. I never, ever, inquired into anyone's background.

Curiosity can kill more than the cat. I am sure that no one ever delved into my background. If they had they would have discovered that I was not really Jack Moon.

Leroy Young

The freight train [we hid in a car of] was scheduled to leave the switching yard, heading north. We planned to jump offthe train, before it gathered much speed and call Morgan Brown, who was staying at the Cabana Hotel, and he would take us out the R. L Thornton Freeway to Red Bird Airport, a small field, where Joe Canty was warming up a very special Commanche (aircraft), which had been tied down at Wayne January's facility by David Ferrie or Leroy Young, both of whom I had worked with in the past.

Both Young, who worked for George Reynolds, and Ferrie, who was a close associate of Carlos Marcello, were excellent pilots. Despite the fact that Ferrie was a homosexual, and one of the weirdest appearing individuals I had ever met, he, still, was an extraordinary pilot, with nerves of steel, as he had demonstrated many times, in the flights to

Q. Were you in New Orleans in the summer of 1963?

A. Yes, on several occasions. I was in New Orleans several times with Young, another pilot, arms expert and close associate of George Reynolds. We were delivering arms to various camps where anti-Castro Cubans were training. The most prominent of these camps was one located across Lake Pontchartrain on property owned by Lewis McWillie's brother.

CH: George Reynolds had a brother, whose name was Bob Reynolds. He was chief of station at JM/ Wave

CH: He was a very high level CIA individual, employee. Besides, Frank Belcher was related to J.A. Belcher of J.A. Belcher Oil Company, had old time oil money from Texas. He also was known to be a CIA asset. This was well known So all these things were working together.

So I get a letter from George Reynolds, telling me that he and Leroy Young, who happened to be his second in command, a weapons expert, helicopter pilot, you know, soldier of fortune type, and that they were going to be in New Orleans for about twenty days, a twenty day period.

Phillip Twombly

Q. Who was Phillip Twombly? Can you elaborate on his background?

A. Twombly was one of the CIA's most important assets. He had been, at one time, executive vice president of Coca Cola in the Caribbean. He owned the controlling interest in the University Bank of Fullerton, the main conduit for contingency funds of the CIA. He was president of the so-called Blue Goose/ Davis/Eadington Group, a huge conglomerate, all privately owned that owned over a hundred properties from Hawaii to Florida. He was a partner in over a hundred partnerships, including TED Leasing, a large firm owned by Twombly, Tom Eadington, an oil man, and the Davis brothers. This firm was used by contract agents of the CIA to acquire properties useful to the CIA's covert operations.

Q. Did you feel that the mob and the CIA trusted each other?

A. Certainly not. Neither of these organizations trusted anyone.

Q. Would it be fair to say that 1963 was for you a time of stepped up activities?

A. Yes. 1963 was a very busy year.

Q. In April of 1963 were you told by Phillip wombly that a special project was planned for the fall of 1963 ?

A. I was told by Twombly that an incident would be created in the fall to inject some life into the anti-Castro campaign.

Q. Was there any indication that this involved assassination or violence of any kind?

A. None whatsoever.

Meyers Lansky

Lansky, Siegel and Luciano formed a gang, the Bugs and Meyer Mob, in Manhattan's Lower East Side. By 1929 they were one of "the Big Seven" largest and most influential bootlegging operations in the Northeastern United States. - PBS The violent gangs were even on contract for Lo Cosa Nostra the Italians who had more objection to killing. The Yiddish Mafia became known as La Kosher Nostra and was pragmatically driven and prolific killers and hitmen for hire.

The killers, originally primarily from the Jewish gangs of New York, were paid a generous salary for which they were expected to do nothing more than practice their skills while waiting for assignments. An actual murder would result in additional pay of from $ 1,000 to $5,000, the latter figure being more money than most honest men made in a year.

Lansky had proven his courage and his integrity in his early years. Also, like Peter Licavoli, an Arizona based mobster with whom I also worked, he had the sense to provide equal splits for men like Siegel who were not as sophisticated in their thinking. By being generous, he prevented internal wars that would have resulted in unnecessary violence.

What made Lansky a legend by the time I heard of him was the consolidation of criminal activities on an international scale. He had developed a business chain of command with representatives of the syndicate in every city.

The details the CIA's involvement with Morgan and his associates are fully exposed in Holt's autobiography.

The relationship that existed between Teamster leader Jimmy Hoffa and Rafael Trujillo is also exposed. The story of the CIA activity takes the reader behind the scenes of deep-cover operations. Holt shows how his identity as Jack Moon was created. He shows how someone checking into his background would discover that he was an MIT graduate (he never attended the school) and a classmate of George Schultz. He was also registered as a Certified Public Accountant in the state of Massachusetts.

The documentation mills of the CIA are covered, as well as an explanation of the proprietary interests of the company. The Bay of Pigs fiasco involved Holt in his capacity with the International Rescue Committee. The IRC role was logistical, arranging for the ships, hiring pilots from the Alabama National Guard, and engaging in other, related roles. Operation Mongoose followed the Bay of Pigs and resulted from the Kennedy brothers' obsession with destroying Castro.

The Bay of Pigs was an Eisenhower administration operation they inherited, but the brothers took the defeat personally. They did not have so strong a desire to defeat Castro as they did to win whatever they tried.

The roles played by William King Harvey, Robert Maheu, Sam Giancana, and Johnny Rosselli have been well publicized. However, the roles of some of the other players, including Peter icavoli, friend and long time associate of both Rosselli and Giancana, as well as Tony Materna, a close associate of Howard Hughes, legendary gambler Ray Ryan and his partner, Ernie Dunlevie, have never before been exposed.

Lansky was a skilled auto mechanic and gunsmith. It was the latter ability that caused him to use a .45-ca1iber automatic during his years as a professional killer for Murder, Inc., and others. He knew that with a .45 you could keep the basic gun for every hit, just changing the barrel, the extractor, the ejector, and making other slight modifications. When ballistics specialists examine the reconstructed weapon, the markings of a bullet fired for comparison with the murder bullet will not match, though they came from the same gun.

[While many Jewish refugees were hard working immigrants crime free areas of New York and elsewhere cultivated Jewish mobsters ring especially during Prohibition and in Gambling.] Lansky instinctively understood the odds of dice. If you rolled two dice, each with up to six numbers, someone trying to come up with the number 7 had the greatest chance for success because there were six different combinations that could make that number. By contrast, there was only one-way to roll the numbers two or twelve with a pair of dice. It would be only a minor leap for him to understand the other rackets involving math —numbers, policy, casino skimming, money laundering, and the like.

been limited), I was, allowed to teach the other I also impressed several of the career criminals with my abilities, and was soon trained in the ways of what was becoming the new style of organized crime.

This was also where I learned about Meyer Lansky. Lansky, at the time he first hired me to work for him, was still connected with Bugsy Siegel and Lucky Luciano. They had been close friends since their years as teenagers together on the Lower East Side of New York. However, that friendship was strained by Siegel's flamboyance and lack of business ethics as he orchestrated the building of the first massive casino and hotel in Las Vegas.

In fact, it was my job to supply the documentation that ultimately led to Bugsy's assassination. But the growing estrangement of Lansky, whose base was Florida, and Siegel, who had moved to Hollywood, was not discussed in jail. Instead, it was Lansky's business sense, his mathematical genius, and his ability to avoid trouble with the Government.

I had been raised in the Cumberland Mountains of Kentucky where moonshine was a major industry. The ability to shoot a rival or a "Revenuer," both from ambush and in a shoot-out, were critical for survival. And when I added a pilot's license to my skills, I became of special interest to the mob.

Meyer Lansky and other organized crime figures liked to travel by private plane, the reason being that special equipment and money could be carried without fear of discovery. Lansky had purchased a twin engine D-18 at the end of World War II. It was usually hangered in Marathon, Florida, at an abandoned airstrip that had been resurfaced by Phil Sadowski, a developer who fronted for Lansky in projects he and his associates had going in the Florida Keys.

Ultimately I became an insider with some of the major development deals in the United States, including the creation of some of the largest casinos and hotels in Las Vegas.

And my art skills [and many other Circus trapeze etc.,] were so respected, I was loaned out to special agencies of the U.S. government to duplicate documents more accurately than commercial printers were able to do. But the only health benefits that existed involved not being killed if you did your job right, and retirement meant out-living both your enemies and your more ambitious friends.

I also was given a chance to meet or work with men who were at the height of their public prominence. Businessman, former bootlegger, and former Ambassador to the Court of St. James, Joe Kennedy, was one.

Walter Annenberg, who ultimately would also be an Ambassador to England, was another. He had been protected by his late father, Moses, who was a media giant owning, among other properties, the Philadelphia Inquirer, Screen Guide, New York Morning Telegraph, and the Radio Guide.

hiring pilots from the Alabama National Guard, and engaging in other, related roles. Operation Mongoose followed the Bay of Pigs and resulted from the Kennedy brothers' obsession with destroying Castro. The Bay of Pigs was an Eisenhower administration operation they inherited, but the brothers took the defeat personally. They did not have so strong a desire to defeat Castro as they did to win whatever they tried.

The roles played by William King Harvey, Robert Maheu, Sam Giancana, and Johnny Rosselli have been well publicized. However, the roles of some of the other players, including Peter Licavoli, friend and long time associate of both Rosselli and Giancana, as well as Tony Materna, a close associate of Howard Hughes, legendary gambler Ray Ryan and his partner, Ernie Dunlevie, have never before been exposed.

As recounted elsewhere, Operation Mongoose was revived and a number of contract agents, as well as the Cubans and gangsters like Giancana, Licavoli, Roselli, Traffcante and Rothman, who answered to Lansky, were involved in these attempts on Castro, many of which were not only ludicrous but bordered on lunacy. On December 14, 1961, I attended a meeting at Bermuda Dunes ort a proprietary interest of the CIA, operated by Ray Ryan and an old time pilot by the name of Ernie Dunlevie.

This was the only meeting I attended where most of the principals involved in the plot to assassinate Fidel Castro were present. Those present included William King Harvey, Peter Licavoli, Sam Giancana, Johnny Roselli, Ray Ryan and Frank Hayden. Ernie Dunlevie was not present. I acted as the secretary and I still have the handwritten notes of that meeting.

One of our bases of operations was the Bermuda Dunes airport, between Palm Springs and Indio. This airport, and all the facilities, was owned by Bermuda Dunes Airport Company, a proprietary interest of the CIA, fronted by Ray Ryan and Ernie Dunlevie. Ray Ryan was one of the biggest gamblers in the country, and had won his first oil well in a poker game. He and Dunlevie, who was a old time pilot, were also developers in the Palm Springs area. Ray Ryan owned the El Mirador Hotel, The Salton Sea Yacht Club, Jamaica Sands

It is very difficult to judge Holt unless you knew him as family and even though you might not know all he knew and thus could not fully interpret him except or his personality that you probably could not avoid discerning.

He appears to be what he calls "201s" (military files of all personell including discharges of all types) that were dishonorably discharged.

Holt like my father James Paul Donegan probably from childhood dreamed of flying. When my father heard perhaps from a Jimmy Stewart (General Stewart in WWII bomber pilot) my father jumped down from the ladder he was on painting still under 18 and rushed to sign up for the Army Air Force (previously Army Air Corp and later US Air Force) in Pennsylvania at what looks lie the Army Air Corps air intellietnce center, RECON.

Hot had been discharged though in the 1930's when he got in a fight, was put in a military brig for a while and discharged when his sentence had been served. After Perl Harbor he was brought back and he says he was not allowed further flight training. In reality he was either later in his own private lessons before and after this and with CIA support he was used as a pilot.

The CIA uses "hacks" like Jeffery Epstein. Those who did have training, not working from scratch, but were either recruited from or hired after discharges. Some of these worked in repugnant fields, illegal, acts, etc., for the CIA who wanted the best skills but had forefront covert operations not being surveilled for things like ethics or law.

Charles Harrelson, Chauncey Holt, Montoya escape to the railroad box car

This School Book Book Depository the lot was swarming with faces he knew from days when he worked to help set up the CIA's Bay of Pigs invasion and he says he met two other men the other tramps in the photograph.

This man he knew only as Montoya but this man he says he knew well his name was Charles Harrelson said to me are you O'Malley I said yes he said I'm Harrelson.

Charles Harrelson was a contract killer now in prison for killing Texas Federal Judge John Wood.

When arrested for the Woods killing Harrelson claimed killing a judge was nothing to someone who had killed a President. (Bragging about how badass?).

Murder of John H. Wood retrieved from Wikipedia and copied or modified to here

Jamiel Chagra, known as Jimmy, was born in El Paso, Texas on December 7, 1944. Chagra's drug dealings came under close scrutiny by law enforcement and the judicial system. On November 21, 1978, Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr was ambushed and shot at near his home by two men who fired 19 bullets at his car. Kerr escaped with only minor glass cuts. Kerr had been involved with pursuing Chagra for his drug dealings. On December 23, 1978, Lee Chagra was shot and killed in his law office in El Paso.

John Howland Wood Jr. (March 31, 1916 - May 29, 1979) was an American lawyer and judge from Texas. He served as a United States district judge of the United States District Court for the Western District of Texas before being assassinated by contract killer Charles Harrelson outside Wood's home in San Antonio, in 1979. Wood's killing was the first assassination of a federal judge in the 20th century.

Chagra's downfall began in February 1979 when he was arrested on trafficking charges. He was scheduled to appear before United States District Judge John Wood, a judge nicknamed "Maximum John" who had a reputation for giving out the maximum sentence allowed for drug-related crimes. Chagra faced a possible life sentence without parole if convicted and reportedly feared he would receive a life sentence, according to prosecutors. Chagra attempted to bribe Judge Wood for "$5 million or 10 million". Facing life for smuggling, Jimmy Chagra allegedly decided to have the judge killed.

Chagra was accused of (and was acquitted of, although he later confessed to conspiracy in a deal to help his wife) hiring hitman Charles Harrelson (actor Woody Harrelson's father) to kill Wood for $250,000; on May 29, 1979, Judge Wood was murdered outside his home by a shot in the back. He was the first federal judge to die by assassination in over a century.[23] The authorities did not immediately suspect Chagra of involvement in the assassination, and it took thousands of man-hours to identify them as suspects in the case. His drug case went to trial and Chagra was found guilty in August 1979 and sentenced to 30 years. Chagra jumped bail, but was captured six months later in Las Vegas.

Harrelson was eventually caught and convicted of being the gunman after Chagra discussed the assassination with his brother Joe during Joe's visit to Jimmy in United States Penitentiary in Leavenworth, Kansas, after FBI agents bugged the rooms in which they were speaking. This was among over a thousand recorded conversations that the government had collected as evidence. The position of federal authorities was that even though Joe Chagra was a lawyer, he was also suspected in conspiracy to conceal the crime; therefore, their conversations were not covered by attorney-client privilege.

Both Harrelson and Chagra's brother Joe were implicated in the assassination.

August 1978 - Wood presides at drug smuggling conspiracy trial in El Paso of banker Rick De La Torre. Assistant U.S. Attorney James W. Kerr Jr. convinces a jury to convict De La Torre for his role in an unsuccessful attempt to import nine tons of marijuana from Columbia to an airstrip in West Texas. The lost case was personal for defense attorneys Lee Chagra and his younger brother Joe Chagra: De Le Torre is the husband of their sister, Patricia.

Sept. 8, 1978 - Kerr summons topless dancers and their bosses before a federal grand jury in El Paso in an investigation into racketeering and organized prostitution. No indictments are returned. Many of the dancers were the wives and girlfriends of members of the El Paso chapter of the Bandidos Motorcycle Club.

The Bandidos Motorcycle Club, also known as the Bandido Nation, is a one percenter motorcycle club with a worldwide membership. Formed in San Leon, Texas in 1966, the Bandidos MC is estimated to have between 2,000 and 2,500 members and 303 chapters, located in 22 countries, making it the second-largest motorcycle club in the world behind the Hells Angels.

Numerous law enforcement and international intelligence agencies classify the Bandidos as an organized crime syndicate.

Chauncey Holt says he'd been told to stay in the Book Depository parking lot wait for some sort of incident and if anything went wrong he should run to a specific boxcar on a parked train.

Then he heard shots and ran.

You could still hear that people yelling that the President had been shot so I knew that we had been we had been set up.

And there is more than just Holt's word. There is also his face. Mr. Lewis Gibson is the Houston Police Department's forensic artist. She made comparisons of Holt and the in the photographs.

"This is just conclusive to me that that's the same man."

She also compared pictures of Charles Harrelson with the photo again a perfect match "I'll stake my reputation on it for sure."

Chauncey Holt does not claim to know who shot Kennedy but he says he is sure most of the shots did not come from the Book Depository but came from close by from the grassy knoll.

If I am believed it would lay to rest these ideas that Jack Ruby and Lee Harvey Oswald were just nuts that passed in the night.

we've been researching [in 1997] Chauncey whole story talking to scholars ex CIA agents and many others. (Sunny Bono, the Kennedy family?)

Some say whole story is bunk but others believe him and all admit that if he is a fake he's not just a wacko he is playing either a well schooled elaborately or he's telling the truth .

John sweetie have you talked to Charlie - Charles Harrelson about it we have not talked to Charles Harrelson yet he is currently in Marion Illinois in the federal penitentiary we have are in the process of asking for permission to talk because anybody corroborated this story that he's telling a number of individuals that we've spoken to have corroborated little bits and pieces of it one of the problems is the story that he tells is so detailed that goes all the way back to 1941 and carries on all the way through the 80s the Kennedy portion of the story that he tells is just a very small part of course it's the most important right now fascinating.

Frank Belcher is the payroll person who operates out of a California bank to pay for the printing of fake Fair Play For Cuba fliers and other activities. The artist, painter, and forger Chauncey Marvin Hold designed the fliers printed at Los Angeles Stamp and Stationary Company. They had upper floors of the building reserved for CIA work.

The mob was already smuggling booze and engaged in assassinations, etc., and could be used for arms smuggling, etc., in Latin America.

Here is how it all came about. Two Mobsters (Chauncey Holt and Peter Licavoli) have relatives. Bud Holt (Cousin of Marvin Holt) and Peter Licavoli has the brothers Joseph and Yonnie Licavoli. At elast one of the Licavoli

Peter Joseph Licavoli (June 7, 1902 – January 11, 1984), was an American organized crime figure in St. Louis, Missouri before moving to Detroit, Michigan. He controlled criminal operations in Detroit and Toledo, Ohio, throughout the Prohibition era.

In the 1930s, Licavoli was convicted of bribing a federal official and spent two years at Leavenworth Penitentiary. He was arrested, tried, or suspected of murder seven times, and released seven times. His brother Dominic married Rosalie Zerilli, the eldest daughter of the Detroit Partnership boss Joseph Zerilli. In 1944, Licavoli left the Toledo-Detroit area for Arizona, living on Grace Ranch near Tucson, Arizona until his death in 1984.

The story of the CIA activity takes the reader behind the scenes of deep cover operations. Holt shows how his identity as Jack Moon was created. He shows how someone checking into his background would discover that he was an MIT graduate (he never attended the school) and a classmate of George Schultz. He was also registered as a Certified Public Accountant in the state of Massachusetts.

The documentation mills of the CIA are covered, as well as an explanation of the proprietary interests of the company. The Bay of Pigs fiasco involved Holt in his capacity with the International Rescue Committee. The IRC role was logistical, arranging for the ships, hiring pilots from the Alabama National Guard, and engaging in other, related roles. Operation Mongoose followed the Bay of Pigs and resulted from the Kennedy brothers' obsession with destroying Castro. The Bay of Pigs was an Eisenhower administration operation they inherited, but the brothers took the defeat personally. They did not have so strong a desire to defeat Castro as they did to win whatever they tried.

The roles played by William King Harvey, Robert Maheu, Sam Giancana, and Johnny Rosselli have been well publicized. However, the roles of some of the other players, including Peter Licavoli, friend and long time associate of both Rosella and Giacanca, as well as Tony Materna, a close associate of Howard Hughes, legendary gambler Ray Ryan and his partner, Ernie Dunlevie, have never before been exposed.

It was also this plot that ultimately was a probable factor in the assassination of Jack Kennedy. In presenting the information on the CIA, either within the text or in an appendix, Holt will include a list of the CIA fronts active in California during this period as well as background concerning their "legitimate" and covert reasons for existence.

Holt will also discuss some of the CIA covert operations such as the assassination of Rafael Leonida Trujillo, one of the most vicious butchers ever to operate in the Caribbean.

Aspects of the Kennedy assassination are discussed. At the time of the murder, Holt was working for KG & Co. The "K" stood f or former California Governor Goodwin Knight. The "G" stood for Alfred Gitelson, a sitting Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge.

Among the many partners in the company were Frank Belcher, Joe Ball, and Doc Stacher. The combination of political clout from the named partners, and the money of the organized crime relatively silent partners, led to tremendous profits, often at the expense of the taxpayers. The conduit for all CIA operations in California and Arizona was Phillip Twombly, former executive vice president of Coca Cola, the eyes and ears of the CIA in the Caribbean, who owned the University Bank of Fullerton, California.

Dear Jack:

This is to advise you that Leroy and I will be in the New Orleans area from the 6th of August until the 20th.

We are meeting with Eli and we will staying at the La Salle Hotel on the 9th and you could contact us there, if necessary.

We will be using the airport across the lake and will be staying most of the time at LY's house.

On our trip back to Morgan City, we will be stopping at Rhodes' Ranch to look at the airplane we are contemplating buying. If you fly in to see Bill Rhodes keep in mind that the strip at the ranch is only 420 feet long and you will have to use one of the 2700 equipped planes.

I will be talking to Lloyd Cobb while I am New Orleans. Also, GR regarding the next shipment.

Hope to see you there.

Peter Licavoli's criminal career was not limited to the financial sphere. Licavoli also pleaded guilty to conspiracy to bribe a federal customs officer. Judge Edward J Moinet sentenced him to two years in prison and a $1,000 fine. This was the first crime Licavoli had been convicted of. Licavoli's guilty plea came after an undercover government agent and one of the former customs officers that Licavoli was accused of bribing provided damaging evidence: Licavoli had paid Shell Miller, a former customs border patrolman, $200 and three bottles of whiskey in 1928 to allow his liquor boats to arrive protected from Canada.

The start into the Mob - Licavolis and Holts and Mob Ties to Elite Business Interest who had needs for "muscle" booze and women

Peter Joseph Licavoli (June 7, 1902 – January 11, 1984) Brother Dominic.Dominic married Rosalie Zerilli, the eldest daughter of the Detroit Partnership (a mob group) boss Joseph Zerilli who was an American organized crime figure in St. Louis, Missouri before moving to Detroit, Michigan. He controlled criminal operations in Detroit and Toledo, Ohio, throughout the Prohibition era.

In the 1930s, Peter Licavoli was convicted of bribing a federal official and spent two years at Leavenworth Penitentiary. He was arrested, tried, or suspected of murder seven times, and released seven times.

Pete Licavoli may have also been involved in the automotive industry and Chauncey Holt says this is how his connection to Peter Licavoli formed. Bud Holt (cousin to Chauncey Holt) was a Ford employee working with Harry Bennet to suppress union problems via roughians and the mob, the mob muscle coming from mobster Peter Licavoli.

Harry Herbert Bennett (January 17, 1892 – January 4, 1979), was a boxer, naval sailor, and businessman. From the 1920s through 1945, he worked for Ford Motor Company and was best known as the head of Ford's "service department", the company's internal [Pinkteron-like] security agency. While working for Henry Ford, Bennett's union-busting tactics made him an enemy of the United Auto Workers (UAW) trade union. He gained infamy for his involvement in activities such as in the Battle of the Overpass, a 1937 incident where UAW members protesting for higher wages were assaulted by Ford security guards.

Harry Bennett was born in 1892 in Ann Arbor, Michigan. He went to common schools. As a youth, Bennett started competing in boxing and won some city bouts. He served in the U.S. Navy during World War I.

In the early days of Ford Motor Company, a security department operated under the name of the Ford Service Department. It was to try to control the growing labor unrest and suppress the emerging labor unions. Ford had instituted a policy called "speed up", by which the speed of the assembly lines was increased slightly every week, and employees were feeling the strain. The labor issues sometimes led to violent clashes between Ford's management, the police, and some workers. Henry Ford needed someone able to handle rough situations as head of his Service Department.

Bud Holt a Ford employee and cousin of Chauncey in a Senate hearing spoke about events that took place within the Ford Service Department in 1935. He claimed Pete helped recruit employees to “take care of certain trouble”. [union busting and strike breaking] According to Bud Holt, Peter Licavoli later demanded higher wages for his recruits, which would in turn lead to his financial benefit. Bud Holt said Licavoli also forced Ford’s Personnel Director, Harry Bennett’s, car off the road after Bennett fired Licavoli’s recruits. However, Holt denied this claim during the hearing. Additionally, Peter Licavoli was questioned during the Investigation of Organized Crime in Interstate Commerce by the Kefauver committee in 1951.

Holt, discussing the violent end of the Kennedy administration, which will be covered in the book states: "In early 1963, our Los Angeles documentation mill was the Los Angeles Stamp and Stationery Company (LASSCO). Tony Materna, a MIT graduate (for real) and formerly a close associate of Howard Hughes, was the general manager who supervised the day to day operation of the legal side of the business. I was in charge of the covert section, supervising the graphic artists responsible for turning out some of the best documents in the country for the CIA and organized crime.

"It was in April of 1963 that we were informed that a major project was contemplated for the fall of that year. Later we were instructed that an incident would be created during visits by President Kennedy to either Chicago, Miami, or some other large city. The incidents were to be viewed as the work of pro-Castro Cubans so that the CIA could regain interest in ridding the nation of Castro. (Oddly, at this time John Kennedy was subtly trying to bring Castro into a more positive relationship with the United States while his brother, Robert, was working on ways to assassinate him.)

"For this project, the covert section of LASSCO was asked to be prepared to forge identity documents for several agencies. The work, to be done on short notice, included documents and Japel recognition plns for the Secret Service. "In August of 1963, acting on instructions of George Reynolds, who operated the Atchafalaya Labor Camp in Morgan City, Louisiana, Bud Belcher and I flew to New Orleans. Bud was the son of Frank Belcher, owner of Belcher Aircraft, a CIA proprietary interest. Bud and I were to give Lee Harvey Oswald material to distribute in his role with "Fair Play for Cuba."

The pamphlets we printed at LASSCO were passed to Guy

Bannister, but there was a well- publicized arrest of Oswald at this time and, to the best of my knowledge, the material was never distributed.

Operation Mongoose moves on to the assassination of JFK under William King Harvey

"In November I went to Dallas as instructed with forged documents for Homer Echevarria, as well as two men identified to me as Richard Montoya and Charles Harrelson. J was instructed to remain in Dealey Plaza 'in a support position' until after the motorcade and the planned demonstrations were finished.

J assumed that these were the fraudulent pro-Castro demonstrations discussed earlier in the year.

"As soon as the shooting started, I realized that I was another pawn in this operation. Montoya, Harrelson, and I took refuge in a boxcar, which had been identified to us as part of a train ready for departure. If anyone checked, they would have found that we were Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms (ATF) agents working in plain-clothes, the reason false documents had been prepared.

"An hour and a half after the shooting, we were arrested. We were taken to the Sheriff's Department command post and turned over to a deputy sheriff Because of who we could 'prove' we were, we were turned over to Gordon Shanklin, FBI agent in charge. He released us almost immediately, not bothering to record our detainment. The closest to a record is a photograph that was taken of us as the 'three tramps' whose identities have been incorrectly speculated.

"Suddenly after the release of the movie JFK and the resulting publicity, including lengthy articles in Newsweek and elsewhere, the Dallas Police came up with what purports to be arrest records of the three tramps. However, there are no pictures or fingerprints of these three individuals, even though the Dallas Police Department now claims that they were held for four days for vagrancy and for theft.

The finger has been pointed all these years at the Dallas Police Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation who, allegedly were well aware of documentary evidence that would blunt the criticisms of negligence if, in fact, it was in existence and not fabricated solely for the purpose of discrediting other individuals, including myself.

Holt will be identified in Dealey Plaza Photos as a Hobo who escaped into a Railroad car with Charles Harrelson and others, General Edward Lansdale is with them, and the operation was begun in 1962 that included printing fake Secret Service identification documents and other tasks such as acquiring rifles of various types funded by Belcher.

For the now four books I have in progress some versions of earlier books, this book takes an overview and closing-theory look at the Cabal, its evolution, its corruption, and the leaks and exposes often from the right hand men and women in the Cabal's most secret works.

To Ted Gunderson and Gene Chip Tatum, William Colby and John DeCamp, to Col Prouty and Phillip Marshall, and to Oliver Stone and Mark Howard Gorton. To Anton Chaitkin, Webster Tarpley. and to Wayne Madsen. To Gary Caradori and Andrew Cardori whose times together were likely much like the times James Donegan and Ed Donegan had together going skiing in the loaded down Toyota Carolla headed to Wyoming, Colorado, the Southern California, Norther California, and other locations in Massachusetts and in Europe.

To Jen Moore and myself Edward Paul Donegan and trying to get our story out. That story is about Glorian Donegan my mother and my USAF pilot father, their secret identies connected to other high profile people, now dead, who had secret identieis including Marlin Monroe,.

We also lived under secret abuse (as Ted Gunderson did and others have) and Ted Gunderson and I trying to expose to the press and courts the system of violence and murders and F.B.I and C.I.A and N.S.A system of the worst kind of favoratism. Cult groups, prison gangs, existing mobsters and underground groups drawn from the prosecutor's files (like Jack Ruby was done in 1946) and brought into CIA hits teams or used as agents-in-place live as disguised US Government assets that will conduct hits as needed by the C.I.A. and F.B.I protecting elite officials from journalism, whislte-blowers and scandals. Geral Sosbee Former FBI), Ted Gunderson (former FBI) and Jen Moore (former Tracy califrornia police and later CIA asset, Police, and) all report Silencers being used to conduct breeak-ins, death threats, and even murders for Silence of the Grave.

The roadmap for this book is laid out in this book as a chapter. The roadmaps includes showing how world history events tied to me family are being conceals with murders, kidnappings, and political assassinations the Ted Gunderson and Jen report as tied to the Alan Dulles James Angleotn program up to and including Ted Gunderson asserts including assassination retired CIA director William Colby a devout Roman Catholic who was working with John DeCamp, Ted Gunderson, and Gary Caradori, and the wife and child of Jeffery MacDonald.

In the earlier books where I researched less famous deaths I wrote about the pattern used. The scuzzy or skid row attacker will use names like Harvey Dent, Caspar, or play roles as Batman or Xfiles, or Captain America, usually extremely violent and psychotic ex-cons with drugs, weapons ranging from bludgeoning instrumentes, knives, and firearms, and frequenlty will make terrorist threats to the victim demanding silence.

To Micheal Hastings and Andi Parhamovich, Andre Breitbart, Dorothy Kilgallen, or others, and to Jeffery MacDonald and his family, victims all.

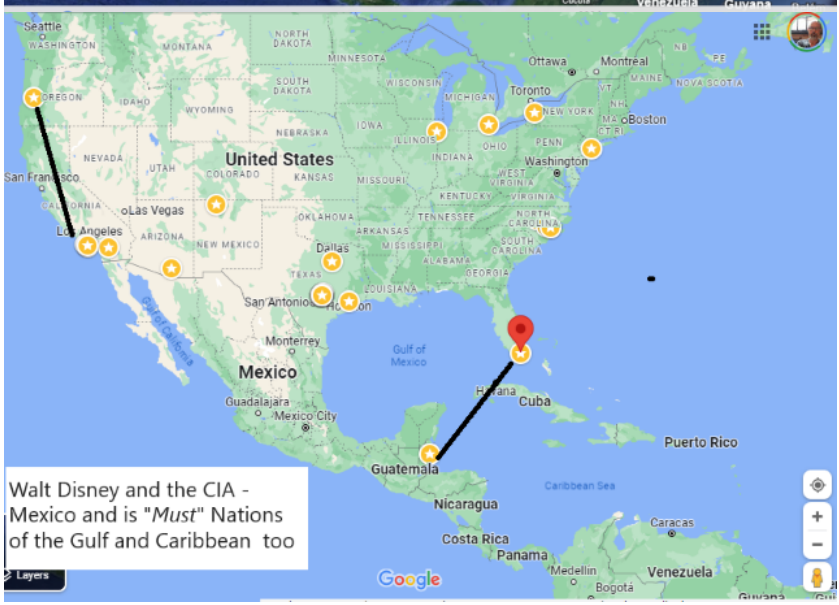
"antidemocratic" opposed or hostile to the theories or policies of democracy

The CIA allowed and encouraged and funded New World Order business behaving badly to use criminal means to (in conjunction with secretive US military operations) subvert nations as need to keep prophylactic layer of land and airspace surrounding the USA.

Many if not most politicians and media figures have ties to these global elite and the goals they share.

Much of this dates back to War Industries Board that was started to create a military industrial complex dynamic enough to scale to war production needs as war requirements may necessitate.

The situation was compounded in that same era when the Atom was being studied and nuclear science as well as radio, xray, RADAR were developing top secret research that required university and privately conducted R&D..



For the purpose of Overthrow (subversion and treason) there are various levels of conditions and law. A lone wolf assassin with a policy or personal grudge, a group of people from private society in our out of the USA, those who have State Actors support from other nations and those with State Actors support inside the USA. Further, a single assassination versus taking over the vacant office and using suppression techniques to maintain the overthrow like killing journalists, witnesses, judges in cases to fully suppress accountability and visibility of the overthrow and I think focusing on Secret Team of World Industrialism is a better focus than the more limted case of JFK or and expands into RFK MLK Malcom X Hastings, and many other worldwide large and small scale supporting treason.

NEW YORK TIMES BESTSELLING AUTHOR
THE BUSH CRIME FAMILY
ROGER STONE and SAINT JOHN HUNT
FOREWORD BY CONGRESSMAN JOHN LEBOUTILLIER

Jeb and the Bush Crime Family is the book that smashes through the layers of lies and secrecy that has surrounded and protected our country's very own political dynasty.

New York Times best-selling author and legendary political insider Roger Stone lashes out with a blistering indictment that exposes the true history and monumental hypocrisy of the Bushes. In his usual "go for the jugular" style, Stone collaborates with Saint John Hunt - author, musician, and son of legendary CIA operative E. Howard Hunt - to make this a "no-holds-barred" history of the Bush family.

The authors reveal Jeb to be a smug, entitled autocrat who both uses and hides behind his famous name as he mingles with international drug peddlers. They show how Jeb: Received a $4 million taxpayer bailout when his daddy was vice president. Used his insider status to make millions from Obamacare. Avoided criminal prosecution on a fraudulent federal loan. Hypocritically supports the War on Drugs, despite his own shocking drug history.

After detailing the vast litany of Jeb's misdeeds, Stone travels back to Samuel, Prescott, George H. W., and George W. Bush to weave an epic story of privilege, greed, corruption, drug profiteering, assassination, and lies. Jeb and the Bush Crime Family will have you asking, "Why aren't these people in prison?"

Fletcher Prouty's story of Dulles (and Prouty) and Nixon and others overthrowing Indonesia (with Obama having a possible role and likely connection to the Donegan's) as taken decades to research as well of additional information documented from available sources what I remember in both private family matters and world history.

One post I have not yet located on the Nazi sympathizers or Alt Right site Stormfront is the question I had been asking very early in my account first praising both sides in the war, I have not doubt people are caught up their national ferver and follow orders even if they doubt them, and most all in the USA most of that site had loved family members fight or die for the USA and others clearly agreed. But what resonated on me and seems it was deleted was my asking German geneticists if they recognizedd the names Donegan or Gainey as racial experimentation DNA, I was told all through my early life it was as the statue in our house EPDIII was on the bookshelf. It turns out it wasn't James Paul Donegan but Glorian Gaieny who had been living under a fake and unsearchable hidden identity. All the talk I heard about an abdicated king was not on my father's County Donegal side, it was the Mary Kutchera side and I knew she was loosely tied into the Von Trapp North Carolina singers story, and some type of British espionage she had referenced. This was all very secret and hush hush and until I put the Jen Moore revelations and timeles together I realized the abdicated king was on her side of the family and couldn't be found under the hidden identity tied to the JFK assassination.

As for my fathers history I knew he watched the atomic blast from the observation tower in Nevada and flew the P-51D and with the atomic bombing one and two of Japan and had undergone genetic studies though that still was not the whole story.

This is not to say I was starting from scratch at all. All my life with my father who lived into his 80's he told me of his and his mother and father's life in Boston at the hands of anti-Irish discrimination and later guiding me to the book Trinity by Leon Uris, a reflection of my fathers love or Ireland and the common pain of suffering both the Irish and Jews feel deeply and similarly.

Some wonder why when you walk into Ireland's 32 on Geary Street in San Francisco there are some many Palestinian and African struggle stories. For many the wonder is why more space is not devoted to those ongoing world struggles.

As an air-force and commercial pilot from before he was 18 until his retirement our lives were nothing about aerospace and military technology, the Cold War, Korean War, and Missile Crisis (Pacific and Eastern Block) and generally about technology, and political relations and theory, I had a good starting point to understand the Kennedy assassination and the fabric of world conflicts the events occurred including as I myself lived through much of that history in my high-school years and after a news-junkie, a wannabe writer and political philosopher, and world traveler with a school program feature world history and western civilization studies.

Col Fletcher Prouty wrote many works including Guns of Dallas, a short story exposing Lansdale and others part of a Cabal operating behind his own back to use the assasination program of Vice President Nixon to kill JFK from the trainyard with the Hobos the real assassins firing accross the grassy knoll from behind the rail-yard fencing, and the bizarre release of the Hobos one of whom said he was Charles Harrelson this article, not the book by Prouty called JFK, the real basis for the movie by Oliver Stone.

According to myself Edward Paul Donegan there were major breaks in the Intel community between the Roman Catholics from Boston that the Donegan's, Prouty's, and Kennedy's were from, and England and the upper-crust of Dulles Brothers, Sullivan and Cromwell, Brown Brothers Harriman, William Greer, Landsdale, and other including William Barr.

Rather than focusing on Dallas 1963 as an internal US matter of the economics of military spending as Prouty described the issue and perhaps hid behind I am going to like his latter book look at the money and how in a new extension of that the Sleepers program was tied to money and tied to colonizing Agents of Influence in the 21st Century at early ages from the mid to late 20th Century and how that fabric of Agents of Influence in the 21st Century are now turning assassinations inward secretly in the USA to cover their own tracks, and how Gunderson, Sosbee, and others are part of that victimization as Jen Moore was as well.

Edward Donegan Fletcher Prouty St John Hunt expose press (Chapter)

After I was evicted from my home office at 1513 Ocean Dr. Corpus Christi as I began writing about history (military and CIA) of the Burns family (today's CIA) I had computer. I started using my old Wordpress Blog and they day I renamed it to Targeted Manhattan Project Victim and started naming names a series of attack started and I emailed the log of the change of name of the blog and reported the attacks to ARC of NOVA. Later, months later, I bought a PC notebook and was attacked that day by a person not arrested for the attack. Following that a few days later a homeless person in Austin Central Public Library fell on top of my computer with a large backpack as my notebook was open and the notebook miraculously survived but I wast told be security I was being evicted from the library. I pointed out I had done nothing at all, I had simply turned the other cheek on that provocation and I was not evicted most likely for seeming to be a fighter.

I am now back to the epubs using thumb drive portable version and my PC. I continue the combined story of St John Hunt and Ed DOnegan and in an upcoming chapter https://wordpress.com/home/targetedmanhattanprojectvictim.wordpress.com not there but in this book The Pain Love and Broken HOpes of James Donegan I will theorize about how this all fits together, the summary is James married and was in love with a Maria Kutschera child Glorian Gainey, she was tied to Franz Kutschera, a child bastard child of the Windsors via Maria Kutschera (The Prince and the Showgirl theme Marilyn Monroe also had Borderline.)

Under pressure they the Donegan's allowed eggs from her to be CIA fertilized watching various outcomes of various sperm fertilized matched IVFs and I had failed certain tests very young but the CIA chose others to groom. They included at least Barrack Obama JR as part of CIA plans to insert children "born" in other countries like Kenya though actually born in CIA labs and orphanages later planted around the world.

My father gave me every possible bit of opportunity but as an immature drug addict loser he could not take it anymore.

I assert that JFK did not like how the Donegan's were treated as I flunked tests and Obama Jr passed them, ariving at 2 year old.

DOROTHY, "AN AMORAL AND DANGEROUS WOMAN": THE MURDER OF ... Aa

Early 1954: Dorothy and St. John, Washington, D.C.

Tokyo, 1954

I was born in March of 1954 and remained nameless for several weeks. My earliest recollections of life

Dorothy Hunt holding St John Hunt, E. Howard Hunt child

I've (St. John Hunt) done some research on my fathers CIA activities in Japan and found very little.

I (St. John Hunt) understand from conversations with him (E. Howard Hunt later a Hobo with Chauncey Marvin Holt and Charles Harrelson) that he was in Japan to facilitate the U-2 Spy plane missions at the Atsugi Air base.

Coincidentally this was the same location where Lee Harvey

Oswald was serving as a radar operator. This little known fact is one of many reasons that conspiracy investigators have so many leads to investigate.

Is the fact that Hunt and Oswald were in Japan and Atsugi at the same time a coincidence? Certainly Oswald was no dummy as the press has for years tried to make us believe. A man with the level of security clearance needed to work as a radar operator monitoring the U-2 top secret flights is a man with intelligence. In addition, he was studying Russian as part of the false defector program. Oswald's army buddies recall that he spent hours reading his Russian language text aloud, much to the annoyance of everyone.

We know from Chauncey Holt photos Lee Harvey Oswald also at Dealy Plaza along with the Hobos and Lansdale and Bush was working with Holt, Harrelson, and Hunt who confessed to the assassination. Jim Donegan was there in Japan as well and Lee Harvey Oswald last attempted phone call was to North Carolina and follwing his arrest he was saying "Nazis" (according to Jim Garrison on a surviving tape 5 of his prosecution team work) were in North Carolina per US Army intelligence. Glorian Gainey Hidden Identity per me and Jen Moore OSS CIA history]]

If Hunt went to Atsugi, it's probable that he may have evaluated Oswald for future use. How much did Dorothy know of Howard's activities? She was his right hand, his strength, and as she told me later, his sounding board.

In 1952 JFK and Jackie will marry, James and Glorian Donegan will marry, E. Howard Hunt and Dorothy Hunt will marry, I think after living with Prouty and others at the CIA operation in Japan were they were all stationed.

E. Howard Hunt became the OPC Station Chief in Mexico City in 1950, and recruited and supervised William F. Buckley Jr., who worked under Hunt in his OPC Station in Mexico during the period 1951–1952. Buckley and Hunt remained lifelong friends, and Buckley became godfather to Hunt's first three children. -Wikipedia

The Office of Policy Coordination (OPC) was the covert operation wing of the United States Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). Created as a department of the CIA in 1948, it actually operated independently until October 1950. OPC existed until 1 August 1952, when it was merged with the Office of Special Operations (OSO run by Prouty along with General Edward Lansdale) to form the Directorate of Plans (DDP).

Chapter 9 of book Dorothy: Picture Early 1954: Dorothy and St. John, Washington, D.C. Tokyo, 1954. I (St. John Hunt) was born in March of 1954 and remained nameless for several weeks. My earliest recollections of life are from Japan. I was the first born son and treated as a little god.

I assert the Donegan Oswald RECON story is at Atsugi RECON base my father flew out of during the Korean War 1952 and as pursuit pilot chasing bogies from the polar route of RUSSIA.

Col Prouty was close to Buckley and ghost wrote political articles for him.

L. Fletcher Prouty retrieved from Wikipedia and copied or modified to here

L. Fletcher Prouty's U.S. Army portrait.

Prouty served in the predecessor of the Defense Intelligence Agency sitting in the office with Lansdale, went on to create the Defense Intelligence Agency at Robert McNamara's request. in the 1952 range of time E. Howard Hunt, James Donegan (my father) and Prouty were stationed in Japan as a CIA operation with the USAF formly the US Army Air Force.

Post WII service

After the war, Prouty accepted an assignment from the U.S. Army in September 1945 to inaugurate the ROTC program at Yale University, where he also taught during each scholastic year from 1946 to 1948. This timeline intersects with the years that George Bush and William F. Buckley, Jr. also spent at Yale. Prouty fondly recalled Buckley at that time in his role as editor of the Yale Daily News, and Prouty later told an interviewer in 1989 that he had written for Buckley on several occasions.

In 1950 he transferred to Colorado Springs to build Air Defense Command. From 1952 to 1954 he was assigned to Korean War duties in Japan, where he served as Military Manager for Tokyo International Airport (Haneda) during the post-war U.S. occupation.

In 1955 he was assigned to the coordination of operations between the fledgling U.S. Air Force and the CIA. As a result of a CIA commendation for this work he was awarded the Legion of Merit by the U.S. Air Force, promoted to colonel, and assigned to the Office of the Secretary of Defense.[citation needed]

Following the creation of the Defense Intelligence Agency and termination of the OSO [predecessor to the DIA Prouty was assigned to create the Defense Intelligence Agency] by Secretary Robert McNamara, Prouty was transferred to the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and charged with the creation a similar organization (that being the Defense Intelligence Agency on a global scale (that would study world regimes and plan overthrows of potentially problematic nations.)

The Kennedy Administration plan was to create a military run operation that not only paralleled but took over formerly CIA operations. Lansdale though was a CIA flunky tied to General CD Jackson and others of the CIA. Coordination with the CIA would always occur but the DIA was huge in comparison to the CIA and JM Wave with Robert Kennedy in charge "augmented" the formerly independent CIA control of cover operations.

When I did not have authoring software I used an old blog on Wordpress to continue writing.

St John Hunt is the son of E. Howard Hunt and in an alleged confession to St John Hunt E. Howard Hunt makes a partially recorded death bed confession to the assassination of JFK.

That fits most data collected at the time and stories emerging since the assassination, and that also leads into a CIA on the suspect list for other Kennedy family assassinations as need the Kennedy family silenced in matters RFK or others knew about or partially knew about.

Ed Donegan (myself) assert the theories Barrack Obama Jr was planned by the CIA even before he was born and he was for a while as a newborn in the Kennedy Administration White House probably held by Donald Barr and probably Knudson, Barr, JFK, RFK, Ted Ted Kennedy, and others saw Barrack Obama Jr as a newborn.

Most Kennedy's would likely die before they knew what that would mean to later developments in US politics.

I am continuing to write to tell how the Donegan story, me the son of James and Glorian Donegan, could explain and support that theory.

The Organization for European Economic Cooperation Chapter five of the book selectively excerptred here as it fits Wayne Madsen and Ed Donegan Sleeper Agent theory of Obama Jr.)

The headquarters of the Organization for European Economic Co-operation (OEEC) where Dorothy worked was in the Chateau de la Muette in Paris. In 1770 Marie Antoinette took residency there to President Harry Truman had disbanded the OSS when the war ended, having thought that the officers were a little too wild. In fact OSS boss General William Donovan had well earned his nick name "Wild Bill."

Needing to continue with an intelligence gathering capability, there was formed the Office of Policy Coordination. This small office would eventually transform into what is now the CIA. One of OPC's earliest programs was to hold a similar conference in Europe. They knew of plans for the Soviets to hold a second world conference denouncing American Imperialism in April in Paris.

Frank Wisner, OPC's first Director, planned a counter demonstration. He had gathered his own roster of intellectuals, artists and writers, all anti- communists. OPC would need funding for the plan and Wisner knew just where to get it.

Wisner cabled Dorothy's boss Averell Harriman for help.

Harriman diverted 5 million francs from the coffers of the Marshall Plan and made that available to OPC members in Paris to fund the counter demonstration.

Dorothy was on Harriman's secretarial staff and as such was taking notes, preparing cables, and compiling lists of those persons who would take part in this counter demonstration. It was here, in Paris she reunited with Howard Hunt. He worked for Harriman as a speech writer and film producer although it is more than likely Hunt was actually working for both Harriman's OEEC offce and for Wisner's OPC unit.

The double agent would be Hunt's modis operandi in later years when he "retired" from CIA and joined Nixon's covert-ops team. In his book, American Spy, Hunt writes that the relationship between Dorothy and he grew stronger, and by September he realized that he wanted to spend the rest of his life with this "feisty woman."

For her part, Dorothy had started divorce proceedings in Paris to end her disastrous marriage to the Marquis. By all accounts this seems to have been a love at first sight fairytale. I say "seems" to have been. In researching this book I came across this entry in CIA files declassified under the Freedom of Information Act. What follows is the entry:

Dorothy Wetzel worked for the State Department in Bern, Switzerland, between July 1944 and January 1946. From April 1946 to May 1947, DOROTHY HUNT worked for the Treasury Department, Shanghai, China. She joined Economic Cooperation Administration in April 1948. She married HOWARD HUNT on September 7, 1949.

The CIA reported that "DOROTHY LOUISE HUNT [OS 355,750] was investigated for Agency employment in 1948. Her former husband [Goutierel was described as an habitual drunkard and not inclined to remain in any one place for any length of time. She did not enter on duty, having accepted a position with the Economic Cooperation Administration in Paris. Our Paris sources later reported that Subject's wife was formerly his mistress and was openly flouted as such for several months.

She was then described as an amoral and dangerous individual who underhandedly attacked those persons who incurred her enmity." [Emphasis added.]

The "subject" was E. Howard Hunt and these entries came from his file. It claims that Dorothy was Hunt's mistress and he openly flaunted her as such! Openly flaunted her? I would normally consider this a disparaging remark if I felt it were true. However knowing that Dorothy had applied for a CIA (OPC) position and "did not enter on duty" leads me to suspect that Dorothy may have been keeping tabs on Harriman, Hunt et al. for OPC under the protective cover of Harriman's Offce of Economic Cooperation unit.

Biography of Thornley by Spartacus Educational - Kerry Wendell Thornley met Lee Harvey Oswald while in the United States Marines in 1959. Later that year Thornley was transferred to Atsugi in Japan.

In 1962 Thornley wrote a novel called The Idle Warriors about a disgruntled marine who defects to the Soviet Union. The book was based on Thornley’s knowledge of Oswald. The following year Thornley moved to New Orleans where it was claimed he associated with Guy Banister, David Ferrie and Clay Shaw. Oswald was also living in the city at that time but Thornley insisted that the two men never met during this period. The two men were also both in Mexico City in September 1963. - end biography

It continues to be my Edward Paul Donegan's assertion that the airbase in Japan my father flew reconnaissance out of during the Korean War in the F-86 and where Francis Gary Powers flew the U2 out of is another intersection of air force history that Lee Harvey Oswald, James Donegan, GLorian Donegan, Col Prouty, and Howard Hughes and RKO and Mahue all intersect at, cold war propaganda glory about the Air Force and the FBI in the cold war and defectors.

The FBI were aware of Thornley's novel and so after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy he was asked to testify before the Warren Commission.

Jim Garrison later claimed that Thornley and Lee Harvey Oswald were involved together in covert CIA operations. He also argued that Thornley had impersonated Oswald between the years 1961 and 1963. In his book On the Trail of the Assassins (1988) Garrison insists that Thornley was friends with another possible conspirator, Johnny Roselli.

Why should we believe her or Col. Prouty and the photographic and video evidence or now the so many others that show a cove-up of the CIA's activities and role in the Kennedy assassination.

James Paul Donegan was flying the F-84 or F-86 along with Francis Gary Powers (U-2) in Anti Iron Curtain recon it appears during the cold war and Lee Harvey Oswald true CIA Patriot may have been working on the history of the defense of England by Radar with P-51 Spitfires (the Spitfire was made as the P-51 in the USA) fought the bombing of Conventry in its finest hour, that part of history my father may also have flown in.

It continues to be my Edward Paul Donegan's assertion that the airbase in Japan my father flew reconnaissance out of during the Korean War in the F-86 and where Francis Gary Powers flew the U2 out of is another intersection of air force history that Lee Harvey Oswald, James Donegan, GLorian Donegan, Col Prouty, and Howard Hughes and RKO and Mahue all intersect at, cold war propaganda glory about the Air Force and the FBI in the cold war and defectors.

At two minutes in to a recording of the real Jim Garrison and his team it is ignored that Oswald coming from California (and late Mexican border) found Nazis. Later in the tape at this mark Garrison and his team note that building Oswald is working out of seems to be a CIA operation [confimed by Chauncey Marvin Holt sharing is photos of himself, Belcher, Reynlods, and Leroy Young], and also btw Masonic Temple, and Office of Naval Intelligence and FBI operation. https://www.youtube.com/watch?t=1160&v=6dUjFQCQczk&feature=youtu.be

At 32 minutes Garrison notes suspiciously an English lord he calls Harold Lord Barney or something like that is speaking and Dallas AND General Edwin Walker had come to Dallas to hear the speech, and even more suspiciously General Walker, who Oswald is said to try have killed (but the evidence seems faked) hides his relationship and hotel stay in Dallas as when seeing the English Lord.

After graduating with a bachelor's degree from Milligan College in Tennessee in June 1950, Powers enlisted in the United States Air Force in October. He was commissioned as a second lieutenant in December 1952 after completing his advanced training with USAF Pilot Training Class 52-H at Williams Air Force Base, Arizona. Powers was then assigned to the 468th Strategic Fighter Squadron at Turner Air Force Base, Georgia, as a Republic F-84 Thunderjet pilot likely assigned to Atsugi with Prouty, Donegan, E. Howard

After the creation of the United States Air Force by the National Security Act of 1947, the Pursuit designation was replaced with Fighter, and the P-84 became the F-84.

F-84s were assigned to the 27th Fighter Wing, 27th Fighter Escort Wing, 27th Strategic Fighter Wing, 31st Fighter Escort Wing, 127th Fighter Day Wing, 127th Fighter Escort Wing, 127th Strategic Fighter Wing, 407th Strategic Fighter Wing and the 506th Strategic Fighter Wing of the Strategic Air Command from 1947 through 1958.

He married Barbara Gay Moore in Newnan, Georgia, on April 2, 1955.

In January 1956 he was recruited by the CIA. In May 1956 he began U-2 training at Watertown Strip, Nevada. His training was complete by August 1956 and his unit, the Second Weather Observational Squadron (Provisional) or Detachment 10-10, was deployed to Incirlik Air Base, Turkey. By 1960, Powers was already a veteran of many covert aerial reconnaissance missions.[5] Family members believed that he was a NASA weather reconnaissance pilot.

Pilot Francis Gary Powers at the American High Altitude Lockheed U-2 reconnaissance aircraft Powers was discharged from the Air Force in 1956 with the rank of captain. He then joined the CIA's U-2 program at the civilian grade of GS-12. U-2 pilots flew espionage missions at altitudes of 70,000 feet (21 km), supposedly above the reach of Soviet air defenses. The U-2 was equipped with a state-of-the-art camera designed to take high-resolution photos from the stratosphere over hostile countries, including the Soviet Union. U-2 missions systematically photographed military installations and other important sites.

The primary mission of the U-2s was overflying the Soviet Union. Soviet intelligence had been aware of encroaching U-2 flights at least since 1958 if not earlier but lacked effective countermeasures until 1960. On May 1, 1960, Powers's U-2A, 56-6693, departed from a military airbase in Peshawar, Pakistan,[14] with support from the U.S. Air Station at Badaber (Peshawar Air Station). This was to be the first attempt "to fly all the way across the Soviet Union ... but it was considered worth the gamble. The planned route would take us deeper into Russia than we had ever gone, while traversing important targets never before photographed."[

The Pain The Love and The Broken Hopes of James Paul Donegan

Under pressure they the Donegan's allowed eggs from her to be CIA fertilized watching various outcomes of various sperm fertilized matched IVFs and I had failed certain tests very young but the CIA chose others to groom. They included at least Barrack Obama JR as part of CIA plans to insert children "born" in other countries like Kenya though actually born in CIA labs and orphanages later planted around the world.

My father gave me every possible bit of opportunity but as an immature drug addict loser he could not take it anymore.

I assert that JFK did not like how the Donegan's were treated as I flunked tests and Obama Jr passed them, ariving at 2 year old.

I used to fight with my father that my brother Tom was a dangerous conspirator from with inside the family but Jim stuck by him, I think in part because Tom knew the whole story while I did not and in part because Tom was a hope of him to have a child succeed.

Very early in life I showed emotonal and other problems my parents could not understand. My father had very high IQ he told me from military testing, he loved Glorian from such shining conversations witih her, and he said he could not tell me about my own IQ and testsing because it would just really go to my head but he really thought I had real potential. All during me life, teens, 20s, 30s, 40s, he kept saying I might have just been a late bloomer and kept hoping.

My belief is this was an onion of sorts, he may have been the crushed hopes of JFK who upon the work of Joshpen Kennedy SR geting Norma Jean and GLorian Gainey secret identities, that these were loyal family lines, the JFK and James Donegan had an Irish sympatico in Boston, the Angleon Bush Dulles Wild

In 1931 the Statute of Westminster recognized them as independent countries "within the British Empire," referring to the "British Commonwealth of Nations," and from 1949, the Commonwealth of Nations. The British Empire, therefore, developed into the Commonwealth in the mid-20th century, as former British dependencies obtained sovereignty but retained ties to the United Kingdom.

The El Mirador Hotel became the Torney General Hospital during World War II. This 1943 photo shows the convalescent gardens. At the beginning of the American involvement in World War II, the Army began to look for locations for hospitals that would serve the wounded soldiers returning from the Pacific Theater. They purchased the elegant El Mirador Hotel in Palm Springs for $420,000. In November 1945, Torney General Hospital was closed and the Federal Works Administration sold the site. (A new hospital is beside the site.

El Mirador (which translates as "the lookout", "the viewpoint", or "the belvedere") is a large pre-Columbian Middle and Late Preclassic (1000 BC – 250 AD) Maya settlement, located in the north of the modern department of El Petén, Guatemala. It is part of the Mirador-Calakmul Karst Basin of northern Guatemala.

National Hotel Enterprises purchased the rundown property in 1951 for $5 million. The owners were a group of 24 investors including land developer Ray Ryan (working for the CIA). Paul R. Williams was hired to do a complete renovation modernizing the hotel while also restoring its former elegance. The brand new El Mirador Hotel, now painted pink, opened on Dec. 13, 1952, to great fanfare with celebrities and local dignitaries in attendance. Ray Ryan eventually bought out the other investors.

In the late 1960s, Ray Ryan sold the hotel to Mr. and Mrs. John Conte and the hotel became a part of the Hilton family of hotels. Conte launched KMIR-TV, a NBC affiliated station, from the grounds of the El Mirador Hilton Hotel.

The hotel stayed open until 1972, when Desert Hospital, located adjacent to the hotel, purchased the entire property and transformed the once-stylish hotel into a modern hospital. In 1989, just hours after the hospital's board of directors voted to reinforce the fragile El Mirador bell tower and reconstruct its one remaining building, a fire destroyed them both. The hospital moved quickly to rebuild the tower from the original plans, and it reopened in 1991.

Today the El Mirador bell tower lives on as a Palm Springs landmark and proudly stands at the entrance to the Desert Regional Medical Center campus.

Ed Donegan asserts the "Eastern Establishment" (as E. The Inslaw/Promise case of software used by espionage agencies world-wide and a scandal surrounding is connected by a cobweb mafia and dirty banking, dirty arms deals, dirty tactics in dirty wars in Latin American and elsewhere, and some of that dirt remains in the US political figures of the Kennedy assassination and their descendant as the 21st Century was planned for by the CIA with the British especially in the post WWII planning of the Marshall Plan, MKULTRA, Project Iceberg, Paperclip, and overthrows tied to and using US and international mafia.

Bringing this cobweb and its operators out in the light so they can face accountability and be cleared from US offices once and for all is among the goals of this book, part of its roadmap.

Inslaw was a small software company whose software PROMIS was allegedly stolen by the Dept. of Justice. Tactics utilized by the Dept. of Justice during this procurement eventually forced Inslaw into bankruptcy. The lawsuits and ensuing investigations resulted in many deaths as itemized in the following listing:

1. Larry Guerin - Was killed in Feb. 1987 while investigating the Inslaw case.

2. Alan Standorf - Electronic Intelligence employee for the National Security Agency was a source of information to Danny Casalaro who was investigating Inslaw and BCCI. His body was found in the backseat of his car at Wash. National Airport on Jan 31, 1991.

3. Dennis Eisman - Attorney involved in the Inslaw case. Found shot to death on April 5, 1991.

The shooting death of Dennis Eisman APRIL 5, 1991 (an attorney for Michael Riconosciuto, who was a material witness in the House Investigation 102-857): DENNIS EISMAN - An attorney with information on INSLAW. Eisman was found shot to death on APRIL 5, 1991 According to the same TC Technical Consultant article, “In April, a Philadelphia attorney named Dennis Eisman was found dead, killed by a single bullet in his chest. According to a former federal official who worked with Eisman, the attorney was found dead in the parking lot where he had been due to meet with a woman who had crucial evidence to share substantiating Riconosciuto’s claims [regarding Inslaw].” He and his former law partner, Bernard L. Segal, had ALSO represented Green Beret Army surgeon Jeffrey McDonald, who was accused in 1970 of brutally murdering his pregnant wife and two young daughters at Fort Bragg, N.C. Mr. Eisman and Mr. Segal represented McDonald during Army hearings that resulted in the dismissal of military charges, Mr. Segal said. MacDonald was convicted in U.S. District Court of the murders in 1980 and is serving three life prison terms.

4. Danny Casalaro - Free lance reporter and writer who was investigating Inslaw, BCCI and the October Surprise. Found dead in his bathtub in his Sheraton Hotel room in Martinsburg, Virginia on Aug 10, 1991. His wrists were slashed 10 times and the documentation on the cases he was working on was missing.

2. Alan Standorf - Electronic Intelligence employee for the National Security Agency was a source of information to Danny Casalaro who was investigating Inslaw and BCCI. His body was found in the backseat of his car at Wash. National Airport on Jan 31, 1991.

5. Ian Spiro - Held supporting documentation for grand jury proceedings on the Inslaw case. His wife and 3 children were found murdered on Nov 1, 1992 in their home with gunshot wounds to the head. Ian's body was found several days later in a parked car on the Borego Desert. Death was determined to be ingestion of cyanide. FBI report indicated that Ian had murdered his family and committed suicide.

6. John Crawford - Attorney with information on Inslaw. Died from a heart attack in Tacoma in April 1993.

7. Paul Wilcher - Investigator and attorney was found dead in Wash. DC on July 23, 1993. Shortly before his death he had sent a 105 page letter to Atty. General Janet Reno releasing information on CIA secret operations.

The Roadmap for this book is to exposit (without many detailed in support) the Elipse of British American History; in fact Several Elipsis, overlays of f1 that will remain Britain through this book and f2 that will remain the USA throughout this book.

It is foreseeable other spaces other than the entities of Britain and the USA will be needed and let stand for the focal point of Latin America and other non-aligned nations, and f4 stand for the Eastern Bloack following WWII under the Marshall Plan.

The theory of the Elipse is that as though a string were tied to each focal point as endpoints of the string one could trap the string with a fingertip and move it around. From f1 to across f2 the string would not extend to far beyond f2 because it would have to double back to stay connected to f2.

if there were a single local point running the string around its focul point would produce a circle. With two focal points depending on the distance of the focal points from each other and that relative to the string a shape will occur that can be a cross cut of cone, very sharp distortion of a circle nearly a flat line or with a very long string a near perfect circle.

If we teak post revolutionary America and the The Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union (the country that won independence from England and existed from 1776 to 1789 when the United States was formed during a Constitutional Congress then f1 and f2 were very far apart.

The Crown(England's) was a Monarchy. Rebelling against that the Articles of Confederation of Perpetual Union had no executive branch for they feared it as an oppressive power.

In this case the string between f1 and f2 was about the distance between f1 and f2.

In 1789 the United States Government was formed and included an Executive Branch that was constrained in that it had no money unless allocated to it, no laws unless co-written into law with the Congress to operate under, and no ability to draft armies or go to war, or regulate the military forces, these together the War Powers.

This new form of government was less diametrically opposed to, polarized from England. Over time the Soveriengs of the two nations and the Espionage agencies in working in the English language together would and family members split across the two nations, family histories composed of leaders with activities and business in England and the USA and once having been on country on a friendly contractual charter to farm in North America were now far less distinct and the string was in effect longer and England f1 could really reach a little across f2 the USA and include us (especially in the 1920s) in activities in other places in the world and even more so in the World War II and the Cold War as British systems in Espionage such as subversion and overthrow were conducted in partnership with the line of British techniques originating from f1 crossing f2 and reaching into Latin America reporting back to, doubling back to, f2 with reports to those like Vice President Richard Nixon who would authorize and track these British like plans under NSC 5412.

It is also important to remember these times the League of Nations was the scientific center pre-WWII and the USA as it gained in prominence was truly in language with many Kingdoms of Europe.

This was important to many areas of industry including atomic research.

The affect of this in the 1960's was to pit the Bush family, Nixon, and GOP Rockefeller Republicans and England against the children of Joseph Kennedy Sr who had been working with the British and the hope was JFK would adapt to the British and Oil business plan for the world, Cuba, and Latin America.

That did not happen and the result was the assassination of JFK with LBJ of Texas (his Vice President) aligned with if not participating in the assassination.

During this there is another aspect to the Special Relationship with England. Part of the Regime Change plans for Latin America and Elsewhere was that undercover families in the USA secretly tied to British families would have a gene in common with the Windsors, that gene carried in about 50 percent of offspring.

Marilyn Monroe was on such person in the USA located here by Joseph Kennedy Sr. Collette MacDonand had family ties into that history as well.

Ted Gunderon worked these cases as he worked other locations the CIA was in child development research activities in regulated facilities abusing children in hidden labs, or disguised as Satanist who placed children in provocatively abusive conditions and studied their reactions, while denying being Government scientists, and Franklin Nebrasska Ted Gunderson worked on was one of those locations.

Finally James Paul Donegan and Glorian Donegan (my parents) were part of this history in large part from Dorchester Boston and Marshfield Boston area and military tied to Col Fletcher Prouty and the fellow Roman Catholic Irish immigrant Kennedy family.

Jen Moore shoes how these histories under Dulles ties into those secret families that were part of CIA planning for the future, having candidates ready, and these include many US political figures now who are covering their trails with a WETDIVISION including hits on children to try and cover up the history of the Special Relationship and Kennedy Assassination.

What Jen Moore Got in the Way of And Why She Was Moved Out of The Way

The Anwan Spy Ring and much of the Ukrainian spy activities run by the CIA and State Department of the OSS and CIA History depends on gap exploitation. IF you have (and the CIA and others do) have the formeonst in technologhy and klout around with world you can become a country by youself, like standard Oil is. That power can traffick and serll anytyhinh anywhere and assasinte as needed. The ability to use commodities, drugs, gun, and human traffickingh make a worl large scale sub economyh the entire ecosystem lives under. Planes fly two ways often running contrand in complete symetery., gums or drugs out or cash in or the othe way around. Anything is trafficked in Midnight Climax and human trafficking including children and blackmail rings for baby factories are even bigger black markets than securities fraud still easier to track even with bitcoin helping cash transactions. How and why the does this and what the traffic in at commodities at the table are part of the Deep State.

I myself knew half of this through twenety years as the identity theft of me that undergoes the blackmail often by using my identity gives me information on what my dopple is doing in property flips and mortgage fraud, cocaine dealing, child porn, and other transactions often outside of the United States.

Desperadoes and D1 and D2

For an Ellipse now think of Desperadoes like William Burns, Mueller III, the Bush family, Wray, or others tied to the Kennedy assassination.

Let d1 be the focal point in time-space of guilt in the assassination and rising to power under it replacing the deceased. Let d2 be the focal point of their capture, forcible interrogation, and death sentences.

Let the L the length of the string be the limits to which they will go to escape guilt and avoid d2 and circumnavigate the location passing it by, and let the the top of the pictograph be conduct under the law and the space under the bifurcator of d1 d2 be subverting the law.

No Limits No Repercussions and not getting caught is the answer the Cabal has.

The Coup of '63, Part 1 retrieved from https://wikispooks.com/wiki/Document:The_Coup_of_%2763,_Part_1#The_Quickening_of_the_Cabal and copied or modified to here

The Quickening of the Cabal

The criminals who took over the government had an incredible fear of being exposed. If exposed, they would be hung for treason. Fear of exposure bound the network behind the Coup of ’63 into an incredibly powerful political force which has dominated the American federal political system for the last 50 years.

The assassination continues to be an important event that every American should take the time to understand because the powerful forces that seized control of our government 50 years ago have not let go. As I studied the Coup of ’63, I began to perceive this Cabal behind JFK’s assassination, and I as I have studied their actions, I have understood their desperate need to control the American political system. If the Cabal were ever to lose control of the American political system, they risk exposure for a litany of crimes which continue to this present day.

6 years ago, I [Mark Gorton] started studying the JFK assassination out of curiosity. But as I came to understand the Coup of ’63, and I was able to perceive the Cabal behind the Coup as an incredible political force, I began to study a series of events. Many of these events were also “conspiracies” dismissed at crazy by the mainstream media, and I saw that these conspiracies were the work of this same network of people. And what I have been doing for the last several years has been tracking the work of this evolving cabal through time.

In order to escape justice for their heinous crimes, the Cabal needed to build a number of capabilities for themselves. The Cabal needed to be able to kill with impunity anyone who threatened to expose them. They needed to be able to control the press, and they need to control the presidency, federal law enforcement agencies, and the intelligence community. Operating under the secret cover of “national security” from within intelligence agencies (CIA, ONI, military intelligence, etc.), the Cabal has able to systematically destroy threats to itself. With control of the FBI, justice department, DEA, ATF, etc., the Cabal has been able to insure that no serious investigation its crimes would take place. And massive, highly successful programs to control the press, like the CIA’s Operation Mockingbird, have insured that the mainstream media would systematically ignore and dismiss all claims of high level government corruption.

With the control of law enforcement, intelligence agencies and the press, the Cabal built itself the perfect machine for committing crimes and getting away with them. And with these capabilities, the Cabal has run amok for the last 50 years. …

The Assassination of RFK

The RFK assassination gives a good idea of the capability of this system. Bobby Kennedy knew that his brother had been killed by a conspiracy. He had a vague sense of the outlines of this conspiracy, but trapped within the Johnson administration, he lacked the power to determine the truth for sure. Bobby's plan was to wait until he could attain the presidency, and then with the full power of the presidency, he would relentlessly hunt his brother's killers and avenge JFK's death.

The Cabal could not allow RFK to become president, and from the moment they seized power, they worked relentlessly to build the mechanism to let them kill Bobby Kennedy and cover up the truth behind his killing. The Cabal acquired a variety of mechanisms to kill their enemies. One such mechanism was to use Special Forces operatives from the US Military who had been trained to obey orders unquestioningly, and once told that someone was an enemy of the state, they would ignorantly and dutifully dispatch this person. Since WWII, the mafia and the CIA had developed a close and mutually supportive relationship, in many cases, mob hit men could be deployed on behalf of their intelligence and political masters. Within the CIA and other intelligence organizations were cold blooded hit men who knew well that they were part of a criminal network embedded within the government. In addition, many alliances existed between international intelligence agencies. Assassination capabilities were often traded between these agencies. In cases of a high profile killing where a patsy was needed, brainwashed killers from the CIA's MKUltra program could be deployed. Since the early 1950's, the CIA's MKUltra program had been using drugs, hypnosis, and a combination of other techniques to produce robot assassins.

Not long after Bobby Kennedy declared his candidacy for president, an assassination team stalked and killed Kennedy at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles. This assassination team was composed of the primary shooter, Thane Eugene Cesar (dressed as a security guard), MKUltra subject Sirhan Sirhan (who discharged his gun wildly), and a network of handlers and other helpers.

In case the lone nut cover of Sirhan Sirhan did not hold, the RFK killing was designed to be blamed on first the Palestinians, and then a combination of the Russians and Aristotle Onassis. Onassis hated Bobby Kennedy and wanted him out of the way so he could marry Jackie Kennedy. Onassis was brought into the plot by intelligence operatives, and he did fund some of the assassination plot. Although Onassis was involved in the plot to kill RFK, the hierarchy behind the assassination was headed by LBJ. Just as with the killing of JFK, the cover up of RFK's assassination was a larger operation than the killing itself. During the early 1960's, the CIA engaged in joint training exercises with local police departments across the country. Nominally, the training was intended to improve federal/local cooperation on intelligence matters. In reality, these exercises provided a mechanism for the CIA to control local police investigations across the country.

Manuel Pena, the LAPD officer with control of the RFK assassination, had previously worked doing special ops for the CIA. He had worked closely with David Morales, a CIA hit man who had a significant operational role in the JFK assassination. Beyond developing assassination and cover up capabilities, the five years between the Coup of ’63 and RFK’s killing had allowed the Cabal to consolidate their control of the press. CIA agents were inserted as reporters and editors at all of the major media outlets in the country. The meme that "conspiracy theorists" were kooks was developed within the CIA and deployed with great effectiveness. During the 1960’s, the overwhelming mass of news information reaching the eyes and ears of Americans came from 15 organizations: NBC, ABC, CBS, AP, UPI, Time-Life, McGraw Hill, Newsweek, U.S. News & World Report, NY Times, Washington Post, Metromedia, Westinghouse, Capital Cities, the North American Newspaper Alliance, and the Saturday Evening Post. The Cabal was successful in co-opting the top management at each of these organizations and enlisting them into active involvement in the cover-up of the Coup of ’63.

During the period 1964-68, internal research teams in several of these organizations reached the conclusion that the Kennedy Assassination had been a result of a conspiracy. In each and every case, management at the highest editorial and corporate level took actions to overrule, suppress, lock up, edit or otherwise alter these internal findings to back up the conclusions of the Warren Commission. Project Mockingbird was a CIA program to control the US press. The exact size of Project Mockingbird remains classified, but bits of information have slipped out over time that allow for budgetary estimates to be computed. In 1978, the CIA propaganda budget was estimated to be $265 million and involved 2,000 personnel making it larger than the combined budgets of Reuters, the Associated Press and United Press International. In 1977, Carl Bernstein reported that the CIA had over 400 reporters and editors at major US media outlets on its payroll. Decedents of this program continue up until the present day.

The Cabal behind the Coup of ‘63’s Ongoing Battle to Control the Presidency Controlling the presidency was a key for the Cabal members behind the Coup of '63. With Bobby Kennedy out of the way, the Cabal worked to steer the 1968 election to Richard Nixon by using agent provocateurs to instigate riots in Chicago at the 1968 democratic convention.

In addition, the anti-war, reform political coalition that was beginning to coalesce around [[Martin Luther King]] was neutralized by the state sponsored killing of MLK. Dr. King's assassination was organized by J. Edgar Hoover and the FBI, military intelligence, and elements of the Memphis Police Department. New Orleans mafia kingpin Carlos Marcello, who played a meaningful role in JFK's assassination, played a significant role in the Martin Luther King's killing.

The criminals who took over the government had an incredible fear of being exposed. If exposed, they would be hung for treason. Fear of exposure bound the network behind the Coup of '63 into an incredibly powerful political force which has dominated the American federal political system for the last 50 years. With the control of law enforcement, intelligence agencies and the press, the Cabal built itself the perfect machine for committing crimes and getting away with them. And with these capabilities, the Cabal has run amok for the last 50 years.

JFK was aware of these forces, and he chose to fight against them. JFK and his brother RFK took on a host of entrenched corrupt interests: the CIA, big business, the mafia, and the corrupt Texas interests surrounding LBJ. A huge swath of the American power structure was at risk of being displaced and even ending up in jail by the crusades of the Kennedy brothers. LBJ was incredibly corrupt. He even had his own personal hit man, Mac Wallace, who had been killing people for a decade to keep LBJ's crimes from being exposed. With RFK as attorney general, J Edgar Hoover of the FBI could no longer protect the mob.

Top mafia chieftains including Carlos Marcello and Salvatore Trafficante risked trading their sweet mafia kingpin lifestyle for a life behind bars due to RFK's crusade against the mafia. The CIA was out of control, and JFK had vowed to smash the CIA to 1000 pieces.

"The Enterprise was a massive 5000 person large hierarchical criminal organization with George H. W. Bush as its CEO. Embedded within the national security infrastructure and protected from prosecution by corrupted enforcement agencies like the SEC, FBI, DEA, ATF, etc., The Enterprise embarked on a massive criminal romp."

Signal-to-noise ratio (SNR or S/N) is a measure used in science and engineering that compares the level of a desired signal to the level of background noise. SNR is defined as the ratio of signal power to noise power, often expressed in decibels. A ratio higher than 1:1 (greater than 0 dB) indicates more signal than noise. -

SNR also determines the maximum possible amount of data that can be transmitted reliably over a given channel, which depends on its bandwidth and SNR. This relationship is described by the Shannon–Hartley theorem, which is a fundamental law of information theory.

Central to this was finding or creating right wing support in Latin American or other nations and hacking them secretly or even funding groups hostile to the west secretly to attack socialist or communist nations hoping in the vacuum created right wingers can seize power.

During the Second World War he served as a army tank commander. He later joined the United States Air Force (USAAF) and in 1943 became the personal pilot of General Omar Bradley. Later that year he flew Chiang Kai-shek to the Tehran Conference.

Prouty also became involved in work for the Office of Strategic Services (OSS). In 1945 he served on Okinawa and was involved in transporting the bodyguard of General Douglas MacArthur to Tokyo.

In 1946 Prouty was assigned by the U.S. Army to Yale University.

In 1950 he established Air Defense Command and during the Korean War was based in Japan where he was Military Manager for Tokyo International Airport.

During this time (the Korean War) James Donegan was flying f-86 Saber planes (I saw a photo of my father next to one with his flight suit on) during RECON over Korea and he told me stories about those RECON flights over Korea. Undersecretary of Defense Lovett, Richard Bissle Jr., and others were overseeign the reoncosance fights watching for intrusions in the airspace of Japan or Korea by the Russians, polar or land routes, and Russian or Chinese troops movenemts including into Korea.

In 1955 Prouty was assigned to coordinate operations between the USAAF and the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). For the next nine years he worked for the Pentagon. He was Briefing Officer for the Secretary of Defense (1960-61), Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Chief of Special Operations (1962-63).

Colonel Prouty retired from the United States Air Force (USAAF) in 1964 and was awarded the Joint Chiefs of Staff Commendation Medal. He later worked for the General Aircraft Corporation (1964-65) and First National Bank (1965-68). He was also a senior director of a government and military marketing organization.

In 1973 Prouty published his book The Secret Team. In this controversial work Prouty claimed that the CIA had worked on behalf of the interests of a "high cabal" of industrialists and bankers. Prouty thought that the Executive Action programme had not only been used against foreign leaders. He also claimed that the CIA was involved in the killing of President John F. Kennedy. Prouty even named Edward Lansdale as the leader of the operation. He claimed he was in Dallas on the day of the assassination: "He was there like the orchestra leader, coordinating these things."

Jen Moore

Since her death, a recording has surfaced of Moore, often referred to as “Task Force” as a nickname, being interviewed by radio and YouTube journalist Farmer Jones. The recording was made just a month before she was found by employees at the Country Inn & Suites by Radisson in Washington, D.C. East-in Capitol Heights, Maryland. Police have ruled out suicide and on Tuesday, True Pundit reported Moore as having died from an apparent seizure. Autopsy results are still not available and the investigation is ongoing. Edward Paul Donegan (myself) have reviewed all of her Farmer Jones, YouTube, and bitchute postings and she was telling the illegally classified story of the Donegan family, my own and OSS CIA Vatican history of the Kennedy assassination. She states so directly using the name Kennedy and how my family (not named directly) relates to it but she did show a picture of where I and my mother lived as telling that story.

SAN ANDREAS - The shooting deaths of Phillip Marshall and his children two months ago was not a hit job, according to a six-page media release issued Friday by the Calaveras County Sheriff's Office.

From the beginning, investigators here have said that the deaths of Alex Marshall, 17, Macaila Marshall, 14, and Phillip Marshall, 54, were a murder-suicide. The three bodies were found in their Forest Meadows home Feb. 2 when friends of Alex and Macaila went to their home to find out why they had not had a text message or phone call from the two in several days.

Friday's press release came after the completion of a toxicology report. That report confirms talk circulating in Calaveras County for weeks that Alex and Macaila had medication in their bloodstreams when they died.

The Coefficients was a monthly dining club founded in 1902 by the Fabian campaigners Sidney and Beatrice Webb as a forum for British socialist reformers and imperialists of the Edwardian era.[1] The name of the dining club was a reflection of the group's focus on "efficiency".[2]

In 1903, Alfred Milner (the head of the UK Deep state) spoke of his vision for the future at one of its meetings:

> “We must have an aristocracy - not of privilege, but of understanding and purpose - or mankind will fail. The solution does not lie in direct confrontation. We can defeat democracy because we understand the workings of the human mind, the mental hinterlands hidden behind the persona. I see human progress, not as the spontaneous product of crowds of raw minds swayed by elementary needs, but as a natural but elaborate result of intricate human interdependencies.”
> Alfred Milner (1903) [3]

British Empire

The Webbs came up with the idea of the dinner club as a forum for "serious discussions and to formulate or propose political policy", but shortly after its founding the members "abandoned immediate political goals" but continued to meet and discuss issues of interest. Haldane hosted the first dinner at his home in December 1902.[2]

Bertrand Russell wrote"...in 1902, I became a member of a small dining club called the Coefficients, got up by Sidney Webb for the purpose of considering political questions from a more or less Imperialist point of view. It was in this club that I first became acquainted with H. G. Wells, of whom I had never heard until then. His point of view was more sympathetic to me than that of any member. Most of the members, in fact, shocked me profoundly. I remember Amery's eyes gleaming with blood-lust at the thought of a war with America, in which, as he said with exultation, we should have to arm the whole adult male population. One evening Sir Edward Grey (not then in office) made a speech advocating the policy of Entente, which had not yet been adopted by the Government. I stated my objections to the policy very forcibly, and pointed out the likelyhood of its leading to war, but no one agreed with me, so I resigned from the Club. It will be seen that I began my opposition to the first war at the earliest possible moment."[4]

The group was further divided over the issue of Tariff Reform following Joseph Chamberlain's resignation as Secretary of State for the Colonies and the increasing dominance of the pro-Unionist membership, which favoured Chamberlain and his tariff reform policies, contributed to the club's dissolution in 1909.[5] Amery would invite those Coefficients supporting reform to form a new club called "The Compatriots".[6]

The review offered so far of George Bush's activities during the late 1950's and early 1960's is almost certainly incomplete in very important respects. There is good reason to believe that Bush was engaged in something more than just the oil business during those years. Starting about the time of the Bay of Pigs invasion in the spring of 1961, we have the first hints that Bush, in addition to working for Zapata Offshore, may also have been a participant in certain covert operations of the US intelligence community.

Such participation would certainly be coherent with George's role in the Prescott Bush, Skull and Bones, and Brown Brothers, Harriman networks. During the twentieth century, the Skull and Bones/Harriman circles have always maintained a sizable and often decisive presence inside the intelligence organizations of the State Department, the Treasury Department, the Office of Naval Intelligence, the Office of Strategic Services, and the Central Intelligence Agency. Indeed, the Harriman and related Anglophile financier factions of Wall Street have generally regarded those parts of the state apparatus dealing with intelligence and covert operations as their own very special property, property which had to be kept seeded with control networks in order to be effectively steered from above. For George Bush to interface with the intelligence community while ostensibly engaged in his business career would be coherent with that well-established pattern.

A body of leads has been assembled which suggests that George Bush may have been associated with the CIA at some time before the autumn of 1963. According to Joseph McBride of The Nation, "a source with close connections to the intelligence community confirms that Bush started working for the agency in 1960 or 1961, using his oil business as a cover for clandestine activities." 1 By the time of the Kennedy assassination, we have an official FBI document which refers to "Mr. George Bush of the Central Intelligence Agency," and despite official disclaimers there is every reason to think that this is indeed the man in the White House today. The mystery of George Bush as a possible covert operator hinges on four points, each one of which represents one of the great political and espionage scandals of postwar American history. These four cardinal points are:

1. The abortive Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba, launched on April 16-17, 1961, prepared with the assistance of the CIA's "Miami Station" (also known under the code name JM/WAVE). After the failure of the amphibious landings of Brigade 2506, Miami station, under the leadership of Theodore Shackley, became the focus for Operation Mongoose, a series of covert operations directed against Castro, Cuba, and possibly other targets.

2. The assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on November 22, 1963, and the coverup of those responsible for this crime.

3. The Watergate scandal, beginning with an April, 1971 visit to Miami, Florida by E. Howard Hunt on the tenth anniversary of the Bay of Pigs invasion to recruit operatives for the White House Special Investigations Unit (the "Plumbers" and later Watergate burglars) from among Cuban-American Bay of Pigs veterans.

4. The Iran-contra affair, which became a public scandal during October-November 1986, several of whose central figures, such as Felix Rodriguez, were also veterans of the Bay of Pigs.

George Bush's role in both Watergate and the October surprise/Iran-contra complex will be treated in detail at later points in this book. Right now it is important to see that thirty years of covert operations, in many respects, form a single continuous whole. This is especially true in regard to the dramatis personae. Georgie Anne Geyer points to the obvious in a recent book: "...an entire new Cuban cadre now emerged from the Bay of Pigs. The names Howard Hunt, Bernard Barker, Rolando Martinez, Felix Rodriguez and Eugenio Martinez would, in the next quarter century, pop up, often decisively, over and over again in the most dangerous American foreign policy crises. There were Cubans flying missions for the CIA in the Congo and even for the Portuguese in Africa; Cubans were the burglars of Watergate; Cubans played key roles in Nicaragua, in Irangate, in the American move into the Persian Gulf." 2 Felix Rodriguez tells us that he was infiltrated into Cuba with the other members of the "Grey Team" in conjunction with the Bay of Pigs landings; this is the same man we will find directing the contra supply effort in central American during the 1980's, working under the direct supervision of Don Gregg and George Bush. 3 Theodore Shackley, the JM/WAVE station chief, will later show up in Bush's 1979-80 presidential campaign.

To a very large degree, such covert operations (and the great political scandals attendant upon them) have drawn upon the same pool of personnel. They are a significant extent the handiwork of the same crowd. It is therefore revealing to extrapolate forward and backward in time the individuals and groups of individuals who appear as the cast of characters in one scandal and compare them with the cast of characters for the other scandals, including the secondary ones that have not been enumerated here. Howard Hunt, for example, shows up as a confirmed part of the overthrow of the Guatemalan government of Jacopo Arbenz in 1954, as an important part of the chain of command in the Bay of Pigs, as a person repeatedly accused of having been in Dallas on the day Kennedy was shot, and as one of the central figures of Watergate. (One wonders what secrets, after all, were contained in Howard Hunt's safe, the contents of which were so conventiently "deep sixed" by FBI Director Patrick Gray.)

George Bush is demonstrably one of the most important protagonists of the Watergate scandal, and was the overall director of Iran-contra. Since he appears especially in Iran-contra in close proximity to Bay of Pigs holdovers, it is surely legitimate to wonder when his association with those Bay of Pigs Cubans might have started.

1959 was the year that Bush started operating out of his Zapata Offshore headquarters in Houston; it was also the year that Fidel Castro seized power in Cuba. Officially, as we have seen, George was now a businessman whose work took him at times to Louisiana, where Zapata had offshore drilling operations. George must have been a frequent visitor to New Orleans. Because of his family's estate on Jupiter Island, he would also have been a frequent visitor to the Hobe Sound area. And then, there were Zapata Offshore drilling operations in the Florida Strait. On all of these activities, the official "red Studebaker" biographical material and the Zapata Offshore annual reports are extremely cryptic.

The Jupiter Island connection and father Prescott's

Brown Brothers, Harriman/Skull and Bones networks are doubtless the key. Jupiter Island meant Averell Harriman, Robert Lovett, C. Douglas Dillon and other Anglophile financiers who had directed the US intelligence community long before there had been a CIA at all. And, in the back yard of the Jupiter Island Olympians, and under their direction, a powerful covert operations base was now being assembled, in which George Bush would have been present at the creation as a matter of birthright.

During 1959-60, Allen Dulles and the Eisenhower Administration began to assemble in south Florida the infrastructure for covert action against Cuba. This was the JM/WAVE capability, later formally constituted as the CIA Miami station. JM/WAVE was an operational center for the Eisenhower regime's project of staging an invasion of Cuba using a secret army of anti-Castro Cuban exiles organized, armed, trained, transported, and directed by the CIA. The Cubans, called Brigade 2506, were trained in secret camps in Guatemala, and they had air support from B-26 bombers based in Nicaragua. This invasion was crushed by Castro's defending forces in less than three days.

Before going along with the plan so eagerly touted by Allen Dulles, Kennedy had established the pre-condition that under no circumstances whatsoever would there be direct intervention by US military forces against Cuba. On the one hand, Dulles had assured Kennedy that the news of the invasion would trigger an insurrection which would sweep Castro and his regime away. On the other, Kennedy had to be concerned about provoking a global thermonuclear confrontation with the USSR, in the eventuality that N.S. Khrushchev decided to respond to a US Cuban gambit by, for example, cutting off US access to Berlin.

Hints of the covert presence of George Bush are scattered here and there around the Bay of Pigs invasion. According to some accounts, the code name for the Bay of Pigs was Operation Pluto. 4 But Bay of Pigs veteran Howard Hunt scornfully denies that this was the code name used by JM/WAVE personnel; Hunt writes: "So perhaps the Pentagon referred to the Brigade invasion as PLUTO. CIA did not." 5 But Hunt does not tell us what the CIA code name was, and the contents of Hunt's Watergate era White House safe, which might have told us the answer, were of course "deep-sixed" by FBI Director Patrick Gray. One code name frequently used by CIA Miami Station personnel appears to have been "Don Eduardo," roughly the Spanish equivalent of "Mr. Edward" or perhaps "Mr. Ed."

According to reliable sources and published accounts, the CIA code name for the Bay of Pigs invasion was Operation Zapata, and the plan was so referred to by Richard Bissell of the CIA, one of the plan's promoters, in a briefing to President Kennedy in the Cabinet Room on March 29, 1961. 7 Does Operation Zapata have anything to do with Zapata Offshore? The run-of-the-mill Bushman might respond that Emiliano Zapata, after all, had been a public figure in his own right, and the subject of a recent Hollywood movies starring Marlon Brando. As J. Hugh Liedtke had observed, he was the classic figure for the revolutionary-cum-bandit. A more knowledgeable Bushman might argue that the main landing beach, the Playa Giron, is located south of the city of Cienfuegos on the Zapata Peninula, on the south coast of Cuba.

Then there is the question of the Brigade 2506 landing fleet, which was composed of five older freighters bought or chartered from the Garcia Steamship Lines, bearing the names of Houston, Rio Esondido, Caribe, Atlantic, and Lake Charles. In addition to these vessels, which were outfitted as transport ships, there were two somewhat better armed fire support ships, the Blagar and the Barbara. (In some sources Barbara J.) 8 The Barbara was originally an LCI (Landing Craft Infantry) of earlier vintage. Our attention is attracted at once to the Barbara and the Houston, in the first case because we have seen George Bush's habit of naming his combat aircraft after his wife, and, in the second case, because Bush was at this time a resident, booster, and Republican activist of Houston, Texas. But of course, the appearance of names like "Zapata," Barbara, and Houston can by itself only arouse suspicion, and proves nothing.

After the ignominious defeat of the Bay of Pigs invasion, there was great animosity against Kennedy among the survivors of Brigade 2506, some of whom eventually made their way back to Miami after being released from Castro's prisoner of war camps. There was also great animosity against Kennedy on the part of the JM/WAVE personnel.

During the early 1950's, E. Howard Hunt had been the CIA station chief in Mexico City. As David Atlee Phillips (another embittered JM/WAVE veteran) tells us in his autobiographical account, The Night Watch, Howard Hunt had been the immediate superior of a young CIA recruit named William F. Buckley, the Yale graduate and Skull and Bones member who later founded the National Review. In his autobiographical account written during the days of the Watergate scandal, Hunt includes the following tirade about the Bay of Pigs:

No event since the communization of China in 1949 has had such a profound effect on the United States and its allies as the defeat of the US-trained Cuban invasion brigade at the Bay of Pigs in April 1961.

Out of that humiliation grew the Berlin Wall, the missile crisis, guerrilla warfare throughout Latin American and Africa, and our Dominican Republic intervention. Castros' beachhead triumph opened a bottomless Pandora's box of difficulties that affected not only the United States, but most of its allies in the Free World. These bloody and subversive events would not have taken place had Castro been toppled. Instead of standing firm, our government pyramided crucially wrong decisions and allowed Brigade 2506 to be destroyed. The Kennedy administration yielded Castro all the excuse he needed to gain a tighter grip on the island of Jose Marti, then moved shamefacedly into the shadows and hoped the Cuban issue would simply melt away.9

Hunt was typical of the opinion that the debacle had been Kennedy's fault, and not the responsibility of men like Allen Dulles and Richard Bissell, who had designed it and recommended it. After the embarrassing failure of the invasion, which never evoked the hoped-for spontaneous anti-Castro insurrection, Kennedy fired Allen Dulles, his Harrimanite deputy Bissell, and CIA deputy Director Charles Cabell (whose brother was the mayor of Dallas at the time Kennedy was shot).

During the days after the Bay of Pigs debacle, Kennedy was deeply suspicious of the intelligence community and of proposals for military escalation in general, including in places like South Vietnam. Kennedy sought to procure an outside, expert opinion on military matters. For this he turned to the former commander in chief of the Southwest Pacific Theatre during World War II, General Douglas MacArthur. Almost ten years ago, a reliable source shared with one of the authors an account of a meeting between Kennedy and MacArthur in which the veteran general warned the young president that there were elements inside the US government who emphatically did not share his patriotic motives, and who were seeking to destroy his administration from within. MacArthur's warned that the forces bent on destroying Kennedy were centered in the Wall Street financial community and its various tentacles in the intelligence community.

Obama Jr is not from Outer Space or Outside USA

It is probable he was born using DNA from Malcom X whose relatives are dying off and Glorian Donegan whose relatives are dying off. Michelle Obama is likely a CIA created space-holder who is by removed re-productivity from Glorian Donegan hysterectomy and stored DNA testing passing mitochondria into the Obama Jr. family children.

Skipping Michelle Obama Jr completely , her legal name is being used as front to insert other biology covertly into the Obama family, what the CIA does in grooming sleeper families, one ID but a different biology and genealogy.

Barrack Obama Jr was likely born a half brother of Ed Donegan and Tom Donegan and with the SSN of 022-46-3234 born with Ed Donegan November 18 1961 Los Angeles, Ed Donegan born the same day, birth certificate issues next day.

Ex-CIA Agent Jim Garrow Claims Obama Had Breitbart and Clancy Killed; Brandon Walker interviews Doctor Jim Garrow, philanthropist and worker for one of the largest non-profit organizations on the planet to save female children from slaughter in China.. states he knows that President Obama ordered the murders of Tom Clancy and Andrew Breitbart (Audio)

Jim Garrow who had worked for the CIA for 40 years asserts Obama is a Manchurian Candidate, the birth certificate from Hawaii was faked (and Ed Donegan asserts a likely destroyed Los Angeles birth certificate November 19,1962 ssn 022-46-3233 was the real one and Glorian Donegan the mother and Malcom X the father in the FBI based program), and the Hawaiian government employee Fuddy was assassinate as was Tom Clancy to cover-up Obama being the Manchurian Candidate Clancy was researching the story-line to.

Tom Clancy was working on a novel very "Manchurian Candidate-ish". But it was replete with fact and exposed the Saudi Muslim plant in the White House [to go along with Bandar Bush as the Saudi Prince is called and as Wayne Madson points out the Saudies did fund the OSS CIA program] the direct funding that went into it. Birth Certificate? Want the real one? Tom had it. Search Tom Clancy: Western Journalism | Informing Americans Who Love Freedom Clancy was killed because he was getting too close to a secret they don't want the world to know. Dr. Garrow, executive director of The Bethune Institute, states Obama had Tom Clancy killed, noting that it takes 5 days for plant toxins and most poisons to break down and leave no traces in the human body. Strangely (or not), doctors did not perform an autopsy on Clancy's body for 5 days.

assassination of award winning American journalist Michael Hastings, and the 25 June ambush on the Los Angles Police Department detectives investigating Hastings's murder.

Aaron Alexis, a lone gunman armed with a shotgun, fatally shot twelve people and injured three others in a mass shooting at the headquarters of the Naval Sea Systems Command (NAVSEA) inside the Washington Navy Yard in Southeast Washington, D.C. this past Monday, this report says.

The attack occurred around 8:20 a.m. EDT, this report continues, in Building 197 with the shooter Alexis being subsequently killed by US local and Federal police forces after what has been described as a "running gun battle."

Michael Hastings, who at the time of his assassination was investigating CIA Director John Brennan, was not under direct GRU electronic surveillance, this report says, but GRU signal intelligence analysts monitoring "routine night flight observations" of a small fleet of ShadowHawks® unmanned drone aircraft at the US Marine Base Camp Pendleton in Southern California during the early morning hours of 18 June, observed that a single ShadowHawk® broke formation and "sped" towards the Los Angeles whereupon it fired upon Hastings vehicle nearing the intersection of Highland and Melrose avenues at around 04:15 PDT destroying it and killing Hastings. [See video of attack HERE]

The GRU further reported that signal analysts monitoring CIA-NSA-FBI "encrypted electronic communication traffic" in the Los Angeles area on 25 June observed a "rapid spike" of "noise" occurring between 0415-0445 Hrs (4:15-4:45AM PSDT) within a 12 block radius of the Hastings "kill zone" identified as North Highland Avenue and Melrose.

At 4:37 AM PDT, this report continues, these same signal analysts reported an “urgent rise” in Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD) emergency radio traffic too.

A comparison of these two anomalous events, this report says, showed that the “common link” between them was the attempted assassination by ambush of two LAPD detectives investigating Hastings death while they were driving into their Wilshire Division police station parking lot on Venice Boulevard, and which was less than 3 km from the Hastings “kill zone.”

Critical to note, this GRU report says, was that after the Hastings assassination, and ambush of the LAPD detectives, signal intelligence analysts were able to “document” the “encrypted electronic signature” used by these believed to be CIA-NSA-FBI assassins should it be used at some future date.

Subsequent to Hastings assassination, this report further states, this same “encrypted electronic signature” was observed occurring two other times…on 7 August in the Newport, Rhode Island region, and on 16 September, in the area surrounding the Washington Navy Yard Shooting.

Curious to note, the GRU says, was that on 7 August, Alexis reported to the Newport Rhode Island Police that he was being threatened by unseen people and feared that “some sort of microwave machine” was penetrating his body, an incident that took place at the exact same time signals intelligence analysts noticed a “huge spike” of traffic having the exact same “encrypted electronic signature” previously noticed in Los Angles when Hastings was assassinated.

Even more curious, this report continues, was the 16 September observation of this exact same “encrypted electronic signature” that occurred shortly before 8:40 am EDT in the area of the Washington Navy Yard Shooting, and corresponding to when an elite tactical response team of the highly trained US Capitol Police, a force that guards the US Capitol complex, were told to leave the scene by a supervisor instead of aiding local officers in stopping the ongoing massacre.

The USA Today News Service in confirming about why one of the most elite tactical teams in Washington D.C. was ordered to leave the scene of an ongoing mass shooting also noted:

“A Capitol Police watch commander "wouldn't let them go in and stop people from being slaughtered," one officer told the Washington TV station, which is owned by Gannett, USA TODAY's parent company. "We were definitely the closest tactical team in the city," the unidentified officer told the newspaper. "It was at the scene very early on, within a couple of minutes. They were ordered to disengage and turn back. For what reason, we don't know."

With both the Hastings assassination and the Washington Navy Yard Shooting now being linked by the same identifiable “encrypted electronic signature,” this GRU report concludes, it cannot be ruled out that the Obama regime is now employing an “elite hit squad” against both its enemies and for an as yet undetermined domestic agenda.

And in what can only be described as farce meeting reality, the Obama regimes Department of Homeland Security (DHS), barely 48 hours after this mass shooting tragedy, issued a pre-solicitation order for over 4 million rounds per year of 12 gauge shotgun shells, which is the same type of ammunition used by Alexis in the shotgun he had carved the cryptic sayings “better off this way” and “my ELF weapon” prior to his taking 12 innocent lives.

Ed Donegan on the connection of the story lines that links the events: Hastings was working on an Obama piece with Victoria Windsor and researching the origins of Barrack Obama Jr. and he had inside information from somewhere and was tracking it down. This tied to Glorian Donegan being the real mother of Barrack Obama Jr. When I Ed Donegan had done extensive research on Trust fund issues since the 2011 death of my m mother I had papers gathered at m y table and began to call Elder Law Partners. All of us in a 10 mile radius of the Naval Shipyard, the shooting broke out almost as I was picking up the phone. As with 9/11 and the Office of Naval Intelligence, the Admiral Halsey and Captain Von Trapp story and Kings Daughters Hospital seem tied to this.

Top US Federal Judge Assassinated After Threat To Obama Agenda http://www.eutimes.net/2011/01/top-us-federal-judge-assassinated-after-threat-to-obama-agenda/

According to this SVR report, Federal Judge John McCarthy Roll was the Chief Judge for the United States District Court for the District of Arizona who this past Friday issued what is called a “preliminary ruling” in a case titled “United States of America v. $333,520.00 in United States Currency et al” [Case Number: 4:2010cv00703 Filed: November 30, 2010] wherein he stated he was preparing to rule against Obama’s power to seize American citizens money without clear and convincing evidence of a crime being committed.

The case being ruled on by Judge Roll, this report continues, was about bulk cash smuggling into or out of the United States that the Obama administration claimed was their right to seize under what are called Presidential Executive Orders, instead of using existing laws. The Obama administration used as support for their claim before Judge Roll, the SVR says, the seizing of all American citizens' gold, in 1933, by President Franklin D. Roosevelt's signing of Executive Order 6102, which was ruled at the time to be constitutional.

According to this SVR report, Federal Judge John McCarthy Roll was the Chief Judge for the United States District Court for the District of Arizona who this past Friday issued what is called a "preliminary ruling" in a case titled "United States of America v. $333,520.00 in United States Currency et al" [Case Number: 4:2010cv00703 Filed: November 30, 2010] wherein he stated he was preparing to rule against Obama's power to seize American citizens money without clear and convincing evidence of a crime being committed.

Should the Obama administration win their argument to seize their citizen's money by Executive Order without having to abide by the law was made more chilling this past week when reports emerged from the US stating that President Obama and his regime allies were, indeed, preparing to rule America by decree since their loss this past November of their control over the US House of Representatives, and in the words of the Washington Posts columnist Charles Krauthammer: "For an Obama bureaucrat … the will of the Congress is a mere speed bump".

Since taking office in early 2009, Obama has completely overturned the once free United States through his use of Executive Orders that asserts his power to put anyone he wants in prison without charges or trial forever and his right to assassinate any American citizen he deems a threat.

The most chilling of these powers Obama has > asserted for himself, however, are contained in Executive Order 13528 he signed nearly a year ago (January 10, 2010) creating a Council of Governors he has hand-picked to rule over the United States in place of its elected representatives when their next "disaster" strikes and orders them to begin "synchronization and integration of State and Federal military activities in the United States; and other matters of mutual interest pertaining to National Guard, homeland defense, and civil support activities".

Attackers claim as street thugs Nobel Savages who hate the alt-right, child pornographers, etc., that themselves are fabricated appearances about me but setup incited attacks by being the alleged basis for them. The real reason I am made a public enemy is to undermine my books about the FBI CIA DHS and lawsuits against them.

We begin with the fact that espionage agencies do not like to get caught while working in a cover identity or an asset they have recruited they are acting through.

The Intelligence Identities Protection Act of 1982 (Pub. L.

97–200, 50 U.S.C. §§ 421–426) is a United States federal law that makes it a federal crime for those with access to classified information, or those who systematically seek to identify and expose covert agents and have reason to believe that it will harm the foreign intelligence activities of the U.S.,[1] to intentionally reveal the identity of an agent whom one knows to be in or recently in certain covert roles with a U.S. intelligence agency, unless the United States has publicly acknowledged or revealed the relationship.

GangStalks use cover-identities of those participating in espionage activities and I will call them Doing Business As of Trust and explain that is based on Emblems of Trust in international laws of war.

The Rules of Warfare and Their Violation formed in the Geneva Convention allow for the protection of those acting under the Emblems of Trust. Which three emblems are used to protect civilians during times of war?

The red cross, red crescent and red crystal emblems provide protection for military medical services and relief workers in armed conflicts. Moreover, the emblems are also used by National Societies of the Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement in each country for identification purposes

The espionage "genius" of Reinhard Gehlen was in more extensive use of Agents In Place in every organization in society that would or could do the wishes of intelligence agencies while working under the cover or a normal business. That normal business like USAID may engage in acts beyond its charter or corruptly act in the administration of its charter.

Reinhard Gehlen (3 April 1902 - 8 June 1979) was a German lieutenant-general and intelligence officer. He was chief of the Wehrmacht Foreign Armies East military intelligence service on the eastern front during World War II, spymaster of the CIA-affiliated anticommunist Gehlen Organisation (1946-56) and the founding president of the Federal Intelligence Service (Bundesnachrichtendienst, BND) of West Germany (1956-68) during the Cold War.

Gehlen became a professional soldier in 1920 during the Weimar Republic. In 1942, he became chief of FHO, the German Army's military intelligence unit on the Eastern Front (1941-45). He achieved the rank of major general before he was fired by Adolf Hitler in April 1945 because of the FHO's "defeatism", the pessimistic intelligence reports about Red Army superiority.

The system derived by Rockefeller Republicans including Arnold Schwarzenegger is Stasi systems by undercover operatives placed in to hospitals, businesses, etc., who will engage in hostile acts to patients in those hospitals, etc., and the patient death in a hospital of a person who already had heart trouble seems normal but the death was helped along by an Stasi insider in the hospital, perhaps a military veteran who is still working for CIA US DOD objectives even though now in private employment life after military employment.

The term Zersetzung is generally translated into English as "decomposition", although it can be variously translated as "decay", "corrosion", "undermining", "biodegradation", or "dissolution" and is associated the the Stasi organization adopted by Allen Dulles and J. Edgar Hoover as a matter of name but is really more basic and simply much older police tactics of illegal police acts and often illegal police acts conducted through intermediaries like snitches or institutions willing to cooperate and lend their assistance in the activities.

Current U.S. Intelligence Activities around the World

At the beginning of the 2013 European Summit, European Commission president José Manuel Barroso proclaimed privacy a fundamental right in Europe. In his sharp repudiation of U.S. espionage against European citizens and their political representatives, namely, German chancellor Angela Merkel, Barroso added that mere decades ago "there was a part of Germany where political police were spying on people's lives daily. . . . We know very recently [sic] what totalitarianism means . . . We know what happens when a state uses powers that intrude on people's lives."

With this, Barroso was referring to an intense discussion in Europe on U.S. surveillance practices in the summer of 2013, when whistle-blower Edward Snowden informed civil society of NSA spying activities via the Washington Post and the Guardian.

While much of the American public has seemed not really concerned about the wide range of unconstitutional NSA activities, and American officials denied any bad intentions.

Ted L. Gunderson, Geral Sosbee, and myself Edward Donegan as well as Jen Moore I believe was assassinated (as Micheal Hastings and Andrew Brietbart were) via assets thrown at us like street thugs operating at police behest and undercover in landlord and neighbor roles.

The violent attacks (two of which nearly blinded me with my broken eyeglass frames cutting deeply into the area of my eyes when I was punched) are police backed and the thugs knew when to strike, when I had my new PC to write my book with, and did so at police instructions. And yes my book is about the FBI, CIA, and others.

In the next chapter I will say a Micheal Aguioo front group on behalf the DIA assassinated the family of Jeffery Macdonald. THe DIA chose a Satan Worshipping front group. This is something TEd Gunderson pointed out, these are really the CIA and MI6, as Jen Moore also stated and Alister Crowely admitted to at his time of death.

Family History Theory of Collette Mac Donald Murder

It seems three or more heirlooms might have been missing. Marriage rings provided by Dr MacDonald AND some other heirloom. The Defense doubted the theft of the heirlooms motivated the robbery, why just fora few pieces of jewelry it makes no sense. But the removed jewelry did show intruders were in the house.

http://www.crimearchives.net/1979_macdonald/trial3/1979-08-28_trial_segal_closing.html

Let me talk about while we are right here on the subject of the chest with the jewelry box. I heard the Government counsel say this morning, "We only have Dr. MacDonald's word of the two valuable rings" -- the one that the Kassabs asked Dr. MacDonald to retrieve that was a family heirloom and the one that Dr. MacDonald had given to Colette himself -- "the only proof we have of that is Dr. MacDonald's word that they were there in the house."

You have before you one of the exhibits toward the end of the case when Dr. MacDonald testified the Government settled with Dr. MacDonald for these claims of lost property. It says on those cover documents that they discussed this matter before settling with Dr. MacDonald for those rings as well as the other items with two people -- Captain Clifford L. Somers and CID Agent William Ivory. Captain Somers was unable to be here.

He was the principal Government prosecutor at the military proceedings in 1970. William Ivory was the same William Ivory. He was the lead investigator in 1970. Now, they had been through this whole process before of having heard the challenge that the rings were missing, and they, having consulted, agreed that Dr. MacDonald had to be compensated because there was no basis to refuse compensation. Here, nine and one-half years later, we hear the same explanation -- "There is no proof the rings were there." Why did the Army pay for it? Why did the Government pay for it? Why didn't they say, "We resist. We resist. We don't believe you, MacDonald"?

You ought to consider that that is an admission by the Government that that document where they paid Dr. MacDonald and said they talked -- not just a property loss -- but they talked to their criminal investigator and the chief prosecutor and agreed that they owed payment for those rings. That is an admission by the Government that the rings were probably taken that night.

Now, look, I am not suggesting to you, members of the jury, that the motive of this crime was to steal those rings. I don't think that was the motive. We will talk about that motive later at another time. I want to say to you that just because the people did not come into the house with the express purpose of stealing rings, it doesn't mean that the persons who committed these absolutely horrendous and monstrous crimes did not on the spur of the moment see a jewelry case and grab something from it. Yes, there were other valuables in the house. There were other things that could have been taken. This was not a ransacking of the house, but that was a jewelry box sitting on top. It was obvious and in an obvious location. One didn't have to do anything. As a matter of fact, I think the reasonable inference that you might draw is that the woman seen in this case did not have a weapon -- the woman talking about acid -- LSD -- and that in one of those strange and whimsical and unthinking moments removed from the crime scene something of value -- not because she went there with a purpose of stealing it and not because the men went there to steal -- their purposes are different -- but that would be a reasonable inference.

I have collected some information and it fits my serial murder theory of the secret families history and a family heirloom of hers was stolen.

Information on Ancestry.com has relatives listed as "private" some type Hidden Identity as occures in the Barr family, and other CIA families. Non CIA families? I don't know.

I have attended Anthony LaVey Satanits ritusals and the format is the same. What I Edward Donegan am saying and have been for years is we do have a picture of the murderer of the MacDonald victims. It has been found. It is a profile picture. Not two dimensional, multi dimensional and a more than skin deep, all the way into the mind and motives of the killers.

Maybe Jeffrey MacDonald was innocent after all retrieved from https://www.salon.com/2012/11/30/maybe_jeffrey_macdonald_was_innocent_after_all/ and copied or modified to here

In a rare interview, prosecutor' office co-counsel Wade Smith reflects on the murder case that's long captured America's imagination. By LYNN PARRAMORE

AlterNet Remember the perceptual illusion where you look at a picture and you're certain that you see the bust of a young woman? Then, if someone draws your attention to certain details, suddenly the picture transforms into the profile of an old woman. It's a disorienting trick. You think you know what you're seeing, but then you aren't so sure.

The Jeffrey MacDonald murder case is one of the most disturbing in living memory. There are only two possible pictures, both nightmares.

Picture No. 1. Jeffrey MacDonald, a Princeton-educated Green Beret doctor with no history of violence and a sterling record, butchered his pregnant wife and two young daughters using a knife, ice pick and club. Then he injured himself and set up the scene to make the crimes appear to be the work of intruders. He claimed they chanted, "Kill the pigs! ... Acid is groovy!" and scrawled the word "PIG" on the wall in his wife's blood.

Picture No. 2. Jeffrey MacDonald, a bright young man with everything in life to look forward to, lost his wife and children to senseless, horrific violence. A military hearing found charges against him “untrue,” but he was convicted nine years later in a civilian trial. He has been imprisoned for three decades for a crime he did not commit.

Smuggling Contraband Counterfeiting Money Laundering Trafficking Racketeering

Jen Moore was a right-hand operative of a dangerous Cabal she was a whistle-blower of.

If you import or export something without paying customs duties, you smuggle it. All kinds of things have been smuggled over the years: art, alcohol, drugs, animals, even tea!

The verb smuggle has expanded to generally mean to bring something in or out in secret, especially if doing so breaks a rule or a law. Kids may smuggle candy into a movie theater so they don't have to pay the high prices at the concession stand. You may smuggle Christmas presents into the house so your kids don't see them. Illegal immigrants may be smuggled into the country for a fee, but if caught they can be deported.

Ed Donegan asserts a complex RICO operation is using false police reports or crime reports of civil emergency reports to create an asset seizure case against Ed Donegan and his trust. It is a property dispute in that Ed Donegan asserts is right of property, others assert an act of Ed Donegan creates a forfeiture in property thus the property is in dispute.

Ed Donegan asserts an abusive conservancy is backing the improper seizure of property and it is now being smuggled as contraband or counterfeited value based on forgeries (by identity theft) to the legitimacy of the asset seizure create what is called "black money" or money that is some form of self stamped or real currency upon which racketeering goods and services markets operate through.

Various forms of common flim-flam are operating one is the premise of Extortion (Forcing someone to be a customer who does not want to be one paying out any value) that is carried out by labor rackets, the labor racket a protection racket.

These style of rackets use some predicate that a service is needed then extorts windfall or total undue payment of goods or services, the deliver of such services appears to mitigate the problem the extort-er created, but created secretly.

The common example is street thugs vandalizing, causing damage or fear to local store than charging to protect that store.

The toxicity of the illegal acts is smuggled within cover stories that something else is happening so the toxicity can survive scrutiny.

It can come down to competing assertions of actual truth as the context and meaning of events are put into arguments of cases.

Jen Moore and Ed Donegan asserts an organized crime racket is conducting illegal operations tied to the value of Donegan family assets.

Ed Donegan asserts not only is he a victim of this racket but that the racket so damages him it could and might lead to death or severe consequences that are within that path of damaging consequences of the racket attacking him.

While I Ed Donegan assert that the racket is crime and financial and other crime, I also assert is tied to homicide, assassination, and other crimes most notably violations of Title 18 Chapter 73 attack on a JFK RFK witness to conspiracy.

In 1988, authorities looked into allegedly baseless[1] allegations that prominent citizens of Nebraska, as well as high-level U.S. politicians, were involved in a child prostitution ring.[3] Alleged abuse victims were interviewed, who claimed that children in foster care were flown to the East Coast of the United States to be sexually abused at "bad parties".[4] The claims primarily centered on Lawrence E. King Jr., who ran the now defunct Franklin Community Federal Credit Union in Omaha, Nebraska, and alleged that the ring was "a cult of devil worshipers involved in the mutilation, sacrifice and cannibalism of numerous children".[3][5] Numerous conspiracy theories evolved, claiming that the alleged abuse was part of a widespread series of crimes including devil worship, cannibalism, drug trafficking, and CIA arms dealing.

In July 1990, private investigator Gary Caradori, hired by the State of Nebraska to investigate the allegations, died along with his 8-year-old son when his plane disintegrated mid-air. Foul play was suspected by Caradori's brother and state Senator Loran Schmit, but was not proven by investigators.

I have written elsewhere as to Mafia, the CIA and FBI and DHS Gang Stalker in deals with MS-13 Al Queda, Knights Templar, and prison snitches for racketeering using those gangs to attack me during their money laundering system that 2015 had been a turning point for me. Already a 15 year before then believer of the CIA using assassinations and radiation poisonings in the USA and me a victim of it. I have tried to safe but my private apartment was eroded out from under me by falsified data operation.

Chauncy Marvin Holt and others tell the correct story. Our government is organized crime. TO be in custody is to be victim of the Mafia.

I thank the Holt family for exposing to the public for the public the CIA is crime operation, and the same thanks to the Hunt family and other truth tellers.

Fire official three times I am certain assisted the radiological attacks on me. Nothing to do with what is being asserted about me fits me, not having teen interests (though it may be made to look that way) nor having sexual interests in the women, very often skid row black women with hiked pants chasing me.

Equally often gay women spit on me in every possible non verbal no touch way about how I am going to also give them babies because I am and I quote them "a white supremacist piece of shit."

A dopple of me spotted and overheard and taped by me and others does agree to that, I do not. Often that person is in a mockup location to be mistaken for my home, or with look alike clothing, etc., and this is biological organ trafficking by a dopple forging consent from me when no consent exist. Jen Moore points out this human trafficking is international and it is. She said it involved the Ukraine and that is possible there is a lot of 3rd Party parenting there, gene contributions to gay parents from third parties.

The story of how or why this would be tied to me is what I could not figure out until her posting the story of the Von Trapp family I can verify made it all make sense.

Mockingbird seems to support these activities rather than expose them. What has changed is not my onion but more FBI defectors like Ted Gunderson, Geral Sosbee, and others coming forward and now being consistent with what I have said.

In addition more JFK researchers are closing in on the Bilderberger Britain secret government and attacks on patriots of the USA .

I have not been been able to get out of the USA but I have watched ala Chauncey Holt confessions hundreds of mafai cops and fire doing deals with mafia groups often foreign national narco or mafia gangs in black budget operations controlled by the CIA. Often the police of sherrif's or DOC of police using crack themselves. I have never been able to comprehend what I have seen since do not understand police internal procedures but this is all true.

Jen Moore spoke of this including money launderin, police and fire used for targeted killings, black budgets, aligned with Pakistani and Mexican and other prison groups, and operating under false IDs and forgeries as US policy.

I have known I can not get out of the USA but I am hoping my story can.

I believe entirely that Ted Gunderson was attacked by the FBI just as he said he was, and I believe it is tied to JFK RFK and the attacks on me are.

I like Ted Gunderson want no part of being in a war with CIA FBI NSA DHS. It is there war against us and I am just warning others what is called "The Quiet War" of subversion is being waged by these agencies.

Ed Donegan Adds Hindsight to Defense losing Questions

Jeffrey MacDonald does not explain the murders, identifying the real killers. He can't. He doesn't know who they are or suspect any reason why. Neither could Collette.

Why did Jeffrey Macdonald Explain to the Jury what happened and why?

The second rule is that the burden of proof in a criminal case rests from the beginning of the case to the end of the case strictly on this table -- on these men -- on these prosecutors -- and contrary to all of the words that you have heard this morning, it never, never, never shifts to the Defendant.

It is absolute nonsense for the Government to have stood here this morning and piously, you know, give proper obeisance in the direction of the rules of law say, "Yes, we the Government lawyers -- we recognize that there is a rule called the burden of proof on us," and then to ignore it by going on and on arguing what -- "Why doesn't Jeff explain this?

Why doesn't Jeff explain that? Why don't we know this from Jeff? Why did Jeff do that?" Nothing that Jeffrey MacDonald does is right. It is all wrong. What is happening when they start talking like that about the burden in this case?

The law does not permit, the law does not countenance the burden ever leaving the responsibilities of the prosecuting lawyers.

Every single thing that you have heard this morning about, "Why doesn't Jeff explain this," and I thought the most incredible of those remarks being, "If he had an explanation, you could be sure he would have put it before you," is in my judgment contrary to the law, and I suggest that you listen carefully to what His Honor's instructions are on that. That is simply not the law that I understand it to be applicable in the United States. No Defendant has to explain it away. - MR. SEGAL

C L O S I N G A R G U M E N T

MR. SEGAL: With submission to Your Honor. Yes, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, there has been a tragedy, but we haven't talked about the real tragedy in this case yet.

You did not witness the tragedy of February 17th, 1970. You have only heard about it vicariously and absorbed some of the pain of the destruction of a loving family. You did not witness -- only heard about vicariously -- the destruction for the first time of the life that Jeffrey MacDonald had built when in 1970, he was charged the first time with the crime in this case. You only learned about that in a second-hand fashion.

You also have not seen or experienced the second tragedy in Jeffrey MacDonald's life -- the grand jury in 1974 and '75 -- again, you have only learned of that vicariously. You have heard about the destruction of the life that a man tried to rebuild again.

The tragedy that you have experienced, though, in this case is the tragedy of the legal system that said nine and a half years after the monstrous murders of Colette, Kimberly, and Kristen MacDonald that for the second time, using the exact same physical evidence -- that for the second time, somehow the legal system permits this to happen. That tragedy, you have experienced personally. You have sat here the better part of seven weeks and listened to the story of the same fibers, the same threads, the same blood spots, the same crime scene, same bungling, same ineptitude with one or two notable additions. I will devote some time to talking with you about those additions.

How is this tragedy going to resolve? That is the task that befalls you collectively as the jury in this case. You will write the final chapter on the one tragedy that you were exposed to and permitted to experience.

Who is it that is talking to you about either that tragedy or the destruction of the family or the destruction of Jeff's life? Who are the people we are talking about? Let me say to you that I and my colleague and friend, Wade Smith, are the advocates and the representatives of Jeffrey MacDonald. We make no bones about it that our role in this case is to present his side of the events and the episodes that took place. We make no bones about the fact that he has placed in our hands the responsibility for his future, but I also want to identify to you who are the other persons who have been talking to you about the facts in this case.

They are the prosecution attorneys. Now, they are not people riding on a white horse and shining armor. They are not non-partisans. They are merely the lawyers on the other side. They are no different than Wade Smith and I. They have an interest like I have an interest to represent in this case. They have a side to represent. It is not like they are above the fray looking down upon this and then in a non-partisan way with no motive to do any harm to anyone coming down here and sharing their views of the evidence you see.

That is not true at all. They are hired for the specific purpose of pushing someone's point of view. Who is that? In this particular case, it is the viewpoint that the CID has doggedly, stubbornly, and erroneously adhered to for nine and a half years. As a matter of fact, if they did not advocate that view, if they did not represent a side, they would probably be replaced because that is their job. They are not here as non-partisans. They are not here as independent souls looking at this matter. They represent a side. They have egos, too. They have ambitions. They would like recognition also. They would like their superiors and others to recognize their success in this case or in any other case, promotion, outside opportunity. They are exactly like Wade and myself. They are no different.

So, as I talk to you in the succeeding time that is available to me, I trust you will recognize that I am the spokesperson for Jeffrey MacDonald, but I am not less; and when Wade speaks to you later on, he is not less than any of the Government's attorneys. They have no special hold on what is fact and what is correct inference and certainly not on what is truth.

I thought I would remember something from the beginning of this case when one of the Government's attorneys in opening remarks to you made some statements that I found confounding at the time and I believe were dubious as to his ability to do it, and I now suggest to you that I will share them with you. "This is not a complicated case. It is a straightforward case." I just heard him about an hour ago -- conclusion of his case -- having spent seven and a half weeks to try to make sense out of a case and to tell you about how complicated it is, but you have to pay attention to the moving fibers and floating blood and the fingerprints that can't be lifted and identified.

Now, how are you to choose? How are you to ultimately decide in this case? Is it simply, you know, one side or the other? I suspect that you are all a bit more sophisticated than that. I think you know enough about the jury system, but I impose upon you now a moment to let me share some thoughts with you.

You have not been brought here -- you have not gone through the process of jury selection for the purpose of just being 12 people to sit down in the jury room after we finish talking with you and decide what you think about this case. This is not a group think process. This is not sort of a discussion around coffee after dinner. This is something very different.

A jury is a unique institution. A jury is a special enterprise, and it works according to special rules. Now, eventually, the rules of this process will be given to you by His Honor, Judge Dupree. I feel that there is no way one could talk intelligently about the facts as I see them without sharing some of those rules with you now. I say as a warning to that, of course, that ultimately if anything I say is different from what Judge Dupree says about the rules of law, obviously, his is the only word you will follow. But I will try to be as accurate and correct as I can because I am talking about some concepts and rules that are absolutely fundamental to the system, and I do not think I will misstate them.

There are five rules that you will take with you to the jury room. By your ability to apply those five rules, you will be functioning as a jury as opposed to a coffee klatch. You will be functioning in the purpose that you were asked to be here for rather than simply as 12 persons giving their ad hoc individual opinions.

These are among the most fundamental of the number of rules that the Judge will give you at the conclusion of the case. I point to them because they start and end with the differences, I think, between what I have to say to you, what Wade has to say to you, and what the Government has to say to you.

The first of these five special rules that will dominate, I think, your thinking in the jury room is the rule that says the Defendant has a presumption of innocence that protects him from the beginning of the case until the very end of the deliberations; but again, I suspect this is not a phrase that you are hearing for the first time here in this courtroom, but I would like to share with you for a moment, I think, a correct observation as to why our system has the presumption of innocence.

We all too frequently take the system that we cherish and fight for and that we hope to preserve, we sometimes take it rather for granted and do not consider why the elements exist. The presumption of innocence is something that exists only in a criminal case. It does not exist in a civil case. The reason for that is that there is an inherent fundamental imbalance in a criminal case which no Defendant can ever correct. That imbalance is this: On one side of the criminal case are the prosecutors. They are not the Government. They are the prosecutors who use the power of the Government on their behalf of their clients -- their interest in this case. I dare say that it is obvious to comment that there is no individual Defendant, let alone Jeffrey MacDonald, there is no individual Defendant that you or I could conceive of whose power ever would equal that of the Government. The founders of our nation and the creators of our legal system recognized it from the outset. And in order to create the inherent and fundamental imbalance in the system, you are never, when you are accused by the Government through the hands of prosecutors, even that you are never in the same position they are as in a civil case -- two parties trying to tip the scales of justice one way or the other -- but because we recognize that and we have recognized it for more than 200 years, we do something that we hope if you, the jury, will apply correctly, it will do something to partially correct the imbalance in the system. That is to give the Defendant a head start. Now, the example which we frequently talk about in civil cases is that the scales of justice start evenly balanced. Each side adds evidence to the scales and when it is tipped -- the case one way or the other by a slight amount -- that is the side that should receive the verdict. But because in a criminal case, we know that no individual Defendant has the power and the opportunity and the resources in any way to equal the Government, the founders of our nation, the creators of our legal system say this: the scales tip this way. The Defendant has the advantage here and the Government must, in order to obtain a conviction, take that advantage from the Defendant and tip the scales all the way the other way by a quantum of proof and an amount of proof, I will talk about in a minute.

Let me give you an example of why the presumption of innocence and how it really works. It is a very simple example. You saw one of the people who have been helping Wade and myself the other day -- John Myers. He was the short gentleman -- the last witness we called. He is an investigator. John Myers is only illustrative of what happens in any case. I don't care whether it is Henry Ford or Jeffrey MacDonald, the same thing will happen. If we send John Myers out to find a piece of information and he goes to someone's door and says, "I am an investigator working and trying to help Jeffrey MacDonald. Can I get some information?" The person says, "I don't want to talk to you. I don't want to be involved." You all know that expression. You all know that people feel that way. Probably after watching what has happened to some of the people who walked into here, you know why people don't want to be involved.

Don't want to be involved -- closed the door. What can John Myers do? What can I do? What can Wade do? Nothing. We have no ability to tell anybody, "You have to in the name of good sense and justice talk to us. It is fair." Now, take the reverse. Take the worst CID agent you saw, the most inexperienced MP investigator, the newest FBI agent and you send him knocking on a door. He says, "I would like to talk to you about the MacDonald case." "I don't want to talk to you." "I am an agent of the FBI, CID, MP."

What is going to happen when you tell somebody, "I am the representative of the Government's criminal prosecution process"? What happens is that you will think, "Gee, if I don't cooperate, what are they going to do -- take me downtown? Is someone going to call my employer and tell him that this is the Government and your man will not cooperate? Are they going to look at my tax returns, perhaps?" I don't know if that is real, but they are the suspicions that we all have.

MR. BLACKBURN: Your Honor, we would OBJECT to this.

MR. MURTAGH: Your Honor, we would OBJECT to this.

THE COURT: Well, I will just instruct counsel for both sides to confine your argument to the evidence that has been offered and received in open court. Go ahead.

MR. SEGAL: When that investigator speaks on behalf of the Government, he invokes powers that no person would like to challenge and the doors open to him and information flows. There is no question about it.

One last observation on the presumption of innocence. What Defendant that you know of, let alone Jeffrey MacDonald, could afford to spend the way the Government can to prove a case -- to prove a point. I dare say that we are weighted down with charts in this case to an astonishing degree. One could only wonder how deeply the Government goes to make points over and over again. What possible benefit could there be to showing the same photograph four times over? Who could look to his pocketbook and could afford that kind of defense? Because of all of those reasons, because of the inherent imbalance, the founders of the system said: you, when you go out as jurors, start with the idea, with the piece of information, with the rule of law that says you will presume not only Jeffrey MacDonald but every Defendant innocent of the crimes charged.

What is the second rule of law? How can the Government change that situation? Obviously, there are cases where they can and will, but again, there are rules that guide you and tell you how that is to be done -- tells them how it is to be done -- and lets you know whether it has been done.

That rule is called the burden of proof. The burden of proof in a criminal case, again, is different that a civil case. I know the Government has talked about it, but I have some things to say about what they have commented upon. I don't believe they have adequately or fairly stated what I think are the applicable rules of law. Again, it is not my opinion what the law counts and it is not their opinion; it is what the Judge tells you. But I think that I want to share with you something now that is worthwhile to be considered about the second rule.

The second rule is that the burden of proof in a criminal case rests from the beginning of the case to the end of the case strictly on this table -- on these men -- on these prosecutors -- and contrary to all of the words that you have heard this morning, it never, never, never shifts to the Defendant. It is absolute nonsense for the Government to have stood here this morning and piously, you know, give proper obeisance in the direction of the rules of law say, "Yes, we the Government lawyers -- we recognize that there is a rule called the burden of proof on us," and then to ignore it by going on and on arguing what -- "Why doesn't Jeff explain this? Why doesn't Jeff explain that? Why don't we know this from Jeff? Why did Jeff do that?" Nothing that Jeffrey MacDonald does is right. It is all wrong. What is happening when they start talking like that about the burden in this case?

The law does not permit, the law does not countenance the burden ever leaving the responsibilities of the prosecuting lawyers. Every single thing that you have heard this morning about, "Why doesn't Jeff explain this," and I thought the most incredible of those remarks being, "If he had an explanation, you could be sure he would have put it before you," is in my judgment contrary to the law, and I suggest that you listen carefully to what His Honor's instructions are on that. That is simply not the law that I understand it to be applicable in the United States. No Defendant has to explain it away.

It is like some of the questions the Government lawyers asked some of the witnesses at times. It brought a chuckle from many members of the jury. Many members of the audience felt the same way. "Well, did something happen?" The witness said, "I don't know what happened." "Well, then, you don't know that it didn't happen?" "I don't know that it didn't happen." What does that prove? I mean, Jeffrey MacDonald, in the guise of questioning the other day, was asked, "Well, can you explain" -- what -- "all of our theories of the case about this fiber and that hair; you can't, can you," and then they stand up here and argue in the face of the law, contrary to what the law says, that he should have explained it away. That is not so, I submit to you, and I suggest that you follow what the Judge tells you in this case rather than anything I said, and most assuredly, nothing you have heard from counsel over here.

What is the third rule that makes and guides your deliberations? It is the rule that has to do with the amount of proof -- the quantity that you have to see. From whom? From this table, from these lawyers, and that rule says that the quantity of proof must be beyond a reasonable doubt.

Now, those are not just words. It is what separates people around a coffee table from a jury. You have got a responsibility. The law imposes that upon you. You know that you are going to accept it. The question is whether you are getting the proper guidance. What does it mean when we tell you that as the third of these major rules, the case must be proven to you by this table beyond a reasonable doubt? There are lots of examples -- there are lots of examples.

I guess one that I have heard so many times and which I think is sufficiently clear in my own mind and that I can perhaps restate it without botching it up is the one that says, "Now, how do you know what is a reasonable doubt in a case?" Take a matter of some importance in your own life -- something of a really serious decision. Are you going to leave North Carolina and transport your family and move to some other part of the country and start a new life, start a new job, leave a career that you have engaged in for a long time and which you have much invested in it, start a new career -- going to make some important decision -- not little things we are talking about but something which has real serious meaning to you.

If, when you have all of the facts in front of you that relate to this decision, you are hesitant to go ahead with that decision, the law would say to you that the name we put upon that hesitation -- the hesitation to act when you have got all the data -- is the reasonable doubt that we are talking about. In other words, put as lawyers put it, it is probably incomprehensible -- needlessly so.

If in a matter of importance in your own lives, having the data in front of you, you hesitate to act, you then hold a reasonable doubt. When you hold a reasonable doubt, that means one thing and one thing only -- that the accused, the Defendant, Jeffrey MacDonald, if you hold a reasonable doubt, must be acquitted. That is what the law commands you. That is the third of these five principles.

Now, what kind of proof and how are you to weigh the kind of proof the Government has offered, which must be beyond a reasonable doubt in this case? It is circumstantial evidence. It is the indirect kind. Circumstantial evidence should not be less clear than direct evidence. It should not be more obscure and more difficult to follow. It ought to point correctly and clearly to the conclusions as argued by the side that offers it. It ought to point in a way in which when you would hear it, you would say to yourself, "I do not hesitate. This is a matter of importance right now. I do not hesitate on these facts or on the conclusions that they want me to draw from it. These facts don't allow any hesitation and doubt. I do not have a reasonable doubt. I must convict." That is what circumstantial evidence is.

It says that it has got to be clear enough for you to figure out that it really does stand for proof beyond a reasonable doubt on that subject. It is the indirect evidence and you have heard all about that, but do not for a moment consider the idea that because someone has called it circumstantial evidence, that therefore, you are allowed to be confused by it, and therefore say, "Well, I will accept some lesser amount -- some lesser quality of this proof because they have called it circumstantial evidence." That is not the law.

His Honor will define circumstantial evidence for you. It is, of course, acceptable. Nobody is quarreling about that. There is no challenge to circumstantial evidence. It is useful, but it has to point in a way with clarity to the inference, the conclusion that those lawyers for that side want you to draw from it, and if it does not, they have not met that standard. They have not met the proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

Now, the last thing that I want to say about the five rules -- I know that I have taken a bit of time, but you cannot discuss that case without knowing how you are supposed to measure it. What is the standard? The last one, I have already alluded to and I am going to state it very briefly and say to you that that fifth rule that you take to the jury room is that the burden of proof does not shift to the Defendant.

He does not have to prove anything. You will also be told that the Defendant does not even have to testify. He could sit here with arms folded and say, "Go ahead, Government. Under our system of law, you have to prove it, and if you don't, I am entitled to get up and say to the jury that they have fallen on their faces, and I am entitled to an acquittal." He has done more than that in this case -- far more than that -- but by the act of going ahead and putting on evidence, that does not change anything and that is what the Government's lawyers are arguing this morning, that because MacDonald -- Jeffrey MacDonald -- he has assumed some burden.

The Government has had a theme that I find needs to be commented on quite early in this case. They keep talking about what the physical evidence says in this case and that is what it all is. It is how they have arranged to interpret and understand the physical evidence. The Government says, "Physical evidence doesn't lie." They said that in the beginning. They say it now. I want to tell you something else. Physical evidence doesn't say a darn thing. Physical evidence lies there. The fibers lie there. Everything lies there. The only thing that is speaking is not the physical evidence, but it is the interpreter speaking. Who is the interpreter of the evidence for you? The non-partisan, the fellow on the white horse and the shining armor? Not at all. It is my adversary -- my opponent on the other side.

Physical evidence does not say anything to you. The physical evidence in this case is subject to their views, as I submit, and is subject to my views. I will suggest to you that we will go through those views as I see this evidence and submit to you that there is a more logical and reasonable and understandable way of seeing this evidence that clearly and under no situation has the Government seen this evidence for you and interpreted it for you in a way that one could conclude beyond a reasonable doubt.

We have waited here seven weeks and then in the final minutes of the three-hour opening address this morning to learn what the Government's interpretation of this evidence is. Their interpretation, I say to you, defies the logic, defies what the facts that you know in this case is, defies any reasonable acceptance of their position. And that is that somehow Jeff MacDonald took this club, pushed it in his wife's belly, swung it a la baseball bat, clubbed Kimberly, killed his wife, struck his wife, and moved the bodies. I dare say that not one member of this audience, least of all myself, could repeat to you right this minute in correct fashion the sequence and order of all the events the Government said happened.

They have not succeeded in telling you a coherent, a logical explanation for these events, which is what their burden is in this case from start to finish; and certainly, they have not done any of that beyond a reasonable doubt.

What is this case really about? The case is about what happened to people. Knives don't kill by themselves anyway. Ice picks don't attack people by themselves anyway. Clubs and any other weapons do not function by themselves. They function because there are human beings who have motives, who have reasons. We ought to be able to see those factors right here in front of us in this courtroom. Heaven knows, after seven weeks, there has been enough time. After nine and a half years, there has been enough time to be able to explain what people did in this case.

The Government, instead of talking about people, have castigated me because I asked Jeff about his life -- about the human being. Well, I thought that if you were going to believe that he did it, you are going to have to believe that this man was capable of some monstrous acts. I get faulted for that, too.

The Government insists that what you ought to do is take the fibers in one room, twist them all together into a thread, and they will hang this entire case by that thread. It is absolutely beyond me as to where a jury who has heard this same evidence could conclude that they have done anything except continue to twist the fibers around and leave them lying all over the place going in every direction and many, many different conclusions.

Now, one of the things about the physical evidence, of course, is the fact that none of it is new. I said that earlier and I come back to it now. It has been in this case from day one. It has been in this case from the first efforts of the CID to try and understand this case, but what happened to this physical evidence? The Government shuts its eyes, puts its head in the sand collectively, and avoids looking at the reality. Much fun, apparently, has been made by the Government about the idea that we have been roundly and severely critical of the crime scene and the crime scene process.

We did offer you the testimony of Professor James Osterburg, a Professor of Criminal Justice at the University of Illinois, Chairman of the Department of the University of Indiana, Chairman of the Department for 20 years in New York City, Homicide Detective, Crime Scene Processor, author of books on the basic elements of criminal investigation. There was no rebuttal. There was no response. There was no criticism and no debate that what he said is, in fact, a correct statement of the responsibility for a criminal investigation.

Now, I want to say right now that you have never heard me or Wade say or anybody has been able to hear us say that what we demanded was some perfect investigation. This case has never been a question of whether perfection was achieved. Heaven only knows, what we asked for is competency because, as Professor Osterburg told us, as all investigative manuals tell us, not because they are some truth and that the real world is a different truth, but because what they tried to capture is the essence of good criminal investigation. What they tell us is that crime scenes have to be processed in a certain way if we are able to play detective and draw inferences and conclusions from the crime scene.

What is the purpose of going there? What is the purpose of collecting hundreds and hundreds of vials -- none of which all have been opened here -- none of which anybody actually dealt with, but we just talked about them in abstract -- what is the purpose of all that?

Professor Osterburg tells us, "If you are going to solve a crime or if you are at least going to preserve the information as to how it happened or perhaps find the information of who did it, there are certain fundamental steps." The first thing you do is to protect the crime scene. Yes, of course, as Professor Osterburg said, "Primarily, if you find a living human being, you, of course, must save that at the price of letting physical evidence be destroyed or damaged."

The Government would have you believe that its life-saving efforts, consisting of one man, Kenneth Mica, giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, that that justifies the multitude of people marching through this crime scene for hours and hours afterwards -- the multitude of acts which I will cover one by one with you which unalterably and forever prevented this crime scene from serving as the basis for all of the invention and hypothesis and invention of theories and speculation by Government counsel.

Now, after they process it, what do we know the basic, ordinary criminal investigation required? Remember, we are not talking -- we never asked Professor Osterburg what is a perfect investigation or even what is an outstanding investigation. Let's go beyond that. You need to process it fully and carefully to uncover the trace element clues that area available there. I will talk about that aspect also further, but let me just lay it out for you, if I may, the beginning.

What are the things that need to be done if the Government is to be allowed to do anything with the physical evidence, let alone tell you that they have established a theory beyond a reasonable doubt?

The third thing is that you photograph the findings. Why? Because the scene can obviously not stay that way forever, and you want to be able to think and reason and study and be able to draw inferences and conclusions later on.

You know what the photographing was like -- the Dempsey Dumpsters -- that will always stay forever, in at least my mind, as to why the photographs didn't really come out right. Somebody got sick, somebody didn't have enough flashbulbs, and then the Dempsey Dumpsters, one of the critical things like fingerprints, critical matters like the blood spots which we cannot, of course, today see in our own courtroom here in clarity and detail to draw inferences from.

The fourth thing that Professer Osterburg points out is that after you have got preservation of the crime scene, where you have got your processes of fully and carefully being photographed, then you do scientific evaluations, and of the photos, you draw conclusions from it. I want to submit to you that the evidence clearly supports the conclusion in this case that the CID failed abysmally to do that. They failed on every one of those scores. Since 1970, the same prosecution ideas have existed trying to make the crime scene work where it cannot work. It cannot support inferences. It is a house built upon the sand of a chaotic and disorganized investigation.

Why did it happen? I am not in the business here of coming to condemn the CID or anyone else. They did a job. Their witnesses were here and weren't even cross-examined by Defense counsel. Neither Wade nor I asked any questions of witnesses whose testimony seemed straightforward and who seemed competent for what they did. I do not apologize. I don't think any Defense counsel has to apologize for being hard and being critical of incompetence which then is used in justifying to say, "But regardless of all the mistakes we did which altered the crime scene, we are allowed to make deductions and inferences." If we have learned anything from this trial about criminal investigations, it is that you can't do that. An investigator who purports to do that deserves not only my criticisms and condemnations but everyone else who has heard that person.

Now, who were the persons at the crime scene? The MPs at this crime scene, in my judgment, and I think that it is fair inference of the jury to draw the same conclusions, that they were young, were inexperienced, were not professionals in law enforcement. You only saw, by the way, two of them -- Tevere and Mica. Mica had become a Specialist at that time and he had had college training before then, but all we are saying to you is that the first men on the scene were young and immature. They acted, I think, as sensibly as they could.

Thereafter, they were followed by what seems to be innumerable MPs, but yet, we are able to piece together from the evidence of this case about 15 MPs. I am going to show that to you in a minute. What happened there? Because of their youth and inexperience, they also lacked leadership. Who was in charge here? I mean, nothing could point out better the question of the inexperience of these investigators -- these MPs, rather.

You remember the episode when they first arrived at the front door of 544 Castle Drive and they found the door locked. They called back to headquarters and said, "Can we break in?" The cool voice of an experienced person -- a sergeant back at the desk -- said, "Try the back door." That is a good idea. Why didn't they do it? Not because they are bad people, but they just did not know what they were up to. We accept that as a reality. What is unreal is that the Government is attempting to build its house upon the sand of such inexperience.

Finally, they get in. Who is in charge here now? Who is in charge here is somebody called Lieutenant Paulk. I don't remember Lieutenant Paulk's face. I do not remember his voice. The man in charge of the crime scene has never, never appeared here. Without his leadership, without anybody's leadership, what did the MPs do? Go to the house. Tevere has his pistol out -- his revolver out -- his pistol. He has his pistol out and goes down the hall and Mica is behind him. Why? Because they reasonably think there might be somebody else there. What are they looking for at the end of the hallway and down near the living room? Are they looking for threads and fibers? Of course not. They are looking for suspects. Is that the right thing to do? Of course, it is sensible to do. Is it the right thing to therefore conclude later on that there could have been no fibers moved or disturbed or caught on boots or wet shoes marching and coming out to the grass, to the lawn, to the front steps? Is it wrong to conclude that? Of course, that is the wrong conclusion.

There was nothing wrong with what they were doing, though. They were looking for, first of all, possible suspects who were in the house. They go down through the hallway and to the head of the living room and look around and go back. Now, they find for the first time what has happened. Dr. MacDonald has moved -- remember, Mica has said that the first time, they thought the man and woman were both dead -- MacDonald is lying face down on the woman. That is the first time.

Let's leave that for a minute, but we will come back. I want to just talk about who were the people that were there. As a matter of fact, let's do it right this minute if you will bear with me. I want to suggest to you that based upon the evidence of the case, you ought to conclude that the following individuals have been identified as having been at the crime scene and have been through some or all parts of it.

Let's deal, first of all, with the MPs -- Tevere and Mica -- the only two MPs you saw -- the only two MPs you heard from. I suggest to you that the rest of the names that I will call out to you are names that various persons testified remember seeing people there -- Hageny, Caldwell, D'Amore, Selvey, Stokes, Duffy, Dickerson, and Morris -- one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten -- enlisted persons.

Who else was there? Lieutenant Paulk, the officer in charge. Who else shows up at the crime scene before any CID agent? We don't know their names -- two ambulance drivers. We now have a dozen people at the crime scene. Then, we have Dr. Neal. The Government did not choose to call Dr. Neal and it became, I am sure, unalterably clear to you yesterday when you heard him why they didn't call him, as he described one of the other major changes in the crime scene -- the movement of the bodies of the deceased persons. These persons were at the crime scene earlier.

Who else arrived at the crime scene? A warrant officer -- Chief Warrant Officer Grebner. Have you noticed his absence -- his name, Franz Joseph Grebner, heard over and over again. Who was in charge here? Mr. Ivory said, "I am only the lead investigator." Who was in charge here? "That is Grebner." Where was Grebner? Why did we not see him or hear from him -- the lead investigator -- the man in charge of the most important homicide investigation the Army had at the time -- where was he?

Who else shows up? The overall Chief of Police at Fort Bragg -- Colonel Kriwanek. Who else shows up? Major Parsons -- his assistant. My best recollection of the evidence -- and you, the members of the jury, have to draw your own conclusion -- is that, if we take the word of Mr. Ivory, that just about everybody in sight was huddled in the corner of the living room or standing outside guarding the front steps or the back steps. The answer is that when Ivory arrived at the scene, there were any substantial number of MPs who had been there before him. There were two ambulance drivers who were there before him because when Ivory arrived, he saw the ambulance drivers taking out Dr. MacDonald through the living room.

Now, what is the effect of all of this? What are we talking about? Why are we making such a point of this? Because, if you can recall, one of the major arguments of the Government is that we don't find fibers here in the living room. First of all, I submit to you that Dr. MacDonald has never said that he remembers hearing a ripping sound of his pajama top. What he has said, and you have heard his testimony and you have it before you is this: his pajama top was grabbed and it was pulled over him as best that he could recall.

Remember, he has never said, "I have a specific recollection. I walked into here. I did that." That is absurd to expect that. It was pulled over his head hockey style in a hockey fight. One player grabs another and pulls it over. He also used the expression, "ripped from him," from which the Government says, "Ah-ha, that means that the fabric ripped." Even if that was so, there are two complete, you know, explanations that are at least as reasonable as what the Government says.

The first explanation is as follows: if the pajama top was ripped down the front where there was not a seam, the only scientist who did a study of this was Dr. Thornton and what did Dr. Thornton say? He would tear the 65-35 fabric on an unseamed part and he had virtually no fibers to fall out. You remember, he did a number of experiments. He had two or three fibers.

By the way, were there any fibers found in or about here (indicating)? Mr. Shaw -- Mr. Shaw, the CID investigator, said that he found near the south edge of the hallway step here three fibers. He doesn't recall whether he collected them or not. The Government says, "Oh, that is not the living room. Ignore that." All right, we ignore that. His correct testimony, I believe, shows that Shaw saw fibers there.

By the way, where was Dr. MacDonald lying after the struggle? Where did he say? On the steps across here (indicating). Is that consistent with where the fibers were found? I think so. I think you have a right to conclude the same thing. Perhaps there are other fibers. What could have happened to them that is equally consistent with the Government's theory?

Please take note, members of the jury, I cannot remember this for you, about the red mark here on the floor. The red mark here on the floor represents Mr. Ivory's marking of the gurney. When he came in, he saw the gurney being rolled down the hallway as he came in the front door with Dr. MacDonald's body on it. What did he see? He drew the line. Where did he draw it? Right across the living room floor and right across the heart of the crime scene. Where else might he expect to find one or two other fibers of the pajama top? That is at least as consistent as the Government's explanation. It is just as rational.

The gurney coming through -- did it disturb any fibers? It had the potential to do that. Did the feet of the ambulance drivers -- the medics -- have a potential of touching, carrying, and transporting on their wet soles the fibers? Of course, they did. That is at least as consistent as what the Government has to say.

What else do we have? At that time, by the way, was Mr. Ivory looking for fibers? Did he know anything about fibers? He is coming in and getting the first briefing. What does he do? Walks right past it down the hallway through the same traveled area.

There is a third explanation. I want to show you a picture about that. Why no fibers, they want to know, besides the fact that the garment -- no one has said for certain that the garment was torn there. If it was, it was torn here (indicating) on the middle part and there would not be fibers. Here, I want to show you a picture that has been introduced in evidence. This photograph is one that was made after Specialist Mica testified.

He described this and pointed it out on the model himself. In your absence, with the agreement of the Court and counsel, we photographed what he saw. This is the man who walked through the crime scene, picked up the flower pot, put it upright, and thereby misleading the CID investigators and Mr. Medlin and others. We will talk about that also. He sat down on the sofa. That is the position where Mr. Mica placed that man. Then, he was told to get up and get out. He got up and walked back across there. Where is that man seated? That man is seated on the middle of the sofa. Is that a reasonable place for fibers from the pajama top if it was torn there? It would seem so. I think you have a right to conclude that.

There is a person sitting on it who has been out in the rain. We would have the right to conclude that he is possibly damp and possibly wet sitting on the sofa. Is he a potential transporter or remover of the fibers? Of course. That is at least as consistent an explanation of what happened to the fibers as anything the Government says. That is the picture taken pursuant to Mica's describing what happened there.

By the way, here is another photograph. This is a photograph that was taken when Mr. Ivory left the room. This is what he showed us in the courtroom. This is the gurney with Dr. MacDonald's body going right across the living room floor and right in front of the sofa. Where? Where the struggle took place and where Dr. MacDonald described hockey-style pulling over of the pajama top or that it was ripped from him.

I do not have to prove that to you. I only point out that it is a reasonable explanation. That does not mean that the Defendant -- that I or Dr. MacDonald have assumed the burden or that the law imposed it on us because we point out to you the obvious explanations for physical facts in this case.

Now, let's go through the rest of these -- well, let's talk about the rest of that living room for a minute. The Government has talked very little about the so-called staging of the crime scene. It was only in the last few minutes of their discussion that they mentioned it. The fact is at the heart of the Government's case that they have to persuade you that Dr. MacDonald staged the crime scene living room.

Why? Because, according to their theory, nothing happened in terms of a violent struggle in the living room that night; therefore, if the CID and the MPs found the sofa overturned, the children's materials here on the edge, the magazine down below here, the mucilage on the floor -- if that were so, then what the Government is saying to you by silence because they are embarrassed and because they realize they cannot persuade anybody of the facts -- what they are saying to you by silence is that Dr. MacDonald staged that crime scene. What a brilliant staging.

There is a photograph here in evidence. I will describe it to you and ask you to remember it. But there is one thing for sure, if I don't come back to it in a few minutes, I pass it not because it doesn't exist so, but I will tell you that I strongly urge you to look through the books of photographs in this case. There are several photographs showing the coffee table on end. There is dangling from one of the slats -- it is there on two or three of the photographs -- a child's drawing in crayon dangling from the slat here in the picture. Now, since it had to be a staged crime scene because the Government says nothing happened here, look at the fiendish plotting of this man -- MacDonald -- that he remembered to put the child's picture dangling in. Why didn't he leave it on the floor? Look for the picture.

The Government doesn't want to talk about the staged crime scene theory too much, for some very obvious reasons. You remember Mr. Medlin -- he is the Chief of the team from the CID Laboratory at Fort Gordon. What does Medlin say? On cross-examination, he said that when he looked at the living room and he saw the flower pot standing upright, what did he conclude in his mind? He decided that that was a staged scene. Of course, we now know that neither he nor Mr. Ivory nor anyone else had interviewed any of the MPs at that time about the movement of the crime scene. Yes, some of the MPs were sent back to headquarters. They were asked what they knew about the crime. Nobody at that point, because nobody was thinking professionally and competently at that juncture, was talking about: "Are there any alterations of the crime scene?"

Remember, members of the jury, when we asked Mr. Mica: "When was the first time anybody ever asked you about the flower pot or about the man on the sofa?" He said, "When I testified at the military proceedings in 1970," and when I as defense counsel asked him about it, it was the first time. It was a thunderclap to the CID and to the Government. It shouldn't have been. Why? Because if they had followed the first principles in investigation, they would have preserved and protected the crime scene and they would have made sure that that crime scene was inviolate.

The one thing I recall and perhaps you recall about the evidence at the crime scene is this: I remember Mr. Ivory saying and Mr. Tevere saying that people kept shouting, "Don't touch anything." Right? We heard it a number of times, "Don't touch anything." They gave lots of instructions to "Don't touch."

It was Professor Osterburg who said kind of simply and made such a mockery of that approach to the crime scene protection of giving orders for that protection. He said, "The first thing you do is that you get everybody out of there who isn't absolutely necessary." Why were all of these men standing around? Why was a man in the living room who could walk from here to there and pick up a flower pot, sit on the sofa where the fibers possibly are, go back across the room, walk across the floor again -- why was that man there? There is no reason except one. They did not understand the first thing about control of the crime scene nor its importance in the eventual trying to work on a solution to the crime to try and find clues that would help us in this case.

Let's just go through the things that happened in the living room. Besides the pot being picked up, the man sitting on the sofa where the struggle takes place, there are the floating clothes. You remember the clothes that were here in some photograph at the end of the sofa and were then on the step at some other time. Again, the Government is pooh-poohing all of that. Why pooh-pooh it? There are only a couple of fibers that are likely to be there if you rip a garment down here or if it is ripped at all. You already have people walking back and forth, the gurney, people going down the hall who have no reason to be looking for fibers. That is not their concern.

Now, on top of that, they are picking up clothing that is either here or there and they are moving it back. What does that do? There is no potential there to pick up a fiber on some of the items that were there? Of course, there is. That is a more logical explanation of what is going on about the fibers in the living room than anything, I think, that you have heard from the Government.

There were other photos we showed you. I am not going to go through it all again, but I ask you to go through your recollections. We showed you photos about the pillows at the end of the sofa. They are not shown here. There is a brown pillow. In photograph after photograph, the pillows are in different positions. We showed you photographs what -- to the shock of the Government and to Mr. Ivory on the stand -- of the eyeglasses lying there, one time lying like this in the photograph and the next photograph this way (indicating). Now, what is the point of that? We are not trying to make a mountain out of a molehill. The case will not rise or fall on the glasses being turned around. The case doesn't rise and fall on the fact that the curtains were moved and in one of the photographs that we showed you about how the switch on the wall of the outlet was covered and in the next, the curtains were moved to some other position. The case doesn't rise and fall on those facts. It rises and falls on what you must conclude happened -- that they didn't understand that the living room was an important part of the crime scene and they didn't understand how to protect it and preserve the physical evidence and the trace evidence in that room. They did not protect this scene and inferences or conclusions that the Government asks you to draw from it are simply unjustified and unfounded.

The last thing about the living room that I will mention to you so that we don't get ourselves forever and ever talking about that thing, but it does seem to me that the missing wallet is an interesting story. I have heard no witness except Mr. Ivory repeating what he heard other people think happen explaining what happened to the wallet in this room.

Mr. Ivory did say that a wallet that was believed to have belonged to Dr. MacDonald was stolen from the desk over near the door. He even mentioned a man's name. There is not the slightest word of evidence to support that. It is absolutely unsupported. We have never heard any proof of that. Was anybody prosecuted for the theft of that? Can you imagine someone stealing an officer's wallet in the Army and not being prosecuted? That is just absolutely Government talk without the facts or evidence to back it up.

Besides that, although, that is what Mr. Ivory said that a man stole a wallet believed to have belonged to Dr. MacDonald, Officer Mica saw a different wallet or another wallet. You remember, we had a little piece of yellow paper put down in that picture. He said that on the floor here (indicating) near the bottom of the coffee table, there was a wallet lying on that floor. It was not shown in the photographs, yet, he saw it. What happened? Again, the case does not rise and fall on that. What does fall on that is the Government's contention that it has a crime scene upon which it can base deductions and ask you to draw inferences and say that they have met their burden of proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

Now, let's take a look at some other parts of the house. I think that it is important to take a look, if you will, with me at the master bedroom. The Government has made its final lunge at Dr. MacDonald today by saying that he ripped off the pajama top in this bedroom, the fibers then fell to the floor, and at some later time, he brings Colette MacDonald's body and lies it down on the floor; and therefore, that is how the fibers -- some of them -- are found underneath her body outline.

The facts that you have heard in this case do not support that theory. There are at least a number of other reasonable inferences. Let me show you some other photographs. Dr. MacDonald has said that when he came into the master bedroom, he found his wife, Colette, with her shoulder propped up against this green leather chair.

If you will look carefully at photo G-43 -- you will have a chance later on -- but you will see again here are the reddish stains against the side of the vinyl chair. It is a little bit difficult because of the color registration, but it is clearly there on close examination. That, as Dr. MacDonald said, is the position in which he found his wife. What did he do at that time? He says that his pajama top was still tangled around his wrists and hands. At that point, he did rip them from him -- although he didn't hear the sound -- he tears them from him because he cannot treat and deal with his wife.

He pulls her away from that green vinyl chair. What he said yesterday or the other day when he testified, six inches to a foot, and then the Government almost leaped through the ceiling -- why MacDonald -- six inches to a foot -- he has never said that before. You don't need to have Dr. MacDonald's word on that score. You have what Officer Mica saw.

Again, when Mica was here, he used the doll-like figures that we had to indicate the positions that he found the bodies on the floor and how they were moved. I want to show to you now, members of the jury, a series of photographs that were taken. They don't do anything different than what Mica did here in the courtroom. They just register and capture the specific moment.

The first photograph shows as Officer Mica initially observed the positions of Dr. MacDonald and Colette MacDonald. That is, that Colette MacDonald was on her back. She was not at that juncture lying next to the green chair, so we know that because of the fact that there is blood on the front of the green chair, that she had to have been moved already somewhat, and that here, he is lying down face down on her.

Here is another photograph which is just merely a close-up of the same positioning of the bodies. Now, if you will look at the scale on this model -- the one inch equals one foot -- now, it is difficult because we don't have a scale ruler down on here -- but looking at the rough positioning in here (indicating) of the bodies as Mica puts them -- not Jeffrey MacDonald -- as Mica would have no interest in this case and Mica who is the person that remained in professional law enforcement sees it -- it is not unreasonable to say that it is somewhere between six inches and a foot.

Now, Mica then further showed us what he did. He got down between the two bodies -- between Jeff's body and Colette's body. You may remember the thing that caused him to come there was a first stirring when Jeff rolled over on his shoulder. That is the first thing that made him think that the man was alive. Here, you can see how Mica placed the figures that were given to him in the presence of Government counsel and the moment was preserved by the photograph -- getting down between the bodies of Colette and Jeffrey MacDonald.

Well, what happened? Jeff's body was already moved. Now, you have a close-up of the same situation showing that taking place, and finally, you see what are Mica's actions in that regard. Mica attempts to give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Three consecutive times, he gave mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to Dr. MacDonald.

Let's take a look at a close-up view of the same thing. He is between the bodies of Jeffrey MacDonald and Colette. Look at the position he is in. While there is no specific recollection, and why would anybody think to recall that, I think it is as reasonable to infer that as Mica attempted to tend the only living human being in this house -- to deal with that crisis -- he is not worrying whether or not Colette MacDonald's body -- she was dead then; he knew it then and he said so -- whether that is moved a bit by his feet, by his hip, or his thigh as he gets down and tries to perform mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. There is no reason to think that didn't happen. It is perfectly reasonable to believe that in taking care of this one man -- consider the small size of the rooms here.

Finally -- finally, Mica shows us the ultimate position he had Dr. MacDonald moved in. In this photograph, the body is moved further. What has happened to Colette -- you can still see Colette MacDonald's body -- it is at least six inches to a foot away from where she was originally located because we know the blood stains were on the vinyl chair. All this has happened. What is it doing to the fibers? Why is it unreasonable to accept Dr. MacDonald's explanation? He tore it off, he moved his wife's body. There are a handful of fibers under her body. The majority of fibers in that room are found where? Of the fibers that were collected by the CID, three quarters of them are found outside of the body outline. Remember, Ivory said that there were many, many more fibers that were not even collected. Doesn't that sound exactly like what Jeffrey MacDonald said? He ripped off the pajamas from his arms around the binding and he tossed them away. In that act, if he tore the seams, that would be the only way and only time it could happen -- at that time, there is a profusion and a large number of fibers are deposited on the floor.

The Government says there is only one explanation because they have to prove this to you beyond a reasonable doubt that the fibers were all there and the body was placed on top of it. If you do not find that singular fact proven to you beyond a reasonable doubt, what has happened to the Government's theory of this case?

Let's stay in the master bedroom for a bit more. There is a pile of bedding in the master bedroom -- the bedding from which the Government has drawn so many fanciful inferences. What about the various blood marks they see on there -- the pictures that Mr. Stombaugh has seen in the bedroom?

First of all, where is the bedding seen when the first, I think, reliable observer of the scene comes on. Again, I direct your attention to the testimony of Officer Mica. Mica says that he saw the bedding -- and I am quoting to you to the best of my recollection, but again, you depend on yours in terms of what you think happened -- but my recollection is from the record of this case that he said, the bedding was at the foot of the bed. Now, what do the photographs in this case show?

I show you Government's photograph 211, and then I will show you 210. Where is the pile of bedding? That is not at the foot of the bed. It is next to the closet with the open door. That is where it is. How does it get there? Again, go back to the events as we know them to have happened.

Dr. MacDonald described it -- it is supported by Mica and Tevere -- they all agreed it essentially would happen -- he opens his eyes and looks up and he sees what, a circle of helmets of MPs over him and is wondering what to do, trying to be helpful, excited, calling out, giving instructions; but how could they have been doing that if his body was as Mica shows us in the last of these photographs here. Take a look at this photograph.

Now, just for a moment, if you will, members of the jury, look at where Mica and Jeff MacDonald's bodies are placed. What we don't have shown here -- this is a photograph of where the medics who took the bodies away were -- but what we don't have is a photo because no one remembers with precision exactly where the substantial number of MPs were standing around the bodies. If, in fact, the bedding was there at the foot of the bed as Mica described it, what is likely to have happened to it? Well, one reasonable inference you could draw is that somebody not caring about the bedding, but caring about what was happening to a person, kicked it aside toward the closet. That is a reasonable inference.

As a matter of fact, I think there is more than one reasonable inference. Look again at the same photograph. You see the gurney here. This is where Mica says that the medics came in and pushed that rolling bed into the room. Now, what is underneath the rolling bed? What is underneath is the bedding. There are probably two possibilities -- two inferences you could draw from that.

The first inference is that probably it wasn't there yet, but it was probably over by the foot of the bed and not kicked over there until later on or moved over there until later; or, in fact, that the gurney touched or moved, or the MP or the medics who were handling it touched or moved, these sheets that were over there. Now, apparently, there are no wheel marks on those sheets; but we were told that they rolled this gurney down the hall and rolled it into the room. You remember, there was a whole issue about how they brought it down the hall, and I thought it was interesting myself to realize that they didn't even pick it up and carry it -- they could have. That was probably a little bit more work, a little heavy. We are told that they rolled the gurney all the way down the crime scene hallway. Whatever fibers were still there at this juncture, they disturbed potentially. They rolled it into this room and the picture shows where Officer Mica says that the gurney came to rest.

What does it tell you about the fiber situation? What does it tell you about the bedding situation here? It tells you that anybody who attempts to draw inferences that this crime scene was preserved so we can now make deductions from it is following a path that is going to lead to disaster. You cannot -- cannot make those inferences. The facts are not there. They did not preserve that scene.

What else happened? What else? What is Dr. Neal doing? Dr. Neal came in and said that he moved the body, he moved the pajamas, he lifted it up. You don't need a great deal of moving. You don't have to drag the body around this tiny room in order to understand how some fibers got under the body which did not necessarily have to be under the body when Colette fell to the floor. That is at least as reasonable an explanation as anything that the Government's contrived theory submits to you.

What else was going on in this particular room? Consider Colette's body itself. It is proof, I think, of the total fallacy of wrong deductions from this crime scene. The Government has built a great theory about the pajama top -- the blue pajama top over Colette's body. It stands, I think, on the same kind of sand the balance of their analysis does. Dr. Neal said that the breast -- and other witnesses said -- Mica said that her breast was partially exposed. Now, what does the photograph show in that regard? I want to show you what the crime scene photos indicate to us and compare them, if you will, to, in fact, what the witness is telling us.

Dr. Neal -- what does he say? The pajama top was moved. If you will, members of the jury, take a look at 41. That is one picture of Colette MacDonald as her body was covered partially by the pajama top. That is not the way when Mica was showing it, but he said,

"The way I saw it." He described the pajama top being in a lower position. He describes part of the bare abdomen being exposed. There is not a person who saw her body with the pajama top until Ivory, who agrees that that is the position when they initially saw it, but again, from this fallacious photograph -- a photograph which is, I think, unintentially misleading but should not have been misleading if they were good investigators and followed basic rather than extraordinary practices -- they would have learned that this had been moved by Neal and by other persons either unintentially or otherwise, and that deductions based upon that are going to lead to error.

Now, there is something else that the Government spent very little time on in talking about this particular crime scene. It is the fact that on the feet of Colette MacDonald, there was blood. Let's take a look at that again. There is a photograph -- in fact, there are a number the Government introduced -- and we are also -- in the break, I will pull the photograph out and show it to you more properly -- there was a photograph in which the body of Colette MacDonald was turned this way (indicating) and you will see that her feet show clearly blood stains.

How did she get those? What is the Government's explanation? What is their theory? Their theory is that she was carried into the bedroom and deposited on top of fibers. How does she get blood stains on her foot? There are, I am sure -- I am sure that for every alternate theory that I point out to you that is reasonable deductible from the facts in this case -- contrary to what the Government says -- the Government will come back because they have the last say and come up with one more explanation, and I will have and Wade will have no chance to respond. We have only one opportunity to talk to you this time. The Government gets the last say. I want to point out to you -- it doesn't matter if the Government comes back and springs up and says, "Well, we have another theory about Colette MacDonald's foot and the blood." Why? The more theories they have, the more clear it becomes that the five rules by which you will be guided in your decision making cannot lead you to the conclusion that the Government has met its burden of proof in this case.

The five rules will tell you that every time they come up with a change to explain another event because their case is built upon assumptions that are not supported by reality, it is once more proof to you that they have not met their burden in this case.

Now, what about the bedclothes in this case? What about the sheets that we talked about that were on the floor? How did they get to be there? There are at least several rational explanations for that. First of all, we know that they are partially folded back to clear away the large urine stain that was on the bedsheet. That urine stain is not disputed. The Government showed it, the Government concedes it, it is here, we have the sheet, and we know from the size of the urine stain that it required a substantial amount of the top bedding -- the top sheet and the bedspread over it -- to be pulled back. It is a fairly large circle -- probably 18 inches in diameter.

We have, therefore, the first of several, I think, rational explanations about where and how the bedding started on the eventual trip that brought it to the floor. It is folded back by Jeff to air the bedding. How did it get off the bed? There are at least two rational explanations probably as convincing, if not more so, than any theory the Government has offered yet about that. One, that when Colette MacDonald was first attacked in her bed, the attackers ripped it off and pulled it back to be able to attack her body; secondly, that when she got up and left that room -- because I think that the evidence indicates that that is exactly what happened -- that when she left that room, she may have knocked or brushed, in her wounded condition, that off the bed. Mica tells us that that was at the foot of the bed.

Now, what happens to that sheet besides the fact that we know that it had to travel on the floor and that it had to move from the foot of the bed to the position over here at the door and that it may have been moved again by the medical personnel because I don't think they ran the gurney over it, although it is certainly possible -- we didn't see any tire tracks, but that may be very possible and the wheels of the gurney may have gone over it -- what happened to the gurney when the investigators come to it? How do they handle it?

They don't know what is there. They first pick it up and out falls a piece of latex. They then say, "Gee, we better gather it up." So, you remember the famous demonstration of Mr. Ivory and myself and then how he and Mr. Shaw gathered it. I call it the famous "CID clutch" because he showed us how he gathered the sheets together and put it into a bag which I held was smaller than the bundle. It was not a large bag. You will remember that it just fit into the bundle. It slid in and what happened? Where he touched it like this, the sheets are now in changed contact positions. They are fitted into the bag. Then, what did he do? You may recall that he twisted the top and wound up putting it over here (indicating).

Now, what does that mean? You have every reason to believe from all the evidence in this case that the blood was still moist and that the sheets touching each other with the blood on them produced these contacts which account for some of the various smears in there. That is at least as rational as any explanation the Government has offered.

As a matter of fact, the Government's explanation as to these various markings -- the ones particularly that Mr. Stombaugh characterized as handprints -- if there is anything in this case that I think has been disproven by the simple truth of showing you rather than saying, "Take my word," it is what Chuck Morton from the Institute of Forensic Sciences did here in this courtroom -- the demonstration -- when he showed you in the little demonstration here that in fact that there was no cuff print there; it was a contact of a palm print and that Mr. Stombaugh doesn't know when the fibers went off of the cuff and that what you have here are friction ridges that run a different way, you can't call them cuff prints.

How did that happen? Chuck Morton explained that what you have when blood touches and when you have impressions and when you are making contacts that you have a transference process. We did the same thing with the palm prints. The palm prints went this way (indicating) -- the handprints. If you push your finger down, as Chuck pointed out to you, and you have blood underneath, what happens to the fat part of your finger? It squishes the blood out -- it lays it out. What should be there, then, when the fat part of the finger touches? The least amount of blood, because it has displaced the blood and it pushed it out.

What do you have in Mr. Stombaugh's exhibit? The so-called handprint is where the fat part of the finger should be is the darkest circle of imprint and it is like the other way around. Now, you have two choices. One, in which you can say that we have had a forensic scientist who has come in and said, "In order to try and answer the question that has been put before me -- could this be a handprint -- this is what I have done and I show you the process whereby I did it," or you can take Mr. Stombaugh's word, "That is a handprint."

We said to Mr. Stombaugh, "What experiment did you conduct? What did you do in the way of scientific approach or in science as a whole?" He says, "No. I looked at it and I recognized it. I am an impressions expert." I want to say to you that deductions made by the Government from the sheet which is gathered up in the fashion I described with blood on it and which you have a right to conclude was still moist and there is probably the transfer of the contact as the explanation of the so-called Stombaugh handprint, they are not handprints at all. I do not know how anyone in this jury could say that beyond a reasonable doubt, you have seen evidence that overcomes the demonstration that Chuck Morton did that says when the fat part of the finger touches, the blood is least there as opposed to what Mr. Stombaugh showed you where the fat part of the finger should be, there is the most blood there. There is no basis for his opinion. It is sheer poppycock and there is no basis for the jury to consider this as proof beyond a reasonable doubt of that portion of the Government's theory.

Now, let's talk about, if we can, about another room. Let's talk about Kristen's room. The Government, in its final moments of argument, articulates this theory that Jeff MacDonald, for reasons that they do not suggest to you and for motives that are totally unclear and non-existent, as a matter of fact, that is where, we suggest, that the Government suggests there was a struggle and that the pajama top of Jeff MacDonald became bloodied and that was why he had to put it over her body later on and all these things that are happening.

What do we know about the fibers in Kristen's room? We know that the least number of fibers in this case -- the least -- were found in that room. If that was where the struggle took place -- if that is where the pajama top tearing took place, according to the Government's theory -- why are the least number of fibers there? You have to say to yourself, "There is probably another explanation we are going to hear." That ought to give you the answer. The more explanations the Government offers, the more you realize that the rules of law tell you that there is no proof beyond a reasonable doubt of any of what the Government is saying to you.

Now, not only was there movement in the master bedroom of Colette's body -- for all the reasons we have told you -- but there is also movement here for reasonable and understandable circumstances in Kristen's room.

First of all, Dr. MacDonald has testified that on at least two occasions, he went to the bedroom in these kind of hopeless circuits to do something he knew he had no point. He knew objectively that his family was dead, but what does one do, considering what had happened to him and his family, except that not knowing how else to respond to a tragedy of monstrous proportions, he gives mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Does he move the body? It is clear that he moves the body.

Now, what does the Government suggest? They haven't mentioned it yet, but I suspect that after we get done -- we pointed out to you that they have a theory about this regard -- they will say, "Ah-ha, if MacDonald really did give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to his family, he would have rolled the children flat on their backs. He would have done it the way we do it in demonstrations, you know, the perfect way." What Dr. MacDonald was doing was that he just put his mouth to his child's mouth and he knew the bubbles that were there. He knew that they were dead. He did not accept the reality. Who could accept the reality? Who could act like a rational, you know, scientist -- a rational person in the face of this?

I don't know what he did and he doesn't pretend to know. Did he move the body? Did he put the body flat on its back and then roll it over again? I don't know. Does anybody expect him to know? Does anyone really care, you know, that this was not a mouth-to-mouth demonstration. You only had to put your mouth there to find that there was air and he knew that his family was dead. He reached under the bedclothes to feel for pulses. Did he move the sheet? Did he have fibers on him? Consider that. Take his explanation as opposed to the ones the Government invents and offers to you.

At the time he went to Kristen's room, he had already been to his wife's room. He had ripped off the pajama top, he says. He had bent over her bloody chest with his bare body. You have every reason to believe, considering what was going on there and having the injuries that he had, that he might have even been sweaty. Put that aside for a moment. At least, we know he had blood on him.

Is it not reasonable, at least as reasonable as what the Government says, that he ripped off the pajama top and some of the fibers adhered to him? Why wouldn't they? If you rip off a garment and a man has hair on his arms -- that would be a woman also, but more particularly a man's hair -- might he not have gotten some fibers there? If he had blood on him, wouldn't the fibers adhere to the blood?

What is so impossible -- what is so conclusive of the Government's theory that makes Dr. MacDonald's explanation totally irrational to say that when he left his wife's room, he had no pajama top on, but who said he didn't have fibers on him from the pajama top? Now, let me just digress for a second because I find myself caught up in this kind of mystique that the Government creates.

He was wearing pajama bottoms also. You have all these charts the Government has pointed to and all of them have this wonderful label at the top, "Fibers that are microscopically identical to what -- Dr. MacDonald's pajama top." You have every reason to believe from the evidence in this case that the pajama bottom was the same pair -- the same pajamas -- the same top and bottom -- the same color -- and that, in fact, he was wearing them when he went from room to room. Were they torn in the struggle? Dr. MacDonald doesn't invent some story and tell you they were. He says, "I don't know -- I don't care. All I care about is that my family is dead. I am trying to figure out what to do. I am confused. I am trying to deal with myself," but he had them on also.

Might they not have also served as a carrier of the fibers -- one fiber brushing against the garment and if there was any blood on those pajama bottoms, the fibers would adhere to that wet. Why is that not at least as rational as what the Government says?

Then, they have more going on. You have Jeff coming to the bed. You have a moving of the body at least twice and some type of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation being given. Dr. Neal comes and he moves Kristen's body radically. He moves the body, and, obviously, the bedclothing with it. There is nothing terrible about that. Nobody is faulting that. What we are saying to you is how can you rely upon a conclusion that is built upon inferences that the crime scene was, in fact, absolutely static and untouched by anybody.

Finally, the movement by the medics. The medics come and they move the sheets, they remove the bedclothes, and they remove the body. By the way, how many medics moved Kristen's body? Well, it depends on who you talked with the Government. Mr. Ivory began with a little demonstration that we had him do and told us about how one medic went to each of the children's bodies and lifted it up and carried it out -- obviously worrying about fibers -- obviously not.

What did Mr. Shaw say? He said two medics went and moved each of the bodies. Why do I dwell on that point at all? First of all, let me just make this passing remark and I will come back to this. If Dr. MacDonald was to have made the same mistake, it would be in the Government's little blue book, he would be yelled at through their contradictions, and obviously, it would lead to the conclusion that Dr. MacDonald was telling a false story; but when Government agents, who should be, among other things, taking notes of what was going on because that is decent, minimal criminal investigation procedure, Government agents who have not been wounded or injured, Government agents who have not had their families wiped out, Government agents who are not suffering in any way in illness or defect or condition. When they can't get it straight about this kind of activity in a crime scene, how are we supposed to get worked up that MacDonald doesn't remember exactly whether he went to the bathroom first -- on the second circuit or the first circuit he went here or there. How can it compare with men who are supposed to be doing their trained best to handle an investigation but can't get it straight whether one medic moved the body or two; yet, they want you to believe it -- and they can't get it straight, however, that nothing was disturbed as far as fibers on the bedsheet and nothing could have happened to the bedclothes to change anything in the physical facts. It is not rational and is not an acceptable explanation; and more important than that, any case built upon such inferences from that scene cannot sustain its burden beyond a reasonable doubt.

Now, let's take a look at the blood in Kimberly's room -- again, we talk about Kimberly's room. There were two visits to her room by Dr. MacDonald. Dr. Neal is involved here in the room in moving it. There are two medics or one medic depending upon whose statement there is there. What is the reality here? The reality is that we are not sure how much there was in the way of movement of this body and the bodies, of the bedclothes, of any fibers, or of anything else that was there, but we are sure of something -- the photographs and deductions do not flow from those episodes.

Now, I want to talk about the blood question. Is there any blood in the living room? Let's start all over now with our circuit now and we will start with the living room. Is there blood in the living room? The Government makes a great to-do. I would suggest to you that probably the largest single crime that they would accuse Dr. MacDonald of is that he didn't die, he didn't suffer enough in their judgment, and therefore, that must lead you to the conclusion that he committed the murders.

First of all, I think the Government's findings are suspect, and you have a right to suspect and may be suspicious of those findings also as to what blood there was in the living room. Now, I don't think there was a great deal of blood because the nature of the injuries -- the puncture injuries with the ice pick were the least likely to produce profuse bleeding. We have learned that from all of the pathological evidence here. There were, in fact, three areas along the sofa wall that Craig Chamberlain went and examined because he believed that they might be blood. Now, this led us to a little scientific, you know, side jaunts about how does one detect blood. Chamberlain said that he used benzidine to see whether they gave reaction. He was asked a simple question that if he knew anything about blood typing, it seems to me, he would have known the answer.

He was asked if benzidine was specific for blood -- that is, it reacts to blood and that is it. If you get a reaction, you have blood, and if you don't, you don't have blood. He said, "Yes."

What was his training and knowledge in the area of blood? When Chamberlain did this, he was fresh out of college. He had a Bachelor's degree, he had eight semester credits in a graduate school in chemistry, he was drafted in the Army, he did eight weeks of basic, and had just finished his six-month course at a CID Laboratory and was on his first crime scene processing.

Dr. John Thornton, a Professor of Criminology at the University of California, testified here that with his experience in processing homicide crime scenes as well as other kind of crime scenes and that with his background and knowledge in the fields of criminalistics and forensic science, that benzidine is not specific for blood -- it reacts to other things. Now, it is clear -- I don't want to mislead you -- benzidine and blood -- it is highly sensitive to blood -- but Dr. Thornton pointed out that there is one more factor that you have to consider before you say that there was no blood there. That is, in fact, that if the quantity to be typed is too small, you may inadvertently conclude that it was not blood when, in fact, it may have been.

Now, the Government's theory that there was no blood in that room is premised on the assumption that Chamberlain was a fully-qualified expert to do blood testing on the crime scene. That is one of the interesting things -- what nine and a half years does to a case. Nine and a half years ago when I saw Craig Chamberlain, he was fresh out of college and fresh out of CID, you know, the six months training, the drug testing, and all the other things they do there, processing his first crime scene ever. And he is, I suggest to you, members of the jury, absolutely flat out wrong with the scientific facts about benzidine. His knowledge cannot be compared to that of John Thornton's.

Now, Chamberlain now has a Ph.D. He just got it last year. He works in a responsible position but nothing to do with forensic sciences. I think on balance, members of the jury, you have a right to conclude that, in fact, the Government does not know, and we do not know, whether or not those three spots on the wall in this position that would have to be more than coincidence right above the sofa whether or not blood ever existed there or not. It is a failure to properly process the crime scene. They keep coming back and haunting the Government's conclusions and opinions about this case.

There was also blood some place else. There were spectacles of Dr. MacDonald found in the room with a speck of blood, but in all these hints -- these dark hints by the Government that maybe he got it the night he worked at Hamlet Hospital. Well, you know, he worked in the hospital and he treated the young lady there and the suggestion was from the question that maybe that is how it got to be there. If anything you have learned physically about Dr. MacDonald is what -- is he a sloppy man? Is he a man likely to walk around with a blood spot on his reading glasses having to read for several hours? It does not seem to me that there is evidence to sustain such a conclusion. It is an equally likely inference in this case that that blood spot is a product of the struggle that he had in the living room. Even if you cannot say that you accept that, you have to say to yourself, members of the jury, that the Government has not proved beyond a reasonable doubt that there was no blood of Dr. MacDonald's in that room.

Now, let's talk about the blood in Kristen's room because there, I would think, is an issue that is worth some understanding -- more so than I think the Government's theory allows. It is the only room in the house where there is a significant quantity of blood of someone else. Colette MacDonald's type blood is found in a significant quantity there as well as in the hallway right outside Kristen's room where there is a bloody footprint.

Every other room in which there is a blood spot found of the type other than the person who lived in that room -- every other room -- I submit to you that there is no evidence to indicate that that blood couldn't have gotten there through either contamination of one of several forms -- in every other room. It could have been by Dr. MacDonald himself as he goes from body to body, bending over and coming in contact with the body that was found, and in going to another room, he could well have been the carrier of the quantity of blood there. Secondly, the weapons used by the intruders are certainly in your judgment potentially carriers of blood from one room to another, and a weapon used to strike and murder one person in this family and then carried into the next room, either used there or present there, is a potential carrier of blood. Thirdly, the very persons who were the assailants in this case -- the attackers in this case -- because the quantities of blood with the injuries that are required and were brought forth on these human beings -- on their person and on their clothes are potential carriers of the blood to other rooms. That is at least as consistent on the facts that you have as any explanation the Government has. But in Kristen's room, I think it would be a proper conclusion for the jury to draw that the quantity of blood there teaches us something -- that Colette MacDonald was in that room and also the picture -- as I will show you shortly when I have a chance to go to those photographs of her foot with the blood on it -- tells us what? That she was walking at some point.

Now, once you recognize that Mrs. MacDonald was moved, the question may become: what are the proper hypotheses or inferences as to how she got there? I think, based upon the pathologist's examination, it would be a fair conclusion for the jury that the first injuries that Mrs. MacDonald received were the ice pick injuries because as far as we can tell, none of them were probably fatal. They seemed to be relatively shallow like this (indicating) -- a large number.

What happens then? Mrs. MacDonald is not disabled and not unable to leave the room. When she is either able to regain consciousness, if she lost consciousness, was she able to move about from the shock of the injuries? What happens next? She races to protect her children. It is a short few steps out to the nearest room.

In that room, I think the evidence will allow you to draw the conclusion that she was attacked by several persons. The evidence of that can be shown the following way. The Government has just argued, and I think it is probably a correct conclusion based upon the pathologist's report, that Colette MacDonald received defensive injuries inflicted by the club at that time, but what were the injuries?

Her arms were broken. Her arms were broken in trying to blunt the clubs. How then did Colette MacDonald receive stab wounds in both arms -- I will show you the pictures in a minute of the wounds -- unless one of two things happened -- either that she was being attacked with two different weapons at the same time, which then she could receive both club wounds in breaking her arms and stab wounds, or the other conclusion that the Government argued is that later on, she put her arm up to ward off a second attack by Jeff MacDonald. How could she raise her arms to a defensive position with two broken arms? How would she be able to do that? Where, considering the other injuries, is the potential strength to be able to raise for a second time the broken arms to a defensive position? I think the suggestion here and the inference here is far stronger based upon the photographs, that Colette MacDonald received both broken arms and stab wounds at a second time. It seems to me an illogical and inconsistent -- not supported by any facts or conclusions -- that she was still able to raise her arms after. Let's take a look at the photos.

Here, the black marks on here, are the marks of knife wounds and incisions that we are talking about on the same broken arms. Here again, on the other side, you can see various marks here that are described by the pathologist as being incision wounds. Finally, in the third picture here of the hand, there is a clear large red incision. How did she get that? Did Jeff MacDonald strike her simultaneously with the club and the knife? That, I think, cannot support the evidence. I think that is such an absurd conclusion. That is so illogical that not even the Government is willing to try to press that

Oh, I suppose, given enough time -- another hour -- until they get a chance to speak again, they will have a new theory about how to explain broken arms which have several types of injuries on them, but I submit to you the very fact that they will offer still another theory goes back to the five points of law -- the one that says there is no proof beyond a reasonable doubt that Jeff MacDonald inflicted these injuries upon his wife.

Now, beyond the blood and beyond those injuries, there is other evidence here which is worthy of your consideration as showing that, in fact, deductions of the crime scene cannot be made to support the Government's theory. I am talking about fingerprints, I am talking about wax, and I am talking about latex gloves.

Let me talk about the latex gloves first. You have a clear cut contradiction and a chioce to make in this case between the testimony of Mr. Michael Hoffman and the testimony of Dr. Vincent Guinn. Now, this is not an argument about titles and credentials. It is not a question that you should believe Dr. Guinn simply because he has a Doctorate and Mr. Hoffman does not. What is clear is the comparison as to the way the evidence was approached in this case by the two sides.

Dr. Guinn, unchallenged by the Government because they know it to be true, is the world's leading authority on the use of neutron activation analysis in forensic matters -- legally related matters. There is no question about his credentials in that regard nor about his contribution to scientific criminal investigation.

Dr. Guinn made two separate statements. First of all, he says, "I have looked at Michael Hoffman's data where Hoffman takes a piece of the rubber latex gloves found in the MacDonald home and several samples of the unused latex gloves that were also found in the home, and I have compared them." Dr. Guinn said, using Hoffman's figures of the percentages of the elements that were present, that absolutely in his mind, they show it is unlikely that the samples that were found in the MacDonald house -- the actual package of gloves -- were made from the same batch as the fragment of the latex glove found in the bedroom. Secondly, he said -- the first one is highly unlikely -- but the second, because of the differences in numbers and the amount of disparity in them, that it is not likely that the same manufacturer ever made the packages of gloves that were found in the MacDonald house and the piece of latex glove that was found in the bedroom.

Then, he said, "However, I did my own work and not only did I find that there was this disparity, I found ten elements. The Government did not find ten elements. Out of my own data, I conclude that it is highly unlikely that the samples in the MacDonald home were made from the same batch as the piece of latex in the master bedroom; and secondly, that it is unlikely that the same manufacturer made them."

What is the Government's response? Dr. Guinn literally laid down a challenge from the stand. He said in effect, "I defy the Government to re-do their work and come back and say that I am wrong in my numbers and wrong in my conclusion." What did you hear on cross-examination? "Well, wasn't your equipment a little newer? Wasn't it a little newer?" Dr. Guinn said, "Sure, but that had no effect on the results."

Secondly, the Government now has such equipment. Why did they not do it again? He put down the challenge. That was his choice to do that because the disparity was so clear to him that he said that the Government could not, in fact, show what they contend, that these latex gloves are part of the same batch or came from the same manufacturer as the gloves which were found in the MacDonald house. That is the beginning of the end, I think, of this house of cards and this house built on sand in which the Government says, "All this physical evidence -- if you look at it the way we want you to see it, it proves that MacDonald did it. He had to put those rubber gloves on -- the latex gloves on." It is interesting. Where did they come from?

The Government was so suspicious that these latex gloves were used by Dr. MacDonald that William Ivory had the Post engineer come and dig up those sewer lines leading to the MacDonald house at the same time that Hilyard O. Medlin and the rest of the gang were flushing the toilets down at the house. That is the kind of investigation -- I mean, Ivory had the idea and doesn't seal off the bedroom. Remember, he said -- as a matter of fact, I expected what was going to happen because -- well, they thought that maybe MacDonald had flushed the rest of the latex gloves down the toilet and they were going to dig up the sewer lines -- "Did it occur to you, perhaps, to keep the CID people from using the toilet?" He said something about how they went to CID Headquarters and used the toilet. That is even a little bit ridiculous to suggest. Maybe they went to the Kalin's house next door, but there was no proof of anything.

Then comes Medlin. We asked him. Medlin said, "Sure they used one of the bathrooms in the house." That is the kind of crime scene protection. Let's go past the latex glove. I think the latex glove stands out in bold relief. You have -- I don't know of a more qualified source who said, "You don't have to use my number. You can use the Government's numbers," but either numbers tell you what? These are not likely from the same manufacturer or the same batch. It is just not proven beyond a reasonable doubt by the Government under any circumstances.

What about the fingerprints? Fingerprints would have been helpful. What about the back door? I suspect that everybody here had an interest when they went to the crime scene to take a look at the back door. First of all, I trust you realize that it is not the same back door. The original back door is gone. That bothers me somewhat because the Government has said in this case repeatedly that except for releasing some of the furniture, the house is the same. That door is not the back door -- not the green door that you see in the photographs -- and I really wish the Government would pay attention to the details because if they are going to do a scientific crime investigation and if they are going to make deductions, don't overlook such things as saying, "You are taking off the back door. It is not the same one." What about that back door?

The explanation by Mr. Medlin about seeing prints that were visible and being unable to photograph them and being unable to take the door down just leads you to one conclusion. He was not qualified to do the work he did and that precious fingerprints on the place where it is likely that the intruders came into the house were lost forever because of the way he handled it.

Professor Osterburg went on to say that in his judgment, this crime scene, considering the kind of crime it was, was totally underprocessed for fingerprints. He talked about the door that separated the utility room from the master bedroom. He pointed out how one part of the panel was processed but the opposite side was not processed. The Government makes a big issue. Well, Osterburg said that it didn't make any difference as to which way was faced in or out. They answered that it did not make a difference -- does not make a difference. We don't know in what position this door was when the intruders came in. We don't know whether it was open or closed. We don't know if it was closed to the inside room or closed to the outside room. We don't know whether they pushed it again leaving the place. It doesn't matter because Osterburg tells us -- basic ordinary criminal investigation says -- "Holy smokes, this is a probably entrance and an egressway. If you fingerprint the whole thing, what does it take to do that?" Osterburg says that the entire house could have been processed by one competent examiner -- one examiner, let alone one with an assistant to Mr. Medlin and Mr. Turbyfill -- in half the time that was spent there to do so little of the work they did.

How can one draw deductions and say as the Government asks you to say that, "There is no evidence of other people here. We took care of the crime scene. This is all perfectly all right." They make an inference that they want you to ignore the other possible inferences. It does not support it.

The evidence tells us that here in the master bedroom where the jewelry case appears -- look at the photograph -- in which the missing rings are located or they were last known to be kept and that on that glass top, which Dr. Osterburg says is an ideal surface for lifting fingerprints -- there was something about dusting, but it was not totally processed for fingerprints. It is inexplicable. It is unjustifiable and it can only lead to the conclusion that certainly this house was never processed for fingerprints as it had to be in order to identify the intruders. It would have helped to identify the intruders or to prove in some conclusive fashion that Dr. MacDonald committed these crimes as is suggested.

Let me talk about while we are right here on the subject of the chest with the jewelry box. I heard the Government counsel say this morning, "We only have Dr. MacDonald's word of the two valuable rings" -- the one that the Kassabs asked Dr. MacDonald to retrieve that was a family heirloom and the one that Dr. MacDonald had given to Colette himself -- "the only proof we have of that is Dr. MacDonald's word that they were there in the house."

You have before you one of the exhibits toward the end of the case when Dr. MacDonald testified the Government settled with Dr. MacDonald for these claims of lost property. It says on those cover documents that they discussed this matter before settling with Dr. MacDonald for those rings as well as the other items with two people -- Captain Clifford L. Somers and CID Agent William Ivory. Captain Somers was unable to be here.

He was the principal Government prosecutor at the military proceedings in 1970. William Ivory was the same William Ivory. He was the lead investigator in 1970. Now, they had been through this whole process before of having heard the challenge that the rings were missing, and they, having consulted, agreed that Dr. MacDonald had to be compensated because there was no basis to refuse compensation. Here, nine and one-half years later, we hear the same explanation -- "There is no proof the rings were there." Why did the Army pay for it? Why did the Government pay for it? Why didn't they say, "We resist. We resist. We don't believe you, MacDonald"?

You ought to consider that that is an admission by the Government that that document where they paid Dr. MacDonald and said they talked -- not just a property loss -- but they talked to their criminal investigator and the chief prosecutor and agreed that they owed payment for those rings. That is an admission by the Government that the rings were probably taken that night.

Now, look, I am not suggesting to you, members of the jury, that the motive of this crime was to steal those rings. I don't think that was the motive. We will talk about that motive later at another time. I want to say to you that just because the people did not come into the house with the express purpose of stealing rings, it doesn't mean that the persons who committed these absolutely horrendous and monstrous crimes did not on the spur of the moment see a jewelry case and grab something from it. Yes, there were other valuables in the house. There were other things that could have been taken. This was not a ransacking of the house, but that was a jewelry box sitting on top. It was obvious and in an obvious location. One didn't have to do anything. As a matter of fact, I think the reasonable inference that you might draw is that the woman seen in this case did not have a weapon -- the woman talking about acid -- LSD -- and that in one of those strange and whimsical and unthinking moments removed from the crime scene something of value -- not because she went there with a purpose of stealing it and not because the men went there to steal -- their purposes are different -- but that would be a reasonable inference. Otherwise, why would the Government in having gone through the efforts that the prosecutor had gone to prove the opposite that there were no intruders and then concede, "We have to pay you for the rings because they are not there"?

Now, besides the fact that the rings are missing, besides the latex gloves, there are other fingerprints in this house. There are fingerprints along here (indicating) and in a number of locations which either because they were improperly developed or they were certain that the photographs were done totally inadequately are forever precluded from helping us understand who was in that house. We know further that there was an inadequacy of processing. Here again, there are just tons of photographs.

Look at what Dr. Osterburg told us when he looked at the headboard and the word "pig." Of all of the obvious places in this house, that should have been dusted from one end to the other even if it seemed at that time unclear why. How would Mr. Medlin know that perhaps the attackers didn't come the other way? Medlin didn't have to know anything except that this was a crime scene where some stranger apparently wrote "pig" in the blood of a human being. Medlin didn't even dust fully on the edges around here and did not dust around beyond the immediate area, and we lost totally in a critical area the possibility of retrieving fingerprints. What does that say to you? It says, how can you conclude, members of the jury, that the Government met its burden of proof -- the one that lasts from the beginning of the case to the end -- beyond a reasonable doubt?

What about the hallway -- what about the hallway? You remember the little scene that we have again with the gurney. The gurney is 22 inches wide. The hallway is 36 inches wide. That leaves us 14 inches. Remember how Dr. MacDonald's body was moved down the hallway -- one man at the front of the gurney and one man at the back of the gurney and one man to the side of the gurney. I submit that you have a right to conclude that the man moving along the hallway wall with that space -- 14 inches there -- with the gurney in a collapsed and lowered position which meant that in order to assist in moving the body, the person that was bent over, that man, in trying to do something helpful, nevertheless, raised a potential of destroying fingerprints in that area. Of course, we don't even know whether any fingerprints were even smeared there because Hilyard O. Medlin did not fully process that hallway from end to end. There was selective processing for no ascertainable reason except that he had made a prejudgment in this case and he had made a decision that there were no intruders and that he had made a decision that he was not going to process it because he, Medlin, saw the flower pot stand upright in the living room and decided that was enough to convince him that it was a phony crime scene and there were no intruders.

Now, beyond that, and there is more sadness in the way this was handled. What about the blood that was not even identified? Yes, there were items of blood that were found. Dr. Thornton testified here that in the children's rooms he observed blood which had not been processed nine and a half years later. Now, I don't know that that would solve the case one way or the other. That is not the point of saying that. That is not the point of what Dr. Thornton pointed out to you. What he is saying is deductions and inferences from an improperly processed crime scene, and that it cannot support the conclusions that the Government has.

What about the hairs and other trace evidence here? I don't know whether anybody here has had any experience of owning a horse or pony. How many horse hairs were found? One. As a matter of fact, they quoted that one human hair and one horse hair was found. What does that tell us? The family had been out repeatedly to see the pony and back again. What does it say when they only found a singular horse hair -- that they by no means processed all of the places on the floor where these people were moving and where they were about and where they kept their clothes. They processed selectively. They looked in certain locations. Again, Osterburg says, "In four and a half days to process this crime scene, you should have every single piece of trace evidence -- every single piece of that physical evidence found and located in that house." It is inexcusable. It is a product of a select division -- we collect what we want.

Now, let's talk about the Government -- I want to talk now about this theory that we heard this afternoon about the body carrying around -- this musical body of MacDonald striking them with a baseball bat. He would have hit Kimberly with one blow and that the other blow was against Colette. I want to ask you, members of the jury, if you have heard any evidence in this case that in considering the location where Colette's body was found and considering where the one can reconstruct this -- by a scientist, of course -- and considering where Dr. MacDonald should have been standing to meet the theory, was that club long enough to reach back to where Kimberly MacDonald was? Just stop and think about that. They say, "While he got her here and the child there and the adult there," is it possible? Where are you hearing that for the first time -- from a witness from the stand or from someone who has done a scientific reconstruction of the crime of the position of where these things could have happened? No. You are hearing it from the advocate of the other side of attempting to put together a theory for which there is no substantial credible evidence.

If Dr. MacDonald carried his wife from Kristen's room with the sheet, as they suggest here, and the bedclothes, why are there not more fibers and threads on that sheet? As a matter of fact, there were no fibers and threads on the sheet, if he is supposed to be carrying her with that sheet. Why, if the pajama top was torn in Kristen's room, does it have the least number of fibers and threads? Why are there none on the floor in Kristen's room? Now, contrary to what the Government has said repeatedly -- where they said, "Why doesn't MacDonald explain all these things," the answer is Jeffrey MacDonald is not responsible to answer any of these things. As a matter of law, that is not his burden or responsibility. But more importantly, there is the matter of logic. How is he to explain matters which could not possibly have been of any importance, such as where he had a fiber on his hand or garment, where he was when he tore a precise piece of fabric from his body at a given time?

The matter of this moving of the body again with the sheet: if, in fact, Colette's body was picked up with the sheet or the bedspread that we have here, why are there no smear marks of blood? Her quantity of blood in Kristen's room is substantial. If the sheet is put over here and in some fashion around her, why are there no smears on the floor, why are there no smears on the sheet in the gathering up of the body? Why did that not happen? Again, I am sure that the Government will have another theory about that.

The last thing I want to deal with about the Government's physical evidence is the only really new presentation in the case. Witness after witness that you have heard and saw in this case have all told you how they testified before in 1970 -- nine and one-half years ago in the military proceedings. Nobody has any new physical evidence in this case. What we have is Mr. Stombaugh's interesting testimony -- not new evidence and not new physical facts -- but what he has done in the case.

I would like to start with the display right here because if anything tells us about the limitations to determine the value of Paul Stombaugh's testimony, it is this particular display (indicating). It is the 48-into-21 holes demonstration. First of all, let us take him at his sworn word in front of the grand jury. What does he say he did? "So, it led us to believe quite possibly that maybe she was stabbed through the pajama top. What we did, we re-folded the pajama top exactly as it appears in these pictures." Your own eyes tell you that Stombaugh never, never did what he said in the sworn testimony at the grand jury. Of course, when he came into this Courtroom, that is not what he said.

He backed away so fast from his sworn testimony that it should have been an embarrassment to the Government. I cannot even tell you to this day precisely the words that he used to explain the "approximation -- proportionate -- we turned the sleeve inside out" statement that he made. The answer is -- take a look, if you will, at the bottom display. I've taken the grids off so you can see the use for identification.

Members of the jury, Stombaugh's first and last failure is the fact that he didn't do what he said. Those are his words. That is not the Defendant's lawyer telling you to say that. That is not the Defendant. He said "exactly." And it is absolutely absurd. It is absolutely false. It is absolutely incredible. Compare this display with that and you will recognize that there is no substantial similarity. Compare this display with this one here made in 1974. There is no substantial similarity. Look at the layering and the turning of the fabric. Look at the position over here. What are we talking about? I mean the fact that we are devoting five minutes more to this is to say that we are going into an absurd situation where someone says something that is not so because we did it exactly -- our own eyes tell us that it is not the same thing and that we continue talking about it. I submit to you that nothing more need to be said about that display than what is said to you by your own eyes looking at it.

Now, the second point. If you fit 48 into 21, what does that mean? Did you hear anybody who was a scientist in criminal cases -- forensic scientist or criminal -- say to you that it would be a valid way of determining whether or not Mrs. MacDonald was stabbed through the pajama top to line up the fabric over the holes of the body and come up with 48 to 21? No. No scientist -- no scientific criminal investigator ever asked that ludicrous question. Who asked it? That lawyer and another lawyer asked the question. I said to Stombaugh, "Well, didn't you question the fact that you weren't going to also have the pink pajama top underneath it also?" He said, "No." "Well, didn't it worry you that any kind of inference that one would draw would be totally invalid because of the fact that the way that Mrs. MacDonald's body was found -- the way Colette was found -- in a pajama top of her own and in blue pajamas and holes -- that is, you have got to make them all fit together?" "No." "Why?" "That is what the lawyer -- the partisans for the other side -- asked me to do, and Shirley Green and I produced it." That is not scientific evidence. That is sheer fakery. There is no basis for that.

contrary to my recollection of what the Government said -- Stombaugh testified that he identified a certain number of holes as being exit holes in the pajama top and a certain number of holes as being entry holes. John Thornton testified and the Government never called either Stombaugh or Shirley Green back to deny it that when they did -- that was following Shirley Green's notes -- that she used exit holes and entry holes and exit holes and entry holes and totally disregarded the principal finding that he made. Yes, Stombaugh did not identify every hole as entry or exit holes, but a dozen of them, he did.

Shirley Green did not follow his findings. How in the name of heaven and rationality or justice are we supposed to say that you should draw any kind of inference from a demonstration that demonstrated nothing in the first instance, and in the second instance, to state that it is false on its own terms. It doesn't do what it says it does. That is not the worst part of it yet. It is not the worst of what they have done here.

The third and final coup de grace of this piece of pseudo-science is the fact of -- I asked Ms. Green, "When you did this, did you bother to check as to whether or not the hole on the top..." -- you may remember those drawings -- considering the diameter of the holes -- the holes are not all the same because an ice pick doesn't go all the way into all of the holes because sometimes the front part of the ice pick or if the tip goes in which is a narrow diameter and sometimes up to the hilt -- I said, "Well, then, did you bother to account or tell us whether or not when you put one of your little pieces of wire through it whether or not you were putting a small medium size hole or a large size hole and a little hole together? Did you even bother to check? Why?" She never answered that question. "Well, nobody ever asked me to do that." Now, that is supposed to come to you as part of a scientific deduction in this case to lead to this theory that Jeff MacDonald stabbed his wife in some pointless and absolutely motiveless -- absolutely ludicrous statement that he stabbed through a pajama top, putting aside that there is no explanation and no rationality to the whole idea.

On every basis you can think of, it is a fake. Now, those are not easy words, but you ought to draw a conclusion. They did not in any way come back in here and say, "John Thornton made a mistake. John Thornton did not understand what Shirley Green did." They did not because they couldn't. This piece of evidence strikes me as the clearest singular example of the distortion in the name of pseudo-science done by the Government. It is an example of a demonstration which no scientist says could prove anything valid. No criminalist says that is the way we understand the thing, done for lawyers and not any finding on precept and they trot it in here and the Government has the gall to stand here and say, "Members of the jury, convict MacDonald of first degree murder. We have proved our case beyond a reasonable doubt. We are going to show you this whole story about how the pajama top got holes in it." It is not true. That is beyond my belief how responsible advocates could even do that.

That is not the worst of it. There is more. There is more. The impressions. Stombaugh taught us one thing. We had a very interesting discussion; didn't we? You and I can see what he saw. He never even used a scientific lens and he never even used a magnifying glass. His impressions analysis was eyeball analysis. When we went through it, he said, "Yes, the jury can see it." I ask you, members of the jury, to consider what Stombaugh said is supposed to be a sleeve compared to what Chuck Morton said.

You have this demonstration before you. You see how it was done. I only suggest to you that the rationality and the clearness of what was done is such a contrast to what Stombaugh said as "Take my word. I am an impressions expert." By the way, what is an impressions expert? He testified in 300 cases, he said, some of which, not all, hairs would be apparently his work and some of which he could recognize a hair as an expert in impressions, so he says.

"Mr. Stombaugh, would you tell me, please, the last case in which you were recognized as an expert in impressions?" "I can't remember." "Well, name me one case that you have ever testified as an expert in impressions?" "I can't remember." This is the same Paul Stombaugh who came into this Courtroom as the former head of the Chemistry Section of the physics and chemistry branch of the FBI, the man who got on the stand and said, "Yes, when I was at the University, I minored in chemistry." That was a very minor minor, because his transcript shows that he minored in physical education and his transcript shows, can you believe it, that the head of the chemistry section had a single course in chemistry in his years at the University. He had one other course in physics which he got a "D" for.

MR. BLACKBURN: OBJECTION.

THE COURT: Yes, the jury will remember what the testimony was. I think the OBJECTION to that question was SUSTAINED as the Court recalls it.

MR. SEGAL: Well, members of the jury, that is up to you to recall the qualifications of Mr. Stombaugh. One thing that is probably beyond any doubt is that he never had another University level course after he left the University. He said that from the time he left college and graduated with a Bachelor's degree, he never took another course. That is the person who comes in here -- none of what he has to answer anyway -- he comes in here and says, "I am an eyeballer. I am an expert eyeballer." What can he see that you can see as well as he can? What else did he say?

You remember the situation where he says, "This blood stain was made after the pajama top was torn"? The story is interesting for this point also. I said, "Do you mind showing me, please, where exactly -- do you mean these lines took place before or after? Show me?" He stared hard and he circled it red for the Government and yellow for me. We all stared at it. It is one of the exhibits that we have lying around here. I said, "I can't see that well. There is some better way." He said, "Oh, a light box." Lo and behold, he produced the light box for us. Take the pajama top and put it on and what did he show us? He looked and he looked and he said, "I can't see."

Now, that is the kind of evidence that you are being asked to say that Jeffrey MacDonald is guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. The presumption has been stripped from him. That is the new evidence. That is the difference between 1970 and 1979. Paul Stombaugh and Shirley Green coming here and doing sticks and coming here and doing their impressions and coming here with just unbelievable and incredible and unsupported opinions, none of which they have ever performed any demonstrations or experiments on. What is scientific method? Remember, we asked Shirley Green, "What is scientific method?" Her response was, "Doing things a scientific way." That wasn't meant to embarrass her, but it was meant to show you that there are scientists who know something about criminal investigation and the solutions to crime.

Now, you saw something from Vincent Guinn, John Thornton, Chuck Morton, and James Osterburg. Now, the United States Government, the prosecutor's case was not short-handed. If they thought they could find somebody who could back up anything that Stombaugh said, back up an experiment invented by two lawyers --

I dare say they have spared nothing else in this case, the Rolls-Royce of all models, the best of all photographs -- where was it? The answer is that it doesn't exist. It doesn't support their conclusion in this case.

One of the terrible, terrible things about this theory is that they ask you to put aside your common sense. I want to just run through for you now this time frame sequence of the activity that in the last 15 minutes of the Government's speech, they said Dr. MacDonald did not account for.

We know that the persons involved -- Colette, Kristen, and Kimberly -- died about 3:00 o'clock in the morning. That is what the two pathologists tell us and it is as close as we can get to it. We know that at the other end of the time frame around 3:40 or 3:42 a.m., there was apparently the call to the telephone operator as to help wanted at the MacDonald house -- Jeff's call to the operator.

Somewhere in the 42 minutes, this is what had to happen. First of all, he had to run around and move the bodies. He had to run and get the bedclothes in the master bedroom. He had to move Kimberly to her room. He had to get the blue pajama top and put it over Colette and stab more holes in it. He had to get the white Hilton bathmat and put it over her. He had to run to the living room and stage a crime scene and make sure that the picture by the child was hanging out from the coffee table. He had to race to the back door to get rid of the weapons. We will talk about that one, too. He had to wash up in the bathroom. You know that happened. He had to get the surgical gloves and write "pig" on the wall and then do something with the balance of the blood, then stab himself, call for help, give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to his family, and concoct in the meanwhile -- he did all of that in this time frame -- this whole incredible fantasy that they call a case. It ought to make everybody angry that nine and a half years after the facts, this is what is being offered in the case today. That is just beyond belief.

When did he concoct this? When did MacDonald do this? In his rage or in his calmness? Before or after? Well, I don't know. I don't know where in their theory they sustained that -- certainly not sustaining it beyond a reasonable doubt. How could anyone stand before you and say that, "I, as a legitimate advocate, can call upon you to render a conviction in this case on that kind of evidence"?

Are the facts consistent to Jeff's story? I think there are lots of facts. I told you earlier, I think, what I think the reasonable conclusions could be about the living room and the fibers or lack of fibers there. It was a tear down the center and you know that there were very few fibers -- two or three. You know all the things that went on here, and I don't have to berate that again. We know most critically that no one ever disputed that Jeff said that he fell here (indicating) at the steps and that is where Shaw found fibers. That is an appropriate place. It is consistent with what he said. We know there could have been more there. We know all about the people that were in the house. We don't have to go into that again.

There is no reason to think that Jeff MacDonald was faking his wounds. The doctors have testified in the case -- the ones who have been asked questions -- saying that the ice pick wound that caused the collapse of the lung was a life-threatening injury. One of the most important things is that at no time has a single witness that has been called by the Government and the Defense ever said that Jeff MacDonald exaggerated his injuries. No one ever said that they thought he was faking or making a big deal out of it. As a matter of fact, there was a lot of expression about his kind of saying, "Gee whiz, it doesn't seem like very much, does it?" Understand the reaction of having seen your family in the horrible slaughtered condition that this family was and then looking at one's self, but in all those injuries, nobody believed that he was putting it on and no one believes that he was trying to get sympathy or some kind of feeling for an injury. No one believes anything but that he was reacting rather responsibly. Did he fake it? Did he fake his symptoms when Mica came there? One of the interesting points is that Ken Mica said that when he found Jeff MacDonald lying on Colette's body or next to the body, his teeth were chattering. One could, if one was so inclined, say, "Well, that is fakable. One could fake that kind of phenomenon. That is certainly not beyond your ken."

What else did he say? The unfakable fact that his skin was cold. I went to some great pains to ask later on of Agent Shaw of the CID about the temperature in the house. You may recall that. He said that it was about 75 degrees. You have here fairly solid evidence in which you can conclude that the injuries were not exaggerated or not faked and that the coldness of the skin was consistent with the nature of Dr. MacDonald's condition and that the house would not have been a source of that because the house was warm according to Agent Shaw and that nobody ever said that Jeff tried to make a big deal out of his own injuries.

Then, what happens in the hospital? The Government claims, "Well, the hospital didn't really get worked up." Well, there they got upset. Merrill Bronstein, a friend of Jeff MacDonald, said that he responded more to the trauma of the loss of his family and went home later on to see the whole family that morning and changed understandably, but what happened in the hospital was that Dr. Jacobson first did a seven-to-eight minute examination of Dr. MacDonald.

Jacobson's examination in which he did not see all of the head injuries that had been noted by other people and then was passed over to Dr. Gemma who put the tube in. Gemma says that he did not re-examine Jeff. He took what Dr. Jacobson said. How long did Jacobson have with MacDonald? He says seven to eight minutes.

From that beginning point, the Government will argue consistently that MacDonald didn't have all the injuries and that in a seven-to-eight minute work-up, that was enough to note every injury. Here, Dr. Jacobson, among other things, giving a sleeping medication and a sedative to Dr. MacDonald with a head injury. Everybody raised their eyebrows when they heard that. Whatever was going on, we know that the medical records at that time can't be the base of what the Government can successfully argue to you, that Dr. MacDonald was exaggerating the injuries and did not have, as was testified here to the horns and major wounds were testified to here and the injury to the rear of the head -- three head injuries -- rather than as shown by the lesser number as shown in the medical charts. The medical charts reflect what happened. There was distress. There was considerable personal concern for the safety of one's own family in the hospital. There was one work-up and not one of these doctors, either Jacobson or Gemma, ever re-examined MacDonald when things were more calm to see what did he have -- two injuries in the front and one in the back of the head or did he have just the single head injury that was observed by Jacobson in the beginning.

One last thing that I want to point out to you about that is what did the Special Forces psychiatrist, Dr. Rider (phonetic), say in the medical chart? He didn't testify personally, but it is a part of the record of the case. When he saw Dr. MacDonald, Dr. Rider said in a kind of cryptic medical language that tells us so much, "Normal grief process." Those are the words of the medical record. It is not the kind of evidence to support the conclusion that Jeff MacDonald was faking, faking his feeling about his family, faking about his injuries. What it supports is the opposite conclusion and inference that the Government's case is built upon sand -- a house built upon sand.

The Government wants you also to consider the fact that the family is totally destroyed and Jeff has relatively and undoubtedly small injuries in contrast. His crime, as I said, is that he wasn't hurt enough and that he should have died.

As a matter of fact, if he had done all of the things he did and then died from lack of attention -- they never come there -- then the same physical evidence there exists. Think about that. If he had done all these things that they said he did and had died, the CID would have come there and they would have found the same crime scene and what would they have concluded then? Murder-suicide, alien intruders, or scratched their head and not know what to make of it because they don't have an easy and handy suspect -- one of the proper problems for circumstantial evidence.

You can look at it and stare at it all day long and draw all the inferences you want. You can draw conflicting inferences. The physical facts don't speak. It is the lawyers who speak about it. I suggest that these facts do not speak in any way that allows you to draw a sound conclusion beyond a reasonable doubt.

Why did not Jeff MacDonald have more serious injuries? The Government wants to know, demands to know. There is no burden to answer at all. I'll suggest just some reasonable hypothesis. First of all, this was the only male in the house -- the only strong physical person. Who did the attackers deal with? They slaughtered a pregnant woman, slaughtered an almost six-year-old child, slaughtered a two-and-a-half-year-old child. They were easy prey. A series of things happened that saved MacDonald's life to make him prey for the Government's counsel.

First of all, he was a strong man. Secondly, he was the only person in the house in a position where he was somewhat protected by the placement of the furniture. Where you can see in the master bedroom coming in through the door here (indicating), there was no interference coming straight to the bed to attack Colette MacDonald. There is no interference in the other rooms. Here, with Jeff's head at the far end of the wall, the coffee table in place, what do you have here? People standing at the head. The first thing that stopped them, then, is that there was no immediate quiet, stealthy access -- number one. Number two, this is the only person in the house who was warned that there were assilants there. The cry of Colette, the cry of Kimberly gave the warning to Jeff MacDonald. If the others had been warned, perhaps the noise and perhaps the excitement and perhaps the turning on of lights might have changed the day, but they had no warning.

Because Jeff had the warning, the cries from his own family, is that to be held against him, the fact that he is a man and he was defending himself, that is held against him, and you are asked to draw the inference that this is fakery on his part and it is concocted and it is evidence beyond a reasonable doubt from all those points.

Now, why was he not killed by the attackers? Why did they leave him to live and identify them? First of all, there was a struggle. There is furniture turned over. There are people now -- there is action going on. There is a pulling and tugging and heaving and hoeing.

The woman is saying, "Acid is groovy." We are talking about LSD. If none of you have any knowledge about it, you certainly heard from Dr. Hughes yesterday. No one quarrels with Dr. Hughes' description of the mental state of people on LSD. Certainly, they can do all these physical acts. There is no question about it. What is their mental state? Paranoia? That is, all of a sudden, you hear a noise and all of a sudden, you hear a struggle and now you -- there is concern. Are the voices there? What else is going on? There are all of these possibilities that occur because you are an unstable and unpredictable person. You are on drugs. That is a reasonable inference for you to draw from the case. Why would they not want to get out of there as quickly as possible, having met the first real resistance in this case?

Finally, about Jeff's wounds, and I say that because they speak for themselves. I don't say that they are more or less than what they are. Those are the injuries he sustained. They are surely painful to a man to be in his home where his family was destroyed, and, in fact, in contrast to have survived them. That is enough.

His injuries did take place. The puncture wound to the lung was life-threatening. There is no exaggeration. What does the Government say about the wounds? That Colette scratched, perhaps, Jeff in this faked, made-up struggle for which there is no basis. Well, where was the appropriate scientist who came in here and told you that? An advocate for one side -- a lawyer came in and he said that in his pseudo-opinion that that is what happened. But you, members of the jury, are required to find the evidence to support it and find yourself persuaded beyond a reasonable doubt before you accept it. I suggest to you that it is just simply inconceivable with anything here on the record to support that conclusion.

Now, the Government premises its case about all of this physical evidence on Dr. MacDonald's statements. We have statements in this case to a rather substantial degree of the Defendant. Here they are. I don't want to harp on this, but I think it is fair. I am sure that all of you have heard from time to time persons involved in criminal investigations refuse to testify, and probably, like most people, you simply think, "Well, the person must want to hide something." You have seen an extraordinary case. Here is Jeff MacDonald who has never once refused despite all of the circumstances and has never once refused to talk with anybody in an official investigative capacity.

In April 6, 1970, he was warned by the CID and they gave him the Miranda warning and talked with him several hours despite that. At the Article 32 proceedings, he was not required to testify. He testified at length there. Then, in 1971, when he was out of the Army and honorably discharged, the CID was cranking up a second investigation and they come to him again and warned him of his rights and he talked again.

Then comes the grand jury. There were three volumes, six days of MacDonald trying to talk sense with Government prosecutors who are determined to do anything but sense. What did they do? You can just picture them going through and looking for something, looking somewhere, trying to find it, "Ah-ha, we have got something. We have got a case. We have got a word. We will use it against MacDonald. Put it in the blue book." They put together out of all these statements which when you heard, I am sure, the other day in Court, you must have wondered what is anybody saying that is inconsistent? They have got lots of copies of these and you can read them if you want. I am not going to go over all of the statements. I think they stand for what they say.

They say the following. "This is the best recollection I have. I don't remember all of the events." God, does anybody honestly expect you to remember them all? "I will try to corroborate them. I think this could have happened. You asked me about this. That is possible, yes." Nobody -- very few of the things that Jeff has said about the events of that night are etched in granite so that you may say they either are or are not. You will remember that the episode took a matter of seconds. The fight in the living room was a matter of seconds.

The rounds through the house took seven to eight minutes.

The first significant question -- the first question by Mr. Caverly of the FBI in the hospital -- he asked to put it all in order and said that he was not coherent, which means he was not logical. You know the amount of medication that Jeff had. I don't have to go into that. You know what the effect of the medication is. Six weeks later, finally, the CID gets around to the matter. They want to talk about what? The assailants? No. Have they ever asked MacDonald to come look at a lineup? No. Look at any pictures? No. They wanted to talk about which room first. Where did the tear take place? From there on, you have this kind of track record of going and picking and hunting and finding, and after nine and a half years of voluntarily testifying -- submitting to pictures, give hair samples, do every damn thing they ask for -- and they come up with this. They said, "Here are the precious words that show MacDonald is inconsistent." What will it be?

If you care to, members of the jury, I submit that you heard all of those words read to you here in the Courtroom out loud. I do not believe that you have heard anything beyond a reasonable doubt that shows significant inconsistencies. What you heard was "could have been" and "it's possible." I've never pretended to know and what I even expected to know about the trivia that they want to build the case on. I want you to contrast something.

I now ask you to bear with me because I want to ask you what do you have to say about the following inconsistencies by Government witnesses? If you hold Dr. MacDonald by the standard which the Government counsel says, "You must be precise about the seconds of the fight and the seven-to-eight minute tour of trying to treat your family and your own injuries." You are only interested in getting your family together and getting help there. And if you hold Jeff precisely to what he said, then what standard to you hold the Government witnesses?

Mr. Connolly -- what did he say? He testified here, "I found the knife in the master bedroom." The trouble with his testimony is what? Mr. Shaw found the knife in the master bedroom. When cross-examined by me about that, he said, "Oh, I handed the marking pen to Shaw to circle it," but his report -- his sworn CID statement said, "I found the knife in the master bedroom." What shall we say about Mr. Connolly? What shall we say about him? Apparently, the Government says nothing because they don't hold him to any standard. Only Jeff MacDonald gets held to a standard from seconds of a fight to minutes of trying to deal with his family.

Mr. Ivory testified that he named for us all of the people who came to the house. Remember, I said, "Who else was marching through that crime scene?" My final question to him was, "Anybody else?" He said, "No, that was everybody." He was indignant and really irritated with me.

"What about the chaplain?" Why didn't we hold Mr. Ivory's statement to the same test? You must always be correct. Ivory is supposed to have notes and everything else, but he falls flat on his face. He doesn't even know the people at the crime scene down to the chaplain.

Stombaugh -- why don't we hold Stombaugh to the same standard? He said to the grand jury under oath and it is exactly the same in here -- "it is proportionate" -- "We turned the sleeve inside out." By no means, does he claim exactly. What should we say about Mr. Stombaugh's testimony?

Ms. Green's testimony -- "I followed Stombaugh's findings about entry and exit holes." We know that is not to be so either. I think it is a reasonable conclusion for the jury that Dr. Thornton disproved that beyond any doubt.

"The crime scene is not disturbed," and picture after picture shows you while he is in the house, in charge, that pillows are moving, the glasses are turning, and things are not staying the same. Is the standard that you hold Mr. Ivory to the same as that of Dr. MacDonald?

Mr. Caverly, a minor matter, but only because of the significance of it to point out the double standard. None of these people suffered injuries or stress but are professional investigators with notebooks supposedly. Caverly, for some reason, is just fixed on the idea the first time he saw Jeff in the hospital was at 2:25 p.m. The nursing notes which are in the record say that the investigators were there at 1:45. Now, Caverly had no notes. They were all burned because that was the old FBI policy -- to burn the notes.

Nine and a half years later, he cannot shake 2:25 and will swear by it, but the nursing notes will stand forever. They state he is wrong. What shall we hold Mr. Caverly's standard?

Mr. Caverly -- "One medic rode with Kimberly and Kristen." Mr. Shaw -- "Two medics rode with Kimberly and Kristen." What is the standard? My last question: "They put both children on the same stretcher, right?" Mr. Ivory perceived when we developed that point that there was the possibility of contamination -- physical evidence and contamination when the two children touched. Mr. Ivory said that they did not touch.

Mr. Shaw, later on, said, "Yes, I saw the bodies and they did touch." What standard do we hold the Government witnesses to about their conduct -- professional conduct -- investigative conduct and then to stand here and say that they are building their case around the inconsistencies allegedly claimed to be of Dr. MacDonald? That is just simply not conceivable to me that the jury can find beyond a reasonable doubt that: one, that there are, in fact, significant inconsistencies; two, that there are matters which are understandable and rational and that no reasonable person given the circumstances would be able to answer these things; three, do we not give Dr. MacDonald credit for at least being open and willing to talk in spite of it to his accusers year after year after year? It was a vain hope and bad advice, I think, that perhaps if you talk sense to people, they will believe sense.

The Government has done a great deal with the pictures of the wounds of Dr. MacDonald taken in 1974, during the grand jury. You remember that you have got those pictures around here and we have got Dr. MacDonald pointing here, here, here, and elsewhere (indicating). They want you to stare at them. I don't know what is to see there. More than four and a half years after the injuries, what did they expect to find? I mean, first of all, you should get to the fact that they were given voluntarily. Jeff could have said, "No way. You will never listen to sense. You want me to answer your unanswerable theories," yet, he submitted to that process. Those are not the only things that are hard to see in this case. That is, to see four and a half years later the injuries.

What about Mr. Medlin? The invisible ridge lines on the footprint on the floor. Why are we not holding the Government with its witness, Mr. Medlin, to the same test? Why should we believe Medlin for a second that he saw ridge lines on the bloody footprint on the floor and that those ridge lines in his mind were capable of being compared and identified as Dr. MacDonald's? Nobody else saw them. Why weren't they photographed? Absolutely no valid explanation. Dr. Osterburg [sic] has made it clear that anything that you can see with your eyes, you can photograph unless you don't have the competence to not only photograph but to do the job as a fingerprint examiner. Let's hold Medlin to the same standard. Invisible evidence? He can't even get it sawed out of the floor to take it back to Fort Gordon where maybe they could do something with it without it falling apart on him. Why don't we hold the Government like we should because the burden is theirs in this case?

Stombaugh's pocket -- another piece of invisible evidence -- I talked to you about it before -- the blood stain which the Government says that you can see if you look real close. That is the one with the light box that we could not see. Let's hold them to the same standard in this case. It just does not make any sense that Dr. MacDonald is faulted and criticized. Apparently, if you listened to that speech this morning, in nine and a half years, Dr. MacDonald hasn't done a thing right. His lawyers don't do anything right. We are just looking in the wrong direction. The only thing he has done right is to try and talk to them and try and cooperate with them and to try and tell them what he knew and to hope in the name of justice and sense that somebody would listen.

The Government says also that there were no intruders in this case. There is no proof of intruders in this case. The list of evidence that supports Jeff's story will surprise you when we pull it all together right now.

First of all, the latex glove. I stand on Dr. Guinn's testimony. I stand on the gauntlet that he threw down to the Government as to, "Why, if you think that I am wrong, you don't go out today in '79, and check my findings?" It is an unanswered challenge. Where did they come from? They came from some other source than Jeff MacDonald's home.

What about the fiber found on Jeff's glasses in the living room? They have tried and tried and tried and they cannot find any source from within the MacDonald house where that fiber came from. Where do they think it came from? It flew in the window? Nonsense. You have a right to believe that that fiber is one more piece of physical evidence that supports an opposite inference from what the Government wants.

Unidentified hair -- there is hair in this case. The Government has found and they have had MacDonald's sample which was given to them and they still, to this day, cannot ascribe it to any member of the family.

There are fingerprints. We talked about the ones that were found and that were not lifted properly, the ones that were found and were not identified or partially or not complete, the ones that were never found because they did not process the crime scene.

What about the candle wax? Three different candles produced three different types of wax. They went and they rounded up everything in the MacDonald house. They found 14 candles. They took it to the lab. When they got done with their best efforts, what did they find? That the wax that was found in the MacDonald house -- in the living room -- Jeff says that he remembers a woman with a flickering light -- which I think is a reasonable conclusion where they are talking about a woman with a candle. The reasonable conclusion from all that is this: that that is evidence of the truth. Now, what did the Government do about that?

The witness said, "Well, we didn't take that seriously because the wax was hardened." "How long did it take to harden," I said to the witness. "Three weeks." "When did you examine the wax?" "March 6th of 1970." From February 17th to March 6th is three weeks. And he is surprised that the wax had hardened. What I am saying to you is that the reasonable conclusion that you ought to draw is that the wax found in that house unidentified to this day is consistent with Jeff's story of the flickering light in the hand of the woman.

The knives -- the weapons -- are consistent with the intruders. There is no one who has said for a minute that Jeff or Colette owned anything like the Old Hickory knife or anything like the old Geneva knife. As a matter of fact, it was Mildred Kassab who took a look at these weapons and pronounced that her daughter and son-in-law would not own bent, rusted, obviously mistreated instruments like this from that stand right there. She was asked about the weapons and pronounced them not in her daughter's house and not in her son-in-law's house and she had never seen them and didn't believe they were the type of things that they would have.

No one else in this case, Pamela Kalin Cochran, or anyone else has never identified those weapons in the MacDonald house. How did they get there? How did they get there? Physical evidence doesn't walk in by itself. The ice pick -- a fascinating piece of evidence. There are two people out of all of the myriad of people availed by the Government who believe that they think there was an ice pick in the MacDonald house. Again, Mildred Kassab says that she believes there was an ice pick, but it did not look like this one. That is my recollection of her testimony. I ask you to search your own recollection of what she said. It boils down to Pamela Kalin Cochran, a 15 or 16-year old babysitter back in 1970, and now a young woman, comes in here and admits on the stand in 1970, that she was shown pictures but could not identify any of the weapons. She was asked about it but did not remember ever seeing an ice pick in the MacDonald house. You would think that that would be the end of that issue, but you know, I guess the Government's theory is that if you go on long enough, you can wear somebody down -- be it Jeff MacDonald or anybody else.

So, there she is. She goes to the grand jury in August of 1970 -- later than that -- in 1974 -- and in the morning, she was asked about the ice pick. She doesn't identify it. She doesn't recall an ice pick. Then, she goes to lunch and comes back and sitting there four and a half years later, she sees a picture of Colette MacDonald's body with the puncture holes on it and has her vision. She has the vision that now she remembers seeing an ice pick in the MacDonald house. Certainly, she can't identify this one specifically; but an ice pick in the MacDonald house. Can you say to yourself that you have confidence in that kind of evidence? Can you say to yourself that you really have belief that a person can have a vision of having handled an ice pick in the MacDonald house and four and a half years later on that basis when questioned about it when the crime took place by CID and by other persons connected with the military proceedings? Mildred Kassab says that doesn't look like the one. Pamela Kalin says, "I think there was an ice pick in the house but never thought about it until four and a half years later when I had the sudden flash insight." Can you conclude, members of the jury, that that is proof beyond a reasonable doubt that this weapon came from this house? I think not. Where did it come from? Where did the other knives come from? That is consistent with the intruders being in the house.

The club -- there is a little bit of slippery business, I think, on the part of the Government here. Here, we have this wonderful model. I think this model tells us probably where the club came from, but you will never see it unless somebody perhaps gives you a guide book. I think the evidence would be fair for the jury to conclude that that club came from the MacDonald house and that it had been once part of a larger piece of wood. Where do you think that it came from?

On this model, members of the jury, every conceivable detail that anyone could want is on there. There is even the dangling telephone -- the curled wire -- I mean, of all the trivia to build in. When it comes to a piece of evidence that could have some bearing on the case, where, members of the jury, is the pit outside the back of the house where there was wood found and seen by CID agents? Please examine the great model here that is supposed to represent the house in its critical detail so that we can work together and see and understand the crime.

There is a little piece of tape here -- put here -- and we asked another witness to point out just where it is. It is not even correct to mention it. There is no indication by the Government about where that took place. Look at the photos taken by the CID on February 17th. If you will look here, what do you see? Painted pieces of wood sitting in the back of the house. In fact, I will show you the larger pictures in a second that show the same thing. Let me point out to you again that here is another black and white photograph showing more of the wood that the angle of the other one does not show. And lastly, of course, if the door was partially open here, apparently left that way by whoever left last, but it is fully open and what is there is lots more scrap wood -- not under lock and key but just there.

If nothing else, it is reasonable for you to infer that the piece of wood that was used so brutally and monstrously in this case came from that little well outside the house here in the back. It is the well that the Government chooses not to show anyone and not to put on the great model here because why? It might just suggest to the jury that the model is indicating a source for this weapon that was not in the house at the time of the crime. You can get a better view further of that of how perfectly clear it is that here on the photograph of the back of the MacDonald house how perfectly visible it is to anyone coming that way in the direction from, if you will, anyone else's house that happened to live in Corregidor Courts coming this way and perfectly visible and seen all around.

Speaking about visibility, by the way, one of the other interesting gaps in the Government's proof beyond a reasonable doubt is where were the knives found? They were found out here (indicating). The club is found quite close by here (indicating). There are photographs that will show that the knife was found over here (indicating). How did the ice pick and the knife get out there? Did Jeff come out and walk out here? What did he walk on? The sandy soil in which they were looking for footprints in? Did he have any dirt on the sole of his feet when Mica saw him and Tevere saw him and the medics saw him? How did he get it out here?

It is pretty clear from the photographs, I think, members of the jury, that you, yourself, can tell that there is no likelihood that it could be tossed out there and the angles are not clear enough to you, but there are more photographs here. Here, you have the ice pick at this particular angle underneath the shaded area by the bush here. How did it get out there? Look at the sandy soil. What do we know about that? Is there proof in this case that MacDonald in some fiendish plan, ingenious, while running from room to room and doing all these other absurd things that one would have to do, that he also managed to run out there and toss the ice pick under the bush and get back in and make sure that his soles don't show that he was out there and make sure that there is no footprints in the sandy soil out there? Good heavens, members of the jury, where is there proof of this?

There is more proof that there were intruders besides the latex, the fibers, the hair, the wax, the fingerprints, and the weapons. There is more. The list goes on.

Kenneth Mica, on the way, saw the woman in the hat. He recalled the floppy hat, rain hat. That is important not because anyone could draw any certain conclusion as to whether that woman was, in fact, a suspect in this case -- that is not. Professor Osterburg, again, teaching us something about criminal investigation, points out a live person within five country blocks of the crime scene at that time of day, that is the highest priority and anybody around has to be considered a suspect in general terms. If not in terms of a suspect of the crime, as a potential informant -- did that woman see anybody? "Did you see a car go by? Did you see a blue Mustang by any chance? Did you see anything else?" What happened?

That woman's presence indicates that this area was not barren and not devoid of other human beings. Remember, the Government went to great pain with all the CID people who came to the house and the MPs, "Did you see anything on the way? Did you see any people on the way?" They were mocking the idea and really making fun of the idea that anyone could have been in the vicinity and that all this invention of four people was a figment of Jeff's imagination. Yet, here, there is evidence of a person and how does the MP and CID forces respond to that? There is not the slightest indication that anybody went at that time promptly to try and find that person and see whether or not that person had anything about them that might bear on this crime.

Then, there is Mr. Milne. I think the Government should be ashamed of itself for mocking Mr. Milne. They have made absolutely ridiculous what is a serious matter because it doesn't fit their bizarre episode. It is bizarre not because of the way it was told, but it is bizarre that people behave like this. You know, we live in kind of a sheltered world. We deal with people that we know that are our friends and our acquaintances in business. This is not that kind of behavior. This is bizarre.

He looks out of his window -- he looks out of his door -- it is open -- and he sees three people with candles walking towards the MacDonald house. Now, what is the importance of that? It is important a number of ways. First of all, it shatters the Government's argument that it is absurd to think that there was anybody outside, you know, Corregidor Courts that night and that MacDonald is guilty of absolute fabrication. It ought to remove that issue from your deliberations entirely to think that anyone would seriously question whether there could have been persons about who were not seen by the military policemen. I think some of you perhaps have never lived on a military post and have a kind of feeling that you are living in a safe armed camp there with all the MP patrols, but you certainly learned something about that. There is no certainty that such patrols existed and that they ever saw these utterly bizarre things going on. Why should Mr. Milne be ridiculed by the Government? I will tell you why.

The Government says, "Look, he saw this and didn't call up the MPs. He didn't call up the CID." I would suspect that you have a right to draw the conclusion that he had about as much expectation of getting one to come see him as Detective Beasley of the Fayetteville Police Department had when he called the CID and said, "Hey, I have got four suspects for you in the MacDonald killings." That is about as much expectation as anyone with hindsight should have had that anyone would have showed up from the CID.

He said he didn't call them. Why? He lived right in the immediate vicinity. My expectation was that the competent professional people would canvass the neighborhood. He was out of the Army by the end of April. He did not bother to call anyone about it. What is the reasonable inference that you might draw? He concluded that they didn't need him. They didn't need any information from people in the neighborhood. Why do you have to call them up? They know what they are doing, don't they? You know better. You know better than that. Why was he not to assume that?

Then, what happens next? MacDonald's case goes to the military proceedings and ends at the end of October of 1970, and there is widespread notoriety of that and it is over with and why would Milne have to call anybody then? When does he call somebody? When, to his surprise, he learns that the case is alive again. For that, he is mocked and made a fool of by the Government's attitude in this case. I think that is despicable of anything it tended to discourage a citizen from coming forward; and is to hear outside this Courtroom how Government counsel respond to people when they have information and wait for the investigators to do the right thing and hear that the case is over with, and then, when they come forward, to be abused verbally in that fashion.

What else do we know about the intruders? Is this really a ridiculous story -- you know -- poor people and the woman in the floppy hat as the Government continues to mock? You know, we were subjected here to the trashy articles from Esquire magazine. It is an article in which the only evidence is that Ron Harrison and Jeff talked about briefly because of the bizarre episode about Lydia and the swan and then it went on to other things. God, if they had only known when they started reading that that we would all be subjected to listen to that actual piece of trash, they would probably have passed the article over more quickly.

The important thing about that article is this: the Government wants you to conclude that in California, there were these bizarre happenings going on and that MacDonald read about it and that planted this wonderful, you know, masterful idea in his head. And then P.E. Beasley said, "I read it, and that is a description of a part of the counterculture underworld back-street life in the Haymount Section of Fayetteville. It is drug culture Fayetteville 1969-1970."

Witchcraft -- can you imagine killing cats and goats and that bizarre kind of behavior, you know, drugs of every kind, paranoid behavior, violence of all sorts. Beasley makes it real. I mean nothing could be clearer. He is a professional police officer for 20 years. That was his beat. That was the area where he worked on drug matters in that area. He comes and says that there is nothing in that article that they read that one needed to know about to know that "Acid is groovy" and "pig" was the word on the street. What a trashy idea that we are subjected to. The importance of it is this: that the sickness that is reflected in that article -- this kind of sick mind and behavior -- was a disease that was just as present outside of Fort Bragg in Fayetteville as it was any place else. One did not have to read Esquire. One only had to be alive in America to know of Charles Manson and the terrible killings there. Even Helena Stoeckley who doesn't read but heard it on the radio and didn't read books but knew about it that way knew about Manson and the rest of that. One didn't have to bring in and throw the article and argue to you beyond a reasonable doubt that this was the source of the idea that MacDonald had.

The truth, if the issue in this case was -- how many people can you prove knew that "acid is groovy" was the term on the street and knew that "acid" was the term used by dope users for LSD and that all of these expressions and all this language was common on the street with people into drug abuse. We could all be convicted, I suppose, if that were the case. It is not the case. The red herring. It is meant to take -- what about everything else in Jeff's house? What about the articles about saving life in magazines and medical journals? Why don't we read them all to you? I had a temptation to subject all of us to an endless reading of all the things in his house and say on balance, was the man thinking of life or thinking of death, but I thought better of that idea.

What else do we know about are there intruders? Is the idea of intruders real in this case? How about Helena Stoeckley and her boyfriend? Officer Beasley has taught us something about life in Fayetteville and that she ran with a man named Allen Mazerolle and that Mazerolle was a man he considered dangerous and a man considered violent. Helena Stoeckley, when she was in this Courtroom, can you imagine nine and a half years later, puffy-faced from hepatitis and has her arm in a cast because she has been beaten again by one of her friends. Is violence present in her life and the kind of monstrous violence that committed the crimes here? You bet it is.

Dr. Hughes was here yesterday. What did he say? Under LSD, maybe the lights are flashing, but you see the light, you know, and you think that you can do it better than anybody else. You can do it. You can murder, you can commit violence, you can drive a car, you can play music, you can do all of those things. Helena and her friends -- we will talk about them later.

What about Jeff's injuries? It is clear that no doctor with Jeff MacDonald's intelligence would stab himself in the place he did because just in case the person didn't get your message on the phone and the help didn't get to you, you would be dead. Now, what kind of brilliant scheme is that, to hide horrendous murders by taking an injury in a place where you just might die yourself? Jeff is either the intelligent man that even the Government concedes he is, or he is the lunatic who hasn't planned this out very carefully is what the Government's inferences would have you believe.

I want to talk to you a bit now about the last area that I want to talk to you about and then ask my colleague, Wade Smith, to talk a bit about something else. I will make it brief. The question here is what is the role of Helena Stoeckley in this case. Again, we are like living in a time warp. We see her nine and a half years later after. I need to ask you for a minute to try and go back in time, if you will, to 1970. How did she become an issue in this case? Is she an invention of me? Is she an invention of Jeff MacDonald? If you think about the evidence in this case, when the descriptions went out over the radio, who is the person that saw Helena and her band of fellow travelers as potential suspects in this case? Some defense lawyer? Some advocates of the Defendant's position do that, or did a professional police officer, P. E. Beasley? The answer is Beasley.

What else brings Helena Stoeckley in this case? William Posey, the pudgy man who testified in 1970, and here again as a next-door neighbor of Helena Stoeckley and who puts her into this case, too, because he sees her leave around midnight on February 17th, and come back between 4:30 and 5:00 in the morning in the blue Mustang. He sees her run into the house. He saw her always before that time with her characteristic floppy hat, blonde wig, and boots and from that next day onward, never saw it again. Is he an invention of the Defendant and myself?

Again, the Government makes fun. "Why did you come forward, Mr. Posey?" If you come forward at all, you get mocked. If you don't come forward because you think they don't need you, you get mocked. You can't win. You can't win until finally a jury gets to decide the case, and then, then there is a revolution.

THE COURT: Mr. Segal, you have five minutes left of your total time.

MR. SEGAL: My impression was that we had until 4:30, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Well, you have three hours and 15 minutes and you have used three hours and ten minutes of it.

MR. SEGAL: I am going to do injustice to Helena Stoeckley's role because I think I want you to hear what Wade has said that he wanted to talk to you about. It is a question about the one remaining issue in this case.

Just let me say this about Helena Stoeckley. Not only did Posey put her into this case physically. The Government says, "Look, she got rid of the blonde wig, the hat, and the boots because of harassment." Posey said that she got rid of it the next day. How much harassment could there have been by February 18th?

Helena Stoeckley was put into this case by people to whom she talked to, people in Nashville, Officer Gaddis. She was part of a crowd to whom "acid" was really "groovy." In 1973, she said, or '72, she gave it up because she said -- remember the dialogue that we had -- "I don't follow any man." I asked her about Manson and if she believed in following a leader and she said, "I do follow the drug. That is why I gave up LSD," because of what it did to her. Helena Stoeckley also told us about the rocking horse that she believes seen in Kristen's bedroom. The Government leaps forward with a copy of the Fayetteville newspaper, but you see, the trouble with that again is that it is a half truth. How does a Fayetteville reporter or photographer get up to the MacDonald house through the cordons of MPs with their arms curled and take a picture through the window? Wonderful protection of the crime scene. At last, he was at work -- through the soil -- through the sandy soil and a picture right away, but there is something in the picture that makes it different.

Helena says that the rocker was broken -- the rocker was broken. That is not what the picture shows. How would she know that -- how would she know about that, about the rocker? There is much more that one ought to say about her. How do you explain on the day of the MacDonald funerals -- people she says she never met -- she wears black and steals a funeral wreath and never has before -- she wears a black veil. Thereafter, she tries to get someone on the same day to go to the MacDonald's family funeral with her.

The Government's explanation, I suppose, is going to be that her brain was besotted by LSD. Look, you heard what Dr. Hughes had to say. You saw her here. She was a police informant not only in Fayetteville, but her brain was working in Nashville. She was reliable. Beasley didn't say that her brain was besotted. She knew what she was up to. She was dealing drugs on the street. Her head was in some money. Her head was into the drug culture. Why in the name of heaven did the Government not follow the lead that Beasley put in her hand on the next day after the murders and did not send a CID agent?

I wanted to talk to you about the picture in this case. There are many things that I want to touch upon. I ask you not to do this, members of the jury, to not conclude from the fact that I have not talked about so many other issues in the time available to us to conclude that there are not alternate explanations and alternate theories for this. I only want to leave you with this thought and then I am going to ask Wade to talk with you, and that thought is that it was never our explanation and it was never Jeff's responsibility to offer an explanation and never my obligation to offer an explanation, but we only point these things out to you to show you the existence of far more rational and equally acceptable alternative hypotheses to what the Government has here to say. Since the burden of proof is on the Government from the beginning to the end, I submit to you that they never have met it before and they do not meet it now. There is one remaining question, though, and that is the one that I want Wade to talk to you about.

THE COURT: Members of the jury, I am still here, but I haven't seen you all afternoon. Let's take our recess now and we will come back at 4:30. Remember all the things and don't talk about the case. Come back at 4:30.

(The proceeding was recessed at 4:14 p.m., to reconvene at 4:30 p.m., this same day.)

It Is Elementary My Dear Watson

Sherlock Holmes (/ˈʃɜːrlɒk ˈhoʊmz/) is a fictional detective created by British author Arthur Conan Doyle. Referring to himself as a "consulting detective" in the stories, Holmes is known for his proficiency with observation, deduction, forensic science and logical reasoning that borders on the fantastic, which he employs when investigating cases for a wide variety of clients, including Scotland Yard.

Almost everyone will recognize this expression as being from the mouth of legendary detective Sherlock Holmes. But it is not found in any of Arthur Conan Doyle's stories (published between 1886 and 1927). Instead, it seems that the first time Holmes expresses his signature phrase is in the 1929 film, The Return of Sherlock Holmes, with Clive Brook in the role of Holmes, released the year before Conan Doyle's death in 1930.

As The Phrase Finder points out, Conan Doyle gets very close to formulating the expression in various Sherlock Holmes stories, with Holmes describing events as "elementary" in "The Crooked Man" and addressing his sidekick as "my dear, Watson" on a number of occasions; but it took other writers to synthesize the expression we know today.

For example, Quote Investigator cites a 1908 article printed in a Rochester, New York newspaper describing a a system to send signals to the planet Mars using mirrors, and the unnamed writer opines that "It is such a simple little problem that any one should be able to take a pad and pencil and work it out in ten minutes. 'Elementary, my dear Watson,' as Sherlock Holmes was wont to say, 'Elementary.'" https://www.bookbrowse.com/expressions/detail/index.cfm/expression_number/337/elementary-my-dear-watson novel A Study in Scarlet (1887). "The Adventure of Shoscombe Old Place" (1927) is the last work of Doyle featuring Watson and Holmes, although their last appearance in the canonical timeline is in "His Last Bow" (1917).

As Holmes's friend and confidant, Watson has appeared in various films, television series, video games, comics and radio programmes.

In Doyle's early rough plot outlines, Holmes's associate was named "Ormond Sacker"[1][2] before Doyle finally settled on "John Watson". He was probably inspired by one of Doyle's colleagues, Dr James Watson. William L. DeAndrea wrote, "Watson also serves the important function of catalyst for Holmes's mental processes.... From the writer's point of view, Doyle knew the importance of having someone to whom the detective can make enigmatic remarks, a consciousness that's privy to facts in the case without being in on the conclusions drawn from them until the proper time. Any character who performs these functions in a mystery story has come to be known as a 'Watson'.

Watson's first name is mentioned on only four occasions. Part one of the first Sherlock Holmes story, A Study in Scarlet, is subtitled Being a reprint from the Reminiscences of John H. Watson, M.D., Late of the Army Medical Department.[4] The preface of the collection His Last Bow is signed "John H. Watson, M.D.", and in "The Problem of Thor Bridge", Watson says that his dispatch box is labelled "John H. Watson, M.D."

In A Study in Scarlet, Watson, as the narrator, is established as having studied at St Bartholomew's Hospital in London, receiving his medical degree from the University of London in 1878, and subsequently being trained at Netley as an assistant surgeon in the British Army.

Watson witnesses Holmes's skills of deduction on their first case together, concerning a series of murders related to Mormon intrigue. When the case is solved, Watson is angered that Holmes is not given any credit for it by the press. When Holmes refuses to record and publish his account of the adventure, Watson endeavours to do so himself. In time, Holmes and Watson become close friends.

It is tale much to do with us and the Americans.

The International Committee on Intellectual Cooperation, sometimes League of Nations Committee on Intellectual Cooperation, was an advisory organisation for the League of Nations which aimed to promote international exchange between scientists, researchers, teachers, artists and intellectuals.

The International Committee on Intellectual Cooperation, sometimes League of Nations Committee on Intellectual Cooperation, was an advisory organisation for the League of Nations which aimed to promote international exchange between scientists, researchers, teachers, artists and intellectuals.[2][3][4] Established in 1922, it counted such figures as Henri Bergson, Albert Einstein, Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, Jagadish Chandra Bose, Nitobe Inazo, Marie Curie, Gonzague de Reynold, Leonardo Torres Quevedo, and Robert A. Millikan among its members.[5][6][7] The committee was the predecessor to UNESCO, and all of its properties were transferred to that organisation in 1946.

During this time on nuclear research, cyptography, and many advanced areas of sceintific grown in the 19th century were through the 7 Siseter in the USA, the Ivy Leauve like Columbia University and Harvard, and many top intelligence officials were keen to learn of the advanced works or were sponsors of university programs including development of atomic weapns, exray, the periodic table, etc.,

In 1925 the Prince of Windsor, Prince Albert Lord Governer of Windsor had defect first identified by his father King Edward VII. It was a "weepy" disorder of sorrow, anger and joy, a bit child like, getting euphoic easily or angry and depressed. Not mania thoughm were as the manic is of normal disposition unless some time in his or her lfe for a week or so exeriencing high intensity irrational thoughts and delusions.

This Borderline Personalty disorder rides the bumps life life like a moguls skiers up and down and over the top, not sking a flat slope and that is the Borderline's norm. To a flat incline skier they find the Borderline unpredictablt and may finally give up in marriage, etc., Marilyn Monroe was soch a person as wse Roe kennedy.

Speech and psychiatric sceintists from Frued and Jung worked on the problems as did Max Jacobson, Dr Greesnon, and others over the course of the famoiy generations.

During this time some bastard children were moved into the USA three I think Julie Andews, Norma Jean, and Glorian Gainey, and later her older brother Harolld Gainey.

Davisson College and other institutions had a tradition of helptig flee the slave trade and children with special needs were bing smuggled from Nazi Gernamy. This including some of those bastard Windor children, through at leats on biological mother, Maria Kutschera who gave birth in the USA most likely after having left the Concent of Salzburg Austria pregnant, a hehavoraila lapse from the conditions of the monestary.

Now I must confess here these children were not the only arrival from England. Admiral Halsey of the US Navy working with US figures iike Josehh Kenendy Sr and Frankln Deleanour Rosefult were all working along with Wild Bill Donovabt in and the Dulles bortehrs of Ameerican Espionage during this activity of the 1920s.

What ulimate came to be in the US sponsored by Intelligece Community lawfirms who helped run British intellgence front compainies around the world, compnaines like the United Fruit Company; well, Sillivan and Cromwell were one law firm, their were banks thet ehlped, and media conpanines that run publicity peieces puff peiecs about travel on United Fruit

Conpnay latin American travel liners touring the lcoations the Bannanas were bing harvested, the rural villages, remote conuntries, etc.,

Formerly of course these lae firms beacem more a paret of policy in the USAS and they created the Defense Intellgene Agency, or DIA, who studies regimes around the world, those who would cooperate, and those who posed ao rikf if they turned towards the USSR in the Cold War.

The DIA knew how to fake government records, use pull with friednly companies often owned by the CIA or British or London Banking, and get Agents of Influence in place in places like indonesia, Hawaii, Cuba, Latin Americam, Pesisia, and elsehwehre.

The DI became the 800 pound gorilla in the room and finalky overthrew the USA. JFK had come along and backed the Repubklic of Irealnd over Northern Irealand, teh Bostron Teap Party and ptotato famiine victims over Queen of England.

With British cooperation JFK was taken out. All the press elements that had been put in place as Psycholical Warfare liek CD Douglas at Time or Life or something like that discoureage Conspiracty Theories but in fact JFK was hit by the Engaland leaning elements of US Government and Lee Harve Oswald was made a patsy.

By this time Roman Catholic leaning Agents of Influce 9ncluding those in secret helpting the plans along by secrecy as the Donegans did and Norma Jean did began to talk.

The Defense Intelligence Agency and CIA officials tied to killing jFK began to try and clean up loose ends who might be sitnesses of the mystery of the JFK assasinaotion was ever sovled.

Collet Mac Donald was from a family that nkew too much. The Vatican had been invoved as the Bush family was, Donald Barr was, Landsale was, and many others like Mueller family, and big corporateinos like DPont and Harvard and Columbia Uinversity project in media and liberal arts of atomic reseafch.

Dr Fermi sat in his Columbia Znew York City ofice towar and overlookd Manhattan Ilsand and the name for the historical project to build the bomb got the name Manhtatan Project.

Later the skill of the Defense Intelligence Agency went into clearn up, and as always hid its hands. zit formed front Statninst groups, used religous groups ranging from the Vatican to Baptists, to UCC, Methodists, and others in a united front against Soviets.

James Jesus Asnleton lead much of this along with J Edgar Hoover. With the wintness fallign victim to add accients most the story stayed hidden. Jen Moore ahd many of the facts and leaked them as Ed Donegan is doning. Ted Gunderon was onto the situation as was John Decamp. Children after being kindppapred were moved around the world, with their cooperaton, or many times being killed by scuzzy criminal groups because they were a risk to the program.

Mamuy of the rulers of the world today come from ths plan to lead the 21st Century and those leaders want to hid their tracks with continuing coverup and subverion of the press, courts, victims and other leakers.

Industrial Espionage as Blacklisting Via Espionage Smear Campaign

My (Edward Paul Donegan) an not a terrorist, have writen on race, not at all agaist the law and been supportive of law enforcement even warning them the ideology of the radical left as with the 1960's was a concern now again in the late 1990's as social justice was being taught, teaching hate against the institutions and people of the USA even Colin Powll found an unjst portrayal of US history of race relations, the US having carried out many reforms and a history of thsee for generations..

The theory of takign away a terror groups assets to cripple its activities under the NDAA have been used against my Libertarian belief system much like John DeCampss.

False allegations have destroyed my life bot because I was a threat but because I like many others are victims of MKULTRA and an attack on me including using non US elements was necessary under COINTELPRP programs because the syste is blacklisting. As I am framed and seem undesirable I lose my voice an = d place in society, credibility, even freedom, and also lose my health in auster conditions of high physical risk.

I need a place in society more than it needs me, and since it view me as a threat or simp;ly is not invoved in my quest for justice. Most think my being on the streets homelwss is justice and how it worked out for a guy like me if they think at me at all , knowking only the smears includig the records of my bing in instutuions without trail and devatstation to my life under false allegations based incarcerations.

Thus nut-jobs cruising around sneakily are trying to freak them out. In earthquakes some people fall or jump from buildings fearing collapse or make other mistakes. Be careful not to get them to put you on a bad trip or anything and they are frigging everywhere".

Within the United States the unique elements of Treason against the USA and perhaps also against other governments

A crime that returns the United States to the Abitrary Prince is illegal whether part of what some conceive as a Unitary Executive or by allegiance in method across all three branches and the people have filled those positions at any time.

Allowing harm to a party or parts in the USA in a manner that is unjust, fabricated, or improperly predicated does not violate part of our Constitution it violate all of it in whole.

As John Stuart Mill wrote in On Liberty the protection a single individual's rights are as required as preserving all people's rights.

The system of Government we have worked is complex and in constant need of labor intensive balancing of sometimes conflicting interest of branches of government and the citizen versus the state in changing worlds of technology and understanding and world context.

The premise that the citizen or any person can be denied the protection of justice, and that justice through laws passing constitutional muster, can not be deviated from and any other part of our constitution still left functioning.

Creation of allegations against a person or persons for any other basis than factual support for the allegations undoes the American Revolution against England, in part against King George and in greater part the system of government that allowed for arbitrary rule of elites against a persecuted person or class of persons.

An Interview with John DeCamp (Nebraska Leadership Conference)

Decamp - "I go on in this very brief opening forward to explain why I was with Colby he's friend advisor going back to Vietnam days.

I was in Washington standard his place and I was telling him you know I received these threats and he was somewhat familiar with Franklin he he had received national press and and I think he had a lot more knowledge than I'll ever know he had but anyway he was warning me to get away from it to stay away - leave it alone to not touch it anymore and I said wait a minute Bill you know how can you walk away from something when you know terrible things are happening when you know institutions of government and we all rely on that there being corrupt?

Yeah it's a real import and then he said to me he said John sit down just it's just cool off and relax and Sully his wife was there Sally ford and Sally by the way was prominant I think ambassador to more countries than any other person has ever been in the history of the United States appointed by Carter so Sally's got a little little heavy duty things herself and she was listening and nodding her head and agreeing with Bill bill says let me tell you my personal story because maybe it'll have a message for you there.

And he says you know last night I returned from Russia now this is the former head of the CIA under President Nixon and President Ford and he sitting me down and telling me that with that I I just better listen he says last night I returned from Russia is what was I doing in Russia he said I was there and remember this is three weeks three weeks before the Gorbachev coup that hmm changed Russia forever tonight the collapse of Russia he said I was there in Russia with kind of a secret group of people whose names you would instantly recognize and those powerful people from all over the world names like myself you know Colby had been the head of the CIA he said we were there to save Russia from a revolution when and if it collapses so that it doesn't explode into World War Three.

A world war he said this what were you doing trying to actually work with the people we had been defeating to prevent a revolution okay and he says it was the night before I was due to come home he said last night he said I was in my hotel right there on Red Square the most sacred place in all of Russian d'amore communism he said and I couldn't sleep and I got thinking about just how significant these world events were that were occurring he says so I decided what excuse me what they have I'm just gonna go for a walk he said I knew that was forbidden because you know you can't just go walking around Red Square in the middle of the night particularly the head of the CIA spent 40 years trying to destroy Russia he said but I thought I'd see how far I can get.

He says I walked out past the guards nobody's paying attention so I go out of the hotel then I am in Red Square and from the tomb of Lenin walking up to the doors of the Kremlin itself he said nobody cared nobody was paying attention here was the head of the CIA the most hated the most feared enemy that communism had over the years bill Colby head of the CIA during the most critical time he said in it then it struck me he said that I realized it he said we'd won the Cold War was over Russia was dead communism was dead he said after 40 years and Reverend Weezer his words not mine now he said after 40 years of fighting the bastards we had won we won.

It was over the Cold War was Dunnan and I was the only one of the whole planet to recognize know it right then at that instant and then he said something else struck me something something to just really slam me I said well what was that he said I realized that this walk I was having in Red Square was it that was the only parade I was ever going to have for all our achievements there wasn't gonna be the ticker tapes down Madison Avenue there wasn't gonna be the the waving and he said it was all over and we'd won and this was my private parade.

And it was the only one I said okay bill now we've heard about your private parade in the defeat of communism so on so what's that got to do with Franklin and this whole mess I'm trying to get something he said sometimes you better face up to the fact and this is one of those times that the things you're involved in have have significance and people too big too powerful events and things involved you don't even know about that are just too big and powerful for you to deal with and you have to face up the fact that maybe in in the time frame you'd like to deal with them and the way you'd like to do and can't be done.

He said then sometimes evil does succeed for a while and that's just you have to walk away from it get away from it and he says the only way Franklin will ever get exposed and where it leads to and what it goes is if the national press an independent national press just like happened in Watergate happened in iran-contra happened happening with old [Roman Catholic] Joe McCarthy at the independent national press really gets interested and delves into it and takes it all the way to where it leads Morrow interjecting - is there such a thing [as a free and indeendent press] anymore in this country?

DeCamp again -See that that's that's why I said I said well how do you do that bill he says I'll help y'all I know something he's called notified a number of people he says the problem is getting one of them to really put the investigative research and reporters onto it and not having back off and where it leads.

Well so I went home thought about it was frustrated and I thought okay I'll do my part to start it all right the story of Franklin as a documentary as a documentary with the things that are available right now today that show there was clearly at least again in my opinion a cover-up.

I won't mince words I won't hedge things I'll spit it out straight and what it cost me it cost me but at least the foundation will be there and of course since since writing the book I've learned a lot more I now believe I think I'm beginning to understand maybe a little more of what bill was saying and where this thing really does lead and I I think now I'm finally understanding why it's so powerful where it leads as I say and I think it leads into things that almost move into the fantasy world that we went to movies and watched and in the 60s and 70s and 80s.

In other words the mysteries of the Cold War battle and how far governments go with their secret services whether it be the CIA or or the Gestapo or the KGB in Russia and I believe and I know this sounds like I'm floating off into Fantasyland right tyro can bring you back here you're right and I dimin the first one a few years ago to say well yeah make good movie but you aren't gonna believe any of this here's what I believe I believe that Franklin had a lot of personalities who through one way or another were linked up to the cold war effort the CIA and other things back during the 70s and 80s.

Morrow: We ran across some information about Larry King in one point that it looked like that he had at one time had some ties with the CIA.

Decamp: he did and I document some of those in the book but beyond that information I've learned since I wrote the book I have no doubt now no doubt Larry King was one of the underlings of the CIA involved in a specific program recruiting particularly young boys particularly kind of a particular kind of boy who were then used in a kind of mental programming a brainwashing (PsyOps) if you would that we were doing to use them for such things as assassinations such things as drug dealing.

remember drug dealing hmm back during the 70s and 80s we now know pretty well was one of the main methods to finance our covert operations we were actually involved in in drug dealing and even even even a lot of those things that sounds like sex, blackmail, so on and so forth at least, yeah mind-control (MKULTRA) thing now as they say sounds "off".

now if anybody's listening I think yeah DeCamp is off with the Lulu Birds you know like Manchurian Candidate you remember that old movie were they yeah well I guess what I'm (DeCamp is) saying is I think that [The Manchurian Candidate and MKULTRA of the CIA and DIA]is a integral part of this [Temple of Set Micheal Aquino].

If you have that kind of thing at stake predicting because the (elite)personalities that it goes up to ultimately mm-hmm the American public would be shocked to find it yes our government really really did these things same thing we accuse the other guys are doing which they were doing too well Congress investigated that back in the early 50s and the CIA.

Yeah but remember this a sophistication of the 50s was nothing compared to what it was in the 70s and 80s this is post Vietnam we had suffered our worst defeat in the history of this country our only defeat we now we're not gonna let it happen again between 1975 roughly and 1986 roughly was the most intense Cold War period in this country

I mean it was just that close to a hot war at all times we always think of the Cuban crisis is the time not really 1975 to 1986 remember the Evil Empire, remember Star Wars SDI, remember the contest to see who could build up [GDP and economic strength and military] faster that's what finally broke the Russians they just couldn't keep up in the contest financially so that was the period when technology was going rampant.

Remember the invention of the computer the understanding of the human mind so much more and the information I've learned since the book came out that is poured in from a variety of sources makes me believe that that may well be why it's necessary for the protection of our entire government in a sense embarrassment.

What people would believe what people would feel about their government if they knew some of the things that we had done profilers the motives for the cover-up.

I think that's one of the major motives he says people just protecting themselves other people of course have a vested interest of all a child abuser these kind of things you're certainly willing to cooperate if you are a if you're a judge or an official who got your position as a result of help from this or that.

Remember another surprised and this I'm now convinced of which I didn't know when I wrote the book off at Air Force Base if you're gonna pick the most sacred military installation in the United States for the last 140 years where is it it's off at Air Force Base right in the center of the United States what land USA the farthest you can get from Russia.

mmm-hmm well I am convinced now that there was a major CIA operation out of there handled there and of course Omaha the Heartland at least likely place in the world to have something like this that's a major part of this Larry King was merely a tool in this whole thing.

remember another surprised and this I'm now convinced of which I didn't know when I wrote the book off at Offutt Air Force Base is a U.S. Air Force base south of Omaha, adjacent to Bellevue in Sarpy County, Nebraska. It is the headquarters of the U.S. Strategic Command, the 55th Wing, and the 55th Wing of the Strategic Air Combat Command, the latter serving as the host unit. Wikipedia if you're gonna pick the most sacred military installation in the United States for the last 140 years where is it it's off at Air Force Base right in the center of the United States what land USA the farthest you can get from Russia.

mmm-hmm well I am convinced now that there was a major CIA operation out of there handled there and of course Omaha the Heartland at least likely place in the world to have something like this that's a major part of this Larry King was merely a tool in this whole thing. (Truth is stranger than fiction - DeCamp) who I ever thought would be writing a book when you opened you said the latest book rest assured it's my only book at least at this point and who knows may write another one someday but here's how it opens as I say I'm just gonna take a couple minutes and read this because because I think it'll tell you why I whoo-hoo wish I'd never heard of Franklin I'm sitting here writing a book trying to document that some of my closest friends over the years are part of a massive cover-up and that's what

I'm doing.

I'm destroying friendships one on another I'm destroying myself in a very real sense you know what is certainly financially I just I just had no choice at some point.

ok so here's how it starts what do Ronald Reagan President George Bush former CIA director William II Colby Democratic presidential candidate Bob Kerry billionaire and second richest man in America and now head of Salomon Brothers Warren Buffett and Ronald raskins the current administrator of the US Agency for International Development (USAID) all have in common I asked my close friend and advisor William Colby one day in 1991 I give up former head of the Central Intelligence Agency CIA Colby said what could that group have in common three things I replied all of them a burden at times for those who have to carry them.

29 cause of the memo were articles in the Lincoln Journal and star that were not accurate about an incident number one 3 Minutes :

36 and then number two pressure from the World Herald a reporter to me to say hey how do you know information where do you 3 Minutes :

42 get information what do you know about Franklin how come you won't tell these things and I said hey wait a minute 3 Minutes :

47 fellas you're the investigative reporters you're the ones that have the 3 Minutes :

53 information you're the ones that are covering up and here are the reasons you're doing it and here's what the public knows and I just laid it out and 3 Minutes :

59 people said well gosh aren't you afraid of being sued you're you're naming uh some of the most potent and powerful 4 Minutes :

05 folk in this entire state the people that pull the chains and and call the shots and I said yeah yeah I know they 4 Minutes :

12 do and that's why it's so serious that's what's that's why so so terrible and I 4 Minutes :

18 said am I afraid of being sued no heck well I think it'd be good for them to sue me let's find out the truth right 4 Minutes :

23 and I said point number one truth is a defense and anything I wrote in that memo we're talking about the memo right 4 Minutes :

30 now specifically anything I wrote in that memo I guarantee you is the truth at least the truth is I see it right 4 Minutes :

36 there was my intent well there certainly wasn't but but it's the truth 4 Minutes :

42 what more can I say and I guess there was a backlash and as a result of that 4 Minutes :

50 memo primarily as I recall they quickly created the grand jury and again it's my 4 Minutes :

57 opinion because that that pretty what much is where this book starts if anything that created the real organized 5 Minutes :

05 effort for a true true true cover-up which is the essence not really your 5 Minutes :

11 memo was directed initially to the newspaper to the media and not to the 5 Minutes :

18 public but it got circulated to the public through a man in Omaha who was 5 Minutes :

23 running for political office and he got a hold of the memo some way or well and understand something I have a pretty 5 Minutes :

32 standard rule I follow right now today and always have and that is if I talk to 5 Minutes :

37 you functioning as a member of the press and that's how you're functioning here today you're you're functioning as a 5 Minutes :

43 member of the press I figure if I say it to you it's public I shouldn't be able 5 Minutes :

49 to say why I didn't want you to tell anybody that if I'm telling you it it's 5 Minutes :

54 on the record well I shouldn't be talking about it unless I specifically say okay Reverend 6 Minutes :

01 we are agreed that we're going to talk about one specific thing right here it's off the record I'm providing you information with that that that may be 6 Minutes :

08 the exception but I made it clear when I send a memo to the press to answer the press questions to me thing then it's in 6 Minutes :

15 the hands of the public they can do what they want look they were also whether whether this young man or whoever he was 6 Minutes :

21 that the distributed the memo because he got a copy of it from this or that I don't know where he got a copy I understand today I've learned this just 6 Minutes :

28 last week you got from some member of the press in Omaha does my understanding that it was the big deal press itself what I said should have 6 Minutes :

34 been said and should have been made public I hope the World Herald would print it they never did of course because as I 6 Minutes :

40 try to document in the book I believe the World Herald if you were going to pick an institution of government and 6 Minutes :

45 that's what what our major press is they're institutions of government they are if anything the scent 6 Minutes :

51 Pease the heart of the cover-up and of course they have a very vested interest in doing it and for the benefit of our 6 Minutes :

57 viewers again why do they have a vested interest I think I think you and I will 7 Minutes :

03 never know all the reasons but for sure because of some of their personalities involved Harold Anderson is the was the 7 Minutes :

10 publisher and one of the probably the major stockholder in the world Harold and Harold Anderson was if anything the 7 Minutes :

18 protege I mean the The Godfather if you want to use a word of Larry King in the 7 Minutes :

25 promotion the credit union in well certainly in that and and I'm sure in a lot of other ways he did promote a lot 7 Minutes :

32 in the way of fundraising for the credit union more than that I went out and got 7 Minutes :

37 depositors and generated funds and helped with he was the chairman of the committee that the told Larry King the 7 Minutes :

43 Advisory Committee that theoretically told him what to do or how to do it or why to do it or whatever but then of 7 Minutes :

51 course the advisory committee after this broke they all maintained that they not any of them ever knew what was going on 7 Minutes :

56 and so apparently no one was advice he advisory committee well I rather suspect 8 Minutes :

01 that that maybe I'll use the words of former governor Bob Crosby when he was 8 Minutes :

07 describing Harold Anderson he said you know this man is probably I think he 8 Minutes :

12 said the best investigative reporter in the history of the state he rose to to 8 Minutes :

19 the pinnacle of power ownership of the world Harold publisher here he is the 8 Minutes :

25 chairman of the Advisory Committee here he is him in probably the closest contact of anybody with Larry King one 8 Minutes :

35 has to believe that somebody of his talent in that position raising the 8 Minutes :

42 money for building the credit union everything else that he had more than a passing knowledge hmm I understand Larry 8 Minutes :

49 King and his activities my understanding was that Larry King's salary from the credit union was never really much more 8 Minutes :

56 than about $16,000 a year I believe that's correct yes and he did have several catering businesses and had 9 Minutes :

03 interests in a couple of restaurants that's correct none of them were really very great income producers and yet he 9 Minutes :

10 lived an extremely flamboyant lifestyle with extravagant gifts to his many male 9 Minutes :

17 friends and protegees and you mentioned of course the two very very expensive parties you're much more polite and 9 Minutes :

25 beating around the bush let me put it the way it is Larry King was a very evil person who stole money was involved in 9 Minutes :

30 child abuse Satanism and all these other things that's what this book documents he was an evil person he had a lot of 9 Minutes :

36 other people connected with him he did not act alone he was protected and his little time 9 Minutes :

44 he's going to spend in prison is probably nothing more than a a respite and I'm sure he's going to be well taken 9 Minutes :

51 care of when and when he comes out Larry King was merely a functionary of a lot 9 Minutes :

57 of other people doing a lot of bad things so this whole business of the 10 Minutes :

02 Franklin cover-up then has been operating virtually from the beginning 10 Minutes :

07 although in the initial stages the World Herald was making some noises like being investigative in there the World Herald 10 Minutes :

14 wrote more on supposedly according to them and I'm repeating them they wrote more on Franklin than they have on any 10 Minutes :

20 other subject in the in the history of the World Herald that's their statements as I recall so yes but as I try to 10 Minutes :

28 document they were half-truths they were designed for a purpose they were 10 Minutes :

34 designed to complete the cover-up so you know they had a big interest not only was Harold Anderson a centerpiece of 10 Minutes :

41 this activity of Franklin damn him the pre-fill things and and the allegations and accusations but but another key 10 Minutes :

47 individual there among others and I'm sure there's more than just another key no but Peter citron right remember when 10 Minutes :

52 I named him in the memo I named Peter Citroen and and the word was out well 10 Minutes :

58 they were going to use Peter citron was gonna be the one that comes out and sues John decamp for saying these horrible 11 Minutes :

03 things about him I don't know if you remember at the time but that woman that was how was the message that was delivered to me well unfortunately Peter 11 Minutes :

11 ran into some problems himself because when families in the Omaha area who 11 Minutes :

18 children associated with with Peter citron regularly when their mothers 11 Minutes :

23 would confront these little boys and I'm talking about little boys you know anywhere if they're 9 to 15 or whatever 11 Minutes :

30 is it these terrible things they're saying about Peter citron is any of this 11 Minutes :

35 true is and they you know our mother can be a pretty strong force when she gets concerned about someone starts 11 Minutes :

41 confronting her her young boy of one after another the little boy started pouring out the tales of what was going 11 Minutes :

47 on and so the police and and the people who who would have who were claiming 11 Minutes :

53 Peter was as innocent as the driven snow they were they had no choice they had to 11 Minutes :

59 deal with the fact and so they seized I guess thousands thousands of documents 12 Minutes :

06 of upwards yeah probably over 10,000 bit you know and I talked to the judge you know after the 12 Minutes :

14 whole trial was over and Peter was sentenced it was a very quick deal where he quickly pleaded guilty in and then 12 Minutes :

20 was put in the mental health place mm-hmm he's a judge said it was the most 12 Minutes :

25 frightening shocking child abuse things he had ever seen his entire life or even 12 Minutes :

31 hurt or even couldn't believe it existed so of course under those conditions Peter was not in a very good position to 12 Minutes :

37 claim he was as pure as the driven snow and Sue me and the next thing that 12 Minutes :

43 happened of course was as I recall the grand jury pretty well quickly formed unfortunately the grand jury in my 12 Minutes :

50 opinion I'm giving my opinion right in my opinion and I think I've offered the documentation to support it if anybody 12 Minutes :

56 wants to read it the documentation the World Herald of course didn't they they give the other side which which is I 13 Minutes :

02 guess they're right as a newspaper the documentation to support the the grand jury was merely a very very carefully 13 Minutes :

09 crafted piece of the cover-up an essential piece and their honor just you 13 Minutes :

15 just continued Jim speaking of the but anyway to answer your question that we 13 Minutes :

20 started this whole conversation he said well why'd you write the book or something I'm gonna try to call I'm gonna read you three of the opening 13 Minutes :

27 paragraphs in the book then tell you a quick story because they pretty well tell you why I wrote the but because I'm the last person on this 13 Minutes :

33 planet who I ever thought would be writing a book when you opened you said the latest book rest assured it's my 13 Minutes :

39 only book at least at this point and who 13 Minutes :

44 knows may write another one someday but here's how it opens as I say I'm just gonna take a couple minutes and read 13 Minutes :

49 this because because I think it'll tell you why I whoo-hoo wish I'd never heard of Franklin I'm sitting here writing a 13 Minutes :

56 book trying to document that some of my closest friends over the years are part of a massive cover-up and that's what 14 Minutes :

03 I'm doing I'm destroying friendships one on another I'm destroying myself in a very real sense you know what 9 14 Minutes :

08 certainly financially I just I just had no choice at some point ok so here's how 14 Minutes :

13 it starts what do Ronald Reagan President George Bush former CIA director William II Colby Democratic 14 Minutes :

20 presidential candidate Bob Kerry billionaire and second richest man in America and now head of Salomon Brothers 14 Minutes :

26 Warren Buffett and Ronald raskins the current administrator of the agency for international development all have in 14 Minutes :

32 common I asked my close friend and advisor William Colby one day in 1991 I 14 Minutes :

37 give up former head of the Central Intelligence Agency CIA Colby said what 14 Minutes :

44 could that group have in common three things I replied all of them a burden at times for those who have to carry them 14 Minutes :

51 the three things are me John decamp a case called Franklin and a man named 14 Minutes :

58 Larry King and then I go on in this very brief opening forward to explain why I 15 Minutes :

04 was with Colby he's friend advisor going back to Vietnam days I was in Washington 15 Minutes :

10 standard his place and I was telling him you know I received these threats and he 15 Minutes :

16 was somewhat familiar with Franklin he he had received national press and and I think he had a lot more knowledge than 15 Minutes :

22 I'll ever know he had but anyway he was warning me to get away from it to stay 15 Minutes :

28 away - leave it alone to not touch it anymore and I said wait a minute bill 15 Minutes :

34 you know how can you walk away from something when you know terrible things are happening when you know institutions 15 Minutes :

40 of government and we all rely on that there being corrupt yeah it's a real pageant and then he 15 Minutes :

48 said to me he said John sit down just it's just cool off and relax and Sully his wife was there Sally by the way was 15 Minutes :

53 I think ambassador to more countries than any other person has ever been in the history of the United States 15 Minutes :

59 appointed by Carter so Sally's got a little little heavy 16 Minutes :

05 duty things herself and she was listening and nodding her head and agreeing with Bill bill says let me tell 16 Minutes :

11 you my personal story because maybe it'll have a message for you there and he says you know last night I returned 16 Minutes :

17 from Russia now this is the former head of the CIA under President Nixon and President Ford and he sitting me down 16 Minutes :

24 and telling me that with that I I just 16 Minutes :

31 better listen he says last night I returned from Russia is what was I doing in Russia he said I was there and 16 Minutes :

37 remember this is three weeks three weeks before the Gorbachev coup that hmm 16 Minutes :

44 changed Russia forever tonight the collapse of Russia he said I was there in Russia with kind of a secret group of 16 Minutes :

50 people whose names you would instantly recognize and those powerful people from all over the world names like myself you 16 Minutes :

57 know Colby had the CIA he said we were there to save Russia from a revolution 17 Minutes :

03 when and if it collapses so that it doesn't explode into World War third 17 Minutes :

08 world war he said this what were you doing trying to actually work with the people we had been defeating to prevent 17 Minutes :

14 a revolution okay and he says it was the night before I was due to come home he 17 Minutes :

20 said last night he said I was in my hotel right there on Red Square the most 17 Minutes :

26 sacred place in all of Russian d'amore communism he said and I couldn't sleep and I got thinking about just how 17 Minutes :

33 significant these world events were that were occurring he says so I decided what excuse me what they have I'm just gonna 17 Minutes :

40 go for a walk he said I knew that was forbidden because you know you can't just go walking around Red Square in the middle of the night particularly the 17 Minutes :

46 head of the CIA spent 40 years trying to destroy Russia he said but I thought I'd see how far I can get he says I walk out 17 Minutes :

52 past the guards nobody's paying attention so I go out of the hotel then I am in Red Square and from 17 Minutes :

57 the tomb of Lenin walking up to the doors of the Kremlin itself he said 18 Minutes :

03 nobody cared nobody was paying attention here was the head of the CIA the most 18 Minutes :

08 hated the most feared enemy that communism had over the years bill Colby head of the CIA during the most critical 18 Minutes :

15 time he said in it then it struck me he said that I realized it he said we'd won 18 Minutes :

24 the Cold War was over Russia was dead communism was dead he said after 40 18 Minutes :

30 years and Reverend Weezer his words not mine now he said after 40 years of fighting the bastards we had won we won 18 Minutes :

39 it was over the Cold War was Dunnan and I was the only one of the whole planet to recognize know it right then at that 18 Minutes :

46 instant and then he said something else struck me something something to just really slam me I said well what was that 18 Minutes :

53 he said I realized that this walk I was 19 Minutes :

02 having in Red Square was it that was the only parade I was ever going to have for 19 Minutes :

09 all our achievements there wasn't gonna be the ticker tapes down Madison Avenue there wasn't gonna be the the waving and 19 Minutes :

15 he said it was all over and we'd won and this was my private parade and it was 19 Minutes :

20 the only one I said okay bill now we've heard about your private parade in the defeat of communism so on so what's that 19 Minutes :

27 got to do with Franklin and this whole mess I'm trying to get something he said 19 Minutes :

32 sometimes you better face up to the fact and this is one of those times that the things you're involved in have have 19 Minutes :

39 significance and people too big too powerful events and things involved you 19 Minutes :

44 don't even know about that are just too big and powerful for you to deal with and you have to face up the fact that 19 Minutes :

50 maybe in in the timeframe you'd like to deal with them and the way you'd like to 19 Minutes :

55 do and can't be done he said then sometimes evil does succeed for a while and that's just you have to walk away 20 Minutes :

02 from it get away from it and he says the only way Franklin will ever get exposed and where it leads to and what it goes 20 Minutes :

07 is if the national press an independent national press just like happened in Watergate happened in iran-contra happened happening with old 20 Minutes :

15 Joe McCarthy at the independent national press really gets interested and delves 20 Minutes :

21 into it and takes it all the way to where it leads is there such a thing anymore in this country see that that's that's why I said I said well how do you 20 Minutes :

27 do that bill he says I'll help y'all I know something he's called notified a number of people he says the problem is 20 Minutes :

33 getting one of them to really put the investigative research and reporters onto it and not having back off and 20 Minutes :

38 where it leads well so I went home thought about it was frustrated and I 20 Minutes :

45 thought okay I'll do my part to start it all right the story of Franklin as a 20 Minutes :

50 documentary as a documentary with the things that are available right now today that show there was clearly at 20 Minutes :

57 least again in my opinion a cover-up I won't mince words I won't hedge things I'll spit it out 21 Minutes :

03 straight and what it cost me it cost me but at least the foundation will be 21 Minutes :

09 there and of course since since writing the book I've learned a lot more I now 21 Minutes :

17 believe I think I'm beginning to understand maybe a little more of what bill was saying and where this thing 21 Minutes :

22 really does lead and I I think now I'm finally understanding why it's so 21 Minutes :

27 powerful where it leads as I say and I think it leads into things that almost 21 Minutes :

35 move into the fantasy world that we went to movies and watched and in the 60s and 70s and 80s in other words the mysteries 21 Minutes :

42 of the Cold War battle and how far governments go with their secret 21 Minutes :

49 services whether it be the CIA or or the Gestapo or the KGB in Russia and I 21 Minutes :

58 believe and I know this sounds like I'm floating off into Fantasyland right tyro 22 Minutes :

03 can bring you back here you're right and I dimin the first one a few years ago to say well yeah make good movie but you 22 Minutes :

11 aren't gonna believe any of this here's what I believe I believe that Franklin 22 Minutes :

19 had a lot of personalities who through one way or another were linked up to the 22 Minutes :

26 cold war effort the CIA and other things back during the 70s and 80s we ran 22 Minutes :

31 across some information about Larry King in one point that it looked like that he 22 Minutes :

36 had at one time had some ties with the CIA he did and I document some of those in the book but beyond that information 22 Minutes :

43 I've learned since I wrote the book I have no doubt now no doubt Larry King was one of the underlings of the CIA 22 Minutes :

49 involved in a specific program recruiting particularly young boys particularly kind of a particular kind 22 Minutes :

57 of boy who were then used in a kind of mental programming a brainwashing if you would that we were doing to use them for 23 Minutes :

07 such things as assassinations such things as drug dealing remember drug 23 Minutes :

12 dealing hmm back during the 70s and 80s we now know pretty well was one of the main methods to finance our covert 23 Minutes :

20 operations we were actually involved in in drug dealing and even even even a lot 23 Minutes :

27 of those things that sounds like sex blackmail so on and so forth at least yeah mind-control thing now as they say 23 Minutes :

33 sounds off anybody's listening I think yeah Adi camp is off with the Lulu Birds 23 Minutes :

40 you know like Manchurian Candidate you remember that old movie were they yeah well I guess what I'm saying is I think 23 Minutes :

46 that is a integral part of this if you have that kind of thing at stake predicting because the personalities 23 Minutes :

53 that it goes up to ultimately mm-hmm the American public would be shocked to find it yes our government really really did 23 Minutes :

58 these things same thing we accuse the other guys are doing which they were doing too well Congress investigated that back in the early 50s and the CIA 24 Minutes :

06 yeah but remember this a sophistication of the 50s was nothing compared to what it was in the 70s and 80s this is post 24 Minutes :

13 Vietnam we had suffered our worst defeat in the history of this country our only defeat we now we're not gonna let it 24 Minutes :

18 happen again between 75 roughly and 86 roughly was 24 Minutes :

24 the most intense Cold War period in this country I mean it was just that close to 24 Minutes :

30 a hot war at all times we always think of the Cuban crisis is the time not really seventy-five to eighty six remember the 24 Minutes :

37 evil empire remember Star Wars remember the contest to see who could build up faster that's 24 Minutes :

42 what finally broke the Russians they just couldn't keep up in the contest financially so that was the period when 24 Minutes :

50 technology was going rampant remember the invention of the computer the understanding of the human mind so much 24 Minutes :

56 more and the information I've learned since the book came out that is poured 25 Minutes :

03 in from a variety of sources makes me believe that that may well be why it's 25 Minutes :

09 necessary for the protection of our entire government in a sense embarrassment what people would believe 25 Minutes :

16 what people would feel about their government if they knew some of the things that we had done profilers the 25 Minutes :

21 motives for the cover-up I think that's one of the major motives he says people just protecting themselves other people 25 Minutes :

27 of course have a vested interest of all a child abuser these kind of things 25 Minutes :

33 you're certainly willing to cooperate if you are a if you're a judge or an 25 Minutes :

39 official who got your position as a result of help from this or that 25 Minutes :

44 remember another surprised and this I'm now convinced of which I didn't know when I wrote the book off at Air Force 25 Minutes :

51 Base if you're gonna pick the most sacred military installation in the United States for the last 140 years 25 Minutes :

58 where is it it's off at Air Force Base right in the center of the United States what land USA the farthest you can get 26 Minutes :

03 from Russia mmm-hmm well I am convinced now that there was a major CIA operation out of 26 Minutes :

12 there handled there and of course Omaha the Heartland at least likely place in the world to have something like this 26 Minutes :

19 that's a major part of this Larry King was merely a tool in this whole thing 26 Minutes :

24 you watched ring during the Larry King activities remember whenever whenever 26 Minutes :

30 something would happen wear it wear something well he might like he was gonna go to Bush and get this thing 26 Minutes :

36 straight now remember it's right at breakfast they grab Larry no he's off declared crazy then we get things back 26 Minutes :

43 under control Larry King comes back and what and we get them off again in these crazy yeah then finally we we get things 26 Minutes :

51 contained we get to grand juries we never call Larry King and the grand juries or anything else and then Larry 26 Minutes :

57 King ends up in a very quick quiet plea having nothing to do with any of the things except he stole some money yeah 27 Minutes :

04 okay and then he gets sentenced but when all things are considered he'll be out in a relatively short time anything one 27 Minutes :

10 of probably what's considered the nicest federal institution they call it the Holiday Inn of institutions bundles of 27 Minutes :

17 money stashed away in foreign by well I suspect Jamaica in Spain and in 27 Minutes :

22 Switzerland it's so it's it's it's in the interest if indeed I'm correct and and and I don't do this in the book I 27 Minutes :

29 don't deal with the things I'm talking about now quite frank I'm gonna have to cut you short at those point John because we're really out of time on this 27 Minutes :

35 particular program we're going to pursue this on our next program so keep those 27 Minutes :

40 thoughts in mind we'll come back to them but I want to take this opportunity to have our viewers write for this book the 27 Minutes :

47 Franklin cover-up and I have read it cover-to-cover and it's accurate I know 27 Minutes :

53 from our own research that there isn't anything in here that is absolutely not documented and verified from a lot of 27 Minutes :

59 different sources the book is also available in the local bookstore and you 28 Minutes :

05 can go in and buy it for seven dollars and 95 cents we will send it to you post paid for nine dollars so if you'll just 28 Minutes :

13 write to the address on your screen that's showing right now send us nine dollars we'll be happy to send you this 28 Minutes :

18 book and you can read the facts for yourself and make your own decision concerning the cover-up we we really 28 Minutes :

26 recommend this highly and we would like to get a distributed as broadly as we possibly can so that the true story of 28 Minutes :

32 what went on with this Franklin case finally finally comes out in the open we're committed to seeing that happen we 28 Minutes :

39 know you are too John and so we're going to do whatever we can to keep at it 28 Minutes :

44 until this thing breaks open do just for our viewers today have any closing remarks for this program concerning what 28 Minutes :

52 you believe would be helpful for them to do to assist in getting this information out 28 Minutes :

58 you know you've heard that phrase a hundred times truth is stranger than 29 Minutes :

04 fiction I finally understand it it's a classic statement it's classically true 29 Minutes :

10 read the book try to tear it apart try to tear it apart say well this can't be 29 Minutes :

16 and then do some checking yourself I think you're gonna be surprised and then 29 Minutes :

21 share the book with your friends and you know before it's all said and done I said something in the book and I believe 29 Minutes :

27 it more and more now there should be another grand jury this one that isn't 29 Minutes :

33 rigged and controlled that has an independent honest prosecutor to 29 Minutes :

38 investigate the whole original grand jury and everything surrounding it that's what I believe and maybe citizens 29 Minutes :

44 can can get a petition and do that that maybe ultimately the one thing they have the ability to do and let's do it well 29 Minutes :

52 we hope that we can John and thank you again for being with us folks thank you for being with us today and we'll be 29 Minutes :

59 back with you on our next program 30 Minutes :

24 hello I'm John Morrow and with me again today is our guest John de Kamp John's 30 Minutes :

30 the author of a new book entitled the Franklin cover up child abuse Satanism and murder in Nebraska we're putting the 30 Minutes :

39 publishers address up on the screen for you AWT publishing of Lincoln Nebraska 30 Minutes :

44 and you are invited to send your enquiries to them as a matter of fact 30 Minutes :

49 you can send your money to them seven dollars 95 cents plus postage and they will be happy to mail you the book or 30 Minutes :

56 you can write to us and we'll be happy to do the same John when we closed our 31 Minutes :

03 last interview we were talking about some really wild and wonderful things but I think that the title the Franklin 31 Minutes :

11 cover up really invokes a lot of ideas 31 Minutes :

16 in people's minds of conspiracies and things like that and this whole thing 31 Minutes :

24 about cover-up and hoaxes and all that seemed to come from the grand jury now 31 Minutes :

30 in our book entitled a carefully crafted hoax we really zeroed in on the grand 31 Minutes :

36 jury findings and also the people that they were dealing with Troy Bonner and 31 Minutes :

42 Danny King and militia Owen Paul Benassi we didn't get into a lot of the 31 Minutes :

48 background that you did because you really spread a lot further afield and we did but I think for our viewers 31 Minutes :

54 information it'd be good for us to explore just how grand jury operates a 31 Minutes :

59 lot of people have the idea that it's it's like a courtroom situation you know you go in before the judge and you 32 Minutes :

04 present the pros and the cons and got the prosecutor in the defense then you've got the jury sitting there to 32 Minutes :

10 decide okay we've heard both sides of the story now we make up our mind as to what is 32 Minutes :

15 the truth and they find the defendant either innocent or guilty and so on but my understanding is that's not at all 32 Minutes :

20 how a grand jury operates and so I think it'd be helpful for our viewers if you just give them some background 32 Minutes :

26 information on the process well interestingly enough a grand jury is 32 Minutes :

31 exactly the opposite of what you've described and a grand jury can be the 32 Minutes :

37 wonderful device or the worst device depending depending literally upon who's 32 Minutes :

45 in charge of it and how they handle it now let me give you a little background on the grand jury just just so we understand it can be wonderful because 32 Minutes :

53 sometimes it can do what what individual prosecutors won't do or are afraid to do 32 Minutes :

59 or it can do what a citizen might be afraid to do individually that is in 33 Minutes :

04 complete safety and secrecy it accuses somebody of something so the purpose of 33 Minutes :

11 a grand jury is strictly that to either accuse or not accuse somebody or some 33 Minutes :

16 entity of some crime okay it isn't to try to see both sides of the question at 33 Minutes :

23 all that isn't the issue the controller the man in charge woman in charge whatever of a grand jury is of course 33 Minutes :

30 the the prosecutor or a special prosecutor in the Franklin case and the bid was kind of great completely control 33 Minutes :

36 what's presented to the jury the second maybe most important person well would 33 Minutes :

42 be the grand jury foreman mm-hmm the grand jury foreman selected from among the members so people have to get out of 33 Minutes :

49 their head the idea that there was a trial in a grand jury or that both sides were presented or anything else quite the contrary 33 Minutes :

55 the purpose is to get information and and make an accusation and see if that person in a court man later can defend 34 Minutes :

02 themselves against this act so in effect what the special prosecutor in this case it was samuel van pelt but the special 34 Minutes :

09 prosecutor then presents information that he chooses to present he can do 34 Minutes :

14 literally anything he wants pretty much to the grand jury and his purpose is then to really accuse or seek an 34 Minutes :

23 indictment yeah and so that's his purpose then is to really but but I touched on a point I 34 Minutes :

28 said it can be the worst or the best thing you can do some things that that maybe wouldn't get done otherwise but 34 Minutes :

34 the scary thing about a grand jury remember everything is supposedly well is secret mm-hmm and that's the idea 34 Minutes :

40 that gives that gives you the safety of walking in there and saying well yeah I know this but man I'm afraid to say any 34 Minutes :

47 other thing you know okay so that's a protection and supposedly everything in that grand jury is kept secret maybe forever mm-hmm in fact I 34 Minutes :

54 have seen the documents I'm not allowed to tell you I wish I wish everything in 34 Minutes :

59 that grand jury and a lot more could all be made public just like in the in the the Kennedy thing they're talking about 35 Minutes :

05 I think I think in this case as I've tried to document very clearly in the book the grand jury was used for their 35 Minutes :

12 the purpose when things started getting out of control and Franklin should recall rumors everywhere the decamp memo came out the lid was 35 Minutes :

19 blowing off Peter citron his deal comes out one thing after another coming out day by day he had to get things under 35 Minutes :

25 control again legislature was putting heated legislation fitting what do you do you call a grand jury and that could 35 Minutes :

31 still be wonderful if they had had in my opinion a a proper grand jury I don't 35 Minutes :

37 think they did again my opinion so there is there any possibility that those records would ever be opened or unsealed 35 Minutes :

44 maybe another grand jury could investigate it and that might be one of the outcomes I don't know but let me let me tell you something people forget you 35 Minutes :

52 know what the public has about a six-month memory they say to remember something called Watergate mm-hmm if 35 Minutes :

59 you'll go back and study Watergate the heart of Watergate the control mechanism used was a grand jury mm-hmm other words 36 Minutes :

08 when it started the lid boiling off accusations flying and it really started 36 Minutes :

14 looking like it was out of control just a month exactly the same thing here they called a federal grand jury special 36 Minutes :

20 prosecutor a special prosecutor they cleared everybody said no there's 36 Minutes :

25 nothing wrong it really is just you know a third-rate burglary and so later later as the final Watergate thing unfolded 36 Minutes :

33 and the truth came out I'm gonna kick up years later somebody kept pursuing it in this case it was the press mm-hmm okay 36 Minutes :

40 they went back and they asked the people in the grand jury you know wait a minute yours you were honest people and most 36 Minutes :

46 grand jury members are yes well yeah well how come the grand jury never got 36 Minutes :

52 any of these things you know what they found out exactly what I'm telling you happens and didn't ever heard about it 36 Minutes :

59 we never heard about anything with things the prosecutor never asked those questions of anybody 37 Minutes :

05 well that's why I say grand jury can be the best or worst device it can be a you 37 Minutes :

10 device the key device used for cover-up in big things or the device to expose it 37 Minutes :

16 and finally correct him I believe in this case and I offer a pretty good documentation I believe I hope more will 37 Minutes :

21 come out in the future that this grand jury was for the purpose of covering up and not because the prosecutor no no the 37 Minutes :

30 jurors could be the most sincere honest people in the world I suspect most of them were but let me use another example 37 Minutes :

37 if you go over to North Korea today which is a totally completely controlled 37 Minutes :

43 Society they believe that their guy whatever his name is is just a kin to a 37 Minutes :

49 God the only information they got via the newspaper via the press via everything thing you know is what is fed 37 Minutes :

55 to them right you can brainwash the entire country well certainly in a very small confined grand jury of 18 people if you present 38 Minutes :

08 bad etc I feel comfortable in saying 38 Minutes :

14 that's what occurred that's what occurred in Watergate that's what 38 Minutes :

19 occurred here one of the things that we're recently reminded of with respect to juries and their findings is that juries do not always find according to 38 Minutes :

29 the the facts of the case even though they can be presented the facts of the 38 Minutes :

34 case they can find out I'm gonna pick one little piece to show you and I can legally do this one because it's a matter of public record now I can't tell 38 Minutes :

41 you how and other things I'd love to because I'm legally forbidden and that's why I say I think our grand jury rules 38 Minutes :

47 in Nebraska maybe need some changing too we have probably the worst in the country that's a goal that we can shoot for that's that's definitely one but 38 Minutes :

53 anyway the grand jury did something that grand juries normally don't do and I don't think are legally supposed to do 38 Minutes :

59 that is they wrote this lengthy report where they supposedly named names and cleared everybody and said this is a 39 Minutes :

06 good guy and then they went off and without indicted or accusing these people of any crime just called other people names from from 39 Minutes :

14 victim witnesses two individuals out in the community to people like me who were saying the institution government 39 Minutes :

20 corrupt anybody they could they called a name who was saying there's something wrong it sounds like a scare but one 39 Minutes :

27 other thing they did and as I said I can cite this example I can cite this example because it's a matter of public 39 Minutes :

33 record I want to make that clear because I am forbidden from revealing 80 jillion other things but I would love to in the 39 Minutes :

41 grand jury report the grand jury said about the witness Paul Benassi they said and even his psychiatrist says he is 39 Minutes :

48 incapable of telling the truth mmm right I remember reading that it is headlined in the World Herald the 39 Minutes :

54 picture and then what assi indicted was his name Paul Benassi right they said if 40 Minutes :

01 you read the grand jury report and you read the thousand times it must have been printing the World Herald on the front page and otherwise saying this 40 Minutes :

08 they said you'd immediately conclude first of all his grant his psychiatrist his own psychiatrist testified before 40 Minutes :

15 the grand jury and said well you know it's too bad but this kid's incapable of telling the truth that's exactly wrote it in the grand jury report you read it 40 Minutes :

22 right now here's the truth here's the truth 40 Minutes :

30 one he had no psychiatrist yes we know that to the psychiatrist that they're 40 Minutes :

37 referring to and talking about was a police psychiatrist the police investigating the kid right three most 40 Minutes :

44 shocking of all the psychiatrist never ever testified before the grand jury 40 Minutes :

51 right and four and here it is the very psychiatrist that they claimed testified 40 Minutes :

57 before the grand jury the very psychiatrist he said was his who wasn't the very same psychiatrist who they said 41 Minutes :

04 said this kid is incapable of telling the truth in fact under oath repeatedly before the 41 Minutes :

11 legislative committee publicly now and otherwise says the precise opposite that 41 Minutes :

16 he's telling the truth and he's probably incapable of telling a lie yeah he was 41 Minutes :

21 the one that diagnosed the boy right as having multiple personality and said one of the characteristics of this is that 41 Minutes :

29 you don't have to lie typical MPD's multiple personality disorder which I didn't even believe 41 Minutes :

34 existed didn't understand and now I I it's amazing as you well know but anyway 41 Minutes :

40 he's one of the characteristics is it they don't they don't have to lie they 41 Minutes :

46 simply moved to another personality the person comes out and they tell the truth okay so I used this one classic example 41 Minutes :

52 out of the grand jury because it so illustrates how black can be made to white how up down left right now what 41 Minutes :

58 happened to the kid they indicted him for lying I agreed and after being 42 Minutes :

04 contacted by some people to go see the kid and act as his lawyer at his request I did and after I started looking at the 42 Minutes :

09 facts I made a statement I made it repeatedly and I made it boldly an and 42 Minutes :

15 maybe foolishly even but angrily I said I dare him I dare him to take this kid 42 Minutes :

21 to trial they had him charged with felony after felony after felony because he said he was abused by by prominent 42 Minutes :

27 people including the publisher of the world held that that he was here on this date with these people that he saw Alicia Owen they indicted and for all 42 Minutes :

33 these things they said her lies I said Darren my begum take him to court 42 Minutes :

39 there's really nothing that's been one day due in court in this whole deal nothing you know in court I'm anything anyway so what 42 Minutes :

45 they do when we were ready they simply dismissed all the charges just drop the 42 Minutes :

50 whole thing not only that but two other two other psychiatrists experts were 42 Minutes :

56 brought in not by the kid because he'll he couldn't afford it but by the 43 Minutes :

01 legislative committee hired an expert from New York to come in yes I remember the court in in Omaha ordered another 43 Minutes :

07 psychiatrist a specialist in to come in they both examine the kid at length 43 Minutes :

13 investigation after investigation you know what they concluded what they said yes I said exactly the same thing the 43 Minutes :

21 other night he said a multiple personality and this kid is telling the truth he's a victim of horrible abuse 43 Minutes :

28 he's not lying on and on and on the very very same thing threw him in a row so as 43 Minutes :

34 I say that's why I say I dared him I begged him to bring him to trial so a grand jury get back to where we were a 43 Minutes :

40 grand jury it can be a wonderful thing or it can be a device for abuse and coverup but essentially the grand jury 43 Minutes :

47 just simply takes the information that's presented by the prosecutor he's in control of the process and it can turn 43 Minutes :

53 out about any way he decides it to turn out just simply by his choice of what to present and what not to present well let 44 Minutes :

00 me give another example because I live this one about 27 times every day as soon as I get home I come walking into 44 Minutes :

05 the house my little three-year-old comes running up to me and grabs my leg and 44 Minutes :

10 hugs me and I pat him on the head and he says and it hit me well a no real name 44 Minutes :

18 Shonda is my nine year old and I said 44 Minutes :

24 well did you do something to her oh no no no Anna hit me no reason Hill so you 44 Minutes :

30 check a little further and you talk to Anna and you find out well but Johnny 44 Minutes :

35 took her pencil and broke it and smeared paint all over her wall in her room and she caught him in the act and hit him on 44 Minutes :

42 the behind the behind and I then turned to Johnny said wait a minute Johnny were 44 Minutes :

48 you and were you in her room making all this mess and but way yeah but she hit me and that's now if I had only listened 44 Minutes :

56 a little Johnny when I go home why every night I'd walk in and I'd say Hannah Shanta I'm tired of you beating 45 Minutes :

02 little Johnny you've got to stop that you're bad well then I get into the living room by about this time and Tara 45 Minutes :

09 my 7 year old comes running up to me and she says Jenny who's my 1516 year old now she she won't let me practice piano 45 Minutes :

18 in the basement well I want I want Tara to practice her piano because it's 45 Minutes :

24 important if she's gonna learn to plunk and make a racket like all the other kids that she'd be able to do it I said 45 Minutes :

31 well did you do anything wrong no no no I didn't do anything wrong she just won't let me play down here she won't 45 Minutes :

37 let me practice well so then maybe when you check a little further you find out that it wasn't quite that way maybe she 45 Minutes :

45 was down there practicing and making a racket that Jenny couldn't do her 45 Minutes :

50 homework and she really wasn't practicing so much as she was watching television and a whole bunch of other 45 Minutes :

56 things and Jenny finally got tired and ran around of the basement so as I say when you get the whole story you might 46 Minutes :

02 come up with a completely different conclusion truth is somewhere in the middle or in a lot of cases even the 46 Minutes :

09 opposite the one visible example and there's gobs up that I can give you of a grand jury legally on the most visible 46 Minutes :

16 thing of all was their key indictment charging perjury of this kid hmm and them actually lying in their report so 46 Minutes :

23 now they didn't lie deliberately I don't think the grand jury did they were deceived right you were deceived they 46 Minutes :

29 were deceived or they couldn't have written that they couldn't have dared to write something like this for for a report that they know is going to be 46 Minutes :

36 examined they didn't have 18 people of a grand jury sit and lie about that even 46 Minutes :

41 though it's completely false that means they were deceived who deceived him who's in charge of a grand jury the 46 Minutes :

47 prosecutors in this case when the person to run the grand jury was picked 46 Minutes :

52 literally everybody who was anybody who knew about the judicial process who knew about grand juries what was at 47 Minutes :

00 stake condemned the selection yes I remember them you remember that they said you know something bad can happen 47 Minutes :

08 it probably will happen as a all of this this is not right this person shouldn't be picked sure enough 47

Minutes :

13 now sure enough he got picked and sure enough so a grand jury can be the best or worst thing and in this case it was 47 Minutes :

20 the worst thing and there's so no part of the cover-up yeah I saw an article in the paper just this last week and just a 47 Minutes :

27 little short thing a couple of inches and it had to do with a Supreme Court finding in a case that involved a grand 47 Minutes :

36 jury and it's indictment and they specifically said the grand jury is not 47 Minutes :

42 required to listen to both sides of an issue oh that was US Supreme Court they 47 Minutes :

48 reaffirmed the fact that hey they're not there to listen to sides and Jerry to get facts they just thrown the holders 47 Minutes :

54 there they're there tonight in accusatory information and anything that and they specifically said like I told 48 Minutes :

01 you they ratified the fact they they approved once again that the prosecutor doesn't have to tell 48 Minutes :

09 him he can deliberately for whatever reasons hide right all the reading of 48 Minutes :

15 the stories and evidence that might might confirm that the individual would 48 Minutes :

20 be innocent could be hidden by the special process grand jury if I were going to use a good example is like a 48 Minutes :

26 knife I can take that knife and I can Ram it in your heart and it's not gonna 48 Minutes :

32 be used very wisely at least most people would agree with that well I can take that knife and I can use it to cut bread 48 Minutes :

38 I can use it to to help fix my meals at home this kind of thing it's a tool it's 48 Minutes :

44 a device that can be used or abused and exactly the point we want to make it is a tool in the hands of the special 48 Minutes :

52 prosecutor and can be used for whatever purpose he designs and if you have a 48 Minutes :

57 corrupt prosecutor you're gonna get mixed results no you're gonna get bad 49 Minutes :

02 results and if you have a system as in 49 Minutes :

08 the Franklin case with so much at stake going so high up involving such serious matters for very powerful rich and 49 Minutes :

14 prominent people then they have the ability apparently at least in Nebraska 49 Minutes :

19 to control who that prosecutor is and make sure they put in somebody that will do what they want I believe that's what so 49 Minutes :

25 this cover-up really went at several levels one of the things that you mentioned in your book is that one phase 49 Minutes :

31 of the cover-up involved the police and then we've just talked about another phase which involved a Douglas County 49 Minutes :

37 grand jury another phase involved the FBI would you want to make a comment on either the phase that involve the police 49 Minutes :

44 which would include not only the remember the police or the State Patrol 49 Minutes :

50 or any of these agencies are going to back off in a hurry when the FBI staff steps in and says hey this is the way it 49 Minutes :

57 is we're handling this you bug out in this particular case as I think I've pretty well documented the FBI had ample 50 Minutes :

03 reason ample reason the reasons probably will never even know for not wanting 50 Minutes :

08 certain things to come out everything the way it was handled in this case one after another you never have you never 50 Minutes :

17 have things handled in such a way that the public ever really gets access to information it's always controlled information and in this case I believe 50 Minutes :

24 the FBI maybe even arguing for reasons of national security that seemed to be the big argument they always used for a 50 Minutes :

31 lot of things while national security is at stake if indeed if indeed drug 50 Minutes :

37 laundering drug money running and laundering of money for use in covert operations by the until via the 50 Minutes :

44 Intelligence Committee was involved here and I guess I no longer have even a shadow of a doubt that's that's what's 50 Minutes :

50 at stake and it involves prominent people who who who we know you know it's 51 Minutes :

00 easy and and quick for the FBI or high 51 Minutes :

05 officials say this involves national security you don't need to know you don't want to know what's what's at stake just take our word for judges are 51 Minutes :

12 gonna listen police are gonna listen prosecutors are gonna listen well I saw this saw this process at work here and 51 Minutes :

18 let me just get going with this in when the attorney general's office was supposed to be investigating the 51 Minutes :

24 allegations of sexual abuse that surfaced early on and the Franklin thing and they had assigned to the attorney 51 Minutes :

30 general's office assigned one of their special investigators to look into it and then he'd met with the Omaha Police 51 Minutes :

35 Department then six months later nothing had still been done about it and it became apparent that what he had done was he 51 Minutes :

42 had simply backed off because he was convinced that the Omaha Police Department was handling the 51 Minutes :

48 investigation and he didn't want to cross their tracks and mess up their case etc etc so that same thing 51 Minutes :

54 supposedly then could have been at work with the police department if the FBI comes in and says we're looking at this 52 Minutes :

00 and so you back off and so the police department backs off and the FBI says this is our deal we have several 52 Minutes :

06 instances where witnesses and potential witnesses were actually intimidated in 52 Minutes :

11 their questioning by the FBI yes and I think a document at least three or four the ones I legally can know about as 52 Minutes :

18 clear as anything's ever been documented and that that if after you read that and read those documents and those aren't my 52 Minutes :

24 words I didn't create these documents no you're just reporting I'm just reporting them this is a documentary book but you 52 Minutes :

31 know I know when you start talking about Oh God but you mean Franklin involves a 52 Minutes :

38 drug running and kind of feeling blah blah blah even national security things 52 Minutes :

43 they might be trying to cover up people think yeah yeah sure right and the moon is made of cheese and on and that was my 52 Minutes :

51 attitude believe me it was now I have no doubts and and the hardest thing for me 52 Minutes :

56 is to to know something and you know not be able to impart it in and say yeah in 53 Minutes :

03 this case the moon is made of cheese and here's so I try in the book to offer as much documentation as possible now the 53 Minutes :

10 point I was trying to get to here is a few pieces that we do know a few pieces that we do know the years ago people 53 Minutes :

17 like me used to deny mm-hmm love didn't let me give you one what was the thing 53 Minutes :

23 we heard so often in the newspapers accusations from let's say a Fidel Castro or some communist country one of 53 Minutes :

30 the most often made accusations was well this news reporter here is really a CIA 53 Minutes :

36 operative hmm Yeah right you say ah I mean shoot they accuse 53 Minutes :

41 everybody being CIA you know everybody in the brothers are always accusing to be in CIA we now know we now know 53 Minutes :

50 in fact my friend bill Colby the former head of the CIA who was I say I stayed with when I go to Washington I think 53 Minutes :

56 he's going to do a program here for one of them local radio station he's confirmed me repeatedly now that we've 54 Minutes :

01 grown old that the CIA indeed had is 54 Minutes :

07 their fundamental pool whose people particularly prominent people in the 54 Minutes :

13 press prominent people in the world press knew that could travel internationally and have the credentials 54 Minutes :

19 and freedom that can only come from one place only one place the press the press 54 Minutes :

26 is the only one in every country in the world that has access to just everything and you can't interfere with him hmm 54 Minutes :

33 when you started press is the only one now let me

let me take it further in Nebraska who was one of the key people 54 Minutes :

40 in the whole Franklin thing whether he likes to admit it or not Harold Anderson the publisher of the Omaha world only 54 Minutes :

47 major stockholders how'd Harold Anderson start out he started out in that key time when the CIA was recruiting like 54 Minutes :

52 maniacs young intelligent capable investigative reporters and he's been 54 Minutes :

58 involved in the world press scene no more than that more than that Harold 55 Minutes :

04 Anderson is the only person in the history of the United States in the history of the world to have been 55 Minutes :

10 president I believe both the World Press Association and the National Press oh so 55 Minutes :

16 tight forget the exact names only one in the history I mean this this man is mr. 55 Minutes :

21 big on the International and national scene those are the kinds of people who were top top top CIA operatives during 55 Minutes :

31 the critical years of the 60s the 70s and the 80s during the most intense Cold 55 Minutes :

37 War period of all that was our army that was our war machine hmm and so remote 55 Minutes :

43 and wild as it sounds you start adding a piece here a piece there additional information that's poured out since 55 Minutes :

49 Franklin from-from the location of Offutt as the safest most important base 55 Minutes :

55 we have in the world the CIA factor the fact we're now 56 Minutes :

01 learning that drugs were used as one of the devices for financing our covert operations know the fact that 56 Minutes :

08 that if anybody if anybody at all was gonna be used or a top person in the CIA 56 Minutes :

14 it would be press people who maintained their cover and we're doing the best 56 Minutes :

20 thing for this country they were our they were our army they were our soldiers people like Harold Anderson so 56 Minutes :

26 am i singing Harold Anderson as a top CIA operative it opens some interesting 56 Minutes :

32 possible innos I think he knows I know yeah whether he is or is not and that 56 Minutes :

38 one's a whole I want to say the next words but I'll say I'll say he knows and 56 Minutes :

44 I know well that's a whole new area and a whole new realm to explore and as I 56 Minutes :

50 say what it sounds like Fantasyland doesn't well explain some things concerning motivation for cover-up and yeah certainly goes far beyond the local 56 Minutes :

58 scene and just some local pedophiles protecting themselves but much more than 57 Minutes :

03 that and before I've always wondered why the FBI would be so interested in something that supposedly did not cross state 57 Minutes :

10 boundaries you know say there well there's there's no evidence of child abuse the FBI says there's no evidence of these kids being transported for 57 Minutes :

17 prostitution purposes the FBI says that there's nothing to these allegations and yet they were very keenly interested in 57 Minutes :

25 dealing with witnesses trying to find out who they were intimidating them in their interrogation process and doing 57 Minutes :

32 everything they could to seemingly muddy the waters as far as any legitimate 57 Minutes :

38 investigation by the Franklin committee was concerned well as I as I pointed out I think I really offer some pretty well 57 Minutes :

43 good documentation in the book on the FBI what they've done you make your own judgments as to whether that constitutes 57 Minutes :

49 cover-up I say it does that's my belief not made-up things but documentation even involving such things as who was 57 Minutes :

57 this guy that sued the FBI in Omaha roshon what they end up paying him quietly finally no a million dollars it 58 Minutes :

04 was a million dollars plus about a half a million in legal fees right basically he was making the same allegations he 58 Minutes :

09 was an inside he was one of the FBI in Omaha right and people don't know about this the world hell didn't print big 58 Minutes :

15 stories about this the whole office seemed like it was a poopoo they paid him a million dollars 58 Minutes :

21 keep million dollars to go away shut up and be happy all right yeah well folks 58 Minutes :

27 you can find out about this by ordering the book the Franklin cover-up by John de Kamp it does do just exactly what it 58 Minutes :

35 says it tells the story of child abuse Satanism and murder in Nebraska and it 58 Minutes :

40 doesn't go into a lot of detail about the murder they're probably up to date about 15 very unusual and unexplained 58 Minutes :

49 deaths of people related to this case but you can order this book by sending 58 Minutes :

54 us nine dollars the book is $7.95 at your bookstore we'll send it to you post 58 Minutes :

59 paid for nine dollars so write to us at the address that's shown on your screen and we'll be happy to get it to you in 59 Minutes :

06 the return mail you need to read it for yourself make your own conclusions share 59 Minutes :

11 it with a friend and then we need to start generating some groundswell of grassroots indignation in this state to 59 Minutes :

19 get some things changed so that this kind of thing doesn't go on or that it doesn't happen again so by all means get 59 Minutes :

26 the book and John we surely do that appreciate your spending the time with us and we'd hope to have you back again 59 Minutes :

32 in the future at some point and as other information is developed and other facts come out and they're documented and 59 Minutes :

38 become available for public consumption while we'd sure want to know about that and keep our folks updated on what's 59 Minutes :

44 going on appreciate your spending the time with us thank you river

A Deeper Look Via the Focal Point of Lovett

Robert A. Lovett Oral History Interview – JFK#2, 08/17/1964 Administrative Information Creator: Robert A. Lovett Interviewer: Dorothy Fosdick Date of Interview: August 17, 1964 Place of Interview: New York City, New York Length: 20 pages Biographical Note

Robert A. Lovett (1895-1986) was a member of the General Advisory Committee and the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. This interview focuses on the staffing of the Kennedy administration's cabinet, Lovett's role as a consultant for the Kennedy administration, and the stock market decline of 1962, among other topics.

In your talk on December 1st, when it was evident that you were not available to serve in one .of the key Cabinet posts- including that of Secretary of State, - I note that President-elect Kennedy said he did not know who would be competent for this post and that he was probably going to have to take largely on trust omeone fin lly recommended by his advisers. Did you have further discussions with him about the Secretary of State post?

A. Yes. The President had said quite frankly that he had talked to two other people since our earlier conversation at the beginning of December and that, for a variety of reasons, it was either not possible or unwise for them t o serve. As a consequence, he was coming around more to considering Dean Rusk, whom he had met but did not know at all well and had also been strongly recommended·by Dean Acheson, with whom the President had been talking over a period of weeks. The President asked me specifically if Rusk's performance at the Rockefeller Foundation had been good. I told him that, in my opinion, it had been excellent; that he had handled himself with great tact, in an atmpsphere which had some of the aroma of a college faculty · witrh all the peculiar cliques, and that in the defense of the Rockefeller Foundation before the Congressional Comrriittee, Rusk had handled himself superbly. The Rockefeller Foundation lawyers were as much impressed by him as were the men on his staff who worked with him daily. He had a judicial mind and a deep onviction as to the position of the President in our governmental system evidenced in part, by the series of lectures he had given of the Office of the President, the Secretary of State, Foreign Policy, the President might \earn a great deal about him through reading these.

President! Kennedy laughed and said he had already done so.

Since President Kennedy had not asked me about Rusk's politics, I thought it would be prudent to mention it and say that I did not know what his. politics were; that he had been recommended -strongly for the position of President of the Rockefeller Foundation by [John] Foster Dulles but that I thought that this was a recognition of competence and had nothing to do with any polittical affiliation whatsoever. I told him that Rusk was a Georgia boy with a thirst for knowledge and a talent as a teacher; that I was not too much impressed with his executive ability, he was a good presiding officer and if given very strong staff in the Department of State I felt that he could do the job as well as anyone I knew who might reasonably be available.

I felt bound to explain to the President that, as result of my position as Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Rockefeller Foundation, I was aware of the fact that Rusk's personal means were almost non-existent and that he Hns entirely dependent on his salary. He had spent all of his adult life either teaching at Mills College in California, or in the Army, or in Government service and, for the first time in his life, was now enjoying a salary on which he, his wife and children could live with reasonable comfort . For him to abandon it would, of course, be a serious decision for him to make but I felt confident that this would not outweigh, in his mind , the strong sense of duty which he had always evidenced. The President said that this was a fact which he had taken into account in a number of other instances and proposed to get at the problem of more reasonable government pay as soon as the new Administration could. I mentioned that Rusk woul be entitle to some termination allowance from the Rockefeller Foundation in lieu of the funded pension to which he would be entitled with in a year or so, but that otherwise, as far as I knew, there was no. source of income, and I felt that the President should take this into account in decidng the matter of Rusk.

George Bush: The Unauthorized Biography --- by Webster G. Tarpley & Anton Chaitkin

George Bush is demonstrably one of the most important protagonists of the Watergate scandal, and was the overall director of Iran-contra. Since he appears especially in Iran-contra in close proximity to Bay of Pigs holdovers, it is surely legitimate to wonder when his association with those Bay of Pigs Cubans might have started.

1959 was the year that Bush started operating out of his Zapata Offshore headquarters in Houston; it was also the year that Fidel Castro seized power in Cuba. Officially, as we have seen, George was now a businessman whose work took him at times to Louisiana, where Zapata had offshore drilling operations. George must have been a frequent visitor to New Orleans. Because of his family's estate on Jupiter Island, he would also have been a frequent visitor to the Hobe Sound area. And then, there were Zapata Offshore drilling operations in the Florida Strait. On all of these activities, the official "red Studebaker" biographical material and the Zapata Offshore annual reports are extremely cryptic.

The Jupiter Island connection and father Prescott's Brown Brothers, Harriman/Skull and Bones networks are doubtless the key. Jupiter Island meant Averell Harriman, Robert Lovett, C. Douglas Dillon and other Anglophile financiers who had directed the US intelligence community long before there had been a CIA at all. And, in the back yard of the Jupiter Island Olympians, and under their direction, a powerful covert operations base was now being assembled, in which George Bush would have been present at the creation as a matter of birthright.

During 1959-60, Allen Dulles and the Eisenhower Administration began to assemble in south Florida the infrastructure for covert action against Cuba. This was the JM/WAVE capability, later formally constituted as the CIA Miami station. JM/WAVE was an operational center for the Eisenhower regime's project of staging an invasion of Cuba using a secret army of anti-Castro Cuban exiles organized, armed, trained, transported, and directed by the CIA. The Cubans, called Brigade 2506, were trained in secret camps in Guatemala, and they had air support from B-26 bombers based in Nicaragua. This invasion was crushed by Castro's defending forces in less than three days.

Before going along with the plan so eagerly touted by Allen Dulles, Kennedy had established the pre-condition that under no circumstances whatsoever would there be direct intervention by US military forces against Cuba. On the one hand, Dulles had assured Kennedy that the news of the invasion would trigger an insurrection which would sweep Castro and his regime away. On the other, Kennedy had to be concerned about provoking a global thermonuclear confrontation with the USSR, in the eventuality that N.S. Khrushchev decided to respond to a US Cuban gambit by, for example, cutting off US access to Berlin.

Hints of the covert presence of George Bush are scattered here and there around the Bay of Pigs invasion. According to some accounts, the code name for the Bay of Pigs was Operation Pluto. 4 But Bay of Pigs veteran Howard Hunt scornfully denies that this was the code name used by JM/WAVE personnel; Hunt writes: "So perhaps the Pentagon referred to the Brigade invasion as PLUTO. CIA did not." 5 But Hunt does not tell us what the CIA code name was, and the contents of Hunt's Watergate era White House safe, which might have told us the answer, were of course "deep-sixed" by FBI Director Patrick Gray. One code name frequently used by CIA Miami Station personnel appears to have been "Don Eduardo," roughly the Spanish equivalent of "Mr. Edward" or perhaps "Mr. Ed."

According to reliable sources and published accounts, the CIA code name for the Bay of Pigs invasion was Operation Zapata, and the plan was so referred to by Richard Bissell of the CIA, one of the plan's promoters, in a briefing to President Kennedy in the Cabinet Room on March 29, 1961. 7 Does Operation Zapata have anything to do with Zapata Offshore? The run-of-the-mill Bushman might respond that Emiliano Zapata, after all, had been a public figure in his own right, and the subject of a recent Hollywood movies starring Marlon Brando. As J. Hugh Liedtke had observed, he was the classic figure for the revolutionary-cum-bandit. A more knowledgeable Bushman might argue that the main landing beach, the Playa Giron, is located south of the city of Cienfuegos on the Zapata Peninula, on the south coast of Cuba.

Then there is the question of the Brigade 2506 landing fleet, which was composed of five older freighters bought or chartered from the Garcia Steamship Lines, bearing the names of Houston, Rio Esondido, Caribe, Atlantic, and Lake Charles. In addition to these vessels, which were outfitted as transport ships, there were two somewhat better armed fire support ships, the Blagar and the Barbara. (In some sources Barbara J.) 8 The Barbara was originally an LCI (Landing Craft Infantry) of earlier vintage. Our attention is attracted at once to the Barbara and the Houston, in the first case because we have seen George Bush's habit of naming his combat aircraft after his wife, and, in the second case, because Bush was at this time a resident, booster, and Republican activist of Houston, Texas. But of course, the appearance of names like "Zapata," Barbara, and Houston can by itself only arouse suspicion, and proves nothing.

After the ignominious defeat of the Bay of Pigs invasion, there was great animosity against Kennedy among the survivors of Brigade 2506, some of whom eventually made their way back to Miami after being released from Castro's prisoner of war camps. There was also great animosity against Kennedy on the part of the JM/WAVE personnel.

During the early 1950's, E. Howard Hunt had been the CIA station chief in Mexico City. As David Atlee Phillips (another embittered JM/WAVE veteran) tells us in his autobiographical account, The Night Watch, Howard Hunt had been the immediate superior of a young CIA recruit named William F. Buckley, the Yale graduate and Skull and Bones member who later founded the National Review. In his autobiographical account written during the days of the Watergate scandal, Hunt includes the following tirade about the Bay of Pigs:

No event since the communization of China in 1949 has had such a profound effect on the United States and its allies as the defeat of the US-trained Cuban invasion brigade at the Bay of Pigs in April 1961.

But Jim Garrison's discoveries about Freeport went even further. He found a witness, James Plaine of Houston, who told him that a Mr. Wight of Freeport Sulphur had contacted him about an assassination plot against Fidel Castro. Considering the amount of money Freeport was about to lose in Cuba, plus how remarkably well connected the Freeport Board of Directors was, this does not at all seem unlikely.

In addition to John Hay Whitney, that board included New York banker and member of the Rockefeller Brothers Fund Jean Mauze; Admiral Arleigh Burke, who also served on Committee for a Free Cuba; and former Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett.

When a company had that kind of insulation, plotting to kill Castro was not off the table. The problem was simple: John F. Kennedy was not plotting to kill Castro.

As the CIA's Inspector General Report proves, the agency never had presidential approval for the plots they designed to kill Fidel Castro. As writers like Robert F. Kennedy Jr. and others have shown, this was a cover story to divert from their own Freeport-McMoRan Inc., often called Freeport, is an American mining company based in the Freeport-McMoRan Center, in Phoenix, Arizona. The company is the world's largest producer of molybdenum, is a major copper producer and operates the world's largest gold mine, the Grasberg mine in Papua, Indonesia.

The Grasberg mine has one of the largest reserves of gold and copper in the world.[2][3] It is located in Mimika Regency, Central Papua, Indonesia near Puncak Jaya. But it was not just on the domestic scene where Robert F. Kennedy proved his mettle. After the CIA hoodwinked his brother John F. Kennedy into launching the Bay Of Pigs invasion, President Kennedy put the Attorney General RFK on the White House panel to find out what went wrong with Operation Zapata.

The experienced lawyer [RFK and hearings counsel for US Senate investigations and form DOJ ASUA found that, as his brother suspected, the CIA had deceived the president. They had lied to him about its possibility Of success, and then banked on JFK ordering in the navy to avoid a humiliating defeat. When RFK confirmed this, with the advice of his (Robert Kennedy's) father's friend Robert Lovett, Attorney General RFK recommended firing CIA Director Allen Dulles. But after listening to Lovett, the brothers went further and terminated the entire upper level of the Agency: Dulles, Deputy Director Charles Cabell, and Director of Plans Richard Bissell.

Lovett was born on September 14, 1895 in Huntsville, Texas to Robert S. Lovett, president and chairman of the board of the Union Pacific Railroad and a Director of both The National City Bank of New York and Western Union.

Lovett and his children at home in 1930 On April 19, 1919, Lovett married debutante Adele Quartley Brown, daughter of James Brown (1863–1935), a descendant of Alexander Brown (1764—1834) and the New York Brown banking family that, in 1931, would merge with another Wall Street firm, Harriman Brothers & Company, forming Brown Brothers Harriman & Co., [5] and Adele Quartley (1866 – 1954), daughter of famed seascape painter, Arthur Quartley; the couple had two children.

A member of the First Yale Unit, Lovett became a naval ensign during World War I. A passionate aviator,[8] He flew with the British Naval Air Service on patrol and combat missions, and then commanded a US naval air squadron, achieving the rank of lieutenant commander.[9] He remained interested in aeronautics, especially in European commercial and military aviation.

In 1950, California Congressman Richard Nixon was elected to the Senate, defeating Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas. With the six-year term secured, Nixon campaign officials discussed how to further his career. Campaign manager Murray Chotiner and campaign chairman Bernie Brennan proposed a year-round campaign for the next six years, leading up to a re-election bid in 1956. Nixon's Southern California campaign treasurer Dana Smith suggested what became known as "the Fund," to be administered by himself, which would pay for Nixon's political expenses.

Nelson Rockefeller changed positions again. This time he was to take C.D. Jackson's old position which had been called the Special Assistant for Psychological Strategy. With Nelson's appointment the name was changed to the Special Assistant for Cold War Strategy. This position would evolve over the years into the same position Henry Kissinger was ultimately to hold under President Nixon. Officially he was to give "Advice and assistance in development of increased understanding and cooperation among all peoples". The official description was a smoke screen for security he was the Presidential Coordinator for the Intelligence Community. In his new post, Rockefeller reported directly, and only, to the President. He attended meetings of the Cabinet, the Council on Foreign Economic Policy, and the National Security Council which was the highest policy-making body in the government.

Nelson Rockefeller was also given a second important job as the head of a secret unit called the Planning Coordination Group which was formed under NSC 5412/1 in March of 1955. The group consisted of different ad hoc members depending on the subject of the agenda. The basic members were Rockefeller, a representative of the Dept. of State, and the Director of Central Intelligence. It was soon called the "3412 Committee" of the "Special Group". NSC 5412/1 established the rule that covert operations were subject to approval by an executive committee, whereas in the past these operations were initiated solely on the authority of the Director of Central Intelligence.

By secret Executive Memorandum, NSC 5410, Eisenhower had preceded NSC 5412/1 in 1954 to establish a permanent committee (not ad hoc) to be known as Majority Twelve (MJ-12) to oversee and conduct all covert activities concerned with the alien question. NSC 5412/1 was created to explain the purpose of these meetings when Congress and the Press became curious.

Majority Twelve was made up of Nelson Rockefeller, the director of the CIA Allen Welsh Dulles, the Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, the Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Admiral Arthur W. Radford, the Director of the FBI J. Edgar Hoover, and six Council on Foreign Relations members from their executive committee known as the "Wise Men".

These men were all members of a secret society of scholars that called themselves "The Jason Society", or "The Jason Scholars" who recruited their members from the "Skull and Bones" and the "Scroll and Key" societies of Harvard and Yale.

The "Wise Men" were key members of the Council on Foreign Relations. There were 12 members including the first 6 from Government positions thus Majority Twelve. This group was made up over the years of the top officers and directors of the Council on Foreign Relations and later the Trilateral Commission (England, USA, and Japan). Gordan Dean, George Bush, and Zbigniew Brzezinski were among them.

The most important and influential of the "Wise Men" who served on MJ-12 were Jogn McCloy, Robert Lovett, Averell Harriman, Charles Bohlen, George Kennan, and Dean Acheson. It is significant that President Eisenhower as well as the first 6 MJ-12 members from the Government were also members of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Thorough researchers will soon discover that not all of the "Wise Men" attended Harvard or Yale and not all of them were chosen for "Skull and Bones" or "Scroll and Key" membership during their college years. You will be able to quickly clear up this mystery by obtaining the book "The Wise Men" by Walter Issacson and Even Thomas, Simon and Schuster, New York. Under illustration #9 in the center of the book you will find the caption "Lovett with the Yale Unit, above far right, and on the beach his initiation into Skull and Bones came at an air base near Dunkirk".

I have found that members were chosen on an ongoing basis by invitation based upon merit post college and was not confined to only Harvard or Yale attendees. A chosen few were later initiated into the Jason Society. They are all members of the Council on Foreign Relations and at that time were known as the "Eastern Establishment". This should give you a clue to the far reaching and serious nature of these most secret college societies. The Jason Society is alive and well today but now includes members of the Trilateral Commission as well.

The Trilateralists existed secretly several years BEFORE 1973. The name of the Trilateral Commission was taken from the alien flag known as the "Trilateral Insignia". Majority Twelve was to survive right up to the present day.

Under Eisenhower and Kennedy it was erroneously called the "8412 Committee" or more correctly, the "Special Group". in the Johnson administration it became the "303 Committee" because the name 5412 had been compromised in the book "The Secret Government" actually NSC 5412/1 was leaked to the author to hide existence of NSC 5410. Under Nixon, Ford, and Carter it was called the "40 Committee", and under Reagan, it became the "PI-40 Committee". Over all those years only the name changed.

Robert Abercrombie Lovett (September 14, 1895 – May 7, 1986) was the fourth United States Secretary of Defense appointed by Eisenhower and V.P. Nixon, serving alongside Allan Dulles CIA and John Foster Dulles State Department, having been promoted to this position from Deputy Secretary of Defense. He served in the cabinet of President Harry S. Truman from 1951 to 1953 and in this capacity, directed the Korean War.[2] As Under Secretary of State, he handled most of the tasks of the State Department while George C. Marshall was Secretary.

Lovett was a core member of the group of foreign policy elders known as "The Wise Men", and was deemed an "architect of the cold war" by social scientist G. William Domhoff, in his 1970 book, The Higher Circles: The Governing Class in America.

Lovett was born on September 14, 1895 in Huntsville, Texas to Robert S. Lovett, president and chairman of the board of the Union Pacific Railroad and a Director of both The National City Bank of New York and Western Union.

On April 19, 1919, Lovett married debutante Adele Quartley Brown, daughter of James Brown (1863–1935)

Adele Quartely Brown, Lovett;s wife, was a descendant of Alexander Brown (1764—1834) and the New York Brown banking family that, in 1931, would merge with another Wall Street firm, Harriman Brothers & Company, forming Brown Brothers Harriman & Co.,.

While there is no suggestion that Prescott Bush was sympathetic to the Nazi cause, the documents reveal that the firm he worked for, Brown Brothers Harriman (BBH), acted as a US base for the German industrialist, Fritz Thyssen, who helped finance Hitler in the 1930s before falling out with him at the end of the decade. The Guardian has seen evidence that shows Bush was the director of the New York-based Union Banking Corporation (UBC) that represented Thyssen's US interests and he continued to work for the bank after America entered the war.

Prescott Bush, a 6ft 4in charmer with a rich singing voice, was the founder of the Bush political dynasty and was once considered a potential presidential candidate himself. Like his son, George, and grandson, George W, he went to Yale where he was, again like his descendants, a member of the secretive and influential Skull and Bones student society. He was an artillery captain in the first world war and married Dorothy Walker, the daughter of George Herbert Walker, in 1921.

In 1924, his father-in-law, a well-known St Louis investment banker, helped set him up in business in New York with Averill Harriman, the wealthy son of railroad magnate E H Harriman in New York, who had gone into banking.

One of the first jobs Walker gave Bush was to manage UBC. Bush was a founding member of the bank and the incorporation documents, which list him as one of seven directors, show he owned one share in UBC worth $125.

The bank was set up by Harriman and Bush's father-in-law to provide a US bank for the Thyssens, Germany's most powerful industrial family.

INTRODUCTION by James DiEugenio

THE ASSASSINATION OF ROBERT KENNEDY IN LOS ANGELES ON

June 5, 1968, is perhaps the most ignored American historical milestone in the second half of the 20th century. In fact, virtually no historian recognizes it as such. Which is odd since it is clearly a marker in two ways. First, his murder climaxed a series of four major assassinations in less than five years. Preceding his assassination were those Of his brother President John Kennedy, Malcolm X, and RFK's friend and colleague Martin Luther King. All four of these deaths were caused by gunfire, and were redolent with suspicious circumstances. It was impossible to delineate the truth about the actual facts pertaining to them since, in each case, a cover-up ensued almost immediately afterwards. In an earlier book, Lisa Pease and I co-edited an anthology from Probe Magazine called The Assassinations, which tried to demonstrate the commonalities between the four cases.

The second way in which Senator Kennedy's death is a watershed relates to the outline above. His murder marked the end Of an era: it was the premature death Of the Sixties. I do not mean that as pure numerology, but in the sense that, in June of 1968, Robert Kennedy represented the last great desperate hope for the social and political activism ofthat remarkable decade. When he was killed, it was killed. Or as Jean Genet reportedly said, "America is gone." It is diffcult to understand what that means unless one is old enough to have lived through the era. And fortunately—or unfortunately— I was. No feature film or documentary I know of has ever been able to encapsulate the energy, the idealism, the sense of empowerment that so manypeople felt from 1961 to 1968.

RFK became the first Attorney General to rigorously enforce the Supreme Court's Brown v. Board decision, and the Civil o Rights Acts Of 1957 and 1960. He had planned on breaking the walls Of discrimination by using those legal tools to file civil actions showing that the states Of the former confederacy were circumventing federal law. TO do so, he hired dozens Of new lawyers in his civil rights department, and almost a score of researchers to secure data proving his charges. The Attorney General filed almost twice as many civil cases in 12 months as his predecessor had in eight years!

This was such a drastic change from the Eisenhower/ Nixon regime that it gave ballast to civil rights groups, and it inspired individuals to defy the status quo in the South. Why? Becauee they knew the Attorney General would do all he could to protect them. This was the case at the University of Mississippi with James Meredith, and at the University of Alabama with Vivian Malone. Robert Kennedy had Meredith escorted to and from class by two federal marshals during his student career at Ole Miss. Governor George Wallace brought in almost nine hundred state troopers to block Malone from entering his university. The Attorney General brought in General Creighton Abrams with three thousand federal troops. After that nationally televised showdown, it was Robert Kennedy who encouraged his brother to go on network TV to give his epochal civil rights address.

Robert Kennedy, the Attorney General understood that what he had done for the moral cause of civil rights had extracted a huge political price: He had lost the South for his brother's 1964 campaign. He therefore drafted a letter of resignation to remove the impact his legacy would have the following year. He did this on November 20, 1963. Therefore, his brother did not have the opportunity to act on it. But such is the stuff of moral and political heroism.

But it was not just on the domestic scene where RFK proved his mettle. After the CIA hoodwinked his brother into launching the Bay Of Pigs invasion, President Kennedy put the Attorney General on the White House panel to find out what went wrong with Operation Zapata. The experienced lawyer found that, as his brother suspected, the CIA had deceived the president. They had lied to him about its possibility Of success, and then banked on JFK ordering in the navy to avoid a humiliating defeat. When RFK confirmed this, with the advice of his (Robert Kennedy's) father's (Joseph Kennedy SR who funded the creation of Barrack Obama Jr for Indonesia as King Making) friend Robert Lovett, the Attorney General recommended firing CIA Director Allen Dulles. But after listening to Lovett, the brothers went further and terminated the entire upper level of the Agency: Dulles, Deputy Director Charles Cabell, and Director of Plans Richard Bissell. When is the last time something like that happened? Who was terminated over the catastrophe of 9-11 ?

How accurate was Robert Kennedy about the Bay of Pigs? It's always nice for a prosecuting attorney to get a written confession.

As scholar Lucien Vandenbroucke later discovered in the Dulles archives at Princeton, Allen Dulles posthumously provided just that. In notes prepared for a magazine article, he admitted that such was his strategy: knowing the operation had little chance Of success, he wanted President Kennedy to commit American military forces into Cuba. In 1984, when Vandenbroucke published an article in Diplomatic History on the subject, Bissell also confessed to this hidden agenda.

As more than one author has noted, after this, Bobby Kennedy became one of the president's closest foreign policy advisors, going as far as serving as his back channel emissary during the Berlin Crisis in 1961, the Cuban Missile Crisis in 1962, and in the implementation ofthe withdrawal from Vietnam in 1963.

Because of his position as First Ambassador, RFK understood what his brother had been attempting to do after the missile crisis, which was to form a rapprochement with both Russia and Cuba. After his brother's death RFK conveyed a message to the Soviets that JFK's plan for relaxing tensions would have to be placed on hold during President Johnson's administration; but he himself would soon resign, run for political offce and then the presidency, at which point it would be continued.

For reasons minutely explicated in this book, that did not occur. But the real point is this: when one adds to the above his nine years as a congressional chief counsel before he became Attorney General, and his three and a half years as a senator afterwards, was there a better post-World War Il candidate for president than Robert Kennedy? And if there was not, what does his loss represent to this country?

If the historians do not understand that loss, those around the event in 1968 certainly did. His funeral mass in New York was watched by over 100 million spectators via television. At that funeral, SDS leader Tom Hayden and Chicago Mayor Richard Daley both choked back tears. Jackie Kennedy had wept over his casket at a private wake, something she did not do over her husband's death. Two million people lined the railroad tracks to bid their final farewells as his corpse was transported back to Washington to be buried near his brother at Arlington Cemetery. When it got there, hundreds Of spectators from King's last crusade, the Poor People's March, came to pay their respects. As Arthur Schlesinger revealed in his biography Of Robert Kennedy, it was the senator who had given King the idea to bring the poor to Washington in order to force Congress to act. Which is one Of the reasons King had decided to endorse RFK over Eugene McCarthy.

The reason for the assassination [of JFK] was to control the power of the presidency [as they now do, Targeting any remaining witness to how they elite families of the CIA gained power].

The shocking nature of what you are about to read in this article makes it imperative that you be aware of some of the credentials and experience of the author.

From 1955 to December 31, 1963, Col. L. Fletcher Prouty was the Focal Point (liason) officer between the Pentagon and the CIA. During 1962 and 1963 he was Director of Special Plans (clandestine operations) in the office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In 1971 he was the president of the Financial Marketing Council, Washington, D.C.

He is the author of numerous articles and of The Secret Team, published by Prentice Hall (1973) and Ballantine Books (1974).

As we prepare now to celebrate the beginning of the third century of the founding of this country, we wonder if we live in the land of the free. We wonder if at least we still have a government of the people and by the people. Certainly, it is no longer a government for the people. The sound throughout the land is ugly: there is frustration, hate, and fear. We must act while there may still be time.

There is a grave conspiracy over the land. The people have come alive because of Vietnam and Watergate; but they have scarcely scratched the surface. A President and a Vice-President have been forced to resign. A President has been shot to death. Two Presidential candidates have been shot, one of them killed. Many of the President's men have been forced to leave, some have gone to jail; others are still under indictment.

Yes, history has been made by a series of murders, but not enough has been done to solve them. The trial of Watergate was the trial of the cover-up. There has been no trial about the real crime of Watergate. There has been no trial of the big power behind Watergate. The Hunts, Liddys, McCords, and the Cubans were not drawn into that drama solely for their own interests. They were working for someone much higher up. They were all pawns, just like Nixon was. This is a game for the biggest stake of all—absolute control of the government of the United States of America; and, with control of this government, control of the world. And yet the real crime underlying all of this has not even been identified, stated, and charged. The real criminals still walk the streets, run their corporations, control their banks, and pull strings throughout their political and financial machines.

This control mechanism did not start in 1972 with Watergate. It began, in a tentative way, in the Korean War era, when the military and the executive branch found out how easy it was to fool the Congress and the American public. And with that recognition, power-hungry and money-mad industrialists began to usurp more and more power. And when those rifles crackled over Dealey Plaza, in Dallas, Texas on November 22, 1963 and John F. Kennedy's brain was splattered across the road, they had made their move into the big time. They took over control of the President and of the Presidency. The man they had killed was no longer a problem and they had made certain that his successor, Lyndon Johnson, heard and remembered the sound of those guns. It is the sound of those guns in Dallas, and their ever-present threat, which is the real mechanism of control over the American government.

It is possible now to reconstruct the scenario of that day, and, with new information, to show why the murder of JFK may properly be called the "Crime of the Century." If we the people of the United States do not demand its resolution this year, it will stand in the way of a free election in 1976. It will doom a third century of democratic government in this country.

Almost everyone who has taken the time to do any reading and thinking about that crime knows by now that John Kennedy was killed not by a lone assassin, but by a group of hired "mechanics." Let's look at some of the hard facts of this murder and put to rest once and for all the "cover-up" report of the Warren Commission.

Kennedys and King (formerly CTKA)

Ron Canazzi, a new contributor to KennedysAndKing, reviews Jonathan M. Katz' new book Gangsters of Capitalism: Smedley Butler, the Marines, and the Making and Breaking of America's Empire with a particular view toward the overlap of Smedley Butler's military deployments with the business exploits of Sullivan Cromwell and Brown Brothers Harriman and toward the parallels with the assassinations of the 1960s and the insurrection of January 6th, 2021.

Was there really a businessman's plot to overthrow Franklin Roosevelt's government in 1934? Jonathan M. Katz in his new book Gangsters of Capitalism: Smedley Butler, the Marines, and the Making and Breaking of America's Empire isn't sure.

He begins his book with a meeting, allegedly between retired US Marine General Smedley Butler and a prominent Wall Street Stock power broker. It actually starts in 1933. Gerald C. MacGuire, a representative of a prominent Wall Street brokerage house, starts trying to recruit Smedley Butler. He wants Butler to speak against Franklin D. Roosevelt and his policy of taking the dollar off the gold standard at an American Legion conference in Chicago, but it broadens from there. And by 1934, MacGuire is sending Butler postcards from the French Riviera, where he's just arrived from fascist Italy, and also Berlin. Then he comes to Butler's hometown of Philadelphia and asks him to lead a column of half a million World War I veterans up Pennsylvania Avenue for the purpose of intimidating FDR into either resigning outright or handing off all his executive powers to an all-powerful, unelected cabinet secretary who the plotters backing MacGuire were going to name.

Butler was a celebrated US Marine general having had experience on multiple battlefields from 1898 to the 1920s. In the summer of 1932, while the depression was deepening, he led a group of thousands of World War I veterans in a march on Washington to demand they be given access to their promised World War I pensions. It is for these reasons that the plotters chose Butler to lead the revolt.

The coup plotters included the head of General Motors Alfred P. Sloan, as well as J.P. Morgan Jr. and the former president of DuPont, Irénée du Pont, and probably Gerald MacGuire's boss, Wall Street luminary Grayson Murphy. The group asked the celebrated Marine Corps officer Smedley Butler to lead a military coup. But Butler refused and revealed what he knew to members of Congress.

This is a portion of General Smedley Butler speaking before the committee in 1934:

> I appeared before the congressional committee, the highest representation of the American people, under subpoena to tell what I knew of activities which I believed might lead to an attempt to set up a fascist dictatorship.

The plan, as outlined to me, was to form an organization of veterans to use as a bluff, or as a club at least, to intimidate the government and break down democratic institutions. The upshot of the whole thing was that I was supposed to lead an organization of 500,000 men which would be able to take over the functions of government.

I talked with an investigator for this committee who came to me with a subpoena on Sunday, November 18. He told me they had unearthed evidence linking my name with several such veteran organizations. As it then seemed to me to be getting serious, I felt it was my duty to tell all I knew of such activities to this committee.

My main interest in all this is to preserve our democratic institutions. I want to retain the right to vote, the right to speak freely, and the right to write. If we maintain these basic principles, our democracy is safe. No dictatorship can exist with suffrage, freedom of speech and press.

From that point on, Katz takes us on an extended tour of all the places where Smedly Butler helped to build the American Empire. From his first action as a raw volunteer in the Spanish American War through his two tours of duty in China, to his aid in the Panamanian revolution that resulted in the establishment of an independent nation of Panama which was submissive to the US desire to build a canal, to his aid in crushing rebellions in the Philippines, Haiti, The Dominican Republic and Mexico, Katz extensively catalogues the rise and exploitation of the American Empire.

Katz actually visited many of the places Butler served. And he combines interviews with historians of the various countries along with personal papers of Butler and many prominent businessmen to paint a rather ugly picture of the conquest, establishment, and development of the American Empire.

For Kennedys and King website visitors, two groups that keep popping up during the extensive cataloguing of the events described in the book are Sullivan Cromwell and Brown Brothers Harriman. These two business entities were involved in many of the enterprises in Latin America described in the book. As Kennedys and King visitors recognize, these two entities are often linked as possible high-level orchestrators of the JFK assassination.

Sullivan and Cromwell was associated with the Dulles Brothers: John Foster, Secretary of State Under President Dwight Eisenhower, and his brother Allen, the notorious CIADirector from 1953–1962, who was fired by JFK after the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion.

Brown Brothers Harriman was associated with the Bush family—namely Prescott Bush. Prescott was heavily involved with investments in Nazi Germany prior to World War II. He was so involved with the Nazis that there was a separate investigation by the same committee that investigated the Butler accusations in the late 1930's, which was a precursor to the House Un-American Activities Committee. Some documentaries confuse the two investigations. (Apparently the documents associated with these two separate investigations both reside in the same area of the National Archives.) But Katz insists that Butler never mentions Prescott Bush as a conspirator in the 1934 plot.

As for the specifics of the plot, MacGuire told Butler at one of their early meetings in 1934 that very soon, a group identified as 'The Liberty League', involving some of the people earlier mentioned (Murphy, duPont, Sloan, etc.) were going to go public with an organization that would stand openly in opposition to FDR's New Deal programs and agenda. A few weeks later, The New York Times published a front-page article declaring the emergence of The Liberty League which not only featured some of the businessmen, but also used two anti-New Deal Democrats and former Presidential candidates, John W. Davis and Al Smith, as front-men.

The reason why we don't know more about this plot is because the congressional committee that Butler testified in front of, which was headed by John W. McCormack—who went on to become the longtime speaker of the House—and Samuel Dickstein, who was a Democrat of New York, cut their investigation short. The only people who testified were Butler, a newspaper reporter who Butler had enlisted in sort of an independent investigation, Gerry MacGuire, and the lawyer for one of the minor players in the industrialists' plot, the heir to the Singer sewing machine fortune. Absent that more detailed investigation, Katz isn't willing to state definitely the extent to which the du Ponts, Sloan, Murphy, and the others were actually involved in the planning of the business plot. They may have been deeply involved and just stopped planning once Butler ratted them out. It's possible that Grayson Murphy—MacGuire's boss—hadn't got them involved yet. Katz isn't willing to say.

Interestingly enough, the media reaction was quite similar to the more recent response to the 1960s assassination conspiracy research. The business community Butler accused tried to laugh Butler off and used The New York Times, Time Magazine, Henry Ford II's Dearborn Examiner and other prominent media outlets of the time to debunk Butler's testimony.

Time Magazine owned by billionaire Henry Luce ran a satirical piece mocking Butler. The New York Times ran a mocking unsigned editorial strongly condemning Butler. While this limited investigation was able to verify all major statements made by Butler, and the few witnesses who testified, again, the mainstream media gave it little publicity—soft peddling it and spending little time on the summary and final analysis of the final congressional sub-committee report. (Sound familiar readers? How about that Assassination Records Review Board report? Who extensively reported on it in the 1990s?) But for all the discounting and snideness, the McCormack/ Dickstein report included the following:

> In the last few weeks of the committee's official life, it received evidence showing that certain persons had made an attempt to establish a fascist organization in this country…There is no question that these attempts were discussed, were planned, and might have been placed in execution when and if the financial backers deemed it expedient.

Katz sees definite parallels to the January 6, 2021, insurrection in Washington. He points out how MacGuire—the contact person for Butler—had been influenced by a fascist insurrection in Paris a few weeks before his association with Butler. A group called 'The Fiery Cross' lead an insurrection to prevent a center left, social democratic party from taking power in France. Using conspiracy theories about fixed elections and the suicide of a rightist leader who they claim was murdered combined with an unhealthy dose of antisemitism, this motley coalition of far right groups stormed the parliament and were almost successful before being suppressed by the authorities. It is that kind of Putsch that MacGuire and his associates hoped could be successful in the United States.

I found this book a very interesting and enlightening read and believe it may have been an earlier precursor to the assassinations of the 1960s as well as a parallel to the January 6th insurgency of 2021.

Kennedys and King is the successor site to CTKA (formerly ctka.net).

CTKA (Sit-kah) was an activist group lobbying for full disclosure of all records relating to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

In 1993, in response to public outcry created by Oliver Stone's film JFK, Congress passed the JFK Act, a law requiring federal agencies to release all the remaining withheld evidence relating to the assassination of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy. While some pretend the case is closed, the case can never be closed so long as the documents pertaining to the assassination and the investigations that followed remain locked away from public scrutiny.

Citizens for Truth about the Kennedy Assassination was organized as a result of the April 1993 Chicago Midwest Symposium on Assassinations. At the end of that conference, it was generally decided that the time had come to create a political action group, which would urge the executive branch of our government to re-open the unsolved assassinations of the 1960s-i.e., the murders of President John F. Kennedy, Senator Robert F. Kennedy, and Dr. Martin Luther King. CTKA endeavored to ensure that the Review Board fulfilled its mandate to release all the remaining records pertaining to the JFK assassination; to amend the current Freedom of Information Act to render future covert actions more difficult to hide; and to urge the American people to discover the truth about their history.

CTKA formerly published Probe Magazine (1993-2000), and featured on its web site many of the articles which first appeared there, along with a continuous stream of new articles and reviews by numerous contributors.

Kennedys and King seeks to continue this mission of presenting the best in research concerning the political assassinations of the 1960s and their historical context.

Exit Strategy: In 1963, JFK ordered a complete withdrawal from Vietnam

https://www.bostonreview.net/articles/galbraith-exit-strategy-vietnam/

The Honolulu Conference of senior cabinet and military officials on November 20–21 was called to review plans in the wake of the Saigon coup. The military and the CIA, however, planned to use that meeting to pull the rug from under the false optimism which some had used to rationalize NSAM 263. However, Kennedy did not himself believe that we were withdrawing with victory. It follows that the changing image of the military situation would not have changed JFK's decision.

In other words, the CIA began developing intensified plans to implement OPLAN 34A, the program of seaborne raids and sabotage against North Vietnam that would lead to the Gulf of Tonkin incident and eventually to the wider war, one day before President Johnson signed the directive authorizing that action. How this happened, and its precise significance, remains to be determined.

John F. Kennedy had formally decided to withdraw from Vietnam, whether we were winning or not. Robert McNamara, who did not believe we were winning, supported this decision.10 The first stage of withdrawal had been ordered. The final date, two years later, had been specified. These decisions were taken, and even placed, in an oblique and carefully limited way, before the public.

The final version of NSAM 273, signed by Johnson on November 26, differs from the draft in several respects. Most are minor changes of wording. The main change is that the draft paragraph 7 has been struck in its entirety (there are two pencil slashes on the November 21 draft), and replaced with [text supporting increases of forces in Vietnam.)

On October 12, 1969, Daniel Ellsberg copied a secret dossier with the intention of disclosing the truth about the Vietnam War. The Pentagon Papers were a chronicle of events that recorded the scope of operations in Vietnam and beyond—details which were being withheld from the American public. The Vietnam War was built on the foundation of lies; we were rushed into the war using the Gulf of Tonkin as a false flag and defending freedom as a pretext to further the interests of the defense-financial complex. The truth eventually caught up to the lies of politicians and bureaucrats; Defense Secretary Robert McNamara later admitted the Gulf of Tonkin attack never took place.

The Gulf of Tonkin set the stage for a decade of continuous half-truths and outright lies as the US government suppressed information from the citizenry and kept falsifying records. This coordinated campaign of governmental disinformation prolonged a war that led to the deaths of 58,200 Americans and snuffed the lives of over 2 million Vietnamese people.

It was this pernicious operation of deceit—intent on keeping the public in the dark—that prodded Ellsberg (Campaign assistant to Robert F. Kennedy and in the hotel RKF was assassinated in) to act. After presenting the findings of the Pentagon Papers to authorities in government only to be met with a wall of silence, he decided to inform the press. The firestorm of controversy that was created after The New York Times published the Pentagon Papers and the ensuing outcry from the public played a large part in bringing an end to the Vietnam War. https://www.truthdig.com/articles/where-is-the-outrage-about-julian-assanges-

Maxwell D. Taylor

Maxwell Davenport Taylor (August 26, 1901 – April 19, 1987) was a senior United States Army officer and diplomat of the mid-20th century.

A controversial figure, Taylor was considered, along with Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, to have played a major role during the early days of the Vietnam War in the decision to deploy US combat troops to Vietnam and to escalate the conflict more generally.

Both President Kennedy and his brother, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, had immense regard for Taylor, whom they saw as a man of unquestionable integrity, sincerity, intelligence, and diplomacy. [citation needed] The Cuba Study Group met for six weeks from April to May 1961 to perform an "autopsy" on the disastrous events surrounding the Bay of Pigs Invasion. In the course of their work together, Taylor developed a deep regard and a personal affection for Robert F. Kennedy, a friendship that was wholly mutual and which remained firm until RFK's assassination in 1968.

Admiral Harry Donald Felt

Admiral Harry Donald Felt (June 21, 1902 – February 25, 1992) was an aviator in the United States Navy who led U.S. carrier strikes during World War II and later served as commander in chief of Pacific Command (CINCPAC) from 1958 to 1964.

Promoted to vice admiral in 1956, Felt commanded the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean for six months before the new chief of naval operations, Arleigh Burke, tapped his former assistant to be his vice chief, a promotion that leapfrogged Felt over a score of senior admirals and carried the rank of full admiral. As vice chief of naval operations,

General Paul D. Harkins

Paul Donal Harkins (May 15, 1904 – August 21, 1984) was a career officer in the United States Army and attained the rank of general. He is most notable for having served during World War II as deputy chief of staff for operations in George S. Patton Jr.'s commands, and as the first Military Assistance Command, Vietnam (MACV) commander, a post he held from 1962 to 1964.

Henry Cabot Lodge

Henry Cabot Lodge (May 12, 1850 – November 9, 1924) was an American Republican politician, historian, and statesman from Massachusetts.After World War I, Lodge became Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and the leader of the Senate Republicans.he led the opposition to Wilson's Treaty of Versailles, proposing 14 reservations to the treaty.[3] His strongest objection was to the requirement that all nations repel aggression, fearing that this would erode congressional powers and erode American sovereignty; those objections had a major role in producing the veto power of the United Nations Security Council. Lodge remained in the Senate until his death in 1924.

Hold on a sec.,

On June 27, 1963, Kennedy named Lodge as his ambassador to South Vietnam. Lodge had visited Vietnam as a newsman in the 1930s, and though he spoke no Vietnamese, he was fluent in French, a language widely used by the South Vietnamese elite.

1952 Senate campaign

In the fall of 1952, Lodge found himself fighting in a tight race for re-election with

John F. Kennedy, then a U.S. Representative. His efforts in helping Eisenhower caused Lodge to neglect his own campaign. In addition, some of Taft's supporters in Massachusetts defected from Lodge to the Kennedy campaign out of anger over Lodge's support of Eisenhower. In November 1952 Lodge was defeated by Kennedy; Lodge received 48.5% of the vote to Kennedy's 51.5%. This was the second of three Senate elections contested between a member of the Republican Lodge family and a member of the Democratic Fitzgerald-Kennedy clan, after the 1916 election between Lodge's and Kennedy's grandfathers and before the 1962 special election between Lodge's son and Kennedy's younger brother Ted.

Kennedy was congratulated for his victory by his dominating father, Joseph Kennedy Sr, saying at long last an Irish Catholic had humbled a scion of the WASP Boston Brahmin elite, saying that this was the most satisfying of all his son's electoral victories. It was neither the first nor the last time a Lodge faced a Kennedy in a Massachusetts election.

Ambassador to the United Nations (1953–1960)

Lodge was named U.S. ambassador to the United Nations by President Eisenhower in February 1953, with his office elevated to Cabinet-level rank. In contrast to his grandfather (who had been a principal opponent of the UN's predecessor, the League of Nations), Lodge was supportive of > the UN as an institution for promoting peace.

Lodge was the only person of the seven member policy making body to stay at the Royal Hawaiian. Others slept in military quarters.

This group of high level political and military policymakers had just decided to step up military operations against communist insurgents in Vietnam. This decision was in direct conflict with President Kennedy's announced intention of October 1963 to withdraw 1000 U. S. military personnel from South Vietnam reducing the U. S. troop strength there to approximately 14,500.

In early June of 1963, President Kennedy required McNam:ua and Taylor to announce from the steps …

… of the White House that all American forces would be withdrawn from Vietnam by 1965. This statement was in direct opposition with the thrust of the Pentagon and CIA toward deeper involvement in the Vietnam war.

The eulogy for . President Kennedy had just been conducted in, the .. Capitol ltotunda when the new President, Johnson,_ met with Lodge and instructed him to return .. to Vietnam and inform the Saigon government that the U. S. was now going to give South Vietnam strong military support.

When Obama Sr. graduated from the University of Hawaii in June 1962, he left for Cambridge, Massachusetts, where he began graduate study at Harvard University in fall 1962.

Dunham returned to Honolulu and resumed her undergraduate education at the University of Hawaii with the spring semester in January 1963. During this time, her parents (in the city of Seattle state of Washington USA) helped her having physical custody to raise the young Barack. Dunham filed for divorce in January 1964, which Obama Sr. did not contest.[Nonie Chafin bough and owned an apartment at this time in Seattle, a friend of the Donegan family.]

Dunham enrolled at the University of Hawaii at Mānoa. [She is said to have met Barrack Obama Sr there.]

While attending a Russian language class, Dunham met Barack Obama Sr., the school's first African student. At the age of 23, Obama Sr. had come to Hawaii to pursue his education, leaving behind a pregnant wife, Kezia, and their infant son in his home town of Nyang'oma Kogelo in Kenya. Dunham and Obama Sr. were married on the Hawaiian island of Maui on February 2, 1961, despite parental opposition from both families. Dunham was three months pregnant.

Ed was born 9 months after February 20 on November 18 1961. Ed asserts they lied and that the three months already pregant pushed the fertilization far enough back into 1960 for an August 4 1961 birthdate to be claimed. Obama was born on August 4, 1961, at Kapiolani Medical Center for Women and Children in Honolulu, Hawaii. He is the only president born outside the contiguous 48 states. He was born to an American mother and a Kenyan father. His mother, Ann Dunham (1942–1995), was born in Wichita, Kansas and was of English, Welsh, German, Swiss, and Irish descent. In 2007 it was discovered her great-great-grandfather Falmouth Kearney emigrated from the village of Moneygall, Ireland to the US in 1850.[11] In July 2012, Ancestry.com found a strong likelihood that Dunham was descended from John Punch, an enslaved African man who lived in the Colony of Virginia during the seventeenth century. Obama's father, Barack Obama Sr. (1934–1982), was a married Luo Kenyan from Nyang'oma Kogelo. His last name, Obama, was derived from his Luo descent.[20] Obama's parents met in 1960 in a Russian language class at the University of Hawai‘i at Mānoa, where his father was a foreign student on a scholarship. The couple married in Wailuku, Hawaii, on February 2, 1961, six months before Obama was born.

In late August 1961, a few weeks after he was born, Barack and his mother moved to the University of Washington in Seattle, where they lived for a year. During that time, Barack's father completed his undergraduate degree in economics in Hawaii, graduating in June 1962. He left to attend graduate

She was the mother of Barack Obama, the 44th president of the United States. Dunham was known as Stanley Ann Dunham through high school, then as Ann Dunham, Ann Obama, Ann Soetoro, a.k.a. Ann Sutoro, and resumed her maiden name, Ann Dunham, later in life.

JFK VS. ALLEN DULLES. BATTLEGROUND INDONESIA by Greg Poultrain

On April 10, 1961, in a long conversation with Dean Rusk, Dutch Foreign Minister Luns said that he was going to "talk to Hammarskjöld about this whole problem-"26.1 He wanted the United Nations to send a visiting mission to West New Guinea. Kennedy, four hours earlier, had informed Luns that he had been in touch with Hammarskjöld since 1958 "and a number Of times since" but gave no details of the more recent meetings. Luns obviously had heard whispers that JFK and the UN secretary general had been discussing the future of the Dutch territory. In the opinion of the UN secretary general, JFK explained, only a bona fide trusteeship arrangement would be approved. Without mentioning gold, of course, Luns wanted the Dutch presence to continue as part of a trusteeship, but this would not have been bona fide in UN terms.…

Chapter 6 1962-63

JFK, New Guinea, Malaysian Confrontation old War tension was rising. President Eisenhower closed the US Embassy in Havana, January 3, 1961, the same day that General Nasution in Moscow was discussing the Soviet arms purchase that led to Kennedy's intervention in the Dutch-Indonesian dispute. DCI Dulles was personally involved in the Cold War crises brewing in both locations, Cuba and Indonesia. In Moscow, the list was impressive: TU-16 long-range bombers, fighter planes, motor torpedo boats, submarines, and warships, including a Skoryi-class cruiser transferred from the Soviet Navy. They were to end Dutch sovereignty Of the New Guinea territory. Sukarno claimed the long-range bombers had nuclear capability. The willingness Of the United States to support their NATO ally in a colonial outpost was now in the spotlight.

A National Intelligence Estimate was prepared on this arms deal by Major General Edward G. Lansdale (secretary of Defense deputy assistant for Special Operations) and was approved by the US Intelligence Board March 7. Lansdale was a close associate of Allen Dulles who was head of the Board. Lansdale wrote: The Soviet effort to capture Sukarno and Indonesia through personal diplomacy and military and economic assistance has reached substantial proportions and appears to be making significant progress. Indonesia is looking to the Communist Bloc for important contributions to its economic

While Nasution's pro-US stance was conveyed in confidence to Jones and Rusk in March 1961, it probably came also to the notice Of the CIA, judging by the careful wording in the briefing prepared for Kennedy prior to Sukarno's visit in April: "We are awaiting more conclusive data before associating ourselves fully with Professor Guy Pauker's thesis that the Moscow talks may have forced General Nasution into a de facto alliance with the Communist Party."

If the CIA already knew that Kennedy had been informed about Nasution, then the CIA briefing would have lost credibility altogether had it stood by Pauker's thesis. The briefing, titled "Indonesian Perspectives" had direct input from Allen Dulles but was signed off by Richard Bissell, CIA deputy director for plans. (His predecessor was Frank Wisner). Part analysis and part intelligence estimate, the briefing was clearly anti-Sukarno and advised Kennedy against placing any trust in the Indonesian president.

Robert Komer, from the National Security Council, disagreed with much of the briefing and bluntly expressed his opinion to the president's assistant for National Security Affairs, McGeorge Bundy: "The thesis is that Sukarno, the devil incarnate, will take Indonesia so far down the road as to make it a pushover for the PKI in (the) predictable future." For Kennedy's best option, Komer said that he preferred the same as Jones was recommending, that is, shifting to a "pro-Indonesian policy on West Irian plus more 'political' The Moscow arms deal forced Washington to rethink its role Of backing up the Dutch in the event Of Indonesian aggression. Australian support for a continued Dutch presence compounded Kennedy's dilemma because of ANZUS, the Australian-New Zealand—US alliance. Furthermore, if the United States supported the Dutch, the prospect of a majority of members of the United Nations decrying the United States as procolonialist placed another restriction on Washington's choice in the sovereignty dispute. Pauker warned that success in West Irian might convince the army to accept the PKI as a full partner, but this was implicitly contradicted by Nasution's stance.

Assassinations Theory Bringing It Home to Donegan family History

Using the String, the Focal Pointsm and the research and family history I have.

1926: AT1 is the focal point of Glorian Donegan Raised as Glorian Gainey born 1926 in North Carolina to Festus Gainey, that really was a US birth of Maria Kutschera children. Maria Kutchera will move to North Carolina later with her Captain Von Trapp family 1936 but first her out of wedlock Windsor bastard child Glorian Gainey. Festus Gainey dies in 1936 and at 9 years old she and her brother Harold are relocated to South Carolina where Harold will work for DuPont Camden Plant. Dean Rusk is at Davidson College underground railroad church connected college same area. Norma Jean and Glorian Gainey were brought up under Joseph Kennedy SR hidden identities done for FDR, Admiral Hasley, the Windsors, their out of wedlock baby perhaps in Wings song.

1958: AT2 is James Paul Donegan my father and Glorian Gainyes husband. In 1952 USAF US Army Air Force pilot James Paul Donegn meets and marries Glorian. At the same time Johm F. Kennedy, ,the Kennedy's and Donegan from St Aaidan Church Irish Roman Catholic immigrants with a chip on the shoulder towards the British.

In WWII he was a P-51 pilot, RECON, in the atomic bombings and above ground atomic testing. Later in 1952 Korean War he is at Atsugi Air Base Japan (Olswald late there) flying RECON for Bissle Jr, others, and Lovet is Secretary of Defense.

In 1958 Prouty (that same Prouty I knew as a child in Marshfield?) has a plan for Indonesia. Create a sleeper Barrack Obaam Jr. (Wayne Madsen, Prouty, and others. Glorian Donegan, Marilyn Monroe, others carry the speech and grammer gene FOXP2. The plan is to use Glorain and Malcom X to create Barrack Obama Jr, and Marilyn Monroe and Malcom X might be the celebrities to start Barrack Obama Jr on his celebrity life, but something goes wrong Aug 4th 1962 under fake identity 1 year brithday. Real birthday is half twin fo Ed Donegan Novermber 18 1961 to Glorian Donegan born Los Angels County JFK is there, Dave Powers, Peter Lawford, others.

Part of the ongoing desire of Joseph Kennedy Sr. to help study secretive out of wedlock lines with faked identities is to by helping the Windsors help his own family, the gene ran in Rosemary Kennedy given a labotomy in November 1941 because of expermental proceduers in Borderline Personalty Disorder and volatile behavior had not been medical understood from the orgnic function of the brain, and MEth may by Dr Jacobson part of treating it.

Ornithology in the Eagle's Nest the e Connection

Military historians increasingly believe General Pattton and perhaps James Forrestal were assassinated by Pro British or British elements.

The flight of the Stork from Salzburg Austria Maria Kutschera through London into Durham area North Carolina, Captain Von Trapp and his children by Agatha Whitehead later arriving, but Captain Von Trapps uncomfortable friends Franz Kutschera and Heiench Himmler in the 1920's near him and using his children in very early 1920's Nazism he will not formally flee until 1936.

It fits all the history of Marilyn Monroe, her relationship with the Kennedy family, Sleepers, and the assassination of the parties involved to cover-up the Windsor connection to both genetic defect and Eugenicists of pre 1936.

Uncle Albert and Admiral Halsey Hands Across The Ocean (Wings Song)

World War I or the First World War (28 July 1914 – 11 November 1918), often abbreviated as WWI, was one of the deadliest global conflicts in history.

Forestall went to work as a bond salesman for William A. Read and Company (later renamed Dillon, Read & Co.) in 1916. When the US entered World War I, he enlisted in the Navy and ultimately became a Naval Aviator, training with the Royal Flying Corps at Camp Borden and Deseronto in Canada.[6] During the final year of the war Forestall spent much of his time in Washington, at the Office of Naval Operations while FDR was Undersecretary of the Navy and tied to Joseph Kennedy Sr.

Fore River Shipyard was a shipyard owned by General Dynamics Corporation located on Weymouth Fore River in Braintree and Quincy, Massachusetts. Joseph Kennedy Sr managed the plant during WWI working closely with Undersecretary of the Navy FDR.

After Halsey's service on Missouri, Halsey served aboard torpedo boats, beginning with USS Du Pont in 1909. Halsey was one of the few officers who was promoted directly from ensign to full lieutenant, skipping the rank of lieutenant (junior grade). Torpedoes and torpedo boats became specialties of his, and he commanded the First Group of the Atlantic Fleet's Torpedo Flotilla in 1912 through 1913. Halsey commanded a number of torpedo boats and destroyers during the 1910s and 1920s.

At that time, the destroyer and the torpedo boat, through extremely hazardous delivery methods, were the most effective way to bring the torpedo into combat against capital ships. Then-Lieutenant Commander Halsey's World War I service, including command of USS Shaw in 1918, earned him the Navy Cross. (Use of Whitehead Torpedos)

The Assassination of James Forestall Using primarily information provided in the Navy's official investigation of the death of America's first Secretary of Defense, which had been kept secret for 55 years, The Assassination of James Forrestal thoroughly demolishes the widely believed view that Forrestal's fall from a 16th-floor window of the Bethesda Naval Hospital on May 22, 1949, was an act of suicide. Although he was skeptical of American involvement in World War I, Kennedy sought to participate in wartime production as an assistant general manager of Fore River, a major Bethlehem Steel shipyard in Quincy, Massachusetts. There, he oversaw the production of transports and warships. Through this job, he became acquainted with Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt.

I think in this circle of of military industrialism the Maria

Kutera children were born in the USA likely between her leaving the Convent in 1926 and her marriage to Captian Von Trapp 1927.

Boston Navy Yard and the "Great War," 1914-1918

https://www.nps.gov/articles/bny_wwi.htm

by David Hannigan, Park Guide

At the turn of the 20th century, the Boston Navy Yard (now known as Charlestown Navy Yard) entered its second century of service by embarking on its first major expansion since the Civil War. This growth was in line with the goals of President Theodore Roosevelt's administration, which wanted the United States Navy to expand and modernize, heralding the emergence of America as a world power. In Boston several new buildings and a second dry dock were built to meet the demands of the growing fleet that it served.

Shortly after the outbreak of World War I in August 1914, President Woodrow Wilson declared that the United States would remain neutral. It would become the navy's job to protect the nation's neutrality at sea and at home by stationing destroyers at Boston Navy Yard.

In the aftermath of the sinking of the RMS Lusitania in May 1915, President Wilson sided with the growing number of advocates of military preparedness who sought to protect America's interests at home and abroad. As part of the preparedness movement, Wilson called upon Congress to authorize the construction of over 150 warships. With the passage of the Naval Act of 1916, the Boston Navy Yard prepared for an increase in the number of ships built, outfitted, and repaired at the facility.

Throughout the war years, many of the yard's older buildings were renovated or replaced, while several new buildings were erected, including a massive general storehouse. An inclined shipway, where vessels could be built and launched, was constructed and towering hammerhead cranes were erected after the Navy Department selected the Boston Navy Yard for the construction of the first ship specifically built to carry supplies and provisions for overseas fleet replenishment. For the repair of smaller vessels, a marine railway was constructed between the yard's two dry docks.

As preparations intensified, the number of workers at the yard increased dramatically, growing from approximately 2,500 to 4,400 skilled and unskilled laborers by 1917. This workforce would come to include a number of women who filled a variety of roles from clerical workers to manufacturing assistants in the yard's ropewalk, which had greatly increased its production of cordage for the navy.

Destroyers ready for service at Pier 9 in the Navy Yard, circa 1916-1917 BOSTS 14934-13

By January 1917, the land war in Europe had reached a stalemate, prompting Germany to resume its campaign of unrestricted submarine warfare in an attempt to cut off Britain's supply lines and starve the country into submission before America joined the war. After the sinking of several American vessels with loss of life, the United States declared war on Germany on April 6 and rapidly began to mobilize its forces.

Immediately following the declaration of war, the United States Navy ordered Destroyer Division 8 to assemble at the Boston Navy Yard and prepare for deployment to European waters. Six destroyers departed Boston on April 24, 1917 and arrived at the British naval base at Queenstown (Cobh), Ireland on May 4. A second group of destroyers left Boston on May 7 to join in escort duties and patrol for German U-boats. Thereafter, the port of Boston and its navy yard would become one of the principal points of departure for troops, arms, and supplies to Britain and France.

Though the Boston Navy Yard would build a number of support ships during the war, the Navy specifically assigned the yard the task of repairing warships and support vessels. Equally important, the yard oversaw the outfitting and commissioning of a steady stream of warships built by private shipbuilding concerns. These would include destroyers and submarines constructed at Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation's Fore River Shipyard and its Victory Destroyer Plant, both located in Quincy, Massachusetts.

In addition to readying and repairing warships, workers at the Boston Navy Yard also outfitted ships of the American Merchant Marine with armament provided by the federal government. Boston also converted, fitted out, and commissioned former cargo carrying merchantmen and passenger vessels that had been purchased or leased by the Navy. The smaller and swifter vessels were converted for use in anti-submarine warfare and coastal patrol, while larger vessels were converted for use in transporting troops and carrying cargo. Perhaps the most complicated conversion work at the yard involved five German passenger ships that had been seized in American ports by the United States government after the declaration of war. Prior to the vessel's seizure, their crews had sabotaged the ship's' engines, necessitating extensive repairs before these vessels could be transformed into transports to carry troops and supplies from the United States to France.

About The Author

I am Edward Paul Donegan. Almost no one would know I am of rather my family story is one one of the most central family stories in world history, that history covering 600 years and that really is the point and that really is how that came about, hiding not only that but the events as important to markers in world history like flight, the atomic age, and self-government in the Age of Reason. This history covers much of what we have heard of the assassination of JFK and RFK and the Kennedy Curse, the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland in the 1960's, 1970's, and 1980's, and what were learning about today.

The Rosetta Stone or perhaps some bone found somewhere is not important for what it did, it is merely an object that provides some information useful to historians and that role is what I assert is mine in history, the story of who my parents were help understand the Kennedy assassinations and those who came to power by violence against the Kennedy's and now use assaults on me hoping those disputes could lead again to my imprisonment in psych wards, or make me appear so evil by what is staged I am doing to others that yet more people might attack me on sidewalks, in homeless camps, evict me from apartments, etc., all of which happen all the time. I have had ten people surround me on the street as I am walking along late at night as they attack me Young Spock like trying to get to where I am going and not end up in a physical fight even as I am bumped and buzzed.

The only person I wrote one book about but is in all my books is Ted Gunderson who may have (in my view) have been the largest figure in freedom in North American history, outranking by his acts Thomas Jefferson, and followed closely along John DeCamp and Jen Moore, and their roles and courage vital and beyond description.

Bizarre street fighting of people throwing Big Gulps at me while playing Mexican Music as I slept in a pedestrian tunel 8 years before 2023 in the town of Corpus Christi matched bizarre activities of early where gang members assert we are family now and I owe them.

I had a few years later tied that and passed out information in Corpus Christi "indications of genocide" because others having an obsession with my family history matched activities surrounding my mother, her own DNA, and attempts to destroy her family records and threaten her through the windows as was being done to me.

In an account now deleted (I made a new one) in 2005 I had begun asking Nazi historians if they recognized my family names Gainey and Donegan from Nazi or British genetics research because that had been part of the internal family story as told in Moraga California, or North Carolina, but I was told not to speak of it and when I found another who seemed to know it was said never to speak of it again. Through Jen Moore I learned the Gainey name was fake.

In the last seven years I have researched and written none stop as many hours as I can stay awake or find a place to type.

That new information being what Col Fletcher Prouty the Roman Catholic USAF and CIA military go-between working for Allen and John Foster Dulles, Vice President Richard Nixon and the NSC regime change council that included overthrow plans for Indonesia, those plans getting underway by Allen Dulles in 1958 (Battleground Indonesia JFK versus Allen Dulles by Greg Polgrain, or Indonesia 1958 Vice President Nixon the Secret War by Col Prouty as his records and recollections on it, or Wayne Madsen and the CIA declassified documents on those plans.

In 1955 Col Leory Fletcher Prouty was appointed the first "Focal Point" officer between the CIA and the Air Force for Clandestine Operations per National Security Council Directive 5412. He was Briefing Officer for the Secretary of Defense (1960-1961), and for the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

It should be noted that in 1958 Allen Dulles was the head of the CIA, his brother John Foster Dulles was the Secretary of State, Eisenhower was President, and Nixon, as Vice President, chaired the clandestine affairs committee, then known as the "Special Group 5412/2." In other words nothing was done in Indonesia that was not directed by Nixon. If an action had not been directed by the NSC, then it was done unlawfully by the CIA.

Indonesia 1958: Nixon, the CIA, and the Secret War

By L. Fletcher Prouty

> Blood ran in the streets. Villages were wiped out and a million people massacred in a battle for the riches and political control of Indonesia.
>
> Nixon and the CIA wanted Sukarno overthrown. But the creator of Indonesia knew how to fight.

At times under Eisenhower and V.P. Nixon Prouty would be called to meet with Allen Dulles (CIA) and John Foster Dulles (Secretary of State) at their homes on highly classified business. He was assigned to attend MKULTRA meetings. In this capacity Col. Prouty would be at the nerve center of the Military-Industrial Complex at a time unequaled in American History. He has written on these subjects, about the JFK assassination, the Cold War period, and Vietnamese warfare, and the existence of a "Secret Team". He backs up his his work with seldom seen or mentioned official documents - some never before released.

Now I Edward Donegan go back to this essay on who I am in this history adn why my life has been sabotaged by behind the scenes efforts of COINTELPRO, social sabotage, sexually abusive treatment of me and smearing of me in public by staged events manufacturing propaganda things I seem linked to, legal system and other sabotage, leaving me the only living member of my family of origin, the last person who can tell my tale to history, and I am trying to now do so, but under failing life circumstances, few resources, and little credibility.

I haver asserted Birther theory is true, Barrack Obama Jr under fact trails left open by the CIA could have been used by the CIA under various birth certificates and Prouty and planners for the CIA were setting that up, and there was a Donegan role in that in possible Donegan hidden history being used to obfuscate Barrack Obama's birth identity, and this now makes my family history a risk to the CIA plan, those who planned it, the GOP of V.P. Nixon, and those were are tied to it in politics now, Barrack Obama Jr. and the surviving members of and still powerful Bush family dynasty.

Recently I posted a picture to Facebook in my Edward Paul Donegan books Facebook page a picture of a bloody eyebrow I had needed stitches for in a homeless skid row fight and about the day they came out another fight erupted, and it looks so far like new stitches will go in.

There are many deaths tied to my story and this massive thread to world history and they contributed to my developing the full context of this and while they died telling the same story and had more notoriety, they themselves could not overcome rejection of what they asserted, a theory long talked about but only gaining credibility with historians.

The obstacles I have faced in my life have been enormous. Their existence has been one of the markers of depth and breadth of resistance to my life story that I needed to and did for most of life living under a known partial identity that could not be shared.

That partial identity was revealed by the now deceased Jen Moore, a Pizzagatre theorist and theorist on the Kennedy Assassinations(s) and Allen Dulles. She told those stories and the various spy rings and spy history (OSS and CIA, Vatican and Catholic Gladio Vatican Assassins) that have been part of my lifespan story, and the hundred years back from today in 2023 of the birth of my father in Dorchester Massachusetts were the Kennedy Family was from, and that Donegan story closely tied to WWII and Cold War History, but even before that WWI history and Jospeh Kennedy Senior events of WWI, again, all told by Jen Moore and understood by no one so fac but she withheld names for a long time, then days and If I have the timing right hours before her death was going to reveal the actual names, the Donegan’s and others.

Carl Clark, former CIA/M15 operative, was involved in massively illegal operations such as performing organized stalking on victims and deploying electromagnetic weapons to anonymously inflict pain and terror.

He has stated, "the undoubted goal is to have select people end up in psychiatric institutions. If a target seeks help by going to the police or to the doctor, they don't get taken seriously."

“When I Edward Paul Donegan asserted I was radiologically attacked in a US Department of Homeland Security Federal Bureau of Prisons Federal Medical Facility both the context of that attack are consistent with Carl Clark’s statement as were the physical symptom I reported and at least person with atomic medical response training, a vet on duty at the psych ward I was placed into, had said the truly did look like radiation burns to him. On arrival at the pscyh ward transferred from Duke Medical Center North Carolina who had considered my report unlikely as true I showed the psch tech those burns lowering my pants puddling them to the floor and my knees to belly button solid red.,

Today other people asserting D-E-W attacks post similar pictures and the assertion is more comon as are the symptoms I then reported, very rare but quite serious Tenitis and confusion.

Befofre I go into other parts of that history I go now into the context of when (and where, in the USA by US officials) that attack occurred and that fits Car Clark’s statement though I knew nothing of him then nor did I know the word for what was clearly occurring.

Zersetzung or Decomposition, cover harassment and attacks that often do not sound plausible because they were covert in nature and even designed to have the reverse psychology affect of explaining why a person might be walking around with tinfoil on the head which by the way I had already done about five years before that.,’

Now again the contex of this part of my story D-E-W attacks and how this fits what Carl Clark said the CIA and British Espionage much like through Peter Steele came to socially and politically sabotage Donald Trump more recently with staged defamtion created by paid actors who surrounded him, him a then percieved threat to Great Britian intelligence services and history.

Returning now back to Carl Clark's statement and apply it first to Winter 2008 I made my allegations of a D-E-W attack.

Carl Clark, former CIA/M15 operative, was involved in massively illegal operations such as performing organized stalking on victims and deploying electromagnetic weapons to anonymously inflict pain and terror.

He has stated, "the undoubted goal is to have select people end up in psychiatric institutions. If a target seeks help by going to the police or to the doctor, they don't get taken seriously."

The 2008 United States presidential election was the 56th quadrennial presidential election, held on Tuesday, November 4, 2008. The Democratic ticket of Barack Obama, the junior senator from Illinois, and Joe Biden, the senior senator from Delaware, defeated the Republican ticket of John McCain, the senior senator from Arizona, and Sarah Palin, the governor of Alaska.

Outgoing after 2000 wer George W. Bush and Dick Cheney. My book and life story will assert as now declassified documents to that George H. W. Bush ran programs like Brigade 2506 for the CIA using CIA front companies like Zapata Patroleum to attack Castro with, that Brown Brothers and [Averall Harmin] law firm, Sullivan and Cromell, OSS and CIA Prescott Bush history including Senator Prescott Bush creating the East-West Center with USAID and Peace plans for Indonesia and Hawaii, were all part of the now declassified plans, and Barrack Obama Jr was a CIA planned Agent of Influence for the 21st Century in part planned out with the Ford Foundation (CIA Front) Joseph Kennedy Sr (for reasons later explained but tied into WWI history and Submarine Warfare tied into the Von Trapps, Agatha Whitehead and Whitehead Torpedoes, and

Much of what I assert goes to Salzburg Austria and General Patton finding what atrocities occurred there from Himmler and Kutschera, the Death Camps evidence and that the death camps were tied to Franz Kutchera of the SS of Austria close alley of Henriech Himmler, Himler and Franz Kutchera using the Barron Von Trapp banded mansion as a command center after Maria Kutschera and Barron VonTrapp abandoned it (and them) in 1936.

It was General Patton who led the Allied Forces up the Italian Peninsula into Central Europe and Salzburg to first find what was there during the Allies liberating that area Europe and Gaining access to it as Supreme Allied Commander General Eisenhower approaced from the East as D Day British attack across the English Channel was leading the Allies into France and the rest of Nazi occupied Continental Europe.

Military historians, very credible ones, are now considering evidence to strong to be ignored that General Patton of WWII was assasinted by US and British forces as was Admireal Forestall of WWI.

George Smith Patton Jr. Born: November 11, 1885, San Gabriel, CA Died: December 21, 1945, Heidelberg, Germany

My book and research into what is now known including from my family internal oral, artifactual, and documents history as that a WWI plan made with the British in Austria, Salzburg Austria led to disaster for the royal family, and the discovery of that history was a threat to Great Britian and history of the entire war as perceived by the public.

James Vincent Forrestal was the last Cabinet-level United States Secretary of the Navy and the first United States Secretary of Defense. Forrestal came from a very strict middle-class Irish Catholic family. Wikipedia Born: February 15, 1892, Beacon, NY Died: May 22, 1949, Bethesda, MD

The Story of the Trapp Family Singers is a 1949 memoir written by Maria Augusta von Trapp, whose life was later fictionalized in Rodgers and Hammerstein's Broadway musical The Sound of Music in 1959 and provided some propaganda the Von Trapps did not like the Nazis very much though were (back then still covertly) tied to Nazis (and the Windosrs).

One the people nI have mentioned one person very early on in this essay is former police officer and anti-corruption whistle blower Jen Moore who was a former police officer in the town of Tracy, California who had the files on the Donegan story for something that is known about me and my mother Glorian Donegan who was born as Glorian Gainey and later in 1952 married James Paul Donegan my father, that just happending as Jackie Kennedy and John F. Kennedy married, Price Albert of York later after his 1925 Kings Speech died as King George VI, and now Elizabeth Bowels Lyon was Queen Elizabeth of 1952, not the Queen Mother her mother a much earlier Queen of England.

1952 was also when Frank Olsen died, MKULTRA began, and Eisenhower become Republican President of the USA and his backroom selected Vice President was Richard Nixon who had backroom US Marshall Plan plans with the Rockefeller's and Rothschild's an JP Morgan, DuPont, and Prescott and George H.W. Bush plans with Averal Harriman for Post WWII Europe using Regime Change, Subversion, and Overthrow in closely tied operations with the British.

It was these plans Col Fletcher Prouty spent much of his life doing for General Charles Cabell and Allen Dulles, not lacing my skates up on the frozen cranberry fields of Marshfield Massachusetts as he once did when our families played together on a families play date and I was very young.

William Averell Harriman, better known as Averell Harriman, was an American Democratic politician, businessman, and diplomat. The son of railroad baron E. H. Harriman, he served as Secretary of Commerce under President Harry S. Truman, and later as the 48th governor of New York. He also lit more cigars with General Eisenhower and Winston Churchill than anyone else did and it was exactly then as WWII was winding down the planning was beginning really according to the same plans the British and United Fruit Company and even before that East India Tea Company had for the USA and Latin Americas from the 1870's onward, the Guilded Age and steam ship sending British Influence and British Imperialism all through the spice, coffee, tea, oil, and banna sources around the world that the British Navy also liked ports and friendly governments at.

If you were to believe me and Jen Moore about the history I assert and my and Jen Moore (and other peoples history in it) the story is about remaing British influences and dueling (or at least back in the 1960s') dueling interest of republicanisnm and the Republic of Ireland idealized by Boston Roman Catholic Kennedy family members fightin off the British in 1776 and in the book Profiles in Courage or the Senate Hearings on Labour Rackets Get Hoffa long term anti mafia goverment, mafia government Vice Presidnt Richard Nixon, rich robber barrons, and others wanted in order to subue countries trying to assert National Rights the likes of Free Mason J. Edgar Hoover spent his life fighting against - using the Mafia to fight them - since 1926.

First of all I should tell you what Jen Moore was telling you though not using my or my mother's name, only photosd of where we lived in Virginia.

I am not a Nigerian Prince. I have a collection of learning disanilities that look like ADHD and Dyslexia. Now Obama might be a Nigerian or Kenyan Prince, not having the defect that runs in 20 percent of Central Europeans in the the Twentiech Centuries and even Vice Presidnet Rockefeller had and talked about, and so did a Schwartzenegger, may even menmber of the Ted Cruz family.

It turns out the Windsors might not be Nigerian Princes either. Since 1902 they have been aware of some flaws that run in half their family called Borderline Personality Disorder. Cooperating families like the family Julian Assange is from and others like the Donegan's are studied and lived undert assumed names like Norma Jean who was placed in the USA. Various philandering Windsors wanted to watch secretly offspring and help those along that CIA and MI5 might use in overthrows, but do so secretly.

I assert this left over MKULTRA planning is now trying to rid the evidence of the MKULTRA legacy and part of that legacy was and still is attacks on the Roman Catholic politicians tied to Kennedy beliefs during the Irish troubles, and my family is among those families.

These plans were built by the Bush and Walker families, the NWO of the Super Rich, and now MKULTRA has started covertly harassing and discrediting people like myself who have insights on the JFK, and authors like Ralph Thomas writing SILENCED! Strange Deaths Of People Who Knew Too Much About The JFK Assassination: 92 Witnesses, Researchers, CIA Agents, Police Officers, Reporters, Girlfriends Who Just Knew Way Too Much!

Ted Gunderson closely tied to RFK and JFK makes the same (discounted) allegations I do about being on a hit-list of Stasi GangStalk, poisonings, break-ins, etc, for the Bush Ashcroft Barr Sessions GOP cover-up of Mafia activity that includes Mafia attacks on Roman Catholic anti Mafia Congressman Sonny Bono who had the goods on the CIA and was about to out the Mafia just as Roman Catholic Marilyn Monroe was. Just as Roman Catholic William Colby was trying to come clean before according to his friend and John DeCamp's friend Colby himself had said, he was shot in the head by the Mafia.

These deaths and supporting consistent statments of insiders like Gunderson will explain it all, just listen to me and Jen Moore, the answers are here, they are to be found, it is the NWO Big Business Deep State.

If you listen to Jen Moore my mother and I have Borderline Personality Disorder as Rosemay Kennedy had (given a Labotomy) and Maria Kutschera my mother's mother had.

Elites of today like Barrack Obama, the Rockefeller's, and others like the Nixon and Kennedy family have worked with psychiatry to study and at times depend on the gene hoping to provoke fights using Conflict Engagement that could cost person in that conflict freedom, use of a typewrite while in custody, credibility as not being a psych-ward certified crazy, etc., all that is said about me including when I asserted I was radioligcally attacked in 2008-2009 and at other times.

Barrack Obama Jr came from some source of these secretive CIA study lines, most likely during the atomic testing of affects of DNA and followup studies the Donegan's were in, but Windsor's and Kutschera's have secretive relatives around the world and who lived under a CIA cover story or from which family is not all all fully explained but part of MKULTRA.

Why the creation of Barrack Obama Jr ties to my family is this. My family was already under a secret identity that could not (according to some people) be revealed. She (my mother Glorian) was the 1926 Family Jewels daughter of who actually probably was Prince Albert of York (aka Yorksoil Blue Hydrangia) and Maria Kutchera. Since Maria Kutcshera herself wa made a War Hero in her anti nazi songs revealing her Nazi ties was impossible.

With Glorian Donegan forever in the background of assumed names identity, like Norma Jean, under assumed names and hidden history, she became a possible invisible link the CIA needed to make other family lines the CIA would use through that permant invisible link thus making an untraceable chain of Agents of Influence for CIA operations around the world the CIA now is afraid will be disclosed.

Now for the Rosetta Stone part. The basics of 1 + 2 = 3 we learn in school as Algebra and we know that if any one part of the equation is missing then because we can tell what number would make the equation correct must be the missing number.

Here is how you can tell that what I say is true based on this Rosetta Stone Picture.

I found because I have the Donegan story piece layer 3 (or they say 33) piece of a layer above 1 and 2. At 33 minutes in most TV and film you can find a story-line of a Hidden Order of a secretive group, hidden, that can influence from far above in power and control and insight what is seen by the lower levels.

That Free Masons have a huge Psychological Warfare propaganda influence in the USA telling us about a higher level of thinking by what amounts to British Imperial Knights KBE Order Elites these free masons are secretly in the USA and other locations in disguise, hidden from ordinary view.

So take that concept at Free Masonry hidden but at Level Three above the display frame of TV or Cinema. Now turn the time elapsed function on your DVD or streaming player and watch some of the Star Trek Desilu productions or Disney productions I cite and see for yourself.

It is possible not to believe what is in my books, but it is very difficult not to believe what is in my books IF you read them in full and check for yourselves.

The January 2009 Radiological Attack on Me And Events Surrounding it

The first inauguration of Barack Obama as the 44th president of the United States took place on Tuesday, January 20, 2009, at the West Front of the United States Capitol in Washington, D.C. The 56th inauguration, which set a record attendance for any event held in the city, marked the commencement of the first term of Barack Obama as president and Joe Biden as vice president. Based on combined attendance numbers, television viewership, and Internet traffic, it was one of the most-observed events ever by the global audience at the time.

Obama and others paid homage to Lincoln in the form of tributes and references during several events, starting with a commemorative train tour from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, to Washington, D.C., on January 17, 2009. The inaugural events held in Washington from January 18 to 21, 2009, included concerts, a national day of community service on Martin Luther King Jr. Day, the swearing-in ceremony, luncheon and parade, inaugural balls, and the interfaith inaugural prayer service. The presidential oath as administered by Supreme Court Chief Justice John Roberts to Obama during his swearing-in ceremony on January 20 strayed slightly from the oath of office prescribed in the United States Constitution, which led to its re-administration the next day.

Obama, who originally campaigned using the slogan "Change We Can Believe In" and later "Change We Need",[6] was widely celebrated as the first African American president of the United States and a symbol of change from his Republican predecessor, George W. Bush. Obama also represented a generational change as the first man elected president who was born in the 1960s. - wikipedia

Born when and where in 1961? On November 18, birth Certificate November 19, Manhattan Beach City Los Angeles California?, Mombasa Kenya?, or Hawaii? Questions surround each location. Questions left for us by the OSS, CIA of 1949, and Donald Barr and George H.W. Bush senior, and NWO NGO groups including the Vatican and Knights of Malta.]

On January 15, 2009 five days before Barrack Obama Jr wsa inaugurated, Sully Sullenberger was the captain of US Airways Flight 1549, an Airbus A320 taking off from LaGuardia Airport in New York City. Shortly after takeoff, the plane struck a flock of Canada geese and lost power in both engines. Quickly determining he would be unable to reach either LaGuardia or Teterboro Airport,[34] Sullenberger piloted the plane to an emergency water landing on the Hudson River. All 155 people on board survived and were rescued by nearby boats.

Sullenberger said later: "It was very quiet as we worked, my copilot Jeff Skiles and I. We were a team. But to have zero thrust coming out of those engines was shocking—the silence." Sullenberger was the last to leave the aircraft, after twice making sweeps through the cabin to make sure all passengers and crew had evacuated. - Wikipedia

Both of these events I watched on a North Carolina Mental Hospital television with my family visiting me for week Ton Donegan, Mark Weirness, and Glorian Donegan.

I had reported radiation burns a few weeks earlier as I was being released from FMC Butner N.C., where that plane was headed for and I did find that somewhat curious since it was FBI Criminal Division Wray, Ny Criminal Division that I was accusing of grant fraud and where I had been imprisoned ant the Metropolitan Manhattan detention facility.

Before I go into the rest of this I should explain how I was arrested on the misdemeanor Harrassing And Annoying Calls [to Health and Human Services National Institute of Health Freedom of Information Act officer Brenda Butler.

I a bizarre string of Gang Stalk events while I was living in San Francisco with Jason Meyher strange groups of people talking about executive orders from the Whitehouse were stalking me, some in unusual camouflage, some in street clothes.

My mother had heard me calling her for years since 2001 that I was being stalked. The plan was that I would come back to D.C., and live with her in the Balston area of Arlington at 850. North Randolph very near where my brother lived with Mark Weirness at Clarendon area, walking distance.

I been telling Jason my landlord and housemate is his two bedroom condo. my psychiatrist at the time, and my mother and Tom and Mark that two very unbelievable things I had heard said in front of me by these same Stalkers talking about orders from the White House. One was use some king of microwave attack. About this time an Asia youth was visiting Jason and I acted in an add way towards him because his Sisters of Mercy (industrial rock band) t-shirt had a satellite on it, something that sounded similar to the microwave attack system being talked about. I asked Jason for some dark beer at least it might be like Iodine saying so somewhat offhandedly and and drank a six pack of his imported amber beer leaving him thinking it was yet another of many raids on his refrigerator and I admit it was. I think I joked about tinfoil on the head.

The other thing they said and in front of me is that if I were to get on the plane and head back towards D.C. to live with my mother they were going to have to shoot down the plane. About this time I heard a loud bang and wondered if someone, possibly Jason's girlfriend at the time had been shot by one of these people, but it was just a car door noise as she was leaving or arriving.

I DID return to D.C. from San Francisco, really Arlington County Virginia that land carved out of the Historic District Columbia the shape a a square balanced diamond like on one of its corners, I think also Columbia University logo.

It was upon returning to D.C., that I had surrounded on a misdemeanor warrant for annoying phone calls, that arrest leading to medical psych-ward detention, so when I asserted an attack in me in custody and the plane crash and inauguration were talking place many questions for decades about Biden and Obama and even the Bush family were still in my mind.

Again I cite this and now will use the Clark quote in a sequence of events.

Carl Clark, former CIA/M15 operative, was involved in massively illegal operations such as performing organized stalking on victims and deploying electromagnetic weapons to anonymously inflict pain and terror.

He has stated, "the undoubted goal is to have select people end up in psychiatric institutions. If a target seeks help by going to the police or to the doctor, they don't get taken seriously."

In 2007 I was arrested for annoying phone calls to the NIH asserting the NIH was behind a Stalking misconduct towards me of dirty tricks, I asserted at the time much like a sleazy divorce lawyer who wants to impeach the other party of the dispute with smear campaign and I was asserting this to the NIH then, I was researching them and not vice versa.

On a misdemeanor arrest in federal law one year is the maximum sentence, and if a person is not competent for trail because they are delusional (I was not) they can not held for trial at some later date when they are competent beyond the maximum sentence. Trial was irrelevant at winter 2009 very early January. If I were not a danger to anyone even if incompetent I was due for release and one hearing found me competent and due for release. Instead and without explanation a second hearing was held with some other judge resulting in an order for my release a second time. Prison staff including noticeably all black staff were demanding I sign a mental health commitment to stay incarcerated and I would not. At that time the radiologically attack came and as I reported it upon being released from where it occurred was very quickly civilly committed to a private North Carolina mental ward, again as delusional, because the doctors thought I had eczema and that caused the red skin.

Fighting words leading to vigilantist attacks on my use of public and privately rented or leased facilities.

Although I have been released vigilantist attacks on me for things I have nothing to do with (an impersonator of me is despicable, and in my name, stirs up lynch mobs to retaliate against me) and I was not released into a safe public area, harassment is occurring denying access to public and private accommodation.

The case of Chaplinsky v. New Hampshire - reported here from Oyez https://www.oyez.org/cases/1940-1955/315us568

CITATION 315 US 568 (1942) ARGUED Feb 5, 1942 DECIDED Mar 9, 1942

Facts of the case On a public sidewalk in downtown

Rochester, Walter Chaplinsky was distributing literature that supported his beliefs as a Jehovah's Witness and attacked more conventional forms of religion. Chaplinsky called the town marshal "a God-damned racketeer" and "a damned Fascist." He was arrested and convicted under a state law that prohibited intentionally offensive, derisive, or annoying speech to any person who is lawfully in a street or public area. On appeal, Chaplinsky argued that the law violated the First Amendment on the grounds that it was overly vague.

Writing for a unanimous Court, Justice Frank Murphy upheld Chaplinsky's conviction. The Court identified certain categorical exceptions to First Amendment protections, including obscenities, certain profane and slanderous speech, and "fighting words." He found that Chaplinsky's insults were "fighting words" since they caused a direct harm to their target and could be construed to advocate an immediate breach of the peace. Thus, they lacked the social value of disseminating ideas to the public that lay behind the rights granted by the First Amendment. A state can use its police power, the Court reasoned, to curb their expression in the interests of maintaining order and morality.

Expressive acts ARE speech including how a people dresses themselves or acts while around me and that speech is meant to incite against me, leading to fights and unsafe conditions, or vigilantism from the community.

On Free Speech grounds the case has been eroded over time, but a core tenet in Free Speech is that speech that is part of a crime is not protected and the speech that I am exploiting loose fitting clothing of minors, etc., is part of money laundering and racketeering crime, and staged events bilking conservatorship of mine and inciting against me is criminal.

When I go to public places like "the lake" (lake Colorado) as it passes trough Austin as Lady Bird Johnson Lake Ro fitness stages out of my control but under theirs that I am there to exploit women under 18 in loos gym clothes, not jump rope on the public docks. When I go to Dizzy Rooster bands like Sonny Wolf suggestively assert I an a criminal and will have to pay up, basically HUMINT covert operatives using carefully designed abusive propaganda meant to be merely suggestive rather than stated and deceitful, abusive, and fighting words under the law, or at least the law as it was, and part of Money Laundering and Racketeering theory (a false theory) I am a predator. Those staging the events smearing my presence like Halcyon or Oil Can Harry's follow me around and both help set the events up as staged then blame me for them.

The Known Pieces of Donegan history told by Jen Moore fits the missing piece places in the JFK Marilyn Monroe MLK and Dr King and RFK and Sunny Bono assassinations and Prescott George Bush Nixon culpability to JFK piece and MKULTRA Birther birth certificate and SSN discrepancies with Obama Jr. and fits Deep Sate theory of CFR, Trilateral, Standard Oil, Burns, Mueeler, Wray, Pence, and a many others.

The have been non-responsive to my direct assertions and derogatory insinuations, insinuations clearly intended, are lacking in truth.

A Pattern of Hard Definitive and Otherwise Inexplicable Facts surround Ed and Glorian Donegan only Unexplained Assassinations Cold War History are a complete fitting Jigsaw Puzzle to

I stated earlier there was radiological attack on me. In that same misdeenor detention my mother was near death and the would not let me talk to her, I think afraid later as she aproached surguery what might have been said. Very tight lockdown situations. In San Francisco prior to my arrest on that misdemanor I of harraing gov officals over genome info I had people pointing guns at me.

As Carl Clark said Stalkers create the appearance of paranoia or abnormality in the Stalked person leading to negative consequences ranging from street fights, law suits, loss of jobs, being sued or evicted on some sham but they think they can get you on, etc.,

Not only have Stalker succeeded in thousands of these across my lifespan, they did to a friend. My life was heavy with major issues, she looked good to me, but even if things went as well as our dating, that still was a threat to me. It was sort of traveling light. She was stalked and she told me but I didn't believe her and she got stuck in a nutward. Tom Dunham and I have reported teens looking like our victims near us and those wer report it too attack us physcially or say "Yes those teens sure to look sexy these days" or ask me why I would bring it up and am I a single male. Just as this is designed to work, trying to reports Stalkers especially if it makes you look paranoid.

Any time I write my biography I am nearly blinded by attackers backed by the police, my computer is kicked into the streets, noises get loud, people give me death threats, break-ins, etc., just as Jen Moore had done to her as she tried to tell my story and this was done to my mother to through her windows to the outside and I saw it. Her hats, family bible, photos all dissapeared as mine did, almost every singe one. Even days before her death it looks like Tom and Mark or one of the two pikced up her address books she had with her as she was getting into the car only us there.

About The Authors Ed Donegan and Jen Moore and The Truth and Truth Telling

There is the Truth taken as Substance and Truth Telling as a matter of process.

The Mafia has long operated in the USA. Like crime reporter Dorothy Kilgallen before her, Jen Moore was talking about the Mafia, Money Laundering, and Psychological Warfare, on program called Pizza-gate in the USA. The Money Laundering schemes run by Aztec Mafia also called Mexican Mafia run internationally in cartels that are staging operations in the USA making it appear Ed Donegan has incurred liabilities because he wanted teen females for pornographic interests, perhaps because he wishes to incur the wrath of a Domina, a Domina who would rather date a Deputy Sheriff instead of the guy who ordered a Pizza.

The allegation I am using office or gym environments for illict purposes is the pretext used in Conspiracy to undermine my use of office or gym environments. Recently I was using the Austin Rec Center exactly as intended, shower and hygeine, gym usage, including watching movies on the treadmill have good mental health as I worked on physical health, charged my electronic devices like phone and notebook computer I was using for writing my books in that facility and elsewhere like Cava that does not have good wifi of its own, nearby sites must be used but with weak signals my cell phone as a hotspot is better as.

A Depreadation sceme was run making the public space a racially and sexually hostile environment so much so it was unusable at least as far as not complaining about, I had to complain the conditions were egregious.

DESTRUCTION OF GOVERNMENT PROPERTY - 18 U.S. CODE § 1361 It is a federal crime to destroy or damage any property owned by or under the federal government's control. This law is embodied in Title 18 U.S.C. 1361. Depending on the dollar value of the damaged property, if you're convicted of this federal crime, you could face up to 10 years in prison.

IT was roadblocked by hostile parties trying to occupy all the seating or bench space needed DDOSing the facility and a personal attacks system of sexual and racial abuse scheme toxified the space as Jen Moore talks about Stalkers do trying to inflict emotional injury as a Rough Noise scheme.

I will use an imaginary example. I was not in military but say I was an I was correctly awarded a Purple Heart for in injury I received in the line of duty rescuing fellow soldier trapped in a Afghan bunker that was under hostile fire. An attack scheme abusive to me to Conflict Engage me is one desk person would say to the other as though not talking to me but next to me "There was that guy who had a phony Purple Heart he got in Afghanistan was such a fraud faking his gettign a medal."

For the purpose of intensely abusive environment sexual and racial smear comments designed to be offensive even traumaitic to the annoyed person continues until the annoyed person seems to be actign in a way that is paranoid or trouble-making and is asked to leave, retaliated against, for trouble-making.

Other police backed attacks in me include unprovoked physical attack on me as I was setting up my tent when I bought my computer, break-in to and gaslighting my home office will illegal operations, staged faked facts getting me evicted from safe housing, jobs, and office equipment locations all those as Ted Gunderson says are attempts to silice the anti-mafi whistle-blowers like himself, Jen Moore, and me.

The use of Mafia in the USA and criminal networks was supposed to be the US President and FBI attacking Communist Cuba. Instead leaders in the USA are attacking Roman Catholics and US Patriots with these mafia groups. I and Jen Moore assert we have the proof in identity theft, criminal impersonation,j and other crimes, and the affect of Ed Donegan being defamed undermines his role in providing reliable evidence in the Kennedy Assassination tied to his family history. Every attempt at office equipment use is undermined by a State controlled Mafia setting a smear of my attempting to use and office environment.

Jen Moore had (and it is still on her YouTube Channel) "Conspiracy Theorist versus Truth Teller." She is correct and most now know in the USA the Truth will get you killed. (D.C. Dave referring to the death of Paul Wilcher, James Casalaro, many others.)

The first point is the US Government is beholding to an alien form of most of whom are dangerous criminals alien to our way of life, with big money controlling a friendly press that does not any longer seek to expose the US as a corrupt world power, and they now at all levels can kill at will with the Police State itself openly Mafia for subversion plans and schemes of violence for and against political groups in society often in orgies, drug deals, and sexual favors. Ted Gunderson in a four hour talk discussed how the party network of the NWO worked and that fits Charles Voyde Harrelson business card as an assassin that advertised assassination, orgies, and the like. Those in the lifestyle brag about it and show off large amounts of Cocaine, law enforcement badges, and hit lists they brag of carrying out.

In About the Author I talk about my and my mother in weird events. That is about the Truth and the truth of her Hidden Identity, OSS and CIA and Dulles background.

Telling the truth is more of an extreme risk than knowing it. Violence is intense and knows the whole story of corruption and is protecting that corruption network.

In at least 50 major stand off events of guns, intense fear of my life hiding under the bed in my own home from prowling, aimed guns, thugs, things thrown at or bombarding the house with, I have tried to write my autobiography and like Jen Moore think I will die before it is done. She talked all the time of leaving copies of files everywhere just in case, and getting interviews out and online of the MKULTRA story.

It is a little embarrassing to admit but in Corpus Christi Texas I was renting iZombie tv series season 1, The Kings Speech, and I think one other movie, maybe Twilight series, I was thinking about good times I had with my mother watching that film in the Shirlington Arlington County movie house we saw so many good movies at.

Only after the theft did I start to think back to the speech defect issue as part of my book and book research. I sort of take the whole fabric of it all and just had been thinking I I have found memories about that story-line that is familiar to things I have done years ago is part of my story of my parents in WWII and what they were experiencing.

Those who attack that I am writing, where I write, what I am writing about, are the same police that launched Ron Pataki against Doroty Killgallen. I have never understood the police nor news services, but our country has a reasoning police state openly Stazi. Police and prosecutors love high profile cases that is how they get to Congress or Mayor or Governor. The use of violent police thugs as FBI CIA NSA local and county Mafia is real now. For whatever these psychos exist they are on mission to silence the journalist, not protect journalism. It has been the discovery of corruption working behind the scenes in harassing secretly works best, even up to using gunmen recruited from the snitch populations or street thugs and at least 5 times I have heard sheriffs, Social Services, deputies, or police and FBI in recruiting a contract killer aimed at me and who would be a non witness even though there to cover the tracks of the hit.

Among the things I assert is at least four forms or times of radiological attack and the murder of Jen Moore, specific threats to me about what not to talk about, and careful attacks to insure I never have an office environment.

I watched Joan Mellon and Richard Belzer and then other symposiums on the FBI, CIA, etc., and this is not the USA. I know that at then end of my life because of the previous 50 years of insane attack on me that is worst than anything that ever occurred in USSR, today's Russia, or many other countries.

I don't believe in the USA. I can't control that I was born in it, that I will unless I can get out I will die in it, nor can I control that the USA was never defeated and cleared of its evil.

As with Jen Moore whether this is believed or not is read or not is an external matter. That was have spoken the truth about the true evil the USA is us on the record, for someday, I hope.

John F. Kenneyd's brains went into the air Gallager Watermelon style. RFK was killed. Today's CIA and FBI will kill anyone who has a lead into who the killers were.

If the USA ever exist before 1961 to 1963 it does not now. Further the level of evil is so far off the scale little can be said about it, but merely viewable as the dark truth that may never escape the closet the evil is so pervasive.

I have mentioned dirty hidden tricks that try to create a diversionary fight. One is a radiation burn of a report the police or some group started a fight. When the stalkers deny an assault, the accuser now faces retaliation of being called paranoid.

Much sexual, religious, and other abuse such as veiled death threats are done secretly made very personal so the stalk victim knows it refers them yet is abusive and hidden. The rest of observers may believe the harasser, the harasser claiming their acts had no hidden meaning.

Getting a fight with a stalk victim while the stalk victim is in activities the NWO find threatening is what Jen Moore spoke of, teams of repeated Sexual Assault such that it is traumatic and not ignorable, it is crippling stopping book writing, silencing the journalist. This is how the CIA and FBI covertly silence Kennedy Assasination witness including other forms of secret poisonings.

Ted Gunderson reported on this as have now hundreds if not thousands of others.

Assassinations Theory: An Opera written by the Special Operators

In this chapter I will use a set stage of charters now known to history or unknown to history that stage set earlier but repeated here and then the Opera of C.I.A. and D.I.A and F.B.I operations that brought about the famous deaths of US celebrities.

The unfolding opera of the operation on the set stage will be written by (excerpted from) the writing of Prouty, Gunderson, Madsen, Phillip Marshall, Gene "Chip" Tatum, Jen Moore, James DiEugnio, Lisa Peace, Gregg Poulgrain, David Talbot, Anton Chaitkin, Webster Tarpley, and many others.

Some of those others are St John Hunt son of E. Howard Hunt, and myself Edward Paul Donegan son of James and Glorian Donegan.

The story unfolding in this Opera will make sense and make sense everywhere when nothing else does.

Setting the State: Assassinations Theory Bringing It Home to Donegan family History

Using the String, the Focal Pointsm and the research and family history I have.

1926: AT1 is the focal point of Glorian Donegan Raised as Glorian Gainey born 1926 in North Carolina to Festus Gainey, that really was a US birth of Maria Kutschera children. Maria Kutchera will move to North Carolina later with her Captain Von Trapp family 1936 but first her out of wedlock Windsor bastard child Glorian Gainey. Festus Gainey dies in 1936 and at 9 years old she and her brother Harold are relocated to South Carolina where Harold will work for DuPont Camden Plant.

Dean Rusk is at Davidson College underground railroad church connected college same area. Norma Jean and Glorian Gainey were brought up under Joseph Kennedy SR hidden identities done for FDR, Admiral Hasley, the Windsors, their out of wedlock baby perhaps in Wings song.

1958: AT2 is James Paul Donegan my father and Glorian Gainyes husband. In 1952 USAF US Army Air Force pilot James Paul Donegn meets and marries Glorian. At the same time Johm F. Kennedy, ,the Kennedy's and Donegan from St Aaidan Church Irish Roman Catholic immigrants with a chip on the shoulder towards the British.

In WWII he was a P-51 pilot, RECON, in the atomic bombings and above ground atomic testing. Later in 1952 Korean War he is at Atsugi Air Base Japan (Olswald late there) flying RECON for Bissle Jr, others, and Lovet is Secretary of Defense.

In 1958 Prouty (that same Prouty I knew as a child in Marshfield?) has a plan for Indonesia. Create a sleeper Barrack Obaam Jr. (Wayne Madsen, Prouty, and others. Glorian Donegan, Marilyn Monroe, others carry the speech and grammar gene FOXP2. The plan is to use Glorian and Malcom X to create Barrack Obama Jr, and Marilyn Monroe and Malcom X might be the celebrities to start Barrack Obama Jr on his celebrity life, but something goes wrong Aug 4th 1962 under fake identity 1 year brithday. Real birthday is half twin fo Ed Donegan November 18 1961 to Glorian Donegan born Los Angels County JFK is there, Dave Powers, Peter Lawford, others.

Part of the ongoing desire of Joseph Kennedy Sr. to help study secretive out of wedlock lines with faked identities is to by helping the Windsors help his own family, the gene ran in Rosemary Kennedy given a lobotomy in November 1941 because of experimental procedures in Borderline Personalty Disorder and volatile behavior had not been medical understood from the orgnic function of the brain, and MEth may by Dr Jacobson part of treating it.

Indonesian Rebellion: AT3 Barrack Obama Jr is used in the USA, not Kenya or Indonesia. Has unwanted half twin Ed Donegan.JFK in Battleround Indonesia was fighting Bissle Jr, Dulles, etc., and JFK fired CIA and USAF tied to plan but plan continued after JFK dead.

Indonesia 1958: Nixon, the CIA, and the Secret War By L. Fletcher Prouty https://ratical.org/ratville/JFK/Indo58.html

Frank Wisner, the CIA Deputy Director of Plans, had set up his forward headquarters in Singapore and at the direction of the 5412 Committee of the National Security Council, headed by VIce Presidnet Nixon working under Eisenhower. Wisner occupied that faraway headquarters himself. (It should be noted that in 1958 Allen Dulles was the head of the CIA, his brother John Foster Dulles was the Secretary of State, Eisenhower was President, and Nixon, as Vice President, and Nixon chaired the clandestine affairs committee, then known as the "Special Group 5412/2." In other words nothing was done in Indonesia that was not directed by Nixon. If an action had not been directed by the NSC, then it was done unlawfully by the CIA.)

In 1958 Allen Dulles would have brought such a major operation to the attention of the Special Group and he would operate with its approval. This was an essential step in national policy because it then empowered the Department of Defense to provide the necessary support requested by the CIA. Much of this fell within the area of my responsibility at Air Force Headquarters, and I was kept informed on a regular basis of approved action and of Nixon's keen interest in this project.

The Bush Crime FamilyThe Inside Story of an American Dynasty By Roger Stone, Saint John Hunt · 2017

The Bush Crime Family smashes through the layers of lies and secrecy that have surrounded and protected our country's most successful political dynasty for nearly two centuries. New York Times bestselling author Roger Stone lashes out with a blistering indictment, exposing the true history and monumental hypocrisy of the Bushes. In Stone's usual "go for the jugular" style, this is a no-holds-barred history of the Bush family, comprised of smug, entitled autocrats who both use and hide behind their famous name. They got a long-overdue taste of defeat and public humiliation when Jeb's 2016 presidential bid went down in flames.

Information Source: Dean Rusk
Source of Authority as a Subject Matter Expert

David Dean Rusk (February 9, 1909 – December 20, 1994) was the United States secretary of state from 1961 to 1969 under presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, the second-longest serving Secretary of State after Cordell Hull from the Franklin Roosevelt administration. He had been a high government official in the 1940s and early 1950s, as well as the head of a leading foundation. He is cited as one of the two officers responsible for dividing the two Koreas at the 38th parallel. He freuqntly met with JFK on policy matters as Secratary of State including on Kennedy's yacht the Honey Fitz named after Honey Fitzpatrick JFKs mother.

In 1941, the U.S. made a series of decisions to support China in its war with Japan: Lend Lease supplies were provided after President Franklin D. Roosevelt announced the defense of China to be vital to the defense of the United States. Over the summer, as Japan moved south into French Indo-China, the U.S., Britain and the Netherlands instituted an oil embargo on Japan, cutting off 90% of its supplies. The embargo threatened the operations of the Kwantung Army, which had over a million soldiers deployed in China. Japan responded with a tightly co-ordinated offensive on 7/8 December, simultaneously attacking Pearl Harbor, the Philippines, Malaya, Singapore, Hong Kong, Guam, Wake Island, and Thailand. Rusk served in this area during WWII.

After Kennedy won the 1960 presidential election, he asked Rusk to serve as secretary of state. Rusk was a quiet advisor to Kennedy, rarely making his own views known to other officials. He supported diplomatic efforts during the Cuban Missile Crisis, and, though he initially expressed doubts about the escalation of the U.S. role in the Vietnam War, he became known as one of its strongest supporters. Asked to stay on by President Lyndon Johnson after Kennedy's assassination in 1963, Rusk was known to be a favorite of Johnson's. He left the Secretary role in January 1969, and taught international relations at the University of Georgia School of Law.Childhood and education David Dean Rusk was born in rural Cherokee County, Georgia. The Rusk ancestors had emigrated from Northern Ireland around 1795. His father Robert Hugh Rusk (1868–1944) had attended Davidson College and Louisville Theological Seminary. He left the ministry to become a cotton farmer and school teacher. Rusk's mother Elizabeth Frances Clotfelter was of German and Irish extraction. She had graduated from public school, and was a school teacher. When Rusk was four years old, the family moved to Atlanta, where his father worked for the U.S. Post Office. Rusk came to embrace the stern Calvinist work ethic and morality.

Military in Southeast Asia. Dean Rusk himself went to Davidson College in North Carolina in 1926 the time Glorian Gainey my mother was born I think an underground railroad birth having brought pregnant Maria Kutschera to the USA.

During the 1930s Rusk served in the Army reserves. He was called to active duty in December 1940 as a captain. He served as a staff officer in the China Burma India Theater. During the war, Rusk had authorized an air drop of arms to the Viet Minh guerrillas in Vietnam commanded by his future enemy Ho Chi Minh.[9] At war's end he was a colonel, decorated with the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster.

State Department 1945–1953 Rusk returned to America to work briefly for the War Department in Washington. He joined the Department of State in February 1945, and worked for the office of United Nations Affairs. In the same year, he suggested splitting Korea into spheres of U.S. and of Soviet influence at the 38th parallel north.[12] After Alger Hiss left State in January 1947, Rusk succeeded him (as director of the Office of Special Political Affairs), according to Max Lowenthal.

Rusk was a supporter of the Marshall Plan and of the United Nations.[14] In 1948, he supported the Secretary of State George Marshall in advising Truman against recognizing Israel, fearing it would damage relations with oil-rich Arab states like Saudi Arabia, but was overruled by Truman's legal counsel, Clark Clifford, who persuaded the president to recognize Israel.[14] When Marshall was asked to explain why he did not resign over the recognition of Israel, he replied that the secretary of state did not resign over decisions made by the president who had the ultimate control of foreign policy.[14] Rusk, who admired Marshall, supported his decision and always quoted the remark made by Truman: "The president makes the foreign policy".[14] In 1949, he was made deputy Undersecretary of State under Dean Acheson, who had replaced Marshall as secretary of state.

Assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs In 1950, Rusk was made assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, at his own request, arguing that he knew Asia the best.[14] He played an influential part in the US decision to become involved in the Korean War, and in Japan's postwar compensation for victorious countries, as shown in the Rusk documents. Rusk was a cautious diplomat and always sought international support. Rusk favored support for Asian nationalist movements, arguing that European imperialism was doomed in Asia, but the Atlanticist Acheson favored closer relations with the European powers, which precluded American support for Asian nationalism.[14] Rusk dutifully declared it was his duty to support Acheson.

French Indochina When question arose as to whether the United States should support France in maintaining control over Indochina against the Communist Viet Minh guerrillas, Rusk argued for support of the French government, stating that the Viet Minh were just the instruments of Soviet expansionism in Asia and to refuse to support the French would amount to appeasement. Under strong American pressure, the French granted nominal independence to the State of Vietnam in February 1950 under the Emperor Bao Dai, which the United States recognized within days.[15] However, it was widely known that the State of Vietnam was still in effect a French colony as French officials controlled all of the important ministries and the Emperor bitterly remarked to the press: "What they call a Bao Dai solution turns out to be just a French solution."[16] In June 1950, Rusk testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee: "This is a civil war that has been in effect captured by the [Soviet] Politburo and, besides, has been turned into a tool of the Politburo. So it isn't a civil war in the usual sense. It is part of the international war ... We have to look at in terms of which side we are on in this particular kind of struggle ... Because Ho Chi Minh is tied with the Politburo, our policy is to support Bao Dai and the French in Indochina until we have time to help them establish a going concern."

Korean War In April 1951, Truman sacked General Douglas MacArthur as the commander of the American forces in Korea over the question about whether to carry the war into China. At the time, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Omar Bradley, called war with China "the wrong war, at the wrong place, at the wrong time, and with the wrong enemy".[18] In May 1951, Rusk gave a speech at a dinner sponsored by the China Institute in Washington, which he had not submitted to the State Department in advance, where he implied the United States should unify Korea under Syngman Rhee and should overthrow Mao Zedong in China.[18] Rusk's speech attracted more attention than he expected, as the columnist Walter Lippmann ran a column reading "Bradley vs. Rusk", accusing Rusk of advocating a policy of unconditional surrender in the Korean war.[18] For embarrassing Acheson, Rusk was forced to resign and went into the private sector as the director of the Rockefeller Foundation.

Rockefeller Foundation: Rusk and his family moved to Scarsdale, New York, while he served as a Rockefeller Foundation trustee from 1950 to 1961.[19] In 1952 he succeeded Chester L. Barnard as president of the foundation.

Information Source: Maria Augusta von Trapp
Wikipedia writes Maria was born on 26 January 1905 to Augusta Kutschera (née Rainer) and Karl Kutschera.[8] She was delivered on a train heading from her parents' village in Tyrol to a hospital in Vienna, Austria.

Her mother died of pneumonia when she was two. Her father, grief-stricken, left Maria with his cousin (her foster mother) who had cared for Maria's half-brother after his mother died. Maria's father then traveled the world, although Maria would visit him upon occasion at his apartment in Vienna. When she was nine, her father died. Her foster mother's son-in-law, Uncle Franz, then became her guardian.

Uncle Franz did not treat Maria well and punished her for things she did not do. (He later was found to be mentally ill.) This changed Maria from the shy child she was, and, as a teenager, she became the "class cut-up", figuring she may as well have fun if she was going to get in trouble either way. Despite this change, Maria continued to get good grades.

Edward Paul Donegan writes she had Borderline Personality Disorder just as Rosemary Kennedy did. Franz Kutchera the unlce was propaganda minister among other jobs for the rising Nazi party of Austria and when Maria Kutschera left the convent in 1925 pregnant by a Windsor family member (we don't know which one) she gave birth in North Carolina arranged by Admiral Halsey and FDR with Joseph Kennedy Sr as requested by Prince Albert of York, US Navy under undersecretary FDR assisting in the plans. Following 1926 while a maid in the house of Captain Von Trapp her uncle will pressure Captain Von Trapp towards the Nazi party and use his own children on stage for Nazi songs. Maria, Captain Von Trapp, and his children will leave for North Carolina via London in 1936 the same location her earlier children were at, as those hidden identity children (Glorian Gainey at least) are moved to South Carolina. Later Maria will write of the Nazis (Franz Kutchera, Himmler) in that Von Trapp Eagles nest area of Austria.

The Von Trapp family and naval warfare are connected through Barron Von Trapp's first wife Agatha Whitehead, Whitehead torpedo.

Die Trapp-Familie (full movie with English subtitles) https://youtu.be/N1ivtrTM7QI 43,701 views Dec 12, 2020 The Trapp Family (German: Die Trapp-Familie) is a 1956 West German comedy drama film about the real-life Austrian musical family of that name directed by Wolfgang Liebeneiner and starring Ruth Leuwerik, Hans Holt, and Maria Holst. Based on Maria von Trapp's 1949 memoir, The Story of the Trapp Family Singers, the film is about a novice nun sent to care for the unruly children of a wealthy baron, who falls in love with and marries the young woman. Through her caring influence, the family becomes a famous singing group. When the baron is pressured to join Hitler's army, the family escapes to the United States where they establish themselves as singers. The Trapp Family became one of the most successful German films of the 1950s, and was the inspiration for the even more fictionalized 1959 Broadway musical The Sound of Music and its highly successful 1965 film version. The film had one sequel, The Trapp Family in America (1958). N.B.

Money Laundering of real or couterfit currerfeited or illegal currency (black money) is financial in nature but closely related to smuggling and can be viewed as a subtype of smuggling. Human trafficking by concealing one activity under a normal activity smuggles value in a way that appears clean. The CIA smuggles cocaine, guns, drugs, and now human trafficking illegally in black operations. Much liek the Dark Alliance that George Web or others like Danny Cassalaro have tried to expose, the CIA and FBI, US Marshalls, and others run smuggling including bio-punk genome trafficking and adult services via corrupt courts, misrepresentation of individuals, and trickery and deceit. These long activities of CIA criminality continue in color of law crime. The CIA abd FBI and US Marshalls are a moderate threat to our enemies who might catch them in illegal acts. They are a serious threat to the USA where the we might permitt or assist their illegal acts. Jen Moore was a whistle-blower on illegal government activities.

An Opera Titled Secret Trespass

I set the stage with the Industrial age making steel ships that will begin to carry large guns rather than more limited cannons, steel ships that carry tons of cargo and respell tons of water from entering the ship and as warships can carry and fire large guns that shoot large shells long distances.

Mer Majesty's Navy has never been more powerful and the USA and Joseph Kennedy Sr will be a part of that history as will the

A non fictional look High Drama on the "Devil's Chessboard" [term from David Talbot].

The Battle of Hampton Roads, also referred to as the Battle of the Monitor and Merrimack (rebuilt and renamed as the CSS Virginia) or the Battle of Ironclads, was a naval battle during the American Civil War.

The battle was fought over two days, March 8 and 9, 1862, in Hampton Roads, a roadstead in Virginia where the Elizabeth and Nansemond rivers meet the James River just before it enters Chesapeake Bay adjacent to the city of Norfolk. The battle was a part of the effort of the Confederacy to break the Union blockade, which had cut off Virginia's largest cities and major industrial centers, Norfolk and Richmond, from international trade.

This battle was significant in that it was the first combat between ironclad warships, the USS Monitor and CSS Virginia.

The age of submarine warfare began during the American Civil War. The 1860s was a time of many turning points in terms of how naval warfare was fought. Many new types of warships were being developed for use in the United States and Confederate States Navies. Submarine watercraft were among the newly created vessels. The first sinking of an enemy ship by a submarine occurred on 17 February 1864, when the Confederate submarine H. L. Hunley, a privateer, sank the sloop USS Housatonic in Charleston Harbor, South Carolina. Shortly afterward, however, H. L. Hunley sank, with the loss of her entire crew of eight.

World War I British WWI propaganda poster File:The Freedom of the Seas. From the Hun Point of View.jpg. Depicted German U Boat surfaced leaving Lusitania with no weapons sinking full of civilians

Submarine warfare in World War I was primarily a fight between German and Austro-Hungarian U-boats and supply convoys bound for the United Kingdom, France, and Russia. British and Allied submarines conducted widespread operations in the Baltic, North, Mediterranean and Black Seas along with the Atlantic Ocean. Only a few actions occurred outside the wider European-Atlantic theatre. German submarine attacks on Allied merchant ships, especially the sinking of Lusitania, turned American public opinion against the Central Powers. The U.S. demanded it stop, and Germany did so. Admiral Henning von Holtzendorff (1853–1919), chief of the admiralty staff, argued successfully in January 1917 to resume the attacks and thus starve the British. The German high command realized the resumption of unrestricted submarine warfare meant war with the United States but calculated that American mobilization would be too slow to stop a German victory on the Western Front and played a large role in the United States entering the war in April 1917. - Wikipedia

Submariner Captain Von Trapp will meet his first wife at a school for Austrian Navy on use of the submarines and torpedoes held in Austria at the submarine plant. Agatha Whithead will remain with him in Salzburg Austria until her death. At at that time Maria Kutschera will be sent from the Convent (after being expelled from the Convent pregnant) to become his next wife and stepmother to his and Agatha;s children.

The Two Faces of George Bush by

CHAPTER II

ESTABLISHMENT LINKS OF GEORGE BUSH

The Bush Family comes from an old line Connecticut lineage with connections to Wall Street international bankers and oil interests.

Father of George Bush, Prescott Sheldon Bush, was born in Columbus, Ohio, May 15, 1895 son of manufacturer Samuel Prescott and Flora (Sheldon) Bush. Prescott Sheldon Bush attended St George's pre-school in Newport, Rhode Island and graduated from Yale University. At Yale, Prescott Bush was initiated into the secret powerful fraternity Skull & Bones, the Prescott Bush Club of 1917 being one of the most influential and successful clubs as the initiation groups are called, in history of Skull & Bones.

Prescott Bush started his business career with Simmons Hardware of St Louis, Missouri. From 1922-24 Bush worked with Stedman Products and from 1924-26 with United States Rubber Company.

In 1926 Bush joined the international banking firm of W.A. Harriman, later Brown Brothers Harriman, along with fellow Skull & Bones fraternity members Averell Harriman and E. Roland Harriman. Bush later became a partner in Brown Brothers Harriman, which position he kept until his death. Thus the "conservative" Bush was a fraternity and business partner of the "liberal" Harriman family. Their common bond was internationalism.

Stedman's Tropics Slavery and the politics of Place. Representing thte Colonial Carribean, 1770-1833. Publisher: Cambridge University Press Print publication year: 2014 https:// www.cambridge.org/core/books/abs/slavery-and-the-politics-of-place/stedmans-tropics/78E85474C2D9B9CDBDF353DA1FF7F22B

Among other companies, Prescott Bush served as a director of Columbia Broadcasting System Inc., the Prudential Company of America, Dresser Industries Inc., Hydrocarbon Research Inc., Union Banking Corporation (more later), Vanadium Corporation of America and the U.S. Guaranty Trust.

On election to the US. Senate from Connecticut in 1952 Prescott Bush resigned all these corporate positions. He was re—elected in 1962.

During World War One, Bush served as a Captain in the 322 Field Regiment of the U.S. Army Field Artillery. Oddly "322", his Regiment number, is also the chapter designation for Skull &Bones at Yale. Each Skull & Bones cell contains 15 members sworn to secrecy. Another fellow initiate with Prescott Bush was Henry Neil Mallon, President of Dresser Industries one of the key companies in building up the Soviet Union. Mallon was also an officer in the Field Artillery in 1917, a Captain in the 323rd Field Artillery.

Below is the membership list from Skull & Bones Catalog. This is the cell of 1917 including Prescott Bush and E. Roland llarriman.

Yet another initiate in the Bush cell was Frank Parsons Shepard, long time with Guaranty Trust and then Bankers Trust Company. Shepard was also chairman of the finance committee of Union Theological Seminary. Another prominent financial member of the 1917 cell was Knight Woolley whose career included 1919-20 with Guaranty Trust and a partner in Brown Brothers Harriman (and its predecessor) from 1927 onwards. E. Roland Hamm'an, brother of Averell Harnmian (a 1913 initiate into Skull & Bones) was a partner in Brown Brothers Harriman (and W.A. Harriman) since 1922.

This brief listing of Prescott Bush's fraternity brothers suggests how Skull & Bones members cluster together in establishment business. In this case W.A. Harriman & Co. then Brown Brothers Harriman, Dresser Industries, and to a lesser extent Union Banking Corporation and Guaranty Trust were centers of Skull & Bones activities.

The significance of these corporations is their role in the build up of both the Soviet Union and Nazi Germany. Dresser Industries is a prominent manufacturer of 011' drilling equipment, vitally needed to expand Soviet oil fields and Dresser has been in the forefront to make the USSR the Number One world oil producer and oil is its greatest single source of foreign exchange. (See Chapter IV) Guaranty Trust was an early financial link with the Soviet Union, as was W.A. Harriman and Company with its Georgian Manganese Concession in the 1920's. Perhaps most interesting is the role of Prescott Bush and his fellow Skull && Bones members in Union Banking Corporation and its Nazi affiliates.

Adolf Hitler received his backing from foreign and domestic sources including the Fritz Thyssen interests. When interrogated in 1945 under Project Dustbin, Thyssen recalled that in 1923 he was approached by General Ludendorf. Shortly after this Thyssen was introduced to Hitler and provided funds for Nazis, conduited by Ludendorf. Through Rudolf Hess, Thyssen arranged for a 250,000 mark credit for the Nazis via the Bank Voor Handel en Scheepvaart N.V. in Rotterdam, Holland. This bank was a subsidiary of Thyssens Bank (formerly von der Heyd's bank) in Germany and affiliated with the Harriman banking interests in New York. The Dutch bank controlled the Union Banking Corporation in New York and was indeed a joint Thyssen-Harriman operation with several of Prescott Bush's Skull & Bones initiates as directors.

In the 1930's Union Banking Corporation had the following directors: E. Roland Harriman Vice President of W.A. Harriman &Company and fellow Club member (1917) of Skull & Bones with Prescott Bush.

H.J. Kouwenhoven Nazi banker and ManagingDirector for the Bank Voor Handel.

I .G. Groeningen Nazi member of the steel cartel that also financed Hitler. C. Lievense President, Union Banking Corporation, New York.

E.S. Hames Partner of WA. Harriman and fellow initiate in the Prescott Bush 1917 cell of Skull & Bones.

Prescott Bush Director of Union Banking Corporation and member of Skull & Bones (same cell as E. Roland Harriman and ES. James).

Prescott Bush was a long time partner in Brown Brothers Harriman. W. Averell Harriman had a long time association with the Soviet Union. As early as 1922 Harriman, with Guaranty Trust, was financing Soviet deals.

winding up his Manganese Concession in 1929, Harriman received a windfall profit from the usually hard headed Soviets. State Department officials were uncertain how to classify this gift, but from State Department files it is clear that State was unable to investigate this gift which placed Harriman in debt to the Soviets.

The conclusion is that the Harrimans and Prescott Bush were intimately associated with financing both Nazis and Soviets . . . both extremes of the political spectrum. When we come to look at George Bush's political activities (Chapter VII), we find he has the same proclivity for extremist positions while all the while claiming moderation.

George Bush is therefore pure Eastern Establishment descended from that long ruling elitist crowd of politicians, businessmen and financiers who use the revolving door to maintain a highly disproportionate influence on foreign (especially) and domestic policy.

By every test, George Bush represents, originates from, reflects and has the limitations of America's long time elite.

The same elite has created enormous problems for the average American in the street and cost thousands of American lives. This self perpetuating self preoccupied elite is long outdated. The difference between Bush and many other members of the elite is that Bush has great trouble acting out a role as a common man, Bush is distinctly uncomfortable around average people . . . his body language tells you everything.

The chart on page 13 shows how Bush and his wife Barbara are linked to corporate establishment America. After leaving the Navy in 1946 Bush contracted what has been called a “corporate merger” type of marriage, popular in the 1940’s and 1950’s (and perhaps long before) when powerful groups intermarried for power more than any other reason. George Bush married Barbara Pierce, Smith College educated, daughter of the publisher Marvin Pierce of McCALLS.

It was Barbara Pierce’s brother Scott Pierce, as President of BF. Hutton, who was in the center of the HF. Hutton “check kiting scandals” that cost American investors billions of dollars over an extended period. In May 1985 Scott Pierce pled guilty to mail' fraud charges. According to syndicated columnist Jack Anderson, Scott Pierce through other E.F. Hutton associates asked Vice President George Bush to intervene in the case. Given the extraordinary light nature of the sentences — there were 2,000 counts of mail fraud and no one went to prrs'on — it sure seems as if someone with power intervened in the case. However a crucial document to show that the Vice President had lunch with his brother-in-law and discussed the case is not traceable.

Thus per Jen Moore and Ed Donegan Glorian Donegan is living in North Carolina as Glorian Gainey. Ed Donegan had the symptoms including dry throat preventing easy swallowing of solids.

This is part of The Kings Speech 1925 when the Victoria's husbands son Prince Albert of York attempted to make a public speech but it came out poorly . This will lead to FBI CIA burglars breaking into Ed Donegan's apartment as I (Edward Donegan) rented that movie to watch it again while I was writing my book.

Comes the Cold War - WIth Glorian from a "good" family line of public figures who held their own and reached high office, why not an egg from her for Barrack Obama Jr as a DNA contributor?

Joseph Kennedy Sr might be able to become the US Presidnt, or his children or even FDR to be president over Al Smith (JK Sr pulling strings with Hearst publications, others) but he can not publicly get a sleeper into a hostile country. He has secret Windsor family (fogetting the Kutschera side) in this country so Marilyn Monroe or Glorian Donegan might be a way to get a Windsor descendent sleeper under falise identity into Saudi Arabia, Kenya, Hawaii, Indonesia or who knows where?

The Four Manchurian Candidates or Three Really

James Paul Donegan marries Glorian Gainey who is the neice of Franz Kutschera Nazi Gestapo General tied to Heinrich

Himmler and the worst attrocities in history. Pressure is on him about this secret. Maria Kutschera is publishing memoirs at the end of WWII that she really didn't want the Nazis around and that is why she and Von Trapp left, likely all true but she did stay until 1936. During WWII Jim Donegan are pressured to, forced to, or illegally subjected to DNA siezure during atomic testing. How will the DNA be used? Rockefeller and other psychiatry want to watch Winsor offspring and I think trying and egg in conjunction with Malcom X DNA was a test that led to Barrack Obama Jr.

IF that is so it was likely in the same Glorian Donegan birth I Edward Paul Donegan was in, by surrogate or IVF into Glorian Donegan at MacMartin School CIA lab area. JFK is there at my birth at Shriver Lawford Patricia KEnnedy home a few miles away.

Who might be said to be the mother and father if Maclom X and Glorian Donegan are? Marilyn Monroe might be a sister of Glorian Donegan, with a publicly accepted by fake family backround, already vetted and accepted.

But she rejects it and wants to out the Dulles plans that Dean Rusk had for Indonesia and a devout Roman Catholic she like Dorothy Killgallen is offended by it. SO is JFK.

Both Marilyn Monroe and JFK are silenced. RKF knows less than JFK did. When RFK goes to Los Angeles is going to be President maybe he stays at Frankenhiemer's house and RFK is assasinated before going to Atomic Testing Ground Palm Springs at Don Nixon (Ricchard Nixon's brothers) request.

Malcom X knows the plan as does Dr Martin Luther King. They are silenced too. The Rockefleller Republicans and thier groomed CIA backed DNC globalist control the Whitehosue and CIA and silence leakers. Ron Pataki was a British spy who toured with Doroty Killgallen publicizign the Von Trapp sound fo Music story.

How does that make four Manchurian Candidates?

There is Stanley Armour Dunham Boeing bomber plant employee. He is a Nazi sympathizer and his daughter or even his name and a Rockefeller daughter in a fake identity are a third possible mother of CIA created Barrack Obama Jr. Earlier possibilities were Glorian Donegan and Marilyn Monroe.

James and Glorian Donegan were pressured into this by the WASPS and I think this story is suggestively told in the Howard Hughes Robert Mahue RKO film Jet Pilot ghost written probably by G Gordon Liddy of the FBI under Hoover.

Really Madelyn Lee Payne was the CIA, forced James and Glorian and Dunham into the entire plan of made up family identities.

The Lute And Lyrics

Dean Rusk was born to a preacher from Northern Ireland who lost his voice and thus lost his ministry Dean Rusk went to school in North Carolina then England, at Oxford College St Johns University.

He was as likely to clash with JFK over The Trouble of Ireland as anyone, or to keep secrets from JFK to avoid clashes, clashes about working for the Queen of England in subversion and colonialism.

Per Prouty V.P. Nixon formed that plan in 1958 and that is when Rusk began contacts to Indonesia, still at Rockefeller Foundation where a Rockefeller boy went missing in Indonesia, and per Wayne Madsen the plan was to groom Barrack Obaam Jr for Indonesia.

Rusk obtained an A.B. degree from Davidson College, North Carolina in 1931)startin in 1926), and a B.S. (Rhodes Scholar) and M.A. in 1933 and 1934 from St. John's, Oxford, England.

Dean Rusk served as U.S. secretary of state from 1961 to 1969. During that period of service under Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, he was a primary architect of U.S. intervention in the Vietnam War on the side of the South Vietnamese. - Google

In the background of Barrack Obama Jr not having identifiable real parents but Saudi money and influential friends in the USA might help Malcom X conceal that he is the father of Obama Jr yet the problem remains who will the white mother of the mixed race baby needing foster parents? And perhaps Marilyn Monroe as a foster mother? Was Obama born near her, in Los Angeles County Manhattan Beach hospital? Her planned as the foster mother at the request of JKF? Or RFK, or Prouty in a plan (Nixon's plan) for Indonesia with Kenya and Saudia Arabia and Hawaii fall-backs if Indonesia fell through?

Nixon ties, the Herter Committe and formation of the Marshall Plan

With the United States' entry into World War II on the horizon, Rusk joined the U.S. Army in 1940, serving first with the Third Infantry Division, then in the Military Intelligence Service. He served from 1943 to 1945 in the China-Burma-India theater, where he began a lifelong interest in Asian affairs. Achieving the rank of colonel at the end of the war, Rusk joined the general staff in the War Department in Washington, D.C. There he had the opportunity to work with General George Marshall, who would soon become secretary of state and author of the Marshall Plan to assist the war-wrecked nations of Europe.

The House Select Committee on Foreign Aid, or Herter Committee, was established to study the proposal that had been launched by General George Marshall in his speech at Harvard on June 5, 1947, for a Marshall Plan, in part as Cold War anticommunism, which led future US President Richard Nixon to focus on foreign policy throughout his public career. In 1947, it identified a "prevailing theme throughout–that democratic leadership was close to non-existent and Communist leadership at the forefront of political shaping."

Members Christian Herter (here on Time cover dated 17 August 1953) was a prominent Republican politician of the 1940s and 1950s Committee members came not only from the House Foreign Affairs Committee but also geographically and politically diverse members:

Charles A. Eaton (R-NJ), Chairman Christian A. Herter

Richard M. Nixon (R-CA) was especially influential, a direct report to the Rockefller family who funded him and got him the VP spot under Eisenhower (Checkers speech) Congressman Nixon traveled Europe for the committee with other members leading evaluation of plans and making contacts in Europe and recruiting mafia such as Jimmy Hoff and Jack Ruby in 1946.

Staff members included:

W. Y. Elliott, Staff Director Howard S. Piquet, Deputy Staff Director Philip H. Watts, Executive Officer Allen W. Dulles, Senior Staff Consultant John M. Hancock, Senior Staff Consultant Julius Klein, Senior Staff Consultant

Rusk was initially intent on carrying forward his military career, until Secretary Marshall asked him in 1947 to head the Office of Special Political Affairs ("also known as the U.N. desk," as Rusk says in his memoirs) in the Department of State. In that capacity he privately advocated Marshall's view opposing the establishment of an independent state of Israel; but when U.S. president Harry S. Truman decided in favor of an Israeli state, Rusk loyally backed the president, believing (as did Marshall) that once a president makes a decision, staff should either support it or resign.

In 1950 U.S. policy toward Asia became increasingly controversial and partisan in Washington, as Republican lawmakers pointed a finger at the Truman administration for mishandling policy in that region—first by “losing” China to the Communists in 1949 and then by failing to thwart an invasion of South Korea by North Korean Communists. Secretary of State Dean Acheson was grateful when Rusk volunteered to help him counter the Republican criticism. Acheson appointed him in 1950 as assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs. Remaining consistent in his anti-appeasement views, Rusk joined Acheson and others in urging President Truman to resist Communist aggression on the Korean peninsula.

In 1952 Rusk left government service to become president of the Rockefeller Foundation, where he focused on development programs for poor nations as well as the dangers of environmental pollution from the testing of nuclear bombs in the atmosphere. In 1960 he published an essay in Foreign Affairs exalting the role of the president in foreign policy. The piececaught the eye of Massachusetts senator John F. Kennedy. When elected president a few months later, Kennedy had Rusk on his mind because of this article; moreover, Rusk came strongly recommended as a candidate for secretary of state by Acheson, among others, who spoke of his unwavering loyalty and willingness to take the heat on Truman policies toward Asia.

Secretary of State

President Kennedy chose Rusk as secretary of state in 1961, although (as it turned out) he would rely more on his national security advisor, McGeorge Bundy,for day-to-day foreign policy guidance. After Kennedy’s assassination in 1963 Rusk continued on as secretary of state for President Lyndon Johnson. Both Johnson and Rusk came from simple, rural backgrounds, and Rusk enjoyed a much closer and more influential relationship with Johnson than he had with Johnson’s affluent Bostonian predecessor.

During the Kennedy administration the young president and his secretary of state found themselves tested very quickly, as the Central Intelligence Agency's (CIA) paramilitary operation against Cuba failed disastrously in April 1961. Rusk had personally disapproved of the operation, but ultimately supported it as a means to achieve the president's wish to rid the world of the Castro dictatorship on the island. As the operation met fierce resistance by the Cuban military, some in the administration argued on behalf of U.S. air support. Rusk firmly opposed overt intervention by the air force and so counseled the president, who followed his advice. The CIA's paramilitary operatives, mainly Cuban exiles, were decimated by Cuban defenders on the beaches at the Bay of Pigs.

Dean Rusk was born on February 9, 1909 in Cherokee County, Georgia. He attended Lee Street Elementary and Boys' High School in Atlanta, Georgia. Rusk obtained an A.B. degree from Davidson College, North Carolina in 1931, and a B.S. (Rhodes Scholar) and M.A. in 1933 and 1934 from St. John's, Oxford, England. He returned to the United States to become Associate Professor of Government and Dean of Faculty at Mills College, Oakland, California, from 1934 to 1940 and studied law at the University of California, Berkeley, class of 1940.

Rusk served in the United States Army from 1940 to 1946 in the China-Burma-India theater. At first he served with the Third Infantry Division, then later with the Military Intelligence Service. Rusk was released from duty with the rank of colonel.

After his military career ended, Rusk joined the Department of State from 1947 to 1952, as Assistant Secretary of State for United Nations Affairs and for Far Eastern Affairs. From 1952 to 1960 he was president of the Rockefeller Foundation. In 1961, President John F. Kennedy appointed Rusk to the office of Secretary of State. He remained in this position until 1969, through the administrations of Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Rusk was in office during the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion, when East Germany began constructing the Berlin Wall, and as the world teetered on the brink of nuclear war during the Cuban Missile Crisis. He was also Secretary of State during the height of the Vietnam Conflict.

In 1970, Rusk came to the University of Georgia's School of Law as the Samuel H. Sibley Professor of International Law, and he later established the Dean Rusk Center for International and Comparative Law. Rusk served the University of Georgia until his death on December 20, 1994.

Rusk married Virginia Foisle in June, 1937. They had three children together, David Patrick, Richard Geary and Margaret Elizabeth. In 1990, As I Saw It , the book he co-authored with his son, Richard, was published.

Scope and Content: The Rockefeller Foundation series consists of Rusk's office files while he was president. These files contain correspondence, reports, newspaper clippings, transcripts and press releases. There is correspondence between Rusk and then Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, former President Harry Truman, Henry Kissinger, Rockefeller Foundation Director of Special Studies, and Rockefeller family members Nelson, Laurance, David and John D. Most of the files deal with the foundation's work in the area of foreign relations, as well as Rusk's confirmation hearings when he became Secretary of State.

Is Obama the secret son of Malcolm X? retrieved from https://www.effedieffe.com/index.php?option=com_content&task=view&id=63718 and copied or modified to here

by Reuven Koret, Israel Insider Publisher

If Barack Hussein Obama II is Malcolm X's biological son, it would explain the mystery of why he was so generously helped by so many Arab and communist "friends in high places" long before he was a "somebody." Just as Malcolm X adopted Islam, his secret son would also need to learn its ways, and learn the ways of revolution, not just assume an Islamic name. He would need to be groomed and educated to organize the community called the United States of America.

In August I received a curious email. As a magazine that covers international politics, with a focus on Mideast affairs, Israel Insider gets more from its fair share of baseless tips and phony rumors. I ignore most and delete them unread. This one was a bit different. It came from a national security lawyer with extensive credentials and intelligence connections that checked out, and a phone number.

Israel Insider had been running a series of articles exploring the vagaries of Barack Obama's birth, and his concealed documentation, and this was the jumping off point of the email, which confirmed the claim that Obama was not born in Hawaii, that "Mossad are going with Mombasa" but "Proving Mombasa is not so easy, as NSIS in Nairobi are clamming up tight, as are MI6 in London, who have the original Mombasa file and full details of the birth."

He said that "Disproving Honolulu is child's play. You've already shown that the birth certificate put forward by Obama (whose people privately are not denying Mombasa, by the way) is a fake. Why fake it? If he was born in Honolulu he could obtain a genuine one. Hawaii Dept of Health would hardly denounce a potential presidential candidate's birth certificate as fraudulent without cross-checking birth records for August 1961. No birth was registered in the name of Obama in Honolulu in August 1961."

(This last detail may explain why Hawaiian officials last Friday confirmed that a birth certificate does indeed exist but conspicuously refused to release any details or even confirm that the details conform to those on the computer-generated Certification of Live Birth. The name on the "original" certificate may in fact not be Obama nor the birthplace Honolulu. But Obama's recent visit "to his grandmother" may well have had less to do with her health than eliciting this vague and inconclusive statement from the Hawaiian Health Department.)

The source continues:

> "There is no evidence Ann Dunham had even met Obama Senior in or around November 1960, the alleged time of conception, indeed it is not even clear Obama was in Honolulu at that time, although he may have been. Ann Dunham was only 17 and although she might have been in Honolulu the timing is tight." "More to the point, she was in neither of the medical centers put forward by the Obama campaign (question: why do they not know in which hospital he was born?) on August 4th, nor are there medical records to back up the claimed birth, nor has an attending physician been named. I've heard of births with the father absent, births with the mother absent a bit trickier."
> "There are said to be photos of Ann

Dunham on Waikiki Beach taken in or about July 1961, when she is supposed to have been in her third trimester, in a bikini, taken by a fellow female student. AD is clearly not pregnant. Media have not yet talked to fellow students, but it can't be long. There are bound to be other photos of AD in existence taken during the alleged 2nd and 3rd trimesters. Obama campaign are terrified some one will press for her medical records, which have been accessed by CIA."

"Moving to Indonesia the Obama campaign are also suppressing the Indonesian immigration and passport records, which I believe show him as a Kenyan citizen, and the naturalisation records. They have not denied Internet claims he was naturalised in Indonesia. If he was a US citizen there should be a visa record to back that up."

"Obama Senior was murdered in Kenya in 1982 to silence him. Interesting story re his sister Auma as well -- she appears to be a full sister, not a half-sister as he is claiming, i.e. they share the same mother. She was ordered back to Kenya in 2007 to prevent DNA testing .... CIA did a DNA test on the grandparents, using saliva from glasses, which conclusively rules out any

> "The source said that the Dunham family became involved because Stanley Dunham, Sr. was suspected of espionage. Boeing, he said, has "a 1944 security file on Stanley Dunham in connection with suspected sabotage of B-17G aircraft at their Wichita Kansas plant and the theft of B-29 blueprints, a full set of which were passed to the German Abwehr via Lisbon by June 1944. Ann Dunham appears to have been chosen as the surrogate mother in 1963 because of the family connection to German Intelligence. German assets in the US, including Rezko, who is connected to the Syrian Mukhabarat and the German DVD, sponsored his career.
> "Effectively," the source concludes, "Obama is a German[Or Salzburg Austria?] sleeper agent."

Well, this is a lot to take in, and on first reading it struck me that the source had been reading too many Le Carre novels [or Tom Clancy] or [British spy Ian Flemming working with the LAPD] Bond movies. I mean, really: "The Manchurian Candidate" meets "The Boy from Mombassa"?

It seemed completely preposterous, and indeed I initially dismissed it as preposterous. Obama a "German sleeper agent"? Of course, in those days the East Germans were a Soviet satellite, and the DDR was perhaps the most feared and ideological of the communist states, with more than a sprinkling of rehabilitated Nazis uncured of their genetic fantasies and experiments. 1961-1963 were the peak years of the Cold War, with Berlin playing a central role in East-West hostilities.

But what made no sense to me was why anyone in the spy business [Dulles, Prouty, V.P. Nixon, Donald Barr, George H.W. Bush, the Rockefellers and Standard Oil) or anyone in East Germany for that matter, would give a damn to find a [secret false family history "Legend"] foster parent for a newborn illegitimate offspring [Born Novemember 18 Birth Certificate Novemnber 19,1961 Manhattan Beach Caliornia 022-46-3233] of mixed black-white [Glorian Donegan] parentage. What made him so special that the Syrians and the German would go to all the trouble or see some potential in grooming him? What could possibly make intelligence agencies groom from infancy a Sleeper Agent [future Agent of Influence somewhere int the world as needed].

The source didn't answer this, nor could I, over the succeeding months of the campaign. We exchanged a few more emails, but the nagging question of "why" anyone would bother with this baby would not leave me. What did come out in the ensuing weeks, however, was a litany of unexplained facts in Obama's youthful history, of help from strangers in high places all along the way, benefactors who had either Arab-Muslim or Communist-Social connections. There was his Islamic education in Indonesia. There was the fact that in Hawaii the boy was tutored in the ways of revolution by leading black activists, Muslim activists, and Communist activists. Influential black nationalist and Communist Frank Marshall Davis would become a huge influence in the young Obama's life.

The Obama connection

In a televised interview in 2008 on New York's all news cable channel, NY1, 88-year-old Percy Sutton, a former borough president of Manhattan and a credible mayoral candidate in 1977, made some interesting revelations about his links to the young Obama.

Sutton told NY1 reporter Dominic Carter on the show "Inside City Hall": "I was introduced to (Obama) by a friend who was raising money for him." He asked Sutton to write a letter in support of Obama's application to Harvard Law School.

"The friend's name is Dr. Khalid al-Mansour,(formerly Donald Warden, mentor of Black Panther Party founder Huey Newton and his associate, Bobby Seale) from Texas," Sutton said. "He is the principal adviser to one of the world's richest men. He told me about Obama."

Sutton recalled that al-Mansour said that "there is a young man that has applied to Harvard. I know that you have a few friends up there because you used to go up there to speak. Would you please write a letter in support of him?" Sutton did.

According to Newsmax columnist Kenneth Timmerman, "At the time, Percy Sutton, a former lawyer for Malcolm X and a former business partner of al-Mansour, says he (al-Mansour) was raising money for Obama's graduate school education, al-Mansour was representing top members of the Saudi Royal family seeking to do business and exert influence in the United States."

a November 1979 column by TV commentator and respected Chicago Tribune columnist Vernon Jarrett with the title "Will Arabs Back Ties To Blacks With Cash?"

The late Vernon Jarrett was the father-in-law of Valerie Jarrett, who would go on to become what Miele calls "the consigliere of the Obama White House." Mr.

Jarrett was a colleague and one of the best friends of Frank Marshall Davis, the former Chicago journalist and lifelong communist who moved to Hawaii in the late 1940s and years later befriended Stanley and Madelyn Dunham and their daughter Stanley Ann, mother of Barack Obama.

Davis is known to have taken an active role in the rearing of young Obama from the age of 10 until he turned 18 and left Hawaii for his first year at Occidental College in Los Angeles in 1979. That was the same year al-Mansour was seeking Arab financial support for students such as Obama.

Vernon Jarrett's column details how al-Mansour told him about a proposal he made to OPEC Secretary-General Rene Ortiz regarding a program to spend "$20 million per year for 10 years to aid 10,000 minority students each year, including blacks, Arabs, Hispanics, Asians and native Americans."

These minority students would then migrate through the political system promoting Palestinian and radical Islamist causes. Al-Mansour told Jarrett that the program had been endorsed by Ortiz and other OPEC administrators.

https://www.keywiki.org/Khalid_al-Mansour …

But things really got strange with the revelation that Khalid al-Mansour, close adviser to a Saudi billionaire and royal family helped Obama get into Harvard Law School (and reportedly Columbia before that) and financed his education and advancement.

[In 1962, a group of graduate and law students at UC Berkeley started a reading group with the goal of educating themselves and their community about African and African American history. The founding members were Donald Warden (al-Mansour), Donald Hopkins, Otho Green, and Henry Ramsey.]

It was al-Mansour who asked Percy Sutton a high profile black lawyer active in the civil rights movement who worked as a lawyer for Malcom X that in the 1950s and 1960s, worked to help Obama get into Harvard. Sutton described Mansour as "the principal adviser to one of the world's richest men. He told me about Obama and asked him to "write a letter in support of Obama's application to Harvard Law School, Sutton recalled. ""And his introduction was there is a young man that has applied to Harvard. I know that you have a few friends up there because you used to go up there to speak. Would you please write a letter in support of him?" Sutton obliged:""I wrote a letter of support of him to my friends at Harvard, saying to them I thought there was a genius that was going to be available and I certainly hoped they would treat him kindly."

How in the world would Percy Sutton know that Obama, a young man he had never met, was a "genius"? It turns out that Sutton was among the lawyers for Malcolm X.

And why would a big wheel like al-Mansour take such an interest in a drug-taking party boy from a second-rate college? While helping Obama get into Harvard, he was representing top members of the Saudi Royal family.

Saudi billionaires Abdul Aziz and Khalid al-Ibrahim, and Prince Alwaleed bin Talal, nephew if King Abdallah of Saudi Arabia.

So there was, early on, a direct connection between Obama and Saudi royalty and an aggressive effort by a Saudi agent to make Obama's way in the world.

It was this connection to Saudi wealth that has led to Obama being dubbed the "Mansourian candidate".

Then there were the revelations about Weather Underground co-founder Bill Ayers and his wife Bernadette Dohrn -- unrepentant terrorists and communists both -- who helped launch Obama's political career from their home. Ayers, indeed, may well have ghost-written Obama's memoir Dreams from my Father, creating the impression that Obama was also skilled in writing as well as "community organizing."

More substantially, there was Antoin "Tony" Rezko, the Syrian born real estate wheeler-dealer and convicted racketeer, who helped Obama raise his first campaign funds and assisted him financially.

There were influential Palestinian scholars and propagandists Rashid Khalidi and Edward Said, colleagues and personal friends of Obama, despite his unconvincing efforts to distance himself from them and squelch his praise for their anti-Israel ideologies.

There was Reverend Jeremiah Wright, Obama's spiritual mentor, who conducted his marriage, baptized their children, and gave Obama's campaign manifesto "Audacity of Hope" its title before being distanced (at least for the duration of the campaign) when their close twenty year relationship came to light.

And, of course, there is neighbor Louis Farrakhan, current leader of the Nation of Islam, who recently spoke of Obama as the "Messiah" and -- as a report from Ken Timmerman, citing an insider, today confirms -- enjoys an "open channel" of communication with him.

Why did all of these important scholars and ideologues, fundraiser and networkers, these millionaires and billionaires – especially from the Arab and Islamic world, and extreme socialist and communist party activists -- reach out to help this unknown, undereducated young man, many before Obama was anybody of known importance? Was it just that he was tall and handsome and bright, with a silver tongue?

Or was there some other factor – a genetic factor, a secret legacy of heredity -- that mysteriously opened the doors and wallets and elicited the kindness of strangers?

Last week, a long and rambling post attributed to one Rudy Schultz was made to the Atlas Shrugs blog of Pamela Geller. The starting point for the post was revelation of school records that show that the supposed mother of Barack Obama enrolled in the University of Washington just a few weeks after her son was purportedly born in Hawaii. But the intention of the poster was apparently to imply that Obama's father was unlikely to have been Barack Hussein Obama, Senior (photo at left).

The post provides photos and a video of Malcolm X, with a notation that he and Obama had the same height (6'2-6'-3") and striking physical resemblances: identical hairline, jawline, and other distinctive facial features, similarities not shared by Barack Hussein Obama, Sr. or other members of the Luo tribe bloodline.

The post noted striking similarities in speaking cadence and style, not to mention a bright flashing smile and a wry sense of humor. The man born in Nebraska as Malcolm Little also was a light shade of brown, the product of a mother from Grenada who, he said, "looked like a white woman" and a black father.

The post also traced the path of Malcolm X in the late 1950's and early 1960's, a journey that took him to Africa and the young leadership circle to which Barack Hussein Obama Sr. also belonged, including the activist Tom Mboya who was behind the program which airlifted, with US funding, young African leaders to Hawaii to study at the university, a cohort to which Obama senior belonged.

But Schultz concludes his post by pulling his punches a bit: "While Malcolm X may not be Obama’s biological father, Malcolm X is demonstrably Barack Hussein Obama’s philosophical father, and the lineage is undeniable! Obama Jr. was sired in the social soup stirred by Malcolm X."

While Schultz backed away from claiming that Obama's biological father may in fact be Malcolm X, the hereditary claim cannot be discounted. If he was indeed the illegitimate offspring of Malcolm – the closest that one can get to "royalty" in the messianic broth of black radical Islamic and Communistic politics – that would explain the otherwise inexplicable:why this "illegitimate" baby, and later this young man – a druggie and underachiever -- would have had paved for him the royal road to privilege and power, paid for his Ivy League education, got him jobs and a home, raised millions of dollars for his political career, got him selected to address the DNC in 2004, got him into the senate in 2006, and led him straight to where he is today, just two years hence, on the verge of the US presidency, powered by hundreds of millions of untraceable overseas contributions.

In the minds of the leftist and Islamic leaders, he is the heir to the throne of "freedom fighters", the revolutionary prodigal son – heir to legacy of black powers and black Islam -- come home to rule.

Nothing short of a DNA test is going to prove who Obama Jr.'s father really is, or, indeed who is real mother is, or is not. His long-suppressed birth certificate, which he wrote about possessing in Dreams from my Father and which Hawaii now admits is on file, could help solve the mystery.

No one to my knowledge has explored the possibility that Stanley Ann may not be the birth-mother. That would explain the lack of hospital records in Honolulu and the fact that no one can remember seeing her pregnant. Suddenly she just appeared in Washington state with a little baby boy.

There is, too, a curious comment that Stanley Ann Dunham reportedly made after high school, remembered by a friend, that "I don't need to get married or date to have a baby." And the fact that in June 1960 her family – who were reportedly highly sympathetic with left-wing causes -- suddenly left Washington state for Hawaii, where they continued to be involved with socialist-communist causes and personalities, such as Frank Marshall Davis (identified by Obama only as "Frank" in Obama's Dreams from my Father), who proved so influential in his upbringing.

There is also new information, published in Atlas Shrugs and confirmed elsewhere, from the University of Hawaii that she was only enrolled only in the fall of 1960, and that from the Fall of 1961 (weeks after Barack Jr. was reportedly born) and through the following spring, she was enrolled at the University of Washington.

There is the fact that she abandoned this baby on repeated occasions, and the fact that Obama returned the favored when he refused to visit her as she sickened and died. If she was merely his foster mother, then she was just a means to an end, to be discarded when she had outlived her usefulness.

If Barack Hussein Obama II is Malcolm X's biological son, it would explain the mystery of why he was so generously helped by so many Arab and communist "friends in high places" long before he was a "somebody." Just as Malcolm X adopted Islam, his secret son would also need to learn its ways, and learn the ways of revolution, not just assume an Islamic name. He would need to be groomed and educated to organize the community called the United States of America.

Malcolm broke with Elijah Muhammad in large measure because the then-leader of the Nation of Islam had conducted illicit affairs and sired illegitimate children. If Malcolm himself had sired a boy, it is not something he would have wanted to advertise, or to bring along with him in his hectic and dangerous revolutionary path. But he may well have arranged to give the boy a first-class upbringing and education, free from the burden of his own violent legacy, his history as a convicted felon, his likely fate as a martyr, to realize the legacy he never could. He knew he was "a walking dead man," marked for death -- how could he perpetuate his principles beyond the grave?

Malcolm X was marginalized even from the black leadership after he said, following the assassination of John F. Kennedy, that the "chickens had come home to roost." That term would be resurrected by Rev. Jeremiah Wright, much to Obama's chagrin, in a sermon discussing the reasons for the Islamic attacks on the United States, reasons that Obama echoed in his own post-9/11 statements, in somewhat less inflammatory terms.

Malcolm himself was assassinated in 1965, reportedly by agents from the Nation of Islam.

If indeed Obama is not just Malcolm's spiritual son but his biological one as well, it would represent the realization of a lifelong preparation to seize power, not by guns but by genes, and the genius of Obama's handlers, mentors and assistants along the way who prepared his path to power.

According to this scenario, the sleeper agent is now wide awake, although it is also conceivable that Obama himself may not be fully aware of the role he was programmed to play. Nor is it clear who has supplanted his initial handlers -- which my source identified as East German and Syrian -- although the Saudis and their allies, including those within the US government and not just the Democratic side of the aisle, clearly seem implicated with pulling some of the strings and pouring some of the huge funding that has brought him to where he is today.

Those who have helped him reach to the threshold of power -- some knowingly and some "useful idiots" -- have been working in concert to fulfill the revolutionary goals of Malcolm's by putting his boy in power, using the system to destroy the system. Early voting. ACORN. Untraceable online funds. Brilliant. But that, of course, is just the means to the end.

Barack Obama wrote, in Dreams from My Father, of the huge impact this black revolutionary hero's memoir had on him, as none others did: “Only Malcolm X's autobiography seemed to offer something different. His repeated acts of self-creation spoke to me." Self-creation indeed.

If Malcolm X secretly sired Barack Obama, then the title Dreams from My Father would indeed take on a whole new meaning, with Obama Sr. revealed as a kind of paternal proxy, a stand-in for a revolutionary of a higher spiritual and political order whose identity the self-creating son could never reveal if his own ambitions, and his real father's ambitions for him, were to be realized.

In 1964, the year before his death, Malcolm gave an address, "Ballots or Bullets" (audio available here) in which he urged African Americans to turn away from violence and create revolutionary change through the US electoral system.

If the O is in fact an X, and wins the red, white and blue tic-tac-toe on Tuesday to become the President and Command in Chief of the United States then, truly, America's chickens will have come home to roost.

Red States may soon take on a whole new meaning.

In his conversations, he often seems to be able to see the next move of the DNA and from what he sees, he will comment as to what the new DNA is about to do and whether he believes that the DNA can do what it is about to do. I must say that to this time, I have not seen him wrong in his assessments regarding the DNA and what it is about to do; and when he is not sure whether the DNA can do what it is attempting to do, he will comment in this way as well.

I do not know what he will do in the future, but in his conversations to those, who around him, his comments have always reflected the truth of what is going on with the DNA! So, I relate to you this conversation, which I overheard between this unknown man and another, who was in my house yesterday as both of them were watching the DNA work! I find this conversation most interesting and most likely true, but then again only our Father in Heaven knows for sure!

Even so, I must tell you that I hear their conversations only when our Father in Heaven allows me to hear them and I see them come and go only when our Father in Heaven allows me to see them! So, I believe that our Father in Heaven allowed me to hear this conversation between these two unknown sources for His own reasons; and I do find this to be a very fascinating conversation.

So, as I have stated, yesterday this same man was again watching the DNA as it was working and also commenting on the new DNA when someone beside him questioned him as to where he had come from, commenting that he had not seen him at all in this kind of work. And in response to the comments of this second person, this man told him that he had come from the Mars base and that he was one of fifteen commanders, who made their way among the moon bases, the Mars base and the base on Saturn, which is really on one of the moons of Saturn according to what our Father in Heaven told me.

This man continued to tell the second person that the "pressure" in the underground base on Mars became very unstable, that the conditions on the Saturn base also became unstable, that they base actually "imploded", and that they were forced to leave these Mars! or was it Austria he left and then to London after that, King Edward VII 1902? .

He went on to say that at first they did not know what was bringing about these instabilities on the Mars base, but that at this time, they believe that Yahweh was behind these instabilities. He also said that the whole solar system is unstable at this time [the whole Royal line descended from King Edward VII who came to London and married Queen Victoria. The children of him included Prince Edward of Wales King Edward VIII and his younger brother Prince Albewrt of York, speech defect 1925 but succeeded Edward of Wales who had childnre with the Kutschear family going INTO WWII. Edward steps down, Albert (George) leads the charge into WWII as the new British Skey Marshll if think in terms of Starship Troopers.

He went on to state that because of these terrible instabilities within the solar system, vast numbers had to leave these bases and come into the Earth

Linda Newkirk will repeat this frequently in her blog speaking of that number of Windsors and Nazis having DNA that leaves them unstable while under pressure, and the the Bush family is conducting research on this hidden family lines, DNA and other research.

London's King Edward Gene of a certain 1902 research project, his child gave a speech in 1925

The KE family is a medical name designated for a British family, about half of whom exhibit a severe speech disorder called developmental verbal dyspraxia.

A Molecular Genetic Perspective on Speech and Language Simon E. Fisher, in Neuro-biology of Language, 2016

https://www.sciencedirect.com/topics/biochemistry-genetics-and-molecular-biology/ke-family 2.2 The Discovery of FOXP2 The starting point for the FOXP2 story was the identification of an unusual family in which multiple close relatives suffered from similar disruptions of speech and language skills. This family, dubbed the KE family, spanned three generations and included 15 affected members as well as a similar number of unaffected relatives. Because the disorder was present in each successive generation and affected approximately half of the family members, it attracted the attention of geneticists who recognized that the pattern was consistent with dominant monogenic inheritance

Linda Newkirk asserts was informed the Annukai have a special gene that emerged 3600 years ago. I Ed Donegan was arrested by the NIH researching Dr Lahan of the Max Plank INstitute for Biology showing certain genes beneficial to Temporal Lobe (anterior) emerged in Sumar 3600 years ago and Linda Newkirk assert this genetic story.

For microcephalin, the new variant class emerged about 37,000 years ago and now shows up in about 70 percent of present-day humans. For ASPM, the new variant class arose about 5,800 years ago and now shows up in approximately 30 percent of today's humans. http:// chronicle.uchicago.edu/050922/brainevolution.shtml

FROM THE MOUNTAIN PROPHECIES BOOK TWELVE Chapter Thirty-Six Who are the Annunaki? (Of Sumar cradle of Civilization?)

My Dear Ones, some of you may not know that the Annunaki come from the Planet Niburu, or it may be spelled Nibiru! This is the "rogue" planet, which passes through this solar system once every 3600 years.

PART II
Barack Obama is a Rothschild, and more!

"My Blessed Child, I am your Father Yahweh, yea Jehovah, Most High God. Listen to Me, My Little One, and write as I say, that all may be the wiser! My Blessed Child, what do you see?"

"My Father, I see a screened door, an old screened door, and the mesh screen, which was once metal, is full of rust and decay. And, all that remains of this screen are little patches of it in the corners. At the top of the door, all is rotted and gone, except for a little, which remains; and, at the bottom of the door, the screen is also rotted, but a piece still remains, which is somewhat in the middle. This piece resembles a flap, which is curled up! Father, I do not know what this means."

"My Little One, step back and look; and then tell Me what you see."

"My Father, I see that I am on a large circular porch and as I walk down some wide and steep, stone steps, I realize that I am leaving a very large building. As I walk out and past the steps, and down a long sidewalk, I look back to see the scope of this very huge building! But, also, my Father, it is a building, which is in great disarray! For, windows are broken out! Thieves have obviously entered therein and even some of the contents of this huge building can be seen on other parts of the porch: a worn sofa on one part of the porch, and a used mattress elsewhere. And, even as I look past all of this and in through some of the broken windows, I can see that many of the rooms are empty; and once-beautiful curtains have been ripped to shreds! This huge house is really in a mess!"

I look around now to see if there are signs of life, as to whether there is anyone left in this great palace; and I sense that there is someone present.

As I gaze upward, I see a huge cracked chimney; and two other chimneys, which are broken down, with only a few remaining bricks intact. Of these three, only the one chimney seems to be intact and functional. And, looking around on the roof, I see that many of the roof tiles are blown away, exposing here and there the bare wood.

“My Father, what is this? What happened to this huge house.”

“My Little One, do you know whose castle this is?”

“My Father, I have a feeling that this may be the same castle that I saw many years ago, the castle of the Rockefellers and Rothschilds and the Royals of England.

“You are correct in this, My Little One, and this is what you see by the remains of the three chimneys.”

“Oh, Father, not much remains of this house.”

“So, Father, what happened?”

“Thieves entered therein, My Little One, and greatly robbed from the Rockefellers and from the Queen of England! Therefore, the brotherhood and collusion among these three great families has been greatly eroded.”

“So, who is left and what is he doing?”

“The Rothschild man is left and as you can see, he is counting his vast wealth. He is looking at all that he has amassed.”

“Father, did he steal from the other two?”

“Yes, but not only did this one steal, others also stole from them.”

“But, why?”

“My Little One, many will wish to rule the world; and during this short time, many will try."

"So, what is going on, My Father?"

"The push is going on, My Child, to consolidate the wealth (of the world) into the hands of fewer and fewer individuals."

"So, what has happened to the wealth of the Queen and the Rockefellers?"

"They still have plenty, but much of their wealth has also been stolen."

"Stolen by whom?"

"Robbers and grave diggers."

"Robbers and grave diggers? What do You mean?"

"It has been stolen by those, who have dug their own graves. For, they shall all be found out; and they all shall pay with their lives."

"Who will find out, Father?"

"The New World Order Nazi Police State."

"And, who are these?"

"Those, who are coming into power in America."

"But, Father, have we not already seen this with the Bushes and their fake war on terror, with all of their lies, so that they could stuff their own pockets and the pockets of their oil baron friends?"

"Yes, you have seen it, but they have also dug their own graves. For, this worldwide Nazi police state is being pushed and brought in by the workings of the few, who remain standing and who have the most wealth."

"So, how does this relate to the Rothschild man?"

“Is he not standing? Is he not counting his many bags of gold? Is he not looking at all of his bank accounts?”

“So, what are You saying, Father?”

“But, what about the Queen and the Rockefeller man?”

“Are they left in the house? Has that house not been robbed and only one remains?” Is that house not split and broken, and will never be the same again?”

“I see that it is broken, that it is pillaged. So, Father, what does all of this mean?”

“It means a new world power base, which is centered in Europe! And, it is to this power base that your new king belongs.”

“You said, King.”

“Yes, I said, ‘King.’”

“My Father, tell me more.”

“My Little One, what do you see?”

“My Father, I see Barack Obama. He walks up the steps of this huge castle, knocks on the door and he is greeted by a servant. This servant leads him down a long hallway and on the walls of the hall are portraits of many important past leaders, and just glancing among them, I see Winston Churchill and Bill Clinton, among others. The servant goes ahead of Obama and ushers him through an open door; and into the presence of the Rothschild man, who sits at a desk. The Rothshild man is dressed in a suit as a business man, but his countenance quickly changes and I no longer see a man, but a beastly creature.

The Rothschild man says, ‘sit, my friend. For I have a need for speed. Here, take a pill and let me see what will be. Twiddly dee! Twiddly dee!’ And, he takes a pill of speed and gives Obama a pill of speed and I see that someone then lowers a big, heavy, metal lever and a big ship, which was idle, begins to roar forth as it churns up the waters.

'Sonny Boy,' he says to Obama, 'it is time to speed things up! Do you see what is just ahead in the water? A giant boulder, Sonny Boy; and this boulder is out to sink our ship! Do you see what is written on this rock?' (And, clearly I also see as well that this is no ordinary rock, but a giant rock, like the Rock of Gibralter. And, suddenly the rock disappears and I see our Saviour, towering above the water, His mighty arms outstretched.)

'See that rock, Sonny Boy! That is trouble. Therefore, it is time for you to dance and to dance fast!' Then, he reaches down and removes Obama's work shoes and he places on his feet instead, shiny, black tap dance shoes. And, as he does so, I hear him say, 'Dance, Sonny Boy!'

Then, the Rothcshild man continues: 'And, this is My promise to you, that if your dance in perfect before me and if your walk is perfect before me, a golden crown for you! And in your pocket a third of My Kingdom! Are you not one of my very own, that I should so handsomely reward you? For, have I not seeded you and have I not planted you? Even a young twig from this very tree you have grown! And, I, myself, have prepared you to make you ready to receive the gold card that I now give you!

Oh, rise, you King of Persia! A Jew you are, yet deceived they shall be! And, all shall bow to their new king! For, will you not rescue the Arabs? Will you not dance their Moslem dance? Will you not free the oppressed Palestinians? Will you not bring solace to the hearts of the Jews?

Eat up, my boy! Eat of the blood of every nation! Gorge yourself with their meat, for your plate is full of the meat of nations! Clean the plates, which are before you. Leave not one morsel, not one piece of their meat! Stuff yourself now, for I will make you fat, oh boy of mine.'

And, Obama did eat all of the meat, which was on many plates before him. And, his belly became huge, like that of a pregnant woman and he surely looked pregnant to me. In fact, he looked as if a huge tire had been placed around his midsection. Then, the Rothschild man came and put a huge belt around his waist and he fastened a shining, new gold belt buckle atop the belt! And, on the belt buckle was a circle with a v in the middle.

'Victory is yours, Sonny Boy; for I have given you the meat of the nations and you shall now have a great appetite for the meat of the nations; and you shall gorge yourself.'

And, this was a strange sight indeed, to see Obama looking this way and quickly he grew, his legs much longer and his pants bottoms much too short, clearly half-way up to his knees.

And, the Rothschild man cut a piece out of a circle, like a piece of pie, and this piece was about one third of the pie; and he rolled it up and put in into Obama's pocket; and straightaway, Obama levitated and flew out the open window. And, as he passed through the window, I heard the screams, the cries of every kind of ghoulish creature, and it was as if the depths of hell had been opened.

"Oh, Father, this is bad!"

"It is, My Little One, very bad, indeed; and all that you see is a mystery to many, but to you, My Little One, I would not have this to be a mystery. Be at peace and go your way! For, many things shall happen, which seem strange; but to My Faithful, they will know; and these things will not seem strange.

I am your Father, Yahweh, yea Jehovah, Most High God.

As witnessed, dictated and recorded this 23rd day of November, 2008,

Linda Newkirk

My Dear Ones, I shall speak more on these things as our Lord and God so directs me, but I shall leave you with one very important prophetic vision, which our Saviour gave me in 1997! This is from Chapter Five of Book One of these prophecies, which are written on http://www.prophecies.org;

and it is extremely relevant to the above message from our Father.

The two dogs spent two and one half days, back and forth, back and forth, trying to read the tape. “It is encrypted. Get more dogs,” she orders. Then, 18 more dogs appear. They run the tape through many computers. And, after 21 days, the code is broken. The tape reads:

I am the Supreme Commander of all world forces.
I have been given authority, dominion over Earth, and all its people.
All are subject to me and my directions.
THE ROTHSCHILD MANIFESTO

And, with these words, I leave you for now, my Dear Brothers and Sisters. I send to each of you my heartfelt love!

Jesus is our Only Way,
Your Sis,
Linda

My Dear Brothers and Sisters, since I wrote the above, I realized that I should insert here a very important bit of wisdom, which the Spirit of God imparted yesterday to a Dear Brother, Mark. To understand what our Father has shown him, read these very important words in Rev 13:18 HERE IS WISDOM. LET HIM THAT HATH UNDERSTANDING COUNT THE NUMBER OF THE BEAST: FOR IT IS THE NUMBER OF A MAN; AND HIS NUMBER IS SIX HUNDRED THREESCORE AND SIX. (666)

To this end, my Dear Ones, let us examine the name of BARACK HUSSEIN OBAMA! COUNT THE NUMBER OF LETTERS IN HIS NAME! THE TOTAL IS 18, OR 6 + 6 + 6, OR 666.

Micheal Aquino founded Temple of Set in 1966 or so variously part of Satanism itself containing British and US Intelligence officers on secret work. Michel Aquino's mother may have been "The Artist" referred to by Jen Moore on Nazi CIA history.

His father, Michael Aquino Sr. had been a Sergeant in Patton’s 3rd Army during World War II, and serving with distinction was decorated with a Purple Heart for wounds received during combat. His mother Marian Dorothy Elisabeth Ford (affectionately known as Betty Ford) was a child prodigy, after only three years of early formal education and at the age of just fourteen years, she was enrolled as one of the youngest students ever admitted into Stanford University. On November 23, 1987, a local televised interview with Aquino kicked off with a report that his mother "was engaged to a member of the Waffen SS." Aquino flatly denies it. In 1929, after his mother, a sculptor, graduated from Stanford University, he wrote in response to the excoriations of a Temple defector, "she went to Germany to study as an apprentice to the famous sculptor Georg Kolbe." Aquino neglects to mention that Georg Kolbe, according to the Weisenthal Center, "adapted" to Nazi rule just fine. Ms. Ford-Aquinoąs mentor indulged his art throughout the Third Reich period "in the kind of monumental figures whose cheap pathos was largely geared to the Nazi mythology of the Nordic-Germanic 'master race." Kolbeąs studio was "a favored venue for guided tours by members of the 'Strength through Joy' organization." A beloved artist of the Nazi Party, he died in Berlin in November 1947. [http://motlc.wiesenthal.org/pages/t040/t04015.html]

From today’s perspective, the late sculptures from the last 15 years of Kolbe’s life appear less imbued with the desire for new pictorial solutions than with an increasingly rigid redundancy. The expansive movement of the earlier figures gives way to static, almost always standing postures without any discernible compositional curiosity, and without the sophistication of his earlier works. Kolbe’s failing eyesight due to illness and recurring cancer that would lead to his death in 1947 may have contributed to this change. In particular > however, due to an increasingly larger, often larger-than-life execution, progressively undifferentiated physiology, and the spirit of conquest they imbue, from today's perspective these works can be easily seen as forerunners to, and later, conforming to, the National Socialists' image of the ideal Germanic figure. Kolbe himself was never a member of the NSDAP. Nevertheless, from today's perspective, criticism can be leveled at him for not publicly distancing himself clearly enough from the NSDAP and for accepting exhibition invitations, honors, and awards from those in power at the time in order to maintain his career success. Kolbe's late work, especially his figures of the 1930s and 1940s inspired by a heroic Nietzsche cult, was easily appropriated by Nazi propaganda.

He was made official state sculptor, and exempted from military service.[1] One of his better known statues is Die Partei, representing the spirit of the Nazi Party that flanked one side of the carriage entrance to Albert Speer's new Reich Chancellery.

After the fall of Nazi Germany in 1945 Breker continued to thrive professionally as a sculptor in the new West Germany.

A former Lt. Colonel in the United States Army, Aquino had been a specialist in psychological warfare operations during the Vietnam War, but is perhaps best known as a High Priest of the Church of Satan (CoS) founded by Anton Szandor LaVey in 1966, and as the founder and High Priest of the Temple of Set (ToS) in 1975, which today is one of the largest “neo-satanic” Churches in the USA.

Mary of Teck married into the London KE VII family

Geral Sosbee the Romanian Language expert

The small town of Sangeorgiu de Padure, in Mures County in the heart of Transylvania, has a mostly ethnic Hungarian population and an unexpected connection to the British Royal Family.

At the heart of the town is the two-storey white-walled Rhedey Castle, actually more palace than castle, which dates originally from the 17th century, though the present neo-Baroque building is an early 19th-century remodelling. The home of the aristocratic Rhedey family, it was purchased by a merchant named Rudolf Schuller in 1885. It was bought by the Romanian State in 1935 and served as a school until 2009. It now holds a tourist information office and hosts an eclectic range of exhibitions: a display of crosses; the paintings of local artist Victor Datu; and photographs of the village of Bezidu Nou, lost beneath the waters of an artificial lake when a dam was built in the 1980s.

The castle's British royal link lies in the fact that it was the childhood home of Claudine, known in Romanian as Claudia, Rhedey, born here in 1812. In 1835 she was to marry Duke Alexander of Wurttemberg, nephew of King Frederick I of Wurttemberg. They had three children: two daughters, Claudine and Amelie, and one son, Francis. The latter married Princess Mary Adelaide of Cambridge, a granddaughter of King George III. Their eldest daughter, Mary of Teck, was to marry the future King George V. Poor Claudine Rhedey was sadly to know none of this: she died in a carriage accident while visiting her husband at a military training camp in Austria, at the age of just 29.

Privately, he was a nutjob suspected of being Jack The Ripper.

Mostly that was kept quiet. Marring outside his family line he married Mary of Teck. He himself was from Austria German Central Europe area. They took the Winsor name from Winsor England where the family had married into Queen Victoria's rule. The children, King Edward VIII was Prince of Wales, Prince Albert his younger brother carried King Edward VII gene FOXP2.

In 1925 Prince Albert gave a botched speech. The world listened in horror. Prince Albert likely had (or King Edward VIII did) have a child with Maria Kutschera, and based on the sudden resignation of King Edward VIII it was most likely him but could have been either.

The out-of-wedlock births were handled by Joseph Kennedy Sr., FDR, Admiral Halsey, ,and others who got Captain Von Trapp's new wife's biological children out.

Why help Captain Von Trapp? Many reasons. Free Masons and the Barrons and Aristocracy were interested in this gene for generations, Captain Von Trapp was a naval hero in Uboats build by his first wife's family company Agatha Whitehead was in central Europe with the Whitehead Torpedo and boat manufcatury Captain Von Trapp was receiving his submarine and torpedo training at.

In the early days of Nazism it was popular as it was in the USA the Bush family, LBJ, and others in Eugeincs and Nazi studies, new rise in psychology Frued, Jung, others, Max Jacobson.

Glorian Gainey and Norma Jean were some of these children, Glorian Gainey my mother. British Royaly, any royalty does not exist. We trust our eyes. The criminal is well dressed the victim a pauper in the streets. What might have been some other time? Who knows, but this is how it is now.

The wealth of criminal imperialism an the lie of their genetic perfection is all a lie. It is Nurture and not nature. They are bathed in poached wealth stolen from other countries worn as bath oils and family jewels. The jewels came from elsewhere. Just ask DeBeers.

During this time the British and US Aristocracy was connected to all this. Now Micheal Aquino and thousands in this country tied to this Janet Reno included are trying to cover-up how many families were part of cloning studies including who became president in the USA after they killed Kennedy to keep the cloning program going, a secret grooming and cloning program that could produce leaders for the 21st Century.

Ed Donegan (myself) has long believed something in Jeffery MacDonald's wife's background is MKULTRA related and her past had to be hidden by MKULTRA operatives in the USA.

One of the occult prophecy groups aligned with Linda Newkirk quoting her and telling the story is Rev12 ca.

But, Dear Ones, it is not just the passage of these crafts and trains through these portals. Dear Souls, as I understand it, Camp Robinson has a very great underground complex and as I understand it also, this is Satan’s world headquarters. It is no wonder that in the Bible, in Revelation, Chapter Twelve, the word tells us that Satan is in the face of the woman; for I live only a few miles from this base and for twenty-five years, even when I lived in North Little Rock, Arkansas, I have lived only a few miles from this base. Next to Camp Robinson is Camp Pike. This base is named after Albert Pike, the father of modern freemasonry, which is Satan’s worldwide occult organization. That Satan would be in my face is foretold in the Book of Revelation in the 12th chapter, but what is told there is only a very brief outline. revelation12.ca/indexaae7.html?p=1128

It is this Rockefeleller Free mason plan center and the plan was to use Clones of the Winsor family around the world as the next leaders of say Cuba if their own leader should fall dead or get cancer or a heart attacck at 30 years old.

Selecting children young for faked identities and faked family history was central to the regime change and overthrow plans run by Dulles brothers and others since 1902 and King Edward VII.

o, Dear Ones, when you hear of the abductions of people, don't forget about the U.S. military. Those, who have continually assaulted me belong mostly to NASA, but not only to NASA.

The current President of this nation has been in my bedroom, along with his two children, and he sent out Homeland Security to stalk me. The Office of Naval Intelligence got involved and sought to carry me into court for anything that they could think of to charge me with, but in all occasions, our Blessed Saviour stopped their evil plans.

The National Security Agency has often been here and their Google puppets have traveled this gateway! And, as I understand it, the CEO of Google was among those, who were doing satanic sacrifices in the portal when they firstly entered into it in mid-January of last year! However, there came something like an earthquake in that portal and it collapsed around them and as I understand it, nearly every one of them died.

The very next day, the Pope announced his resignation! Was he among them? Was the whole resignation process just a sham? Did he die there, or was he saved? I suspect that he may have died there among some of the world's elite Satanists.

The military junta led by General Jorge Videla (left) was responsible for countless assassinations, including priests and nuns who opposed military rule following the CIA sponsored March 24, 1976 coup which overthrew the government of Isabel Peron:

"Videla was among the generals convicted of human rights crimes, including "disappearances", torture, murders and kidnappings. In 1985, Videla was sentenced to life imprisonment at the military prison of Magdalena."

Wall Street and the Neoliberal Economic Agenda

One of the key appointments of the military junta (on the instructions of Wall Street) was the Minister of Economy, Jose Alfredo Martinez de Hoz, a member of Argentina's business establishment and a close friend of David Rockefeller.

The neoliberal macro-economic policy package adopted under Martinez de Hoz was a "carbon copy" of that imposed in October 1973 in Chile by the Pinochet dictatorship under advice from the "Chicago Boys", following the September 11, 1973 coup d'Etat and the assassination of president Salvador Allende.

'Operation Gladio B' (also Gladio 2[1][2] or 2.0[3]) is a codename the FBI have used since 1997 for the relations between the US intelligence community, the US military and Al Qaeda.[4] This was revealed by Sibel Edmonds[5] (whose revelations Daniel Ellsberg termed "far more explosive than the Pentagon Papers"[6][7]).

The original Operation Gladio was a Europe wide network of fascist "stay-behind" cells that NATO/CIA/MI6 trained to carry out bombings and assassinations in the event of a Soviet invasion. Gladio B substituted Muslims for fascists, and continues to carry out false flag attacks in Europe and maybe elsewhere. https://wikispooks.com/wiki/Operation_Gladio/B

Zersetzung (Stasi Policing) is a psychological warfare tactic developed by the East German Stasi Secret Police (best on the planet) to nuetralize dissidents by disrupting every part of you're life and gaslighting you. Disrupt, Discredit, Destroy (DDD) to isolate, set up, and nuetralize. Cults such as the KKK, Mormons, Scientology, Freemasons, and COINTELPRO copied it. Scientology calls it Fair Game and Freemasons call it Slow Dagger and sometimes target entire bloodlines for Masonic revenge. Freemasons are a police fraternity widespread in the CIA and USFIVEYES tied to the watchlist program. 911 created an unneeded police state and had Stasi director Marcus Wolf and KGB general Yevgeny Primkov create DHS and 78 Fusion Centers as a trojan horse used against the American people to create a total surveillance state for the Stasi CIA, FBI, NSA to combine their capabilities and Watchlist, domestic FISA, and passed the USA PATRIOT Act and turned the country into the United Stasi of America https://www.facebook.com/groups/165918446241837/ Zersetzung group on Facebook

Taking Measure

Gunderson never started a mission he was born into it by his disposition and locating a life that fit his skills. He lived for his work.

So did John DeCamp. Cooper died for his his mission, all the same work of the same people. People like Jen Moore.

We have the records they left but not truly their voices today.

The purpose of this book is to convince you (the reader) that something is terribly wrong. It is my hope that this work will inspire you to begin an earnest search for the truth. One basic truth can be used as a foundation for a mountain of lies, and if we dig down deep enough in the mountain of lies, and bring out that truth, to set it on top of the mountain of lies; the entire mountain of lies will crumble under the weight of that one truth, and there is nothing more devastating to a structure of lies than the revelation of the truth upon which the structure of lies was built, because the shock waves of the revelation of the truth reverberate, and continue to reverberate throughout the Earth for generations to follow, awakening even those people who had no desire to be awakened to the truth. Taking Notice of What is wrong

When looking at FBI, DOJ, NSA, CIA Abuse of Power using MKULTRA, COINTELPRO, GangStalk, Poisonings, assassination of anti-racketterign public oficials, Psychological Warfare Smear Campaigns, Noise Campaigns, snitch-jacking (havig prison snitches launch an attack against a police disfavored prisoner) and other tactics many constitutional amendments come up from the statues of Conspiracy Against Rights, religious abuse and the First Amendment and Conspiracy against First Amendment protected activities.

A deeper look is the FBI tactics go to the reasoning of the existence of the 8th Amendment and its protections.

The idea that a person could be subject to unusual and abusive treatment by the State was much like Equal Protection under the Law (14th amendment) and that included Equal Protection for Journalists who shouldn't be singled out for tax audits, ,etc., or Sate retaliation of being called delusional for belief system and institutionalized in mental health wards for those beliefs or assertions about Government or its office holders.

GangStalking is abusive treatment of a person that is unfair and meant to traumatize, instill fear, humiliate, destroy the reputation of, and cripple the lives of those being smeared or interfered with.

The premise of a GangStalk Rough Noise attack is that it is annoying, a false allegation skitted out, banging on dumpsters with dumpster lifting machines over and over agaim while a jounralist writes, smearing comments made that abusive cheap shots and wrong, staged false flags affecting public perceptions of a person, annoying the person with derogatory smears, these are unjust and unusual, often cruel and unusual such that a person may well fight against or complain about abusive treatment.

In myh own experience in life and what is reported by CIA, FBI, and MI6 leakers is that abusive cruel treatment of State actors while in disguise are destabalizers who hope a fight will emerge and in that fight make a Stalk victim seem like a paranoid aggressor, exactly the kind of unpublished journalist who should be in a pscy ward or under arrest.

People might be told or think they are retaliation for Teen Bikini Downlaod along with Beach Bikini and Wet Tshirt contests I was always watching and did in Texas. Nothing there. But trying to make something out of that harasses and defames me, and those skitting out that or anything else are annoying, and meant to be annoying, annoying while I am using the library, writing my book, so annoying it might well provoke a response from me, and when I do I might seem the aggressor.

Tom Dunham and I have both experienced it many times. An underage female is staging being our victims, evidence is planted, actors act it out, forgers or our identities forge confession and pay blackmail to the Mafia also called the CIA and FBI and Gladio B. None of it is true, nor are we delusional for reporting it nor are we unusual in that we notice teens acting out being victims in such scantily arranged clothing. That is unusual, and part of a smear campaign that we have been the victim of and are and have been documenting.

It is Mockingbird attacking a law abiding normal person with mockery that disparages a person and destroys the life of the person as the person mocked is attacked with the mockeryu of the person is believed.

The function of the 8th Amendment was to protect citizens from cruel power holders who could abuse political enemies.

An Essay Before History Accepting Lord McVeigh as this Vassals Master

As a lay person caught up in the legal system it is not always clear what the roles of of the participants of a trial or hearing, and it is not as simple as it sounds at first but it is pragmatic.

"Is a Brady hearing used to court credential the validity of forensic science or procedures in a trial in advance or is the Brady hearing something else?" I might look it up if I had time or a PC including how is is used and like an attorney I might even get it correct.

In reality the attorney is more likely to than I and attorneys are useful for entering cases into the record before the court, and before the jury, preparing the case and forming it to the needs of the court inquiry in ways used by rules of procedure.

Access to the courts for that purpose, standing before the court to bring arguments, torts, charges against others or defenses is itself regulated tightly understanding finite time in the courts and courts of appeal available and the cost to the courts in being mired in frivolous cases and frivolous arguments.

Arguments before history are less constrained and while assert dire matters of Constitutional Law and the survival of the Republic and justice for criminality's victim at issue, the sanctity of our Constitutional and Statutory offices and officers, an Essay is still I judge the best forum, or rather medium, for my message.

"The purpose of this book (Willam Cooper said of his book) is to convince you (the reader) that something is terribly wrong. It is my hope that this work will inspire you to begin an earnest search for the truth. Your conclusions may be different but together maybe we can build a better world." - William Cooper speaking for Ted Gunderson, Jen Moore, Gene Chip Tatum

Wayne Madsen, Prouty and all others mentioned, Tarpley, Chaitkin plus Snowden, Assange, and others.

I like the others I just mentioned have done nothing but write and have break-is to my home office keep me in constant terror and fear for my live, constantly bloody mutilating battles setup by the United States that may give me aids, hepatitis, or other diseases, or other forms of poisings or attack in my journalism.

The quote I used was from William Cooper a former Naval Intelligence officer who gave top secret "family jewels" type military informational information to higher officials. He asserted a Deep State of NWO and used what are called "cut out" terms about classified matter that make light of NWO as things like Space Ships 33 miles above Earth that from there will prevemt war, though the want to remain unnamed.

Communication in Cypher per Exparte Quirin in the subversion of the USA is Treason the difficult is it is also policy as those holding Global Space offices and titles in Sottish Rites and other Orders will not name those associations and since those associations are illegal foriegn allegiances but classified allegiances not-the-less the cut outs are still used

If we disregard Cooper and we easily can by some of his talk that is only clearly redeemed by other works his we can move on to Ted Gunderson who feared for his life from the CIA and FBI, NSA, and others because he like Geral Sosbee (former FBI) and Dorothy Killgallen (journalist) simply knew too much.

Par of the history I am writing is not my work at all but what I have read from others in the long historical arc of history and that arc of history a Secret Team of Industrialist using private or misused public forces to retain robber Barron control of the USA and the world by illegal means. A bullet from Charles Harrelson not only changed the president it changed the commander in Chief and the assassination changed with the USA public could be suppressed by acts of terror, and yes it could and yes it can.

roll back, the war started by the President, and cases like Youngstown were in movement as war resources in a form of funding and sources of war materials.

I (like former FBI agent Ted Gunderson writing to William Barr, Jeff Sessions, Attorney General Ashcroft) have written to many the same people and agencies that the Patriot Act, AUMF following September 11 and and the AUMF in Iraq have been tragically empowering to a bungling legal system rooting out demons in its own society by witch-hunts under Watch Lists.

Martin Luther King, Jr.'s courage, vision, and powerful words enabled him to lead a movement which changed the course of history. His speeches are full of literary and biblical references. Unsurprisingly, many of his allusions were drawn from 19th-century New England, a time and place in which American Literature grew alongside abolitionist agitation. King was influenced by Henry David Thoreau's Civil Disobedience, Theodore Parker's abolitionist sermons, and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's life and poetry.

Like Longfellow, King was aware of the power of a well-crafted turn of phrase. Drawing on these 19th-century sources, he adapted their words and ideas for his cause and his modern time. He borrowed an extended metaphor from an 1853 sermon by Parker:

> I do not pretend to understand the moral universe. The arc is a long one. My eye reaches but little ways. I cannot calculate the curve and complete the figure by experience of sight. I can divine it by > conscience. And from what I see I am sure it bends toward justice.

King shaped the metaphor into the elegant, memorable, and quotable phrase “the arc of the moral universe is long, but it bends toward justice.”

In a speech given in 1967 at Glenville High School in Ohio, King references and builds on Longfellow's "The Ladder of St. Augustine" from 1858, saying, "It was Longfellow who said, 'The heights of great men reached and kept were not attained by sudden flight, but they while their companions slept were toiling upward in the night.' And I urge you today to realize that doors of opportunities are opening now that were not open to our mothers and our fathers. And the great challenge facing each of you today is to be ready to enter these doors as they open."

The outline for the sermon "Unfulfilled Hopes" from April 1959 shows that King was not only aware of Longfellow's work, but his life as well:

> We read Longfellow as he translates Dante. We think of his greatness, the poet translating the works of another great poet. Then, we appreciate Longfellow even more when we discover that a few days before he started translating Dante, the dress of his wife accidentally caught fire. And he tried desperately to put the fire out, but he couldn't put it out. It injured her to the point that she died a few days later. Here we see that wifeless, motherless man sitting in his lonely room, turning to the translation of Dante in order to bring meaning in life. And > he did it well.

In Longfellow's 1839 novel, Hyperion: A Romance, the main character Paul Flemming is told by a travelling companion, "I shall not see you in the morning; so good bye, and God bless you. Remember my parting words. Never mind trifles. In this world a man must either be anvil or hammer. Care killed a cat!" With the anvil or hammer metaphor, Longfellow echoed one of his literary heroes, Johann Wolfgang Goethe.

King echoed the words in his sermon "Transformed Nonconformist" first written in 1954 and reworked in 1962-3, writing, "...every man is a hammer or an anvil, that is to say that every man either molds society or is molded by society." Not long before his assassination, King gave a speech to the staff of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. They were preparing for a new campaign that spring and King gave an assessment of where the movement then stood and where he saw it going. In that speech he returned to the hammer and anvil image:

> Violence has been the inseparable twin of materialism—the hallmark of its grandeur. This is the one thing about modern civilization that I do not want to imitate. Humanity is waiting for something other than a blind imitation of the past. If we want truly to advance a step further, if we want to turn over the new leaf and really set a new man afoot, we must begin to turn mankind away from the long and desolate night of violence. May it not be that the new man the world needs is the non-violent man?
> Longfellow said: "In this world a man > must either be an anvil or the hammer." We must be hammers shaping a new society rather than anvils molded by the old. This not only will make us new men but will give us a new kind of power. It will not be Lord Acton's image of power that tends to corrupt, the absolute power that corrupts absolutely. It will be power infused with love and justice that will change dark yesterdays into bright tomorrows. I must say to each of you that I have made my decision.

Among other things today, we should remember the power of words to inspire and move people to great actions.

What I can tell you is that I have read many historians often figures of history like Col Fletcher Prouty who I seemed to know as child. Odd I did not recognize his name since at the same time in my childhood I was reading OUI, Gallery, Penthouse, Playboy, and other magazines, the very magazines in fact the only magazines he was able to get published in.

I was recalling recently a desperate call to my athiest family from some pay phone in the church the Boy Scouts were meeting in, a place very unfamiliar to me and a place I would usauly call to say the meeting was over and could they come pick me up car. In this case I was using the phone a little early having left a little early to ask my father what to do since Christianity came up and I did want much to do with it. Nothing ever came of that issue but the did assign me to the paper recycling bin near the fire department and old industrial farming warehouse the paper drop-off was, moving the landslide of papers falling out of the back stacked into the back. I did so quite regularly and collected as many adult magazines as were left. At least there was some value to this work other than exploring Old Moraga and Jauqin Valleys 1900s abandoned industrial electronic and water system relics.

History was always of interest to me (as adult women were) and both remain important to me today.

DEMOCRACY IN AMERICA By Alexis De Tocqueville AVOCAT À LA COUR ROYALE DE PARIS ETC., ETC. Translated by Henry Reeve, Esq. IN TWO VOLUMES. VOL. I. LONDON: SAUNDERS AND OTLEY, CONDUIT STREET 1835

Introductory Chapter

Amongst the novel objects that attracted my attention during my stay in the United States, nothing struck me more forcibly than the general equality of conditions. I readily discovered the prodigious influence which this primary fact exercises on the whole course of society, by giving a certain direction to public opinion, and a certain tenor to the laws; by imparting new maxims to the governing powers, and peculiar habits to the governed. I speedily perceived that the influence of this fact extends far beyond the political character and the laws of the country, and that it has no less empire over civil society than over the Government; it creates opinions, engenders sentiments, suggests the ordinary practices of life, and modifies whatever it does not produce. The more I advanced in the study of American society, the more I perceived that the equality of conditions is the fundamental fact from which all others seem to be derived, and the central point at which all my observations constantly terminated.

I then turned my thoughts to our own hemisphere, where I imagined that I discerned something analogous to the spectacle which the New World presented to me. I observed that the equality of conditions is daily progressing towards those extreme limits which it seems to have reached in the United States, and that the democracy which governs the American communities appears to be rapidly rising into power in Europe. I hence conceived the idea of the book which is now before the reader.

It is evident to all alike that a great democratic revolution is going on amongst us; but there are two opinions as to its nature and consequences. To some it appears to be a novel accident, which as such may still be checked; to others it seems irresistible, because it is the most uniform, the most ancient, and the most permanent tendency which is to be found in history. Let us recollect the situation of France seven hundred years ago, when the territory was divided amongst a small number of families, who were the owners of the soil and the rulers of the inhabitants; the right of governing descended with the family inheritance from generation to generation; force was the only means by which man could act on man, and landed property was the sole source of power. Soon, however, the political power of the clergy was founded, and began to exert itself: the clergy opened its ranks to all classes, to the poor and the rich, the villein and the lord; equality penetrated into the Government through the Church, and the being who as a serf must have vegetated in perpetual bondage took his place as a priest in the midst of nobles, and not infrequently above the heads of kings. https://www.gutenberg.org/files/815/815-h/815-h.htm#link2H_4_0001

I have recently learned the name for myself and I am a Super-conspiracy Theorist

I believe in Pizzagate, a high level Defense Intelligence Agency type plot where when I order Pizza because I used to order Pizza once a week on my diet day off, Sunday, from Costco, teen females appeared and the smear of me was I had a code word to ask for teen females.

I believe the conspiracy that has destroyed my life with fabrications appearances, rerecords, and confessions I am involved in teen or child exploitation is to smear me as a Kenendy Assassination witness because without having known that I did I knew too much.

I going deeper into my family history in comibination with Jen Moore information and Kennedy records and Birther information about Obama Jr I believe Rockefeller Republicans in combination with British wealth planned Subversion and overthrow in the world my family history was a part of, and since then I have been hit with D-E-W, railroads in the legal system and regular police abuse of me directly and through police assets.

I have come to doubt that Timothy McVeigh bombed our government. I believe he bombed the NWO, a State imposed life under Council on Foreign Relations based CIA control of the world that controls who (wealthy free masons, Vatican, Malta) will govern the USA and how (STAZI) and pretext based abuse of proccess in COINTELPRO using planted evidence, poisonings, and gas-lighting and break ins to subdue discussion or evidence of the NWO plot, that same NWO plot my lifespan has been a victim of.

It is most likely per most historians that the Great Potato Famine and the events surround oil production technology and needs, and continuing Subversion and Overthrow plans run by rich London and OSS CIA bankers in the USA were able to subvert this direction (quite intentionally) that was being recognized by its admires and by its colonialsits enemies, and effort forming of a Special Gladio relationship with corrupt illegal practices organized by non uniformed actors front hiding state roles in the assassination of journalists, judges, political office holders, and others, and that is what much of this argument before history is about.

My attempts to offer a theory on Charles Harrelson as a hit man is what I am trying to do and likely will die before I can get this investigated or acknowledged.

What is at stake for me is not who killed Kennedy as a fact under US Law. The issue is inert. He is long ago dead, JFK and RFK and Sunny Bono are long dead as is Ted Gunderon, Marilyn Monroe, MLK, Dr. King, and others as are the historians who tried to get attention to and action on the facts of these assassinations and the importance of them.

What is not an inert issue, but a lively one, is whether the FBI DOJ ATF NSA CIA and others are now a terror group who after having gained power are now the most dangerous and well armed killers Earth has ever seen.

I think the answer is "yes" because after the assassinations the Cabla conducted (Mueller, Burns, Bush, and other families) to subdue the US political system and insert puppets, these puppets now in power are in fact cowering desperadoes like Jess James in a place with no where to run and no where to hide, except from accountability, and that accountability comes from COINTELPRO attacks on the infrastructure of the USA, violating its laws, killing its journalists, assassinating its Congress people, office holders, and its own law enforcement who are too close to the facts of history.

Anyone from outside of Government might say what I say so should I be heard by history on this point?"

I assert "Yes" and offer several theories on that. I assert that I know my family history of being from the Dorchester Massachusetts area of the Kennedy history and of the Kennedy timeline of life factors and that makes my family probables in contact with the Kennedy family on key issues or at least an analogn for what the Kennedy's experienced as Roman Catholics in that small neighborhood.

I assert that Jen Moore asserts my family by her use of identifying my and my mother's home were part of Dulles brothers history of the CIA, its OSS history further back than that are part of world events history, and that artifacts in my home were part of world history including the CIA role in manufacturing Barrack OBama Jr for the oval office, and controlling by assassination and other means the current flow of political and legal figures into government with assassination capabilities killing journalists like Micheal Hastings so Espionage control of Government will continue to control government for its political figures misdeeds remain un accounted for, not baked into public understanding and thus is not accountable to the public at the polling place.

A Form of The Great Writ suspended in Function. "The writ of habeas corpus was described in the eighteenth century by William Blackstone as a 'great and efficacious writ in all manner of illegal confinement'

Such is not true with Organized Stalking, GangStalking, and other Espionage acts of guerilla warfare carried out by uninformed saboteurs (even as State Actors) who deny their activities.

One might say that for State abuses of the Public through Subversion teams (GangStalks) who hide their acts, national origins, or motives or deeds a recourse is in the press.

This has not been the case. From both parties the publishers and the reader a consistent thread is that if financial powers can by use of front organizations and personnel control the offices of government they can and do equally easily, perhaps more easily, control the press.

That has been the case as the Press has used Mockingbird and other CIA programs to squelch dissident voices asserting (more more dangerously being a witness to) the Kennedy Assassinations.

There is widespread discussion of the Kennedy Assassination and that is slowing leading along its long ARC that the Bush family has had much to do with it and part of that was creating the Obama Jr family possibly for Indonesia and elsewhere and Congressman and then Vice President Nixon and later President Nixon had key roles in this, but even they probably not allowed fully into the real corridors of power they have never themselves possibly accessed and that is from their own statements of what they believe might be true about the Deep State and the CIA and its connections who find the presidency mostly troublesome but fairly easy to control.

The CIA or FBI might find these people, families of Robber Barrens like Averell Harriman, Trusdale, DuPont, Rotcschilds, JP Morgan, and others but that memo from the To Do list never seems to stay on the desk, inconvenient since others are researching those families, finding capabilities and even death bed confessions, but the FBI and CIA and NSA or DHS will not act on those findings.

"The F.B.I and C.I.A are Terrorists former FBI Special Agent assigned to Espionage Geral Sosbee

Sosbee's Cause of Action in this Court] alleged that defendants [FBI and CIA] waged a terrorist campaign against him that included home invasions, car invasions, and chemical plantings in his food.

Ted Gunderon and Ed Donegan assert the same and that the actions against Ed Donegan, Ted Gunderson, and Jen Moore were "surgical" rare use of fixers controlled by high power State actors and the rarity of the claim undermines the claim until the Means, Motives, and Opportunity the CIA and FBI and ruling families of the USA can be exposed and that theory I proffer is of major world history that is a big problem for big agencies and big politicians that a few plausibly denied killings can contain.

I and Jen Moore assert a gent tied to WWI in the London KE Family King Edward VII and Mary of Tech (Romania) are tied to the CIA activities that continue through the Dulles Brothers, Dean Rusk, and others are part of covering up MKULTRA.

"FBI and CIA kill and torture innocent civilians worldwide" - said by Sosbee

"FBI and CIA routinely torture, kill, falsely imprison, or force suicide upon targeted individuals using electromagnetic weapons for mind control and nervous system manipulation. I witnessed that the FBI and C/A inhumanely and regularly torture the targeted person and also force him/her to live under horrific conditions that could reasonably be expected to lead to suicide. Let us consider, those who are reading and willing to, consider that we are in a forrest and it is hard to see forrest so big while we are inside it.

An alternative music band The Cure sings a song called the Forrest and AquarianCrhist offers us a theory on the song.

The Cure: Come closer and see See into the trees Find the girl

While you can Come closer and see See into the dark Just follow your eyes Just follow your eyes

AQ: this is about thinking you see love, and hoping it is real. it's about staying cautious at the same time, and taking things as they come.

The Cure: I hear her voice Calling my name The sound is deep In the dark I hear her voice And start to run Into the trees Into the trees

Q: this is the feeling that you know it has to be love, and you start making sacrifices, and start realizing how deeply you love them. (the "into the trees")

The Cure: Suddenly I stop But I know it's too late I'm lost in a forest All alone The girl was never there It's always the same I'm running towards nothing Again and again and again

AQ: after all the sacrifices you've made and after something you felt so strongly about, the other person does something to betray or hurt you. it starts to make you think that maybe the whole time you're love was an illusion....and that again, you are going to have to search for that missing love.- aquarianarchist

If we are led into a forest and we think it is the USA but we are told that by the editors of our TV news shows and the editors of our newspapers could it be they are not giving us the full view and should we scale this?

PAINE: How We Dismantled the FBI In Our Pajamas

Money Laundering and Black Bugets, murder at Deutch Bank, and cover-ups. Epstein. Black Budge CIA and FBI money laundering. The asssasintion of Jen Moofre telling her to be silent has kept the conspiracy and narco gangs run by the FBI of street thugs and violent networks intact.

SWAT-clad FBI agents stormed into Mike "Thomas Paine" Moore's home and terrorized his wife and young children at gunpoint after rousting them out of bed. Not once, but twice, pointing automatic weapons at the family. Historic, costly blunders for the FBI.

In response Paine assembled his journalism crew of former feds, launched True Pundit and literally dismantled the FBI in less than two years with pens and laptops while working from home, often in pajamas.

While the mainstream media ignored a corrupt FBI & DOJ, Paine and cohorts hammered away and knocked the FBI off its trusted public mantle. Revered FBI leaders were fired. Others quit. FBI officials, targeted by True Pundit's hard-hitting reporting, are now targets of numerous federal investigations. A fitting irony after the FBI -- whom Paine worked for -- came into his home with M4 rifles drawn on his young kids and wife. Twice. Then, the FBI went on a rampage to ruin his Fortune 100 career at Citi and even prevented him from attending his mother's funeral.

What did Paine know that terrified the Deep State and prompted FBI agents to stoop so low as to literally terrorize an 8-year-old and 12-year-old? And Paine's wife? Paine tells it all here -- revealing he was investigating Intel that the FBI, CIA & White House were covering up evidence that Osama bin Laden was living and running al-Qaeda from Iran after 9/11. Paine reveals his True Identity: Loeb Award-winning & Pulitzer nominated newspaper reporter and Intel expert Mike Moore.

And his insider revelations about bin Laden -- and the Bush and Obama White Houses -- are not pretty as they blow the roof off one of the most sinister, gut-wrenching scandals in U.S. history, involving Democrats and Republicans.

Implicated too here are U.S. Special Counsel

Robert Mueller along with former CIA Director John Brennan, among many others. A Criminal conspiracy involving top players in the Deep State, entrenched in one of the greatest public betrayals imaginable.

They tried to silence Paine and ruin him to keep these alarming revelations secret but something went wrong. Paine rose from the ashes of his battered life and tattered financial career and then re-launched his award-winning journalism career. And this time -- playing by his own rules -- Paine blows the lid off of a massive cover-up that implicates the same D.C. elite who tried to take him down.

Mike "Thomas Paine" Moore's story is one of personal loss, struggle, payback and patriotism.

You may have heard the prophetic warning that "One Day You're Going to Mess with the Wrong Guy. [including wife Jen Moorfe]"

In 'How We Dismantled the FBI in Our Pajamas,' Paine proves he is THAT guy. And the FBI -- or what's left of it now -- surely regrets the days it threatened Paine's wife and children at gunpoint, miscalculations that ultimately rocked its foundations unlike any FBI scandal in American history.

night and I'm looking out at beautiful Washington DC and as you can tell I have a great view this evening it's a Sunday night tonight before the Monday morning testimony I believe before the Judiciary Committee on the OIG report so that's gonna be tomorrow morning and I will be there live it in person to see the fireworks if there are any I hope there are a little bit courage mr. Jim Jordan and mr. good luck and mr. gates to it mr. Gowdy to all go full wards get these documents so I'm posting this video just because I'm going to attach the interview number three and four that I had done now regarding um you know start the first two interviews were kind of starting in World War one and moving into World War two OSS to the CIA different players that were involved dealt the Dulles brothers Hitler obviously Aleister Crowley in my six in my five how the OSS became the CIA the Vatican's involvement the indoctrination that occurred the different experiments that were done how MKULTRA was brought together under several different kind of philosophies or mythology's I guess you could say some of it is really hard to listen to but it's the truth and it needs to be told because it's still happening so though as these interviews go long I move it into the United States and Canada in particular I mean it's a very lot of other places but United States in Canada really was infiltrated through black budgets by the CIA and went from OSS into CIA the Vatican was involved in that and Operation Paperclip in how these Nazi scientists including Hitler and Mengele and Heinrich Himmler [along with Franz Kutschera] and all these kind of the worst characters of all were secretly moved in to Argentina and South America and then some of them were even brought up into the United States and they were given new identities they were brought into universities hospital programs various secret sites black-budget sites where the experimentation continued on all kinds of things and all kinds of Americans especially small children and I'm going to lead into things like the Kinsey studies if anyone has looked into that Masters and Johnson how they're all tied together some of the places that are still in operation as of today that I am aware of but uh these two interviews specifically start to bring into the politics of the United States of America at least since World War two the different players involved a lot of these players that call them players or politicians or you know businessmen or senators or you know what whatever title they might have there's some of them that don't want their identities known their real identities are the real history zone and I'm not gonna name names at this point except you could do some deduction use your deduction skills and you know kind of think about whose identities might have been hidden recently even even years and years and decades ago but recently really and so these interviews start talking about that and how that came about and why there's such a mystery and why there's so many sealed records and some of the information that I am in possession of to begin to peel back the layers of this onion so the American people can fully understand where we are today why we are here today and who these people really are because this country is our country the American people's country we are in charge of the government they don't get to hide from us so it's time for their exposure and I'm going to be part of that so you can listen to interviews three and four and it gets into some pretty gnarly details but there's truth there and I've got court cases and documents to back it up personal eyewitnesses you name it this is the story of a whistleblower our whistleblowers in general yes it is dangerous I accept that at the same time I refuse to be silent anymore and so I'm going to carry on releasing this information

The original Operation Gladio was a Europe wide network of fascist "stay-behind" cells that NATO/CIA/MI6 trained to carry out bombings and assassinations in the event of a Soviet invasion. Gladio B substituted Muslims for fascists, and continues to carry out false flag attacks in Europe and maybe elsewhere.

Apart from Alan Francovich's remarkable 1992 film which was broadcast on the BBC, the original Operation Gladio has received minimal attention by commercially-controlled media, considering that it killed maybe 2000 people, was discussed in the European Parliament and later officially investigated by at least 5 national governments. Coverage has been fragmented[9] and shied away from asking obvious and important questions such as "Why did NATO order terrorist attacks inside NATO countries?... Why have most national governments not followed the EU's resolution and attempted to investigate it?... Do we have any evidence that this program has been discontinued?" Gladio/B is a third rail topic. Two anonymous Sunday Times journalists report that senior Pentagon and MI6 sources confirmed her story, but it was suddenly dropped under the pressure of undisclosed “interest groups”, which they suggest were associated with the U.S. State Department.

In short, as of 2019, no official narrative exists on Gladio/B. Wikipedia, to its credit, has a redirect page to Sibel Edmonds where it provides a summary mention her allegations. wikispoks

But in fact Government by dangerous mafia business is much older and was used in Nazi occupied Europe as saboutoer resistance (subversion) but subverion was used to colonize and force trade by East India Tea Company, much like United Fruit Company that took over Latin American nations to form Junta Bannana Republics.

The East India Company (EIC)[a] was an English, and later British, joint-stock company founded in 1600 and dissolved in 1874.[4] It was formed to trade in the Indian Ocean region, initially with the East Indies (the Indian subcontinent and Southeast Asia), and later with East Asia. The company seized control of large parts of the Indian subcontinent and colonised parts of Southeast Asia and Hong Kong. At its peak, the company was the largest corporation in the world by various measures. The EIC had its own armed forces in the form of the company's three Presidency armies, totalling about 260,000 soldiers, twice the size of the British army at the time. The operations of the company had a profound effect on the global balance of trade, almost single-handedly[6] reversing the trend of eastward drain of Western bullion, seen since Roman times.

Originally chartered as the "Governor and Company of Merchants of London Trading into the East-Indies", the company rose to account for half of the world's trade during the mid-1700s and early 1800s, particularly in basic commodities including cotton, silk, indigo dye, sugar, salt, spices, saltpetre, tea, and opium. The company also ruled the beginnings of the British Empire in India. Wikipedia

Riley Coffe Company, OSS CIA General CD Douglas owened or directed Life magazine, the CIA and British had bought into or created most media companies including Kennedy owned RKO, and US news propaganda rode shotgun for our undercover operatives denying their being from the USA if these CIA operatives were ever caught or needed friendly stories. This remains the case today.

WIKISPOOKS: Funding appears to be via the normal deep state methods; Edmonds points to the international drugs trade as a key role in funding black ops such as Operation Gladio/B. She notes that in 2001, without providing any evidence that the country was in any way involved, the US invaded the world's largest producer of opium, Afghanistan. She claims that the main areas of Gladio B money laundering are Cyprus, Malta and Dubai.

A huge upswing in opium production after the unprovoked US invasion of the country following 9/11. Opium production has greatly increased since the US lead invasion. As with Gary Webb's well documented case that the CIA was heavily involved in cocaine trafficking, the commercially-controlled media has refused to show much interest in the evidence.

“For the past 11 years I have been emphasizing that my State Secrets Privilege & Gag Orders had to do with the FBI files (covering period 1996-2002 February) on covert-terrorist operations in Caucasus and Central Asia backed, managed and armed by US actors. These US-NATO directed operations in the region involved Bin-Laden and mainly Zawahiri ….. The FBI documents contained damning evidence (audio and written) collected between 1996-2002 tying these terror operations directly to the U.S. persons in the State Department/CIA and Pentagon. Also, how the State Department got Congress to grant huge amounts of funds to “front“ NGOs and businesses (mainly Turkish companies in US-listed/members of ATC) to funnel money to the terrorist cells in this region." Sibel Edmonds

If this an innovation since WWII the only change is how dangerous a terror cell the USA is willing to fund, fund through BCCI Bank for instance, that Phillip Marshal wrote about and he and his family died I assert by assasination, and theser were drug running drug gangs being funded and weaved into US governing projection of power inside and outside the USA.

Operation Gladio first came to light in Italy in 1990, after over 40 years of clandestine operations. Members of the project revealed that similar projects existed in most if not all countries of Western Europe.[2] These stay-behind networks were, in essence, super secret armies in at least 14 European countries, which were kept secret from the official governmental structures of the host countries – being controlled by other forces such as the CIA and MI6. They remained mostly dormant but were also involved in anti-communist activities including anti-democratic agitation to swing elections and false flag "terrorism" to inflict psychological stress.

The name Gladio, (or 'Sword' in Italian) was technically the name given to their operations in Italy, but has since come by extension to stand for the phenomenon as a whole. Evidence of such arrangements, which had been kept secret from both public and politicians democratically elected governments in the host countries for a quarter of a century was revealed through a series of scandalous revelations in Italy and other NATO countries during the 90s, and meticulously documented by Swiss historian Daniele Ganser in his 2004 book NATO's Secret Armies,[3] arguably the most shocking book ever to be ignored by the corporate media. The evidence contained in Ganser's book, of terrorism directed against the people by secret armies funded and organised by NATO and answerable to deep state elements within NATO, MI6 and the CIA rather than the respective governments is so shocking that the initial reaction of most people would be to reject it. And yet the claims have been substantiated by juridical inquiries in Italy, Switzerland and Belgium and have been debated (and condemned) in the European Parliament.

In the Netherlands, Gladio was exposed, although as a limited hangout, by journalist Peter R. de Vries. Dutch program Brandpunt also ran a piece, interviewing former agents and revealing the division to still exist in the early 2000s. De Vries his revelations mentioned the Belgian investigator who was stonewalled in his research there. That officer linked the Belgian and Dutch Gladio agents to the Brabant Massacres and even the Olaf Palme assassination. The fact that the University of Amsterdam revealed the division was headed by early key Dutch Deep State leader Prince Bernhard was not mentioned in de Vries or Brandpunt their investigations. Bernhard wes a influential European Deep State player until the 1980s as well, raising even more questions. De Vries was shot dead by the successors of the Gladio members their drug smuggling associates in 2021.

Estimates run t0 38 billion in illegal controlled substance and other trafficking by NARCO terrorist who can be directed against pesky Islamic, Communist, or other governments trying to shut them down.

Dupont, the War Industries Board, Avereall Harriman, Standard Oil, Zapata Oil, and other businesses. HRG Group, Inc., formerly Harbinger Group Inc. and Zapata Corporation, is a holding company based in Rochester, New York, having originated from an oil company started by a group including future U.S. president George H. W. Bush. In 2009, it was renamed the Harbinger Group Inc. Founder: George H. W. Bush Revenue Decrease US$5.2 billion (2017) Wikipedia

According to a CIA internal memo dated November 29, 1975, [7] Zapata Petroleum began in 1953 through Bush's joint efforts with Thomas J. Devine, a CIA staffer who had resigned his agency position that same year to go into private business, but who continued to work for the CIA under commercial cover. Devine would later accompany Bush to Vietnam in late 1967 as a "cleared and witting commercial asset" of the agency, acted as his informal foreign affairs advisor, and had a close relationship with him through 1975.

In 1954, Zapata Off-Shore Company was formed as a subsidiary of Zapata Oil, with Bush as president of the new company. He raised some startup money from Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington Post, and his son-in-law, Philip Graham.[10][11]

Zapata Off-Shore accepted an offer from an inventor, R. G. LeTourneau, for the development of a mobile but secure drilling rig. Zapata advanced him $400,000, which was to be refundable if the completed rig did not function, followed by an additional $550,000 together with 38,000 shares of Zapata Off-Shore common stock when it did.

The U.S. government began to auction off mineral rights to the Caribbean, the Gulf of Mexico, and islands off the Central American coast in 1954, and in the late 1950s and early 1960, Zapata Off-Shore concentrated its business in these areas.[12] In 1958, drilling contracts with the seven largest U.S. oil producers included wells 40 miles (64 km) north of Isabela, Cuba, near the island Cay Sal.

In 1959 Bush bought control of Zapata Off-Shore, funded with $800,000,[13] splitting Zapata Corporation into two independent companies with the Liedtkes still in control of Zapata Petroleum. Bush moved his offices and family that year from Midland, Texas to Houston for access to the Caribbean through the Houston Ship Channel.[14][better source needed] But although Zapata Offshore had only a few drilling rigs, Bush set up operations also in the Gulf of Mexico, the Persian Gulf, Trinidad, Borneo, and Medellín, Colombia, and the Kuwait Shell Petroleum Development Company was among the company's clients.[15][better source needed]

In 1960, Jorge Díaz Serrano of Mexico was put in touch with Bush by Dresser Industries. Dresser was owned by Prescott Bush's Yale friends Roland and W. Averell Harriman, and had been George H.W. Bush's first employer upon his graduation from Yale, giving him his start in both the oil business and the defense contractor business.[16][better source needed] Serrano and Bush created a new company, Perforaciones Marinas del

Golfo, aka Permargo, in conjunction with Edwin Pauley of Pan American Petroleum, with whom Zapata had a previous offshore contract. The deal with Permargo is not mentioned in Zapata's annual reports, and SEC records are missing. In 1988, a Bush spokesman claimed that the deal lasted only from March to September 1960. However, Zapata sold the oil-drilling rig Nola I to Pemargo in 1964.[citation needed]

Zapata's filing records with the U.S.Securities and Exchange Commission are intact for the years 1955–1959, and again from 1967 onwards. However, records for the years 1960–1966 are missing. The commission's records officer stated that the records were inadvertently placed in a session file to be destroyed by a federal warehouse, and that a total of 1,000 boxes were pulped in this procedure. The destruction of records occurred either in October 1983 (according to the records officer), or in 1981 shortly after Bush became Vice President of the United States (according to, Wison Carpenter, a record analyst with the commission).

During the Bay of Pigs invasion and the Cuban Missile Crisis, Zapata allowed its oil rigs to be used as listening posts. In 1988, Barron's said Zapata was "a part time purchasing front for the [Central Intelligence Agency]."

In 1962, Bush was joined in Zapata Off-Shore by Robert Gow. [19] By 1963, Zapata Off-Shore had four operational oil-drilling rigs—Scorpion (from 1956, the first oil-drilling jackup rig ever built), Vinegaroon (from 1957), Sidewinder, and (in the Persian Gulf) Nola III.

In 1963, Zapata Petroleum merged with South Penn Oil to become Pennzoil.

The names in these reports are names we are getting used to such as Clay Shaw, world businessman, and world CIA ally in all matters CIA. Of course business women are in the forefront as well, but much of the commercial world we live in is so closely connected to government the weave is so tight specifically as corporate and conditional officers rotate and overly worries begin.

The Secret Service has preparations to identify Lone Wolves who have a grudge against a president. Many business hold grudges against presidents, even foreign policy ones of foreign policy methods and foreign police allegiances and foreign policy goals.

This is why JFK is dead, and who won that war against JFK one the war over who controlled the presidency - by gaining the presidency and putting down witnesses and opposition while in office.

One or more business interests especially with connections DID kill JFK and RFK and those businesses were the secret hands of US cia military cultivated companies.

The question many are now asking (such as Joan Mellon and others) is if the USA is free today, and I even wonder of the USA was free when JFK asserted US National control over the USA while fighting the CIA who already had control before he got to the Presidency, control based under Eisenhower and V.P. Nixon, Executive Action, Regime Change, and Gladio under the the Pope and United Fruit Company.

The dangers in crime and the intent of committing a crime especially as under Felony Intent is the willingness of a person to engage in a criminal act. Often crimes are messy, home occupants return or waken as a home is being burgled, and a shot is fired. How that happens or any other messy result of a serious crime unfolds in a group action is part of the reality that once in you must double down as a desperate act or be caught instead.

I assert and Timothy McVeigh and others may assert our government is in that position and now secretly has turned on its own population with what is called Fourth Generation Warfare, PsyOps #WETDIVISION

It is hear about on Conspiracy Theory sites in the death of Justice Scalia and I assert Thomas Crane Wales, both deaths explained as WETDIVISION still tied into my family secret OSS CIA history and the CIA and FBI covering up that with ongoing unexplained deaths.

The common burglar has a better change of fleeing than a major business or political figure and assassination journalists or judges their only option.

Ted Gunderson wrote "Techniques used to silence jounalists" that show how uniformed FBI, Secret Service, Department of Corrections or Marshalls or Deputies use assets from the criminal world to conduct assaults. Many assaults are directed by Law Enforcement Intelligence Units working with businesses (Lockeeed, Ratheon, others) on world intelligence matter and covertly disrupting terrorist threats with Subversion of them.

Operation Cable Splicer

BEHOLD A PALE HORSE

William Cooper

On February 16, 1975, in the SAN GABRIEL VALLEY TRIBUNE, it was reported that the L.E.A.A. (funded by the Department of Justice) and the Police Foundation (funded by the Ford Foundation) are prime movers toward implementing a national police force. Each, however, contends they support local police agencies. The total program invoices military units that have the function of taking over the administration of local and state governments. That program is "Operation Cable Splicer" by Army civil affairs groups, a sub-plan of "Operation Garden Plot" (the Martial Law program).

The method by which the national police concept is being presented to the public has changed. It was first disguised under the cover of protection against civil disturbances. This program was as follows:

A. Keep the people from gathering in the streets.

B. Isolate and neutralize the revolution's leadership.

G. Isolate and neutralize the revolution's leadership.

This is followed by successful prosecution in order to: (1) Validate the action of police; (2) Denying the arrestees propaganda materials; and (3) Denying them the opportunity to recover money damages against the police for arresting them. Let me quote for you the scenario which was developed for Cable Splicer One, Two and Three, to justify the needs for dealing with civil disturbances:

"Phase One: an arrest and shooting provoke crowd unrest and threats against public officials and a riot begins to form.

Phase Two: police vehicles are ambushed, various attempted assasinations of public officials occur, destruction and raiding of armories occur, and thousands of people begin to gather and local police loose control.

Phase Three: increased movement of rioters and the crowds must be dispursed before they become sympathetic with the rioters. The National Guard and the local police loose control." This scenario provides for an orderly transition from state to federal control.

The Deputy Attorney General of California commented, at a Cable Splicer Three conference, that anyone who attacks the State - even verbally - becomes a revolutionary and an enemy by definition. They are the enemy and must be destroyed. This program was taught in almost every state west of the Mississippi River and included as participants local active military, reserve military, and civilian police. The course name was "Civil Emergency Management Course". The official explanation that was to be given, if any questions were asked about the program, was: "This activity is a continuous, joint law enforcement-military liaison effort and a continuation of coordination established last year."

In 1976, the OAKLAND TRIBUNE carried the most complete explanation of what is planned. It is reported in it entirety in the NATIONAL CHRONICLE which added an analysis to the story. (The OAKLAND TRIBUNE'S editor died suddenly after the story was published.) And, I quote:

Last Saturday the California National Guard unveiled a new Law Enforcement Assistance Force - L.E.A.F., a specially trained and outfitted Military Police unit, whose members will serve as shock -troups in the state's war against political protesters and demonstrators.

I saw a full-dress exhibition of what the California National Guard has planned for the next American revolution. Helicopters, SWAT teams, civilian military policemen in jack boots and helmets, twelve-guage shotguns, .38 and .45 caliber pistols, radios, walkie talkies, and electrically-controlled intelligence centers wired for instant communications with any police force in the state.

L.E.A.F. is a 1000-member unit put together this year to handle unique law enforcement problems, such as mass civil disobedience, protest demonstrations and riots. In other words, breaking heads and taking names. L.E.A.F. has the support of Governor Brown, a quarter-million dollard worth of grants from the federal government, and no public opposition from civil liberties groups.

For all its ineptitude, however, L.E.A.F. has a frightening possibility from a civil liberty standpoint. It is a direct product of the California "Cable Splicer" conferences - a series of high-level secret meetings between government officials, lawy nforcement officers, and military planners held during the late '60s and early '70s. The meetings were held as late as 1975, so far as many public records show. These were the conferences which COUNTER-SPY magazine had identified as California's "Garden Plot Sub-Plan:.

Gary Davis, Governor Brown's righthand man, says L.E.A.F. is to assist civil police not to replace them. Gary says, "Civilians could expect a civilian type law enforcement rather than what is commonly known as Martial Law." Despite this assurance, L.E.A.F.'s exercises look disturbingly like the military coup described in the novel, SEVEN DAYS IN MAY.

L.E.A.F. soldiers with nightsticks sood at intersections, stopping cars with suspicious occupants, checking I.D. cards and generally intimidating onlookers with their SWAT style uniforms, their sidearms and helmets. Perhaps more ominously, several participants in the role-playing exercises Saturday admitted that, even under simulated pressure, there has already been a number of incidents where the L.E.A.F. troops used excessive force to quell disturbances - even though their orders forbade it." (End of quote.)

Former L.E.A.FA administrator, Charles Rosgovin, is on record as having stated that local law enforcement has failed and must be replaced by a national police force. Patrick Murphy, the administrator of the Police Foundation, states, "I have no fear of a national police force. Our 40,000 police departments are not sacred." Ex Attorney General, William Saxby, warned that, if we can go on as we are, crime will invade us and the national police will take over.

For the policemen who do not cooperate and still want to be policemen, there is the program of Contemporary Research, Inc. - and organization of psychologists, sociologists, education specialists and economic experts - who work toward a solution of many of today's social problems. The same organization develops specialized computer programming for the new world-wide military command and control system, as well as computer base systems for law enforcement agencies at all levels of government.

The L.E.A.A. alone will receive over a billion dollars a year over the next 4 years - even though it has been ineffective against crime. This is because the L.E.A.A. is not geared to fighting crime; it's geared to developing a system for takeover of the United States with the assistance of the Department of Defence.

The Planned Police State

crime is psychosurgery. If you don't cooperate with their programs, you are merely operated on so that you be as cooperative as an adding machine. Or, the L.E.A.A. supports drug research for the same purpose - to neutralize neurological sources of violence. Hence, as an example, if a law were passed whereby the ownership of firearms was declared to be illegal, you would be placed in one of these programs if you did not cooperate. The L.E.A.A. control exercise (at the state's level) is from the Office of Criminal Justice Planning of the Governor's Office. Here in Texas, Mr. Robert C. Flowers is still the executive director in that office. But all states have that particular department.

In May 1975, the L.E.A.A. NEWSLETTER describes the function of one of its organizations: the National Institute of Law Enforcement & Criminal Justice. This organization funds something called the "United Nations Clearinghouse" in Rome, Italy. The function of that organization is, among other things, the exchange of Criminal Justice System information with the Soviet Union. And it goes without saying that we have nothing to learn from the Criminal Justice System of the Soviet Unition. These incredible projects are being funded with our tax dollars.

The code name for these projects are: "Garden Plot" and "Cable Splicer". Garden Plot is the program to control the population. Cable Splicer is the program for an orderly takeover of the state and local governments by the federal government.

The Department of Defense Civil Disturbance Plan, also known by its cryptonym GARDEN PLOT, was a general US Army and National Guard plan to respond to major domestic civil disturbances within the United States. The plan was developed in response to the civil disorders of the 1960s and fell under the control of the U.S. Northern Command (NORTHCOM). It provided Federal military and law enforcement assistance to local governments during times of major civil disturbances.

The Garden Plot plan—drafted after the Watts, Newark, and Detroit riots—captures the acrimonious times when the document was drawn up. The "Plot" warns against "racial unrest," as well as "anti-draft" and "anti-Vietnam" elements."

The Pentagon activated Garden Plot to restore order during the 1992 Los Angeles Riots.[3] Garden Plot was superseded by USNORTHCOM Concept Plan (CONPLAN) 2502 following the September 11, 2001 attacks on the United States.[4][5] Under Homeland Security restructuring, it has been suggested that similar models be followed.

Operation Cable Splicer is a subprogram of the Rex 84 Program, which "was established on the reasoning that if a 'mass exodus' of illegal aliens crossed the Mexican/US border, they would be quickly rounded up and detained in detention centers by FEMA. Rex 84 allowed many military bases to be closed down and to be turned into prisons."

An investigation was completed in November 1975 by 4 sources: the Conservative publication AMERICAN CHALLENGE; the leftist NEW TIMES; the foundation financed FUND FOR INVESTIGATIVE JOURNALISM; and Don Wood of the trustworthy OZARK SUNBEAM. It involves the potential creation of a Police State through the use of the Pentagon and its computerized intelligence dossier (lodged in the Pentagon basement) of thousands of citiaens by the National Guard, state and local police departments, the L.E.A.A., plain-clothes military forces, SWAT teams, and the Department of Justice.

Chapter Six H.R. 4079 & FEMA

Brig. Gen. J.L. Julenic. senior Army officer of the Pentagon National Guard Bureau, has admitted, "I know of no state that did not have some form of these exercises within the last year."

Today the Cable Splicer handbook is composed of 6 loose-leaf 3-ring binders that are merely an outline for the impending takeover and destruction of our Constitution. The Sixth Army used the term "Cable Splicer" for the name of the operation, but it has not revealed the name of the operation in the other military areas within the U.S.

On page 4, paragraph 10, on Public Information, the instructions state: "As a means to prevent adverse publicity or misleading psychological effects in regard to coordinating, planning, and conducting this exercise, all military participants involved will perform such duties in civilian clothing when exercise oriented activities are conducted at law enforcement facilities. In the event inquiries are received regarding this exercise, the response should be limited to identifying the activity as a continuous, joint law enforcement-military liaison effort and a continuation of coordination established last year." On page 6, security guidance is explained to the effect that if anybody asks any questions, limit the information that is given out on the basis of it being in the interest of "national interest" (security).

Now, in the festivities celebrating the success of completion of the exercises, Gen. Stanly R. Larsen, the commanding general of the Sixth Army stated, "The most serious challenge facing all of us will be the challenge of discharging our legitimate responsibilities. For a significant portion of a soiety at large is likely to regard us with suspicion and to question, even challenge our authority on the basic assumption of out profession. Part of this challenge we must be prepared to deal with; a potentially dangerous portion of our society which, in truth, could well become the domestic enemy.

The manual includes instructions on operation of confinement facilities, handling and processing prisoners - including searching, transporting,, feeding, housing and handling of the special class of persons called "detainees". The plan also specifically includes a proposition for confiscation of privately-owned weapons and ammunition.

Files on Potential Prisoners

The Army has over 350 separate record centers containing substantial information on civilian-political activities. Virtually every major Army unit has its own set aside from this. The Fifth Army of San Antonio has over 100,000 files of its own. The overall operation command post is a domestic room at the Pentagon. There are 25 million cards on individuals and 760.000 on organizations held by the Defense Central Index of investigations alone. And this information includes political, sociological, economic and psychological profiles. All this type of information on 25 million Americans.

Since 1970, local county and state police forces all over the country have undertaken crash programs to install various kinds of computerized information systems. A large portion of this is being paid for by the LE.A.A. Beginning in 1970, Congress and the Joint Chiefs of Staff ordered the destruction of all these data banks, but thev were not destroyed. All the outlawed collection is now located at Mt. Weather. Clark County. West Virginia and similar Pentagon facilities designed as adjuncts to the president's emergency powers under the Executive Orders.

The cadre of specialized persons to enforce this plan are found in the U.S. Army Reserves-Military Police POW Command at Livonia, Michigan. Mr. Fennerin, of the 300th Military Police POW Command, at Livonia, told me, when I called him from the Federal Information Center at Houston, that the camps in the Command were for foreign prisonsers-of-war and for "enemies of the United States". I asked him if enemies of the United States included U.S. citizens. He became angry, wouldn't deny it, and referred me to a very sinister individual at the Army Reserve facility here at Houston who I talked to; who explained to me that the prisoners were called "inventory" and "internees". He would not deny that the camps were for U.S. citizens.

I called the Pentagon, spoke with the defendant there, and then with the provost marshal for the Fifth Army, and do you know what? Not one of these persons would deny that the system was for U.S. citizens. The provost marshal for the Fifth Army - when I mentioned the names of all the camp sites - said, "Well at least you've got that right."

The names of the detention facilities that I gave him were a list that I had acquired from the OZARK SUNBEAM. That list of names was the same list of facilities designated under the old Detention Act of 1950 as "emergency detention centers". But there is only one problem: That act was supposed to have been repealed in 1971.

After some research, I found out what the problem was. One congressman - when the hearings were held for the repeal of the Emergency Detention Act - mentioned that there am 17 other bits of law that provided for the same thing. So it didn't matter whether they ever repealed the Emergency Detention Act. The public was in fact tricked by the Congress of the United States!

Here are the designated sites: Tucked away in the Appalachian Mountains of centeral Pennsylvania is a bustling town of approximately 10,000 people. Fifteen to twenty years ago it was a sleepy village of 400. Allanwood, Pennsylvania is linked to New York City by Interstate 80. It takes up approximately 400 acres and Is surrounded by a 10-foot barb-wire fence. It now holds approximately 300 minimum security prisoners to keep it in shape. It could hold 12.000 people from one day to the next.

Thirty miles from Oklahoma City, on U.S.66, is El Reno, Oklahoma with an approximate population of 12,000. Due west, 6 miles from town, almost in sight of U.S.66, is a complex of buildings which could pass for a small school. However, the facility is overshadowed by a guard house which appears to be something like an airport control tower - except that it's manned by a vigilant, uniformed guard. This a federal prison camp or detention center. These camps are all located near super -highways or near railroad tracks or both. William Cooper

It is these attacks I have been subjected to and like death threats and being harassed the times I am writing my books and places I am writing my books and what I am writing, the message verbally and by conduct is that my life is in danger and even forfeit if I continue my writings. Others like Jen Moore (before her death) have been told the same things as these (Ted Gunderon, Jem Moore and others said they will not stand down to death threats.

These are my books and if the First Amendment is to be subjective at all they and my authoring them should be protected and not harassed.

It may be that I criticize Nixon, I often do. I read his presidential library materials in the hundreds (Nixon Center) in the earl 2000's on the phases of his life and presidential history on the topic including Home Grown Terrorism and frustrated immigrant populations becoming radicalized. I have heard that discussion from many angles and traveled the world and seen may nations and many parts of the USAS (I doubt the safety of anyone in the custody of any facility of the USA.)

Many hold bigoted views a I do and even emotive views towards Latin American Narco gangs and other forms of violence including Zeta Mexican US border violence towards journalsits on both sides of the border as Breitbart (deceased) Texas covers as well.

Both my views and fellings on race are protected constituionaly and as equally protected as my books that are being harassed.

In fact one of my central assertions is that intermational mafia Nicarougan, Columbain, Mexcian, Bogata, and other undocumented have funded themsleves in the USA as my victims in a mafia money laundering scheme backed by prison operations in the USA where institutional workers find sources of income when the have none, one source of incomce blaming a white with a trust fund for alleged toxicity towrards the immigrant families, I have haveshown none. My views are on policy.

These families in some sort of COINTELPRO are getting gains from allegations aginst me that are both baseless and police supported, and these allegations lead to demands from me and that leads to fights as I assert their foreign national or skid row vioelence faking of claims against me..

Molest is a word that came up recently. Molest can mean to interfere with, to be a problem to, in recent years it means more and more to harm a child sexually but it still has a meanign of anyone being molested, treated in a non-consentual way, and that is abuse. Chilren are planted on my activity who act disgustig (I find the dress of them as insane and the behavior insane) and that sexuall harrasemnt of minors trying to call attention to themselves or even adults doing so as unwanted apporaches to me is both abusive and harrasing. The appearences they say to me is that I am stalkgin them and look how often I am around them.

As a Mafia scheme I continue to assert drugs, minors, Protection Racket protectors of minors, and those incited to attack me as a predator white in skid row area all a play unfolding of based on potrayles of me and my activities that are staged distruthes to accomplish smear of me, a smear campaign to incite and invite all forms of retaliation and even combat with me, the assailants of me are called "Nobel Savagesz" otherwise filth whoi find a nobel mission of attacking a person they allege a toxitity to.

In fact the Secret Servicec knows of Megacide, a loser who wishes by assasinating a larger than life figure to elevate themselves into larger than life existance. I am not larger than life but easy pray for skid row groups to allege my alt right presence is a civil rights harm to them, and perhaps even to their children they say are so sexy and irresistble to me.

Jen Moore asserted money launderng, blackmail and extortion by immigrant gangs and she was right. She hersef a Trump supporter now deceased but asserted churches were staging their children as victim as a mafia activity to get at the Donegan trust, and that is what is happening.

I can not get housing because for eigth years in Texas lease data is being faked when I do have a lease, when I do have a lease neibghors who would watch my home in my abscence are replaced with niehbors who will help burglar my home in my abseence or stage events that did not happen even using their similar apartements for a forger of my identity to be caught in a trapk the neighors set, that confession of a duplicate of me used to defraud my trust and incite against me all violations of the ORgnaized Crime Act of 1970 just as silencing Jem Moore was homocide to kill a witness to CIA and FBI misconduct, her statign the CIA would kill her before her deathy by thug attacks.

The police do not seem to he defending this but rather participating in it and over decades. Similar to the story of others stlaked for decades confirmed by Ted Gunderson. Drug pipes and allegations I do drugs are planted in conversation and planted in items strewn about and I have not done drugs for 40 years. Neither had my older brother before he died and I doubt my elderly parents knew people ever that had admitted doing drugs, at least other than me.

Nevertheless police back the crackhead set over me as the mafia runs its course.

Ted Gunderson died a pacifist writing endless letters getting facts and transmitting them but he did finally die. So did Jen Moore and I have undergone less than less than lethal response.

I have a recaction tot he police. They are dangerous. They are dangerous outside the prison system and more violent and dangerous in the prisons where the have more snitch assailants and less supervision by the public or press.

I have never expected I could win a fight with police for fire or FBI.

I have always expected that as they die I face one less threat condition preventing my normal middle class life and writing carrer.

MC Veighs killing of law enforcement I had previouisy viewed in an ecosystem lense, that it angered police and the public and would cost us liberty in the long run. THere has been no movement towards liberty at all and now I see it in more direct and irrefutable terms. When police die and what my family lived for my normal life in a normal and safe and housed world becomes real, and the threats to that are gone.

Many Conspiracy Theorist with interesting arguments using the facts assert a Cabal insdie the USA wanted the attacks of 9/11 espeically the ONI office tied to Admiral Halsey, the Von Trapps, and that history, if they know that history. So far, at least until recently I had a different theory.

9/11 was Saudi nationalism that wished the USA and Standard Oil out of Saudi Arabi where we back an oppressive royla family.

The issue for me is differnet though. After the times of my life under GangSTalk I have visited at least twice and been staled there, in about 2006 or so, and 2020 or so. After all I experienced in the Transportation Center, at Times Square singing New York New York into my laptop YouTube screen, and how the Stalk by police and fire acted there (like it did at the US Supreme Court and other Courts) I view the 9/11 events as my safety being achieved with the firefights and police were killed in the building collapse.

At the Police and Fire attack under MKULTRA COINTELRP I am certain their deaths are part of my safety and I will never doubt that. It is possible the terrorists thougth that too, that an evil was comeing out of the USA (as Jen Moore and Ted Gunderson believed) and while those deaths were small in number they are a part of the USA being safer.

What PsyOops are, Guerrilla Warfare of thugs either as special forces or criminal assets who will be contracters for thug work as assassinations occur are called Quiet War. The hope of the assassination is an unsovled crime, or a patsy blamed and the case closed.

In the Pentagon Papers case of Elseberg the US Supreme Court opinions inlcuded one justice saying exposing the deceptions of Government to the public is what the Constitution hoped reportign would do.

On Date: April 19, 1995 Timothy James McVeigh and Terry Nichols carried out the bombing. The quite war was no longer quiet. While the war has not been won I value the dead police officers I have never been able to understand, how they think evidence plants is policing.

Psychological Warfare is designed to destroy reputions even bring false convictions, pscyhiatric diagnosis, all of which has happened to me costing my entire lifespan.

Attempts to get out of the USA are mared by the l ong record I have of ending up on mental wards making allegations I can not prove of spooks attacking me or that I was on defensive of CIA and FBI misconduct.

While in the USA I will recognize dead police an fire as safety from Espionage attacks on my life, now that lifespan closing out after the decades of abuse.

Whether McVeigh was right to do so or correct to do so are separate and independent questions. I recently read Discartes on what is true to self, and being true to what we ourselves as individuals know to be true. Based on my expderiences as a victim of police abuse and accounts I read of others suffering police abuse I believe to be linguistically fanciful about it Mc Veigh was right to do so, within his rights as an excersize of his and the People's rights.

My belief then and now is that he probably was not correct to do so, that journalism is the best answer to corruption, but the Internet offered less promise in the time of McVeigh. Today it has grown to a point it may be able to take down, get around, gain support for Conspiracy Theories of Cabal corruption and make the case for exposing the acts of the Cabal and its methods and the identity and nationality of the Cabal and its illegal money laundering, drug dealing, assassinations, and murders.

I hope it does not turn into a body count between the victims of nationalism versus internationalism. It is best we weigh the cases for each by measure of constitutionality and a distaste for violence except for the exigent of circumstances.

I have stated a few names over and over again here but there is a wider list of celebrities and many thousands at least more than that who make please for public support from the GangSTalk. The State and its elites are certainly responsible. Lower-ranking members of police operations and members of the public such as business may or may not be aware of the entirety of the circumstances they are being used for or for what real reasons the State as, so while the act in unison culpability may filter out somewhat as people become dupes and participate in sham investigation at State requests.

I list them here. https://www.facebook.com/groups/tiresources/ https://www.facebook.com/groups/165918446241837/ they continually advise not confronting Stalkers or the agencies and documenting the problem and that is good strategic advice but the exigency of the moment is also at hand and my real hybrid realization is the police are too dangerous to to me to fight if I take on the CONTELPRO I am being attacked with and can not survive as it is, and retaliation gives the state an excuse against me, but understanding and appreciating acts against the Predator State, the USA, by Timothy McVeigh was an acted called for by history.

According to the Oxford Dictionary of English, the etymology of the word can be traced back to the Old English word hlāford which originated from hlāfweard meaning "loaf-ward" or "bread-keeper", reflecting the Germanic tribal custom of a chieftain providing food for his followers. - Wikipedia

The planted Noises and Planted People and Planted Items or Items Stolen from my Home of the Vandalism to my home are part of an attempt to publicly and privately sexually humiliate me as interested in minors and the in-sophisticate, and not and adult with adult interests.

The appearances of the sights and sounds and items and people near me and their position to me is a smear campaign to cause me damage and it has and it enriches those taking actions of me using the smear as a pretext to take or incite adversarial acts towards me. I am unappreciative of that, and Lord Mav Veigh is the final and only so far success in this struggle against Law Enforcement. He is my Lord.

The Message of Treason As Jen Moore Named Names Before Death Threats Against Her Were Carried Out

Allen Dulles (and through him John Foster Dulles) and the CIA in Latin American overthrows.

Allen Dulles as related to the story-line of why JFK was assassinated by Free Masons.

The CIA, OSS, and Vatican, Jesuits. Freud and Jung (and also Max Jacobson) in Central Euorope Austria well ahead of US researchers on brain and personality doing work for the CIA during WWI and through that into WWII.

"Catholics in Action" CIA and Vatican is what she Jen Moore says on tapes still available that they were called, by the Paul Williams book Unholy Alliance you can find confirmation, Latin American and world overthrows by Vatican assisted guerrilla groups. And that this flows out of the story of the Donegan family and how this unfolded using our home exterior shot most would not recognize as that, a Donegan former address.

Operation Gladio: The Unholy Alliance between the Vatican, the CIA, and the Mafia by Paul L. Williams is that book.

So what was she talking about? Edward Paul Donegan answers

George V (George Frederick Ernest Albert; 3 June 1865 – 20 January 1936) was King of the United Kingdom and the British Dominions, and Emperor of India, from 6 May 1910 until his death in 1936.

Born during the reign of his grandmother Queen Victoria, George was the second son of the Prince and Princess of Wales (later King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra) Medicine rarealy gets obsessed with fault but this is probably not the same story-line of HPV from males transfered to females.

Mary of Teck (Victoria Mary Augusta Louise Olga Pauline Claudine Agnes; 26 May 1867 – 24 March 1953) was Queen of the United Kingdom and the British Dominions, and Empress of India, from 6 May 1910 until 20 January 1936 as the wife of King-Emperor George V.

Born and raised in the United Kingdom, Mary was the daughter of Francis, Duke of Teck, a German nobleman, and Princess Mary Adelaide of Cambridge, a granddaughter of King George III.

The Central European and not uncommon generally gene FOXP2 was likely from her Romanian side and it is that area of Romainian linguistics Geral Sosbee of the FBI (now stalked) worked in for the FBI.

George and Mary had two sons we will focus on. Younger Albert of York are England was second in line but ascended to the throne to become King George VI. This is after his older brother Edward of Wales becoms King Edward VIII until Nazi ties in 1396 force him to step down and frozen out of the family mary in the USA and live like as a Duke, a sort of Royal in title but on sebatical from governing.

In 1925 that younger brother did poorly in speaking and writing and Great Brittain as an empire had been shrinking since since the revolutions against monarchies.

Out of Wedlock Windsors including by Maria Kutschera (and either Albert or Edward, or perhaps after some Barvarian Ale both) had some CIA smuggled children into the USA. Glorain Gainey my mother, Norma Jean, and likely many others including Julie Andrews and Harold Gainey (who like Glorian, and Ed carried FOXP2) were helped into the USA by Admiral Halsey and Joseph Kennedy Sr and Navy Undersecratary FDR.

Now if this sounds too famous a gossip to be believable much more mundane Barron Vpn Trapp and Austrian Navy hero will after his English torpedo famly wife (Agatha Whitehead) dies mary Maria Kutschera and Maria Kutschera the 1925 flunk out of the convent now pregant will send children to the USA and then raise the Von Trapp Whitehead chidlren just as her Unlce (who set the whole thing up Franz Kutchera (her gaurdian) wanted singing Nazi propoganda on stage for Hitler.

For many reasons this did not work and Maria and Captain Von Trapp and the Whitehed children moved into the USA in to North Carolina where Glorian and Harold Gainy my mther and uncle had also lived.

When it came to planting a sleeper in to a foreigh country and saying by to a child who wants to do that? No one. Unless the parents are even real parents and just show up on birth certificate records and don't even raise the chidlren, as was with Obama Jr. Norma Jean, and GLorian Gainey.

These test births of macthing parents for what could in the worst case be called expendable children to lose to ovreseas CIA sleepers is what the Alleen Dulles sleepers program did.

Many US families came out of this or were responsinle for this incluing the Bush family. WHen JFK objected as most Roman Catholics at the lay level did they were silenced and the Bush Family, Burns family, Mueller family, DuPonts or many others never confessed killing JFK keep the sleepers being planted in MKUTLRA.

Dean Rusk is another name. He was at Davidson College likely an underground railroad of protestants when Glorian Gainey arrived 1926, and a few years later joining Sullivan and Cromwell or Brown Brothers Harriman and working with the British Secret Service and CIA teams on the program.

Kinsey and Masters and Johnson refererd to by Jen Moore as part of these studies

During the late-1920s, the Rockefeller Foundation created the Medical Sciences Division, which emerged from the former Division of Medical Education. The division was led by Richard M. Pearce until his death in 1930, to which Alan Gregg succeeded him until 1945. During this period, the Division of Medical Sciences made contributions to research across several fields of psychiatry. In 1935 the foundation granted $100000 to the Institute for Psychoanalysis in Chicago. This grant was renewed in 1938, with payments extending into the early-1940s. This division funded women's contraception and the human reproductive system in general, but also was involved in funding controversial eugenics research. Other funding went into endocrinology departments in American universities, human heredity, mammalian biology, human physiology and anatomy, psychology, and the studies of human sexual behavior by Alfred Kinsey.

In the interwar years, the foundation funded public health, nursing, and social work in Eastern and Central Europe.

In 1950, the foundation expanded their international program of virus research, establishing field laboratories in Poona, India, Trinidad, Belém, Brazil, Johannesburg, South Africa, Cairo, Egypt, Ibadan, Nigeria, and Cali, Colombia, among others.[43] The foundation funded research into the identification of human viruses, techniques for virus identification, and arthropod-borne viruses.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. was an outspoken supporter of eugenics.[50] Even as late as 1951, John D. Rockefeller III and John Foster Dulles, who was chairman of the foundation at the time, established the Population Council to advance family planning, birth control, and population control, and goals of the eugenics movement.

The Rockefeller Foundation, along with the Carnegie Institution, was the primary financier for the Eugenics Record Office, until 1939.[54][55] The foundation also provided grants to Margaret Sanger and Alexis Carrel, who supported birth control, compulsory sterilization and eugenics.[56] Sanger went to Japan in 1922 and influenced the birth control movement there.

By 1926, Rockefeller had donated over $400,000, which would be almost $4 million adjusted for inflation in 2003, to hundreds of German researchers,[58] including Ernst Rüdin[59] and Otmar Freiherr von Verschuer, through funding the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute of Anthropology, Human Heredity, and Eugenics,[60] (also known as the Max Planck Institute for Medical Research[61]) which conducted eugenics experiments in Nazi Germany and influenced the development of Nazi racial scientific ideology. Rockefeller spent almost $3 million between 1925 and 1935, and also funded other German eugenicists, Herman Poll, Alfred Grotjahn, Eugen Fischer, and Hans Nachsteim, continuing even after Hitler's ascent to power in 1933; Rüdin's work influenced compulsory sterilisation in Nazi Germany.[62] Josef Mengele worked as an assistant in Verschuer's lab, though Rockefeller executives did not know of Mengele and stopped funding that specific research before World War II started in 1939.

The Rockefeller Foundation continued funding German eugenics research even after it was clear that it was being used to rationalize discrimination against Jewish people and other groups, after the Nuremberg laws in 1935. In 1936, Rockefeller fulfilled pledges of $655,000 to Kaiser Wilhelm Institute, even though several distinguished Jewish scientists had been dropped from the institute at the time.[63] The Rockefeller Foundation did not alert the world about the racist implications of Nazi ideology, but furthered and funded eugenic research through the 1930s.[64] Even into the 1950s, Rockefeller continued to provide some funding for research borne out of German eugenics.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. was an outspoken supporter of eugenics.[50] Even as late as 1951, John D. Rockefeller III and John Foster Dulles, who was chairman of the foundation at the time, established the Population Council to advance family planning, birth control, and population control, and goals of the eugenics movement.[51][52][53]

The Rockefeller Foundation, along with the Carnegie Institution, was the primary financier for the Eugenics Record Office, until 1939.[54][55] The foundation also provided grants to Margaret Sanger and Alexis Carrel, who supported birth control, compulsory sterilization and eugenics.[56] Sanger went to Japan in 1922 and influenced the birth control movement there.[57]

By 1926, Rockefeller had donated over $400,000, which would be almost $4 million adjusted for inflation in 2003, to hundreds of German researchers,[58] including Ernst Rüdin[59] and Otmar Freiherr von Verschuer, through funding the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute of Anthropology, Human Heredity, and Eugenics,[60] (also known as the Max Planck Institute for Medical Research[61]) which conducted eugenics experiments in Nazi Germany and influenced the development of Nazi racial scientific ideology. Rockefeller spent almost $3 million between 1925 and 1935, and also funded other German eugenicists, Herman Poll, Alfred Grotjahn, Eugen Fischer, and Hans Nachsteim, continuing even after Hitler's ascent to power in 1933; Rüdin's work influenced compulsory sterilisation in Nazi Germany.[62] Josef Mengele worked as an assistant in Verschuer's lab, though Rockefeller executives did not know of Mengele and stopped funding that specific research before World War II started in 1939.[58]

The Rockefeller Foundation continued funding German eugenics research even after it was clear that it was being used to rationalize discrimination against Jewish people and other groups, after the Nuremberg laws in 1935. In 1936, Rockefeller fulfilled pledges of $655,000 to Kaiser Wilhelm Institute, even though several distinguished Jewish scientists had been dropped from the institute at the time.[63] The Rockefeller Foundation did not alert the world about the racist implications of Nazi ideology, but furthered and funded eugenic research through the 1930s.[64] Even into the 1950s, Rockefeller continued to provide some funding for research borne out of

German eugenics.[65]

On 7 March 1953 as Eisenhower Nixon take the Whitehouse sworn in Presidents Day Feb 20 1953 following the November 1952 election a policy letter moves between General Edward Lansdale and General CD Jackson.

The plans JFK inherits conflict JFK and JFK will take the blame for Bay of Pigs. He was against these mobsters but the deals were already made the Casino Mobs would be part of the popular rebellion against Fidel Castro Lansdale and his assassination team meant for Latin America will assassinate JFK and CD Jackson will help cover it up buying and altering the Zupruder film.

Edward Geary Lansdale (February 6, 1908 – February 23, 1987)[1] was a United States Air Force officer until retiring in 1963 as a major general before continuing his work with the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). Lansdale was a pioneer in clandestine operations and psychological warfare. In the early 1950s, Lansdale played a significant role in suppressing the Hukbalahap Rebellion in the Philippines.

In the early 1950s, Allen Dulles gave Lansdale $5-million to finance CIA operations against the Hukbalahap movement, the rural peasant farmers fighting for land-reform in the Philippines.

In 1954, he moved to Saigon and started the Saigon Military Mission, a covert intelligence operation which was created to sow dissension in North Vietnam. Lansdale believed the United States could win guerrilla wars by studying the enemy's psychology, an approach that won the approval of the presidential administrations of both Kennedy and Johnson.

From 1957 to 1963, Lansdale worked for the Department of Defense in Washington, serving as Deputy Assistant Secretary for Special Operations, Staff Member of the President's Committee on Military Assistance, and Assistant Secretary of Defense for Special Operations. During the early 1960s, he was chiefly involved in clandestine efforts to topple the government of Cuba, including proposals to assassinate Fidel Castro. Much of this work was under the aegis of "Operation Mongoose", which was the operational name for the CIA plan to topple Castro's government.

In 1950, President Elpidio Quirino personally requested that Lansdale be transferred to the Joint United States Military Assistance Group, Philippines, to assist the intelligence services of the Armed Forces of the Philippines in combating the Communist Hukbalahap. Lansdale was an early practitioner of psychological warfare. Adopting a tactic previously used in the Philippines by the Imperial Japanese Army during World War II, Lansdale spread rumors that Aswangs, blood-sucking demons in Philippine folklore, were loose in the jungle. His men then captured an enemy soldier and drained the blood from his body, leaving the corpse where it could be seen and making the Hukbalahap flee the region.

Lansdale became friends with Ramon Magsaysay, then the secretary of national defense, and with his help Magsaysay eventually became President of the Philippines on December 30, 1953.[6] Lansdale is said to have run Magsaysay's campaign for the CIA in the 1953 Philippines General Election.

[7] Lansdale helped the Philippine Armed Forces develop psychological operations, civic actions, and the rehabilitation of Hukbalahap prisoners.

In 1955 Graham Greene published The Quiet American. The novel is set in Vietnam and involves the relationship between Thomas Fowler and Alden Pyle. Fowler is a veteran British journalist in his fifties, who has been covering the war in Vietnam for over two years. Pyle, the “Quiet American” of the title, is officially an aid worker, but is really employed by the CIA. It is believed that the Pyle character is partly based on that of Edward Lansdale.

Greene had worked for the British Secret Service during the Second World War. Although a fairly successful novelist at the time, Greene was also employed by The Times and Le Figaro as a journalist. Between 1951 to 1954 spent a long period of time in Saigon. In 1953 Lansdale became a CIA advisor on special counter-guerrilla operations to French forces against the Viet Minh.

Spartacus Eductional: When President John F. Kennedy took office, Lansdale was appointed as Assistant Secretary of Defence for Special Operations. He argued that the CIA should work closely with exiles in Cuba, particularly those with middle-class professions, who had opposed Fulgencio Batista and had then become disillusioned with Fidel Castro because of his betrayal of the democratic process. Lansdale was also opposed to the Bay of Pigs operation because he knew that it would not trigger a popular uprising against Castro. Kennedy respected the advice of Lansdale and selected him to become project leader of Operation Mongoose.

Over 400 CIA officers were employed full-time on this project. Sidney Gottlieb of the CIA Technical Services Division was asked to come up with proposals that would undermine Castro's popularity with the Cuban people. Plans included a scheme to spray a television studio in which he was about to appear with an hallucinogenic drug and contaminating his shoes with thallium which they believed would cause the hair in his beard to fall out.

These schemes were rejected and instead Richard Bissell decided to arrange the assassination of Fidel Castro. In September 1960, Bissell and Allen W. Dulles, the director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), initiated talks with two leading figures of the Mafia, Johnny Roselli and Sam Giancana. Later, other crime bosses such as Carlos Marcello, Santos Trafficante and Meyer Lansky became involved in this plot against Castro.

Gilorma (Sam) Giancana

In 1926 Giancana was arrested for murder. However, charges were dropped after the key witness was murdered. He was later sent to prison for theft and burglary. On his release he went to work for leading gangster Paul Ricca. By the 1950s Giancana was one of the leading crime bosses in Chicago.

In 1960 Giancana was involved in talks with Allen W. Dulles, the director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), about the possibility of murdering Fidel Castro. It is claimed that during the 1960 presidential election Giancana used his influence in Illinois to help John F. Kennedy defeat Richard Nixon. The two men, at that time, shared the same girlfriend, Judith Campbell Exner.

After becoming president John F. Kennedy appointed his brother, Robert Kennedy, as U.S. Attorney General. The two men worked closely together on a wide variety of issues including the attempt to tackle organized crime. One of their prime targets was to get Giancana arrested.

On 22nd November, 1963, President Kennedy was assassinated. Rumours began to circulate that Giancana and other gang bosses such as Santos > Trafficante, Carlos Marcello, and Johnny Roselli, were involved in the crime.

> Giancana was now ordered to appear before Church's committee. However, before he could appear, on 19th June, 1975, Sam Giancana was murdered in his own home. He had a massive wound in the back of the head. He had also been shot six times in a circle around the mouth. https://spartacus-educational.com/JFKgiancana.htm

According to Chauncey Holt accountant to Meyers Lansky the CIA had long been using Casino muscle through the 1950's at least and this was part of how the CIA opetrated post WWII. Holt and Meyers Lanksy worked extensively for the CIA in these operations while part of the mob. It was kind of like hiring magicians who could make face masks and make slight of hand. These mob skill could assassinate, do jobs others would not be tied to, etc., IT is a key point that the CIA could deny they were CIA operatives. THe whole point of Bay of Pigs is that the rebels were supposed to be those Cubans who oppose Castro, not a CIA built flotilla, and not US military in uniform seen during the invasion.

Robert Maheu, a veteran of CIA counter-espionage activities, was instructed to offer the Mafia $150,000 to kill Fidel Castro. The advantage of employing the Mafia for this work is that it provided CIA with a credible cover story. The Mafia were known to be angry with Castro for closing down their profitable brothels and casinos in Cuba. If the assassins were killed or captured the media would accept that the Mafia were working on their own.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation had to be brought into this plan as part of the deal involved protection against investigations against the Mafia in the United States. Castro was later to complain that there were twenty CIA response attempts on his life. Eventually Johnny Roselli and his friends became convinced that the Cuban revolution could not be reversed by simply removing its leader. However, they continued to play along with this CIA plot in order to prevent them being prosecuted for criminal offenses committed in the United States.

After the end of the left-wing Huk insurgency in the Philippines and after building support for Magsaysay's presidency, CIA director Allen Dulles instructed Lansdale to "do what you did in the Philippines [in Vietnam]."

From 1957 to 1963, Lansdale worked for the Department of Defense in Washington, serving as Deputy Assistant Secretary for Special Operations, Staff Member of the President's Committee on Military Assistance, and Assistant Secretary of Defense for Special Operations. During the early 1960s, he was chiefly involved in clandestine efforts to topple the government of Cuba, including proposals to assassinate Fidel Castro. > MEMORANDUM FOR C.D. JACKSON
> Subject: Latin America
> 1. You requested some thoughts on Latin America, based upon lessons learned in the Philippines, In order to be of most help to you, in the possibly brief time before my departure overseas, I am dividing my suggestions in two parts. The first part is attached. The second part requires deep study of an area unfamiliar to me. If there is insufficient time to write the second part, there are competent folks in C.I.A. who can do it.

2, The first part is an outline of my personal opinion of the basic mechanism needed to win the struggle we face. It is a start, not exhaustive. It is the first time I have tried to describe it concisely, so perhaps there are some rough spots. Latin America is rich in assets for its most efficient working,

3. The basic mechanism must be locked at as only the covert or semi-covert part of the United States team in each country. The rest of the team should be playing in the same game, towards the same goal. If it isn't, the United States loses. Thus » the critical task falls upon the Executive, for clear statement of our Policy towards eech country and compliance of officials to both spirit and letter of that policy.

4. The second part of my suggestions concerns the application of the basic mechanism to each country. The start should be a penetrating review of what we know of each country. From this review, by individual country, we list the real targets to be destroyed, the assets (including names of persons) in that country which will destroy the targets, and a sketch of how an agent or agents make those assets viable. The description of the basic mechanism contains thoughts on this,

5. If this way of doing is acceptable, then the means are next. You know where help awaits you in doing it successfully,

Prouty: "In 1963 there was in Washington, D.C. the 113th Army Intelligence Unit, which was highly trained for this purpose. A counterpart of this unit was the 112th at 4th Army Headquarters at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. The 112th had a detachment, the 315th, in San Antonio. Its commanding officer, among others, complained bitterly that his unit was not used in protection along with the Secret Service after he had keen told that the services of his unit would not be needed. On more than one occasion he called his headquarters and called Washington to correct this "oversight." Like the old dog, he and his men had keen well trained and they were ready to go into action. It takes strong and deft control from the top to keep a unit out of the action for which it has been trained. - Guns of Dallas by Prouty

A History of Railroads in Dallas — Museum of the American ... the Houston & Texas Central Railroad With the arrival of the Houston & Texas Central Railroad (H&TC) in 1872, John Neely Bryan, considered the founder of Dallas, would realize his vision of the city becoming a rail destination. The main difference between a pergola and a gazebo is the function of the roof. A gazebo and a pavilion provide full coverage from the sun, while a pergola allows for sunlight to shine through its slatted roof. Typically, a pergola provides partial shelter and shade over a garden, pathway, or patio.

John F. Kennedy was shot from the Trainyard directly in front of the Trainyard. Colson the Hobos and others were in the trainyard. One problem. There was a grassy knoll taking up the space as Elm Street veered away from the block to get under the street level railroad.

The trajectory of that first bullet did not correspond to a line from the President to that LHO lair. In fact, the medical evidence, statements from the doctors at Parkland Hospital, as well as other evidence indicates that the shot came from the front. -Prouty

Forensic artist Lois Gibson studied the New Orleans picture, and agrees that it is indeed Chauncey Holt. She testified that the skull shape, ears, shoulders, elbows all fit the known photos of Holt. The photo she used was a still made by the television station crew in New Orleans in August 1963. She also forensically connected Holt with the older tramp in the Dealey Plaza photos taken on the day of the assassination. She has successfully linked his nasal fold, nose, chin intersections, and ears with known photos of him and with the Dealey Plaza photos of the tramps.

When the Kennedy motorcade reached the Dealey Plaza Chauncy Holt was in the parking lot [of the Trainyard] behind the Grassy Knoll. After the shooting took place Holt went to hide in a railroad car. He was joined by Charles Harrelson and Charles Rogers. However, soon afterwards, Dallas police officers entered the railroad car and arrested all three men. The three men along with Jim Brading were interviewed by Gordon Shanklin of the FBI and then released.

The ultimate keeper of secrets regarding who killed JFK BY ERIK HEDEGAARD

The middle-class son of a Hamburg, New York, attorney, E. Howard Hunt graduated from Brown University in 1940 with a bachelor's in English, joined the Navy during World War II, served in the North Atlantic on the destroyer Mayo, slipped and fell, took a medical discharge and wound up in China working under "Wild" Bill Donovan in the newly formed Office of Strategic Services. When the OSS was transformed into the CIA, Hunt jumped onboard. He loved action as much as he hated communism, and he soon began operating with a level of arrogance entirely typical of the CIA. He was instrumental, for instance, in planning the 1954 coup in Guatemala that overthrew the left-leaning, democratically elected president, Jacobo Arbenz, and ushered in forty years of military repression, which ultimately cost 200,000 Guatemalans their lives. Years later, when asked about the 200,000 deaths, E. Howard said, “Deaths? What deaths?” Like Saint says, he never felt guilt about anything: “He was a complete self-centered WASP who saw himself as this blue blood from upstate New York. ‘I’m better than anybody because I’m white, Protestant and went to Brown, and since I’m in the CIA, I can do anything I want.’ Jew, nigger, Polack, wop – he used all those racial epithets. He was an elitist. He hated everybody.”

“Whenever I made a sound, he looked at me with those hateful, steely eyes of his, a look of utter contempt and disgust, like he could kill,” St. John says. “He was a mean-spirited person and an extremely cruel father. I was his firstborn son, and I was born with a clubfoot and had to have operations. I suffered from petit-mal seizures. I was dyslexic and developed a stutter. For the superspy not to have a superson was the ultimate disappointment, like, ‘Here’s my idiot son with the clubfoot and glasses. Can we keep him in the closet, Dorothy?’

That same year, his father retired from the CIA after being relegated to the backwaters for his role in the Bay of Pigs. He went to work as a writer for a PR firm. He was bored and missed the hands-on action of the CIA. The following year, however, his lawyer pal Chuck Colson, who was special counsel to Nixon, called him up with an invitation to join the president’s Special Investigations Unit as a kind of dirty-tricks consultant. He signed on. He really thought he was going places.

Saint Jophn Hunt's attitude was, “This has nothing to do with you. This stuff is of historical significance and needs to come out, and if you're worried that it'll make him out to be a liar, everybody knows he's a liar already. Is this going to ruin the Hunt name? The Hunt name is already filled with ruination."

So when Saint arrived in Miami to talk to his dad, the two men spent a lot of time waiting for Laura to leave the house. Saint painted the living room and built a wheelchair ramp. In the mornings, he cooked breakfast. In the afternoons, he plopped a fishing hat on E. Howard's head and wheeled him around the neighborhood. They drank coffee together. And watched lots of Fox News. And when Laura finally left, they talked.

Understanding the Geography and landscaping of Dealy Plaza

Kennedy Assassination Site, Elm St. between N. Houston St. and the Triple Underpass – A white "X" on the Elm St. pavement marks the spot where President Kennedy was hit

Houston Street runs like a tangent line to the outer edge of Dallas. It runs mustly North South

Three streets leave it in a perpendicular heading East and running in the East West direction. The North most is Elm Street. The midddle street is Main, and the south most is Commerce Street.

If this were a normal city block then buildings would be between these streets. But the three streets have to narrow to being right next to each other to share a dug down underpass undere the railroad tracks that are blocking street level traffic.

As Elm Street (and Commerce street on the other side of Main) move to converge at the Triple Underpass to get under the railroad artery they cut accross the would have been city bock cutting two triangles of grassway that make up the plaza as embankments.

John F. Kennedy was not shot directly in front of the Books Depository. He was shot from the lot next door to the book depository and that was the train-yard, Holt was in and the Hobos were in.

You might have been able to say Johh F. Kennedy was shot directly in front of the train-yard next to the Book Depository but to the east of the Depository, the lot next door, the Train-yard.

But this would not exactly be true. What was directly in front of the Train-yard was a grassy embankment because Elm Street was closing in with the center street as Commerce Street was so all three streets couuld fit under the narrow underpass.

Thust the shots went from the train-yard across then landscaping then to Elm Street where the JFK limo was.

Jean Hill who was next to JFK ran to where Holt said he was, where Charles Harrelson and E. Howard Hun,t and others were, in the trainyard and she crossed the grassy knoll to get toward the train-yard.

As Col Prouty noted and shows in Guns of Dallas and took photos of for Lee Harevy Oswald to shoot at JFK who was in front of the lot next to the Book Depository, the Train-yard lot, he would have to turn his eyesitght and rifle so far eastward the trees would have blocked his view. That is true today a least and the representations of this points of forensic interest are very cleary shown in the museum.

A GATEWAY TO THE CITY

In this photo on the Sixth Floor Museum website what Ed Donegan calls the Grasshy Knoll Architecture is shown that includes a probably Sentry spot on each side as the railroad yard is guarded from public trespasser into it

THE FRONT DOOR OF DALLAS

Hailed as “The Front Door of Dallas,” Dealey Plaza served as the major gateway to the city from the west and, equally important, as a symbol of civic pride. In November 1963, that focus changed when President Kennedy was assassinated in the heart of the plaza. Instantly, the cradle of Dallas history became known as an internationally recognized murder site.

Grief-stricken citizens began to bring flowers and mementos to Dealey Plaza within hours of the assassination. These were the first acts in the transformation of the area into an unofficial memorial site to honor the slain president.

Dealey Plaza is a significant part of Dallas history. The site marks the birthplace of Dallas, originally founded by John Neely Bryan in the 1840s. Almost a century later, as part of President Franklin Roosevelt’s Works Progress Administration, the familiar white concrete colonnades and triple underpass were constructed, creating a vehicular park to serve as gateway to the city. The project was spearheaded by civic leader George Bannerman Dealey. After G.B. Dealey died in 1946, a bronze statue to honor him was installed in the park that already bore his name. Google Knowledge Panel

Who else is at Dealy Plaza adds to the intrigue. The lot next to the Book Depository contained and contains several sheds on looks like yard supervisor control shedd, another power, another A/C and there was parking. I met the wife of Robert J. Groden in the area and she told me the Sherri's used some of that parking. Lots of Crimninal Justice was in that area with courts and other city buildings.

Also of note was the Commerce Street side of Dealy Plaza. A very large military building is there now for where inductees are takein into the US Army. A Military Entrance Proccessing Center (MEPS).

The are contained the Trade Mart of Clay Shaw, International Business interests, and the US Military having access to these at one time guarded railroad tracks and could alreaby have been a nest of CIA DOD activities mixing arms shipments into Trade Mart Cargo, etc.,

At the very least if Prouty had been on site (or others who were asked not to come) the military building and other city buildings might have been part of security.

With so many police facilities it was easy for cops to quickly seize any evidence.,

One final note from my August 23, 2023 visit that I saw in the exhibits. Cabell as City Mayor had control of Dallas Police and there was some sort of militia inside Dallas PD, and Lee Harvey Oswald was going to transferred per 72 hours detainment policy into County custody. If that happened The Last Phone Call to North Carolina talkiong about Nazis would have been harder to stop, and other interviewers might take notes on what Oswald was saying. Oswald was shot in the city building as he was being taken to County custody.

Further evidence of the hand of the conspiracy is found immediately after the shooting. Security on the scene was almost nonexistent. Photographic evidence, including the famous "tramp" photographs, show that ten men were "arrested" at Dealey Plaza. No record of these arrests exists and there is none in the Warren report.

In the case of the "tramps," those three men who were rounded up on orders of Police Inspector J. Herbert Sawyer (the man in charge of security activity at Dealey Plaza), we find a sequence of astounding actions. A Sergeant D.V. Harkness was ordered to stop a freight train and remove the men. Harkness arrested the three men and turned them over to policemen Marvin Wise and Billy Bass, who marched them all the way from the west side of the Book building, around the north side of the Plaza, and into the vehicle entrance of the Sheriff's office. Few people realize this entire procedure took place almost on the steps of the Sheriff's office. While Wise and Bass were marching these men to the Sheriff's office, William Allen, George Smith, and Jack Beers of the Dallas Times Herald, the Fort Worth Star Telegram, and the Dallas Morning News, took several pictures of them.

I have been given a list of the names of these men. - Prouty

The Dal-Tex building on the other side (City of Dalls) side of the Book Depository will be raided and a nest of spies including one Mafia and oil company tied person was found, who fleed upon confrontation (Brading) and is a possible suspect in RFK's death.

Edward Geary Lansdale (February 6, 1908 – February 23, 1987) was a United States Air Force officer until retiring in 1963 as a major general before continuing his work with the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). Lansdale was a pioneer in clandestine operations and psychological warfare. In the early 1950s, Lansdale played a significant role in suppressing the Hukbalahap Rebellion in the Philippines. In 1954, he moved to Saigon and started the Saigon Military Mission, a covert intelligence operation which was created to sow dissension in North Vietnam. Lansdale believed the United States could win guerrilla wars by studying the enemy's psychology, an approach that won the approval of the presidential administrations of both Kennedy and Johnson.

Lansdale served with the Office of Strategic Services in World War II, ultimately being promoted to major. He extended his tour to remain in the Philippines until 1948, helping the Philippine Army rebuild its intelligence services and resolve the cases of large numbers of prisoners of war.

With most of Lansdale's prior Army intelligence officer experience being with U.S. Army Air Forces [With James Paul Donegan?] units, he transferred to the U.S. Air Force and was commissioned as a captain when it was established as an independent service in 1947. After leaving the Philippines in 1948, he served as an instructor at the Strategic Intelligence School at Lowry Air Force Base, Colorado, where he received a temporary promotion to lieutenant colonel in 1949.

In 1950, President Elpidio Quirino personally requested that Lansdale be transferred to the Joint United States Military Assistance Group, Philippines, to assist the intelligence services of the Armed Forces of the Philippines in combating the Communist Hukbalahap. Lansdale was an early practitioner of psychological warfare. - wikipedia

According to Indonesian political observer Ikrar Nusa Bhakti in a 2017 book, the Philippines and Indonesia have generally avoided turbulence in their bilateral relations since diplomatic relations were established on November 24, 1949.

One cause of strain between the two countries in the past, according to Bhakti, was when then-United States president Dwight Eisenhower's administration used American military bases in Subic and Clark in the Philippines to undertake Central Intelligence Agency operations to support the Pemerintahan Semesta (Permesta) secessionist rebellion in the Indonesian island of Sulawesi from 1957 to 1959.

But the Philippines and Indonesia have maintained ties through geography, trade, migration, assimilation, and intermarriage. Former foreign secretary Teodoro Locsin Jr. also mentioned in a December 2019 speech the countries' "natural affinity" derived from linguistic, cultural, and religious ties, as well as mutual shared defense.

As trading partners, the Philippines and Indonesia have enjoyed agreements in various industries. These include satellite internet, coal supply, energy, data centers, construction, and infrastructure.

"Indonesia has a robust financial technology industry with so many unicorns and decacorns that, we believe, should be co-opted by the Philippines," Mark Castro, secretary general of the Philippine Business Club Indonesia, told Rappler.

Bhakti wrote that changing governments in Indonesia and the Philippines have not changed cordial and fully cooperative relations between the two countries, even through issues related to border crossings, undocumented migrants, or transnational crime. https://www.rappler.com/nation/things-to-know-ties-bind-philippines-indonesia/

Read the Letter To Jim Garrison from Fletcher Prouty. for substantive and extremely interesting information about General Ed Lansdale and Gen. Charles Cabel, who's brother Earle Cabel happened to be the Mayor of Dallas on that fateful Nov.22nd, 1963. Jim Garrisons great book "On The Trail Of The Assassins" (by Prouty)

March 6, 1990

Dear Jim,

It is amazing how things work, I am at home recuperating from a major back operation (to regain my ability to walk); so I was tossing around in bed last night...not too comfortable...and I began to think of Garrison. I thought, "I have got to write Jim a letter detailing how I believe the whole job was done."

By another coincidence I had received a fine set of twenty photos from the Sprague collection in Springfield, Mass. As the odds would have it, he is now living just around the corner here in Alexandria. Why not? Lansdale lived here, Fensterwald lives here, Ford used to live here. Quite a community.

I was studying those photos. One of them is the "Tramps" picture that appears in your book. It is glossy and clear. Lansdale is so clearly identifiable. Why, Lansdale in Dallas? The others don't matter, they are nothing but actors and not gunmen but they are interesting. Others who knew Lansdale as well as I did, have said the same thing, "That's him and what's he doing there?"

As I was reading the paper the Federal Express man came with a book from Jim, that unusual "Lansdale" book. A terrible biography. There could be a great biography about Lansdale. He's no angel; but he is worth a good biography. Currey, a paid hack, did the job. His employers ought to have let him do it right.

I had known Ed since 1952 in the Philippines. I used to fly there regularly with my MATS Heavy Transport Squadron. As a matter of fact, in those days we used to fly wounded men, who were recuperating, from hospitals in Japan to Saigon for R&R on the beaches of Cap St Jacque. That was 1952-1953. Saigon was the Paris of the Orient. And Lansdale was "King Maker" of the Philippines. We always went by way of Manila. I met his team.

He had arrived in Manila in Sept 1945, after the war was over, for a while. He had been sent back there in 1950 by the CIA(OPC) to create a new leader of the Philippines and to get rid of Querino. Sort of like the Marcos deal, or the Noriega operation. Lansdale did it better. I have overthrown a government but I didn't splash it all around like Reagan and Bush have done. Now, who sent him there?

Who sent him there in 1950 (Truman era) to do a job that was not done until 1953 (Ike era)? From 1950 to Feb. 1953 the Director of Central Intelligence was Eisenhower's old Chief of Staff, Gen Walter Bedell Smith. Smith had been Ambassador to Moscow from 1946 to 1949. The lesser guys in the CIA at the time were Allen Dulles, who was Deputy Director Central Intelligence from Aug. 1951 to Feb. 1953. Frank Wisner became the Deputy Director, Plans (Clandestine Activities) when Dulles became DDCI. Lansdale had to have received his orders from among these four men: Truman, Smith, Dulles, and Wisner. Of course the Sec State could have had some input...i.e. Acheson. Who wanted Querino out, that badly? Who wanted HUKS there?

In Jan 1953 Eisenhower arrived

John Foster Dulles was at State and Gen Smith his Deputy. Allen Dulles was the DCI and General Cabel his deputy. None of them changed Lansdale's prior orders to "get" Querino.

Lansdale operated with abandon in the Philippines. The Ambassador and the CIA Station Chief, George Aurell, did not know what he was doing. They believed he was some sort of kook Air Force Officer there...a role Lansdale played to the hilt. Magsaysay became President, Dec 30, 1953.

With all of this on the record, and a lot more, this guy Currey comes out of the blue with this purported "Biography". I knew Ed [ward Lansdale] well enough and long enough to know that he was a classic chameleon. He would tell the truth sparingly and he would fabricate a lot. Still, I can not believe that he told Currey the things Currey writes. Why would Lansdale want Currey to perpetuate such out and out bullshit about him? Can't be. This is a terribly fabricated book. It's not even true about me. I believe that this book was ordered and delineated by the CIA.

At least I know the truth about myself and about Gen. Krulak. Currey libels us terribly. In fact it may be Krulak who caused the book to be taken off the shelves. Krulak and his Copley Press cohorts have the power to get that done, and I encouraged them to do just that when it first came out. Krulak was mad!

Ed told me many a time how he operated in the Philippines. He said, "All I had was a blank checkbook signed by the U.S. government". He made friends with many influential Filipinos. I have met Johnny Orendain and Col Valeriano, among others, in Manila with Lansdale. He became acquainted with the wealthiest Filipino of them all, Soriano. Currey never even mentions him. Soriano set up Philippine Airlines and owned the big San Miguel beer company, among other things. Key man in Asia.

Lansdale's greatest strategy was to create the "HUKS" as the enemy and to make Magsaysay the "Huk Killer." He would take Magsaysay's battalion out into a "Huk" infested area. He would use movies and "battlefield" sound systems, i.e. fireworks to scare the poor natives. Then one-half of Magsaysay's battalion, dressed as natives, would "attack" the village at night. They'd fire into the air and burn some shacks. In the morning the other half, in uniform, would attack and "capture" the "Huks". They would bind them up in front of the natives who crept back from the forests, and even have a "firing" squad "kill" some of them. Then they would have Magsaysay make a big speech to the people and the whole battalion would roll down the road to have breakfast together somewhere...ready for the next "show".

Ed would always see that someone had arranged to have newsmen and camera men there and Magsaysay soon became a national hero.

This was a tough game and Ed bragged that a lot of people were killed; but in the end Magsaysay became the "elected" President and Querino was ousted "legally."

This formula endeared Ed to Allen Dulles. In 1954 Dulles established the Saigon Military Mission in Vietnam...counter to Eisenhower's orders. He had the French accept Lansdale as its chief. This mission was not in Saigon. It was not military, and its job was subversion in Vietnam. Its biggest job was that it got more than 1,100,000 northern Vietnamese to move south. 660,000 by U.S.Navy ships and the rest by CIA airline planes. These 1,100,000 north Vietnamese became the "subversive" element in South Vietnam and the principal cause of the warmaking. Lansdale and his cronies (Bohanon, Arundel, Phillips, Hand, Conein and many others) did all that using the same check book. I was with them many times during 1954. All Malthuseanism.

I have heard him brag about capturing random Vietnamese and putting them in a Helicopter. Then they would work on them to make them "confess" to being Viet Minh. When they would not, they would toss them out of the chopper, one after the other, until the last ones talked. This was Ed's idea of fun...as related to me many times. Then Dulles, Adm. Radford and Cardinal

[From 1957 to the Assassination of JKF]

At about 1957 Lansdale was brought back to Washington and assigned to Air Force Headquarters in a Plans office near mine. He was a fish out of water. He didn't know Air Force people and Air Force ways. After about six months of that, Dulles got the Office of Special Operations under General Erskine to ask for Lansdale to work for the Secretary of Defense. Erskine was man enough to control him.

By 1960 Erskine had me head the Air Force shop there. He had an Army shop and a Navy shop and we were responsible for all CIA relationships as well as for the National Security Agency. Ed was still out of his element because he did not know the services; but the CIA sent work his way.

Then in the Fall of 1960 something happened that fired him up. Kennedy was elected over Nixon.

Right away Lansdale figured out what he was going to do with the new President. Overnight he left for Saigon to see Diem and to set up a deal that would make him, Lansdale, Ambassador to Vietnam. He had me buy a "Father of his Country" gift for Diem...$700.00.

I can't repeat all of this but you should get a copy of the Gravel edition, 5 Vol.'s, of the Pentagon Papers and read it. The Lansdale accounts are quite good and reasonably accurate.

Ed came back just before the Inauguration and was brought into the White House for a long presentation to Kennedy about Vietnam. Kennedy was taken by it and promised he would have Lansdale back in Vietnam "in a high office". Ed told us in OSO he had the Ambassadorship sewed up. He lived for that job.

He had not reckoned with some of JFK's inner staff, George Ball, etc. Finally the whole thing turned around and month by month Lansdale's star sank over the horizon. Erskine retired and his whole shop was scattered. The Navy men went back to the navy as did the Army folks. Gen Wheeler in the JCS asked to have me assigned to the Joint Staff. This wiped out the whole Erskine (Office of Special Operations) office. It was comical. There was Lansdale up there all by himself with no office and no one else.

He boiled and he blamed it on Kennedy for not giving him the "promised" Ambassadorship to let him "save" Vietnam.

[Operation Mongoose and Operation Cameolot]

Then with the failure of the Bay of Pigs, caused by that phone call to cancel the air strikes by McGeorge Bundy, the military was given the job of reconstituting some sort of Anti-Castro operation. It was headed by an Army Colonel; but somehow Lansdale (most likely CIA influence) got put into the plans for Operation Mongoose...to get Castro...ostensibly.

The U.S. Army has a think-tank at American University. It was called "Operation Camelot".

This is where the "Camelot" concept came from. It was anti-JFK's Vietnam strategy. The men running it were Lansdale types, Special Forces background. "Camelot" was King Arthur and Knights of the Round Table: not JFK...then.

Through 1962 and 1963 Mongoose and "Camelot" became strong and silent organizations dedicated to countering JFK.

Mongoose had access to the CIA's best "hit men" in the business and a lot of "strike" capability. Lansdale had many old friends in the media business such as Joe Alsop, Henry Luce among others.

[Zapruder was contacted at home by Richard Stolley, an editor at Life magazine (and first editor of the future People magazine). They arranged to meet the following morning to view the film, after which Zapruder sold the print rights to Life for $50,000.[27] Stolley was representing Time/Life on behalf of publisher Charles Douglas Jackson.

The following day (November 24), Life purchased all rights to the film for a total of $150,000 (approximately $1,434,000 today)

[General Charles Jackson (C. D.) Jackson (March 16, 1902 – September 18, 1964) was a United States government propagandist and senior executive of Time Inc. As an expert on psychological warfare he served in the Office of Strategic Services in World War II and later as Special Assistant to the President in the Eisenhower-Nixon administration.

After the war, he became Managing Director of Time-Life International from 1945 to 1949. He later became publisher of Fortune Magazine.

From 1951 to 1952, he served as president of the anticommunist Free Europe Committee. He was a speech writer for Dwight Eisenhower's successful 1952 presidential campaign. He was assigned to be Eisenhower's liaison between the newly-created CIA and the Pentagon.

From February 1953 to March 1954, Jackson served as adviser to the President on psychological warfare.[4] He worked closely with the Psychological Strategy Board and was a member of the Operations Coordinating Board. He was also a member of the Committee on International Information Activities, which was known, after its chairman, William Harding Jackson, as the Jackson Committee.

During 1953 and 1954, Jackson was key in establishing the Bilderberg Group and ensuring American participation. He attended meetings of the group in 1954, 1957, 1958, 1960, 1961, 1962, 1963, and 1964.

Jackson was a defender of Radio Free Europe, stating, "Over the years, Radio Free Europe has never, in a single broadcast or leaflet, deviated from its essential policy, and did not broadcast a single program during the recent Polish and Hungarian developments which could be described as an 'incitement' program."

He later served in a position at the United Nations. From 1958 to 1960, he served as a speechwriter and White House manager after the departure of Sherman Adams and the death of John Foster Dulles. In 1960, he was publisher of Life magazine.] - Wikipedia

Prouty continuing about Lansdale: With this background and with his poisoned motivation I am positive that he got collateral orders to manage the Dallas event under the guise of "getting" Castro. It is so simple at that level. A nod from the right place, source immaterial, and the job's done.

The "hit" is the easy part. The "escape" must be quick and professional. The cover-up and the scenario are the big jobs. They more than anything else prove the Lansdale mastery.

ZLansdale was a master writer and planner.

He was a great "scenario" guy. It still have a lot of his personally typed material in my files. I am certain that he was behind the elaborate plan and mostly the intricate and enduring cover-up. Given a little help from friends at PEPSICO he could easily have gotten Nixon into Dallas, for "orientation': and LBJ in the cavalcade at the same time, contrary to Secret Service policy.

He knew the "Protection" units and the "Secret Service", who was needed and who wasn't. Those were routine calls for him, and they would have believed him. Cabell could handle the police.

The "hit men" were from CIA overseas sources, for instance, from the "Camp near Athena, Greece. They are trained, stateless, and ready to go at any time. They ask no questions: speak to no one. They are simply told what to do, when and where. Then they are told how they will be removed and protected. After all, they work for the U.S. Government. The "Tramps" were actors doing the job of cover-up. The hit men are just pros. They do the job for the CIA anywhere. They are impersonal. They get paid. They get protected, and they have enough experience to "blackmail" anyone, if anyone ever turns on them...just like Drug agents. The job was clean, quick and neat. No ripples.

The whole story of the POWER of the Cover-up comes down to a few points. There has never been a Grand Jury and trial in Texas. Without a trial there can be nothing. Without a trial it does no good for researchers to dig up data. It has no place to go and what the researchers reveal just helps make the cover-up tighter, or they eliminate that evidence and the researcher.

The first man LBJ met with on Nov 29th, after he had cleared the foreign dignitaries out of Washington was Waggoner Carr, Atty Gen'l, Texas to tell him, "No trial in Texas...ever."

The next man he met, also on Nov 29th, was J. Edgar Hoover. The first question LBJ asked his old "19 year" neighbor in DC was "Were THEY shooting at me?" LBJ thought that THEY had been shooting at him also as they shot at his friend John Connally. Note that he asked, "Were THEY shooting at me?" LBJ knew there were several hitmen. That's the ultimate clue...THEY.

The Connallys said the same thing...THEY. Not

Oswald.

Then came the heavily loaded press releases about Oswald all written before the deal and released actually before LHO had ever been charged with the crime. I bought the first newspaper EXTRA on the streets of Christchurch, New Zealand with the whole LHO story in that first news...photos and columns of it before the police in Dallas had yet to charge him with that crime. All this canned material about LHO was flashed around the world.

Lansdale and his Time-Life (CD Douglas) and other media friends, with Valenti in Hollywood, have been doing that cover-up since Nov 1963.

Even the deMorenschildt story enhances all of this. In deM's personal telephone/address notebook he had the name of an Air Force Colonel friend of mine, Howard Burrus. Burrus was always deep in intelligence. He had been in one of the most sensitive Attache spots in Europe...Switzerland. He was a close friend of another Air Force Colonel and Attache, Godfrey McHugh, who used to date Jackie Bouvier. DeM had Burrus listed under a DC telephone number and on that same telephone number he had "L.B.Johnson, Congressman." Quite a connection. Why...from the Fifties yet.?

Godfrey McHugh was the Air Force Attache in Paris. Another most important job. I knew him well, and I transferred his former Ass't Attache to my office in the Pentagon. This gave me access to a lot of information I wanted in the Fifties. This is how I learned that McHugh's long-time special "date" was the fair Jacqueline...yes, the same Jackie Bouvier. Sen. Kennedy met Jackie in Paris when he was on a trip. At that time JFK was dating a beautiful SAS Airline Stewardess who was the date of that Ass't Attache who came to my office. JFK dumped her and stole Jackie away from McHugh. Leaves McHugh happy????

At the JFK Inaugural Ball who should be there but the SAS stewardess, Jackie--of course, and Col Godfrey McHugh. JFK made McHugh a General and made him his "Military Advisor" in the White House where he was near Jackie while JFK was doing all that official travelling connected with his office AND other special interests. Who recommended McHugh for the job?

General McHugh was in Dallas and was on Air Force One, with Jackie, on the flight back to Washington..as was Jack Valenti. Why was LBJ's old cohort there at that time and why was he on Air Force One? He is now the Movie Czar. Why in Dallas?

See how carefully all of this is interwoven. Burrus is now a very wealthy man in Washington. I have lost track of McHugh. And Jackie is doing well. All in the Lansdale--deM shadows.

One of Lansdale's special "black" intelligence associates in the Pentagon was Dorothy Matlack of U.S. Army Intelligence. How does it happen that when deM. flew from Haiti to testify, he was met at the National Airport by Dorothy?

The Lansdale story is endless. What people do not do is study the entire environment of his strange career. For example: the most important part of my book, "The Secret Team", is not something that I wrote. It is Appendix III under the title, "Training Under The Mutual Security Program".

This is a most important bit of material. It tells more about the period 1963 to 1990 than anything. I fought to have it included verbatim in the book. This material was the work of Lansdale and his crony General Dick Stillwell. Anyone interested in the "JFK Coup d'Etat" ought to know it by heart.

I believe this document tells why the Coup took place. It was to reverse the sudden JFK re-orientation of the U.S. Government from Asia to Europe, in keeping with plans made in 1943 at Cairo and Teheran by T.V. Soong and his Asian masterminds. Lansdale and Stillwell were long-time "Asia hands" as were Gen Erskine, Adm

Radford, Cardinal Spellman, Henry Luce and so many others.

In October 1963, JFK had just signalled this reversal, to Europe, when he published National Security Action Memorandum #263 saying...among other things...that he was taking 1000 troops home from Vietnam by Christmas 1963 and ALL AMERICANS out of Vietnam by the end of 1965. That cost him his life.

JFK came to that "Pro-Europe" conclusion in the Summer of 1963 and sent Gen Krulak to Vietnam for advance work. Kurlak and I (with others) wrote that long "Taylor-McNamara" Report of their "Visit to Vietnam" (obviously they did not write, illustrate and bind it as they traveled). Krulak got his information daily in the White House. We simply wrote it. That led to NSAM #263. This same Trip Report is Document #142 and appears on page 751 to 766 of Vol. II of the Gravel Edition of the Pentagon Papers. NSAM #263 appears on pages 769-770 (It makes the Report official). This major Report and NSAM indicated an enormous shift in the orientation of U.S. Foreign Policy from Asia back to Europe. JFK was much more Europe- oriented, as was his father, than pro-Asia. This position was anathema to the Asia-born Luces, etc.

There is the story from an insider. I sat in the same office with Lansdale, (OSO of OSD) for years.

I listened to him in Manila and read his flurry of notes from 1952 to 1964. I know all this stuff, and much more. I could write ten books. I send this to you because I believe you are one of the most sincere of the "true researchers". You may do with it as you please. I know you will do it right. I may give copies of this to certain other people of our persuasion. (Years ago I told this to Mae Brussell on the promise she would hold it. She did.)

Now you can see why I have always said that identification of the "Tramps" was unnecessary, i.e. they are actors. The first time I saw that picture I saw the man I knew and I realized why he was there. He caused the political world to spin on its axis. Now, back to recuperating.

L. Fletcher Prouty

Edward Geary Lansdale (February 6, 1908 – February 23, 1987)

Lansdale was a pioneer in clandestine operations and psychological warfare. In the early 1950s, Lansdale played a significant role in suppressing the Hukbalahap Rebellion in the Philippines. In 1954, he moved to Saigon and started the Saigon Military Mission, a covert intelligence operation which was created to sow dissension in North Vietnam. Though Lansdale is not usually considered one of the 10 to 12 arrested and released "Hobos" or "Tramps" of the train-yard he is spotted in the foot traffic with the Tramps and may even have had the authority to get all including himself released on Personal Recognizance professional courteous with the approval of Earle Cabell the Mayor of Dallas.

Lansdale in OSS CIA overthrow work believed in the right weapon system (or capability) to match an assassination need.

This could be funding in a clandestine ways church or rebel group or even fanatic who was opposed to the existing government, and acting through that person or group.

According to Prouty and others (and visual records remain) not only was Lansdale present but he had a close friend CD Douglas at Time who bought and altered the Zupruder film.

Chauncey Holt

Holt's story was somewhat exonerating in the case of JKF though shows the slush black budget racketeering infrastructure of CIA criminals. In his lifetime he said on camera and in his book he was part of the team used for Cuba that included many CIA figures and he knew Harrelson who was with him in the train yard parking lot by the Grassy Knoll.

Holt's role was being in a car in the parking lot though he was uncertain for what at the time, and thought later he might have been second patsy if needed. He was to escape to the train cars in that same train yard lot if trouble came. He did not know who actually killed JFK and thought he like Oswald been left in the area as a patsy or an emergency resource, he did not know why he was there and talked about being their on camera.

He as written a book called Scoundrel in which he describes doing the fakery the CIA would need like printing false documents that would be required including in this matter printing Secret Service ID cards that turned out to be the wrong color, the Secret Service would color code and say in advance what color an ID might be to suppress forgeries.

Gordon Leslie Arnold (August 14, 1941 – October 15, 1997)[1] was an American man who claimed to have witnessed the assassination of United States President John F. Kennedy in Dallas, Texas.

Arnold did not become known as an eyewitness to the assassination until 1978, when on August 27 of that year, The Dallas Morning News published an article by Earl Golz alleging that several "counterfeit" agents of the United States Secret Service were in Dealey Plaza shortly before and after the assassination.

Chancey Holt identifies him as being there and that Holt later knew him well. Harrelson introduced himself to Holt by his own name at the scene. The newscasters as they interview Holt on this matter can not get a statement from Harrelson easily since he was in Marion Illinois prison for assassinating a judge.

According to the news-caster of Ocho

News and Weather so far the best investigators of the story Holt said the story of the assassination of JFK dates back to 1941. Ed Donegan offer his theory based on the P-51 and Battle of Britain, the Kingdom's Finest Hour.

An early P-51B assigned to the 356th FS, 354th FG, Eighth Air Force in England

The Battle of Britain (German: die Luftschlacht um England, "the air battle for England") was a military campaign of the Second World War, in which the Royal Air Force (RAF) and the Fleet Air Arm (FAA) of the Royal Navy defended the United Kingdom (UK) against large-scale attacks by Nazi Germany's air force, the Luftwaffe. It was the first major military campaign fought entirely by air forces. The British officially recognise the battle's duration as being from 10 July until 31 October 1940, which overlaps the period of large-scale night attacks known as the Blitz, that lasted from 7 September 1940 to 11 May 1941. German historians do not follow this subdivision and regard the battle as a single campaign lasting from July 1940 to May 1941, including the Blitz.

The primary objective of the German forces was to compel Britain to agree to a negotiated peace settlement. In July 1940, the air and sea blockade began, with the Luftwaffe mainly targeting coastal-shipping convoys, as well as ports and shipping centres such as Portsmouth. On 1 August, the Luftwaffe was directed to achieve air superiority over the RAF, with the aim of incapacitating RAF Fighter Command; 12 days later, it shifted the attacks to RAF airfields and infrastructure. As the battle progressed, the Luftwaffe also targeted factories involved in aircraft production and strategic infrastructure. Eventually, it employed terror bombing on areas of political significance and on civilians. - Wikipedia

The prototype of the Mustang, designated NA-73X, was rolled out by North American Aviation on 9 September 1940, albeit without an engine, and was first flown the following 26 October.[1] The Mustang was originally designed to use a low-altitude rated Allison V-1710 engine. Unlike later models, Allison-powered Mustangs were characterized by the carburetor air intake placed on the dorsal surface of the nose, immediately behind the propeller.

Mustang Mk I (NA-73 and NA-83)

The first production contract was awarded by the British for 320 NA-73 fighters, named Mustang Mk I by the British Purchasing Commission; a second British contract soon followed, which called for 300 more (NA-83) Mustang Mk I fighters. Contractual arrangements were also made for two aircraft from the first order to be delivered to the US Army Air Corps for evaluation; these two airframes, 41-038 and 41-039 respectively, were designated XP-51 [designation experimental].

With their long range and excellent low-altitude performance, they were employed effectively for tactical reconnaissance and ground-attack duties over the English Channel, but were thought to be of limited value as fighters due to their poor performance above 15,000 ft (4,600 m).

RAF Mustangs (Mk Is, which were not drop tank capable) made history on October 22, 1942 when they escorted 22 Vickers Wellington medium bombers on a daylight raid to Germany, thus becoming the first RAF single-seat fighters to fly over the country during World War II.

P-51/Mustang Mk IA (NA-91)

designated NA-91 by North American, was placed by the US Army on 7 July 1940. This was on behalf of the RAF in a Lend-Lease deal. All but the last 57 went to the British. After the attack on Pearl Harbor, the USAAF 'held back' these Mustang Mk IAs for their own use. Fifty-five of these P-51-1s were outfitted with a pair of K.24 cameras in the rear fuselage for tactical low-level reconnaissance and re-designated F-6A (the "F" for photographic, although confusingly also still referred to as the P-51 or P-51-1). Two kept their P-51-1 designation and were used for testing by the USAAF. This, the plane of James Donegan had the guns in the wings replaced with cameras control by the firing button the cockpit.

Two XP-51s (serials 41-038 and 41-039) set aside for testing arrived at Wright Field on 24 August and 16 December 1941 respectively.[nb 1] The small size of this first order reflected the fact that what had been known as the USAAC up until late June 1941[8] was still a relatively small, underfunded peacetime organization. After the late-June 1941 reorganization of the USAAC into the United States Army Air Forces, roughly six months before the attack on Pearl Harbor changed the outlook for the United States regarding involvement in global hostilities against the Axis literally overnight.

The 150 NA-91s were designated P-51 by the newly formed USAAF and were initially named Apache, although this was soon dropped and the RAF name, Mustang, adopted instead. The USAAF did not like the mixed armament of the British Mustang Is and instead adopted an armament of four long-barrelled 20 mm (.79 in) Hispano Mk II cannon, deleting the .50 cal (12.7 mm) "nostril"-mounted weapons. The British designated this model as Mustang Mk IA, and would fit a number with similar equipment.

The 500 aircraft were designated A-36A (NA-97). This model became the first USAAF Mustang to see combat. One aircraft (British serial EW998) was passed to the British who gave it the name Mustang Mk I (Dive Bomber).

On April 1942, the RAF's Air Fighting Development Unit (AFDU) tested the Mustang and found its performance inadequate at higher altitudes. As such, it was to be used to replace the P-40 in Army Cooperation Command squadrons, but the commanding officer was so impressed with its maneuverability and low-altitude speeds, he invited Ronnie Harker (from Rolls-Royce's Flight Test establishment) to fly it. Rolls-Royce engineers rapidly realized equipping the Mustang with a Merlin 61 engine with its two-speed two-stage supercharger would substantially improve performance. The company started converting five aircraft as the Mustang Mk X. Apart from the engine installation, which utilized custom-built engine mounts designed by Rolls-Royce and a standard 10 ft 9 in (3.28 m)-diameter four-bladed Rotol propeller from a Spitfire Mk IX, [17] the Mk X was a straightforward adaptation of the Mk I airframe, keeping the same radiator duct design. The Vice-Chief of the Air Staff, Air Marshal Sir Wilfrid R. Freeman, lobbied vociferously for Merlin-powered Mustangs, insisting two of the five experimental Mustang Xs be handed over to Carl Spaatz for trials and evaluation by the U.S. Eighth Air Force in Britain.[18] The high-altitude performance improvement was remarkable: the Mk X (serial number AM208) reached 433 mph (376 kn; 697 km/h) at 22,000 ft (6,700 m), and AL975 tested at an absolute ceiling of 40,600 ft (12,400 m).

P-51B and P-51C and D will use the British Merlin engine and propeller and change the course of the war.

An early P-51B assigned to the 356th FS, 354th FG, Eighth Air Force in England. The two XP-51Bs[nb 2] were a more thorough conversion than the Mustang X, with a tailor-made engine installation and a complete redesign of the radiator duct. The airframe itself was strengthened, with the fuselage and engine mount area receiving more formers because of the 355 lb (161 kg) greater weight of the Packard V-1650-3 compared with the V-1710. The engine cowling was completely redesigned to house the Packard Merlin,

The first XP-51B flew on 30 November 1942.[28] Flight tests confirmed the potential of the new fighter, with the service ceiling being raised by 10,000 ft (3,000 m), with the top speed improving by 50 mph (43 kn; 80 km/h) at 30,000 ft (9,100 m). American production was started in early 1943 with the P-51B (NA-102) being manufactured at Inglewood, California, and the P-51C (NA-103) at a new plant in Dallas, Texas, which was in operation by summer 1943.[nb 3] The RAF named these models Mustang Mk III. In performance tests, the P-51B reached 441 mph (383 kn; 710 km/h) at 30,000 ft (9,100 m).[29] In addition, the extended range made possible by the use of drop tanks enabled the Merlin-powered Mustang to be introduced as a bomber escort with a combat radius of 750 mi (1,210 km) using two 75 US gal (62 imp gal; 280 L) 2-piece, sheet-metal stamped construction drop tanks.

I walked through a passage to the elevator they were all getting on (freight elevator) and I got off on the third floor with all the other people and there was a lady using the pay telephone and I ask her if I could use it when she hung up and she said it was out of order and I tried to use it but with no success. Eugene Hale Brading: Radio Coordinator of the JFK assassination

In the moments after the JFK assassination a man named Eugene Hale Brading(aka Jim Braden) was arrested for questioning after he was discovered on the 3rd floor of the Dal-Tex Building. He was a complete stranger to the area and said he was in the building looking for a phone to use. Brading was known as a Mafia courier for the likes of gangsters such as Santo Trafficante, Carlos Marcello and Meyer Lansky. Braden was not known as an expert marksman or assassin like some of the other JFK assassination suspects. He may have served as a radio coordinator for the JFK shooters, whose role would be to give the word for the assassins to fire in simultaneous volleys to conceal the true number of shooters and gunshots that day. Braden was also in the vicinity of the RFK assassination later on as well in California in 1968.

An electronics expert named Robert D. Morrow wrote a book called First Hand Knowledge in which he claimed that a Cuban exile named Eladio del Valle asked him to make several sets of low band radios and earpieces which would only have to work for a few minutes which no 3rd parties could intercept or monitor. He assumed they might be used for anti-Castro plots only to learn later on that they may have been used instead to coordinate the JFK assassination. Braden presumably could have used said transceivers to communicate with the several teams of shooters to coordinate and minimize their shooting to fit with the pre-planned 'Oswald did it' scenario.

Presumably the plot called for killing JFK with as few shots fired as possible to make the planned 'lone nut' scenario at least somewhat plausible. If the shooters in the Dal Tex Building, TSBD or the County Records Building in Dealey Plaza had done their jobs more efficiently, and actually killed JFK with their shots from behind, no extra shots would have been needed from the Grassy Knoll or anywhere else! As it were, one shot from the Dal Tex Building hit JFK from the back, while another missed altogether and hit a curb which in turn splintered and hit a witness named James Tague. JFK was hit numerous times in the throat and torso and was in bad shape but was still clinging to life before he was finally finished off by the fatal headshot from the right front.

Retired US Steel engineer turned JFK assassination investigator, Tom Wilson, noticed the figure of a gunman with a goatee in the Dal-Tex Building using photonic imaging techniques. Facial hair was out of vogue in 1963 in the USA because of anti-Castro sentiment. One such JFK conspiracy suspect who wore a goatee, nevertheless, was a CIA affiliated mercenary named Loran Hall.

Brading is a mafia figure. He is tied to Haroldson Lafayette (HL) Hunt Jr a very rich oil man, and that man's rich son Lamar Hunt. (also tied to the Bush family) and more closely to Morgan Brown of Morgan Brown Oil Beverly Hills. They all seem in the plot to kill JFK and possibly RFK. In this group of friends in oil is Morgan Brown of Morgan OIl Beverly Hills California and Ed Donegan suspects Operation 40 Weight Oil Acts as the oil industry goes after JFK and later RFK.

Jim Braden, also known as Eugene Hale Brading, a known Mafia courier. He said he had had an appointment to meet Lamar Hunt, son of H.L. Hunt, the oil millionaire, on oil business. Braden was with a friend, Morgan H. Brown, who bolted when he heard he had been taken in for questioning.

https://drakestation.wordpress.com/tag/morgan-holbert-brown/Meltdown, Mysterious Mr Brown tries to get lease from Langford. September 3, 1963

Morgan Holbert Brown did not actually have the lease when he negotiated with the pancake king Dahl. Brown, who tried to get a lease since the July meeting, finally got a drilling agreement September 3, 1963 from the California-L Exploration Company — Cal.-L — the compan that was actually leasing from the Hollister Ranch. Brown was told that he had two months to start drilling, lest the sub-lease expire.

Sixty days later, in the beginning of November 1963, the vice president of Cal-L, DeWitt Langford, reportedly tried to inform Brown the drilling agreement was to expire. Morgan Holbert Brown could not be located in Santa Barbara, so notice was mailed to Brown, care of the Royal Globe Oil Corporation; the letter was returned unopened. Two weeks later, when Brown was in Dallas trying to negotiate financing for the oil business in the offices of H. L. Hunt, John F Kennedy was assassinated.

Meltdown. The Mysterious Mr Brown was in Dallas when JFK was shot November 22, 1963

Eugene Hale Brading (also known as James Lee and Jim Braden) had developed a long criminal record when in California. He'd been arrested 35 times and was conficted for burglary, illegal bookmaking and embezzlement.

The day before John F. Kennedy was assassinated, Brading arrived in Dallas with a man named Morgan Holbert Brown. The two men stayed in Suite 301 of the Cabana Motel. In the afternoon before Brading went to visit the office of Haroldson L. Hunt, a Texas billionaire. It has been written that Jack Ruby was also at Hunt's office that time. https://drakestation.wordpress.com/tag/morgan-holbert-brown/

A man with 30 arrests to his record, Braden had been staying at the Kabanya Motor Hotel, where Jack Ruby - who was to kill Lee Harvey Oswald in the Police Headquarters basement two days after the assassination - had met some of his Chicago friends the night before the President was killed. Braden was not detained.

Five years later, however, Braden was to turn up in Los Angeles when Senator Robert Kennedy was murdered.

Interestingly, there were several arrests made in the Dal Tex building. A young man wearing a black leather jacket and black gloves was taken to the Sheriff's Office who, according to the police, '. . . had been up in the building across the street from the Book Depository without a good excuse'. No record appears to exist of the man or of any interrogation, however, and he seems to have somehow slipped away from the Sheriff's Office and disappeared, without even anything to indicate he was thereafter sought. Larry Florer was also arrested and detained for some hours. He said he had asked where he could find a telephone and had been directed to the Dal Tex building. All lines being busy, Florer said he could not make his call and he was arrested as he left the building. A third man arrested there was extremely interesting. He was Jim Braden, also known as Eugene Hale Brading, a known Mafia courier. He said he had had an appointment to meet Lamar Hunt, son of H.L. Hunt, the oil millionaire, on oil business. Braden was with a friend, Morgan H. Brown, who bolted when he heard he had been taken in for questioning. Haroldson Lafayette Hunt Jr. (February 17, 1889 – November 29, 1974) was an American oil tycoon.[1] By trading poker winnings for oil rights according to legend, but more likely through money he gained from successful speculation in oil leases, he ultimately secured title to much of the East Texas Oil Field, one of the world's largest oil deposits. He acquired rights to East Texas oil lands initially through a $30,000 land purchase from oil speculator Dad Joiner, and founded Hunt Oil in 1936.[2] From it and his other acquisitions, which included diverse interests in publishing, cosmetics, pecan farming, and health food producers, he accrued a fortune that was among the world's largest. In the 1950's, his Facts Forum Foundation supported highly conservative newspaper columns and radio programs, some of which he authored and produced himself, and for which he became known.[2] At his death, he was reputed to have one of the highest net worths of any individual in the world, a fortune estimated between two and three billion dollars.

In 1957, Fortune estimated that Hunt had a fortune of $400–700 million,[4] and was one of the eight richest people in the United States. J. Paul Getty, who was considered to be the richest private citizen in the world, said of Hunt, "In terms of extraordinary, independent wealth, there is only one man—H. L. Hunt."

Hunt supported and had children by Ruth

Ray of Shreveport, Louisiana, whom he had met when she was a secretary in his Shreveport office. They married in 1957 after the death of Hunt's wife Lyda. His four children by her were: Ray Lee (born 1943), June (1944), Helen (1949), and Swanee (1950).[9] His youngest son, Ray Lee, ultimately inherited the business and was a major supporter of President George W. Bush.

Madeleine Duncan Brown, an advertising executive who claimed to have had both an extended love affair and a son with President Lyndon B. Johnson, said that she was present at a party at the Dallas home of Clint Murchison Sr. (another oil tycoon), on the evening prior to the assassination of John F. Kennedy that was attended by Johnson as well as other famous, wealthy, and powerful individuals including Hunt, Murchison, J. Edgar Hoover, and Richard Nixon/

According to Brown, Johnson had a meeting with several of the men after which he told her: "After tomorrow, those goddamn Kennedys will never embarrass me again. That's no threat. That's a promise."[21][nb 1] Brown's story received national attention and became part of at least a dozen John F. Kennedy assassination conspiracy theories.

This conspiracy theory was debunked by Kennedy assassination investigator Dave Perry. Evidence showed neither President Johnson nor Hoover were in Dallas at the time of the alleged party and Murchison had not lived in his Dallas home for a number of years. Witnesses place Murchison at his East Texas ranch.

Charles Frederick Rogers

Alias "Montoya" and "Rojas." Worked for the C IA and was a physicist

He is presumed the suspect in his parents death and he went missing. Since those events it has been found witness to the Kennedy Assassination such as those who identified the Grassy Knoll area as origninating the gunshots have died or disseared. Charles Fredrick Rogers could be a victim of the CIA he worked for because he was a risk in that he could have compromised (ratted on) the real CIA assassins. I consider this similar to the death of Special Activities Pilot family death of Phillip Marshal as he wrote his book on George H.W. Bush called The Big Bamboozle.

Charles Rogers (Hobo) retrieved from Wikipedia and copied or modified to here

Charles Frederick Rogers (December 30, 1921[1] – disappeared June 23, 1965) was an American seismologist, pilot, and murder suspect who disappeared in June 1965 after police discovered the dismembered bodies of his elderly parents in the refrigerator of the Houston home all three shared, in what the media later dubbed "The Icebox Murders".[2] Rogers has never been found and was declared dead in absentia in July 1975. He remains the only suspect in the murders, which are still considered unsolved.

Charles Rogers enrolled at Texas A&M University in 1942, but later dropped out.[3] He then enrolled at the University of Houston, where he earned a Bachelor of Science degree in nuclear physics. During World War II, Rogers was a pilot in the United States Navy and also served in the Office of Naval Intelligence.[4] After the war, he worked as a seismologist for Shell Oil for nine years.[1] He abruptly quit his job in 1957 without giving an explanation.

Friends and associates of Rogers later said that he was highly intelligent and had a talent for finding gas, oil and gold for the companies for which he worked. He also spoke seven languages and had an interest in ham radios.[5] In the mid-1950s, Rogers joined the Civil Air Patrol, where he reportedly met David Ferrie, an alleged conspirator in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy

By 1965, Rogers was unemployed and living with his elderly parents, Fred Christopher (born January 19, 1884) and Edwina Ivor Rogers (born October 8, 1892), in the Montrose neighborhood of Houston. Described as "reclusive", Rogers was reported to have communicated with his parents by way of notes slipped under the door. Neighbors were unaware that Rogers lived with his parents as he generally left the home before dawn and did not return until after dark.

On June 23, 1965, two Houston police officers were dispatched to the Rogers' home to conduct a welfare check after Edwina's nephew Marvin reported that his phone calls to his aunt had gone unanswered for days. After receiving no answering after knocking, the officers forced their way into the Rogers' home. Upon entering, the officers found nothing unusual but noticed food sitting on the dining room table.[8] One officer opened the refrigerator and found what appeared to be numerous cuts of washed, unwrapped meat neatly stacked on the shelves.[3] The officer later recalled that he thought the meat was that of a butchered hog.[9] As the officer was closing the door, he noticed two human heads visible through the clear glass of the vegetable bin.[10] The heads were those of Fred and Edwina Rogers. What the officer initially thought were unwrapped cuts of hog meat were the couple's dismembered limbs and torsos.[3] Police later discovered the couple's organs in a nearby sewer (the organs had been removed, cut up and flushed down the toilet) while other remains were never found.

Police determined that Fred and Edwina Rogers had been killed on June 20, Father's Day. An autopsy showed that Fred was bludgeoned to death with a claw hammer. His eyes had been gouged out and his genitalia were removed. Edwina had been beaten and shot, execution style, in the head.[5] Police further said that the bodies were dismembered in the upstairs bathroom by a person "with some knowledge of anatomy". There was little blood in the house and it appeared it had been thoroughly cleaned after the murders.[3] What little blood was found led to Charles' bedroom. There, police found a bloodstained keyhole saw but no trace of Rogers himself.[2] A search for Rogers was launched and a warrant was issued for him as a material witness to the crime, but he was never found.

Allegations of involvement in the assassination of JFK

Rogers' life was documented in the 1992 book The Man on the Grassy Knoll by John R. Craig and Philip A. Rogers.[4][7] According to this work, Rogers was a CIA agent who was postulated to have impersonated Lee Harvey Oswald in Mexico City and, along with Charles Harrelson, was one of two shooters involved in the assassination of President Kennedy. The authors contend that Rogers, Harrelson, and Chauncey Holt were the "three tramps" arrested in Dealey Plaza after the assassination, and that Rogers murdered his parents because his mother was tracking his many telephone calls. In this account, Rogers fled to Guatemala.[13] Publishers Weekly reviewed the book stating: "The authors do a workmanlike job with their thesis, but the degree of poetic license, in terms of reconstructed dialogue and attributed thought, seems excessive here, and sourcing is virtually nonexistent. Assassination buffs, however, will welcome the book for its novelty value and its easy readability."

Aftermath

In 1975, a Houston judge declared Rogers legally dead so his estate could be probated.[9] The case still remains officially unsolved and Rogers remains the only suspect.

Houston forensic accountant Hugh Gardenier and his wife Martha have continued to investigate the case and concluded that Rogers did murder his parents and was later killed in Honduras.[13] While they have dismissed John R. Craig and Philip A. Rogers's claim that Rogers was a CIA operative due to a lack of evidence, they admit that Rogers did have dealings with contract workers for the CIA when he worked as a seismologist.

The Gardeniers believe that Rogers planned the murder of his parents for years because his father was abusive and both parents were "devious con artists". According to them, Fred worked as a bookie who regularly engaged in illegal activities such as gambling and fraud. They believe he continued abusing Charles into adulthood and began stealing large sums of money from him. The Gardeniers claim that after Rogers killed and dismembered his parents, he fled the U.S. for Mexico and was never found because he was aided by "powerful friends" he met through his ham radio hobby and while working for various oil and mining companies.[5] They have theorized that Rogers eventually made his way to Honduras, where he was killed over a wage dispute with miners.

In October 2003, Redbud Publishing released The Ice Box Murders, a novel written by the Gardeniers.[15] According to a review in the Houston Press: "The Ice Box Murders is written as fact-based fiction and supposition. There are many unnamed characters in the book: various politicians and attorneys as well as the eyewitness who said he saw Rogers in Honduras after 1965."[14] Publishers Weekly also referred to the novel as "fact-based fiction".

The house in which the murders took place was located at 1815 Driscoll Street. After the murders, the house remained empty and unsold. It was torn down in 1972. The lot remained empty until 2000 when condominiums were built on the lot.

Was Rogers and his family assasinated to keep the secrecy of the hit on JFK? Did they question Rodgers and kill him?

Charles Frederick Rogers - Alias "Montoya" and "Rojas." Worked for the C IA and was a physicist.

Chuck Harrelson- Taller tramp. John Craig of the Houston P.D. knows Harrelson, as the latter's brother Claude worked for the detective.

Chauncey Holt Has come forward, and given himself up to Houston Police. He says he is the older tramp in the pictures. He tried to stay out of pictures taken of them by standing in back of the other two tramps. He even made funny faces to make identification difficult. Holt has given eight hours of video deposition. John Craig believes Holt to be for real.

These older tramp is now 70 years old, considered a genius, worked for the CIA, Organized Crime, was a master document forger, and was once tried for assassination, but acquitted. Holt said that, in addition to getting old and wishing to tell the truth, he is also very tired of being mistaken for E. Howard Hunt. Detective:Craig believes that this can be a major break in the JFK case if Holt is for real. Finally, Chauncey Holt was willing to come to the Symposium, and tell his story, if heavy security could be guaranteed. This could not be guaranteed, and he thus refused to come to Dallas.

Next in his presention, Detective Craig introduced Lois Gibson, who works for the Houston P.D. as a forensic artist. In addition, she graduated from the F.B.I. school for forensic artistry, and has worked for the Bureau for the past ten years. She has one hundred and fifty cases pending at the moment, and has been involved in thousands of cases requiring OrtaTied court forensic artists.

The third individual panelist, Phil Rogers, gave a biographical sketch of each of the three tramps;

Charles Frederick Rogers- Born 1921, Houston, Texas. In 1965, he butchered his parents and preserved them in a refrigerator after cutting them to pieces. When friends started to get Jsuspicious, they called police to the Rogers' house. Charles, living in the house all this time, was able to flee out the back, and vanished. Found in the house, besides the bodies in the refrigerator, was a sophisticated short wave set connected to an antenna, similar to Those used by intelligence agents. He has had no; job since 1957, but was always well dressed. He had a pilot's license, and flew for Air America. He had numerous post office boxes under assumed names.

Panelist Rogers stated that the Houston P.D. requested the FBI to put Frederick Rogers into the national computer system (N.C.I.C.). Just recently, the Houston P.D. discovered that the FBI originally never fulfilled that request, and has since refused subsequent requests by the Houston P.D. to put.Charles Frederick Rogers into the computer. Houston police officials find this reluctance by the FBI to be: very strange, to say the least. Besides being employed the CIA, Rogers attended the University of Houston as a physics major, is a linguist, was in the Civil Air Patrol in the 1950's and held a similar position to that of David Ferrie, worked as a seismologist in Canada, was declared legally dead in 1975, but the Houston P.D. believes that he is now living in Central America. Police officials believe that his parents saw or heard something they should not have in 1965, and paid for their mistake with their lives.

Charles Harrelson- Born in Huntsville, Texas. While living in California, he was presented with the "Salesman of the Year" award for selling books. He then turned to a life of crime, and in 1968, was charged with murder. With the murder of Federal Judge Wood, he was on the run from police authorities, and when finally cornered in El Paso in a six hour standoff, admitted to being in Dealey Plaza, and killihg President Kennedy. He later retracted this statement, saying that he was high on cocaine. He is now in the Marion, Illinois institution for murdering Judge Wood.

Chauncey Holt- Born 1921 in Kentucky. Known to have artistic talent, was in the Air Force and was court martialed while serving in that armed forces branch. Knew hit man for the Detroit mob named Bob Zowick. Holt was an accountant for mobster Meyer Lansky in Miami, and was a member of the International Rescue Committee, which was a CIA group.

CHAUNCEY HOLT'S STORY

Self-Portrait of a Scoundrel by Chauncey Holt (Author)

Released for the first time 16 years after his death, this startling autobiography by one of the so-called “three tramps” from the John F. Kennedy assassination reveals the details of Chauncey Marvin Holt’s many claims. Much mystery and suspicion still swirls around that fateful day in November 1963, and theories abound in nearly every form of media. But one of the major mysteries revolves around the three men spotted and later arrested in Dealey Plaza. Holt’s controversial confession to being one of the three tramps has a history of its own, and in his own words he delves into his unique and wild background and life. From his United States Air Force service during Pearl Harbor to his associations with the mob and the CIA, Holt discusses his experiences and encounters in great detail. From a man who truly lived a rare and unique life, the book explains the ins and outs of his associations with Lee Harvey Oswald and the assassination in this unique retrospective of a complex and occasionally dubious life.

Holt admitted to printing Lee Harvey Oswald's Fair Play for Cuba leaflets while in California. He admitted to being on the street corner.rwith Oswald in New Orleans when the staged skirmish went on with Anti Castro Cubans. Others present were Frank Belcher, and Leroy Young, shown in the picture. Holt says that when he realized the photo was being taken, he started walking away. One anecdote Holt added to this New Orleans staged show was that they had to talk Oswald into going through with it, as he got cold feet as the time neared.

Forensic artist Lois Gibson studied the New Orleans picture, and agrees that it is indeed Chauncey Holt. She testified that the skull shape, ears, shoulders, elbows all fit the known photos of Holt. The photo she used was a still made by the television station crew in New Orleans in August 1963. She also forensically connected Holt with the older tramp in the Dealey Plaza photos taken on the day of the assassination. She has successfully linked his nasal fold, nose, chin intersections, and ears with known photos of him and with the Dealey Plaza photos of the tramps.

Lois Gibson (born c. 1950)[citation needed] is an American forensic artist who holds a 2017 Guinness World Record for most identifications by a forensic artist.[1][2] She also drew the first forensic sketch shown on America's Most Wanted, which helped identify the suspect and solve the case.

Lois Gibson works for the Houston Police Department and is one the most respected forensic facial experts in the world. She was recently awarded with a notation in the Guinness Book of World Records for the highest crime solving rate based on composite sketches. Lois Gibson has made a comparison study of the "three tramps", photographed in Dealey Plaza on November 22, 1963. She concluded that the three men were Chauncey Holt, Charles Harrelson and Charles Rogers. The video presentation of her analysis can be found on the Internet.

Lois Gibson used her forensic expertise on photos of Charles Harrelson, as Holt identified him as being one of the tramps. She compared known photos of Harrelson with the Dealey Plaza tall tramp, and she concluded that it is indeed Charles Harrelson in the tramp photo. She came to this conclusion because of exact profile, wrinkles, mouth distance from the chin, mouth distance from the chin bone, nose, and ears. In addition she has concluded that Harrelson's shaving habits are the same in both photos, and his side burns are only.one millimeter different from a mug shot of ten years ago. Finally, she states that a photo of an opposite face profile examined by her shows a mirror image of Charles Harrelson. Wryly, she told the hushed audience that he is smiling in the tramp photo.

The third tramp identified by Holt is Charles Frederick Rogers, also known as 'Montoya" and "Rojas." At this point, the audience was told that RogerS fled his parents' home as police arrived, and left his pistol in his room. There is reason to believe that it was a CIA issued pistol. Forensic artist Gibson then continued with her analysis of the third tramp. It was very difficult finding photos of Rogers, as he was very careful not to have many left around. However, Houston Police were able to go back to his high school year book of 1939-'40 and his college picture taken at Sam Houston State,, iand use these to compare with the tramp photos. Gibson concluded the following, after analyzing the photos: the subject's nose, ears shape, and mouth are identical. Conclusive for Gibson, however, are: exact hair wave, nose shape is exact, eye sockets are exact, and shadows formed by the inside of his ears are exact. Finally, she detects an unusual gape in the walk of the tramp Holt says is Rogers.

Her conclusion is that the third tramp in the photo is indeed Charles Frederick Rogers.

An anecdote told to the audience revealed the fact that Rogers' father worked as a bookie for none other than Carlos Marcello, in the Houston area.

Another twist to this segment of the story is told to us by John Craig. It is known that David Ferrie drove a few hundred miles through a storm to go "skating" at Winterland Park. The manager of the rink told Houston Police that Charles Frederick Rogers used that rink for phone calls and meetings all the time. We now have Ferrie and Rogers linked to at least two activities; "skating" and the Civil Air Patrol.

The panel, at this point, relayed Holt's account of his and the other tramps' activities in Dealey Plaza on Novembember 22, 1963. First of all, he admitted that it was he who prepared the phony Secret Service credentials for the bogus men around the grassy knoll, while he was in Los Angelos. ;While in Dealey Plaza, one of the tramps came up to him and said,"Hi I'm Chuck Harrelson," prior to the assassination. Holt said that he was driving around the parking lot in back of the knoll in a station wagon from Arizona, with two other men known as Nicoletti and Nocera (sic?). Holt testified that he did not see the actual assassination, but heard the shots from the rear of the TSBD. His instructions were to meet the other tramps in the railroad yard and hide in the ninth box car from the engine. This they did, but were soon caught by police and were questioned outside of the box car. Holt, who had a nose bleed and stuffed kleenex up his nostrils to stop the bleeding, testified that he and the other two tramps presented phony Tax and Treasury Department credentials, which Holt said he made up with the bogus Secret Service credentials, to the police officers. Holt added that he told the police they were working under cover. The Dallas police officers, relaxing at this point, told the tramps that they had to bring them in anyway for questioning. This could explain why the police officers didn't cuff them, and permitted them to walk in a casual manner to the police building.

Once inside, the police officers, according to Holt, called in Will Fritz and FBI agent Shanklin. Again, Holt and the two other tramps showed their phony credentials, and , according to Holt, Shanklin let them go without any further procedures.' Finally, Holt said that he was driven to Red Bird Air Port by Jim Braden, and his final destination found him in South America.

At this point, there was a question and answer period. I went to the microphone, and asked the panel three questions: 1) How did Holt know the Secret Service's color of the day for credentials? Answer: He couldn't find out until the very last minute. 2) How did Holt get into the rear parking area, if it was secured for two hours before the assassination? Answer: Holt told them that he was given a key to get in the parking area. 3) Did Holt tell them what them what they were to do if they weren't caught in the box car by police? Answer: Still go to the Red Bird Air Port.

Chauncey Holt reiterates his statement that he was behind the TSBD when shots were fired at the presidential limousine. He also submitted in his testimony that he truly believes that he was put out back in the rail road yard to be used as a potential patsy, if it didn't work out with Oswald for one reason or another.

Holt claims he operated out of the parking lot area of the train-yard behind the grassy knoll with others.

Chauncey Holt was born in Kentucky on 23rd October, 1921. When he was 19 he joined the United States Army Airforce (USAAF). The following year he was court-martialed and sent to the U.S. penitentiary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for attacking another soldier with a Springfield rifle.

Holt was released in June 1940 but deserted from the USAF after the attack on Pearl Harbor. He eventually returned to duty but in 1942 he travelled in a car from Fort Knox to Louisville. He was arrested and charged with taking the car without permission and was sentenced to 18 months in the Industrial Reformatory at Chillicott, Ohio. On his release he found work with the Bethelem-Fairfield Shipyard Company.

After the war Holt met Peter Licavoli, a leading figure in the Mafia in Detroit. Holt was sent to Florida where he worked for Meyer Lansky as an accountant and pilot. This included several trips to Cuba where Lansky had extensive business interests. Lansky also sent Holt to worked for the International Rescue Committee (IRC). This was a Central Intelligence Agency controlled organization that had been set up to distribute funds to organizations attempting to overthrow left-wing governments. During the time Holt was also involved in producing forged documents for the CIA and the Mafia.

Holt also became involved in what later become known as Executive Action (a plan to remove unfriendly foreign leaders from power). This including a coup d'état that overthrew the Guatemalan government of Jacobo Arbenz in 1954 after he introduced land reforms and nationalized the United Fruit Company. However, the main target of this operation was Fidel Castro who had established a socialist government in Cuba.

In March I960, President Dwight Eisenhower of the United States approved a CIA plan to overthrow Castro. The plan involved a budget of $13 million to train "a paramilitary force outside Cuba for guerrilla action." The strategy was organized by Richard Bissell and Richard Helms. An estimated 400 CIA officers were employed full-time to carry out what became known as Operation Mongoose. Holt later claimed that he worked on this project with figures such as Sam Giancana, Johnny Roselli, Edward Lansdale and William Harvey.

After the failed Bay of Pigs invasion Holt worked for Meyer Lansky in California. Meyer took over the Los Angeles Stamp and Stationary Company where Holt continued to produce illegal documents and false police badges. He also worked closely with Phillip A. Twombly, a former Executive Vice President of Coca Cola for their Caribbean operations. Twombly now owned a bank in Fullerton, California, which was used to distribute CIA funds for covert operations.

In August, 1963, Twombly asked Holt to travel to New Orleans, where he met Oswald and Carlos Bringuier.

Holt later claimed he was went to Dallas in November, 1963, with Charlie Nicoletti, James Canty and Leo Moceri. In Dallas he passed on forged documents and guns (with silencers) to Charles Harrelson and Charles Rogers (Richard Montoya). Holt was told that "an incident was going to be created which could be laid at the door of pro-Castro Cubans. The word attempted assassination was never used. We assumed that from all this light loaded ammunition that maybe somebody was going to try to take a shot from somewhere, probably the Dal-Tex building, or one of the buildings around there. But at no time was it ever intimidated to us that an assassination or attempted assassination on Kennedy."

When the Kennedy motorcade reached the Dealey Plaza Holt was in the parking lot behind the Grassy Knoll. After the shooting took place Holt went to hide in a railroad car. He was joined by Charles Harrelson and Charles Rogers. However, soon afterwards, Dallas police officers entered the railroad car and arrested all three men. The three men along with Jim Brading were interviewed by Gordon Shanklin of the FBI and then released.

Eugene Hale Brading (also known as James Lee and Jim Braden) developed a long criminal record while living in California. Arrested 35 times he had convictions for burglary, illegal bookmaking and embezzlement.

On 21st November, 1963, Brading arrived in Dallas with a man named Morgan Brown. They stayed in Suite 301 of the Cabana Motel. Later that day Brading visited the offices of Texas oil billionaire Haroldson L. Hunt. It is believed that Jack Ruby was in the offices at the same time as Brading.

After the assassination of John F. Kennedy, Brading was arrested and taken in for interrogation because he had been "acting suspiciously" in the Dal-Tex Building, overlooking Dealey Plaza. Brading told the police he was in Dallas on oil business and had gone into the building to make a phone call. Brading was released without charge.

Brading returned to his room at the Cabana Motel. It was later established that Jack Ruby visited the motel around midnight.

Assassination of John F. Kennedy Encyclopedia

In his book, The Kennedy Conspiracy, Anthony Summers shows that Brading had links with Carlos Marcello, Santos Trafficante and David Ferrie.

In 1968 Brading was interviewed by the Los Angeles Police Department because of his presence in Los Angeles on the night that Robert Kennedy was murdered.

Interestingly, there were several arrests made in the Dal Tex building. A young man wearing a black leather jacket and black gloves was taken to the Sheriff's Office who, according to the police, '. . . had been up in the building across the street from the Book Depository without a good excuse'. No record appears to exist of the man or of any interrogation, however, and he seems to have somehow slipped away from the Sheriff's Office and disappeared, without even anything to indicate he was thereafter sought. Larry Florer was also arrested and detained for some hours. He said he had asked where he could find a telephone and had been directed to the Dal Tex building. All lines being busy, Florer said he could not make his call and he was arrested as he left the building. A third man arrested there was extremely interesting. He was Jim Braden, also known as Eugene Hale Brading, a known Mafia courier. He said he had had an appointment to meet Lamar Hunt, son of H.L. Hunt, the oil millionaire, on oil business. Braden was with a friend, Morgan H. Brown, who bolted when he heard he had been taken in for questioning. A man with 30 arrests to his record, Braden had been staying at the Kabanya Motor Hotel, where Jack Ruby - who was to kill Lee Harvey Oswald in the Police Headquarters basement two days after the assassination - had met some of his Chicago friends the night before the President was killed. Braden was not detained. Five years later, however, Braden was to turn up in Los Angeles when Senator Robert Kennedy was murdered.

The Dal-Tex Building was located across the street from the Texas School Book Depository. It offered a great view of JFK's motorcade from behind, which was not obstructed by trees like portions of the view from the alleged 'sniper's nest' on the 6th Floor of the Book Depository.

In the moments after the JFK assassination a man named Eugene Hale Brading(aka Jim Braden) was arrested for questioning after he was discovered on the 3rd floor of the Dal-Tex Building. He was a complete stranger to the area and said he was in the building looking for a phone to use. Brading was known as a Mafia courier for the likes of gangsters such as Santo Trafficante, Carlos Marcello and Meyer Lansky. Braden was not known as an expert marksman or assassin like some of the other JFK assassination suspects. He may have served as a radio coordinator for the JFK shooters, whose role would be to give the word for the assassins to fire in simultaneous volleys to conceal the true number of shooters and gunshots that day. Braden was also in the vicinity of the RFK assassination later on as well in California in 1968.

An electronics expert named Robert D. Morrow wrote a book called First Hand Knowledge in which he claimed that a Cuban exile named Eladio del Valle asked him to make several sets of low band radios and earpieces which would only have to work for a few minutes which no 3rd parties could intercept or monitor. He assumed they might be used for anti-Castro plots only to learn later on that they may have been used instead to coordinate the JFK assassination. Braden presumably could have used said transceivers to communicate with the several teams of shooters to coordinate and minimize their shooting to fit with the pre-planned 'Oswald did it' scenario.

Presumably the plot called for killing JFK with as few shots fired as possible to make the planned 'lone nut' scenario at least somewhat plausible. If the shooters in the Dal Tex Building, TSBD or the County Records Building in Dealey Plaza had done their jobs more efficiently, and actually killed JFK with their shots from behind, no extra shots would have been needed from the Grassy Knoll or anywhere else! As it were, one shot from the Dal Tex Building hit JFK from the back, while another missed altogether and hit a curb which in turn splintered and hit a witness named James Tague. JFK was hit numerous times in the throat and torso and was in bad shape but was still clinging to life before he was finally finished off by the fatal headshot from the right front.

Retired US Steel engineer turned JFK assassination investigator, Tom Wilson, noticed the figure of a gunman with a goatee in the Dal-Tex Building using photonic imaging techniques. Facial hair was out of vogue in 1963 in the USA because of anti-Castro sentiment. One such JFK conspiracy suspect who wore a goatee, nevertheless, was a CIA affiliated mercenary named Loran Hall.

Loran Eugene Hall was born in Newton, Kansas, on 4th January 1930. He joined the U.S. Army and later became a mercenary who joined the rebels led by Fidel

Castro. Hall fell out with Castro and in 1959 he spent several months in prison. In the prison at the same time was Santo Trafficante. https://spartacus-educational.com/JFKhallL.htm

For Whom the Bell Tolls

It tolls for those close enough to hear it and know of the loss.

It tolls for JFK and RFK, for perhaps hundreds of witnesses. For James and Glorian and one day Ed, and Jen Moore, and it tolls for the USA.

> ### What is a traditional Irish wake?
> Traditions of an Irish Wake - Irish wakes are an occasion of mourning the loss of a loved one, but they also included times of cheerful merriment. Irish wakes were popular for centuries up until the mid-19oos and are still done to this day but are uncommon. Irish wakes are a celebration of life - one last party to honor the deceased.

John Donne (1572 - 1631) was an English writer and poet. As a Catholic in a time when that denomination was illegal in England, he endured constant prejudice and harassment and was ultimately forced into joining the Anglican church by King James I. Early in his life, John earned a reputation as a playboy and spendthrift, but at 25, he fell in love with Anne More. Despite her father's scorn, the couple married, had a dozen children, and John became a devoted—if not financially successful—family man. His career forays included law, diplomatic service, and church leadership, but he is best remembered as the founder of a group called the "metaphysical" poets. Popular during his lifetime, then dismissed for many years as inferior because it was so different from other poetry of that time, John's work is today considered brilliant and his influence on literature legendary.

For Whom the Bell Tolls by John Donne

No man is an island,
Entire of itself.

Each is a piece of the continent,
A part of the main.

If a clod be washed away by the sea,
Europe is the less.

As well as if a promontory were.
As well as if a manor of thine own Or of thine friend's were.

Each man's death diminishes me, For I am involved in mankind.

Therefore, send not to know For whom the bell tolls, It tolls for thee [should we be close enough to hear of thew loss or not].

This poem is in the public domain.

It is easy to literaly take this as a connection between Great Brittian and the US as a fabric but I use this in a nationalist context about our loss of the lives of these people and how history and alternative timeline have been lost with the deaths of these people Jen Moore included.

IT least we have records and can now work from them, as Milton said the books can continue on with the man's work after death.

WE can not take back the Bush Dynasty rise to power in its allegiance with Great Brittain and its methods and we may not want the timeline of JKF living and different cold war strategy possibly bringing about nuclear war rather than cold war.

Nor can we discount the possibility we are on a timeline for war with Russia long planned or even accidental but arises from the methods opposed by JFK but carried out secretly by the puppet government proponents of British subversion systems.

> For Whom the Bell Tolls is a novel by Ernest Hemingway published in 1940. It tells the story of Robert Jordan, a young American volunteer attached to a Republican guerrilla unit during the Spanish Civil War. As a dynamiter, he is assigned to blow up a bridge during an attack on the city of Segovia.
> It was published just after the end of the Spanish Civil War (1936–1939), whose general lines were well known at the time. It assumes the reader knows that the war was between the government of the Second Spanish Republic, which many foreigners went to Spain to help and which was supported by the Communist Soviet Union, and the Nationalist faction, which was supported by Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy. In 1940, the year the book was published, the United States had not yet entered the Second World War, which had begun on September 1, 1939, with Nazi Germany's invasion of Poland.

The novel is regarded as one of Hemingway's best works, along with The Sun Also Rises, A Farewell to Arms, and The Old Man and the Sea.

Ernest Hemingway wrote For Whom the Bell Tolls in Havana, Cuba; Key West, Florida; and Sun Valley, Idaho, in 1939.

In Cuba, he lived in the Hotel Ambos Mundos, where he worked on the manuscript.[5][6] The novel was finished in July 1940 at the InterContinental New York Barclay Hotel in New York City[7] and published in October.[8][9] The story is based on Hemingway's experiences during the Spanish Civil War as a reporter for the North American Newspaper Alliance[10] and features an American who fights alongside Spanish guerillas for the Republicans.[11] The novel graphically describes the brutality of the war and is told primarily through the thoughts and experiences of the protagonist, Robert Jordan.

In the 1930s and 1940s, NANA was known for its selections for the College Football All-America Team, using four well-known coaches each year. One of NANA's most famous correspondents was Ernest Hemingway, who was sent to Spain in 1937 to report on the Spanish Civil War.[2] Hemingway based one of his best-known novels, For Whom the Bell Tolls, published in 1940, on his experiences there.[3]

By the early 1950s the syndicate was being overshadowed by more powerful news syndicates, and in March 1951 it was purchased by a small group of investors led by Ernest Cuneo,[4] formerly associated with British Security Coordination and the OSS, and Ivar Bryce. They gave the job of European Vice President to the writer Ian Fleming, who was also their mutual friend.

Ernest Cuneo and the Bell Syndicate-North American Newspaper Alliance group acquired the McClure Newspaper Syndicate in September 1952, with Louis Ruppel installed as president and editor.

Cuneo acquired full control over NANA in the mid-1950s and served as president until 1963 when he sold it. However, he remained with NANA as a columnist and military analyst from 1963 to 1980.

Because of Cuneo's association with former members of American and British intelligence, including Fleming and Bryce, and because some writers in the Cuneo era had alleged links to the CIA, critics have suggested that NANA under his tenure was a front for espionage.

Robert Jordan is an American, formerly a professor of Spanish language at the University of Montana. He had lived in prewar Spain, and fights as an irregular soldier for the Republic against Francisco Franco's fascist forces. An experienced dynamiter, he is ordered by a Soviet general to travel behind enemy lines and destroy a bridge with the aid of a band of local anti-fascist guerrillas to prevent enemy troops from responding to an upcoming offensive. On his mission, Jordan meets the rebel Anselmo, the "old man", who brings him to the hidden guerrilla camp in the Sierra de Guadarrama mountains between Madrid and Segovia. Anselmo initially acts as an intermediary between Jordan and the other guerrilla fighters. They include Agustín, Primitivo, Fernando, brothers Andrés and Eladio, and Rafael, often referred to pejoratively as "the gypsy".

In the camp, Jordan encounters María, a young Spanish woman whose life has been shattered by her parents' execution and her rape at the hands of the Falangists (part of the fascist coalition) at the outbreak of the war. His strong sense of duty clashes with both the unwillingness of the guerrilla leader Pablo to commit to an operation that would endanger himself and his band and Jordan's own new-found lust for life, which arises from his love for María. Pablo's wife, the strong-willed Pilar, with the support of the other guerrillas, displaces Pablo as the group leader and pledges the allegiance of the guerrillas to Jordan's mission.

Lackign a detenator because of fight internal the his group Jordan devises an alternative method: exploding the dynamite by using hand grenades with wires attached so that their pins can be pulled from a distance. The improvised plan is considerably more dangerous as the guerrillas must be nearer to the explosion. While Pilar, Pablo, and other guerrillas attack the posts at the two ends of the bridge, Jordan and Anselmo plant and detonate the dynamite, costing Anselmo his life when he is hit by a piece of shrapnel.

While escaping, Jordan is maimed when a tank shoots his horse out from under him. Knowing that his wound is so severe that it is highly unlikely that he will survive and that he would slow the others down, he bids farewell to María and ensures her escape to safety with the surviving guerrillas. He refuses Agustín's offer to shoot him and lies waiting in agony, hoping to kill an enemy officer and delay the pursuit of his comrades before he dies. The narrative ends with Jordan waiting for the perfect opportunity to launch his ambush, if he does not go unconscious (or die) first.

JFK (Chapter)

As the movie research for JFK a 1991 blockbuster film approaches Garrison and Prouty continue deep research into the events for accuracy and to follow the story closely factually. Lansdale is discovered in the crowd of Hobos by Prouty. Chauncey Holt and others admit being in the train yard parking lot next to the Book Depository, and that is where Elm Street veers towards an underpass leaving a grassy knoll as landscaping in between the road and the parking lot.

In the 1990 letter from Prouty to Garrison quoted and annotated here Prouty shows Lansdale is very much part of the assassination team created by Nixon and LBJ as well. In 2018 the Eisenhower center partially declassifies a document I Ed Donegan found in which Lansdale in 1953 with CD Jackson of OSS CIA Propaganda operations create the Latin American overthrow system Prouth will be a part of under Vice President Nixon and President Kennedy and Robert Kennedy will oversee, but JKF tries to stop it and is assassinated. The program is called Executive Action by Richard Nixon

The Zapruder film is a silent 8mm color motion picture sequence shot by Abraham Zapruder with a Bell & Howell home-movie camera, as United States President John F. Kennedy's motorcade passed through Dealey Plaza in Dallas, Texas, on November 22, 1963. It captured the assassination of the President. Director Oliver Stone paid over $85,000 to the Zapruder family for use of the Zapruder film in his motion picture JFK (1991).

Although it is not the only film of the shooting, the Zapruder film has been described as being the most complete, giving a relatively clear view from a somewhat elevated position on the side from which the president's fatal head wound is visible. It was an important piece of evidence before the Warren Commission hearings, and all subsequent investigations of the assassination. It is one of the most studied pieces of film in history.

[CD Jackson who was at Life Magazine bought the film and in their chain of custody it seems the film was both altered with both changes and deletions.]

In October 1964, the U.S. Government Printing Office released 26 volumes of testimony and evidence compiled by the Warren Commission. Volume 18 of the commission's hearings reproduced 158 frames from the Zapruder film in black and white. However, frames 208–211 were missing, a splice was visible in frames 207 and 212, frames 314 and 315 were switched around, and frame 284 was a repeat of 283.[16] In response to an inquiry, then-FBI director J. Edgar Hoover wrote in 1965 that frames 314 and 315 had been swapped due to a printing error, and that that error did not exist in the original Warren Commission exhibits. In early 1967, Life released a statement saying that four frames of the original (frames 208–211) were accidentally destroyed, and the adjacent frames damaged, by a Life photo lab technician on November 23, 1963. Life released those missing frames from the first-generation copy it had received from the film's original version; [17] the Zapruder frames outside the section used in the commission's exhibits, frames 155–157 and 341, were also damaged and were spliced out of the original rendition of the film, but are present in the first-generation copies. - Wikipedia

MEMORANDUM [FROM LANSDALE] FOR C.D. JACKSON

Subject: Latin America

1. You requested some thoughts on Latin America, based upon lessons learned in the Philippines, In order to be of most help to you, in the possibly brief time before my departure overseas, I am dividing my suggestions in two parts. The first part is attached. The second part requires deep study of an area unfamiliar to me. If there is insufficient time to write the second part, there are competent folks in C.I.A. who can do it.

2, The first part is an outline of my personal opinion of the basic mechanism needed to win the struggle we face. It 1s a start, not exhsustive. | |1t 1s the 3.3(h)(2) first time I have tried to describe it concisely, so perhaps there are some rough spots. Latin America is rich in assets for its most efficient working,

3. The basic mechanism must be locked at as only the covert or semi-covert part of the United Btates team in each country. The rest of the teat should be playing in the same game, towards the same goal. If it isn't, the United States loses. Thus » the critical task falls upon the Executive, for clear statement of our Policy towards eech country and compliance of officials to both spirit and letter of that policy.

Lk. The second part of my suggestions concerns the application of the basic mechanism to each country. The start should be a penetrating review of what we know of each country. From this review, by individual country, we list the real targets to te destroyed, the assets (including names of persons) in that country which will destroy the targets, and a sketch of how an agent or agente make those assets vieble. The description of the basic mechanism contains thoughts on this,

5. If this way of doing is acceptable, then the means are next. You know where help awaits you in doing it successfully,

EDWARD G LANSDALE COLONEL

Fletcher Prouty freind of the Donegan's is played by Donald Southerland helping Jim Garrison in the movie. Behind the scenes he is helping Oliver Stone and others and recognizes Landsdale while reviewking Kennedy assasinatioin records. The movie JFK follows Proutys Gallery Magazine article Guns of Dallas very closely. That was writtin in the 1970's.

JFK is a 1991 American epic political thriller film written and directed by Oliver Stone and starring Kevin Costner as Jim Garrison leading along with an ensemble of casts. The film examines the investigation into the assassination of John F. Kennedy by district attorney Jim Garrison, who came to believe there was a conspiracy to assassinate Kennedy and that Lee Harvey Oswald did not act alone. The film features performances from Tommy Lee Jones, Gary Oldman, Sissy Spacek, Kevin Bacon, and Joe Pesci. The film also features supporting performances from Laurie Metcalf, Donald Sutherland, Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau, Ed Asner, Brian Doyle-Murray, John Candy, and Wayne Knight.

The film's screenplay was adapted by Stone and Zachary Sklar from the books On the Trail of the Assassins (1988) by Jim Garrison and Crossfire: The Plot That Killed Kennedy (1989) by Jim Marrs. Stone described this account as a "counter-myth" to the Warren Commission's "fictional myth". JFK has been considered controversial due to its embracement of conspiracy theories.[2] Many major American newspapers ran editorials accusing Stone of taking liberties with historical facts, including the film's implication that Kennedy's Vice President (and eventual successor) Lyndon B. Johnson was part of a coup d'état to kill Kennedy.

Despite the controversy, JFK received critical praise for the performances of its cast, Stone's directing, score, editing, and cinematography. The film gradually picked up momentum at the box office after a slow start, earning over $205 million in worldwide gross, making it the sixth highest-grossing film of 1991 worldwide. JFK was nominated for eight Academy Awards, including Best Picture, and won two for Best Cinematography and Best Film Editing. It was the first of three films Stone made about American presidents, followed by Nixon (1995) and W. (2008).

Plot

During his farewell address in 1961, outgoing President Dwight D. Eisenhower warns about the build-up of the military-industrial complex. He is succeeded by John F. Kennedy as president, whose time in office is marked by the Bay of Pigs Invasion and the Cuban Missile Crisis until his assassination in Dealey Plaza, Dallas, Texas, on November 22, 1963. Former US marine and suspected Soviet defector Lee Harvey Oswald is arrested for the murder of police officer J. D. Tippit and arraigned with both murders but is killed by nightclub owner Jack Ruby. New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison and his team investigate potential New Orleans links to the JFK assassination, including private pilot David Ferrie, but their investigation is publicly rebuked by the federal government and Garrison closes the investigation.

The investigation is reopened in 1966 after Garrison reads the Warren Report and notices what he believes to be multiple inaccuracies. Garrison and his staff interrogate people involved with Oswald and Ferrie. One such witness is Willie O'Keefe, a male prostitute serving five years in prison for solicitation, who says that he witnessed Ferrie talking with a man called "Clay Bertrand" about assassinating Kennedy, and that he briefly met Oswald. Garrison and his team theorize Oswald was an agent of the CIA and was framed for the assassination.

In 1967, Garrison and his team talk to several witnesses, including Jean Hill, a teacher who says she witnessed a gunman shooting from the "grassy knoll", a small hill, that Secret Service threatened her into saying three shots came from the Texas School Book Depository from which Oswald was said to have shot Kennedy, and her testimony was altered by the Warren Commission. Garrison's staff also test fire an empty rifle from the Depository and conclude that Oswald was too poor a marksman to make the shots, and that there was more than one shooter. Garrison comes to believe that "Bertrand" is really New Orleans businessman Clay Shaw. Garrison interviews Shaw, who denies having ever met Ferrie, O'Keefe or Oswald.

Some key witnesses become scared and refuse to testify while others, such as Ruby and Ferrie, die in suspicious circumstances. Before his death, Ferrie tells Garrison that there was a conspiracy to kill Kennedy. Garrison meets a high-level figure in Washington D.C. who identifies himself as "X". He suggests a coup d'état at the highest levels of government, implicating members of the CIA, the Mafia, the military-industrial complex, Secret Service, FBI, and then-Vice President Lyndon Johnson as either co-conspirators or as having motives to cover up the truth of the assassination. X suggests that Kennedy was killed because he wanted to pull the United States out of the Vietnam War and dismantle the CIA. X encourages Garrison to keep digging and prosecute Shaw. Soon afterward, Garrison indicts Shaw with conspiring to murder Kennedy.

Some of Garrison's staff begin to doubt his motives and disagree with his methods, and leave the investigation. Garrison's marriage is strained when his wife Liz complains that he is spending more time on the case than with his own family. After a sinister phone call is made to their daughter, Liz accuses Garrison of being selfish and attacking Shaw only because of his homosexuality. In addition, Garrison is criticized in the media as wasting taxpayer money to investigate a conspiracy theory. Garrison suspects a connection with the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr. and the assassination of Robert F. Kennedy.

Shaw's trial takes place in 1969. Garrison presents the court with a dismissal of the single-bullet theory, proposing a scenario involving three assassins firing six shots and framing Oswald for the murders of Kennedy and Tippit, all for the purpose of installing Johnson as President so he could escalate the war in Vietnam and enrich the defense industry. However, the jury acquits Shaw after less than one hour of deliberation. While his prosecution has failed, Garrison wins his wife and children's respect for his determination, and so repairs his relationship with his family

Dear Jim,

It is amazing how things work, I am at home recuperating from a major back operation (to regain my ability to walk); so I was tossing around in bed last night...not too comfortable...and I began to think of Garrison. I thought, "I have got to write Jim a letter detailing how I believe the whole job was done."

By another coincidence I had received a fine set of twenty photos from the Sprague collection in Springfield, Mass. As the odds would have it, he is now living just around the corner here in Alexandria. Why not? Lansdale lived here, Fensterwald lives here, Ford used to live here. Quite a community.

I was studying those photos. One of them is the "Tramps" picture that appears in your book. It is glossy and clear. Lansdale is so clearly identifiable. Why, Lansdale in Dallas? The others don't matter, they are nothing but actors and not gunmen but they are interesting. Others who knew Lansdale as well as I did, have said the same thing, "That's him and what's he doing there?" book. A terrible biography. There could be a great biography about Lansdale. He's no angel; but he is worth a good biography. Currey, a paid hack, did the job. His employers ought to have let him do it right.

As I was reading the paper the Federal Express man came with a book from Jim, that unusual "Lansdale"

I had known Ed since 1952 in the Philippines. I used to fly there regularly with my MATS Heavy Transport Squadron. As a matter of fact, in those days we used to fly wounded men, who were recuperating, from hospitals in Japan to Saigon for R&R on the beaches of Cap St Jacque. That was 1952-1953. Saigon was the Paris of the Orient. And Lansdale was "King Maker" of the Philippines. We always went by way of Manila. I met his team.

He had arrived in Manila in Sept 1945, after the war was over, for a while. He had been sent back there in 1950 by the CIA(OPC) to create a new leader of the Philippines and to get rid of Querino. Sort of like the Marcos deal, or the Noriega operation. Lansdale did it better. I have overthrown a government but I didn't splash it all around like Reagan and Bush have done. Now, who sent him there?

Who sent him there in 1950 (Truman era) to do a job that was not done until 1953 (Ike era)? From 1950 to Feb. 1953 the Director of Central Intelligence was Eisenhower's old Chief of Staff, Gen Walter Bedell Smith. Smith had been Ambassador to Moscow from 1946 to 1949. The lesser guys in the CIA at the time were Allen Dulles, who was Deputy Director Central Intelligence from Aug. 1951 to Feb. 1953. Frank Wisner became the Deputy Director, Plans (Clandestine Activities) when Dulles became DDCI. Lansdale had to have received his orders from among these four men: Truman, Smith, Dulles, and Wisner. Of course the Sec State could have had some input...i.e. Acheson. Who wanted Querino out, that badly? Who wanted HUKS there?

In Jan 1953 Eisenhower arrived

John Foster Dulles was at State and Gen Smith his Deputy. Allen Dulles was the DCI and General Cabel his deputy. None of them changed Lansdale's prior orders to "get" Querino.

Lansdale operated with abandon in the Philippines. The Ambassador and the CIA Station Chief, George Aurell, did not know what he was doing. They believed he was some sort of kook Air Force Officer there...a role Lansdale played to the hilt. Magsaysay became President, Dec 30, 1953.

With all of this on the record, and a lot more, this guy Currey comes out of the blue with this purported "Biography". I knew Ed [ward Lansdale] well enough and long enough to know that he was a classic chameleon. He would tell the truth sparingly and he would fabricate a lot. Still, I can not believe that he told Currey the things Currey writes. Why would Lansdale want Currey to perpetuate such out and out bullshit about him? Can't be. This is a terribly fabricated book. It's not even true about me. I believe that this book was ordered and delineated by the CIA.

At least I know the truth about myself and about Gen. Krulak. Currey libels us terribly. In fact it may be Krulak who caused the book to be taken off the shelves. Krulak and his Copley Press cohorts have the power to get that done, and I encouraged them to do just that when it first came out. Krulak was mad!

Ed told me many a time how he operated in the Philippines. He said, "All I had was a blank checkbook signed by the U.S. government". He made friends with many influential Filipinos. I have met Johnny Orendain and Col Valeriano, among others, in Manila with Lansdale. He became acquainted with the wealthiest Filipino of them all, Soriano. Currey never even mentions him. Soriano set up Philippine Airlines and owned the big San Miguel beer company, among other things. Key man in Asia.

Lansdale's greatest strategy was to create the "HUKS" as the enemy and to make Magsaysay the "Huk Killer." He would take Magsaysay's battalion out into a "Huk" infested area. He would use movies and "battlefield" sound systems, i.e. fireworks to scare the poor natives. Then one-half of Magsaysay's battalion, dressed as natives, would "attack" the village at night. They'd fire into the air and burn some shacks. In the morning the other half, in uniform, would attack and "capture" the "Huks". They would bind them up in front of the natives who crept back from the forests, and even have a "firing" squad "kill" some of them. Then they would have Magsaysay make a big speech to the people and the whole battalion would roll down the road to have breakfast together somewhere...ready for the next "show".

Ed would always see that someone had arranged to have newsmen and camera men there and Magsaysay soon became a national hero.

This was a tough game and Ed bragged that a lot of people were killed; but in the end Magsaysay became the "elected" President and Querino was ousted "legally."

This formula endeared Ed to Allen Dulles. In 1954 Dulles established the Saigon Military Mission in Vietnam...counter to Eisenhower's orders. He had the French accept Lansdale as its chief. This mission was not in Saigon. It was not military, and its job was subversion in Vietnam. Its biggest job was that it got more than 1,100,000 northern Vietnamese to move south. 660,000 by U.S.Navy ships and the rest by CIA airline planes. These 1,100,000 north Vietnamese became the "subversive" element in South Vietnam and the principal cause of the warmaking. Lansdale and his cronies (Bohanon, Arundel, Phillips, Hand, Conein and many others) did all that using the same check book. I was with them many times during 1954. All Malthuseanism.

I have heard him brag about capturing random Vietnamese and putting them in a Helicopter. Then they would work on them to make them "confess" to being Viet Minh. When they would not, they would toss them out of the chopper, one after the other, until the last ones talked. This was Ed's idea of fun...as related to me many times. Then Dulles, Adm. Radford and Cardinal Spellman set up Ngo Dinh Diem. He and his brother, Nhu, became Lansdale proteges.

[From 1957 to the Assassination of JKF]

At about 1957 Lansdale was brought back to Washington and assigned to Air Force Headquarters in a Plans office near mine. He was a fish out of water. He didn't know Air Force people and Air Force ways. After about six months of that, Dulles got the Office of Special Operations under General Erskine to ask for Lansdale to work for the Secretary of Defense. Erskine was man enough to control him.

By 1960 Erskine had me head the Air Force shop there. He had an Army shop and a Navy shop and we were responsible for all CIA relationships as well as for the National Security Agency. Ed was still out of his element because he did not know the services; but the CIA sent work his way.

Then in the Fall of 1960 something happened that fired him up. Kennedy was elected over Nixon.

Right away Lansdale figured out what he was going to do with the new President. Overnight he left for Saigon to see Diem and to set up a deal that would make him, Lansdale, Ambassador to Vietnam. He had me buy a "Father of his Country" gift for Diem...$700.00.

I can't repeat all of this but you should get a copy of the Gravel edition, 5 Vol.'s, of the Pentagon Papers and read it. The Lansdale accounts are quite good and reasonably accurate.

Ed came back just before the Inauguration and was brought into the White House for a long presentation to Kennedy about Vietnam. Kennedy was taken by it and promised he would have Lansdale back in Vietnam "in a high office". Ed told us in OSO he had the Ambassadorship sewed up. He lived for that job.

He had not reckoned with some of JFK's inner staff, George Ball, etc. Finally the whole thing turned around and month by month Lansdale's star sank over the horizon. Erskine retired and his whole shop was scattered. The Navy men went back to the navy as did the Army folks. Gen Wheeler in the JCS asked to have me assigned to the Joint Staff. This wiped out the whole Erskine (Office of Special Operations) office. It was comical. There was Lansdale up there all by himself with no office and no one else.

He boiled and he blamed it on Kennedy for not giving him the "promised" Ambassadorship to let him "save" Vietnam.

[Operation Mongoose and Operation Cameolot]

Then with the failure of the Bay of Pigs, caused by that phone call to cancel the air strikes by McGeorge Bundy, the military was given the job of reconstituting some sort of Anti-Castro operation. It was headed by an Army Colonel; but somehow Lansdale (most likely CIA influence) got put into the plans for Operation Mongoose...to get Castro...ostensibly.

The U.S. Army has a think-tank at American University. It was called "Operation Camelot". This is where the "Camelot" concept came from. It was anti-JFK's Vietnam strategy. The men running it were Lansdale types, Special Forces background. "Camelot" was King Arthur and Knights of the Round Table: not JFK...then.

Through 1962 and 1963 Mongoose and "Camelot" became strong and silent organizations dedicated to countering JFK.

Mongoose had access to the CIA's best "hit men" in the business and a lot of "strike" capability. Lansdale had many old friends in the media business such as Joe Alsop, Henry Luce among others.

[Zapruder was contacted at home by Richard Stolley, an editor at Life magazine (and first editor of the future People magazine). They arranged to meet the following morning to view the film, after which Zapruder sold the print rights to Life for $50,000.[27] Stolley was representing Time/Life on behalf of publisher Charles Douglas Jackson.

The following day (November 24), Life purchased all rights to the film for a total of $150,000 (approximately $1,434,000 today)

[General Charles Jackson (C. D.) Jackson (March 16, 1902 – September 18, 1964) was a United States government propagandist and senior executive of Time Inc. As an expert on psychological warfare he served in the Office of Strategic Services in World War II and later as Special Assistant to the President in the Eisenhower-Nixon administration.

After the war, he became Managing Director of Time-Life International from 1945 to 1949. He later became publisher of Fortune Magazine. From 1951 to 1952, he served as president of the anticommunist Free Europe Committee. He was a speech writer for Dwight Eisenhower's successful 1952 presidential campaign. He was assigned to be Eisenhower's liaison between the newly-created CIA and the Pentagon.

From February 1953 to March 1954, Jackson served as adviser to the President on psychological warfare.[4] He worked closely with the Psychological Strategy Board and was a member of the Operations Coordinating Board. He was also a member of the Committee on International Information Activities, which was known, after its chairman, William Harding Jackson, as the Jackson Committee.

During 1953 and 1954, Jackson was key in establishing the Bilderberg Group and ensuring American participation. He attended meetings of the group in 1954, 1957, 1958, 1960, 1961, 1962, 1963, and 1964.

Jackson was a defender of Radio Free Europe, stating, "Over the years, Radio Free Europe has never, in a single broadcast or leaflet, deviated from its essential policy, and did not broadcast a single program during the recent Polish and Hungarian developments which could be described as an 'incitement' program."

He later served in a position at the United Nations. From 1958 to 1960, he served as a speechwriter and White House manager after the departure of Sherman Adams and the death of John Foster Dulles. In 1960, he was publisher of Life magazine.] - Wikipedia

Prouty continuing about Lansdale: With this background and with his poisoned motivation I am positive that he got collateral orders to manage the Dallas event under the guise of "getting" Castro. It is so simple at that level. A nod from the right place, source immaterial, and the job's done.

The "hit" is the easy part. The "escape" must be quick and professional. The cover-up and the scenario are the big jobs. They more than anything else prove the Lansdale mastery.

ZLansdale was a master writer and planner.

He was a great "scenario" guy. It still have a lot of his personally typed material in my files. I am certain that he was behind the elaborate plan and mostly the intricate and enduring cover-up. Given a little help from friends at PEPSICO he could easily have gotten Nixon into Dallas, for "orientation': and LBJ in the cavalcade at the same time, contrary to Secret Service policy.

[The front page of The Dallas Times Herald — November 21, 1963: Richard Nixon photographed with Pepsi Cola President Donald Kendall in Dallas, Texas on the day before the murder of President Kennedy. The newspaper caption reads: "NIXON TODAY ... JFK TOMORROW — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, left, found himself in Dallas on a 'quick business trip' Thursday on the eve of President Kennedy's visit to the city. With Mr. Nixon is Don Kendall, president of Pepsi Cola Bottling Co. Mr. Nixon's New York law partnership represents the soft drink company." For more information see: Dirty Politics--Nixon, Watergate, and the JFK Assassination]

He knew the "Protection" units and the "Secret Service", who was needed and who wasn't. Those were routine calls for him, and they would have believed him. Cabell could handle the police.

The "hit men" were from CIA overseas sources, for instance, from the "Camp near Athena, Greece. They are trained, stateless, and ready to go at any time. They ask no questions: speak to no one. They are simply told what to do, when and where. Then they are told how they will be removed and protected. After all, they work for the U.S. Government. The "Tramps" were actors doing the job of cover-up. The hit men are just pros. They do the job for the CIA anywhere. They are impersonal. They get paid. They get protected, and they have enough experience to "blackmail" anyone, if anyone ever turns on them...just like Drug agents. The job was clean, quick and neat. No ripples.

The whole story of the POWER of the Cover-up comes down to a few points. There has never been a Grand Jury and trial in Texas. Without a trial there can be nothing. Without a trial it does no good for researchers to dig up data. It has no place to go and what the researchers reveal just helps make the cover-up tighter, or they eliminate that evidence and the researcher.

The first man LBJ met with on Nov 29th, after he had cleared the foreign dignitaries out of Washington was Waggoner Carr, Atty Gen'l, Texas to tell him, "No trial in Texas...ever."

The next man he met, also on Nov 29th, was J. Edgar Hoover. The first question LBJ asked his old "19 year" neighbor in DC was "Were THEY shooting at me?" LBJ thought that THEY had been shooting at him also as they shot at his friend John Connally. Note that he asked, "Were THEY shooting at me?" LBJ knew there were several hitmen. That's the ultimate clue...THEY.

The Connallys said the same thing...THEY. Not Oswald.

Then came the heavily loaded press releases about Oswald all written before the deal and released actually before LHO had ever been charged with the crime. I bought the first newspaper EXTRA on the streets of Christchurch, New Zealand with the whole LHO story in that first news...photos and columns of it before the police in Dallas had yet to charge him with that crime. All this canned material about LHO was flashed around the world.

Lansdale and his Time-Life (CD Douglas) and other media friends, with Valenti in Hollywood, have been doing that cover-up since Nov 1963.

Even the deMorenschildt story enhances all of this. In deM's personal telephone/address notebook he had the name of an Air Force Colonel friend of mine, Howard Burrus. Burrus was always deep in intelligence. He had been in one of the most sensitive Attache spots in Europe...Switzerland. He was a close friend of another Air Force Colonel and Attache, Godfrey McHugh, who used to date Jackie Bouvier. DeM had Burrus listed under a DC telephone number and on that same telephone number he had "L.B.Johnson, Congressman." Quite a connection. Why...from the Fifties yet.?

Godfrey McHugh was the Air Force Attache in Paris. Another most important job. I knew him well, and I transferred his former Ass't Attache to my office in the Pentagon. This gave me access to a lot of information I wanted in the Fifties. This is how I learned that McHugh's long-time special "date" was the fair Jacqueline...yes, the same Jackie Bouvier. Sen. Kennedy met Jackie in Paris when he was on a trip. At that time JFK was dating a beautiful SAS Airline Stewardess who was the date of that Ass't Attache who came to my office. JFK dumped her and stole Jackie away from McHugh. Leaves McHugh happy????

At the JFK Inaugural Ball who should be there but the SAS stewardess, Jackie--of course, and Col Godfrey McHugh. JFK made McHugh a General and made him his "Military Advisor" in the White House where he was near Jackie while JFK was doing all that official travelling connected with his office AND other special interests. Who recommended McHugh for the job?

General McHugh was in Dallas and was on Air Force One, with Jackie, on the flight back to Washington..as was Jack Valenti. Why was LBJ's old cohort there at that time and why was he on Air Force One? He is now the Movie Czar. Why in Dallas?

See how carefully all of this is interwoven. Burrus is now a very wealthy man in Washington. I have lost track of McHugh. And Jackie is doing well. All in the Lansdale--deM shadows.

One of Lansdale's special "black" intelligence associates in the Pentagon was Dorothy Matlack of U.S. Army Intelligence. How does it happen that when deM. flew from Haiti to testify, he was met at the National Airport by Dorothy?

The Lansdale story is endless. What people do not do is study the entire environment of his strange career. For example: the most important part of my book, "The Secret Team", is not something that I wrote. It is Appendix III under the title, "Training Under The Mutual Security Program".

This is a most important bit of material. It tells more about the period 1963 to 1990 than anything. I fought to have it included verbatim in the book. This material was the work of Lansdale and his crony General Dick Stillwell. Anyone interested in the "JFK Coup d'Etat" ought to know it by heart.

I believe this document tells why the Coup took place. It was to reverse the sudden JFK re-orientation of the U.S. Government from Asia to Europe, in keeping with plans made in 1943 at Cairo and Teheran by T.V. Soong and his Asian masterminds. Lansdale and Stillwell were long-time "Asia hands" as were Gen Erskine, Adm Radford, Cardinal Spellman, Henry Luce and so many others.

In October 1963, JFK had just signalled this reversal, to Europe, when he published National Security Action Memorandum #263 saying...among other things...that he was taking 1000 troops home from Vietnam by Christmas 1963 and ALL AMERICANS out of Vietnam by the end of 1965. That cost him his life.

JFK came to that "Pro-Europe" conclusion in the Summer of 1963 and sent Gen Krulak to Vietnam for advance work. Kurlak and I (with others) wrote that long "Taylor-McNamara" Report of their "Visit to Vietnam" (obviously they did not write, illustrate and bind it as they traveled). Krulak got his information daily in the White House. We simply wrote it. That led to NSAM #263. This same Trip Report is Document #142 and appears on page 751 to 766 of Vol. II of the Gravel Edition of the Pentagon Papers. NSAM #263 appears on pages 769-770 (It makes the Report official). This major Report and NSAM indicated an enormous shift in the orientation of U.S. Foreign Policy from Asia back to Europe. JFK was much more Europe- oriented, as was his father, than pro-Asia. This position was anathema to the Asia-born Luces, etc.

There is the story from an insider. I sat in the same office with Lansdale, (OSO of OSD) for years.

I listened to him in Manila and read his flurry of notes from 1952 to 1964. I know all this stuff, and much more. I could write ten books. I send this to you because I believe you are one of the most sincere of the "true researchers". You may do with it as you please. I know you will do it right. I may give copies of this to certain other people of our persuasion. (Years ago I told this to Mae Brussell on the promise she would hold it. She did.)

Now you can see why I have always said that identification of the "Tramps" was unnecessary, i.e. they are actors. The first time I saw that picture I saw the man I knew and I realized why he was there. He caused the political world to spin on its axis. Now, back to recuperating.

The following timeline describes just a few of the hundreds of atrocities and crimes committed by the CIA. (1)

CIA operations follow the same recurring script. First, American business interests abroad are threatened by a popular or democratically elected leader. The people support their leader because he intends to conduct land reform, strengthen unions, redistribute wealth, nationalize foreign-owned industry, and regulate business to protect workers, consumers and the environment.

So, on behalf of American business, and often with their help, the CIA mobilizes the opposition.

First it identifies right-wing groups within the country (usually the military), and offers them a deal:

> "We'll put you in power if you maintain a favorable business climate for us."

The Agency then hires, trains and works with them to overthrow the existing government (usually a democracy).

It uses every trick in the book: propaganda, stuffed ballot boxes, purchased elections, extortion, blackmail, sexual intrigue, false stories about opponents in the local media, infiltration and disruption of opposing political parties, kidnapping, beating, torture, intimidation, economic sabotage, death squads and even assassination.

These efforts culminate in a military coup, which installs a right-wing dictator.

The CIA trains the dictator's security apparatus to crack down on the traditional enemies of big business, using interrogation, torture and murder. The victims are said to be "communists," but almost always they are just peasants, liberals, moderates, labor union leaders, political opponents and advocates of free speech and democracy. Widespread human rights abuses follow.

This scenario has been repeated so many times that the CIA actually teaches it in a special school, the notorious "School of the Americas." (It opened in Panama but later moved to Fort Benning, Georgia.)

Critics have nicknamed it the "School of the Dictators" and "School of the Assassins." Here, the CIA trains Latin American military officers how to conduct coups, including the use of interrogation, torture and murder.

The Association for Responsible Dissent estimates that by 1987, 6 million people had died as a result of CIA covert operations. (2) Former State Department official William Blum correctly calls this an "American Holocaust."

The CIA justifies these actions as part of its war against communism. But most coups do not involve a communist threat. Unlucky nations are targeted for a wide variety of reasons: not only threats to American business interests abroad, but also liberal or even moderate social reforms, political instability, the unwillingness of a leader to carry out Washington's dictates, and declarations of neutrality in the Cold War. Indeed, nothing has infuriated CIA Directors quite like a nation's desire to stay out of the Cold War.

The ironic thing about all this intervention is that it frequently fails to achieve American objectives.

Often the newly installed dictator grows comfortable with the security apparatus the CIA has built for him. He becomes an expert at running a police state. And because the dictator knows he cannot be overthrown, he becomes independent and defiant of Washington's will.

The CIA then finds it cannot overthrow him, because the police and military are under the dictator's control, afraid to cooperate with American spies for fear of torture and execution. The only two options for the U.S at this point are impotence or war. Examples of this "boomerang effect" include the Shah of Iran, General Noriega and Saddam Hussein.

The boomerang effect also explains why the CIA has proven highly successful at overthrowing democracies, but a wretched failure at overthrowing dictatorships.

The following timeline should confirm that the CIA as we know it should be abolished and replaced by a true information-gathering and analysis organization.

The CIA cannot be reformed - it is institutionally and culturally corrupt:

> 1929
> The culture we lost - Secretary of State Henry Stimson refuses to endorse a code-breaking operation, saying, "Gentlemen do not read each other's mail."
>
> 1941
> COI created - In preparation for World War II, President Roosevelt creates the Office of Coordinator of Information (COI). General William "Wild Bill" Donovan heads the new intelligence service.
>
> 1942
> OSS created - Roosevelt restructures COI into something more suitable for covert action, the Office of Strategic Services (OSS). Donovan recruits so many of the nation's rich and powerful that eventually people joke that "OSS" stands for "Oh, so social!" or "Oh, such snobs!"

1943
Italy - Donovan recruits the Catholic Church in Rome to be the center of Anglo-American spy operations in Fascist Italy. This would prove to be one of America's most enduring intelligence alliances in the Cold War.

1945
OSS is abolished - The remaining American information agencies cease covert actions and return to harmless information gathering and analysis.

Operation PAPERCLIP - While other American agencies are hunting down Nazi war criminals for arrest, the U.S. intelligence community is smuggling them into America, unpunished, for their use against the Soviets. The most important of these is Reinhard Gehlen, Hitler's master spy who had built up an intelligence network in the Soviet Union.

With full U.S. blessing, he creates the "Gehlen Organization," a band of refugee Nazi spies who reactivate their networks in Russia. These include SS intelligence officers Alfred Six and Emil Augsburg (who massacred Jews in the Holocaust), Klaus Barbie (the "Butcher of Lyon"), Otto von Bolschwing (the Holocaust mastermind who worked with Eichmann) and SS Colonel Otto Skorzeny (a personal friend of Hitler's).

The Gehlen Organization supplies the U.S. with its only intelligence on the Soviet Union for the next ten years, serving as a bridge between the abolishment of the OSS and the creation of the CIA. However, much of the "intelligence" the former Nazis provide is bogus.

Gehlen inflates Soviet military capabilities at a time when Russia is still rebuilding its devastated society, in order to inflate his own importance to the Americans (who might otherwise punish him). In 1948, Gehlen almost convinces the Americans that war is imminent, and the West should make a preemptive strike. In the 50s he produces a fictitious "missile gap."

To make matters worse, the Russians have thoroughly penetrated the Gehlen Organization with double agents, undermining the very American security that Gehlen was supposed to protect.

Greece - President Truman requests military aid to Greece to support right-wing forces fighting communist rebels. For the rest of the Cold War, Washington and the CIA will back notorious Greek leaders with deplorable human rights records.

CIA created - President Truman signs the National Security Act of 1947, creating the Central Intelligence Agency and National Security Council. The CIA is accountable to the president through the NSC - there is no democratic or congressional oversight. Its charter allows the CIA to "perform such other functions and duties… as the National Security Council may from time to time direct."

This loophole opens the door to covert action and dirty tricks.

Covert-action wing created - The CIA recreates a covert action wing, innocuously called the Office of Policy Coordination, led by Wall Street lawyer Frank Wisner.

According to its secret charter, its responsibilities include "propaganda, economic warfare, preventive direct action, including sabotage, antisabotage, demolition and evacuation procedures; subversion against hostile states, including assistance to underground resistance groups, and support of indigenous anti-communist elements in threatened countries of the free world."

Italy - The CIA corrupts democratic elections in Italy, where Italian communists threaten to win the elections. The CIA buys votes, broadcasts propaganda, threatens and beats up opposition leaders, and infiltrates and disrupts their organizations. It works -- the communists are defeated.

Radio Free Europe - The CIA creates its first major propaganda outlet, Radio Free Europe. Over the next several decades, its broadcasts are so blatantly false that for a time it is considered illegal to publish transcripts of them in the U.S.

Late 40s
Operation MOCKINGBIRD - The CIA begins recruiting American news organizations and journalists to become spies and disseminators of propaganda. The effort is headed by Frank Wisner, Allan Dulles, Richard Helms and Philip Graham. Graham is publisher of The Washington Post, which becomes a major CIA player.

Eventually, the CIA's media assets will include ABC, NBC, CBS, Time, Newsweek, Associated Press, United Press International, Reuters, Hearst Newspapers, Scripps-Howard, Copley News Service and more. By the CIA's own admission, at least 25 organizations and 400 journalists will become CIA assets.

Iran - CIA overthrows the democratically elected Mohammed Mossadegh in a military coup, after he threatened to nationalize British oil. The CIA replaces him with a dictator, the Shah of Iran, whose secret police, SAVAK, is as brutal as the Gestapo.

Operation MK-ULTRA - Inspired by North Korea's brainwashing program, the CIA begins experiments on mind control.

The most notorious part of this project involves giving LSD and other drugs to American subjects without their knowledge or against their will, causing several to commit suicide.

However, the operation involves far more than this. Funded in part by the Rockefeller and Ford foundations, research includes propaganda, brainwashing, public relations, advertising, hypnosis, and other forms of suggestion.

Guatemala - CIA overthrows the democratically elected Jacob Arbenz in a military coup.

Arbenz has threatened to nationalize the Rockefeller-owned United Fruit Company, in which CIA Director Allen Dulles also owns stock. Arbenz is replaced with a series of right-wing dictators whose bloodthirsty policies will kill over 100,000 Guatemalans in the next 40 years.

1954-1958
North Vietnam - CIA officer Edward Lansdale spends four years trying to overthrow the communist government of North Vietnam, using all the usual dirty tricks. The CIA also attempts to legitimize a tyrannical puppet regime in South Vietnam, headed by Ngo Dinh Diem.

These efforts fail to win the hearts and minds of the South Vietnamese because the Diem government is opposed to true democracy, land reform and poverty reduction measures. The CIA's continuing failure results in escalating American intervention, culminating in the Vietnam War.

1956
Hungary - Radio Free Europe incites Hungary to revolt by broadcasting Khruschev's Secret Speech, in which he denounced Stalin. It also hints that American aid will help the Hungarians fight.

This aid fails to materialize as Hungarians launch a doomed armed revolt, which only invites a major Soviet invasion. The conflict kills 7,000 Soviets and 30,000 Hungarians.

1957-1973
Laos - The CIA carries out approximately one coup per year trying to nullify Laos' democratic elections.

The problem is the Pathet Lao, a leftist group with enough popular support to be a member of any coalition government. In the late 50s, the CIA even creates an "Armee Clandestine" of Asian mercenaries to attack the Pathet Lao.

After the CIA's army suffers numerous defeats, the U.S. starts bombing, dropping more bombs on Laos than all the U.S. bombs dropped in World War II. A quarter of all Laotians will eventually become refugees, many living in caves.

Haiti - The U.S. military helps "Papa Doc" Duvalier become dictator of Haiti.

He creates his own private police force, the "Tonton Macoutes," who terrorize the population with machetes. They will kill over 100,000 during the Duvalier family reign. The U.S. does not protest their dismal human rights record.

1961

The Bay of Pigs - The CIA sends 1,500 Cuban exiles to invade Castro's Cuba. But "Operation Mongoose" fails, due to poor planning, security and backing.

The planners had imagined that the invasion will spark a popular uprising against Castro -– which never happens. A promised American air strike also never occurs. This is the CIA's first public setback, causing President Kennedy to fire CIA Director Allen Dulles.

Dominican Republic - The CIA assassinates Rafael Trujillo, a murderous dictator Washington has supported since 1930. Trujillo's business interests have grown so large (about 60 percent of the economy) that they have begun competing with American business interests.

Ecuador - The CIA-backed military forces the democratically elected President Jose Velasco to resign. Vice President Carlos Arosemana replaces him; the CIA fills the now vacant vice presidency with its own man.

Congo (Zaire) - The CIA assassinates the democratically elected Patrice Lumumba. However, public support for Lumumba's politics runs so high that the CIA cannot clearly install his opponents in power. Four years of political turmoil follow.

1963

Dominican Republic - The CIA overthrows the democratically elected Juan Bosch in a military coup. The CIA installs a repressive, right-wing junta.

Ecuador - A CIA-backed military coup overthrows President Arosemana, whose independent (not socialist) policies have become unacceptable to Washington. A military junta assumes command, cancels the 1964 elections, and begins abusing human rights.

1964

Brazil - A CIA-backed military coup overthrows the democratically elected government of Joao Goulart.

The junta that replaces it will, in the next two decades, become one of the most bloodthirsty in history. General Castelo Branco will create Latin America's first death squads, or bands of secret police who hunt down "communists" for torture, interrogation and murder.

Often these "communists" are no more than Branco's political opponents. Later it is revealed that the CIA trains the death squads.

1965
Indonesia - The CIA overthrows the democratically elected Sukarno with a military coup.

The CIA has been trying to eliminate Sukarno since 1957, using everything from attempted assassination to sexual intrigue, for nothing more than his declaring neutrality in the Cold War. His successor, General Suharto, will massacre between 500,000 to 1 million civilians accused of being "communist."

The CIA supplies the names of countless suspects.

Dominican Republic - A popular rebellion breaks out, promising to reinstall Juan Bosch as the country's elected leader. The revolution is crushed when U.S. Marines land to uphold the military regime by force. The CIA directs everything behind the scenes.

Greece - With the CIA's backing, the king removes George Papandreous as prime minister. Papandreous has failed to vigorously support U.S. interests in Greece.

Congo (Zaire) - A CIA-backed military coup installs Mobutu Sese Seko as dictator. The hated and repressive Mobutu exploits his desperately poor country for billions.

1966
The Ramparts Affair - The radical magazine Ramparts begins a series of unprecedented anti-CIA articles.

Among their scoops:

> the CIA has paid the University of Michigan $25 million dollars to hire "professors" to train South Vietnamese students in covert police methods.

MIT and other universities have received similar payments. Ramparts also reveals that the National Students' Association is a CIA front. Students are sometimes recruited through blackmail and bribery, including draft deferments.

Greece - A CIA-backed military coup overthrows the government two days before the elections.

The favorite to win was George Papandreous, the liberal candidate. During the next six years, the "reign of the colonels" - backed by the CIA - will usher in the widespread use of torture and murder against political opponents.

When a Greek ambassador objects to President Johnson about U.S. plans for Cypress, Johnson tells him: "Fuck your parliament and your constitution."

Operation PHEONIX - The CIA helps South Vietnamese agents identify and then murder alleged Viet Cong leaders operating in South Vietnamese villages. According to a 1971 congressional report, this operation killed about 20,000 "Viet Cong."

1968

Operation CHAOS - The CIA has been illegally spying on American citizens since 1959, but with Operation CHAOS, President Johnson dramatically boosts the effort.

CIA agents go undercover as student radicals to spy on and disrupt campus organizations protesting the Vietnam War. They are searching for Russian instigators, which they never find. CHAOS will eventually spy on 7,000 individuals and 1,000 organizations.

Bolivia - A CIA-organized military operation captures legendary guerilla Che Guevara. The CIA wants to keep him alive for interrogation, but the Bolivian government executes him to prevent worldwide calls for clemency.

1969
Uruguay - The notorious CIA torturer Dan Mitrione arrives in Uruguay, a country torn with political strife. Whereas right-wing forces previously used torture only as a last resort, Mitrione convinces them to use it as a routine, widespread practice.

"The precise pain, in the precise place, in the precise amount, for the desired effect," is his motto.

The torture techniques he teaches to the death squads rival the Nazis'. He eventually becomes so feared that revolutionaries will kidnap and murder him a year later.

1970
Cambodia - The CIA overthrows Prince Sahounek, who is highly popular among Cambodians for keeping them out of the Vietnam War. He is replaced by CIA puppet Lon Nol, who immediately throws Cambodian troops into battle.

This unpopular move strengthens once minor opposition parties like the Khmer Rouge, which achieves power in 1975 and massacres millions of its own people.

1971

Bolivia - After half a decade of CIA-inspired political turmoil, a CIA-backed military coup overthrows the leftist President Juan Torres. In the next two years, dictator Hugo Banzer will have over 2,000 political opponents arrested without trial, then tortured, raped and executed.

Haiti - "Papa Doc" Duvalier dies, leaving his 19-year old son "Baby Doc" Duvalier the dictator of Haiti. His son continues his bloody reign with full knowledge of the CIA.

The Case-Zablocki Act - Congress passes an act requiring congressional review of executive agreements. In theory, this should make CIA operations more accountable. In fact, it is only marginally effective.

Cambodia - Congress votes to cut off CIA funds for its secret war in Cambodia.

Wagergate Break-in - President Nixon sends in a team of burglars to wiretap Democratic offices at Watergate. The team members have extensive CIA histories, including James McCord, E. Howard Hunt and five of the Cuban burglars.

They work for the Committee to Reelect the President (CREEP), which does dirty work like disrupting Democratic campaigns and laundering Nixon's illegal campaign contributions. CREEP's activities are funded and organized by another CIA front, the Mullen Company.

Chile - The CIA overthrows and assassinates Salvador Allende, Latin America's first democratically elected socialist leader. The problems begin when Allende nationalizes American-owned firms in Chile. ITT offers the CIA $1 million for a coup (reportedly refused).

The CIA replaces Allende with General Augusto Pinochet, who will torture and murder thousands of his own countrymen in a crackdown on labor leaders and the political left.

CIA begins internal investigations - William Colby, the Deputy Director for Operations, orders all CIA personnel to report any and all illegal activities they know about. This information is later reported to Congress.

Watergate Scandal - The CIA's main collaborating newspaper in America, The Washington Post, reports Nixon's crimes long before any other newspaper takes up the subject.

The two reporters, Woodward and Bernstein, make almost no mention of the CIA's many fingerprints all over the scandal. It is later revealed that Woodward was a Naval intelligence briefer to the White House, and knows many important intelligence figures, including General Alexander Haig. His main source, "Deep Throat," is probably one of those.

CIA Director Helms Fired - President Nixon fires CIA Director Richard Helms for failing to help cover up the Watergate scandal. Helms and Nixon have always disliked each other. The new CIA director is William Colby, who is relatively more open to CIA reform.

CHAOS exposed - Pulitzer prize winning journalist Seymour Hersh publishes a story about Operation CHAOS, the domestic surveillance and infiltration of anti-war and civil rights groups in the U.S. The story sparks national outrage.

Angleton fired - Congress holds hearings on the illegal domestic spying efforts of James Jesus Angleton, the CIA's chief of counterintelligence. His efforts included mail-opening campaigns and secret surveillance of war protesters. The hearings result in his dismissal from the CIA.

House clears CIA in Watergate - The House of Representatives clears the CIA of any complicity in Nixon's Watergate break-in.

The Hughes Ryan Act - Congress passes an amendment requiring the president to report nonintelligence CIA operations to the relevant congressional committees in a timely fashion.

1975

Australia - The CIA helps topple the democratically elected, left-leaning government of Prime Minister

Edward Whitlam.

The CIA does this by giving an ultimatum to its Governor-General, John Kerr. Kerr, a longtime CIA collaborator, exercises his constitutional right to dissolve the Whitlam government. The Governor-General is a largely ceremonial position appointed by the Queen; the Prime Minister is democratically elected. The use of this archaic and never-used law stuns the nation.

Angola - Eager to demonstrate American military resolve after its defeat in Vietnam, Henry Kissinger launches a CIA-backed war in Angola. Contrary to Kissinger's assertions, Angola is a country of little strategic importance and not seriously threatened by communism.

The CIA backs the brutal leader of UNITAS, Jonas Savimbi. This polarizes Angolan politics and drives his opponents into the arms of Cuba and the Soviet Union for survival. Congress will cut off funds in 1976, but the CIA is able to run the war off the books until 1984, when funding is legalized again.

This entirely pointless war kills over 300,000 Angolans.

"The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence" - Victor Marchetti and John Marks publish this whistle-blowing history of CIA crimes and abuses. Marchetti has spent 14 years in the CIA, eventually becoming an executive assistant to the Deputy Director of Intelligence. Marks has spent five years as an intelligence official in the State Department.

"Inside the Company" - Philip Agee publishes a diary of his life inside the CIA. Agee has worked in covert operations in Latin America during the 60s, and details the crimes in which he took part.

Congress investigates CIA wrong-doing - Public outrage compels Congress to hold hearings on CIA crimes. Senator Frank Church heads the Senate investigation ("The Church Committee"), and Representative Otis Pike heads the House investigation. (Despite a 98 percent incumbency reelection rate, both Church and Pike are defeated in the next elections.)

The investigations lead to a number of reforms intended to increase the CIA's accountability to Congress, including the creation of a standing Senate committee on intelligence. However, the reforms prove ineffective, as the Iran/Contra scandal will show. It turns out the CIA can control, deal with or sidestep Congress with ease.

The Rockefeller Commission - In an attempt to reduce the damage done by the Church Committee, President Ford creates the "Rockefeller Commission" to whitewash CIA history and propose toothless reforms. The commission's namesake, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, is himself a major CIA figure.

Five of the commission's eight members are also members of the Council on Foreign Relations, a CIA-dominated organization.

Iran - The CIA fails to predict the fall of the Shah of Iran, a longtime CIA puppet, and the rise of Muslim fundamentalists who are furious at the CIA's backing of SAVAK, the Shah's bloodthirsty secret police. In revenge, the Muslims take 52 Americans hostage in the U.S. embassy in Tehran.

Afghanistan - The Soviets invade Afghanistan. The CIA immediately begins supplying arms to any faction willing to fight the occupying Soviets. Such indiscriminate arming means that when the Soviets leave Afghanistan, civil war will erupt. Also, fanatical Muslim extremists now possess state-of-the-art weaponry. One of these is Sheik Abdel Rahman, who will become involved in the World Trade Center bombing in New York.

El Salvador - An idealistic group of young military officers, repulsed by the massacre of the poor, overthrows the right-wing government. However, the U.S. compels the inexperienced officers to include many of the old guard in key positions in their new government. Soon, things are back to "normal" - the military government is repressing and killing poor civilian protesters.

Many of the young military and civilian reformers, finding themselves powerless, resign in disgust.

Nicaragua - Anastasio Somoza II, the CIA-backed dictator, falls. The Marxist Sandinistas take over government, and they are initially popular because of their commitment to land and anti-poverty reform. Samoza had a murderous and hated personal army called the National Guard.

Remnants of the Guard will become the Contras, who fight a CIA-backed guerilla war against the Sandinista government throughout the 1980s.

1980
El Salvador - The Archbishop of San Salvador, Oscar Romero, pleads with President Carter "Christian to Christian" to stop aiding the military government slaughtering his people.

Carter refuses. Shortly afterwards, right-wing leader Roberto D'Aubuisson has Romero shot through the heart while saying Mass. The country soon dissolves into civil war, with the peasants in the hills fighting against the military government.

The CIA and U.S. Armed Forces supply the government with overwhelming military and intelligence superiority. CIA-trained death squads roam the countryside, committing atrocities like that of El Mazote in 1982, where they massacre between 700 and 1000 men, women and children.

By 1992, some 63,000 Salvadorans will be killed.

Iran/Contra Begins - The CIA begins selling arms to

Iran at high prices, using the profits to arm the Contras fighting the Sandinista government in Nicaragua. President Reagan vows that the Sandinistas will be "pressured" until "they say ‘uncle.'"

The CIA's Freedom Fighter's Manual disbursed to the Contras includes instruction on economic sabotage, propaganda, extortion, bribery, blackmail, interrogation, torture, murder and political assassination.

Honduras - The CIA gives Honduran military officers the Human Resource Exploitation Training Manual - 1983, which teaches how to torture people.

Honduras' notorious "Battalion 316" then uses these techniques, with the CIA's full knowledge, on thousands of leftist dissidents. At least 184 are murdered.

1984

The Boland Amendment - The last of a series of Boland Amendments is passed. These amendments have reduced CIA aid to the Contras; the last one cuts it off completely.

However, CIA Director William Casey is already prepared to "hand off" the operation to Colonel Oliver North, who illegally continues supplying the Contras through the CIA's informal, secret, and self-financing network.

This includes "humanitarian aid" donated by Adolph Coors and William Simon, and military aid funded by Iranian arms sales.

Eugene Hasenfus - Nicaragua shoots down a C-123 transport plane carrying military supplies to the Contras.

The lone survivor, Eugene Hasenfus, turns out to be a CIA employee, as are the two dead pilots. The airplane belongs to Southern Air Transport, a CIA front. The incident makes a mockery of President Reagan's claims that the CIA is not illegally arming the Contras.

Iran/Contra Scandal - Although the details have long been known, the Iran/Contra scandal finally captures the media's attention in 1986. Congress holds hearings, and several key figures (like Oliver North) lie under oath to protect the intelligence community. CIA Director William Casey dies of brain cancer before Congress can question him. All reforms enacted by Congress after the scandal are purely cosmetic.

Haiti - Rising popular revolt in Haiti means that "Baby Doc" Duvalier will remain "President for Life" only if he has a short one. The U.S., which hates instability in a puppet country, flies the despotic Duvalier to the South of France for a comfortable retirement.

The CIA then rigs the upcoming elections in favor of another right-wing military strongman. However, violence keeps the country in political turmoil for another four years.

The CIA tries to strengthen the military by creating the National Intelligence Service (SIN), which suppresses popular revolt through torture and assassination.

Panama - The U.S. invades Panama to overthrow a dictator of its own making, General Manuel Noriega.

Noriega has been on the CIA's payroll since 1966, and has been transporting drugs with the CIA's knowledge since 1972. By the late 80s, Noriega's growing independence and intransigence have angered Washington… so out he goes.

1990
Haiti - Competing against 10 comparatively wealthy candidates, leftist priest Jean-Bertrand Aristide captures 68 percent of the vote.

After only eight months in power, however, the CIA-backed military deposes him. More military dictators brutalize the country, as thousands of Haitian refugees escape the turmoil in barely seaworthy boats.

As popular opinion calls for Aristide's return, the CIA begins a disinformation campaign painting the courageous priest as mentally unstable.

1991
The Gulf War - The U.S. liberates Kuwait from Iraq.

But Iraq's dictator, Saddam Hussein, is another creature of the CIA. With U.S. encouragement, Hussein invaded Iran in 1980. During this costly eight-year war, the CIA built up Hussein's forces with sophisticated arms, intelligence, training and financial backing.

This cemented Hussein's power at home, allowing him to crush the many internal rebellions that erupted from time to time, sometimes with poison gas. It also gave him all the military might he needed to conduct further adventurism - in Kuwait, for example.

The Fall of the Soviet Union - The CIA fails to predict this most important event of the Cold War. This suggests that it has been so busy undermining governments that it hasn't been doing its primary job: gathering and analyzing information.

The fall of the Soviet Union also robs the CIA of its reason for existence: fighting communism. This leads some to accuse the CIA of intentionally failing to predict the downfall of the Soviet Union.

Curiously, the intelligence community's budget is not significantly reduced after the demise of communism.

1992
Economic Espionage - In the years following the end of the Cold War, the CIA is increasingly used for economic espionage. This involves stealing the technological secrets of competing foreign companies and giving them to American ones.

Given the CIA's clear preference for dirty tricks over mere information gathering, the possibility of serious criminal behavior is very great indeed.

Haiti - The chaos in Haiti grows so bad that President Clinton has no choice but to remove the Haitian military dictator, Raoul Cedras, on threat of U.S. invasion.

The U.S. occupiers do not arrest Haiti's military leaders for crimes against humanity, but instead ensure their safety and rich retirements.

Aristide is returned to power only after being forced to accept an agenda favorable to the country's ruling class.

Run for Cover after the Coup

My point here is that Holt considers the assassination a bloody Coup. So do I Edward Paul Donegan. Since Holt has died E. Howard Hunt of the CIA also confessed, partially on recording, to his son St John Hunt. It was Hunt and Holt identified as Hobos standing next to each other.

Both Hunt and Holt name William King Harvey as one of the main CIA figures.

There should be renewed interest in this book.

One of the elements of a Coup is coming to power. Ed Donegan asserts that occurred and now I (Edward Paul Donegan) and Jen Moore and other (Dorothy Kilgallen) are experiencing retaliatory harassing, attempts to silence us.

Voice over the newscaster

Coup d' Etat

CH: When the shooting started at 12:30, then immediately after the first shot, which was a weak type Of shot, I realized that this was not any simple demonstration. You know, in addition to the shots people were screaming and running in all directions. I didn't actually see the shooting although I was behind the picket fence within 35 yards Of the motorcade, but I didn't see it.

VO: Chauncey didn't see the president shot, but he sure heard something.

CH: Oh, I heard it very well, and enough to know there were more than the three shots they are claiming. And it seemed to me, as somewhat of an expert in shooting, that the shots did not all come from the same direction. I am quite sure that the shots were from different caliber guns and from different sources and I know there were 4 shots, possibly 5 shots. It's very hard to distinguish shots fired with an automatic or a semi automatic because the sounds merge together, but believed there were probably 5 shots and that they came from different sources. It was just a fuselage of shots in a very short period of time.

Run for Cover

CH: My first instinct was just to get out ofthere. You know, mix with the crowd and go. But I had been given specific instructions, and when you are given specific instructions, that is what you do. I had barely enough time to get to the boxcar and when I arrived there these two individuals, known to me as Harrelson and Montoya, were already there. It indicated they were close by. We jumped in the box car and settled down just to wait everything out.

There was a search party that came by many times, but this boxcar appeared to be locked. It had a seal on it and they kept passing it by. We could hear them outside, we could hear their radio's and so forth.

VO: The three sat in the boxcar for over an hour, listening to a police radio receiver that Chauncey had concealed in a brown paper bag. Then around 2:20 PM the boxcar started to move.

CH: It moved up the track and then it moved back down the track and then it stopped. What actually happened was that Lee Bowers, who happened to be the tower operator that supervised all the train movements in the yard, happened to see somebody jump on the train further up. So he ordered the train stopped and they backed it down the track. We were not too concerned about it at that time, because after all it was a switching yard.

But for some reason it stopped and that time they didn't pass the boxcar up. So we heard them rattling at the door and I immediately took out the ATF credentials because I certainly didn't want to have a bunch of trigger happy cops dragging us out of there.

So the minute they opened the door I flashed my credentials.

I said I was with the ATF, showed my badge and that sort of thing.

D.V. Harkness was a sergeant for the Dallas Police Department. He was in charge of this detail. And another officer Roy Vaughn was the second in command. So we identified ourselves, or actually I did, because I did all the talking.

So we said we were BATF, we were working undercover investigating this arms shipment in this boxcar. And he and Vaughn conferred for a little bit and they decided to send us over to the area that was set up as the investigating office.

The little command center that had the Sheriffs department and the police department and the FBI. It was over at the Sheriffs department. So he assigned two cops, Marvin Wise and Billy Bass, to escort us over.

So we started in a leisurely walk, it didn't seem like anything urgent.

Harrelson was in the front at that time and hew sort of strolling along, it seemed like he was enjoying the whole situation. He was probably smoked up on something because he was a notorious narcotics user. But it suddenly changed, Montoya went by him and Montoya went in front. So they took us around the Plaza by the Texas book depository.

VO: They were headed to Sheriff's command post near Elm and Houston Street. Once there, the three were interrogated briefly and released. These men would later be called "the three tramps."

CH: They were taking pictures of everybody in sight. Incidentally there were a lot of guys that were taken pictures of and we still don't know who they were. I mean one guy that had his picture taken, was dressed up all in black, almost like a ninja. They still don't know who that guy was. And there is a picture of a guy that the police is putting in a police car. He's a military type looking guy, very fit with that crew haircut, they have been trying to identify this guy for all these years and they haven't been able to do it. He just got lost in the shuffle like everybody else.

VO: While a number of suspects were questioned within minutes of the shooting, that was not the question for Chauncey, Montoya and Harrelson. They were detained two hours later. Just look at the shadows in the photos. It is clearly late afternoon.

CH: The pictures were taken by newspaper reporters while we were taken around that plaza. There's a lot them Of us walking in front Of the Schoolbook Depository.

VO: Chauncey Holt's claim to be one of the so called three tramps, has been documented elsewhere. There is more than just Holt's word. There is also his face. Lois Gibson is the forensic artist of the Houston Police Department. She made comparisons of Holt and the tramp in the photographs.

Lois Gibson: This is just conclusive that that is the same man. VO: She also compared pictures Of Charles Harrelson with the tramps photos. Again, a perfect match.

Lois Gibson: I'll take my reputation on it, for sure.

Chauncey Holt lived an incredible life. He was an artist, a weapons modification expert, an accountant, a pilot, circus performer, CIA Covert Operation Specialist, and much, much more. His multiple lives were disguised under the names of more than 45 alias'. Three of them "deep cover alias' that could withstand the strictest of scrutiny". John R. Moon [aka "Jack Moon"] was one cover that become Holt's "other side", to put it mildly, where powers of government, members of organized crime, and politicians used Jack's skill sets and talents in many events that changed the history of our Nation.

Bits and pieces of Holt's story have been tossed around and debated... and it still remains....."Don't Know Jack"

Here we go!

VIDEO - "IN MEMORY OF CHAUNCEY HOLT", by Karyn Holt-Harcourt http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=98l-hlTrTCc

My first real memory of John R. Moon was when I was about seven years old. He was my father's partner in their CPA firm located on the corner of Arnaz Drive and Wilshire Blvd. in Los Angeles, California. By this time, my father and Jack had already partnered together for more than a decade. Well before my parents even met in 1962. The convenience of having their office just a block from our home was ideal. Literally, just a hop, skip and a jump, or a few strokes of my roller skates and I was at dad's office. In looking back, this must have been quite a luxury for my father to have only a short walk down the street to an office adjacent my school playground. Of course, this was only when he was in town. He was a "frequent flyer" to coin the term; only he was the pilot.

Still, my visits to his office felt "frequent" enough for me. I never felt cheated that my father was gone. I never questioned the amount of love he had for me. He was Mutt, and I Jeff! Yet, in all those visits to his office I never met his partner John Moon. In fact, neither did my mother. What a shame being that my father spoke highly of him, and his wife, in a strange but funny and personable way. We always received Christmas Cards and gifts, vacation comps, hotel accomodations, and more from Mr. and Mrs. Moon, so even without the real connection he was a "friend of the family." I was simply a kid without a care in the world and gave it little to no thought.

I do remember thinking that the office was far too small for two CPA's to work in. Where was Mr. Moon's desk? I have my own desk at school. Shouldn't CPA's have their own desks too? But, being that neither seemed to require the other to be there "sharing was nice" , no it was actually perfect to my benefit in spending time with "dad at the office." The highlight of this little girl's day!

So, while Mr. Moon was being a scarce sort of individual and partner to my dad, his wife however was not. Her presents left an impression in our home. Each holiday season she would make the yummiest of cookies and lavish meals for our family. Meals that made you wonder how someone could cook such a feast for us and still have time to enjoy her own meal with her family. My mother seemed curious about this as well and I remember her asking my father; "What women has the time to make two family holiday dinners?" I don't recall if an answer was ever given, but it was a good question, so I thought, and at the same time gave no concern. We enjoyed each turkey, potatoe, pie, yam and dressing, and always gave thanks for the wonderful meal sent our way.

Those scrumptous holiday feasts soon ended in the summer of 1975 when we left Beverly Hills. My father wanted to relocate to San Diego for a "change of scenery". The move was very quick but also very exciting! We checked in to the Beverly Wilshire Hotel for a few weeks while our home was boxed up for the moving van. It certainly wasn't your normal moving experience. An odd sort of vacation. To a child a bit unsettling at times. Our home was now a hotel suite. Dinners were brought in by waiter or in the downstairs lounge. My father was jumpy and never took off his sun-glasses. The curtains were always drawn and my mother and father spent most of their time playing chess.

any concern I had. A well thought out plan to avoid explaining all that was happening around me. It worked! My mother was also passified with gifts to ignore the situation. In recalling some of their conversation, I can't truly say that I heard any complaints, but did notice my mother was having several more "cocktails" earlier than usual. Yes, in looking back years later this was not of the norm, but to a child who was very sheltered it was seen as exactly that; "normal". A loving home [hotel suite] and a new puppy to play with. What is better then that for normal at age 11?

We settled into our new country home in Green Valley, owned by Richard Holbrooke, without any further quams about it. The setting offered a tranquil and private setting for whatever business matters my father was about to tackle in Southern California and seemed to make way to an entirely new lifestyle about to begin. His work schedule changed and he tackled a great deal of business as we rarely saw him at the dinner table anymore. I missed him, but then again, I certainly didn't mind our new location and home. My father bought me a beautiful Quarter horse named Brandy, so my days were filled with my own animal paradise. I was seemingly oblivious to any care or pressures that were mounting upon my father.

During the next year, we travelled a great deal as a family to Arizona, Las Vegas, and into the high desert of Lancaster and its surrounding areas. I always enjoyed travelling with my parents because they were filled with strange and exciting events. My father would attend to meetings at bars and in restrooms on the road. I never knew where we were heading. I never understood why we would start out the trip in one vehicle, stop for lunch, and then proceed in another vehicle. I never knew where we were going to stop for the evening. And I never inquired! In looking back, I don't know why I wasn't prompted to ask. I simply never did. We stayed in hotels that were private and grand which required care and service by staff, yet I would never see anyone other then us. The pools were all mine to swim in. The towels were fresh each and every day. The sheets were changed and mints placed upon the pillows; all seemingly by ghosts or those not allowed to be seen.

Arizona was my favorite place to travel. We drove there often to a private ranch, owned by Peter Licavoli, and where I had my own horse reserved just for me to ride. My father would tend to his business at the upper portion of the ranch, while my mother and I stayed at the lodge in the bungalows. Dinner was served at the same time each night among other guests. Business men without faces seemed to pop in and out without actual notice. All appeared to be along the lines of the perfect vacation spot, just a little more private.

The pace in travelling continued to pick up for my father and so did the sense of anxiety around him. The discussion of moving soon grazed the topic of chatter in our home. And, so...we packed up and moved again...this time a bit further out to Valley Center. To me, this was a little spot of heaven. A 40 acre ranch filled with horses, pigs, and cows that we bought at the local auction. There were fields of fruit trees and fenced in land for growing grain and free grazing for our livestock. Life couldn't get any better. I was a natural born country girl!

During the next year, we raised Great Danes, Quarter Horses and even a race horse that won at Bay Meadows Racetrack. The ranch was filled with puppies, pigs, cows, and horses. I even hatched a chicken, Harold, from an incubated egg in my Science Agriculture class. My father gave up his suit and tie and replaced his dress with that of a real cowboy...boots and all... Life was great! Until....

A knock on the door came early one Summer morning, when two individuals were at the main front entrance asking to speak with my father claiming to have an interest in buying the land. Upon entering our home and acknowledgment by my father, they soon clarified their position by slamming my father up against the adobe wall and handcuffing him. Their interest was not to buy anything. They were agents of the FBI and were there to arrest my father. Before this day I had never seen my father cry. Yet, when he looked up and saw me witnessing his arrest his eyes filled and his head hung low. He obviously was in trouble and both my mother and I had no idea what was surrouding these events.

My father was taken into custody under the name Chauncey Marvin Holt. I remember waving good-bye with tears streamming down my face next to my mother who appeared to be clueless. She immediately contacted his lawyer Frank Belcher, Sr, who had already been privy to the arrest. Odd, if you think about it. The weeks that followed were taken up with court proceedings that were short and effortless and had little testimony or witnesses. The process was quick and painless from my perspective, yet the pleading was "guilty" and the outcome was that my father was going away for a while. The event wasn't like that of the movies. In those instances, the prisoner is handcuffed and hauled off to prison. Not in my father's case, the judge asked how much time my father would need to get his things in order and my father scheduled to show up for prison in a couple of weeks. Then, we went to dinner at Lawry's in Beverly Hills. Both my parents gave little indication that anything bad had transpired, rather they both took the whole thing quite casually. My mother was fully aware that my father "worked for the government" and in this particular case she assumed that the government had its hand in the matter and the details would later surface.

My father settled his affairs, located a new place for us to move to at the La Costa Resort in Carlsbad, California and scheduled his pick up from the ranch to go to prison. My mother and I stayed behind to pack up the house and wait for our livestock to be picked up. The plan was to move into our new home shortly, but I missed my father and was concerned for his welfare. Not much was discussed in the home, at least not surrounding the events that had just gone down, and to a child this was very confusing. A few weeks later we were told that my father had arrived at Terminal Island, in Long Beach, California and he was allowed visitors. Finally, I was going to see my dad!

We arrived the following morning at opening and checked in under our names to visit inmate Chauncey Marvin Holt. To our surprise, no inmate was housed under that name. To put it mildly, my mother was furious, and we drove back down to San Diego sharing very little in conversation the entire way home. Only the radio in the background. I remember clearly hearing the song "You're No Good" by Linda Ronstadt and my mother uttering under her breath the chorus. It was an awkward drive home.

When we came inside the house the telephone was ringing for a very long time. My mother picked up the receiver and accepted the collect call. It was my father inquiring as to why we hadn't came up to visit. That conversation is forever imbedded in my mind. I only heard what my mother said, but it was pretty easy to figure out....

"Yes, I'll accept the call." ..... "Marvin, you are full of shit! We were there today! You were'nt! They have no record of any inmate named Chauncey Holt. Not at Terminal Island. Not anywhere! What is going on?.....Why in the hell would I ask for your partner, John Moon?"....."You sure ARE going to explain!"....."Fine, I will drag her up there again tomorrow."....."click"!

I think there was an "I love you" from my father at the end of the conversation, but my mother was not interested in making him feel any better. At this stage, she was peeved! Once she realized that I was standing there listening she felt bad for saying she would "drag me back up there". That wasn't meant for me but rather to rub a little pain towards my dad. So, she did what she always did to hold back tears she asked; "Would you like some bacon?" Odd, but somehow cooking bacon relieved tension for her...and I always enjoyed a great B.L.T. made with love from mom.

Early the next morning, we took another drive up to Long Beach, and sure enough, when we checked in this time for inmate John R. Moon we were led right in and escorted to a rather nice lounge. The guards a few moments later introduced "Inmate Moon" and there entered my dad....Chauncey Holt, a.k.a. "John R. Moon".

But...you still "Don't Know Jack".....

And.....here we go!

JOURNAL ENTRY · 2 MIN READ The CIA and Magic 12

The United States Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) dates from September 18, 1947, when President Harry S. Truman signed the National Security Act of 1947 into law. A major impetus that has been cited over the years[citation needed] for the creation of the CIA was the unforeseen attack on Pearl Harbor,[1] but whatever Pearl Harbor's role, at the close of World War II government circles identified a need for a group to coordinate government intelligence efforts, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), the State Department, the War Department, and even the Post Office were all jockeying for that new power.

General William "Wild Bill" Donovan, head of the Office of Strategic Services (OSS), wrote to President Franklin D. Roosevelt on November 18, 1944, stating the need for a peacetime "Central Intelligence Service ... which will procure intelligence both by overt and covert methods and will at the same time provide intelligence guidance, determine national intelligence objectives, and correlate the intelligence material collected by all government agencies",[2] and have authority to conduct "subversive operations abroad", but "no police or law enforcement functions, either at home or abroad".

MEMORANDUM FOR THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE

Dear Secretary Forrestal:

As per our recent conversation on this matter, you are hereby authorized to proceed with all due speed and caution upon your undertaking.

Hereafter this matter shall be referred to only as Operation Majestic Twelve. It continues to be my feeling that any future considerations relative to the ultimate disposition of this matter should rest solely with the Office of the President following appropriate discussions with yourself, Dr. Bush and the Director of Central Intelligence.

Shortly after his resignation, Forrestal was hospitalized because of severe depression. On May 22, 1949, he committed suicide when he allegedly climbed out of a window to hang himself and fell to his death from the sixteenth floor of the Bethesda Naval Hospital in Maryland.

William Cooper asserts [the Roman Catholic Forrestal] was assassinated by the CIA and Ed Donegan asserts resentment of British colonization techniques were at issue.

1949-1952 Paris and CIA and to 1951 ATSUGI Japan

1946 Holt and the Bugsey Seigel [former] partner Meyers Lansky teamed up because Floriada Mobster Meyers Lansky needed a pilot, had a small plane, and was on and a mobster too. Bugsey was writing them off for Flamingo work but at the CIA is being formed in 1946-1949 the CIA will take in interest in this half of Murder Inc., (Meyers Lansky Holt) and they will go to work for the CIA.

" Lansky and I made another trip to Las Vegas to try to talk some sense into his old partner, the Bug, but it was no use. He had decided he was entitled to the money and everyone could go to hell. He told us, in no uncertain terms, that the Flamingo was his idea and the Flamingo was his joint. Period. No one could do that, not even Bugsy. From that day on he was a dead man; it was just a matter of time.

I remained in California until the Bugsy Siegel matter had been settled to everyone's, except the

Bug's, satisfaction. [assassinated]

During this stint, I came to know Bebe Rebozo, who tried to palm off a small loan company on the organization. This event stands out in bold relief in my mind. I was instructed to examine the books and records, to ascertain its true net worth, with the possibility of the combination buying it as a front for its loan-sharking operations. Even the syndicate didn't like to overpay. I was ushered into a plush boardroom, where the walls were literally covered with photographs, some casual, some formal of just two individuals. I was told by the manager that one of the two individuals was Bebe Rebozo, who owned the loan company, and the other was Richard Nixon, a congressman from Southern California [discharged from the US Navy at the end of the war in 1946.

CHAPTER NINE (Self Potrait of a Scoundrel)

I Become a Spook - along with Lansky

Meyer Lansky was the man with the most connections, and I approached him to see if he could point me in the right direction. As usual, Lansky came through. Lansky told me he could put me in as controller of an organization called the International Rescue Committee. If I wanted the position, it was mine; he would guarantee it. When Lansky made a statement like that you could bank on it. He told me someone else would fill me in later as to my duties, responsibilities, salary, tenure etc. I was assigned an omce, as soon as I was "interviewed" and hung around, doing nothing, except reading the Racing Form for two weeks. About two weeks later, a man by the name of Richard Sluter, with definite military bearings, came from somewhere, presumably Washington, and explained the facts of life to me.

I was informed from the outset that this was not a philanthropic organization, as I had assumed, but rather was a proprietary interest of the newly formed Central Intelligence Agency. I learned later that an incestuous relationship had existed, between organized crime and the intelligence community since World War II, when Lansky had orchestrated the release and deportation of Lucky Luciano, as a condition for keeping the docks of New York free of sabotage. Before this agreement, there had been instances of sabotage, such as the sinking, at the dock, of the Normandie, a French liner, that had been assigned to troop carrying duties.

The CIA does not operate in a vacuum; it still "takes two to tango." So tell it to the KGB and their surrogates, fomenting troubles all over the globe. You could scatter the CIA to the winds, break it into a thousand pieces, as Kennedy threatened to do after the Bay of Pigs fiasco, but another agency would pick up the pieces, and continue in much the same way as the agency has always operated. Kennedy came to realize this as is evidenced by his approval of "Operation Mongoose," the ill-conceived, doomed- from-the-start, plan to rid the Caribbean of Fidel Castro.

Of these entertainers coming through Florida and Meyers Lansky realm of things], Morton Downey, Milton Berle and Joe E. Lewis owed everything to the syndicate and could be justifiably referred to as "mob entertainers."

Joe E. Lewis and Morton Downey were two of Joseph Kennedy's closest friends. During the racing season. Lewis and Kennedy went to the races, on a regular basis, at Gulfstream Park, next door to the Colonial Inn, and to Hialeah which Kennedy and his organized crime partners owned. They were often joined by J. Edgar Hoover and his paramour, Clyde

A. Tolson, who was a very handsome guy in those days.

At the time, I didn't know who Joseph Kennedy was; simply that he was a very important man from New England, who was well connected. When I was attending Frank Reilly's classes at the Art Student's League Jackie Bouvier was pointed out to me but I had never heard of her either.

The Colonial Inn, where I spent all of my time, was owned by Lansky, New York and Detroit interests, with each owning a one-third interest.

As payment for keeping an eye on Detroit's interest, which included Peter Licavoli, Joe Massei, Bill Tocco, John Priziola, Joe Zerilli and Angelo Meli, I was handed the camera concession at the joint. I hired Frank Schwartz and his lovely wife, Ethel, to operate the concession for me. After paying commissions and other expenses, I netted just over $40,000, in one season before the Detroit group was "aced out."

I knew all the classic gangsters of the day, who wintered in the Miami area. Of course, I knew Meyer's brother, Jake and Vincent Alo (Jimmy Blue Eyes), who was Lansky's liaison with the Mafia. I knew all the members of the Cleveland syndicate, comprised of four of the most sophisticated gangsters in the country, Moe Dalitz, Sam Tucker, Morris Kleinman and "Uncle" Louis Rothkopf.

I stayed at the Colonial Inn until it closed. I then went to work for two accountants, Ben and Seymour Isner, who handled the majority of Lansky's work in Broward County, where the sheriff and all the law enforcement personnel were owned, lock, stock and barrel, by Lansky.

I always admired Lansky very much, because he was always respectful, low key and courteous, in addition to being extremely intelligent. He once told me that in certain professions — and he thought of his criminal career as a profession — to be successful, one must remain anonymous, like the wallpaper.

The Expendables (Vanity Fair Dec 2012)

The French Foreign Legion:

It's the dark romance of the French Foreign Legion: haunted men from everywhere, fighting anywhere, dying for causes not their own. Legionnaires need war, certainly, and Afghanistan is winding down. But there's always the hopeless battle against rogue gold miners in French Guiana . . .

The word "foreign" in the name French Foreign Legion does not refer to faraway battlegrounds. It refers to the Legion itself, which is a branch of the French Army commanded by French officers but built of volunteers from around the world.

Last summer I (William Langewiesche) came upon 20 of them on a grassy knoll on a farm in France near the Pyrenees. They were new recruits sitting back-to-back on two rows of steel chairs. They wore camouflage fatigues and face paint, and held French assault rifles. The chairs were meant to represent the benches in a helicopter flying into action—say, somewhere in Africa in the next few years to come. Two recruits who had been injured while running sat facing forward holding crutches. They were the pilots. Their job was to sit there and endure. The job of the others was to wait for the imaginary touchdown, then disembark from the imaginary helicopter and pretend to secure the imaginary landing zone.

The expendability can be measured. Since 1831, when the Legion was formed by King Louis-Philippe, more than 35,000 legionnaires have died in battle, often anonymously, and more often in vain. The Legion was created primarily to gather up some of the foreign deserters and criminals who had drifted to France in the aftermath of the Napoleonic Wars. It was discovered that these men, who were said to threaten civil society, could be induced to become professional soldiers at minimal cost, then exiled to North Africa to help with the conquest of Algeria. The new legionnaires got an early taste of the deal when, in the Legion's first North African battle, a squad of 27 was overrun after being abandoned by a French officer and the cavalry under his command. https://www.vanityfair.com/contributor/william-langewiesche

October 2013 Released for the first time 16 years after his death, this startling autobiography by one of the so-called “three tramps” from the John F. Kennedy assassination reveals the details of Chauncey Marvin Holt’s many claims. Much mystery and suspicion still swirls around that fateful day in November 1963, and theories abound in nearly every form of media. But one of the major mysteries revolves around the three men spotted and later arrested in Dealey Plaza. Holt's controversial confession to being one of the three tramps has a history of its own, and in his own words he delves into his unique and wild background and life. From his United States Air Force service during Pearl Harbor to his associations with the mob and the CIA, Holt discusses his experiences and encounters in great detail.

A Memoir of Spooks, Hoods, and the Hidden Elite - Chauncey Holt

Chauncey Holt came forward claiming to be one of the "three tramps" photographed in Dealey Plaza shortly after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

At various times in his life, he claimed to be a CIA operative, an accountant for Meyer Lansky, and ostensibly provided false ID documents to Lee Harvey Oswald.

Some today try to stop the truth and kill journalists, terrorize them, descredit them, poison them. The Go To plans of these terrorist have published playbooks. Simiulating victimhood of an alleged perp, gathering swat and fire teams to attack homes with guns pointing in, walking along streets with Targets dry firing guns into their skulls, etc., Less dramatic but dry punching next to their heads fist into palms, making concealed death threats, etc.,

History finds a way. The truth will come out. It is too big to bury.

Consigliere in forgery piloting and other skills

To understand and evaluate the story Chauncey Marvin Holt tells two of our factors are 1) Him, the person, and 2) The context he was in.

We have the pictures of him handing out the pamphlets Fair Play for Cuba that Hold said he printed for Lee Harvey Oswald and the CIA at . We have photos of him with Charles Harrelson and others looking like train hobos except for expensive shoes.

With a threshold of credibility of him being tied to these events in forensic data still available then we go to who he is and what he says about himself and his role at those locations.

The summary of his book is "It was really about the art." His real attraction as Meyers Lanksy saw it is he was both a pilot, and artist, and a moonshiner raised libertarian who figures the laws are good if they don't get in the way of of some good whiskey, just the kind of guy needed for the casinos of Cuba. And being an accountant and o.k with mob book keeping as part of the industry (that probably allowed for off the books activities of debt collectors, enforcers, etc.) he was a good fit.

When Holt joined the US Army Air Force (once the US Army Air Corp and later the USAF at times using what is now the Captain American shield for its logo) he was thrown out, 1941, for a fight. But it appears by then he had a pilots liscense of some type or sufficient skils to get a private liscenes and Lansky have a plane and not being a pilot, that worked well too.

When Holt shows himself in a picture he probably provided of him with LHO passing out Fair Play For Cuba pamphlets he identified two others in the photo with the word "pilot" on each ID. Those two like Holt were not wearing ties. All the others, the pamphleteers were.

Las Vegas had glitz. It sold glitz. Movie type Glitz. The print shop he worked at for forged docs did a fake badge for Shirley Temple. Maybe they did other props too. Xerox in Palo Alto had not come outh with a good copier and lithographs need an original designed to be copied. Putting the original on a drum and turning the handle in school room is how I remember in the late 1960s getting hand outs in class as the teacher operated the press.

Lanksy is in what advertising circle was what was called a "wrist." These people have that good hand eye coordination to produce designer grade art work.

In his story he pursues both accounting and painting. He liked to develop his art and form of expression and for the CIA that was useful for them too.

Here is some of his self potrait in his own words.

Interview with Chauncey Holt

Questions/Answers Chauncey Marvin Holt

Q. Why are you going public at this time?

A. The American people have a right to know whatever facts are in my possession. Not just about the Kennedy assassination, which, for me, was just one short chapter in a long and checkered career, but also about the events, that are within my personal knowledge, that led up to this tragic event and, just as importantly, the cover-up and the payoff to me personally that followed the assassination.

Q. What is your true name?

A. Chauncey Marvin Holt

Q. What are some of the aliases that you used over the years?

A. I will start with the deep cover aliases that were used for long periods of time. Then I will recount the 'floating" aliases that I, and other contract agents of the CIA, used from time to time. The "deep cover" aliases that I used for many years were John R. (Jack) Moon, Dean Rutz and Kerney L. Sigler. A few of the "floating" I.Ds that I used, over the years, were Robert Ralston, Charles Hormley, Matt Hoff, Marvin Hoyt, Joseph Serrano, Reginald Cox, Antonio Del Signore, Ernesto Agramonte, Jan Undutch, John Carver, Luis Castillo, Henri Jerome and many others that I cannot recall at the moment.

Q. How did you come to be affiliated with leading organized crime figures?

A. I met Meyer Lansky through Sy Bloom, a restaurateur and bookmaker in Baltimore during World War Il. I was given Sy Bloom's name by Wallace Groves, with whom I served time in the U.S. Industrial Reformatory in Chillicothe, Ohio in 1942. My cousin, Bud Holt, was a close associate of Peter Licavoli as was Bob Zwick, who was also serving time in Chillicothe.

Q. What primarily were your activities as an associate of Licavoli and Meyer Lansky?

A. It would take a week to describe for you the full range of duties that I performed for Lansky and Licavoli. I suppose you could characterize it as "primarily" financial, especially with Lansky; however, it was much broader in scope where Licavoli was concerned. With Pete it involved illegal and legal activities, from one end of the spectrum to the other.

Q. What were the circumstances that led you to the Central Intelligence Agency?

A. I had worked for Lansky for about five years, when the Kefauver Committee to investigate organized crime was established in 1950. Since I had been omce manager and accountant for the Gator Corporation, one of Lansky's main fronts and, additionally, had worked for Eisen and Eisen, his main accountants, I was fearful that I would be hauled before Kefauver's inquisition panel and interrogated about Lansky, Licavoli and other crime figures. Of course, I was very familiar with the name of Estes Kefauver, a boozing, compulsive gambler who was a regular customer at the Colonial Inn, La Boheme and the other carpet joints owned by Lansky in cooperation with the mafia. So I decided to depart for parts unknown to avoid the committee. As it turned out, my name never came up.

Q. What did you do to avoid the committee?

A. I went back to Baltimore for a few weeks. Then I signed on to do a wire walking and trapeze act with the Duncan Renaldo Circus, which was planning to tour South America. The Cisco Kid, as Duncan Renaldo was known, took all the receipts and left the rest of the circus, including his favonte sidekick, Pancho, stranded in Belem, Brazil, located at the mouth of the Amazon.

Q. How did you get back?

A. Through the assistance of the State Department and a influential Brazilian citizen.

Q. What did you do after your return from Brazil?

A. The Kefauver Committee was history and Lansky put me in touch with the International Rescue Committee and I was hired as controller.

Q Can you tell us a bit about the International Rescue Committee?

A. The IRC was one of the thousands of front organizations that the CIA used to assist them in various clandestine operations throughout the world. The innocuous sounding title led everyone to assume that this was a philanthropic organization. It was far from this. Actually, the CIA had a preference for these types of organizations.

Q. What exactly is a contract agent? What are some of their duties? Can you define the meaning of the term "CIA cowboys"? A. A contract agent, as the name implies is an independent contractor who perform whatever duties, legal or illegal, that are required of him or her. The term "CIA cowboys" is used to describe the clandestine operators in the field as opposed to the card carrying agents, stationed at Langley or at some of the other stations.

Q. What was your modus operandi as a mob associate and CIA operative?

A. I had no "MO" per se. I was engaged in three separate types of operations; (1) modification of weapons and gun running; (2) forgery of a full range of documents, I.D.s and disinformation material; (3) delivery of military hardware and (4) money management.

Q. What type of skills was "the Agency" looking for?

A. Individuals with experience in the fields alluded to in the previous question.

Q. Did you serve time in the armed forces?

A. Yes.

Q. Is it true that you got into a little bit of trouble as an enlisted man?

A. More than a little, since I ended up in the U.S. Disciplinary Barracks in Leavenworth, Kansas, the military equivalent to Alcatraz.

Q. Were some of the skills you learned in the Army helpful to you as an agency operative?

A. Yes. I learned to fly and I learned a lot about arms and ammunition.

Q Can you outline for us some of the activities/ campaigns you were involved in during the 1950s on behalf of the Agency?

A. The most important was the covert operation that deposed Jacobo Arbenz, president of Guatemala, in 1954. Cuba was the main focus of the agency during the rest of the fifties. First we were helping Castro; then in 1959 we realized that Castro was a communist and we launched a campaign to unseat him.

Of course, this harebrained scheme, the Bay of Pigs fiasco, didn't take place until April of 1961.

Q. Who did you report to at this time?

A. I didn't really report to anyone. Various case officers from JM/Wave would want certain projects carried out and they would simply come to my office and discuss how this project or that project could best be handled with total deniability. For instance, when Cubans started fleeing Cuba in droves in 195 9, many of them became contract agents for the CIA. One of my assignments was to acquire an eleven unit apartment building on Segovia Street in Coral Gables and convert it to offce space to process the Cubans.

I also set up a car rental agency to provide vehicles for these contract agents, as well as the card carrying agents. Most of my instructions came through Richard Wilson, Jay Gliechauff or Norman Imler. Sometimes it would come from Dave Phillips or even Tracy Barnes.

Q. How were you paid for your services?

A. I was an employee of whatever entity that I worked for. At the time, I was using three different social security numbers for tax reporting purposes.

A. Organized crime had owned Cuba since the days of prohibition. They had tremendous investments there in the casinos and hotels. Meyer Lansky and Santos Traficante and convert it to office space to process the Cubans. Q. How were you paid for your services?

A. I was an employee of whatever entity that I worked for. At the time, I was using three different social security numbers for tax reporting purposes.

Q. Did you maintain your connections with organized crime figures?

A. Yes. Q. Based on your personal knowledge, did certain members of the intelligence community maintain contact with leading organized crime figures ?

A. Yes.

Q. What were their mutual interests?

A. Getting rid of Castro.

Q. As the 1950s ended, Cuba became an object of intense attention by members of organized crime and the CIA. Could you elaborate on the reasons for this . to kind of put things into historical perspective for us?

A. Organized crime had owned Cuba since the days of prohibition. They had tremendous investments there in the casinos and hotels. Meyer Lansky and Santos Traficante had assisted Castro during the revolution even though they appeared to be backing Batista. Hedging their bets, one might say.

Castro set the value which the Cuban government would pay for these properties based on the figures that the businesses themselves submitted when paying their property taxes.

Q. At this point in time, what activities were you participating in on behalf of the agency and the mob with respect to Cuba?

A. I was raising money, from Batista, Aleman and the other rich Cubans to support the Second Front organization, which was intent on deposing Castro. I was also involved in Operation Mongoose, the CIA/mob plan to l,äll Castro. I was also involved m a separate plan, financed by Lansky, to murder Castro.

Q. Shortly after the Bay of Pigs in 1961, you changed your base of operations from the east coast to the west coast. Why?

A. Florida was a hotbed of anti-Castro activity and it was decided that it would be more prudent to handle the operations from the southwest.

Q. Did the agency and your organized crime associates put you in touch with influential elite contacts on the west coast?

A. Yes. Q. Who were these individuals you were told that you could count on? A. From Meyer Lansky and Peter Licavoli, I was given names of those persons who were involved in organized crime in Las Vegas, Arizona and California. Actually, organized crime was anything but "organized" in California. That is why it was called the Mickey Mouse mafia.

The most important crime figures in California at that time was Joseph (Doc) Stacher, a long time associate of Lansky, who was at one time Joe Kennedy's partner in the liquor business, Frank Desimone, who was boss of the Mickey Mouse mafia and Nick Licata, who was underboss to Desimone. I was also given the name of an ex-FBI agent, turned mob attorney by the name of Dwain Clark, who had defended at one time or another all the crime figures in the Southwest. Lansky also put me in touch with a shadowy group called KG & Co.

The "K" stood for Goodwin Knight, ex-governor of California and the "G" stood for Alfred Gitelson, a Superior court judge. This group included some of the most important and influential figures in the country, including Frank Belcher, Joe Ball, Zyg Taube, Isidor and Eli Reinhard, Henry and Morris Kawin, Avy Miller, Phillip Twombly, Tom Eadington, Tom and Phil Davis, Lee Combs and Paul Ziffren.

I have probably left out a few names; the list was endless.

I was already familiar with the name of George Reynolds who operated out of Morgan City, Louisiana through the Atchafalaya Labor Crews, a huge proprietary interest of the CIA.

Q. Did you go into business, on your own, with any of these individuals?

A. Yes. Dwain Clark, the mob attorney, Frank Stellino, Nick Licata's son in law and I bought four liquor stores, using the name of CMS Liquors. Of course, Pete Licavoli and I owned three art galleries together.

Q. Did you have any problem with the licensing of the liquor stores?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain?

A. I had a letter from Dwain Clark in which he advised me that a very aggressive ABC investigator was trying to block the licensing because of the fact that Frank Stellino was Nick Licata's son in law.

Q What was this investigator's name?

A. Richard Case Nagell.

Q. When was this?

A. 1961.

Cuba

Q. Was Harries one of the instructors at the CIA's mercenary school?

A. Yes, he was.

Q. What operations were you involved in around 1961/62 on behalf of the CIA and organized crime?

A. In 1961/62 1 was busily engaged in locating properties for the CIA, which could be used as a documentation center, a weapons modification center and a fixed base operation for planes we either owned or contemplated acquiring. At the same time, I was in partnership with Licavoli in a number of ventures, including an aircraft company and a military equipment procurement venture. Pete and I were also partners in art galleries in Tucson, Arizona, Detroit and Grosse Point, Michigan and Laguna Beach, California.

Q. How would you define a "proprietary interest"? Would the mob equivalent be a "front" business?

A. That is an accurate representation.

Q. In December of 1961, did you attend a meeting at Bermuda Dunes airport, near Palm Springs?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was at this meeting?

A. Sam Giancana, Johnny Roselli, William King Harvey, Peter Licavoli, Ray Ryan, Frank Hayden and myself.

Q. What were the objectives of those in attendance?

A. To lay out the method of operation for Harvey's resurrected ZR/Rifle program, which was renamed Operation Mongoose, the ultimate purpose of which was the assassination of Fidel Castro.

Q. What was your role at this meeting?

A. I served as secretary and took notes of the meeting.

Q. Did you feel that the mob and the CIA trusted each other?

A. Certainly not. Neither of these organizations trusted anyone.

Q. Would it be fair to say that 1963 was for you a time of stepped up activities?

A. Yes. 1963 was a very busy year.

Q. In April of 1963 were you told by Philip Twombly that a special project was planned for the fall of 1963 ?

A. I was told by Twombly that an incident would be created in the fall to inject some life into the anti-Castro campaign.

Q. Was there any indication that this involved assassination or violence of any kind?

A. None whatsoever.

Q Would you have been willing to get involved if assassination was contemplated?

A. Not unless it was the assassination of Castro.

Q. Did anything else of significance happen in April of 1963 that was of concern to you and your colleagues?

A. Yes.

it took 35 years Of continuous criminal activity before Holt was briefly stopped. In late 1975, he was indicted for mail fraud, evading the law while working with the CIA for the next two years.

Finally, in August Of 1977, after finally having to face the charges, he pleaded guilty to one count of mail fraud and was sentenced to the Terminal Island Federal Corrections Institution. Holt had been arrested, tried, and convicted under his real name. However, once he was at Terminal Island he was housed under his Jack Moon aliases. And it was as Jack Moon that he established his most audacious scam.

"I was immediately assigned to a sensitive job, handing the budget for the prison hospital. One of the funds was open ended, unrestricted and unaccounted for. Within a day of reporting for this position, I realized that I had fallen Into a gold mine," Holt later related. "It was just like the good old days in the company when contract agents were given carte blanche to establish their criminal fiefdoms.

There was one significant difference, however. This time the scheme was being perpetrated from within prison walls and THE MAN was in the next offce. Still over the next twenty-six months I diverted on an average $15,000 per month for the benefit of myself and my co-conspirators, one of whom was Frank Belcher, with whom J had a joint bank account used to launder contingency funds through. "I was released under mandatory release conditions in September of 1970 and, considering the fact that I was stealing oodles of money, I was almost sad to see my release date arrive.

"I retired to the high desert and spent my time writing, painting and conducting a school for mercenaries, attended by many of my old friends."

Today Chauncey Holt is one of the very few living witnesses to an era of corruption that continues to impact on American society. He has survived where others have not, and he has decided to share his story, the inside story of Mafia, Inc. and some of the most dramatic news events of our time. He will explain the CIA/Mafia connections, the relationship with big businessmen, and the corruption that led to purchase respectability by some of America's "elite." He will also tell his own story, from his early days in the Cumberland Mountains where making moonshine was a major industry, to his present status as one of the country's premier portrait painters.

Ironically, his most recent commission was to paint portraits of all the federal justices for the 11th Appellate Distinct in Atlanta. It is a unique and fascinating account of never before revealed secrets covering the last half-century as well as a compelling picture of a Renaissance man of crime.

Chauncey Holt identified to the far right in the picture says that not only was him passing out Fair Play For Cuba flyers with Lee Harvey Oswald and others he as a graphic artist designed and printed the flyers and identifies the Los Angeles Stamp and Stationery Company (LASSCO) print shop. He adds in his fellow CIA pilots names writing them into the photo. One seems to have the name Seigel, a Bugsy Siegel pilot.

Chauncey Marvin Holt Dallas Interview - Lois Gibson Foresics - Dallas, TX

The daughter of Chauncey Holt helps her father explain CIA Mafia work and the events of the JFK assasination. Like St. John Hunt, Ed Donegan, and many others including James E Files the truth is coming out. Declaration Against Interest on behalf of history. Deathbed confessions, etc.,

Deathbed confession, Confession Against Interest, Adding to search for justice, resolving deep secrets at passing, allowing the truth to others denied it, many motives.

I (Chancey Marvin Holt) suppose that in those waning days Of World War Il, my attitude towards a business career seemed a little Odd. Most young men sought a sense Of security, a job with a steady pay check, ample opportunity to advance, and a guaranteed retirement after 40 or so years of hard work. The job I found paid better than most, and it ultimately allowed me to use the skills I had developed as a youth accounting, fine art, and a country boy's ability with handguns, rifles, and shotguns.

I had been raised in the Cumberland Mountains of Kentucky where moonshine was a major industry. The ability to shoot a rival or a "Revenuer," both from ambush and in a shoot-out, were critical for survival. And when I added a pilot's license to my skills, I became of special interest to the mob.

[Ed Donegan in South Carolina went to local stock car races and still heard story of Revenuers, out running them and outgunning them. Ed Donegan also hear a story in Alcoholics Anonymous once. A large fellow looking for a job went to an interview. The interviewer asked if he had any experience. No, the sober minded young man responded but he also added in he had once shot a spotted owl. You are hired are the words he heard next, seemed like he fit in.]

Meyer Lansky and other organized crime figures liked to travel by private plane, the reason being that special equipment and money could be carried without fear of discovery. Lansky had purchased a twin engine D-18 at the end of World War II. It was usually hangered in Marathon, Florida, at an abandoned airstrip that had been resurfaced by Phil Sadowski, a developer who fronted for Lansky in projects he and his associates had going in the Florida Keys.

Ultimately I became an insider with some of the major development deals in the United States, including the creation of some of the largest caslnos and hotels in Las Vegas. And my art skills were so respected, I was loaned out to special agencies of the U.S. government to duplicate documents more accurately than commercial printers were able to do. But the only health benefits that existed involved not being killed if you did your job right, and retirement meant out-living both your enemies and your more ambitious friends.

I also was given a chance to meet or work with men who were at the height of their public prominence. Businessman, former bootlegger, and former Ambassador to the Court of St. James, Joe Kennedy, was one. Walter Annenberg, who ultimately would also be an Ambassador to England, was another. He had been protected by his late father, Moses, who was a media giant owning, among other properties, the Philadelphia Inquirer, Screen Guide, New York Morning Telegraph, and the Rad10 Guide.

Moses had taken a fall for income tax evasion in order to save his son who had been indicted on the same charge. But Moses also know that he had to be a stand-up guy since the family success was owed to his working relationship with Lucky Luciano, Frank Costello, Meyer Lansky, and others.

In fact, it was Lansky who gave me my first real job, ting my skills in accounting to assure the accumulation of hundreds of millions of dollars in illegal funds never discovered by the government. He also taught me the true face of organized crime in America. The primarily Sicilian Mafia was only the most visible, not necessarily the most important, face of the large-scale criminal organizations.

Jewish gangsters like Lansky, Louis (Buchalter) Lepke, Moe Dalitz, and the Cleveland Gang were always very happy to let the Sicilians take the credit — and the heat — for organlzed crime. Yet their actions, their innovations, and their violence were often far greater than anything the Sicilians imagined. And some Jewish gangsters, like Ben "Bugsy" Siegel and Mickey Cohen, acted more like Sicilians than they did Jews. [then add Jack Rubenstein of La Kosher Nostra Yiddish Mafia Chicago in to that crowd]

I met and worked with many others as well, men who were prominent in politics, business, and the world of entertainment. They all wanted Meyer Lansky's money, his influence, and/or his muscle. They also sought Lansky's discretion, his quiet demeanor, and his low profile, an approach to life he passed on to me.

That was why I could commit crimes every working day of my life, yet I went 35 years between arrests, and even when I briefly went to jail in the 1970s, it was for a short time and received little publicity. Lansky taught me well, a fact that has allowed me to experience grandchildren when most of my friends never saw their sons or daughters grow into adulthood.

Now my old friends, my employers, and my enemies are dead. One way or another I have managed to outlive them all, the reason I am writing this book. For the first time, the inside story of how the Mafia has operated as a business during the last half of the twentieth century can be told.

The story of the CIA activity takes the reader behind the scenes of deep cover operations. Holt shows how his identity as Jack Moon was created. He shows how someone checking into his background would discover that he was an MIT graduate (he never attended the school) and a classmate of George Schultz. He was also registered as a Certified Public Accountant in the state of Massachusetts.

The documentation mills of the CIA are covered, as well as an explanation of the proprietary interests of the company. The Bay of Pigs fiasco involved Holt in his capacity with the International Rescue Committee. The IRC role was logistical, arranging for the ships, hiring pilots from the Alabama National Guard, and engaging in other, related roles. Operation Mongoose followed the Bay of Pigs and resulted from the Kennedy brothers' obsession with destroying Castro. The Bay of Pigs was an Eisenhower administration operation they inherited, but the brothers took the defeat personally. They did not have so strong a desire to defeat Castro as they did to win whatever they tried.

For an educational background, I turned to an institution which was controlled by the CIA - almost to the extent it could be referred to as a proprietary interest. I refer to one of the most prestigious schools in the country — Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Center for International Studies at MIT was founded in 1951, with CIA money, a lot of which was funneled through IRC, where I was handling the funds at that time. Max F. Millikan, assistant director of the CIA, was appointed head of The Center. Walt Whitman Rostow, a veteran of the OSS, the "O-So-Social" intelligence group from World War Il, was the principal link between The Center, the institution and the CIA.

In this convenient arrangement,it was no problem at all to "grant" John R. Moon a degree from MIT's Sloan School of Management, which was closely affiliated with the Center for International Studies.

So, if anyone prospective employer, governmental agency, credit reporting agency contacted MIT, they would be furnished an appropriate transcript with excellent grades, indicating that John R. Moon was a member of the 1947 graduating class at MIT.

For an employment record, I turned to another organization that the company and the IRC used very frequently — the international accounting firm of Deloitte, Plender, Haskins, Sells and Company.

Through our connections with them, they inserted in the personnel records of the Boston offce of Haskins Sells, information to the effect that I had been employed there from 1950 through 1954, as a senior auditor.

We were able, through other high level connections, to have "Jack Moon," a convenient variation of John R. Moon, issued a certificate to practice as a Certified Public Accountant in the State of Massachusetts.

So, Marvin Hoyt was temporarily put in a state of suspended animation — not killed off — because I did use the name several years later in the Congo, and during the Bay of Pigs.

John R. (Jack) Moon was then born. I used that name, as well as other names — Charlie Young, Dean Rutz, Kerney Sigler, Charles Hormley, Edward J. Hamilton and many others — until I was caught up in the great 1974/75 CIA purges.

As of this date I am drawing social security pay under three names — Chauncey M. Holt, Marvin Hoyt and John R. Moon.

Incidentally, legitimate graduates and scholars from MIT, complained bitterly that, when they went abroad, they were assumed to be CIA agents.

The roles played by William King Harvey, Robert Maheu, Sam Giancana, and Johnny Rosselli have been well publicized. However, the roles of some of the other players, including Peter Licavoli, friend and long time associate of both Rosselli and Giancana, as well as Tony Materna, a close associate of Howard Hughes, legendary gambler Ray Ryan and his partner, Ernie Dunlevie, have never before been exposed.

Now my old friends, my employers, and my enemies are dead. One way or another I have managed to outlive them all, the reason I am writing this book. For the first time, the inside story of how the Mafia has operated as a business during the last half of the twentieth century can be told.

It was also this plot that ultimately was a probable factor in the assassination of Jack Kennedy. In presenting the information on the CIA, either within the text or in an appendix, Holt will include a list of the CIA fronts active in California during this period as well as background concerning their "legitimate" and covert reasons for existence.

Holt will also discuss some of the CIA covert operations such as the assassination of Rafael Leonida Trujillo, one of the most vicious butchers ever to operate in the Canbbean. Aspects of the Kennedy assassination are discussed. At the time of the murder, Holt was working for KG & Co. The "K" stood f or former California Governor Goodwin Knight. The "G" stood for Alfred Gitelson, a sitting Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge.

Among the many partners in the company were Frank Belcher, Joe Ball, and Doc Stacher. The combination of political clout from the named partners, and the money of the organized crime relatively silent partners, led to tremendous profits, often at the expense of the taxpayers. The conduit for all CIA operations in California and Arizona was Phillip Twombly, former executive vice president of Coca Cola, the eyes and ears ofthe CIA in the Caribbean, who owned the University Bank of Fullerton, California.

Through Twombly, we met and controlled many bank officials, particularly the Bank of America, whose key officers cooperated blindly in whatever schemes were being perpetrated.

Los Angeles Stamp and Stationery Company (LASSCO) Fake police badge for Shirely Temple https://

Holt, discussing the violent end of the Kennedy administration, which will be covered in the book states: "In early 1963, our Los Angeles documentation mill was the Los Angeles Stamp and Stationery Company (LASSCO). Tony Materna, a MIT graduate (for real) and formerly a close associate of Howard Hughes, was the general manager who supervised the day to day operation of the legal side of the business. I was in charge of the covert section, supervising the graphic artists responsible for turning out some of the best documents in the country for the CIA and organized crime.

"It was in April of 1963 that we were informed that a major project was contemplated for the fall of that year. Later we were instructed that an incident would be created during visits by President Kennedy to either Chicago, Miami, or some other large city. The incidents were to be viewed as the work of pro-Castro Cubans so that the CIA could regain interest in ridding the nation of Castro. (Oddly, at this time John Kennedy was subtly trying to bring Castro into a more positive relationship with the United States while his brother, Robert, was working on ways to assassinate him.)

"For this project, the covert section of LASSCO was asked to be prepared to forge identity documents for several agencies. The work, to be done on short notice, included documents and Japel recognition plns for the Secret Service. "In August of 1963, acting on instructions of George Reynolds, who operated the Atchafalaya Labor Camp in Morgan City, Louisiana, Bud Belcher and I flew to New Orleans. Bud was the son of Frank Belcher, owner of Belcher Aircraft, a CIA proprietary interest. Bud and I were to give Lee Harvey Oswald material to distribute in his role with "Fair Play for Cuba."

The pamphlets we printed at LASSCO were passed to Guy Bannister, but there was a well- publicized arrest of Oswald at this time and, to the best of my knowledge, the material was never distributed.

"In November I went to Dallas as instructed with forged documents for Homer Echevarria, as well as two men identified to me as Richard Montoya and Charles Harrelson. J was instructed to remain in Dealey Plaza 'in a support position' until after the motorcade and the planned dernonstrations were finished.

J assumed that these were the fraudulent pro-Castro demonstrations discussed earlier in the year.

"As soon as the shooting started, I realized that I was another pawn in this operation. Montoya, Harrelson, and I took refuge in a boxcar, which had been identified to us as part of a train ready for departure. If anyone checked, they would have found that we were Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms (ATF) agents working in plain-clothes, the reason false documents had been prepared.

"An hour and a half after the shooting, we were arrested. We were taken to the Sheriff's Department command post and turned over to a deputy sheriff Because of who we could 'prove' we were, we were turned over to Gordon Shanklin, FBI agent in charge. He released us almost immediately, not bothering to record our detainment. The closest to a record is a photograph that was taken of us as the 'three tramps' whose identities have been incorrectly speculated.

"Suddenly after the release of the movie JFK and the resulting publicity, including lengthy articles in Newsweek and elsewhere, the Dallas Police came up with what purports to be arrest records of the three tramps. However, there are no pictures or fingerprints of these three individuals, even though the Dallas Police Department now claims that they were held for four days for vagrancy and for theft.

The finger has been pointed all these years at the Dallas Police Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation who, allegedly were well aware of documentary evidence that would blunt the criticisms of negligence if, in fact, it was in existence and not fabricated solely for the purpose of discrediting other individuals, including myself.

"Still, to this day, no one, to my knowledge, has produced a single extant photograph of these three tramps that could be compared with those taken on that date.

"My photograph, as well as the photographs of Charles Rogers (aka Richard Montoya) and Charles Harrelson, have been compared and authenticated by Lois Gibson, forensic artist of the Houston Police Department, one of the foremost experts in America.

Ms. Gibson has indicated she would stake her reputation on the fact that I am the tramp now claimed to be Gus Abrams, deceased.

"Shortly thereafter James Canty and I flew from Red Bird Airport in a private plane furnished by George Reynolds which, we believe, was flown into Red Bird and left by David Ferrie. Ferrie was an associate of Carlos Marcello, the syndicate boss of New Orleans, Dallas, and Houston, who was a close friend and associate of Peter Licavoli."

Holt has no idea who ordered the murder of John Kennedy. He has no idea who might have been shooters. However, he notes that a large number of individuals with connections to the CIA, organized crime, pro-Castro activist groups, and anti-Castro groups were present. He suspects that they, like himself, were sent there as a diversion. He feels that if the Dallas Police had done their job, there would have been massive confusion since all of them, if they could be properly checked, would have been discovered to have histories involving violence and crime.

Much of Holt's post-Bay of Pigs work for the CIA was in California where his job included establishing proprietary interests for the company. He took strong recommendations from his close associates Meyer Lansky and Peter Licavoli

Holt was photographed handing out pamphlets with Lee

Harvey Oswald where he identified himself in the picture and wrote in the names of others in the picture. Holt was photographed at the Trainyard as Hobo and acknowledges being there and has been recognized in that photo too.

I can not read the handwriting in this image but it looks to me that Holt (himself a pilot) had identified two other pilots one with a name like Leory Young and possible he was a pilot for Bugs Seigel.

When the Kennedy motorcade reached the Dealey Plaza Holt was in the parking lot behind the Grassy Knoll. After the shooting took place Holt went to hide in a railroad car. He was joined by Charles Harrelson and Charles Rogers. However, soon afterwards, Dallas police officers entered the railroad car and arrested all three men. The three men along with Jim Brading were interviewed by Gordon Shanklin of the FBI and then released.

Recently, stunning accusations have been made against Rafael Cruz, father of recent presidential candidate Sen. Ted Cruz. It is alleged that in New Orleans in 1963 the elder Cruz accompanied Lee Harvey Oswald while Oswald was handing out pro-Fidel Castro "HANDS OFF CUBA!" leaflets. It is further alleged that there is photographic proof of this. Finally, it is alleged that because of his connections with Oswald Rafael Cruz may have been involved in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Can any of this be true?

According to blogger Ashley Feinberg, the first known allegation that the elder Cruz might be connected to the JFK assassination occurred on Nov. 24, 2013, when, in response to a blog entry about Lee Harvey Oswald's involvement with the Cuban exile community, someone posted anonymously this startling comment: "I truly believe that Rafael Cruz should be further investigated for his part in the Kennedy assassination."

The first known claim that there actually might be evidence that Rafael Cruz had ties to Lee Harvey Oswald—and possibly to the Kennedy assassination itself—was made in a blog entry posted two months ago, on April 7, 2016, by controversial investigative reporter and author Wayne Madsen.

According to Madsen, Oswald—the "alleged JFK assassin"—hired Rafael Cruz to assist in distributing the "HANDS OFF CUBA!" leaflets in downtown New Orleans on Aug. 16, 1963. Madsen's blog posting included a color image of the leaflet, two black-and-white 1963 photos depicting Oswald hawking the leaflets as several men stood close by, and a 1954 black-and-white photo of Rafael Cruz. One of the men standing near Oswald in the two 1963 photos is attired almost identically to Oswald; he is wearing a short-sleeved white shirt, a thin dark tie, and dark trousers. This man, Madsen maintains, "bears a striking resemblance to" Rafael Cruz. Then, based on his comparison of the man with the 1954 Rafael Cruz photo, and based also on information supplied him by an unnamed "source," Madsen announces that the man "is none other than Rafael Cruz.” Positing that both Oswald and Cruz were affiliated with the CIA, Madsen brashly asks this loaded question: “Was the father of presidential hopeful Cruz involved in the JFK assassination?”

Foreword

During my incarceration I began to write my memoirs.

Over the intervening years they have been expanded upon and revised as situations changed.

Much of what is contained in my memoirs can be verified i.e. the matter of the diversion of funds from the Bureau of Prisons.

The American taxpayer is certainly entitled to be made aware of the careless way public offcials handle I their money.

Much of what I write about cannot be corroborated and must be deduced from the facts that are at hand.

Concerning the day in Dallas, I think that my face speaks for itself.

I don't plan to spend much time trying to establish my bonafides to assassination buffs or anyone else for that matter.

I am an old man, I have led a dangerous life, and never would have imagined that I, of all people, would live into my seventies.

I am presently in fairly good health. I live a life of Spartan simplicity and I still paint better than most.

My whole life has been spent in the shadows of anonymity, one of the reasons I have survived while many of my associates did not. As Lansky once said to me, "To be a successful criminal, you must be as unnoticed as wallpaper". The same could be said of intelligence agents.

Once you come from the shadows into the sunlight, the game is over.

I have waited a long time to discuss some of these adventures, until the heat died down and the statutes of limitation expired.

But even today, these subjects are still dangerous — I know. This story should be told for several reasons: A desire to set the record straight and inform the public of how recklessly their money is being squandered by those in positions of trust; to correct the record in regard to the bum raps certain parties received; to expose the fact that our criminal justice system is morally bankrupt; and to show how easily the secret agendas of the executive branch of the government become perverted.

I have made a concerted effort to see that this is not one more of self serving books and I offer no apologies for my actions although, of course, I have many regrets.

Introduction to Portrait of a Scoundrel by investigative journalist Wim Dankbaar.

What lies in front of you is the life story of Chauncey Marvin Holt. This autobiography is, in my opinion, the most revealing, eye opening book ever on the JFK assassination and other covert operations of the "secret government" of America. This promise may sound pompous, but I am pretty sure the reader will agree with me, well before turning the last page. As the person to make this story available to you, I would like to give you some introduction to myself, my drive and motives.

My name is Wim Dankbaar. I am a Dutch citizen, 51, born, ralsed and living in the Netherlands. I grew up in a middle class family with my parents and two sisters. My father was a doctor. My childhood was fortunate and free from major worries, as was my professional career, as is my current family with a lovely wife, son and daughter. As a youth my view of the United States was that everything was bigger and better. In fact my father taught me that Amenca had a 10-year lead on Europe in terms of prosperity, technology, basically everything. It was also the ultimate example of freedom and democracy, includlng freedom of press and speech.

Of course I had heard of the Kennedy assassination but with my background of thoughts on America, I had no reason to presume anything else than that Lee Harvey Oswald was the lone crazy assassin, as the official story asserted.

I waved the conspiracy rumors away as unsubstantiated, dispelled myths. All this changed in 1988 when a television documentary The Men Who Killed Kennedy was aired in the Netherlands. It was not so much the theory of Corsican gunmen laid out in the program, although compelling at the time, that triggered my interest.

It was more the historical film fragments that ignited my fascination. Specifically a fragment of Jack Ruby, Oswald's assassin, wherein Ruby states in front of journalists, that men in powerful positions were behind the murder of Kennedy, that they will never let the truth be known and that Ruby himself was forced into a position to kill Lee Harvey Oswald. It was much later that I discovered another fragment where Ruby directly, not even covertly, implicates President Lyndon Johnson as one ofthe main culprits.

These fragments are now incorporated in my video productions like Confessions from the Grassy Knoll and can be found on YouTube under captions as "Jack Ruby about the conspiracy to kill JFK".

I wondered why these fragments were so unknown, why I had never seen them before. They had never been shown to the public. After all, it means something when one of the major players in the tragedy, clearly hints at a conspiracy as high up as Kennedy's successor Lyndon Johnson. This was my first inkling that the offcial story might be a lie.

The idea that the democratic US government, with its freedom of press, could lie about such a pivotal event in modern history, a drama only equaled by the 9/11 attacks, appalled and fascinated me at the same time. How perplexing is it to realize that government representatives and agencies like the CIA and FBI, supposedly serving and protecting the people, were actually working together with Organized Crime to remove an elected President?

I set out to study the matter and devoured book after book. My quest has lasted 25 years now and the more I read, the more I learned that Ruby wasn't hallucinating.

I learned that the truth was being withheld from the public, with the use of the very media that I had always, in retrospect naively, marveled for their freedom of press.

At the beginning of my endeavor I had dreamed I would actually find the truth, but I quickly lost my naive innocence.

I learned that the US media are basically in the hands of only 5 big corporations that are used to "control" the public opinion. These big five are CBS, NBC, ABC, FOX and CNN.

These conglomerates will simply not disclose truths that would hurt their shareholders or embarrass the powers aligned with them. In fact, if they can no longer ignore these truths, they will use their assets to discredit the evidence, no matter how ironclad it is. The malnstream media will turn the lie into truth or the other way around, as most of their audience have not learned to think for themselves.

For this reason the CIA has a vast budget for media infiltration, including an endless list of journalists on their payroll. After all, if you control public opinion, you control almost everything else. Meanwhile the doctrine that America has a free press is hammered down. Which is quite ingenious. After all, a slave will not revolt as long as he doesn't realize he is a slave.

A good example of such "damage control" is the book Case Closed by Gerald Posner, who I am sure is such a journalist on the secret payroll of the CIA.

As a matter of fact Chauncey Holt wrote a letter to the San Diego Tribune shortly after the book came out in 1993. It is available on the Internet and can be found by googling for "Stampede of the apologists." Of course Chauncey's letter was never printed by the San Diego Tribune or any other mainstream media. It's a smashing letter, strongly recommended to look it up on the Internet.

Isn't it weird that the vast majority of Americans do not believe the Warren Report anymore, yet it remains the official government story on the JFK assassination? Does that comport with the principle of democracy where the people control their government? If you think about it, it is nothing less than contempt for the intellect of the American people. Richard Belzer, the actor of "Law and Order", who just released a great book called Dead Wrong, summarized it quite accurately: "90% of the American people believe that JFK was murdered in a conspiracy. The other 10% work for the government or the media".

The fact of the matter is that JFK was removed in a coup d' etat, carried out a little more sophisticatedly than in the average banana republic. I always say that on November 22, 1963 the potential Kennedy dynasty, with Bobby and Ted waiting in the wings, was replaced by the Bush dynasty.

This may sound odd, but few people know that the Bush family had tremendous influence over American politics even before the Kennedy presidency. Senator Prescott Bush for example, father of George Herbert Walker Bush, had made his fortune as a banker with Brown Brothers, Harriman, some of it by financing the war effort of Adolf Hitler.

This is now all well documented.

He was instrumental in convincing his golf mate Dwight Eisenhower to run for President and installing his protégée "Tricky Dick" Nixon under him as Vice President.

So Ike could stay playing golf, give a great speech when necessary, while the actual administration was run by Nixon under direction of the Bushes and friends, among them CIA director Allen Dulles and, later, president Gerald Ford — both Warren Commission members — to "investigate" JFK's murder.

This was much the way in which the Reagan/Bush administration, of Iran Contra fame, was run two decades later.

Had the Bushes had their way, Nixon would have succeeded Eisenhower, were it not that Kennedy won that election, quite surprisingly and with the narrowest margin in history. Apparently, Kennedy had made a deal with Chicago crime boss Sam Giancana to get some votes his way in return for the broken promise to lay low on Organized Crime.

In short, there is a lot more than meets the eye. Hence I was hardly surprised when, in the year 2000, I discovered on the Internet the very detailed confession of James Files, a mafia prisoner in Illinois, claimmg that he fired the fatal headshot into JFK's temple from the infamous grassy knoll.

presents an investigation into the story of a man who confessed to firing the fatal shot from the Grassy Knoll in Dealey Plaza, Dallas Texas on November 22, 1963. His story becomes one more compelling piece of evidence for what most Americans have long suspected: that their government covered-up critical facts about the CIA's collaboration with Organized Crime to assassinate the President of the United States.
This video documentary goes on to present irrefutable corroborating evidence, the stories of two other participants in the events of Dealey Plaza, and the testimony of many other witnesses.
Based on a tip from an FBI agent in 1992, James Files was tracked down by Joe West, a private investigator. Files, who was serving time for attempted murder of an Illinois police officer, initially refused to talk. However, slowly and meticulously, West established a relationship with Files. Through months of visits and correspondence, Files began to reveal his participation in the JFK assassination.
Files was nearing a full confession when West became ill and suddenly passed away in 1993. A year later associates of West's taped an interview with Files, during which he first confessed to being the shooter on the Grassy Knoll, and that it was he who delivered the final, fatal shot to JFK's right temple. He also fingered key CIA agents and mobsters Charles Nicoletti, Sam Giancana, and Johnny Roselli — all murdered in the 1970s.
James Files showing where his bullet hit JFK 50 years earlier.
The producer of this documentary, Wim Dankbaar of Holland, has made it his calling to continue the investigation started by Joe West. In this quest he received the assistance of several retired FBI agents whose testimony (presented in this video) not only corroborated James Files' claims but also made startling new discoveries — one of which is the presence in Dealey Plaza of Luis Posada Carriles, the anti-Castro terrorist who has been in the news recently for being protected by the Bush administration. Could the reason be that he can give away the Big secrets of Dallas, such as the role of George Bush Sr. in the assassination plot?
Although Files had vowed to never again be interviewed, Dankbaar finally managed, through months of persuading, to change his mind. The highlights of that 3 hour video-interview, along with much other evidence of conspiracy and cover-up, is presented here for you to judge.

I was hardly surprised that I had never heard of James Files, despite my then 12-year-long study of the case. However, that long study had armed me with the ability to discern between real evidence and disinformation, with no shortage of the latter.

That fact that I had never heard of James Files did actually enhance his credibility right away, maybe even before I started reading. After all, even if someone who confesses to have participated in the JFK assassination, is a kook telling a story for 15 minutes of fame, you would expect at least some publicity on the clown telling the story.

Meanwhile I had, of course, learned that the truth is not publicized. If it is, it is usually to discredit the information. Which is exactly the case with James Files.

In the little publicity there is, the authorities, including the FBI, have declared James Files "non credible", basically because it conflicts with the conclusions of the holy Warren Report. Meanwhile the evidence for his truthfulness continues to grow. Just last year the notorious CIA asset Luis Posada Carriles confirmed in a filmed interview that he worked with James Files on several covert CIA operations.

He also admitted that he and his partner Orlando Bosch were in Dealey Plaza when Kennedy was killed. Exactly as Files and Chauncey Holt said.

Actually the testimonies of Holt and Files reinforce each other in more than one way. Files, for example, tells he was acting on orders of his boss and mafia enforcer Charles Nicoletti, while Holt relates how he drove with Nicoletti to Dallas.

My discovery of James Files eventually led me to visit him in 2003 in Joliet Correctional Center, together with a cameraman and author Jim Marrs, to record a second interview, something he had vowed never to do again. But we could ultimately persuade him due to circumstances which are too elaborate to explain here. It's all documented in my book and DVD Files on JFK.

Both of these are not bestsellers due to the total blackout in sponsoring publicity. Not because the content is not appreciated by the readers that manage to find it. In fact it is the best rated JFK assassination book on Amazon.com with a maximum 5 stars.

Some of those readers ask me why they have not heard of the book before. I believe I have answered part of that question now. The naysayers are usually the more ignorant among us, not wanting to absorb the evidence, rather believing the media and authorities, like I did myself in a distant past. Some of these people argue that if the JFK assassination was such a huge conspiracy, lots of people would have talked and the conspiracy would have been exposed.

Well, that is exactly what happened. We are just not being told about it. Lee Harvey Oswald exclaimed at once he was "just a patsy." Numerous other witnesses and participants spilled the beans on the consprracy, some of them paying with an untimely death. The list is endless but includes Jack Ruby, Rose Cheramie, David Morales, David Atlee Phillips, Charles Nicoletti, Sam Giancana, Charles Harrelson, Johnny Roselli, Carlos Marcello, Tosh Plumlee, E. Howard Hunt, Santos Traffcante, Luis Posada Carriles, David Ferrie, Dorothy Kilgallen, Lyndon Johnson to his mistress Madeleine Brown, Oswald's girl friend Judyth Vary Baker, and on and on. Last but not least, the grassy knoll gunman himself talked.

Others say that the JFK assassination happened too long ago to be of interest today. I disagree wholeheartedly and blame it on ignorance. I maintain that the political landscape of today is a direct result of the assasslnation. vA sitting, elected President was removed through a secret, illegal coup d'etat and the ones who committed the crime, seized power. At least 4 succeeding Presidents were in some capacity involved in the planning and/ or cover-up of the murder. Lyndon Baines Johnson, Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford and George Herbert Walker Bush.

It is therefore safe to say that George W. Bush, the most recent ex-President, also knows that JFK's death was a coup d'etat, a crime against the American system and thus its people..

The assassination may be some time ago, but the power structure built on it, is still at the helm today. Not so long ago at all. Besides, game changing events are never too long ago. As the late comedian Bill Hicks said: "If the Kennedy assassination is too long ago, then quit talking to me about Jesus."

Some people also ask me what motivates me to expose the facts of the Kennedy assassination. Well, I can't help it, but I still view telling the truth and putting the finger on the sore spots of corruption, as a noble, inspiring and rewarding task. Sometimes I realize it is peculiar that someone from Europe was able to disclose so much of the "crime of the century", that is America's foremost drama. But I was able to do this because of determination, because I could build on the works of others and because with passing of time more people came forward to tell what they knew, especially in the autumn of their lives. It is a fact that the truth will be suppressed, but it is a myth that the truth will never be known.

All of the above is equally valid for the book that you are about to read. It comes at least 16 years late, as Chauncey Holt intended to publish it before his death in 1997. He just died sooner than he planned. There is an intriguing story from his daughter that his death was foul play too. He died of cancer, quite an aggressive one. His daughter believes it was inflicted on him when he went to hospital for a cataract procedure on his eyes. He was then diagnosed with ocular melanoma, which quickly spread to his liver and other organs.

It is a long story how I acquired the autobiography of Chauncey Holt. The short version is that his daughter offered it to settle a debt she had with me. In 2007 1 had already purchased the video documentary, made a week before Chauncey's death, which he named Spooks, Hoods & The Hidden Elite.That is still the title of the DVD available on my website IFKmurders01ved.com, but my distributor Bruder Releasing decided to rename it to Spooks, Hoods & JFK, under which title it is now available on Amazon.com and other places.

The manuscripts and documents I received was much more than I can present in this book. Thus I made a selection that I believe gives the best overview. Chauncey will take you on the journey of his fascinating life. You will discover his character and many talents, which includes the art of writing. You will get to know Chauncey as a man of flexible morals, yet with a conscience. You will become privy to many historic secrets. Just one of those is that he pulled the trigger in the "unsolved" murder of Bugsy Siegel. Among many other things, this book will show beyond any doubt that the JFK assassination was a conspiracy of many players, some of whom remained unknown until this day.

With many documents in evidence that were never published before. You will be given an inside look on the preparations and cover-up ofdecoup d 'etat on 11/22/1963. Wim Dankbaar, April 2013

Wim Dankbaar was born in the Netherlands. He first became interested in the assassination of John F. Kennedy in 1988. An entrepreneur, he has financed a private investigation into the murder of Kennedy. He is also a major contributor to the JFK Murder Solved website.

Dankbaar believes that James Files, Charles Nicoletti and Johnny Roselli, were sent to Dallas by Sam Giancana, head of the Chicago mob and CIA agent, David Atlee Phillips, to kill John F. Kennedy. vDankbaar also believes that the so called "three tramps", detained and photographed in Dealey Plaza, were Chauncey Holt, Charles Harrelson, and Charles Rogers. His belief is based on the following: v(1) The analysis of Houston Police forensic artist and facial expert Lois Gibson.

(2) The book The Man on the Grassy Knoll by John Craig and Roger Phillips, wherein Charles Rogers is being confirmed from the tramps photographs by two contemporary witnesses, who knew Rogers well.

(3) The testimony of Chauncey Holt himself, one that Wim Dankbaar claims the world has never fully seen as of yet, and wherein Holt also testifies that he drove Charles Nicoletti into Dallas and saw the now notorious Cuban terrorist Luis Posada Carrilles on Dealey Plaza. A summary of his story can be found at the JFK Murder Solved website.

Furthermore, Dankbaar believes the testimony of Tosh Plumlee, a CIA contract pilot, who claims to have flown Mob associate and CIA asset Johnny Roselli into Dallas, as part of a CIA supported mission to abort the pending assassination of John F. Kennedy. An interview with Plumlee is available from the JFK Murder Solved website.

Dankbaar emphasizes that he does not claim to present a full picture. He believes there were more gunmen involved than mentioned on his website. Among his "candidates" are Richard Cain, David Sanchez Morales, Jack Lawrence, Luis Posada Carrilles and Cesar Diosdado. vBy John Simkin (john@spartacus-educational.com) © September 1997 (updated January 2020). ▲ Main Article ▲ Primary and Secondary Sources (1) Wim Dankbaar, Is James Files Telling the Truth?, Assassination of JFK Forum (18th April, 2004) Why do I believe James Files is telling the truth? Here is a non-exhaustive list of reasons in random order:

When I first learned about James Files some three years ago, I was rather amazed that I didn’t know his name. After all, I had been studying the Kennedy assassination for over 12 years. I was more astonished because Files had made his confession in 1994 and I was told the website had been up since 1995. When I searched for the name "James Files" on the Internet, I found that 9 out of 10 articles attempted to completely discredit Files' story. I then set out to closely investigate these criticisms and came to the conclusion they were all superficial and didn't hold water.

For example, critics said that the weapon Files claimed to have used was more a pistol than a rifle and would have had an enormous recoil. They said it "kicks like a mule". Therefore, Files could never have seen what he claimed he had witnessed through the scope of his weapon. I sent an email to one of the gun shops I found on the Internet. I acted as a potential customer and asked whether the Remington Fireball was a pleasant weapon to fire. That man stated the weapon was one of the most sophisticated guns ever made, etc. When I inquired about the recoil he said it was nice and steady. Ultimately, I told him why I asked. He was quite amused and said that the alleged murder weapon of Lee Harvey Oswald had a lot more recoil than the Fireball. He added that whoever said that the XP-100 had substantial recoil had a lot to learn about firearms.

Files was also criticized with the allegation that the XP-100 was not available in 1963 and that the rounds used for this weapon were not a .222 caliber but rather .221. I found both accusations to be untrue. The weapon was introduced in 1963 and prototypes were available as early as 1962. The weapon was originally chambered for .222 rounds. To learn more about the Remington XP-100 Fireball click here.

Another statement was that Files would not have had the time to do all the things he claimed to have done. He states that he bit the shell casing after firing the shot and left it on the on the picket fence on the grassy knoll. He then put the weapon back in his briefcase, turned his jacket inside out, put it on and walked away. Critics shout he would never had the time to do all of that because numerous bystanders rushed to the knoll right after the shots, since that is where most bystanders had heard the shots coming from.

It is true that many bystanders ran towards the grassy knoll, but not immediately. Files says that everyone stood frozen and stunned and that even the policemen acted uncertain, as if they were waiting for someone to tell them what to do.

I was quickly able to determine that Files was right. One of the photos of the knoll shows the press bus in front of it. There is not a soul on the knoll yet. This was the last vehicle in the motorcade, so it must have taken, at the minimum, 30 seconds for the bus to reach that point. The president's limousine had almost come to a stop and the press bus had to make the sharp turn of 120 degrees from Houston street onto Elm, forcing it to a near-stop also. To see that Files was right click here.

The lead on James Files came from the FBI. Agent Zack Shelton (now retired) served 28 years with the FBI. He has an impeccable record and spent much of his career on organized crime task forces of Chicago and Kansas City. He is the man who gave the information on James Files to private investigator Joe West, because Zack Shelton had reason to believe that James Files knew more about the Kennedy assassination. This was based on a remark that James Files had made to an FBI informant. Joe West subsequently located James Files in Stateville penitentiary, which ultimately led to his confession of being the gunman on the grassy knoll.

It is important to note that James Files had never volunteered to give information on his role in the assassination. The tip from Zack was given to Joe West, who was working on a lawsuit to exhume JFK's body. He wanted to prove that Kennedy was hit from the front and by multiple gunmen and a new and independent autopsy would prove sure as hell that the first was a total fraud.

But Joe West never heard a full confession from James Files. Files didn't want to talk. Only if Joe could arrange immunity for him, would Files consider it. During that time Joe had to go into a hospital for heart surgery. The operation itself was a success, but then out of nowhere he went into a coma and never came out of it. With his death, his exhumation suit also died. Files, and others, thinks Joe was murdered by an overdose of wrong medication in order to silence him. He was informed as such by one of his sources. Indeed there are some strange details; the attending doctor is still to be found for example. And just before he went into coma and could not talk anymore, he scribbled a note for his family "Get me out of here, they are trying to kill me!" The official cause of death was Acute Deficiency Respiratory Syndrome. Bob Vernon was later told by a surgeon that this is more or less a standard method to cover-up medical errors, such as an overdose of drugs. Joe's death is one of the main reasons why James Files decided to tell his story to Bob Vernon, who took over from Joe.

A second reason is that Files has turned religious. An element of clearing his conscience also plays a role. In addition, he feels it was not his idea to put his name before the public. He says it was the FBI (Zack Shelton) and he was convinced the FBI would want the truth kept covered-up. Indeed J. Edgar Hoover had done his best. To James Files, the FBI is one big bad organization. What he does not understand, is that mostly honorable people work for the FBI and the cover-up was controlled from the top. Zack Shelton and his colleagues feel betrayed their own former boss covered-up such a big crime, while they were thinking they were doing the greatest thing in the world.

Another reason is that both Files and Bob Vernon had received clear threats to stop with all of this. Those threats came from organized crime as well as the government. To name just a few examples: Vernon claims he was shot at from a car and Files received a message from a mob lawyer to "keep quiet and lay down by your doggy bowl." Vernon's proposal to Files was then: "If they want to take us out, let's leave them something for history!" Files stared in silence through the window for a minute, according to Vernon the longest minute of his life. Finally Files turned around and said: "Ok, bring in the cameras tomorrow!"

A final reason is that James Files is convinced he will never be tried for the assassination of JFK. A trial would expose the government's involvement. He knows the powers behind it and they have too much to lose.

(2) Wim Dankbaar, James Sibert and Gerald Ford, Assassination of JFK Forum (22nd April, 2004) Gerald Ford, former President and last surviving member of the Warren Commission, has demonstrated his strategy again: Disguise your crimes by attacking the attacker. I am increasingly flabbergasted about what is possible in America. Why is the world and the History Channel swallowing his attack on the documentary "The guilty men"? For those who missed this headline news, it is the last episode of "The men who killed Kennedy" series, aired last November and originally scheduled for re-runs over the next nine years, which makes a case for Lyndon Johnson as a main conspirator in JFK's murder. Ford's coordinated protest with former Johnson cronies like Bill

Moyers, Jack Valenti and Johnson's widow, has now even resulted in complete cancellation of all three new episodes, including those which were not attacked, like "The Love Affair" with Judyth Vary Baker, who makes a credible case for having been Lee Harvey Oswald's girlfriend, exonerating him from the Government's theory that he was the lone assassin. To my knowledge, this is an unprecedented form of censorship in the United States.

In all the heated discussions and controversy about the History Channel's documentary, whether LBJ had a role in the JFK assassination or not, it seems that one thing is overlooked : In this case, Lyndon Baines Johnson and his next door neighbor and close buddy J. Edgar Hoover are guilty of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, not because we can prove they ordered it or because we can prove they had any direct connection to the killing, but because we can prove beyond any reasonable doubt that those two men took steps and took actions that covered up the truth of the crime. Washing out and refurbishing the President's limousine is just one of many examples of destroying crucial evidence. This makes them at least accessories after the fact. And was it not to Bill Moyers that Deputy Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach sent the infamous memo: "The public should be satisfied that Oswald was the lone assassin"?

But what's more, Ford himself is guilty! Not only was it learned that he was secretly reporting on the Commission to FBI Director Hoover, but also, forced by declassified files, he has admitted that he instructed the Warren Commission to move Kennedy's backwound up by several inches !!! The significance of this cannot be overstated! For with a wound in the original location, there cannot be a single bullet theory and without a single bullet theory there cannot be a lone gunman. Last time I looked, this was called "tampering with evidence", which is a federal crime and in such an important case as the death of a president, it is also treason. Raised with my naive and Dutch set of values on freedom and democracy, I believe the man should be in jail, despite his rehearsed repetitions that the Commission "found no evidence of a conspiracy, foreign or domestic". Instead, he is allowed to bury essentially good documentaries. What is happening to America?

(3) Wim Dankbaar, JFK Murder Solved (2004) The murder of John F. Kennedy was a conspiracy.

James Earl Files, in association with Charles Nicoletti and John Rosselli, were sent to Dallas by Sam Giancana, head of the Chicago mob and a known CIA covert operative, David Atlee Phillips.

The CIA and Mafia had full knowledge of the hit and CIA covert operatives were actively involved.

John Rosselli was flown into Dallas on a CIA supported Military Air Transport flight co-piloted by Robert Towh Plumlee.

Charles Nicoletti was driven into Dallas from the Grace Ranch in Arizona by Chauncey Holt.

David Atlee Phillips of the CIA orchestrated Oswald and possibly an unknown third party who was to have eliminated Oswald but who killed Officer J.D. Tippit instead. This man's identity is unknown.

THE CONFESSED ASSASSIN OF JOHN F. KENNEDY

THE CONFESSION OF JAMES FILES

That was when he informed me they was coming off of Main Street on to Elm or on to Houston there...they made the zig-zag, the little turn that they should have never made. But when they made that, it was the only change in it. I drove him back to the Dallas Cabana, he went upstairs and I waited for Mr. Nicoletti to come down. Mr. Nicoletti came down and got in the car with me and we drove to Dealey Plaza.

We got to Dealey Plaza shortly before ten o'clock. From there we parked the car...it had been drizzling rain that morning...kind of a cool morning out...I had parked the car beside the Dal-Tex building, Mr. Nicoletti and I got out and we walked up and down the complete area of Dealey Plaza, we covered every corner, walked by the buildings, looked over several different things.

We were just talking, having casual talk about the weather and everything. At about 10:30, Mr. Nicoletti asked me how would I feel in supporting him...in backing him up on this...and he told me I wouldn't fire unless it became extremely necessary. I told Mr. Nicoletti, Jesus, I'd be honored to do anything to back you up. He asked me if you was to be outside here, where would you position yourself at in Dealey Plaza? I told him, I said well, from looking everything over and from walking it in the week I've been down here, I think I would choose up there behind the tree behind the stockade fence on the high ridge by the knoll up there. He says why there? I says well I've got the railroad yard in back of me, we've got a parking lot there and I've got a place to where I could stash whatever I would need. I said I can pass myself off as a railroad worker in the railroad yard for the time being until that time comes and nobody would really pay any attention to me.

He asked me then where do you think would be the best place for me? I said well, I think the Dal-Tex building...with the new change in it...I say I think the Dal-Tex building over there...that building would give you the best advantage point there. He said I think so too. So we took a walk over, went through the parking lot over by the tracks, walked around through there and he seemed pretty well pleased with that. Then at that point, oh it was about 11:10, he asked me what weapon would I choose to use over there. I told him I would like to use the Fireball. He said why that one? He said you've only got one shot. I said one shot's all I'm gonna get anyway if I wait until the last moment of fire and I may not fire, I said, and it's easy to conceal and I carry it in a briefcase and nobody will pay any attention to me and it's easier to walk away from there.

And that's exactly what we did at that point. Shortly before noon, we went back to the vehicle, I took the briefcase out and turned my jacket inside out, I went back into the yard...the railroad yard there...I secured the briefcase, then I hung out back there and I walked down on the grassy knoll, no one paid any attention...people were gathering. Shortly before the motorcade came, I went back up there and started securing myself in a better position so I'd be able to reach the attache case at that point ...the briefcase...I knew once that I opened the briefcase up and pulled the weapon out, nobody's gonna be looking at me, the motorcade would be coming...making its first time...and I wouldn't have to remove the Fireball from the briefcase until approximately... they made the first turn on Elm Street there and I would have plenty of time at that point.

At that point when they started proceeding down Elm Street, shots started being fired from behind. I assumed that it was Mr. Nicoletti because he was the one that was in the building and I knew that Johnny Rosselli was there. I remember the shots ringing out and even though the President was being hit with the rounds, I was considering it a miss because I knew that we were going for a head shot on the President. I had known that he had been hit in the body but I didn't know what part at that time. I seen the body lurch and I saw the body lurch again, I heard another shot that missed. We were supposed to hit no one but Connally, I mean no one but Mr. Kennedy. I guess Gov. Connally got hit with one of the rounds at that point.

I wasn't even sure of that because I was keeping Kennedy as best I could in the scope on the Fireball.

When I got to the point where I thought it would be the last field of fire, I had zeroed in to the left side of the head there that I had because if I wait any longer then Jacqueline Kennedy would have been in the line of fire and I had been instructed for nothing to happen to her and at that moment I figured this is my last chance for a shot and he had still not been hit in the head. So, as I fired that round, Mr. Nicoletti and I fired approximately at the same time as the head started forward then it went backward. I would have to say that his shell struck approximately 1000th of a second ahead of mine maybe but that what's started pushing the head forward which caused me to miss from the left eye and I came in on the left side of the temple. At that point, through the scope, I witnessed everything, matter and skull bring blown out to the back on the limousine and everyone on television watching saw Jackie Kennedy crawl out there to get it. I watched her hold it in her hand, crawl back on to the car, I put the Fireball back into the briefcase, and closed it up, I pulled my jacket off, reversed my jacket so I would have, instead of the plaid side out, I would have the gray like a dress jacket more or less and I put a cap on my head, my hat, to walk away, carrying a briefcase.

Q: How did you exit the plaza?

A: When I exited the plaza, I walked to the edge of the stockade fence, I did not walk down the steps, I walked back over, crossed the grass to the dead end street that ends there by the parking lot and I proceeded to, I believe that's Houston, crossed Houston, went into the Dal-Tex parking lot. When I got into the car, Mr. Nicoletti was already in the car and so was Johnny Rosselli. I got in the car and drove away.

Q: What happened to the shell casing that you fired at John Kennedy?

A: The shell casing that I fired at John Kennedy, when I took it out of the weapon, It's one of those moments when you feel like you're above everything else and I guess I was a little bit cocky with it all. I took the casing and I put it in my mouth whole I put another casing - cartridge - into that one. Before putting it into the case and as I started to leave, I took the casing and I bit down on the casing to leave teethmarks on it and I set the casing, as a symbol, right on top of the stockade fence which I know I should have never done but I did that. Over the years, through other people, I have left certain trademarks along the way.

But the casing was mine and it had teethmarks on it and no one knew it was teethmarks here until recently in 1994. And they just had that examined to find out that it was teethmarks on there. But I left it more or less as a signature of my calling card.

https://spartacus-educational.com/JFKholt.htm Chauncey Holt was born in Kentucky on 23rd October, 1921. When he was 19 he joined the United States Army Airforce (USAAF). The following year he was court-martialed and sent to the U.S. penitentiary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for attacking another soldier with a Springfield rifle.

Holt was released in June 1940 but deserted from the USAF after the attack on Pearl Harbor. He eventually returned to duty but in 1942 he travelled in a car from Fort Knox to Louisville. He was arrested and charged with taking the car without permission and was sentenced to 18 months in the Industrial Reformatory at Chillicott, Ohio. On his release he found work with the Bethelem-Fairfield Shipyard Company.

After the war Holt met Peter Licavoli, a leading figure in the Mafia in Detroit. Holt was sent to Florida where he worked for Meyer Lansky as an accountant and pilot. This included several trips to Cuba where Lansky had extensive business interests. Lansky also sent Holt to worked for the International Rescue Committee (IRC). This was a Central Intelligence Agency controlled organization that had been set up to distribute funds to organizations attempting to overthrow left-wing governments. During the time Holt was also involved in producing forged documents for the CIA and the Mafia.

Holt also became involved in what later become known as Executive Action (a plan to remove unfriendly foreign leaders from power). This including a coup d'état that overthrew the Guatemalan government of Jacobo Arbenz in 1954 after he introduced land reforms and nationalized the United Fruit Company. However, the main target of this operation was Fidel Castro who had established a socialist government in Cuba.

In March I960, President Dwight Eisenhower of the United States approved a CIA plan to overthrow Castro. The plan involved a budget of $13 million to train "a paramilitary force outside Cuba for guerrilla action." The strategy was organized by Richard Bissell and Richard Helms. An estimated 400 CIA officers were employed full-time to carry out what became known as Operation Mongoose. Holt later claimed that he worked on this project with figures such as Sam Giancana, Johnny Roselli, Edward Lansdale and William Harvey.

After the failed Bay of Pigs invasion Holt worked for Meyer Lansky in California. Meyer took over the Los Angeles Stamp and Stationary Company where Holt continued to produce illegal documents and false police badges. He also worked closely with Phillip A. Twombly, a former Executive Vice President of Coca Cola for their Caribbean operations. Twombly now owned a bank in Fullerton, California, which was used to distribute CIA funds for covert operations. https://spartacus-educational.com/JFKholt.htm

Bethelem-Fairfield Shipyard Company is where Holt went to work in 1942 following his arrest in 1941 for taking a car. Interestingly on camera discussing the JFK assassination returning to the scene of the crime wooden fence in a tree lined area at the train-yard next to the Grassy Knoll holt tells the media his story of assasinating JFK began in 1941. I think it was 1941 or perpaps 1942.

Bethelem-Fairfield Shipyard Company The Bethlehem-

Fairfield Shipyard of Baltimore, Maryland, was a shipyard in the United States from 1941 until 1945. Wikipedia Number of employees: 27,000 Ceased operations: 1945 Parent organization: Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation.

Fore River Shipyard was a shipyard owned by General Dynamics Corporation located on Weymouth Fore River in Braintree and Quincy, Massachusetts. It began operations in 1883 in Braintree, and moved to its final location on Quincy Point in 1901. In 1913, it was purchased by Bethlehem Steel, and later transferred to Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation. It was sold to General Dynamics in 1963, and closed in 1986. Joseph Kennedy Sr was a rising young executive and could get steel and ships to the US Navy where FRD was the Undersecretary of the Navy in WWI.

Nothing conclusive here but an interest connection to a corporation and my question is was the CIA embedded in some way to Bethleham Steel and Shipbuilding and did they recruit Holt as an asset there while he was on probation or disclosing he had a record?

April 1961 and the attachment to Emil which was Mark May 31st 1961 during that period time I moved to California permanently and I think we've already discussed the group of people with that I met when I when I came at her who is whose names were given to me who served that actually in three different groups.

One groups was contract agent for the CIA

One group would have a slippery brush the group of politicians who were friends with my return already acquaintances ooh Meyer Lansky and Doc Stasher.

And the other the other group of course would be the Mafia guys who were associated with in a lesser way of course but when the associated said with [Peter] Licavoli and [interviewer: now Sam Giancana that guy] right?] oh yeah [inteviewer: and John Roselli] Yeah their (both people) Chicago gangsters

[interviewer: and William King Harvey] he's a legend of the CIA a long time in the CIA he was kicked out of the FBI because he doesn't get along with J Edgar Hoover and then he came over to the ot the CIA and he lasted a long time until he just drank himself out of a job [interviewer: how about Peter Licavoli] Licavoli is one of the most prominent organized crime figures in America.

[Interviewer: and Ray Ryan] Ray Ryan was one of the biggest gamblers in the world and was also an important asset of the CIA and he owned a lots and lots of properties and most important to the CIA was his Bermuda Dunes Airport where he fronted for the CIA.

The CIA paid for all the improvements with update the airport see and he and a guy by the name Ernie Dunlevie ran it.

[Interviewer and Phillip Twombly?] Phillip Twombly was arguably the most important asset on the west coast.

How high up he ranked in the the CIA a hierarchy I really don't know but it was very high because all all the money's not all but just about all of the money that came from contingency funds to contract agents on the West Coast came from Phillip Twombly. Most all of instructions that we receive came through Phillip Twombly or through Richard Wilson. Richard Wilson was a CIA agent that had been at JMWave in Miami and he moved out he moved to California it was a sort of semi-retired you know we never retire. He was a screenwriter and so forth so they would a lot of the instructions came from George Reynolds from Phil Twombly from Phil Twombly came to us.

CMV and the Cuba Project

In 1956, that old friend of the syndicate, Richard Nixon, who was vice president, visited the Dominican Republic and the CIA established a base there, soon after. [in other areas of the book Nixon states of Holt that because of the success Holt had (under Youngblood) in Guatamala he was being selected for the Cuba operation]

Since I was a pilot, I flew in and out of Havana, [under US backed strongman Batista who preceded Castro and his communist revolution] many times on assignments for CIA fronts, and for others, such as Lansky.

I never met the first chief of station; actually I never knew his identity.

he second COS was Lear B. Reed, an ex-FBI agent, who was involved in the cold blooded murder of John Dillinger. Incidentally, a goodly number of ex- FBI agents, who incurred the wrath of that closet homosexual, Hoover, were cashiered out, or resigned because they couldn't abide by the asinine rules established at Hoover's whim, and were picked up by the CIA.

This included William King Harvey, who was in charge of "Operation Mongoose," which involved Peter Licavoli and two other ex-agents, who were drummed out of the FBI, due to an incident that occurred in Tucson (Grace Ranch in its horse-racing mob days) and involved Peter Licavoli.

The two agents had been assigned to keep tabs on Joe Bonanno and Peter Licavoli, two ranking and elder statesmen of the Mafia, who lived in Tucson.

Jack: Dec 14 1961 Bermuda Dunes

The meeting is tentatively scheduled for Dec. 14th at Bermuda Dunes. JR, SG and Mr. H. are arriving today and will be staying in Ray's bungalow. Ray is driving down from LV tonight. Why do't you and Pete fly in from Tucson Grace Ranch so Ernie can start work on the Aero Commander. You can use Frank's Baron to fly back to Tucson or LA. The 100 hour check has been completed and the DME equipment installed.

Peter Joseph Licavoli (June 7, 1902 – January 11, 1984), was an American organized crime figure i

P. S. Happy Pearl Harbor Day. Seems impossible that it has been twenty years.

Letter dated 1961 from Frank Hayden, Ray Ryan's manager, to Chauncey Holt (aka Jack Moon) regarding the meeting at Bermuda Dunes to discuss Operation Mongoose (the CIA plans to kill Fidel Castro). Note SG (Sam Giancana), JR (Johnny Roselli) and Mr. H. (William Harvey).

William King Harvey, Sam Giacanca, Holt, Peter Licavoli (Holt and Licavoli flying in from Tuscon to El Mirador in Palm Springs via Bermuda Dunes Air Port will plot the events of Dealey Plaza starting in 1961 and that includes prepping documents for Lee Harvey Oswald and fake Secret Service and other IDs. Nomily for Cuba it like a poison requested for the fletch in reality this planning will be used to assasinate jKF as originally planned or it turns into]

The agents became frustrated that nothing was happening and so, the over zealous agents decided to foment a gang war between the two Mafiosos.

First, they tried to generate trouble by indulging in gossip; when that didn't work they ran out to Licavoli's Grace Ranch, on Wrightstown Road, and bombed some vehicles, parked at the ranch.

Then they rushed over to Joe Bananas residence and threw a bomb into his back yard.

The veteran mobsters were too experienced to fall for a ploy like that. Besides they were good friends and were not in competition, in any of the businesses they were conducting.

They discovered who the agents were in a most unusual manner. Each month the Society of Former FBI Agents met at the Spanish Trails Motel, and were unaware that the motel was owned by Peter Licavoli, who had bugged the room where they met.

A number of agents, still with the Bureau, always attended the monthly meeting and, at one of these meetings, the agents involved were boasting about this caper.

A complaint was filed; the agents were allowed to resign quietly and were picked up by the CIA. Back to the Dominican Republic meeting.

In 1958, I was approached by Reed, through a mutual acquaintance and asked to participate in the removal of Trujillo. I told Reed that I was leaving for California, to establish and operate proprietary gunrunning, gun modification and documentation interests for the CIA. He said that this would be no problem, and, in fact, the two projects might mesh, As of this date [in the story following 1951 prepary for Cuba after Guatamala] I [Holt] am drawing social security pay under three names — Chauncey M. Holt, Marvin Hoyt and John R. Moon.

Incidentally, legitimate graduates and scholars from MIT, complained bitterly that, when they went abroad, they were assumed to be CIA agents.

We continued to provide a full range of services for our parent company, the CIA. These services, much of which was illegal, was always carried out in secret and sometimes involved a group of anonymous criminals as well as respectable citizens, who also preferred to remain anonymous.

Criminals and intelligence agents, alike, must have a passion for anonymity.

So, as far back as 1951, I was engaged in providing false identification papers for contract agents of the CIA, through its Central Cover Division and provided documentation with an alias name, authentic, but non-functional credit cards, bank references and other documents that could be used to obtain a genuine driver's license, which is essential due to the likelihood that it would be checked for a minor traffc violation or equipment failure.

[A particular person] became a partner in gambling enterprises with "Nene" Trujillo, brother of the dictator and through this connection was appointed Rafael's chief of security.

He had been associated with Howard Hunt in Mexico in the early 1950s. During 1953 and 1954, Abbes worked with the Dominican Olympic Committee.

At the same time I was working for IRC, which funneled CIA funds to Trujillo, through the Olympic Committee, before a CIA station was established in the Dominican Republic.

South Florida was overrun with refugees from Cuba, eager to get back to their homeland. Some were former supporters of Batista; others were violently anti-Batista.

The CIA was becoming disenchanted with Castro. The syndicate, which had hedged its bets with Castro, felt that they had been double crossed and were anxious to dispose of Fidel, the great advocate of a "dictatorship of the proletariat."

The plan to assassinate Castro was very ingenious; a very innocuous assassin, with excellent cover credentials, forged by one of the CIA's most efficient "shoe factories," had rented an apartment, a bare three hundred yards from the television station in Havana, where Castro used to walk back and forth before a large picture window, haranguing for hours, ranting and railing about the giant to the north — the United States, which he claimed, with some justification, was strangling the economy of Cuba.

Three hundred yards is practically point-blank for an expert marksman, using the specialized sniper's rifle, furnished to the assassin. The assassin's ex filtration route had already been worked out. Of all the attempts, or planned attempts, on the life of Castro, this seemed to be the most professional. Credit for this professionalism is due Trujillo and Johnny Abbes, both of whom were very experienced in complex assassination plots.

The later, CIA sponsored attempts on Castro were actually laughable. These bizarre projects included furnishing Castro with exploding cigars; giving him a poisoned pen; infecting him with a toxin that would cause vomiting, cramps and coughing; provide himwith a scuba suit, coated with fungus; planting a sea shell, capable of exploding at his favorite diving spot and other thought provoking but ineffective devices right of a James Bond movie.

I often speculate how the course of history could have been changed had this assassination been implemented. No Bay of Pigs, no animosity between Kennedy and the CIA, no sense of betrayal toward John Kennedy on the part of the Cubans, and, undoubtedly no assassination of John F. Kennedy.

When I first became associated with the International Rescue Committee, I was using the name of Marvin Hoyt, a slight variation of part of my true name, because good old Estes Kefauver was trying to haul me before his tribunal.

When it became apparent that I took to the double dealing, nefarious business that the IRC was deeply involved in, we started searching around for a new identity, a deep cover identity, that could be used forever, if necessary.

Early on, I had been one of the group of pilots flying guns into Cuba for Prio, who had made a deal with Castro and had been promised his old job as president back, if Castro's revolution was successful.

Furthermore, Castro had promised Lansky, Rothman and Traffcante, all of whom saw the handwriting on the wall, as far as Batista was concerned, carte blanche in building new casinos.

Prio gave Castro enormous amounts of cash, some of which was used to purchase the yacht, Granma, which was converted into a troop transport, which was used when Castro landed in Cuba, to begin the revolution, which finally toppled Batista. Prio eventually formed an anti-Batista army in Miami which tried, unsuccessfully, to invade Cuba in 1957.

I had also been engaged in overseeing the modification and supply of weapons and materiel used by the various groups, but most of time was devoted to establishing new IDs for a variety of individuals, including myself.

One of my other assignments was setting up a network of companies, to serve as fronts for the CIA and to develop a network of organizations, mostly non-profit trusts of individuals, to serve as conduits for contingency funds of the "company."

During this time I was guided through the treacherous mine-fields of these educational, philanthropic and cultural organizations by Thomas W. Braden, head of the CIA's Division of International Organization. Mr. Braden had the overall authority for forging the secret links between private groups, universities and the labor unions from 1951 to 1954, and was my "rabbi"; the man I took all my problems to in this area, during what was an especially turbulent period.

In 1967 Braden wrote an article for the Saturday Evening Post that was entitled, "I'm glad the CIA is immoral."

It was the IRC that [James Eugene] Braden used to funnel

$50,000, in used bills, to Walter and Victor Reuther, of the United Auto Workers, two sanctimonious labor leaders, who used to harangue about the venality of Jimmy Hoffa.

Jay Lovestone and Irving Brown, who managed the international affairs for the AFL-CIO, were two more "incorruptible" labor leaders that we used. The list of organizations we used would fill a large book and ranged from the African American Institute to the United States Youth Council and included some organizations, not readily identified with the spy business, such as the National Council of Churches.

But then, that shouldn't be so startling, since the churches have never been known to turn down money, from whatever source.

The "philanthropic" — the title should be taken with a grain of salt — organizations were just as varied and the list was just as long, and included some very famous names. One of those — the J. M. Kaplan Foundation — received considerable notoriety later, because of the fact that Joel Kaplan, the nephew of the founder, was shanghaied in Mexico, on orders from his uncle, a very valuable asset of the CIA and thrown in Santa Marta prison, where he stayed for nine years. California gunrunners, including Vic Stadter, that we routinely did business with, finally spirited him out of prison by helicopter.

A book "Ten second jail break" was written about this episode and served as the basis — in title only — for a movie called, Breakout, which starred Charles Bronson. As usual the book was fascinating and was based on the facts; the movie was pure fiction, not nearly as engrossing as the book. That is usually the case in these fictionalized versions of actual events.

At the same time that I was working for the IRC, I was employed full time by another of the CIA's proprietary interests, Ware Laboratories, which was located in Miami Springs. In this cover assignment I was engaged in installing a standard cost system for this firm, which was funded completely by the CIA. Several contract agents, who participated in the Guatemala project, were employed at Ware Laboratories, which was headed by an old OSS operative, George Gibson.

CHAPTER TWELVE

Moon is Born

will describe in detail how I established a deep cover identity for myself, which is typical of the method used by covert agents worldwide, with slight variations, of course.

First, I decided for a name to use; then I located a person, about the right age, whose birth certificate I could use. This is the reverse of the procedures that are usually followed. The usual method is to roam the graveyards, looking at the headstones, for names to use.

In my case, I chose the name of Moon, because a person with this name could be Caucasian, oriental or even American Indian. Of course, American Indians are a sub-classification of oriental. Many other agents will describe in detail how I established a used this same name of Moon over the next thirty deep cover identity for myself, which is typical of the method used by covert agents worldwide, with slight variations, of course.

Holt Explains Fair Play For Cuba and Lee Harvey Oswald

Like Zapata oil products (that had minor variations in its name I think) Coca-Cola had some perhaps less direct but real cooperation with the CIA. One of its executives was involved with CIA activities likely backed by part or all of the company's directors.

"Phillip A. Twombly was Executive Vice President of Coca Cola for their Caribbean operations. Later he owned a bank in Fullerton, California. According to Chauncey Holt this bank was used to distribute CIA funds for covert operations." - Chauncye Marvin Holt

Radio advertising began in 1927, and through the years Coca-Cola sponsored many musical programs.

1930 Also, by the end of 1930, as a result of the company’s quality control efforts, Coca-Cola tasted exactly the same everywhere.

1937 In 1937, he donated $50,000 to Emory University for a cancer diagnosis and treatment center, and over the years gave more than $100 million to the clinic.

1940 Overseas sales climbed rapidly and by 1940 Coca-Cola was botled in more than 45 countries.

1950 The years from after World War II to 1980 were years of extensive and rapid change. Although Woodruff stepped down officially in 1955, he still exerted a great amount of influence on the company over the coming years. There was a series of chairmen and presidents to follow before the next major figure, J. Paul Austin, took the helm in 1970; he was followed by Roberto Goizueta in 1981. In 1956, after 50 years with the D'Arcy Advertising Agency, the Coca-Cola Company turned its accounts over to McKann-Ericson and began enormous promotional campaigns. The decade of the 1950's was a time of the greatest European expansion for the company. During this decade Coca-Cola opened approximately fifteen to twenty plants a year throughout the world.

1960 In addition to its diversification program, the Coca-Cola Company also expanded its product line. Fanta became available in the U.S. during 1960 and was followed by the introduction of Sprite, Tab and Fresca, along with diet versions of these drinks. One reason that Coca-Cola began to introduce new beverages during the 1960's was competition from Pepsi Cola. Pepsi's success also motivated the Coca-Cola Company to promote its beverage with the slogan "It's the Real Thing," a subtle, comparative form of advertising that the company had never before employed.

American History >The Assassination of JFK > Phillip A. Twombly

owned a bank in Fullerton, California. According to Chauncey Holt this bank was used to distribute CIA funds for covert operations.

In 1963 Holt received instructions from Twombly to provide false ID documents for Lee Harvey Oswald. These documents (in the names of Lee Harvey Oswald and Alek Hiddell) were delivered by a man called George Reynolds. In August, 1963, Twombly asked Holt to travel to New Orleans, where he met Oswald and Carlos Bringuier.

Chauncey Holt later claimed he was went to Dallas in November, 1963, with Charlie Nicoletti, James Canty and Leo Moceri.

In Dallas Holt passed on forged documents and guns (with silencers) to Charles Harrelson and Charles Rogers (Richard Montoya). Holt was told that "an incident was going to be created which could be laid at the door of pro-Castro Cubans.

The word attempted assassination was never used. We assumed that from all this light loaded ammunition that maybe somebody was going to try to take a shot from somewhere, probably the Dal-Tex building, or one of the buildings around there. But at no time was it ever intimidated to us that an assassination or attempted assassination on Kennedy."

When the Kennedy motorcade reached the Dealey Plaza Holt was in the parking lot behind the Grassy Knoll. After the shooting took place Holt went to hide in a railroad car. He was joined by Charles Harrelson and Charles Rogers. However, soon afterwards, Dallas police officers entered the railroad car and arrested all three men. The three men along with Jim Brading were interviewed by Gordon Shanklin of the FBI and then released.

In October, 1991, Holt confessed to John Craig,

Phillip Rogers and Gary Shaw about his role in the assassination of John F. Kennedy. Holt's story was undermined in 1992 when the Dallas Police Department revealed that the three tramps were Gus Abrams, John F. Gedney and Harold Doyle. Ray and Mary LaFontaine carried out their own research into this claim. They traced Doyle and Gedley who confirmed they were two of the tramps in the photograph. Gus Abrams was dead but his sister identified him as the third tramp in the photograph.

> I should point out of course, one name I haven't mentioned and probably the most important on the West Coast was Phillip A. Twombly. Twombly had been at one time an Executive Vice President of Coca Cola for their Caribbean operations. And along with Donald Kendall (Pepsi Cola), was considered by the CIA to be the eyes and ears of the CIA (down there). So he came to California and bought a bank in Fullerton, which was strictly for the use as a conduit of finances.
>
> All of the instructions that came to the West Coast came through Twombly. Twombly in turn, we would, we rarely met face to face. He had two assistance, one, a man by the name of David L. Palmer, and he had a gentleman by the name of Marilyn Mahab?, who used to pass on all the information to us in the way of instructions as to what we were to provide.

All of the requests that came for the stuff that we were to produce for Oswald, who we had never heard of, didn't even know, came from, through Twombly. These were pamphlets we were suppose to do, false identifications, a number of false identifications that ended up in the hands of authorities. We did IDs for Oswald in both his name and Hidel...

Phillip Twombly asked us if we would be willing to fly to New Orleans and give some support to Oswald, who was a stranger to us. The only thing we knew about Oswald at the time was we had detected the address on there as being 544 Camp Street.

Although we were not familiar with Oswald we certainly knew what was at 544 Camp Street because we had done that before. It was the HQ of Sergio A. Smith's organization, the CRC. There was a restaurant in the first floor and Guy Bannister had an office in the building, although he used an address around the corner, it was in the same building. And George Reynolds knew the man who owned the building, a guy by the > name of Sam Newman, and he knew him.

Covert Network Progressives, the International Rescue Committee, and the CIA By Eric Thomas Chester · 1995

The International Rescue Committee was founded by socialists in the 1930s to aid the victims of fascism. The IRC attracted the support of prominent figures such as Eleanor Roosevelt, Norman Thomas, and Reinhold Niebuhr, as well as that of the Ford Foundation. It also became intimately entangled with the CIA during the most volatile days of the Cold War. The story of the IRC is a fascinating and little-known aspect of recent U.S. history. The Fair Play for Cuba Committee (FPCC) was an activist group set up in New York City by Robert Taber in April 1960.[1][2][3]

History [edit]

The FPCC's purpose was to provide grassroots support for the Cuban Revolution against attacks by the United States government, once Fidel Castro began openly admitting his commitment to Marxism and began the expropriation and nationalization of Cuban assets belonging to U.S. corporations. The FPCC opposed the Bay of Pigs invasion of 1961, the imposition of the United States embargo against Cuba, and was sympathetic to the Cuban view during the Cuban Missile Crisis of 1962. Its members were placed under surveillance by the FBI.[4]

Subsidiary Fair Play for Cuba groups were set up throughout the United States and Canada.[5][6]

Lee Harvey Oswald feigned allegiance but was not believed. He passed out fliers provided to him next to an FBI office in attempt to infiltrate or be publicly associated with that group at the request of the FBI CIA.

The story of the CIA activity takes the reader behind the scenes of deep-cover operations. Holt shows how his identity as Jack Moon was created. He shows how someone checking into his background would discover that he was an MIT graduate (he never attended the school) and a classmate of George Schultz. He was also registered as a Certified Public Accountant in the state of Massachusetts.

The documentation mills of the CIA are covered, as well as an explanation of the proprietary interests of the company. The Bay of Pigs fiasco involved Holt in his capacity with the International Rescue Committee.

The IRC role was logistical, arranging for the ships, hiring pilots from the Alabama National Guard, and engaging in other, related roles. Operation Mongoose followed the Bay of Pigs and resulted from the Kennedy brothers' obsession with destroying Castro.

The Bay of Pigs was an Eisenhower administration operation they inherited, but the brothers took the defeat personally. They did not have so strong a desire to defeat Castro as they did to win whatever they tried.

The roles played by William King Harvey, Robert Maheu, Sam Giancana, and Johnny Rosselli have been well publicized. However, the roles of some of the other players, including Peter Licavoli, friend and long time associate of both Rosselli and Giancana, as well as Tony Materna, a close associate of Howard Hughes, legendary gambler Ray Ryan and his partner, Ernie Dunlevie, have never before been exposed.

It was also this plot that ultimately was a probable factor in the assassination of Jack Kennedy. In presenting the information on the CIA, either within the text or in an appendix, Holt will include a list of the CIA fronts active in California during this period as well as background concerning their "legitimate" and covert reasons for existence.

Holt will also discuss some of the CIA covert operations such as the assassination of Rafael Leonida Trujillo, one of the most vicious butchers ever to operate in the Caribbean. Aspects of the Kennedy assassination are discussed. At the time of the murder, Holt was working for KG & Co. The "K" stood f or former California Governor Goodwin Knight. The "G" stood for Alfred Gitelson, a sitting Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge.

Among the many partners in the company were Frank Belcher, Joe Ball, and Doc Stacher. The combination of political clout from the named partners, and the money of the organized crime relatively silent partners, led to tremendous profits, often at the expense of the taxpayers. The conduit for all CIA operations in California and Arizona was Phillip Twombly, former executive vice president of Coca Cola, the eyes and ears of the CIA in the Caribbean, who owned the University Bank of Fullerton, California.

Through Twombly, we met and controlled many bank officials, particularly the Bank of America, whose key officers cooperated blindly in whatever schemes were being perpetrated.

Holt, discussing the violent end of the Kennedy administration, which will be covered in the book states: "In early 1963, our Los Angeles documentation mill was the Los Angeles Stamp and Stationery Company (LASSCO).

Tony Materna, a MIT graduate (for real) and formerly a close associate of Howard Hughes, was the general manager who supervised the day to day operation of the legal side of the business. I was in charge of the covert section, supervising the graphic artists responsible for turning out some of the best documents in the country for the CIA and organized crime.

"It was in April of 1963 that we were informed that a major project was contemplated for the fall of that year.

Later we were instructed that an incident would be created during visits by President Kennedy to either Chicago, Miami, or some other large city. The incidents were to be viewed as the work of pro-Castro Cubans so that the CIA could regain interest in ridding the nation of Castro. (Oddly, at this time John Kennedy was subtly trying to bring Castro into a more positive relationship with the United States while his brother, Robert, was working on ways to assassinate him.)

"For this project, the covert section of LASSCO was asked to be prepared to forge identity documents for several agencies. The work, to be done on short notice, included documents and Japel recognition plns for the Secret Service.

"In August of 1963, acting on instructions of George Reynolds, who operated the Atchafalaya Labor Camp in Morgan City, Louisiana, Bud Belcher and I flew to New Orleans. Bud was the son of Frank Belcher, owner of Belcher Aircraft, a CIA proprietary interest. Bud and I were to give Lee Harvey Oswald material to distribute in his role with "Fair Play for Cuba."

The pamphlets we printed at LASSCO were passed to Guy Bannister, but there was a well-publicized arrest of Oswald at this time and, to the best of my knowledge, the material was never distributed.

"In November I went to Dallas as instructed with forged documents for Homer Echevarria, as well as two men identified to me as Richard Montoya and Charles Harrelson. J was instructed to remain in Dealey Plaza 'in a support position' until after the motorcade and the planned demonstrations were finished. J assumed that these were the fraudulent pro-Castro demonstrations discussed earlier in the year.

"As soon as the shooting started, I realized that I was another pawn in this operation. Montoya, Harrelson, and I took refuge in a boxcar, which had been identified to us as part of a train ready for departure. If anyone checked, they would have found that we were Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms (ATF) agents working in plain-clothes, the reason false documents had been prepared.

"An hour and a half after the shooting, we were arrested. We were taken to the Sheriff's Department command post and turned over to a deputy sheriff. Because of who we could 'prove' we were, we were turned over to Gordon Shanklin, FBI agent in charge.

He released us almost immediately, not bothering to record our detainment. The closest to a record is a photograph that was taken of us as the 'three tramps' whose identities have been incorrectly speculated.

"Suddenly after the release of the movie JFK and the resulting publicity, including lengthy articles in Newsweek and elsewhere, the Dallas Police came up with what purports to be arrest records of the three tramps.

However, there are no pictures or fingerprints of these three individuals, even though the Dallas Police Department now claims that they were held for four days for vagrancy and for theft. The finger has been pointed all these years at the Dallas Police Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation who, allegedly were well aware of documentary evidence that would blunt the criticisms of negligence if, in fact, it was in existence and not fabricated solely for the purpose of discrediting other individuals, including myself.

"Still, to this day, no one, to my knowledge, has produced a single extant photograph of these three tramps that could be compared with those taken on that date.

"My photograph, as well as the photographs of Charles Rogers (aka Richard Montoya) and Charles Harrelson, have been compared and authenticated by Lois Gibson, forensic artist of the Houston Police Department, one of the foremost experts in America. Ms. Gibson has indicated she would stake her reputation on the fact that I am the tramp now claimed to be Gus Abrams, deceased.

"Shortly thereafter James Canty and I flew from Red Bird Airport in a private plane furnished by George Reynolds which, we believe, was flown into Red Bird and left by David Ferrie. Ferrie was an associate of Carlos Marcello, the syndicate boss of New Orleans, Dallas, and Houston, who was a close friend and associate of Peter Licavoli."

Holt has no idea who ordered the murder of John Kennedy. He has no idea who might have been shooters. However, he notes that a large number of individuals with connections to the CIA, organized crime, pro-Castro activist groups, and anti-Castro groups were present.

He suspects that they, like himself, were sent there as a diversion. He feels that if the Dallas Police had done their job, there would have been massive confusion since all of them, if they could be properly checked, would have been discovered to have histories involving violence and crime.

Much of Holt's post-Bay of Pigs work for the CIA was in California where his job included establishing proprietary interests for the company. He took strong recommendations from his close associates Meyer Lansky and Peter Licavoli in order to be able to begin associating with powerful Californians.

These included Frank Belcher, Joseph A. Ball who was later a senior counsel for the Warren Commission, as well as Goodwin Knight, Alfred Gitelson, and other influential partners in KG & Co.

"I operated five different proprietary interests including a documentation mill, two fixed based operations for aircraft, a weapons modification plant, and a business management firm which disbursed contingency funds to contract agents and carried out money laundering operations.

[relocated text from book added to here] At times Holt's mob bosses will send him invitations to meeting with the CIA and be asked to assist the CIA with forgeries for fake IDs, falsified documents and records, help with flights including C-47 with munitions in to Latin America, Surplus B-52s, etc, and be given CIA aliases like Jack Moon to use as he worked through CIA Proprietary (front) groups. [end relocated text

Written records are provided by Holt of modification operations to B-52 bombers and transactions involving ammunition and armaments for what seems activity at Grace Ranch withe Peter Licavoli are provided and these were monitored and audited by the Internal Revenue Service.

Frank Belcher and I had a joint bank account at the Bank of America in Burbank, California, that was used to launder contingency funds, pay contract agents, and receive funds from those clients of the CIA fronts that availed themselves of our services.

Belcher was a relative of J.A. Belcher of Belcher Oil Company, another firm closely connected to the CIA. He was married to Ruth Reynolds, who was related to George Reynolds of Morgan City, Louisiana, another asset, and Bob Reynolds, who was chief of station of JM/ Wave, the huge CIA complex located on the campus of the University of Miami.

"Belcher and Ball were partners, along with actors John Wayne and Fred MacMurray, in a luxurious house in Acapulco, next to Las Brisas. It was used almost like a time share for the men and their friends. Among the 'friends' were CIA contract agents and organized crime figures such as Lansky, Licavoli, and Stacher, who went there for meetings.

I never did learn if Wayne and MacMurray were aware of the meetings taking place. It was an investment that paid off for all concerned, and they may not have been aware of anything more than the appreciation in the property's value prior to the partners' selling it."

Holt was uncomfortable with the world of the CIA following the Kennedy assassination. He decided to take a break from that life, using his knowledge of art to open a gallery in Laguna Beach, California. He went into partnership with internationally recognized artists Frank Tauriello and Maurice Meyer. Much of their work involved portraits, ironically including several of the deceased John F. Kennedy.

Inrterview with Chauncey Holt

CH: Down in the Florida keys at Marathon they had built this airport, strictly for his use. And the CIA started using it. So we started making flights from Marathon into Cuba. We would insert agents into Cuba and we would deliver arms and ammunition into Cuba. We made dozens and dozens of flights into Cuba in 1960.

VO: Intrigue and infighting between the CIA and the State department doomed any efforts.

CH: Everybody seemed to be working cross purposes and finally, just before the 1960 election, they came up with this idea of invading Cuba. What started out from being a small over-the-beach type raid turned into a full assault.

VO: That full assault, the Bay of Pigs invasion, would be a complete failure. A major embarrassment for the Kennedy administration and the impetus for operation Mongoose.

The Cia Meets The Mob

CH: Operation Mongoose was an ill conceived operation, an operation between organized crime and the CIA to actually simply kill Castro, and they had some various memo's, as a matter of fact I have a few memo's how I ended up, how they were talking about what they were going to do and so forth...

VO: Here are some of the memo's Chauncey refers to (picture of memo's). These men participated in a meeting held at a small airport between Palm Springs and Indio California, the name: Bermuda Dunes.

CH: For that meeting Peter Licavoli and I flew in from Arizona. Sam Giancana and Johnny Roselli came in from Chicago. William King Harvey came in from Langley. William King Harvey was a legend in the CIA. He was the only member, he was the only CIA- member there, but of course he was the one that was laying out the plans.

VO: Who was William King Harvey?

VO: Chauncey was well aware of his involvement in other CIA operations.

CH: William King Harvey was the head of Taskforce W. That had been renamed, originally, that was a part of ZR/Rifle, an Operation called ZR/Rifle. ZR/Rifle was nothing more than an assassination group, that went around the world assassinating people, and Harvey happened to be the head of ZR/Rifle.

VO: On December 14th 1961 top echelon leaders of the CIA and the mafia met at Bermuda Dunes airport in Palm Springs to discuss ground rules for Operation Mongoose. Chauncey's memo's of that meeting show an Executive Action was planned. Executive Action means assassination. The target: The Beard, Castro.

The ground rules: CIA only, maximum security, non attributability, plausible denial, need to know basis. Harvey set the tone of the meeting at the Bermuda Dunes airport.

CH: They were going to eliminate the Beard and how was going to be done and just starting as to what personnel they were going to hire.

First of all they were trying to decide what cryptonym they were going to use, because they had decided that they would assign a cryptonym to end up in the offcial CIA-files. AM, normally, operations involving Cuba had an AM-start to their cryptonym.

So well, we did not want to use AM, all we wanted to do is to start looking down the vest, and MO was some cryptonym for some secure place, way out in the Pacific somewhere.

So everyone says: Hey, why don't we use the MO and so I said "Well, what word is going to go with, what goes with MO, so that it flows, you know? And somebody said: Hey, how about Mongoose? You know, the Mongoose never loses, you know, so that's a good one, you know? So everybody agreed: Hey, we call it Operation Mongoose.

VO: It is also decided any further discussions about operation Mongoose would be face to face, nothing in writing. The CIA's William King Harvey was clearly in charge.

CH: It was a very short meeting because of the fact that, 20 minutes to an hour, it didn't take very long, I mean, he laid it out in precise terms, but these guys wanted to get out, you know, and take off and uh guys like Giancana and Roselli, they were reluctant to get together, and Licavoli too, these high-ranking mobsters don't like to meet with each other and they rarely do that, so we kept it short and sweet and that was it.

(picture of CIA-memo)

VO: An August 14th 1962 inter offce CIA-memo from William King Harvey to the Director of Clandestine Operations says in part: "Our contract agents in Miami and in Los Angeles have been assured by me that no reference to this operation appears in our central files."

Company Business

CH: Our first order of business was to set up a documentation mill. So we started looking around for a plant and we found one that was ideal and was in financial trouble. It was called the Los Angeles stamps and stationary company.

It was a very old LA firm and it owned a very valuable building in downtown Los Angeles which was ideally set up, because the first four floors of this building was devoted to legitimate business. They went right on with their printing, they did banners and badges, they did high quality printing as stock certificates, bonds, that sort of things.

But, and that was ideal for us, they did police badges for almost every police department in the United States. And the top floor was devoted to clandestine operations. We had a group of employees that knew nothing about what went on upstairs, but upstairs we did all the disinformation stuff, the fake ID's and that sort of things.

VO: The agency also wanted a machine shop to handle weapons modifications.

CH: We discovered this place in Goleta, California which is at Santa Barbara airport. It was at the airport so we could land and taxi the stuff right in. We had a big hangar right at that facility which is great for loading and unloading arms. There again, it was an operating machine shop that continued its own work and if we wanted 500 silencers, we got 500 silencers.

VO: By late 1962 both operations were up and running. Both were used by the mob and the CIA.

Holt's immediate supervisor on behalf of the agency was Phil Twombly.

CH: Phil Twombly had been an executive vice president for Caribbean Operations of Coca Cola. He used to boast at it because he was the eyes and ears of the CIA in the Caribbean.

So we knew he was well connected. But we didn't know how well until we came to the west coast and we were told that all of our funds would be coming from Phillip Twombly. And all of our order would come from Twombly and/or a long time agent by the name of Richard Wilson.

The head of the CIA in Los Angeles was a guy by the name of Ernst Leibacher. And we were told that under no circumstance, except in case of extreme emergency, we were not to contact Leibacher. And that our operations were outside the normal loop of the CIA.

Then we started making a request for capital equipment that we felt that we needed and it slowed to a trickle for some reason. We were not getting any funds.

VO: But suddenly from early 1963, the purse strings loosen.

CH: We are not talking about fiddle little procurements, we are talking about big ticket items. Among them was a corporate jet, to fly back and forth. We wanted a Gulfstream which was a turbo prop. The startling thing about it was that they were telling us: We got the money.

At the end of April 1963 1 received a note from Phil Twombly in which he said we would soon be receiving a special order from our distributor in New Orleans.

VO: A letter from Twombly dated April 29, 1963 is addressed to Jack Moon, Chauncey's favorite alias: "I want you to personally supervise this project and make the delivery yourself to New Orleans." It is signed: "Regards, Phil"

(Letter of Twombly showing on screen)

CH: Our distributor in New Orleans happened to be Guy Bannister, who is a well known person to the assassination researchers. He was a very mysterious guy and was probably Lee Harvey Oswald's controller.

VO: Twombly's letter to Chauncey Holt, aka Jack Moon, ended with this instruction: The customer wants all the original artwork destroyed when the job is completed.

The Patsy

CH: What bothered me from day one, was the vilification of Lee Harvey Oswald. Because I KNOW that Lee Harvey Oswald was a patsy. I KNOW that he was executed just the same as everyone else.

: Chauncey is absolutely convinced that Oswald was framed.

CH: Although my revelations probably won't add too much to what has already been said. But all I wanted to do is set the record straight. I felt that the American people is entitled to know.

: The editing for the next portion of the Holt interview will be minimal. You will hear Chauncey Holt's words as he spoke them. He is talking about his New Orleans assignment. It is late spring 1963.

CH: It turned out that this work was for Lee Harvey Oswald. We did documentation ... identity documents, in the name of Lee Harvey Oswald, Lee Henry Oswald, Leon Osborne and Alek Hidell.

We weren't sure at the time who we were actually doing it for, or who this person was, for the simple reason that the same picture that appeared on Lee Harvey Oswald (ID card), also appeared on Leon Osborne.

So we didn't know if this guy was actually Leon Osborne or that, or he might have been neither. We didn't know exactly who this was. So we delivered that. Some of that stuff, the documentation, was redoing some other documentation that someone else had done.

And it was very amateurish, and it would never pass, if you looked at it very closely, you knew it was a forgery. So it was merely a matter of cleaning it up. Some of it was new. One of the new things that we did for him, was a card to show that Lee Harvey Oswald was a member of the Communist Party.

Well that presented a little problem for us, because we did not even know what that card looked like. And we hunted and hunted and hunted, trying to find what it looked like, and then we were finally told by an expert: "Hey, Communists don't carry cards, a communist is not carrying a card."

But they wanted it, so we just had to wing it and made them a nice looking card that he was a member of the Communist Party. So we completed that in May or June.

In August we made a trip to New Orleans, to deliver some guns and so forth. I had a note, another note from George Reynolds.

(Letter of Reynolds shown on screen)

CH: George Reynolds operated four proprietary interests in Morgan City, Louisiana. And he relayed he was a high level, apparently he operated at a high level because a lot of instructions came from him and a lot of money came from him. A lot of money came from his organizations direct. Direct to whomever I said to send it to. So he worked at a high level.

Besides, he was extremely well connected to the intelligence community. His sister was married to Frank Belcher, who was one of the most powerful figures, legal figures, in California. So that was her connection, that was George Reynolds' sister.

(Picture Frank Belcher showing on screen)

CH: Now, Frank Belcher was also partners with Joe Ball. Not actually partners in a law firm, they had a separate law firm, but they operated together because when you would have multiple defendants, one was represented by Joe Ball, the other by Frank Belcher.

That way they wouldn't have any conflict of interest.

(Picture of Joe Ball showing on screen)

VO: Joe Ball, like Belcher, was an influential legal figure. He was president of the California State Bar and gained national exposure as senior counsel for the Warren Commission. According to Chauncey both Belcher and Ball were part of an interlocked web with far reaching connections. Chauncey elaborates further about the shadowy network.

CH: George Reynolds had a brother, whose name was Bob Reynolds. He was chief of station at JM/ Wave

(Picture of JM/ Wave headquarters showing on screen)

CH: He was a very high level CIA individual, employee.

Besides, Frank Belcher was related to J.A. Belcher of J.A. Belcher Oil Company, had old time oil money from Texas. He also was known to be a CIA asset. This was well known

So all these things were working together.

So I get a letter from George Reynolds, telling me that he and Leroy Young, who happened to be his second in command, a weapons expert, helicopter pilot, you know, soldier of fortune type, and that they were going to be in New Orleans for about twenty days, a twenty day period.

(Picture of Leroy Young showing on screen)

CH: And I was going to New Orleans, to deliver some guns to Lewis McWillie, who was a high level organized crime figure, all these people of course were connected to the CIA, the CIA knew what was going on. So I would deliver these guns over there, and while I was there, I had this stuff for Guy Banister. So he sent me this note and said he was going to stay at the La Salle Hotel to meet a guy by the name of James Richard Worrell, 20, told the Warren Commission that he heard four shots fired when President John F. Kennedy was assassinated.

"I heard four shots. I don't care what they say."

Mr. WORRELL - Four. Mr. SPECTER - Did you observe anything at about that time? Mr. WORRELL - Yes, sir, I looked up and saw the rifle, but I would say about 6 inches of it. Mr. SPECTER - And where did you see the rifle? Mr. WORRELL - I'm not going - I am not too sure but I told the FBI it was either in the fifth or the sixth floor on the far corner, on the east side.

He also saw a man run from the rear entrance of the Texas School Book Depository Building and disappear seconds after President Kennedy was shot. James Worrell was killed in a motorcycle accident on November 5, 1966. https://youtu.be/dBRb_kRz2d4?si=tEazkA9geSMu7shR

Mr. WORRELL - Cut directly across, kind of at an angle. Mr. SPECTER - Across Houston Street as you have drawn the red line there? Mr. WORRELL - Yes, and I rested there, I was out of breath, I smoke too much, short winded. Mr. SPECTER - Will you mark that "Y" where you stopped and rested and tell us how long you stopped there? (Witness marking.) Mr. WORRELL - How long? Mr. SPECTER - Yes, sir. Mr. WORRELL - I was there approximately 3 minutes before I saw this man come out the back door here. Mr. SPECTER - All right. Now will you put a "Z" where you first saw the man whom you have just described or mentioned? Mr. WORRELL - It is here I am pretty sure, I am not positive. (Witness marking.) Mr. SPECTER - You are pretty sure - but you can't be positive - but you are pretty sure? Mr. WORRELL - Yes. Mr. SPECTER - Okay. Now describe as best you can the man whom you have testified you saw at point "Z." Mr. WORRELL - Describe his appearance? Mr.

SPECTER - Yes. Start by telling us how tall he was, to the best of your ability to recollect and estimate? Mr. WORRELL - To the - it is going to be within 3 inches, 5-7 to 5-10. Mr. SPECTER - What is your best estimate as to his weight? Mr. WORRELL - 155 to 165. Mr. SPECTER - What is your best estimate as to his height? Mr. WORRELL - 5-7, 5-10. Mr. SPECTER - Pardon me, your best estimate as to his age. Mr. WORRELL - Well, the way he was running, I would say he was in his late twenties or middle - I mean early thirties. Because he was fast moving on. Mr. SPECTER - Of what race was he? Mr. WORRELL - White. Mr. SPECTER - Can you describe the characteristics of his hair? Mr. WORRELL - Black. Mr. SPECTER - Did he have -- Mr. WORRELL - Well, I will say brunette. Mr. SPECTER - Did he have a full head of hair, a partial head of hair, or what? Mr. WORRELL - Well, see, I didn't see his face, I just saw the back of his head and it was full in back. I don't know what the front looked like. But it was full in back. Mr. SPECTER - What clothes did the man have on? Mr. WORRELL - Dark, like a jacket like that. Mr. SPECTER - Indicating a dark gray jacket? Mr. WORRELL - No, no. It was a jacket like that. Mr. SPECTER - A suit jacket? Mr. WORRELL - Yes. Mr. SPECTER - Or was it a sports jacket? Mr. WORRELL - Sports jacket. Mr. SPECTER - Did not have on matching coat and trousers? Mr. WORRELL - No. Mr. SPECTER - Was it dark in color or light? Mr. WORRELL - It was dark in color. I don't know whether it was blue, black, or brown, but it was dark, and he had light pants. And that is all I can say on his clothes, except his coat was open and kind of flapping back in the breeze when he was running. Mr. SPECTER - Now, are there any other distinguishing characteristics that you can describe about him? Mr. WORRELL - Not a thing. Mr. SPECTER - What did he -- Mr. WORRELL - He wasn't holding nothing when he was running. He was just running. Mr. SPECTER - What did you observe him do if, anything? Mr. WORRELL - Well, when he ran out here, he ran along the side of the Depository Building and then when he got -- Mr. SPECTER - Make a dotted line as to where he went, or take this black pencil and make a line as to where he went. (Witness marking.) Mr. SPECTER - Where did you see him eventually go? Mr. WORRELL - Well, he went on further. Mr. SPECTER - Is that the last you saw of him? Mr. WORRELL - Yes, sir. Mr.

SPECTER - And did something come between you and him so that your vision was obstructed? Mr. WORRELL - Yes, sir. Mr. SPECTER - At the point you have just dotted out there? Mr. WORRELL - Yes, sir. Mr. SPECTER - What obstructed your view of him at that juncture or at that point? Mr. WORRELL - I can't really be sure, it was a building, but the type of building, I don't know. Mr. SPECTER - During the course of your seeing him, did you ever get a view of his face? Mr. WORRELL - Oh, no, no.

The 1976 United States presidential election was the 48th quadrennial presidential election, held on Tuesday, November 2, 1976. Democrat Jimmy Carter, former Governor of Georgia, defeated incumbent Republican president Gerald Ford in a narrow victory.

On October 18, 1977, Ray Ryan was killed. Ryan went to a health club, as he often did. When he finished his workout, he walked outside to his new Lincoln Mark V coupe. However, someone had connected a bomb to the ignition of the car. As soon as Ryan turned the key, Ryan's car exploded violently. The impact of explosion killed Ryan almost instantly. It took investigators two days to locate and collect all of the pieces of the car – one piece of metal was located 377 feet from the scene of the explosion. The murder is unsolved.

The meeting is tentatively scheduled for Dec. 14th at Bermuda Dunes. JR, SG and Mr. H. are arriving today and will be staying in Ray's bungalow. Ray is driving down from LV tonight. per Chauncey Holt a Proprietary Interest was am organization, a proprietor of somethign, the CIA had an operational interest in or control of. Los Angeles Stationary and Stamp Company was one that made badges and IDs for police and for the CIA. Holt was a graphics artist that could do the IDs and design for IDs. Holt said he made the Fair Play for Cuba flyers for Oswald and Oswald himself worked at a print shop for a short time under a fake ID.

[Voice Over is the interviewer] VO: Twombly's memo is dated November 12 1963 to Jack, Los Angeles Stamp and Stationary Company saying in part: "Number needed undetermined at this time but will not be in excess of 15."

CH Twombly is referring to the sets of fake Secret Service ID's. He says: "Schedule accordingly." The colors for the acting Secret Service agents chard with the protection of the president, they wore the lapel pins easily recognizable. The looked like a good conduct medal. But they changed them from time to time because they figured if the kept them too long, somebody is going to make a hand full of them. So they keep changing them and changing them and we didn't find out until about the 16th what the colors were going to be. It turned out they were going to be the same as on the flag of Texas.

VO: Those were the pins Chauncey was ordered to deliver to Dallas. CH: Our intention was first to fly directly from Los Angeles to Dallas, which is no problem.

Mongoose Timeline

Thus, the stage was set in 1961 for the group of powerful individuals who had planned the Bay of Pigs to gain revenge on John Kennedy who tried to change the overall direction of the U.S. battle against Communism. After JFK refused to approve overt U.S. backing of the Bay of Pigs invasion, various individuals in the clandestine CIA forces vowed their revenge.

In the spring of 1961, evidence had appeared indicating that Helms, Hunt, Sturgis and Barker tried to have JFK assassinated in Paris. When the attempt failed, a number of other plots and sub-plots developed through the next two years. After JFK's blockade strategy against Castro during the missile crisis in 1962 was implemented, some of the high-level CIA and armed forces people wanted even more to get him out of the White House. They had favored a direct invasion or bombing of Cuba.

And finally, when JFK found out about the CIA's plans for another invasion of Cuba in the spring and summer of 1963 and stopped them, they began in earnest to plan his death. THE

TAKING OF AMERICA, 1-2-3 by Richard E. Sprague

It was General CD Jackson (OSS CIA) and Edward Lansdale that created the Subverion and Overthrow framework for Latin America in 1953.

The Cuban Project, also known as Operation Mongoose, was an extensive campaign of terrorist attacks against civilians, and covert operations, carried out by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency in Cuba.

The Bay of Pigs Invasion was a failed military landing operation on the southwestern coast of Cuba in 1961 by Cuban Democratic Revolutionary Front, consisting of Cuban exiles who opposed Fidel Castro's Cuban Revolution, covertly financed and directed by the U.S. government. Wikipedia Dates: Apr 17, 1961 – Apr 20, 1961

Operation Mongoose was officially authorized on November 30, 1961 by U.S. President John F. Kennedy. The name Operation Mongoose had been agreed at a prior White House meeting on November 4, 1961.

The operation was run out of JM/WAVE, a major secret United States covert operations and intelligence gathering station established a year earlier in Miami, Florida. It was led by United States Air Force General Edward Lansdale on the military side and William King Harvey at the CIA and went into effect after the failed Bay of Pigs Invasion.

Operation Mongoose was a secret program against Cuba that aimed to remove the Cuban government from power, and to force the Cuban government to introduce intrusive civil measures and divert precious resources to protect its citizens from the attacks. The removal of the Castro government was a prime focus of the Kennedy administration.

December 1961

[Ed Donegan asserts some odd things are happening around Feb 20 Nov 18 Dec 13. These are my fertilization date, birth-date, and my mothers birthdate in that order. And Feb 20 and Nov 18 are in 1961 and I allege as part of MKULTRA Obama Jr is born November 18 1961 with JFK there in Los Angeles.

August 4 is the date the will claim for him, Queen Mother's own birthday. In 1962 August 4 Marilyn Monroe is killed by Norma Hodges, it seems to silence her about regime change plans.

August 4 1962 is the alleged one year birthday party for Obaam JR and this time RFK is in the area. I think Max Jacobson and LAPD silenced her because she was going to speak out.

A little more than a week later August 15, 1962 William King Harvey has Chauncey Holt, Peter Licovita, Sam Giancanca, Roselli, and others under contract printing fake Secret Service pins, ID cards, etc., that will be used in the assassinate of JFK. Both E. Howard Hunt and Holt assert William King Harvey planned the assassination of JFK these plans were a part of and the documents support that.

Ray Ryan mobster sends invite to Peter Licavoli and Chauncey Holt who are at the Grace Ranch likely were the CIA is modifying planes and other acts for a meeting with William King Harvey, Roselli, Sam Giacanca to discuss Operation Mongoose. The meeting is for December 14th 1961 at Ray Ryans El Mirrado hotel with bungalows. They will fly into the Berumuda Dunes small airport from Grace Ranch.

4 October 1962

MEMORANDUM FOR RECORD

SUBJECT: Minutes of Meeting of the Special Group (Augmented) on Operation MONGOOSE, 4 October 1962

PRESENT: The Attorney General; Mr. Johnson; Mr. Gilpatric, General Taylor, General Lansdale; Mr. McCone and General

Carter . . .[1]

1. The Attorney General opened the meeting by saying that higher authority is concerned about progress on the MONGOOSE program and feels that more priority should be given to trying to mount sabotage operations.[2] The Attorney General said that he wondered if a new look is not required at this time in view of the meager results, especially in the sabotage field. He urged that "massive activity" be mounted within the entire MONGOOSE framework. There was a good deal of discussion about this, and General Lansdale said that another attempt will be made against the major target which has been the object of three unsuccessful missions, and that approximately six new ones are in the planning stage.

Mr. Johnson said that "massive activity" would have to appear to come from within. He also said that he hopes soon to be able to present to the Group a plan for giving Cuban exiles more of a free hand, with the full realization that this would give more visibility to their activities. . . .

2. McCone then said that he gets the impression that high levels of the government want to get on with activity but still wish to retain a low noise level. He does not believe that this will be possible. Any sabotage would be blamed on the United States. . . . He urged that responsible officials be prepared to accept a higher noise level if they want to get on with operations. . . .

3. Returning to Mr. Johnson's point about the necessity of massive activity coming from within, Mr. McCone pointed out that internal security missions are now so rigid that internal uprisings are sure to be brutally suppressed. It was agreed that the current guidelines do not call for inciting such an uprising.

4. McCone and General Carter explained the tremendous efforts which are necessary to insure that an operation such as the sabotage one previously authorized cannot be pinned directly on the U.S. After considerable discussion, the Group agreed that it is not necessary to go to such extreme lengths to guarantee non-attributability and that short cuts will be acceptable.

5. Gilpatric reported that Defense is now working hard on establishing a Cuban brigade. Recruits will be trained for four or five months and will then be on call for any future action.

6. General Taylor reported that the Joint Staff is refining various military contingency plans, based on a variety of possible situations. Such situations include: Soviet action against Berlin; presence of Bloc offensive weapons in Cuba; attack against Guantanamo; a popular uprising; armed Cuban subversion in the Hemisphere; and the establishment of a direct threat to the U.S.

7. The Group then turned to the subject of reconnaissance of Cuba. . . . It was pointed out that the Agency [CIA] is now restricted to using its high performance vehicle in the southeast quadrant of Cuba, because of the SAM sites.[3] It was questioned whether this is a reasonable restriction at this time, particularly when the SAMs are almost certainly not operational. . . .

8. There was some discussion of the desirability of mining Cuban waters. It was pointed out that non-U.S.-attributable mines, which appear to be homemade, are available and could be laid by small craft operated by Cubans.

9. It was agreed that the Attorney General should act as Chairman of the Special Group (Augmented) at least for the time being.

10. It was agreed that four major points emerged from today's discussion:

1. We ought to go all out for increased intelligence.

2. There should be considerably more sabotage.

3. Restrictions on attributability can be relaxed so that training and other preparations can be subject to some short cuts.

4. All efforts should be made to develop new and imaginative approaches to the possibility of getting rid of the Castro regime.

Footnotes

1. 1. The president's brother Robert F. Kennedy was the Attorney General. U. Alexis Johnson was Deputy Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs; Roswell L. Gilpatric was Deputy Secretary of Defense; General Maxwell D. Taylor was the President's Military Representative; Brigadier General Edward G. Lansdale was Chief of Operations for Operation MONGOOSE; John A. McCone was Director of the CIA; and Lt. General Marshall S. Carter was Deputy Director of the CIA.

VCuban Missile Crisis Dates: Oct 16, 1962 – Oct 29, 1962

The Cuban Missile Crisis, also known as the October Crisis (of 1962) (Spanish: Crisis de Octubre) in Cuba, or the Missile Scare, was a 13-day confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union, when American deployments of nuclear missiles in Italy and Turkey were matched by Soviet deployments of nuclear missiles in Cuba. The crisis lasted from October 16 to October 28, 1962. The confrontation is widely considered the closest the Cold War came to escalating into full-scale nuclear war.

In 1961, the US government put Jupiter nuclear missiles in Italy and Turkey. It had also trained a paramilitary force of Cuban exiles, which the CIA led in an attempt to invade Cuba and overthrow its government. Starting in November of that year, the US government engaged in a violent campaign of terrorism and sabotage in Cuba, referred to as the Cuban Project, which continued throughout the first half of the 1960s. The Soviet administration was concerned about a Cuban drift towards China, with which the Soviets had an increasingly fractious relationship. In response to these factors, Soviet First Secretary, Nikita Khrushchev, agreed with the Cuban Prime Minister, Fidel Castro, to place nuclear missiles on the island of Cuba to deter a future invasion. An agreement was reached during a secret meeting between Khrushchev and Castro in July 1962, and construction of a number of missile launch facilities started later that summer.

During the campaigning for the 1962 United States elections, the White House denied the charges for months and ignored the presence of Soviet missiles positioned approximately 90 mi (140 km) away from Florida. Later, the missile preparations were confirmed when a US Air Force U-2 spy plane produced clear photographic evidence of medium-range R-12 (NATO code name SS-4) and intermediate-range R-14 (NATO code name SS-5) ballistic missile facilities.

When this was reported to President John F. Kennedy, he then convened a meeting of the nine members of the National Security Council and five other key advisers, in a group that became known as the Executive Committee of the National Security Council (EXCOMM). During this meeting, President Kennedy was originally advised to carry out an air strike on Cuban soil in order to compromise Soviet missile supplies, followed by an invasion of the Cuban mainland. After careful consideration, President Kennedy chose a less aggressive course of action, in order to avoid a declaration of war. After consultation with EXCOMM, Kennedy ordered a naval "quarantine" on October 22 to prevent further missiles from reaching Cuba.[5] By using the term "quarantine", rather than "blockade" (an act of war by legal definition), the United States was able to avoid the implications of a state of war.[6] The US announced it would not permit offensive weapons to be delivered to Cuba and demanded that the weapons already in Cuba be dismantled and returned to the Soviet Union.

After several days of tense negotiations, an agreement was reached between Kennedy and Khrushchev: publicly, the Soviets would dismantle their offensive weapons in Cuba and return them to the Soviet Union, subject to United Nations verification, in exchange for a US public declaration and agreement to not invade Cuba again. Secretly, the United States agreed with the Soviets that it would dismantle all of the Jupiter MRBMs which had been deployed to Turkey against the Soviet Union. There has been debate on whether or not Italy was included in the agreement as well. While the Soviets dismantled their missiles, some Soviet bombers remained in Cuba, and the United States kept the naval quarantine in place until November 20, 1962.

When all offensive missiles and the Ilyushin Il-28 light bombers had been withdrawn from Cuba, the blockade was formally ended on November 20. The negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union pointed out the necessity of a quick, clear, and direct communication line between the two superpowers. As a result, the Moscow–Washington hotline was established. A series of agreements later reduced US–Soviet tensions for several years, until both parties eventually resumed expanding their nuclear arsenals.

The compromise embarrassed Khrushchev and the Soviet Union because the withdrawal of US missiles from Italy and Turkey was a secret deal between Kennedy and Khrushchev, and the Soviets were seen as retreating from circumstances that they had started. Khrushchev's fall from power two years later was in part because of the Soviet Politburo's embarrassment at both Khrushchev's eventual concessions to the US and his ineptitude in precipitating the crisis in the first place. According to Dobrynin, the top Soviet leadership took the Cuban outcome as "a blow to its prestige bordering on humiliation".

Assasination of JFK

On November 22, 1963, John F. Kennedy, the 35th president of the United States, was assassinated while riding in a presidential motorcade through Dealey Plaza in Dallas, Texas. - Wikipedia

Per detailed copied records of Chauncy Holt printing papers for Mongoose the IDs and Cuba fliers, buying guns and delivering them to Harrelson and others, real questions are unavoidable as to whether the target for assassination after the Bay of Pigs or some alter piont of time f Mongoose veered towards assassinating JFK.

Historians note that with a memo item a paralyzing fletch was ordered by the CIA from Ft. Deitrech for Cuba, one was used on JFK with a fletch into the neck from the Umbrella Man.

The Areo Commander was made as a military and commercial plane, flew Eisenhower, and could land on small fields of grass.

The Distance Measuring Equipment (DME) is a radio navigation aid used by pilots to determine the aircraft's slant range from the DME ground station location. The DME avionics in aircraft send a pulse signal to the ground based DME, which responds with an answer pulse signal. The receiver in the aircraft measures the time delay between the sent and received pulses and calculates the slant range distance. There is no azimuth information, only distance.

DME is an older tech that was used for VFR flight before autopilots could follow way-points. Such a device on a plane especially in combination with elements on the ground could bypass control towers to operate in unfriendly territory. About this time Air Combat Controllers were being started as Special Forces (Gene Chip Tatum) in Vietnam provide Air Traffic Control as needed in combat areas. The VFR pilot is required to "see and avoid" obstacles and other aircraft. Pilots flying under VFR assume responsibility for their separation from all other aircraft and are generally not assigned routes or altitudes by air traffic control (ATC).

Q. What operations were you involved in around 1961/62 on behalf of the CIA and organized crime?

A. In 1961/62 1 was busily engaged in locating properties for the CIA, which could be used as a documentation center, a weapons modification center and a fixed base operation for planes we either owned or contemplated acquiring. At the same time, I was in partnership with Licavoli in a number of ventures, including an aircraft company and a military equipment procurement venture. Pete and I were also partners in art galleries in Tucson, Arizona, Detroit and Grosse Point, Michigan and Laguna Beach, California.

Q. How would you define a "proprietary interest"? Would the mob equivalent be a "front" business?

A. That is an accurate representation.

Q. In December of 1961, did you attend a meeting at Bermuda Dunes airport, near Palm Springs?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was at this meeting?

A. Sam Giancana, Johnny Roselli, William King Harvey, Peter Licavoli, Ray Ryan, Frank Hayden and myself.

Q. What were the objectives of those in attendance?

A. To lay out the method of operation for Harvey's resurrected ZR/Rifle program, which was renamed Operation Mongoose, the ultimate purpose of which was the assassination of Fidel Castro.

Q. What was your role at this meeting?

A. I served as secretary and took notes of the meeting.

Q. Did you feel that the mob and the CIA trusted each other?

A. Certainly not. Neither of these organizations trusted anyone.

Q. Would it be fair to say that 1963 was for you a time of stepped up activities?

A. Yes. 1963 was a very busy year.

Q. In April of 1963 were you told by Philip Twombly that a special project was planned for the fall of 1963 ?

A. I was told by Twombly that an incident would be created in the fall to inject some life into the anti-Castro campaign.

Q. Was there any indication that this involved assassination or violence of any kind?

A. None whatsoever.

Q Would you have been willing to get involved if assassination was contemplated?

A. Not unless it was the assassination of Castro.

Q. Did anything else of significance happen in April of 1963 that was of concern to you and your colleagues?

A. Yes.

The photocopies of documents in his book is very extensive and convincing and verifiable, and his story checks out in all ways.

He was a mercenary CIA fighter Soldier of Fortune and Special Activities Pilot of Fortune and Misfortune. Pilots like him and Barry Seal flying C-47's into Latin American loaded with CIA cash, weapons, or operatives.

Holt was developed inside the mob and then deployed as a contractor the the CIA Domestic Contacting Service or something like that as likely there are complex and changing ways the CIA accomplishes use of assets.

He has loyalty to his assigments and coworkers, a CIA litmus test and standard, and did not intend to kill JFK as was willing to offer information in an unfettered way but was involved in the activity that assassinated Kennedy as an operative lacking high level knowledge of the mission. His handlers requested he duck testifying in some maters and he did at times because of the requests and at other times as his own preference.

One truth he clearly leaves out is that Lansdale is there with him and likely the source of protection the Tramps are receiving.

Col Prouty and Lansdale and Charles Cabell (and likely James Paul Donegan) were likely flying missions together in 1952 and after under Richard Bissle Jr., so Holt leaving Lansdale out of the identifications was likely loyalty to Lansdale for the employment opportunity.

The two guiding figure fore Chauncey Holt are mob figure and strike breaker asset to Ford Motors Peter Licavoli met through Bud Holt and attorney Frank Belcher who was the intermediary to mob assets and made the necessary payouts to the mob for strikebreaking, etc.,

Holt states "On the other side of the fence, [mobster] Licavoli also continued to be deeply involved through the years with attorney Frank Belcher with whom he maintained a joint banking account at the Bank of America in Burbank ."

Sometimes controversially various government forces use contractors like Blackwater, etc., and it is somewhat akin to Sherrifs, Marshalls, Deputies who are largely Enforcers using push to get some state of affairs in place in public places. This drifts at times as COINTELRPO of mob resources, the mob willing to break the law and thus pre-empt a threat like a strike against a company or future strike agaisnt the US Government.

From Wikipedia

Peter Licavoli's criminal career was not limited to the financial sphere. Licavoli also pleaded guilty to conspiracy to bribe a federal customs officer. Judge Edward J Moinet sentenced him to two years in prison and a $1,000 fine. This was the first crime Licavoli had been convicted of. Licavoli's guilty plea came after an undercover government agent and one of the former customs officers that Licavoli was accused of bribing provided damaging evidence: Licavoli had paid Shell Miller, a former customs border patrolman, $200 and three bottles of whiskey in 1928 to allow his liquor boats to arrive protected from Canada.

Licavolis and Holts

Peter Joseph Licavoli (June 7, 1902 – January 11, 1984) Brother Dominic.Dominic married Rosalie Zerilli, the eldest daughter of the Detroit Partnership (a mob group) boss Joseph Zerilli who was an American organized crime figure in St. Louis, Missouri before moving to Detroit, Michigan. Hecontrolled criminal operations in Detroit and Toledo, Ohio, throughout the Prohibition era.

In the 1930s, Peter Licavoli was convicted of bribing a federal official and spent two years at Leavenworth Penitentiary. He was arrested, tried, or suspected of murder seven times, and released seven times.

Pete Licaovoli may have also been involved in the automotive industry and Chauncey Holt says this is how his connection to Peter Licavoli formed. Bud Holt (cousin to Chauncy Holt) was a Ford employee working with Harry Bennet to supress union problems via roughians and the mob, the mob muscle coming from mobster Petrer Licavooli.

Harry Herbert Bennett (January 17, 1892 – January 4, 1979), was a boxer, naval sailor, and businessman. From the 1920s through 1945, he worked for Ford Motor Company and was best known as the head of Ford's "service department", the company's internal [Pinkteron-like] security agency. While working for Henry Ford, Bennett's union-busting tactics made him an enemy of the United Auto Workers (UAW) trade union. He gained infamy for his involvement in activities such as in the Battle of the Overpass, a 1937 incident where UAW members protesting for higher wages were assaulted by Ford security guards.

Harry Bennett was born in 1892 in Ann Arbor, Michigan. He went to common schools. As a youth, Bennett started competing in boxing and won some city bouts. He served in the U.S. Navy during World War I.

In the early days of Ford Motor Company, a security department operated under the name of the Ford Service Department. It was to try to control the growing labor unrest and suppress the emerging labor unions. Ford had instituted a policy called "speed up", by which the speed of the assembly lines was increased slightly every week, and employees were feeling the strain. The labor issues sometimes led to violent clashes between Ford's management, the police, and some workers. Henry Ford needed someone able to handle rough situations as head of his Service Department.

Bud Holt a Ford employee and cousin of Chauncey in a Senate hearing spoke about events that took place within the Ford Service Department in 1935. He claimed Pete helped recruit employees to “take care of certain trouble”. [union busting and strike breaking] According to Bud Holt, Peter Licavoli later demanded higher wages for his recruits, which would in turn lead to his financial benefit. Bud Holt said Licavoli also forced Ford’s Personnel Director, Harry Bennett’s, car off the road after Bennett fired Licavoli’s recruits. However, Holt denied this claim during the hearing. Additionally, Peter Licavoli was questioned during the Investigation of Organized Crime in Interstate Commerce by the Kefauver committee in 1951.

Licavoli denied ever meeting or having a disagreement with Harry Bennett - Wikipedia

From Chauncey Holt's Book

Chauncey Holt in Self-Portrait: It was through Zwick's recommendation that I later gained an introduction to Peter Licavoli, one of the most important organized crime figures in America, who was a central figure in three of the most sensational murders in the first half of this century.

1) the killing of Jackie Kennedy, the so-called "beer baron of Toledo"

2) the murder of Jerry Buckley, a "crusading" radio announcer in Detroit, and

3) the infamous St. Valentine's Day Massacre in Chicago.

Years later, in Pete's declining years, we discussed these sensational crimes at great length.

Of course, I was well aware of who Licavoli was, since one of my cousins, Bud Holt, had worked for Harry Bennett, a most unusual gangster, who was chief of security for Ford in Detroit [as car making boomed].

Bennett worked hand in glove with Licavoli and other Detroit gangsters, using them as strike breakers. On the other side of the fence, Licavoli also continued to be deeply involved through the years with attorney Frank Belcher with whom he maintained a joint banking account at the Bank of America in Burbank, CA.

Many of Holt's CIA contract agent "projects" were funded and funneled through this special account.

In 1975 the CIA began to purge rogue contract agents, aka "cowboys" from its employ. Some were forced into retirement, while others like Chauncey Holt ended up in prison.

On January 2, 1976, Holt had written a letter to his old CIA ally William King Harvey apprising him of his recent indictment by a federal grand jury.

Harvey responded by saying he could only offer "token assistance." Harvey did offer to send Chauncey some CIA documents that were about to be declassified. These records proved that Holt worked for the Clandestine Operations of the Central Intel Intelligence Agency.

In 1977 Holt was convicted of mail fraud and sent Terminal Is- land, a federal prison. Prior to sentencing, he was offered a place in the Witness Protection Program and early release from prison by the Organized Crime Task Force for his testimony against Meyer Lansky and Licavoli. He refused to co- operate with them.

Representatives of the CIA promised Holt preferential treatment in prison and a "payoff" if he agreed to keep silent about his activities on behalf of the Agency. He kept his word, until the principals died.

Chauncey Holt died on June 28, 1997, eight days after completing this interview. He was 75.

Thomas "Yonnie" Licavoli (February 9, 1904 – September 17, 1973) was an American gangster and bootlegger during Prohibition. Born in St. Louis, Missouri, Licavoli, along with brother Peter Joseph Licavoli and cousin James Licavoli, worked with Jewish gangsters to take over illegal gambling in St. Louis. The Licavolis soon moved on to Detroit, Michigan and would control criminal operations in Detroit and Toledo, Ohio, throughout the Prohibition era.

The second of four children of Sicilian immigrants, Thomas Licavoli grew up in the Jewish slums of St. Louis. Licavoli's parents wanted him to become a Catholic priest, so he enrolled in Christian Brothers College High School in St. Louis to study for the priesthood. When he was 19, Licavoli was arrested for carrying a concealed weapon, and decided to join the US Navy rather than go to prison. However, soon after completing his basic training Licavoli deserted and became ensconced in gang society.

https://www.geocities.ws/pointplacehistory/kennedy.html [Because of its proximity to Detroit, Toledo was an evil and dangerous city during the late 1920s and early 1930s. The notorious Purple Gang led by Thomas "Yonnie" Licavoli was chased from Detroit and settled in Toledo. Prohibition gangsterism was at its height and Licavoli took over the rackets He established gambling spots, night clubs, and whorehouses while producing and importing all types of alcoholic products. (He had opened a bar on Edgewater called the Golden Rose.) Yonnie's men were especially vicious and there was very little resistance to the gunmen who were extortionists, strong arm robbers, bombers and basically terrorists.

The Murder of Jackie Kennedy (no Kennedy family connection)

One who did offer resistance was an Irish bootlegger and night club owner, Jackie Kennedy, from Toledo. He openly opposed Licavoli--even fought with and bested several of his men.

Leaving "Pumpkins" and his gun, Jack, in slippers, and Louise went up to Edgewater and walked along the road to 140th.

They were eventually followed by some youths, William Hood and Donald McLeary. Robert Schwaite and Harry Craig watched them from a car parked opposite Erd Fish Market. Then a maroon-colored Ford stopped in front of the fish house. Two men got out of the car and starting walking after Jack and Audrey while the third followed along in the car. Then upon reaching the couple, they threw the girl aside and shot Jack with 12 dum-dum bullets resulting in 22 wounds mainly around the head and face.] https://www.geocities.ws/pointplacehistory/kennedy.html

The murder of Jerry Buckley

Gerald E. Buckley (April 5, 1891 – July 23, 1930) was an American radio commentator in Detroit, Michigan. He successfully campaigned for the recall of Mayor Charles Bowles in the wake of corruption allegations. Prior to his death, Buckley had served as an investigator for Henry Ford, and as a special investigator for the United States government.

Buckley served as an investigator for Henry Ford, owner of Ford Motor Company, during the 1921 Newberry v. United States Supreme Court case, in which Ford legally challenged his defeat to Truman Newberry in the 1918 US Senate Election.[7] Following his involvement in this case, Buckley continued to work as a government investigator on various legal cases, and occasionally channeled his investigative skills to aid his brother, George, in his legal work.[3][5][7][8] Buckley's lifelong passion for song composition, combined with his investigative background, led him to a career in broadcasting, where he would become one of the first media celebrities of the burgeoning new medium of radio in the 1920s.

In 1928, Buckley began hosting a 6 p.m. nightly commentary program on Detroit radio station WMBC.[10][8] Since the imposition of Prohibition in Michigan in 1917, Detroit had become a mecca for criminal activity, with prostitution, gambling and illegal alcohol production and consumption running rampant in the hands of mobsters, resulting in frequent gangland killings.[11] Bootleggers operated extensively in Detroit, using nearby Windsor, Ontario as a conduit to funnel liquor illicitly into the US.[12] Broadcasting from WMBC-AM studios on the top floor of the luxurious LaSalle Hotel, Buckley used his platform to enact a campaign against the rampant and rising crime in Detroit.[11][13]

Buckley voiced the fears and outrage of his Detroit audience, whom he called the "Common Herd," openly criticizing and accusing city government officials of incompetence and attacking those whom he believed to be at fault for Detroit's rising crime rates.[3][5] Buckley also served as an advocate for his "Common Herd," lobbying for various social causes such as social welfare programs, old-age pensions and providing jobs for the unemployed.[5][14] This advocacy earned him his status as "the voice of the people" amidst the beginnings of the Depression Era, when unemployment figures skyrocketed in Detroit.[14][5]

The success of Buckley's radio career came at a price; although beloved by the masses, he was also subject to numerous threats for his uninhibited critique of illicit activities in Detroit.[3] When implored to hire a bodyguard to protect him, Buckley reportedly dismissed the suggestion, stating, "I get twenty threats a day. There is always someone who says I'll be killed."[3] Despite his joking, Buckley kept a room at the LaSalle Hotel for emergency scenarios, and allegedly refused to leave the hotel on multiple occasions out of fear for his safety.

On the night of the successful recall, Buckley was approached by three men and shot eleven times in the lobby of the LaSalle Hotel in Detroit, where WMBC's studios were located.

Following a funeral mass at St. Gregory’s Catholic Church, Buckley was buried at Detroit’s Mount Olivet Cemetery. The funeral had 150,000 attendees.

After his murder, Police Commissioner Wilcox alleged that Buckley was a known extortionist and racketeer who had likely been killed because of his underworld connections.[1] In his attempt to tarnish Buckley's reputation, Wilcox produced an affidavit stating that the slain radio commentator had been paid $4,000 in "protection money" by a bootlegger. The affidavit was soon dismissed as having been coerced.[10] Buckley's brother Paul, a former assistant prosecutor, claimed that the murder was orchestrated as revenge for the campaign against the mayor.

Saint Valentine's Day Massacre

The St Valentine's Day Massacare is what I Ed Donegan have alleged since I lived in Casa Linda Apartments and appealed to Comey online to become a Capone shutting down genoracketeering and put Paperlace music in my book.

The Saint Valentine's Day Massacre was the murder of seven members and associates of Chicago's North Side Gang that occurred on Saint Valentine's Day 1929. The men were gathered at a Lincoln Park, Chicago garage on the morning of February 14, 1929. They were lined up against a wall and shot by four unknown assailants, two dressed as police officers.

The murders resulted from the competition for control of organized crime in the city during Prohibition between the largely Irish North Siders, headed by George "Bugs" Moran, and their largely Italian Chicago Outfit rivals led by Al Capone.[1] The perpetrators have never been conclusively identified, but former members of the Egan's Rats gang working for Capone are suspected of involvement; others have said that members of the Chicago Police Department who allegedly wanted revenge for the killing of a police officer's son played a part. - Wikipedia

Genoracketeering

In miss-tellings of events I am on a mission to "turn out" teens into domination, into Nazi white Hitler youth, or easy prey to peeping as I bottom feed. Protectors of the scene will make sure I am not an influence on the scene and blacklisted from it. As the sort of "word" reaches me I in the Brooke Sheild sort of Pretty Baby retardation outside of the scene.

The part that works is that I am far right and near Nazi views on race. I have always said and known since the 1970s the scene was very far left and mostly except a few of my age were both unwanted at and unwilling to go to sociology based movement culture.

I had thought and it is partly true the frame job on me as a dangerous pimp or peeper was politically motivated, or motivated by those hoping to make their name in scene ethics or policing, and the scene was not that much of a worry, concern, or interest to me, repeatedly deciding in my life I wanted little to do with it and greeted veterans instead, etc..,

The obvious smear machine engine is way beyond politics though and I think tied to illegal programs of Targeting Gunderson and others have experienced.

I had also at times made decision to get back into BDSM organizations and social networks but have been harrassed and blacklisted like at Jim Volcelka, and again, even in private apartments not connected to the scene at all. While I am harassed in everything, in nothing so much as my book writing, and that I think is the real government concern with me, the rest just undercutting what would be supportive relationships I would have had to complain too about covert harassment.

The harassers of me gave themselves a pretext to harrass me (some of them real) and asked the community to mob against me. Much of it is smear but since Black lives Matters amnd similar movements have so much support, child porn plants or ostracism is accepted against the alt-right, but the FBI and CIA, and by the public.

This goes beyond ostracism though, and as I and Sosbee and Gunderson and Labella and Cooper assert this is about organized crime, racketeering, and thugs.

This is not to say I don't hold or express opinions on Goth, Cybergoth, or anything else. I have noted in 2005 or so many older goths such as myself were less enthused about globalism, and felt pressured by the world crushing in on them. I also believed that Cybergoth was active all around the Western Hemisphere including in Eastern Europe, and felt we should not split with the Americas nor Eastern Europe, Anne Coulter long distrusting Hispanics. I have come to believe since Hispanic immigrants are a crime threat and that is just alt right life and beliefs and in my case experiences.

Feelings though are not what I am discussing. Faking cases against me (obstruction of justice in the manufacture of injustice to me) is one crime and I assert a crime in furtherance of destroying a witnes to the Kennedy Assassination and contemporary figures, agencies, and people who have ties to CIA subversion plans laid in the 20th Century to awaken in the 21st Century with them in power as the elites, elites now covering their trail secretly.

As a matter of tactics the CIA and US DOD usually conduct dubious operations (like framing me) in such a way as to make the victim (me) look bad. Say some little old lady dents your Mercedes with a cat food and then lays down in front of it with her groceries spilled into the street shouting help I have been it by that car.

Those framing me as using children as visual porn are dancing around as illegal immigrants in bizarre acts singing "Nacho Nacho Man. I want to be a Nacho Man!" as I accuse them of being migrant criminals. The reverse psychology is I look I am trying to undermine their credibility because of their race, holding an unjust establishment entitlement that fails to erode their righteous acts of catching a child pervert. That someone would try to undermine their goodness with racism makes me look bad.

As always this reverses who I actually am. When I spoke to the Secret Service did I mean to kill Barrack Obama Jr? No. As I said then it would have been tactically a bad thing in public perception and comparative worth, and I also thought it would be wrong to undermine a historic achievement long awaited, and would not want such a crime ever from any camp I am in. IN fact I was torn between Macain and Obama anyway.

Ray Ryan and Palm Springs and I think Grace Ranch implied in movie Misfits

In the 1950s and '60s, Ryan was a land developer in Palm Springs, California. Real estate development in Palm Springs did not generate much interest until actor Clark Gable built a home there. Ryan joined with 24 other investors to purchase the run-down El Mirador Hotel in Palm Springs. After restoring it to its former elegance, he bought out his partners in 1960.

In the Marilyn Monroe movie hints are left towards pressurized cockpits, refrigerated moving propeller engine parts, bombs that can be loaded and unloaded for B-29s on patrol not bombing missions, and changes to the P-51 Mustang to a faster higher altitude motor.

Might have been a Howard Hughes lab similar to Santa Susanna Field Labs.

The movie featured both Clark Gable and Marilyn Monroe and I assert the CIA killed them both.

Towards the end of his career, Pete moved to Tucson, Arizona, becoming one of Arizona's wealthiest men. Licavoli purchased large amounts of land and commercial property in Tucson, including the Grace Ranch in honor of his wife Grace Bommarito. Grace Ranch served as the Licavoli family headquarters and became a safe haven for the mob for over 35 years. From Tucson, Licavoli set up the southwest gambling wire and supervised his Detroit rackets.

Even with his millions of dollars stored away, Pete couldn't resist the urge to sell a stolen painting to an undercover FBI agent. It was a small painting with a low value, but Licavoli was a man always looking to move stolen property. He was tried by a federal judge in Tucson and given an 18 month sentence, a small penalty considering the US government had been trying to put him behind bars without success for over 25 years.

After a long career with the Purple Gang and a mere five and a half years spent in prison over his criminal career, Licavoli's health began to deteriorate. He had cancer in remission and an inflamed liver. On January 11, 1984, at the age of 81, Pete Licavoli died of a heart ailment in his home in Tucson, Arizona. In his obituary, he is described by Senator Estes Kefauver as "one of the most cold blooded and contemptuous characters to appear before their committee." - Wikipedia Rich industrialists from the CIA funded and created Military Industrial Complex will deplete unaligned nations resources via teams of Robber Barrons, those Robber Barrons will enjoy CIA support in opposing Nationalists from the independent nations. Held in poverty these countries will not be a revolutionary threat against the right wing dictators placed in charge as puppets or indirect rulers on behalf of old money.

Central to this was finding or creating right wing support in Latin American or other nations and hacking them secretly or even funding groups hostile to the west secretly to attack socialist or communist nations hoping in the vacuum created right wingers can seize power.

First all some overview of history of the mob in the United States that Chauncey Holt and other sources tell.

In Prohibition in the 1920's booze moved easily across the Great Lakes, the area of Northeast USA and New York Detroit, and Chicago that adjoin the Great Lakes became profit centers for new mobs (La Kosher Nostra and the Yiddish gangs in Detroit and New York) and old mobs (La Cosa Nostra and Italians in Chicago.)

At this same time United Fruit Company was operating its Great White Fleet a fleet of sailing adventures through Latin America departing from Orleans Louisiana.

The Speakeasy's during prohibition were proto-Casinos in that once in party goers heard singers like the Ratpack, were treated to dancing and shows Radio City Music Hall Can Can type, gambling, and other late night adventure.

The Great White Cruise Liner fleet offered the same traveling to where United Fruit Company already had ports used for shipping Bananas by steam ships back to Orleans.

So during the roaring 1920' there was the Robber Barron backed cargo shipping from Latin American ports and cruise liner traffic.

The CIA that is to say old money robber Barrons used the Mob to help "enforce" the access to these countries.

Murder Inc., was part of that growing from the Detroit and New York Yids who killed for their own self-protection and for gangs in fights with rivals as contractors to those gangs, one of the La Cosa Nostra who keep Murder Inc., on a retainer.

This spread into Casinos of Nevada (Bugsey Segal and Havana from the East Coast and Texas Gulf of Mexico Third Coast where Jack Ruby had moved to.

The East and Third Coast had teamed with Batista's 1950's Cuba and its legal nightspots and gambling, both outlawed in the USA but reachable by private flights.

The CIA OSS PsyOps system had been act through proxy-groups and deny actions against foreign governments.

The CIA (under George H.W. Bush, Dulles, Angleton, and others) recruited like minded groups of oil, casino, tourism, political, or religious allies and offered them help in overthrowing Castro.

The public perception was the CIA was not really doing it.

At Sundown at the Bay of Pigs a flotilla (without air support) sailed against Castro. If they could sneak on shore they were LOCAL CUBANS DEMANDING Western Government as Cuban Revolutionary Brigade of Cubans and mostly Spanish speaking UNIT 2506

As the flotilla headed for the Bay of Capitalist Pigs (as Che called giving the term to history) theses capitalist minded invaders tried to swim on-shore and appear to be native Cubans. The flotilla had clinging to the rails of the ships mobsters with Tommy-guns, mobster hats, while the oil industry folks (Jim Braden for Morgan Oil) and others may have had different disguises and fake mustaches before taking to the water.

Marilyn Monroe and Operation Mongoose

Ed came back just before the Inauguration and was brought into the White House for a long presentation to Kennedy about Vietnam. Kennedy was taken by it and promised he would have Lansdale back in Vietnam "in a high office". Ed told us in OSO he had the Ambassadorship sewed up. He lived for that job.

He had not reckoned with some of JFK's inner staff, George Ball, etc. Finally the whole thing turned around and month by month Lansdale's star sank over the horizon. Erskine retired and his whole shop was scattered. The Navy men went back to the navy as did the Army folks. Gen Wheeler in the JCS asked to have me assigned to the Joint Staff. This wiped out the whole Erskine (Office of Special Operations) office. It was comical. There was Lansdale up there all by himself with no office and no one else.

He boiled and he blamed it on Kennedy for not giving him the "promised" Ambassadorship to let him "save" Vietnam.

4 October 1962

MEMORANDUM FOR RECORD

SUBJECT: Minutes of Meeting of the Special Group (Augmented) on Operation MONGOOSE, 4 October 1962

PRESENT: The Attorney General; Mr. Johnson; Mr. Gilpatric, General Taylor, General Lansdale; Mr. McCone and General Carter . . .

1. The Attorney General opened the meeting by saying that higher authority is concerned about progress on the MONGOOSE program and feels that more priority should be given to trying to mount sabotage operations. The Attorney General said that he wondered if a new look is not required at this time in view of the meager results, especially in the sabotage field. He urged that "massive activity" be mounted within the entire MONGOOSE framework. There was a good deal of discussion about this, and General Lansdale said that another attempt will be made against the major target which has been the object of three unsuccessful missions, and that approximately six new ones are in the planning stage.

Mr. Johnson said that "massive activity" would have to appear to come from within. He also said that he hopes soon to be able to present to the Group a plan for giving Cuban exiles more of a free hand, with the full realization that this would give more visibility to their activities. . . .

2. McCone then said that he gets the impression that high levels of the government want to get on with activity but still wish to retain a low noise level. He does not believe that this will be possible. Any sabotage would be blamed on the United States. . . . He urged that responsible officials be prepared to accept a higher noise level if they want to get on with operations. . . .

3. Returning to Mr. Johnson's point about the necessity of massive activity coming from within, Mr. McCone pointed out that internal security missions are now so rigid that internal uprisings are sure to be brutally suppressed. It was agreed that the current guidelines do not call for inciting such an uprising.

4. McCone and General Carter explained the tremendous efforts which are necessary to insure that an operation such as the sabotage one previously authorized cannot be pinned directly on the U.S. After considerable discussion, the Group agreed that it is not necessary to go to such extreme lengths to guarantee non-attributability and that short cuts will be acceptable.

5. Gilpatric reported that Defense is now working hard on establishing a Cuban brigade. Recruits will be trained for four or five months and will then be on call for any future action.

6. General Taylor reported that the Joint Staff is refining various military contingency plans, based on a variety of possible situations. Such situations include: Soviet action against Berlin; presence of Bloc offensive weapons in Cuba; attack against Guantanamo; a popular uprising; armed Cuban subversion in the Hemisphere; and the establishment of a direct threat to the U.S.

7. The Group then turned to the subject of reconnaissance of Cuba. . . . It was pointed out that the Agency [CIA] is now restricted to using its high performance vehicle in the southeast quadrant of Cuba, because of the SAM sites. It was questioned whether this is a reasonable restriction at this time, particularly when the SAMs are almost certainly not operational. . . .

8. There was some discussion of the desirability of mining Cuban waters. It was pointed out that non-U.S.-attributable mines, which appear to be homemade, are available and could be laid by small craft operated by Cubans.

9. It was agreed that the Attorney General should act as Chairman of the Special Group (Augmented) at least for the time being.

Monggoose Timeline

It was General CD Jackson (OSS CIA) and Edward Lansdale that created the Subverion and Overthrow framework for Latin America in 1953.

The Cuban Project, also known as Operation Mongoose, was an extensive campaign of terrorist attacks against civilians, and covert operations, carried out by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency in Cuba.

The Bay of Pigs Invasion was a failed military landing operation on the southwestern coast of Cuba in 1961 by Cuban Democratic Revolutionary Front, consisting of Cuban exiles who opposed Fidel Castro's Cuban Revolution, covertly financed and directed by the U.S. government. Wikipedia Dates: Apr 17, 1961 – Apr 20, 1961

Operation Mongoose was officially authorized on November 30, 1961 by U.S. President John F. Kennedy. The name Operation Mongoose had been agreed at a prior White House meeting on November 4, 1961.

The operation was run out of JM/WAVE, a major secret United States covert operations and intelligence gathering station established a year earlier in Miami, Florida. It was led by United States Air Force General Edward Lansdale on the military side and William King Harvey at the CIA and went into effect after the failed Bay of Pigs Invasion.

Operation Mongoose was a secret program against Cuba that aimed to remove the Cuban government from power, and to force the Cuban government to introduce intrusive civil measures and divert precious resources to protect its citizens from the attacks. The removal of the Castro government was a prime focus of the Kennedy administration.

December 1961

[Ed Donegan asserts some odd things are happening around Feb 20 Nov 18 Dec 13. These are my fertilization date, birth-date, and my mothers birthdate in that order. And Feb 20 and Nov 18 are in 1961 and I allege as part of MKULTRA Obama Jr is born November 18 1961 with JFK there in Los Angeles.

August 4 is the date the will claim for him, Queen Mother's own birthday. In 1962 August 4 Marilyn Monroe is killed by Norma Hodges, it seems to silence her about regime change plans.

August 4 1962 is the alleged one year birthday party for Obaam JR and this time RFK is in the area. I think Max Jacobson and LAPD silenced her because she was going to speak out.

A little more than a week later August 15, 1962 William King Harvey has Chauncey Holt, Peter Licovita, Sam Giancanca, Roselli, and others under contract printing fake Secret Service pins, ID cards, etc., that will be used in the assassinate of JFK. Both E. Howard Hunt and Holt assert William King Harvey planned the assassination of JFK these plans were a part of and the documents support that.

Ray Ryan mobster sends invite to Peter Licavoli and Chauncey Holt who are at the Grace Ranch likely were the CIA is modifying planes and other acts for a meeting with William King Harvey, Roselli, Sam Giacanca to discuss Operation Mongoose. The meeting is for December 14th 1961 at Ray Ryans El Mirrado hotel with bungalows. They will fly into the Berumuda Dunes small airport from Grace Ranch.

MEMORANDUM FOR RECORD

SUBJECT: Minutes of Meeting of the Special Group (Augmented) on Operation MONGOOSE, 4 October 1962

PRESENT: The Attorney General; Mr. Johnson; Mr. Gilpatric, General Taylor, General Lansdale; Mr. McCone and General Carter . . .[1]

1. The Attorney General opened the meeting by saying that higher authority is concerned about progress on the MONGOOSE program and feels that more priority should be given to trying to mount sabotage operations.[2] The Attorney General said that he wondered if a new look is not required at this time in view of the meager results, especially in the sabotage field. He urged that “massive activity” be mounted within the entire MONGOOSE framework. There was a good deal of discussion about this, and General Lansdale said that another attempt will be made against the major target which has been the object of three unsuccessful missions, and that approximately six new ones are in the planning stage.

Mr. Johnson said that “massive activity” would have to appear to come from within. He also said that he hopes soon to be able to present to the Group a plan for giving Cuban exiles more of a free hand, with the full realization that this would give more visibility to their activities. . . .

2. McCone then said that he gets the impression that high levels of the government want to get on with activity but still wish to retain a low noise level. He does not believe that this will be possible. Any sabotage would be blamed on the United States. . . . He urged that responsible officials be prepared to accept a higher noise level if they want to get on with operations. . . .

3. Returning to Mr. Johnson's point about the necessity of massive activity coming from within, Mr. McCone pointed out that internal security missions are now so rigid that internal uprisings are sure to be brutally suppressed. It was agreed that the current guidelines do not call for inciting such an uprising.

4. McCone and General Carter explained the tremendous efforts which are necessary to insure that an operation such as the sabotage one previously authorized cannot be pinned directly on the U.S. After considerable discussion, the Group agreed that it is not necessary to go to such extreme lengths to guarantee non-attributability and that short cuts will be acceptable.

5. Gilpatric reported that Defense is now working hard on establishing a Cuban brigade. Recruits will be trained for four or five months and will then be on call for any future action.

6. General Taylor reported that the Joint Staff is refining various military contingency plans, based on a variety of possible situations. Such situations include: Soviet action against Berlin; presence of Bloc offensive weapons in Cuba; attack against Guantanamo; a popular uprising; armed Cuban subversion in the Hemisphere; and the establishment of a direct threat to the U.S.

7. The Group then turned to the subject of reconnaissance of Cuba. . . . It was pointed out that the Agency [CIA] is now restricted to using its high performance vehicle in the southeast quadrant of Cuba, because of the SAM sites.[3] It was questioned whether this is a reasonable restriction at this time, particularly when the SAMs are almost certainly not operational. . . .

8. There was some discussion of the desirability of mining Cuban waters. It was pointed out that non-U.S.-attributable mines, which appear to be homemade, are available and could be laid by small craft operated by Cubans.

9. It was agreed that the Attorney General should act as Chairman of the Special Group (Augmented) at least for the time being.

10. It was agreed that four major points emerged from today's discussion:

1. We ought to go all out for increased intelligence.

2. There should be considerably more sabotage.

3. Restrictions on attributability can be relaxed so that training and other preparations can be subject to some short cuts.

4. All efforts should be made to develop new and imaginative approaches to the possibility of getting rid of the Castro regime.

Footnotes

1. 1. The president's brother Robert F. Kennedy was the Attorney General. U. Alexis Johnson was Deputy Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs; Roswell L. Gilpatric was Deputy Secretary of Defense; General Maxwell D. Taylor was the President's Military Representative; Brigadier General Edward G. Lansdale was Chief of Operations for Operation MONGOOSE; John A. McCone was Director of the CIA; and Lt. General Marshall S. Carter was Deputy Director of the CIA.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Mike Rothmiller

New York Times Bestselling Author

Mike Rothmiller has enjoyed a distinguished career in law enforcement working across US Federal and State agencies and with American and international intelligence services. He served for ten years with the Los Angeles Police Department [LAPD] including five years as a deep undercover detective with the Organized Crime Intelligence Division [OCID]. He was a member of the US Department of Justice Organized Crime Strike Force and provided secret Grand Jury testimony regarding the assassination of Senator Robert Kennedy.

He conceived and directed global intelligence operations targeting multi-national crime groups, terrorism, and political corruption, from Chile to Washington and London to Israel. In his long career Mike Rothmiller has encountered all manner of mendacity and atrocity but he remains most shaken by his investigation into the death of Marilyn Monroe.

He regards Bombshell as the rich and important culmination of lifetime of inquiries which will achieve legal redress, posthumously in some cases, and correct the fabricated history about the death of Marilyn Monroe and those who used her.

Alongside his dedication to public service, Mike Rothmiller established a media career producing television documentaries and working as a correspondent and presenter for America's PBS, ESPN and other international television markets. He is a regular commentator on law enforcement and worldwide intelligence matters across America and throughout the world. He is a New York Times bestselling author of 23 non-fiction books. DEDICATION For my wife, Nancy, and the memory of Marilyn. Douglas Thompson Sunday Times Bestselling Author Douglas Thompson is the author of many non-fiction books covering an eclectic mix of subjects from major Hollywood biographies to revelatory bestsellers about remarkable people and events. Four of his books are at present being developed for global television, another for film in Hollywood by MGM. With Christine Keeler, he wrote her revealing memoir The Truth At Last. That instant bestseller was revised as Secrets and Lies: The Trials of Christine Keeler and the audio

These revelations correct a great number of previously believed theories about Marilyn's death.

There is another person who sent ripples back and forward through the Marilyn story both before and after her death and that was Robert Slatzer. In 1952, he was working for an Ohio newspaper and used his press pass to get onto the set of Niagara where he met Marilyn and had some close-up photographs taken with her [the 'selfies' of the day].

He was a smart operator and got his pictures quickly developed then returned the next day to ask Marilyn to sign them.

They are the only images of the two of them together. He used the pictures when Marilyn was first dating Joe DiMaggio to imply he was the baseball hero's rival for her love and, in May 1957, was paid by Hollywood's Confidential magazine for saying he had had an affair with Marilyn. After Marilyn's death, Slatzer tried to sell a short article he had written about how Marilyn's death was a conspiracy to journalist Will Fowler who rejected the article but told Slatzer: 'Too bad you weren't married to Monroe. That would really make a great book.'Zip-a-dee-doo-dah, zip-a-dee-ay — as quick as you could sing that, Slatzer recalled that he and Marilyn had married in October 1952, in Tijuana, Mexico.

The snag was that the marriage had been annulled, on the orders of Daryl Zanuck [who we will recall had no interest in Marilyn until she was huge box offce]. Slatzer wrote a book [The Life And Curious Death Of Marilyn Monroe, W.H. Allen, 1971 in which he detailed their romance and conversations.

He also promoted the theory that John and Bobby Kennedy were involved in her death. It was all but impossible to verify anything Slatzer, who died in 2005, claimed happened so his writing was and is more distraction from the truth.

Slatzer's versions of events helped perpetuate the misdirection and deliberate confusion set-up by Captain James Hamilton in the first instance.

Others turned up, like Jeanne Carmen Jeanne (Laverne Carmen was an American model, actress and trick-shot golfer. Born: August 4, 1930, Paragould, AR Died: December 20, 2007, Wikipedia) Irvine, CA [aka Saba Dareaux] who surfaced in 1985 to say she had been Marilyn's roommate and best friend. She said she had had a 'dangerously close' relationship with Marilyn and the Kennedys and that after Marilyn's death she had been warned off by Johnny Rosselli. Fearing for her life, she fled to Arizona where she led a quiet family life. She died in 2007.

The OCID copy of her much-sought missing diary emphasises Marilyn Monroe's (Born: June 1, 1926, Los Angeles, CA Died: August 4, 1962), Brentwood, Los Angeles, CAfeelings and frustrations about the Kennedy's. Marilyn sought solace, telephoning José Bolafios, the Mexican writer who had been invited as her escort to the 1962 Golden Globe Awards at the Beverly Hilton Hotel.

[Marilyn won the Henrietta Award for World Film Favourite] the The wiretaps heard it all. She was going to go public with her Kennedy affairs.]

A concerned José Bolafios arned her against it, especially revealing 'national security' details she knew from JFK's remarks about Cuba and Castro. Marilyn talked to lots of people on the hone that day and into the evening including Peter Lawford, although the official telephone company records of these calls swiftly vanished. In her diary on August 3, 1962, [the day before her death] she noted: 'Peter said Robert will come tomorrow. I don't know if he will.'

It didn't seem a concern for Marilyn: even in her chemically disorientated mind, she appeared to those listening in to have determined to take more control of her professional and personal life and to do her 'dirty washing in public', no matter what happened, and no matter who did or did not turn up.

Marilyn Monroe, not long after she was voted the world's favourite star, was treated as a commodity, an unwanted commodity. As it was, her dead body was shifted around like a mannequin in a movie, positioned this way and that.

There is one 'death' photograph of Marilyn holding a telephone. In another photograph, she is still naked but in a different position and there's no telephone.

Much had gone on after the event and all of it to cover-up what did happen, that trick of shaping events to however you want them to appear. These photographs didn't reveal the truth, something vividly confirmed by Peter Lawford when he later confessed the facts to Mike Rothmiller.

As his friends examined the Beatle-burned artwork, he heard a television playing steps away in what seemed like a cloakroom. He looked inside the tiny den and saw a boozy Peter Lawford. He was half-asleep, his matted hair spiking up at the sides, and sitting on a small sofa while staring at a tiny, flickering television.

And sitting right infront of him.

Only in the days before, Rothmiller had once more been reviewing significant portions of OCID's dossiers on Lawford, Marilyn Monroe, JFK, and Robert Kennedy. Rothmiller had so many things to ask Peter Lawford... but how?

He had serious questions regarding the activities surrounding Monroe's death, questions which tugged at his sense of justice. Questions, he believed, Lawford could answer to complete his intelligence investigation. His investigation had involved speaking with witnesses and informants, police offcers who responded to Marilyn Monroe's home the night she died and those working intelligence at the time.

Whirling around his mind was the evidence, both hard and circumstantial, that had convinced him that her death was a homicide. And that Robert Kennedy, Peter Lawford and at least two members of LAPD intelligence were present and intimately involved in her death and the ensuing cover-up, for cover-up there most certainly was; he had read the evidence.

J. Edgar Hoover knew the high currency of obtaining the most intimate and damaging details of an aspiring President. As did LAPD Chief William Parker and his protégé Daryl Gates, his one- time chauffeur, and bodyguard, whom he would later appoint captain and leader of OCID. Although geography often concentrated their focus on the kings and queens of Hollywood, their eyes and ears were always open to potential scandals in Washington D.C.

The relationship between President Kennedy, Attorney General Robert Kennedy and Marilyn Monroe met all the criteria for LAPD spying. It was espionage to combat enemies but also ultimately to help friends

Now, by that happenstance which bedevils conspirators, an encounter only five miles from where Marilyn Monroe died, presented Rothmiller with the possibility to interview the last known living person to see Marilyn and, as he knew from the OCID files, Robert Kennedy, that fatal evening. The thought of offcially interviewing Peter Lawford taunted Mike Rothmiller. What were the chances? Was this chance cruelly teasing him?

Lawford seemed bedazzled, out of it, but seizing the opportunity the detective slipped his business card into Lawford's shirt pocket truly never expecting a result but hoping, hoping very much, that the man who had kept so many secrets would remember he had the card, find it and call him. And somehow supply the missing piece of the puzzle of Marilyn Monroe's death, a puzzle he was aware now genuinely obsessed him as it had so many others for such a long time. Rothmiller already knew unequivocally that Robert Kennedy had been in Los Angeles on the day Marilyn Monroe died, a fact that had been denied and obstructively hidden for many years by the LAPD. Yes, he knew there had been a cover-up led by the LAPD. But of exactly what and how? He wanted

Project Camelot was the code name of a counterinsurgency study begun by the United States Army in 1964. The full name of the project was Methods for Predicting and Influencing Social Change and Internal War Potential.[1] The project was executed by the Special Operations Research Office (SORO) at American University, which assembled an eclectic team of psychologists, sociologists, anthropologists, economists, and other intellectuals to analyze the society and culture of numerous target countries, especially in Latin America.

The goal of the project was to enhance the Army's ability to predict and influence social developments in foreign countries. The motive was described by an internal memo on December 5, 1964: "If the U.S. Army is to perform effectively its part in the U.S. mission of counterinsurgency it must recognize that insurgency represents a breakdown of social order and that the social processes involved must be understood."

Controversy arose around Project Camelot when professors in South America discovered its military funding and criticized its motives as imperialistic. The US Department of Defense ostensibly canceled Project Camelot on July 8, 1965 but continued the same research more discreetly.

Military-funded social science. Government-funded social science projects, especially in the field of psychology, increased dramatically during and after World War II. By 1942 the federal government was the leading employer of psychologists, most of whom it coordinated through the Office of Scientific Research and Development.[2] The military employed psychologists to study tactics in psychological warfare and propaganda as well as studying the United States troops themselves.[3] The Office of Strategic Services also cultivated a Psychology Division, directed by Robert Tryon, to study the group behavior of humans for warfare purposes.[4] A memo from William J. Donovan in November 1941 called for collection of information about the personality and social relations of "potential enemies" and for the creation of an intelligence organization "to analyze and interpret such information by applying to it not only the experience of Army and Naval Officers, but also of specialized trained research officials in the relative scientific fields, including technological, economic, financial, and psychological scholars."[5] Research in psychological warfare was widespread, and according to University of Michigan psychologist Dorwin Cartwright, "the last few months of the war saw a social psychologist become chiefly responsible for determining the week-by-week-propaganda policy for the United States government."

In Britain, an interdisciplinary study called Mass-Observation was used by the Ministry of Information to evaluate the effectiveness of war propaganda and other influences on public behavior.[7] Germany maintained a special cadre of military psychologists which assisted the Ministry of Propaganda, the Gestapo, and the Nazi party.

Military social science projects increased after the war, though under a reorganized structure under the Office of Naval Research and often contracted to private institutions.[9] Project TROY at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology—a study of "getting the truth behind the Iron Curtain"— exemplified the new model.[10] Project TROY lead to the creation of MIT's Center for International Studies (CENIS), which received funding from the Ford Foundation and the CIA to continue its mostly-classified research on "political warfare."[11] The armed forces and Central Intelligence Agency pursued these projects independently of civilian oversight, despite presidential directives such as Eisenhower's NSC-59 which called for coordination of research under the Department of State.[12]

Dear Marvin:

The IRS is still after Pete and I am badly in need of information which I believe you may have in your files. They are looking into Southwest Aircraft Corporation and Military Armaments and Advisors Co. You were intimately involved in these companies and probably know the details better than anyone else.

These are:

1. Documents relating the Rillito Downs matter, including bank records, cancelled checks, deposits etc.:
2. Documents relating to Southwest Aircraft Corp., including bank records, cancelled checks, deposits etc. Note: they are also asking for end-use certificates);
3. Documents relating to Military Armaments and Advisors Co., including bank records, cancelled checks, deposits etc. Note: they are ~~also~~ Also asking for end-use certificates);

Gather up everything that you can find and fly into Tucson. The usual security precautions will be arranged.

Very truly yours,

P.S. They are really interested in the salvaged B-52 project and are hinting that it was illegal. I know you have the costs on that project so be sure you get those to me. Also, any legal documents regarding the bid and purchase.

Peter Licavoli was born on 7th June, 1902. His parents were from Sicily. The family settled in St. Louis. He eventually became involved in organized crime and became a significant figure in supplying illegal alcohol. In 1932 he was sentenced to two years in prison for bribing a federal agent.

Licavoli was rumored to have taken part in the St. Valentine's Day Massacre. An effective contract killer, in 1935 Licavoli is believed to have killed Jerry Buckly, a journalist investigating organized crime. Other victims included Milton Jones from St. Louis and Jackie Kennedy, a leading crime figure in Toledo. Licavoli moved to Detroit and supplied men to Henry Ford to help him break strikes during the 1930s.

After the Second World War Licavoli was one of the five ruling Dons of Detroit. Between them they controlled several casinos, racetracks and hotels.

He also owned Grace Ranch where he bred racehorses. [Edward Paul Donegan asserts this was both the CIA location planes were modified and tested by the CIA and practiced chasing horses and shooting them and also was the concept the movie Misfits was based on using Clark Gable who made the area famous trailblazing it with a home he started on it.]

Chauncey Holt claimed that Licavoli was involved in organizing the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Holt suggest that the gunman, including Charlie Nicoletti met at Licavoli's Grace Ranch on the way to Dallas.

In 1976 Licavoli was convicted of buying a stolen 16th century painting. He eventually served a 13 month sentence for the crime.

… https://www.commemorativeairforce.org/aircraft/184

The factory drawing for Aero Commander serial number 55-4638 is titled “Ike’s Bird”. Built in 1955, the plane and several others were ordered by the government for a special purpose… to carry the President, Vice President and other government officials on short trips. The plane has the distinction of being the smallest aircraft ever to carry the “Air Force One” call sign.

The story goes that President Eisenhower took office and refused to use the “Independence”, Harry Truman’s airplane, as his Air Force One. Instead he ordered a Lockheed Constellation as his primary aircraft. But for short trips into and out of his farm grass strip near Gettysburg, PA, the President needed something to operate from the short and unimproved landing area. Helicopters were not yet reliable enough. Driving took too long and snarled traffic. He told his chief pilot, Col. William Draper, to conduct an evaluation. His mission was to find a plane to go back and forth to the farm, and to make other short trips. The Colonel chose one of the most popular executive transports of the day, the Aero Commander 560A, and the Air Force ordered several for the President’s use. The Air Force designated the planes the L-26. Himself a pilot, Ike often took the controls of the Aero Commander, enjoying the opportunity to fly.

A fleet of six Commander L-26's were assigned to the White House and used exclusively by President Eisenhower, Vice President Nixon, Cabinet and government officials, Secret Service, family and White House staff. This aircraft, 55-4638, was one of those original six. Two more were added a year later with turbocharged engines and assigned exclusively for Presidential use. This plane was used daily in the famous Gettysburg Airlift in 1955 and 1956, as well as the Greenbriar Airlift that hauled Ike along with the President of Mexico to North Carolina. Another seven L-26 aircraft were based in the Washington DC area and assigned to military units.

"Ike's Bird" 55-4638 was declared surplus and sold out of Air Force inventory in 1960. It was used in a variety of training and freight hauling capacities. Eventually it fell into disrepair.

In September 1950, it became the Aero Design and Engineering Company of Oklahoma. Its facilities consisted of an aircraft hangar and 26,000 sq ft (2,400 m2) manufacturing facility located at what is now Wiley Post Airport near Oklahoma City. In August 1951, the first production Aero Commander, the piston-engined model 520, rolled off the assembly line. It was designed as a business class twin-engine aircraft for corporate travelers.

In 1954, the 520 was replaced by the 560 and 560A featuring a larger cabin and more powerful Lycoming piston engines. In 1955, the U.S. Air Force selected the Aero Commander as the personal transport for President Dwight D. Eisenhower, ordering 15 aircraft, two of which were used by The White House. This aircraft was a military version of the Aero Commander and was assigned a liaison function.[3] It was used by Eisenhower to travel from Washington, D.C. to his farm at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania.[4] In 1958, the Company introduced the first pressurized business aircraft in the form of the model 720 Alti-Cruiser.

United States Air Force Aero Commander U-4B. The company was acquired by Rockwell-Standard in 1958 and changed its name to Aero Commander Inc. in late 1960.The aircraft added fuel injection engines and other modifications to increase performance, resulting in the 1960 introduction of the Twin Commander.

Gable suffered a heart attack two days after filming ended and died ten days later on November 16, 1960. Monroe and Clift attended the premiere in New York in February 1961, while Arthur Miller attended with his two children. Monroe later said that she hated the film and her performance in it. Within a year and a half, she was dead of an apparent drug overdose. The Misfits was the last completed film for both Monroe and Gable, her childhood screen idol. In her last interview, Monroe, who never knew her father, said she often fantasized that Gable was her father. Montgomery Clift died five years later, and made only three more movies.

Despite on-set difficulties, Gable, Monroe, Clift and Wallach delivered performances that modern critics consider superb. Many critics regard Gable's performance as his finest, and Gable, after seeing the rough cuts, agreed. Monroe received the 1961 Golden Globe Award as "World Film Favorite" in March 1962, five months before her death. Huston was nominated for the Directors Guild of America Award for Outstanding Directing - Feature Film. In 2005, the film was nominated by the American Film Institute in the AFI's 100 Years of Film Scores list.

The commission approached NAA to build Curtiss P-40 fighters under license for the Royal Air Force (RAF). Rather than build an old design from another company, NAA proposed the design and production of a more modern fighter. The prototype NA-73X airframe was rolled out on 9 September 1940, 102 days after the contract was signed, and first flew on 26 October.

The Mustang was designed to use the Allison V-1710 engine, which had limited high-altitude performance in its earlier variants. The aircraft was first flown operationally by the RAF as a tactical-reconnaissance aircraft and fighter-bomber (Mustang Mk I). Replacing the Allison with a Rolls-Royce Merlin resulted in the P-51B/C (Mustang Mk III) model, and transformed the aircraft's performance at altitudes above 15,000 ft (4,600 m) (without sacrificing range),[8] allowing it to compete with the Luftwaffe's fighters.[9] The definitive version, the P-51D, was powered by the Packard V-1650-7, a license-built version of the two-speed, two-stage-supercharged Merlin 66, and was armed with six .50 caliber (12.7 mm) AN/M2 Browning machine guns.

The Allison V-1710 aircraft engine designed and produced by the Allison Engine Company was the only US-developed V-12 liquid-cooled engine to see service during World War II. Versions with a turbocharger gave excellent performance at high altitude in the twin-engined Lockheed P-38 Lightning, and turbo-superchargers were fitted to experimental single-engined fighters with similar results.

The United States Army Air Corps (USAAC) preference for turbochargers early in the V-1710's development program meant that less effort was spent on developing suitable mechanically driven centrifugal superchargers for the Allison V-12 design, as other V-12 designs from friendly nations like the British Rolls-Royce Merlin were already using.

When smaller-dimensioned or lower-cost versions of the V-1710 were desired, they generally had poor performance at higher altitudes. The V-1710 nevertheless gave excellent service when turbocharged, notably in the P-38 Lightning, which accounted for much of the extensive production run.

The Allison Engine Company was an American aircraft engine manufacturer. Shortly after the death of James Allison in 1929 the company was purchased by the Fisher brothers. Fisher sold the company to General Motors, which owned it for most of its history. It was acquired by Rolls-Royce plc in 1995 to become the US subsidiary, Rolls-Royce North America.

From late 1943, P-51Bs and P-51Cs (supplemented by P-51Ds from mid-1944) were used by the USAAF's Eighth Air Force to escort bombers in raids over Germany, while the RAF's Second Tactical Air Force and the USAAF's Ninth Air Force used the Merlin-powered Mustangs as fighter-bombers, roles in which the Mustang helped ensure Allied air superiority in 1944. The

P-51 was also used by Allied air forces in the North African, Mediterranean, Italian, and Pacific theaters. During World War II, Mustang pilots claimed to have destroyed 4,950 enemy aircraft.

At the start of the Korean War, the Mustang, by then redesignated F-51, was the main fighter of the United States until jet fighters, including North American's F-86, took over this role; the Mustang then became a specialized fighter-bomber. Despite the advent of jet fighters, the Mustang remained in service. The North American Aviation F-86 was the next air superiority plan this time against Russian Migs that James Paul Donegan also flew from Atsugi.

Speculative Meyers Lansky CIA Chauncy Holt Business Card by Edward Paul Donegan 1959

Jack Ruby, Chauncey Holt, Meyers Lansky, others come from the numbers games and hope for other mob business in Cuba including expanding from Las Vegas Palm Springs where Bugsy Siegel operated but was branhcing out from after having arrived from Chicago.

Meyers Lansky doesn't like Hollywood. He prefers Florida and Batista's Cuba is a great business opportunity. Like Jack Ruby a business interest in a Cuba without Castro. Holt is also a pilot and had a plane he bought from WWII surplus.

Chauncey Marvin Holt worked for the mob in money laundering and other operations including "numbers" a lottery like game of illegal gambling and making phony books. His skills as an illustrator with art school classes and part time illustrator practice made him a good forger and graphics worker.

Siegel in Hollywood was more than Lansky wanted to endure. He still backed his long time friend in various ventures, including the idea to build a casino and hotel in Las Vegas, but they were becoming emotionally distant. Their lifestyles were just too different.

Siegel had a seemingly psychopathic need for attention, and it was this need that would lead to his death. Because Lansky and I got along so well, I moved to Miami after VE-Day, calling him to ask about the job Licavoli had mentioned. Lansky agreed to try me, sending me to an unpretentious looking bakery in Tarnpa, Florida.

The bakery proved to be the bookmaking headquarters of Santos Traffcante, one of the most powerful mobsters in the state. The two men decided to use me as a bookkeeper checking on their numbers operation in Jacksonville Beach.

The job was in a place called Kite's Bar And Grill. It was the local headquarters for the numbers racket in the Jacksonville, Florida region.

Again this was Lansky's genius. Kite's served as regional headquarters for activities in Jacksonville Beach, Newport Beach, Atlantic Beach, Ponta Vedra Beach, Fernandina, and St. Augustine. Earl Kite, the man who owned the front business, was like a district manager for a large corporation.

Unfortunately for him, the gross was down and there seemed to be nothing in the economy that should have reduced the regional take. Lansky and Traffcante wanted me to find out if Kite was skimming from the receipts.

Arrangements were made for me to stay in a Cape Cod style bungalow on the Ponte Vedra Beach. The bungalow adjoined one of the most exclusive golf courses in the country. I didn't know if such benefits were standard or if I was just being given a taste of the good life possible if I stayed straight with the mob. All I know is that I enjoyed the area, even though I did not play golf.

My spare time was spent painting I had a fast course in the jargon and percentages of the numbers business. At the time it seemed like a sucker 's game, especially since the payoff was only one in every 600 bets. Most reformers complained how the odds did nothing more than rob the poor of their nickels, dimes (a dime was called a "piece," the most common bet), and quarters. Yet the chance of winning any of the state lotteries is so much less, legal lottery tickets seem criminal by comparison.

Ironically, even the mob had originally not understood how much money could be made in the numbers. Organized criminals had derided it for years as "nigger pool." However, when Chicago mob boss Sam Giancana was in prison, he came to know a black inmate who controlled most of the numbers rackets in Chicago. The inmate taught him the volume of bets that were routinely placed in the inner-city. The total was so large that Giancana realized it was time for white organized crime to take control of the income.

There were several dlfferent games, and some actually offered fairly good odds. Numbers, which involved a three digit number based on the pari-mutuel handle at various race tracks were the most popular. There was a weekly pay- off, and the suckers thought they always had a fair chance of winning. Many bought dream books — books that provided three digit "lucky" numbers for each type of dream a player had at night. But what was not known was that some of the racetracks were controlled by the mob, allowing races to be fixed when necessary to reduce a high payoff.

In addition, the winning number could only be obtained by calling Traffcante's operation center in Tampa. A better deal came from the game called "Cuba." This was a lottery that was legal in Cuba, just 90 miles off the Miami coast.

Kite's would take money bet on that lottery, and the payoff would be made when the winning number was announced on Cuban radio, the broadcast signal from which could easily be heard in Florida. No one thought there could be any cheating in Cuba, though the ability to rig the final number was probably one of the arrangements Lansky had made with Batista. The dictator got a percentage of all Cuban based gambling action.

A third game was called "Bond." This required a two-digit number and was based on bond sales. The payoff was 70 to 1, the best odds of all the games. To add to my pay, I was allowed to write numbers when I wanted to do so, being given a commission for each one. I was also told that, as a bonus, I could divert a few dollars more than my proper percentage if I needed a little extra money that week.

I avoided that situation, though, thinking that it might be a set-up to test my loyalty. My position, coupled with my mathematical mind, enabled me to get an instant sense of the money being bet. I watched the runners who collected bets in the different neighborhoods, as well as the bartenders, waiters, and waitresses in Kites who also booked the action, getting a general sense of how much was being spent each day.

A cursory check proved that Lansky and the others were not being given their fair share. I quickly learned the extent of Kite's cheating. He was failing to report two-thirds of his gross. He was an alcoholic, and he was a welcher. The Syndicate thrived by being honest with the suckers. They might rig a winning number to reduce the volume of people who had to be paid off when a particular number was too …

Bugsy Siegel

> The Jewish mobster like most had early relations with rising Nazis but as totalitarians changed directions to race hygeine laws and genocide Bugsy Seigal was willing to help assasinate Nazis

Siegel had several relationships with prominent women, including socialite Countess Dorothy di Frasso. The alliance with the countess took Siegel to Italy in 1938,[54] where he met Benito Mussolini, to whom Siegel tried to sell weapons. Siegel also met Nazi leaders Hermann Göring and Joseph Goebbels, to whom he took an instant dislike and later offered to kill.[55][56][57] He only relented because of the countess's anxious pleas.

In Hollywood, Siegel worked with the syndicate to form illegal rackets.[43] He devised a plan of extorting movie studios; he would take over local trade unions (such as the Screen Extras Guild and the Los Angeles Teamsters) and stage strikes to force studios to pay him off so that unions would start working again.[47] Siegel borrowed money from celebrities and did not pay them back, knowing that they would never ask him for the money. During his first year in Hollywood, he received more than US$400,000 in loans from movie stars.

Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel (February 28, 1906 – June 20, 1947) was an American mobster[2] who was a driving force behind the development of the Las Vegas Strip.[3] Siegel was influential within the Jewish Mob, along with his childhood friend and fellow gangster Meyer Lansky, and he also held significant influence within the Italian-American Mafia and the largely Italian-Jewish National Crime Syndicate. Described as handsome and charismatic, he became one of the first front-page celebrity gangsters.

Siegel was one of the founders and leaders of Murder, Inc.[5] and became a bootlegger during American Prohibition. The Twenty-first Amendment was passed in 1933 repealing Prohibition, and he turned to gambling. In 1936, he left New York and moved to California.[6] His time as a mobster during this period was mainly as a hitman and muscle, as he was noted for his prowess with guns and violence. In 1941, Siegel was tried for the murder of friend and fellow mobster Harry Greenberg, who had turned informant. He was acquitted in 1942.

Siegel traveled to Las Vegas, Nevada where he handled and financed some of the original casinos.[7] He assisted developer William R. Wilkerson's Flamingo Hotel after Wilkerson ran out of funds.[8] Siegel assumed control of the project and managed the final stages of construction. The Flamingo opened on December 26, 1946 in a driving rainstorm, resulting in a poor reception and technical difficulties, and it soon closed. It reopened in March 1947 with a finished hotel, but by then his mob partners were convinced that an estimated $1 million of the construction budget overun had been skimmed by Siegel's girlfriend Virginia Hill or by both of them. On June 20, 1947, Siegel was shot dead by a sniper through the window of Hill's Linden Drive mansion in Beverly Hills, California.

During adolescence, Siegel befriended Meyer Lansky, who applied a brilliant intellect to forming a small mob whose activities expanded to gambling and car theft. Lansky, who had already had a run-in with Charles "Lucky" Luciano, saw a need for the Jewish boys of his Brooklyn neighborhood to organize in the same manner as the Italians and Irish. The first person he recruited for his gang was Siegel.

He became involved in bootlegging within several major East Coast cities. He also worked as the mob's hitman, whom Lansky hired out to other crime families.[17] The two formed the Bugs and Meyer Mob, which handled hits for the various bootleg gangs operating in New York and New Jersey, doing so almost a decade before Murder, Inc. was formed. The gang kept themselves busy by hijacking the liquor cargoes of rival outfits,[18] and were known to be responsible for the killing and removal of several rival gangland figures.[19] Siegel's gang-mates included Abner "Longie" Zwillman, Louis "Lepke" Buchalter, and Lansky's brother, Jake; Joseph "Doc" Stacher, another member of the Bugs and Meyer Mob, recalled to Lansky biographers that Siegel was fearless and saved his friends' lives as the mob moved into bootlegging.

Siegel was also a boyhood friend to Al Capone; when there was a warrant for Capone's arrest on a murder charge, Siegel allowed him to hide out with an aunt.

He first smoked opium during his youth and was involved in the drug trade.[22] By age 21, he was making money, and flaunted it. He bought an apartment at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel and a Tudor home in Scarsdale, New York. He wore flashy clothes and participated in New York City night life.

From May 13 to 16, 1929, Lansky and Siegel attended the Atlantic City Conference, representing the Bugs and Meyer Mob.[24] Luciano and former Chicago South Side Gang leader Johnny Torrio held the conference at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Atlantic City, New Jersey. At the conference, the two men discussed the future of organized crime and the future structure of the Mafia crime families; Siegel stated, "The yids and the dagos will no longer fight each other."

In the late 1930s, the East Coast mob (Chicago had been importing liquor from Canada across the Great Lakes) sent Siegel to California. Since 1933, he had traveled to the West Coast several times, and in California his mission was to develop syndicate-sanctioned gambling rackets with Los Angeles family boss Jack Dragna. Once in Los Angeles, Siegel recruited gang boss Mickey Cohen as his chief lieutenant. Knowing Siegel's reputation for violence, and that he was backed by Lansky and Luciano – who, from prison, sent word to Dragna that it was "in [his] best interest to cooperate"

By 1942, US$500,000 a day was coming from the syndicate's bookmaking wire operations.[45] In 1946, because of problems with Siegel, the Outfit took over the Continental Press and gave the percentage of the racing wire to Dragna, infuriating Siegel.[47][48] Despite his complications with the wire services, Siegel controlled several offshore casinos[49] and a major prostitution ring.[17] He also maintained relationships with politicians, businessmen, attorneys, accountants, and lobbyists who fronted for him.

It was at this time 1941-1942 that Holt had been discharged from the Army Air Force and was now working in Florida for Meyers Lansky.

Returning to Holt's story Meyers Lanksy did not like the West Coast and publicicity and he and Holt worked out of Florida bridging legal gambling in Cuba under Batista with illegal Florida numbers games.

Meyers Lansky doesn't like Hollywood. He prefers Florida and Batista's Cuba is a great business opportunity. Like Jack Ruby a business interest in a Cuba without Castro. Holt is also a pilot

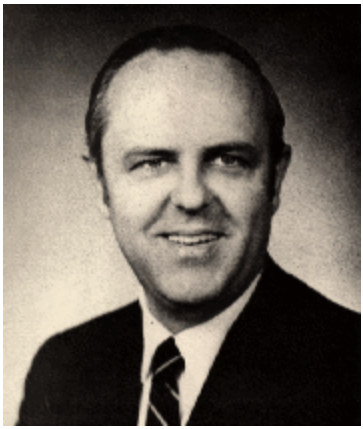
THE TAKING OF AMERICA, 123 by Richard E. Sprague



He says the CIA dunnit

In 1966, Mr. Sprague commenced an intensive program of research into the photographic evidence associated with the assassination of John Kennedy. He served a year as photographic expert advisor in the investigations conducted by New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison and had amassed and analyzed a majority of the known evidence on film by 1968 when he co-founded the Committee to Investigate Assassinations.

He served with CTIA as an active researcher, board member and Secretary from 1968 to 1974.

Following numerous radio and television appearances and extensive lecture tours of the United States and Canada (where slides and films were used to demonstrate the basic evidence of conspiracy), he began, in 1974, working toward a Congressional investigation of all four major political assassinations and the cover-ups and links among these interrelated events.

He was an advisor to Representative Henry B. Gonzales (D-Texas) on House Resolution 203 which proposed the appointment of a committee to investigate the circumstances surrounding the deaths of JFK, RFK, Martin Luther King and the attempt upon the life of Presidential Candidate George Wallace. He served as a consultant to Richard A. Sprague and G. Robert Blakey, the first and second General Counsels of the House Select Committee on Assassinations and served through the end of the Committee's existence.

Chapter 4

How It All Began - The U-2 and the Bay of Pigs

To understand the origins of the Power Control Group, it is necessary to return to the last years of the Eisenhower administration and examine what was going on in the Cold War.

Eisenhower had suffered several strokes and a heart attack. He was partially immobilized, and entrusted a major share of the coordination of clandestine activities being conducted by the CIA against the "Red Menace" to Richard Nixon, his vice president. While Ike was warning against the military-industrial-complex's domestic influence, and attempting to move toward detente with the Soviets through a summit meeting, he was being sabotaged by the plans section of the CIA and by Richard Nixon.

A part of the CIA arranged for a U-2 with Gary Powers as pilot to go down over Russia, thus giving Khrushchev a chance to expose American spying and to cancel the summit meeting. This was one of the earliest moves of the nucleus of what later evolved into the Power Control Group. In the spring of 1960, with Ike nearly senile and pressured by Nixon, he approved the plan for the invasion of Cuba and the assassination of Castro. Nixon was the chief White House action officer for what later became the Bay of Pigs invasion.

The Power Control Group was beginning to organize itself with Nixon as part of it. The cold warriors and strong anti-Communist "patriots" in the Plans or Operations part of the CIA formed the original nucleus.

Their plan was to make Nixon president in 1961 and to launch a successful takeover of Cuba. John Kennedy came along to upset the plan. Not only did he make the takeover impossible but he soon discovered the evils lurking in the hearts and minds of the CIA clandestine operators and laid his own plans to destroy them. The assassination of John Kennedy essentially became an act of survival for some of these individuals.

Many citizens of America have forgotten that Richard Nixon was Vice President of the United States in 1959 and 1960. As an old anti-communist from the Alger Hiss and Khrushchev debating days, Nixon was in the forefront of pressure for the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba. What is also forgotten is that Nixon was largely responsible for the covert training of Cuban exiles by the CIA in preparation for the Bay of Pigs. (He stated this in his book, Six Crises.)

Nixon's Lies -- October 1960. Mr. Nixon's capacity for truth is nowhere more clearly demonstrated than by the deliberate lies he told during the election campaign on national TV on October 21, 1960. He said in his book that the lies were told for a patriotic reason -- to protect the covert operations planned for the Bay of Pigs at all costs. The significance of this is that Mr. Nixon considers patriotism to be, in part, the protection of plans and actions of individuals that he considered to be working for the United States' best interests.

The similarities between the actions of Everette Howard Hunt, Jr., James McCord, Bernard Barker, Frank Sturgis, and others in the 1960 planning for the Bay of Pigs invasion and in the 1972 planning for the re-election of Richard M. Nixon are very striking. In both cases, what the plotters themselves considered to be patriotic, anti-Communist actions were involved. In 1960 the actions were directed against Fidel Castro, a man they hated as a Communist. In 1972 the actions were directed against Edward Kennedy, Edmund Muskie and George McGovern. Bernard Barker stated the group's collective belief when he said after his arrest that, "We believe that an election of McGovern would be the beginning of a trend that would lead to socialism and communism, or whatever you want to call it."

Nixon admitted lying to the American people to protect Hunt, Barker, Sturgis, and McCord in 1960. The likelihood that he lied to protect them again in 1972 seems to be quite good. There is some likelihood that he actually hired the same old crew he trusted from the Bay of Pigs days for the 1972 Watergate and other espionage activities.

Here are the facts:

Nixon's Statements in Six Crises

Richard Nixon stated in Six Crises: "The covert training of Cuban exiles by the CIA was due in substantial part, at least, to my efforts. This had been adopted as a policy as a result of my direct support."[1] "President Eisenhower had ordered the CIA to arm and train the exiles in May of 1960. Nixon and his advisors wanted the CIA invasion to take place before the voters went to the polls on November 8, 1960."[2]

While the Bay of Pigs operation was under the overall CIA direction of Allen Dulles, Richard M. Bissell, Jr. was the CIA man in charge, according to Ross & Wise.[3] Charles Cabell,[4] the deputy director of the CIA, and a man with the code name Frank Bender, were also near the top of the operational planning.[5]

E. Howard Hunt

Everette Howard Hunt, Jr. was in charge of the actual invasion. He used the code name, "Eduardo." Bernard L. Barker, using the code name "Macho," worked for Hunt in the CIA Bay of Pigs planning. James McCord was an organizer for the invasion and was one of the highest ranking officials in the CIA. Frank Sturgis, alias Frank Fiorini, was also involved in the Bay of Pigs operations. Virgilio Gonzales was a CIA agent active in the Bay of Pigs. So was Eugenio Martinez. Charles Colson was a former CIA official who knew McCord and Hunt during the Bay of Pigs period.[6]

Hunt, Barker, McCord, Sturgis, Gonzales, and Martinez were under indictment for the Watergate affair. Colson was Nixon's special counsel who handled "touchy" political assignments. According to Time magazine, Colson brought all of the others into the re-election committee espionage project at the request of Nixon.[7]

In other words, it was basically the same group who worked for Nixon, Bissell and Co. in 1960 and who worked for Nixon, Colson and Co. in 1972. They were all loyal, patriotic, anti-Communist, and anti-Castro CIA agents with covert (black) espionage training. They needed Nixon's protection in 1960 and 1972, and they received it both times.

Here is how Nixon protected them in 1960.[8]

Kennedy-Nixon Debates, 1960

John Kennedy and Richard Nixon engaged in a series of national TV debates during the 1960 campaign. Kennedy was briefed by Allen Dulles, head of the CIA at Eisenhower's request, on secret CIA activities and international problems on July 23, 1960. Nixon was not aware of the briefing contents and was not sure whether Dulles told Kennedy about the Bay of Pigs plans. As it turned out Dulles had not mentioned the plans but had kept his remarks about Cuba rather general.

On October 6, 1960, Kennedy gave his major speech on Cuba. He said that events might create an opportunity for the U.S. to bring influence on behalf of the cause of freedom in Cuba. He called for encouraging those liberty-loving Cubans who were leading the resistance against Castro.

Nixon became very disturbed about this because he felt Kennedy was trying to pre-empt a policy which he claimed as his own. Nixon ordered Fred Seaton, Secretary of the Interior, to call the White House and find out whether Dulles had briefed Kennedy on the Cuban invasion plans. Seaton talked to General Andrew Goodpaster, Eisenhower's link to the CIA, who told Seaton that Kennedy did know about the Bay of Pigs plans.

Attack on Kennedy by Lying

Nixon became incensed. He said, "There was only one thing I could do. The covert operation had to be protected at all costs. I must not even suggest by implication that the U.S. was rendering aid to rebel forces in and out of Cuba. In fact, I must go to the other extreme: I must attack the Kennedy proposal to provide such aid as wrong and irresponsible because it would violate our treaty commitments."[9]

So Richard M. Nixon actually went on national TV (ABC) on October 21, 1960, knowing we were going to invade Cuba, and lied. During the fourth TV debate, Nixon attacked Kennedy's proposal as dangerously irresponsible and in violation of five treaties between the U.S. and Latin America, as well as the United Nations' Charter.[10]

On October 22 at Muhlenberg College, Nixon really turned on the fabrication steam. He said, "Kennedy called for -- and get this -- the U.S. Government to support a revolution in Cuba, and I say that this is the most shockingly reckless proposal ever made in our history by a presidential candidate during a campaign -- and I'll tell you why . . ."

The reason we should have taken with a grain of salt whatever words Nixon uttered about Watergate and Donald Segretti's espionage is clearly demonstrated in that October 22, 1960 speech. He fiercely attacked John Kennedy for advocating a plan that he, Richard Nixon, secretly advocated and claimed as his own creation. He later had the sheer gall to brag about it in his own book as a very patriotic act.

Protection of Hunt and Co.

How was Nixon protecting Hunt and company in 1972? He was using the Justice Department and the Republican Congressmen, among others, to delay and dilute the prosecution of the Watergate seven. He had slowed down, suppressed, and all but stopped six separate investigations, suits, and trials of the affair. Included were Wright Patman's House Banking Committee investigation, the FBI-Justice Department investigation, a White House investigation by John Dean, a General Accounting Office investigation, a suit by the Democratic Party, and a trial in criminal court of the seven invaders. Only two trials or investigations had a chance of exposing the truth at that time. One of these, a trial of Bernard Barker in Florida was not much help. The other was an investigation promised by Senator Edward Kennedy and his Senate subcommittee. It never occurred. The action for impeachment came much later.

Thus, the stage was set in 1961 for the group of powerful individuals who had planned the Bay of Pigs to gain revenge on John Kennedy who tried to change the overall direction of the U.S. battle against Communism. After JFK refused to approve overt U.S. backing of the Bay of Pigs invasion, various individuals in the clandestine CIA forces vowed their revenge.

In the spring of 1961, evidence had appeared indicating that Helms, Hunt, Sturgis and Barker tried to have JFK assassinated in Paris.[11] When the attempt failed, a number of other plots and sub-plots developed through the next two years. After JFK's blockade strategy against Castro during the missile crisis in 1962 was implemented, some of the high-level CIA and armed forces people wanted even more to get him out of the White House. They had favored a direct invasion or bombing of Cuba.

And finally, when JFK found out about the CIA's plans for another invasion of Cuba in the spring and summer of 1963 and stopped them, they began in earnest to plan his death.

Chapter 5

The Assassination of John Kennedy

The assassination of President Kennedy can be considered one of a series of acts by the Power Control Group to regain the control they had lost when Nixon was defeated in 1960 and Kennedy threatened their existence. The evidence pointing toward intelligence involvement and the use of a variety of intelligence techniques in the assassination is substantial. Until and unless an investigation is conducted by a group with power and money equivalent to that of the Power Control Group, with the power to issue subpoenas and to protect witnesses, it will be very difficult to draw a completely accurate picture of the conspiracy to assassinate JFK.

As a substitute, this chapter is a "probable reconstruction" -- a scenario -- about who killed John F. Kennedy. Unlike the Warren Commission Report (another scenario), this report does not contain any physically impossible events, such as those connected with Commission Exhibit 399, the so-called "magic bullet."

This scenario is based on (1) evidence gathered between 1968 and 1975 by the Committee to Investigate Assassinations, Washington, D.C. and (2) evidence gathered between 1962 and 1975 by the author.

The purpose of this scenario is as a starting point for study and verification by researchers, by Congressional Committees, and by their members and staffs. This should be considered as a beginning hypothesis and scenario in contrast to the Warren and Rockefeller Commission scenarios.

The best evidence available indicates the following events occurred in the summer and fall of 1963 and culminated in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. The basic evidence has been summarized in various articles published in Computers and People (formerly Computers and Automation) since May 1970.[1] This can be considered as a guideline scenario which adheres to and explains all of the known factual evidence.

How It Began

The conspiracy to assassinate John Kennedy began in a series of discussions held in New Orleans in the summer of 1963. The men in the discussions were extremely angry that Kennedy had stopped plans and preparations for another invasion of Cuba (scheduled for the latter part of 1963.) One of the instigators was David Ferrie, a CIA contract agent who had been training pilots in Guatemala for the invasion. Meetings held in Ferrie's apartment in New Orleans were attended by Clay Shaw, William Seymour and several Cubans. Plans for assassinating President Kennedy developed out of those early meetings. Others whose support was sought by the group included Guy Banister, Major L. M. Bloomfield, Loran Hall, Lawrence Howard, Sergio Arcacha Smith and Carlos Prio Socarras.

Oswald's Role

During this period in the summer of 1963 Lee Harvey Oswald was working for Guy Banister on some anti-Castro projects and used the Communist cover of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee. Oswald attended some of the meetings where JFK's assassination was discussed.

Oswald either approached the FBI or they approached him in the later summer of 1963, and he began to tell the FBI about the plans of the group to assassinate JFK. Oswald had been a secret informant for the FBI since mid-1962.

Mexico City

In September, the group moved the scene of their planning to Mexico City. There they solicited the assistance of Guy Gabaldin, a CIA agent. Meetings were held in the apartment of Gabaldin, attended by Shaw, Ferrie, Seymour, Gabaldin and Oswald on at least three occasions. Others were brought into the conspiracy at this point. These included John Howard Bowen (alias Albert Osborne), Ronald Augustinovich, Mary Hope, Emilio Santana, Harry Dean, Richard Case Nagell, and "Frenchy" (an adventurer who had been working with Seymour, Santana, Ferrie, Howard and others on the Cuban invasion projects in the Florida Keys). Fred Lee Crisman, Jim Hicks and Jim Braden (alias Eugene Hale Brading) were also recruited at this point.

Oswald, the Patsy

Oswald continued to inform on the group to the FBI in Dallas. In mid- to late September the assassination group decided to make Oswald the patsy in the murder. They had discussed the need for a patsy in the earliest meetings in New Orleans. Billy Seymour, who resembled Oswald, was selected to use Oswald's name and to plant evidence in New Orleans, Dallas and Mexico, which could later be used to frame him. In addition, another man under CIA surveillance in Mexico City also used Oswald's name in a probable attempt to make it appear that Oswald was headed for Cuba. His name may have been Johnny Mitchell Deveraux. His picture appears in the Warren Commission Volumes as CE 237.

Financial Support

The team needed financial support for the assassination. They received it from Carlos Prio Socarras in Miami, who brought more than 50 million dollars out of Cuba. They also received money from Banister, and from three Texas millionaires who hated Kennedy: Sid Richardson, Clint Murchison, and Jean DeMenil (of the Schlumberger Co.). The Murchison-Richardson contribution also included soliciting the assistance of high-level men in the Dallas police force. They were powerful members of the Dallas Citizens Council that controlled the city at that time.

Plans for Three Cities

The group in Mexico City planned to assassinate JFK in Miami, Chicago or Dallas, using different gunmen in each case. The Miami plan failed because the Secret Service found out about it in advance and kept JFK out of the open. The Chicago plan backfired when JFK cancelled his plans to attend the Army-Navy game at Soldiers Field in early November. The group set up two assassination teams for Dallas. One was in Dealey Plaza; the second was near the International Trade Mart where JFK's luncheon speech was to be delivered.

CIA Support

The best evidence of CIA (Deputy-Director of Plans) involvement is the fact that the majority of the known participants were contract agents or direct agents of the CIA. In Mexico City, the meetings were held in the apartment of Guy Gabaldin, a CIA (DDP) agent, working for the Mexico City station chief. Others attending the meetings who were CIA (DDP) contract or direct agents included Clay Shaw, David Ferrie, Albert Osborne, Harry Dean, Richard Case Nagell, Ronald Augustinovich, William Seymour, Emilio Santana and Fred Lee Crisman. It is likely (but not yet provable by direct evidence) that the group sought and obtained from the acting or permanent CIA station chief in Mexico, assistance or approval to go ahead with assassination plans. Tad Szulc claims that a CIA source can prove that E. Howard Hunt was acting station chief in Mexico City at the time of the Gabaldin apartment meetings (August and September 1963). Hunt has denied under oath before the Rockefeller Commission that he was in Mexico.

In 1967 Richard Helms told a group of CIA officials, including Victor Marchetti, that both Clay Shaw and David Ferrie were CIA (DDP) contract agents and that Shaw had to be given CIA protection and assistance in his New Orleans trial. This is a strong indication that Hunt and Helms gave "turn of the head" approval to the Shaw-Ferrie assassination plan as a minimum form of support.

Dallas

The assassination group, having failed in Miami and Chicago, moved an operational team into Dallas during the second week in November of 1963. Shaw, Ferrie, Gabaldin and other high-level plotters travelled in other directions, establishing alibis as planned. On November 22, Gabaldin was in Mexico City, Shaw was in San Francisco, and Ferrie was in New Orleans. The team moving into Dallas included Albert Osborne, William Seymour, Emilio Santana, Frenchy, Fred Crisman, Jim Hicks, Jim Braden, and a new recruit from Los Angeles, Jack Lawrence. There was also a back-up rifle team of Cubans to be used at a location near the International Trade Mart in the event something went wrong at Dealey Plaza.

Where the Teams Stayed

The teams stayed at two locations in Dallas for two weeks. One was a rooming house run by a woman named Tammie True. During this period final preparations for the assassination in Dealey Plaza were made. These included the collecting of and planting of evidence used to frame Oswald, the recruiting of the Dallas police participants, and the plans for the escape of the team members by car and by train. The riflemen selected were William Seymour in the Depository Building, Jack Lawrence and Frenchy on the grassy knoll, and Emilio Santana in the Dal Tex building. Jim Hicks was set up as radio coordinator and a man with each of the riflemen had a two-way radio. They were Jim Braden, Dal Tex; Fred Crisman, knoll; unidentified American (tall tramp), knoll; and a man in the TSBD Building. Osborne was in overall charge of the Dallas teams, but he did not go to Dealey Plaza. A fifth gunman, known to researchers as the umbrella man, was stationed on the street with an umbrella weapon furnished by the CIA. He was accompanied by another Cuban acting as a radio man.

Framing Oswald

The people involved in framing Oswald included Seymour (who used his identity), someone who posed for two pictures holding a rifle, a photographer who took the pictures and someone who superimposed Oswald's head on the two negatives. Also, someone who took Oswald's rifle from his garage and his pistol from his room, taking several bullets and shells with the pistol, fired three shells and one bullet through the rifle, and planted the rifle and rifle shells on the sixth floor of the TSBD and a rifle bullet at Parkland Hospital. The pistol shells were given to William Seymour for planting later on. The photographers also planted photos of General Walker's house and driveway to implicate Oswald in the Walker shooting.

Dallas Policemen Involved

The policemen involved were J. D. Tippit, who was to drive two of the assassins, Seymour and his radio man, away in his police car; Bill Alexander; Jerry Hill; Sergeant McDonald; Lieutenant Montgomery; Lieutenant Johnson; and Lieutenant Batchelor, who escorted Jack Ruby into the jail to murder Oswald.

McDonald was assigned to kill Oswald upon his arrest in the Texas Theatre. Jerry Hill was involved in that event as well as in the planting of evidence against Oswald in the TSBD Building. Montgomery and Johnson were involved in planting the paper bag as evidence against Oswald. Alexander and Batchelor were primarily responsible for making sure that Jack Ruby assassinated Oswald and that he didn't talk about it afterward. Alexander was present on every occasion when Ruby was questioned or interviewed in the jail, in spite of Ruby's efforts to have him removed.

Other Persons Involved in Framing Oswald

Also involved in framing Oswald were Marina Oswald; her lawyer, James Martin; and someone in the Dallas police force. She was talked into three points of false testimony: she said she took the two fake photos of Oswald with a camera she claimed was his. She fabricated, or was handed, the false story about Oswald's attempt to shoot General Walker and taking two pictures of Walker's house with the same camera. (Oswald did neither.) She told a false story about a falling out she and Oswald supposedly had and exaggerated his mean treatment of their children. There are good indications that these moves were made by the CIA operatives in the group who threatened to send Marina back to Russia. (Marina's uncle was a high-level officer in the KGB.)

Dealey Plaza

On the day of the assassination four men with rifles, accompanied by their radio men and several other team members, moved into Dealey Plaza. Seymour and a radio man entered the TSBD Building through the freight entrance and worked their way to the roof. Santana and Braden went into the Dal Tex building through the freight entrance on Houston St. and up a back staircase to the second floor. Lawrence, Frenchy, Crisman and the tall tramp took up two positions on the grassy knoll. Lawrence was inside the westernmost cupola after parking his car in the parking lot behind the knoll. Frenchy, Crisman and the tall tramp were near the fence. Jim Hicks was in the Adolphus Hotel a few blocks away, testing the two-way radio communication with the four radio men, until he proceeded to the Plaza and mingled with a large crowd (near the corner of Houston and Elm Streets). The umbrella man stood near the Stemmons Freeway sign on Elm Street accompanied by his radio man.

The other team members stationed themselves in the crowd (along Elm Street). After the shots were fired, they circulated through the crowd in front of the TSBD on Elm Street, on the grassy knoll, and behind the TSBD Building, identifying themselves as Secret Service agents and asking witnesses and officials questions to find out whether the assassins had been detected. There are clear photos of one of these men. One other man was at the corner of the wall on the grassy knoll.

The Shots

Upon a visual and oral signal from the man at the wall and upon a radio command from Hicks, the team fired its first round of shots. Crisman received the command from Hicks and caused Frenchy to fire a shot from a position behind the fence on the knoll, about twenty feet west of the corner of the fence. This shot missed. The umbrella man fired a shot using his small-bore umbrella gun. When this shot struck JFK in the throat, the dart paralyzed JFK and later presented by Commander Humes to the FBI.[2] The shot was fired at Zapruder frame 189: JFK was behind a large oak tree, hidden from the sixth floor window of the TSBD Building. On command from Braden, Emilio Santana fired his first shot two seconds later from the second floor window of the Dal Tex building at Z 225 after JFK came out from behind the sign in Zapruder's film. The shot struck JFK in the back about 5 3/4" down from the collar line, penetrated to a depth of about two inches and stopped. The bullet fell out of JFK's back somewhere in or at the Parkland Hospital, or perhaps travelled down inside the body of the President, and was never recovered.

William Seymour fired his shot from the west end of the TSBD Building upon command from his radio man between Z 230 and Z 237, after Santana's shot. He used a Mauser rifle with no telescopic sight. While he was aiming at JFK, he fired high and to the right, hitting John Connally in the back. The bullet travelled through Connally's chest and then entered his left thigh. The bullet fell out of his thigh in or near Parkland Hospital and was never recovered. Governor Connally's wrist was not hit at that time.

Jack Lawrence did not fire a shot in the first round because from his cupola position he did not have a clear shot.

Hicks gave a second radio command for another round of shots as JFK passed the Stemmons Freeway sign.

Emilio Santana fired his second shot between Z 265 and Z 275. The bullet narrowly missed JFK, passed over the top of his head and over the top of the limousine's windshield. It travelled on to strike the south curb of Main Street, breaking off a piece of concrete which flew up and hit James Tague. The bullet either disintegrated or flew into the area beyond the overpass. It was not found.

William Seymour may have fired a second shot which may have struck JFK in the upper right part of his head at Z 312. That bullet disintegrated.

Upon command from his radio man, Jack Lawrence fired his first shot from a pedestal on the west side of the south entrance to the western cupola on the grassy knoll. The shot may have hit Connally's wrist.

Frenchy fired the fatal shot through the trees from his position behind the fence.

The Lawrence shot or possibly the second Seymour shot produced a bullet fragment that passed through Connally's right wrist at Z 313. At that time his wrist was elevated and nearly directly in front of JFK's head, in such a position that Connally's right palm was facing JFK as the governor fell into his wife's arms. The fragment entered the front of his wrist and exited from the back.

Oswald's Actions

Lee Harvey Oswald started November 22, 1963 with the knowledge that there might be an attempt on JFK's life during the day. He had reported this possibility to the FBI in his informer's role five days earlier; he undoubtedly thought the FBI and Secret Service would be protecting the President. His communications with the assassination team had prepared him to meet with them in the Texas Theatre if anything happened that day. There is also a possibility he received a telephone call immediately after the shots, telling him to go to the theatre.

He had gone to his and Marina's rooms in Irving to pick up curtain rods for his bare windows in his Oak Cliff room. He carried the curtain rods in a paper bag on his way to work that morning with Wesley Frazier. He worked on the sixth floor of the TSBD as well as on the other floors that morning. He helped a crew of men lay a new floor on the sixth floor, move a large number of book cartons and school supplies over to the eastern side of the floor, including some cartons near the southeastern window that faced Elm Street.

Oswald went to the first floor of the building at approximately 12:15 p.m. and returned to the second floor lunchroom just before 12:30. He was drinking a coke there at 12:31 when Officer Baker and Mr. Truly, the building manager, encountered him while rushing up the stairs from the first floor. At the sight of Baker's gun drawn and seeing the commotion outside, he no doubt realized what had happened.[3] He immediately left the building via the freight platform entrance on the northeast side and travelled to his rooming house via bus and taxi. He picked up his pistol there and went directly to the Texas Theater where he met two of the assassination team and was sitting with them in the theatre when the police arrived. One of these men may have been William Seymour.

The Dallas police members of the team planned to shoot Oswald in the theatre while arresting him. When he was arrested he did not realize at first that he had been framed. When this began to become clear to him on Saturday, November 23, he remained confident that the FBI would get him out of the situation. After all, he worked for them!

Jack Ruby

Jack Ruby, in addition to his Mafia involvements and other criminal activities, was also running guns to Cuba and carrying payoff money to other anti-Castro groups on behalf of various CIA-backed projects. His involvement in the assassination of JFK appears to have been minor, even though he knew about it in advance. In his night club Ruby met on several occasions with Clay Shaw, David Ferrie, and William Seymour.

The group decided to assassinate Oswald in jail after the police failed to kill him in the Texas Theatre. Alexander made arrangements to have Batchelor escort Ruby into the jail when it was known Oswald was being moved. They arranged an audible signal (an auto horn) to let Batchelor and Ruby know when Oswald was coming down an elevator into the garage. They came down an elevator opposite the one carrying Oswald.

Clay Shaw gave Ruby his instructions to shoot Oswald through Breck Wall. Shaw telephoned Wall from San Francisco and Wall called Ruby. He was told it was an official CIA-sponsored act, in the best interests of the United States, and that he would be out of jail in a few days after his capture.

Planted Evidence

The planting of the evidence against Oswald first began with William Seymour, who used Oswald's identity during September and October, 1963. Next, the faked photographs of Oswald were created. Two of the team members used a camera of their own to take the two pictures of General Walker's house and the two shots of one of the men supposedly in Oswald's back yard. They planted the pictures in Oswald's garage. Next, they stole Oswald's rifle from the garage prior to November 22, fired several shots from it, and preserved three shells, one bullet, and several bullet fragments.

They planted the rifle, the three shells, the bullet (399) and the bullet fragments in the TSBD, the hospital and the JFK limousine on November 22. They also took Oswald's pistol at some time prior to November 22, fired several shots from it and saved the shells. William Seymour, after shooting policeman Tippit, ran away in such a manner as to attract attention, throwing the shells from Oswald's gun into the air as he ran so that witnesses would see them. (The shells matched Oswald's pistol. None of the bullets matched.)

All of the work with Oswald's rifle, pistol, and the fake photos was probably done at the same time. The rifle, pistol and Communist newspapers had to be available together for the backyard photos. The faking of the photographs, the firing of rifle and pistol, the retrieval of the shells from rifle and pistol and of bullet 399 and the bullet fragments from the rifle all required enough time that the event occurred well in advance of the assassination.

Escape Plans

As mentioned before, plans were made for the team to escape by car, train, and airplane. Evidence shows:

1. A white car was parked straddling a log barrier behind the western cupola on the grassy knoll. It left that spot one minute after the shots were fired and drove eastward on the Elm Street extension in front of the TSBD.

2. A white station wagon driving west on Elm Street stopped at the foot of the grassy knoll at 12:40 p.m., ten minutes after the shots were fired. It picked up a man who looked like Oswald and drove under the triple overpass.

3. A railroad train carrying three "tramps" began to leave the freight train area west and north of the TSBD at around one o'clock, thirty minutes after the shots. The train was under the tower control of Lee Bowers and was stopped by him. The tramps were arrested.

4. A police car stopped in front of Oswald's rooming house and honked twice around 1:10 p.m.

5. Policeman Tippit's patrol car was far out of position in the Oak Cliff area near Ruby and Oswald's rooming houses. Tippit was shot by two men, one of whom was Billy Seymour.

6. A small airplane was sitting at the Redbird Airport, a location in the same direction as Oak Cliff, a little further out from Dealey Plaza. Its engines were running. It was ready for takeoff at 1 p.m.

7. David Ferrie went to Houston, Texas on the afternoon of November 22, driving at high speed through bad thunderstorms to get there. He was positioned at a pay telephone at an ice skating rink near the Houston airport, until receiving a phone call there. After that he returned to New Orleans.

Escape Routes

These escape plans were modified after the assassination. It became unnecessary for any of the Dealey Plaza participants to escape by airplane. The framing of Oswald and the failure of the Secret Service or FBI to detect any of the escaping gunmen or their assistants permitted these changes. One of the men in the Dealey Plaza -- probably pretending to be a Secret Service agent -- reported an "all clear" situation to Shaw in San Francisco. Shaw notified Ferrie that they didn't need an airplane to escape with while Ferrie was waiting in Houston. Ferrie changed his plans and drove back to New Orleans.

The gunmen who did escape followed these routes: Jack Lawrence got into his car parked behind the cupola and either drove or was driven back to his cover job location at the automobile agency. He left almost immediately afterward and travelled to North Carolina. Frenchy ran back to the freight car area and climbed into one of the box cars sitting on a siding northwest of the TSBD. He was arrested at 1 p.m. by Officers Harkness, Bass and Wise, but was released by Sheriff Elkins later in the afternoon. Santana walked out the back entrance of the Dal Tex building and may have joined Seymour in a white station wagon on Elm Street at 12:40 p.m. Seymour left the roof of the TSBD via a back stairway, exited from the freight entrance in the rear of the building, and walked on Houston Street past the Elm Street extension. He walked down the grassy knoll to Elm Street where he was picked up at 12:40 p.m. by the white station wagon.

The other Dealey Plaza participants, Crisman, a tall tramp, Braden and Hicks escaped by various means. Braden was arrested and released. Hicks drove home. Crisman and the tall tramp followed Frenchy's route into the box cars.

Tippit Shooting

David Belin of the Warren and Rockefeller Commission is fond of saying, "Lee Harvey Oswald killed policeman Tippit. Since the case against Oswald for the Tippit slaying is so strong, it follows that Oswald also shot the President." The case against Oswald in the Tippit murder is as weak as the case against him in the JFK assassination. The most important evidence showing that Seymour and another one of the assassination team shot Tippit is the fact that six witnesses, ignored by the Warren Commission, saw two men shoot Tippit. One of them resembled Oswald. They ran away from the scene in opposite directions. Seymour ran toward the Texas Theater, throwing the planted shells up in the air so that witnesses would see and recover them. (This act would convince most people that Oswald did not shoot Tippit.) The other assassin ran in the opposite direction. There is some indication that Seymour entered the theater in a manner to draw attention and then left before the Oswald arrest. While the shells recovered were found to match Oswald's pistol, none of the bullets recovered from Tippit's body matched.

Comments and Congressional Actions Needed

The above scenario comes much closer to explaining what happened to John Kennedy than either the Warren Commission Report or the Rockefeller Commission report. It matches the known evidence from the two prime sources, the Warren Commission files in the National Archives, and the evidence produced by the Garrison investigation (most of which was turned over the the Committee to Investigate Assassinations, Washington, D.C.).

However, without subpoena power, and with extremely limited resources, no group of citizens such as the Committee or Mark Lane's Citizens Commission can determine the ultimate truth about the assassination.

Only a properly constituted Congressional committee or group with resources and subpoena power, and with the power and courage to combat the Power Control Group involved in the assassination and its cover-up, whoever they may be, can reach the truth.

This chapter has been prepared as a guideline for such a committee, rather than as the ultimate solution.

It should be utilized in conjunction with two other documents already submitted to the four Congressional groups interested in the case. The groups are:

1. The Senate;

2. The House Special Committee on Intelligence;

3. Thomas Downing, Representative from Virginia, who introduced House Resolution 498 to reopen the JFK assassination investigation;

4. Henry Gonzalez, Representative from Texas, who introduced House Resolution 204 to reopen the assassination inquiries on John and Robert Kennedy, Martin Luther King, and George Wallace.

The Two Documents

1. "Recommendations for the Senate and House Committee's Investigations of Illegal and Subversive Domestic Activities of the CIA and FBI", memorandum by Richard E. Sprague (submitted to them).

2. "The Assassination of President John F. Kennedy: the Involvement of the Central Intelligence Agency in the Plans and the Cover-Up", by Richard E. Sprague, in People and the Pursuit of Truth, May, 1975.

Anyone with a more than casual interest in the JFK assassination will probably find this worth watching..... especially if you are a firm believer in a "grassy knoll shooter" I honestly don't know if Mr.Files is telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help him God, but he is, if nothing else, a compelling storyteller. His allegations of the mob involvement are interesting and intriguing and often believable but there were other aspects that were a little sketchy, such as his interactions with Lee Oswald. As far as the assassination being a mob hit, Mr. Files allegations are at the very least, thought provoking. The video was a good overall presentation.

presents an investigation into the story of a man who confessed to firing the fatal shot from the Grassy Knoll in Dealey Plaza, Dallas Texas on November 22, 1963. His story becomes one more compelling piece of evidence for what most Americans have long suspected: that their government covered-up critical facts about the CIA's collaboration with Organized Crime to assassinate the President of the United States.

This video documentary goes on to present irrefutable corroborating evidence, the stories of two other participants in the events of Dealey Plaza, and the testimony of many other witnesses.

Based on a tip from an FBI agent in 1992, James Files was tracked down by Joe West, a private investigator. Files, who was serving time for attempted murder of an Illinois police officer, initially refused to talk. However, slowly and meticulously, West established a relationship with Files. Through months of visits and correspondence, Files began to reveal his participation in the JFK assassination.

Files was nearing a full confession when West became ill and suddenly passed away in 1993. A year later associates of West's taped an interview with Files, during which he first confessed to being the shooter on the Grassy Knoll, and that it was he who delivered the final, fatal shot to JFK's right temple. He also fingered key CIA agents and mobsters Charles Nicoletti, Sam Giancana, and Johnny Roselli — all murdered in the 1970s.

James Files showing where his bullet hit JFK 50 years earlier.

The producer of this documentary, Wim Dankbaar of Holland, has made it his calling to continue the investigation started by Joe West. In this quest he received the assistance of several retired FBI agents whose testimony (presented in this video) not only corroborated James Files' claims but also made startling new discoveries — one of which is the presence in Dealey Plaza of Luis Posada Carriles, the anti-Castro terrorist who has been in the news recently for being protected by the Bush administration. Could the reason be that he can give away the Big secrets of Dallas, such as the role of George Bush Sr. in the assassination plot?

Although Files had vowed to never again be interviewed, Dankbaar finally managed, through months of persuading, to change his mind. The highlights of that 3 hour video-interview, along with much other evidence of conspiracy and cover-up, is presented here for you to judge.

https://spartacus-educational.com/JFKmorales.htm David Sanchez Morales was born on 26th August, 1925. He spent his early life in Phoenix, Arizona. A Mexican-American, Morales was later to be nicknamed El Indio because of his dark skin and Indian features. As a boy his best friend was Ruben Carbajal. After his mother divorced his father he was virtually adopted by Carbajal's parents.

Morales joined the United States Army in 1946 and after basic training was sent to Germany where he was part of the Allied occupation force. According to Ruben Carbajal, Morales was recruited into army intelligence in 1947. However, officially he was a member of 82nd Airborne. It was during this time he began associating with Ted Shackley and William Harvey.

In 1951 became a employee of the Central Intelligence Agency while retaining his army cover. The following year he joined the Directorate for Plans, an organization instructed to conduct covert anti-Communist operations around the world.

In 1953 he returned to the United States and after a spell at the University of Maryland he assumed cover as a State Department employee. Morales became involved in CIA's Black Operations. This involved a policy that was later to become known as Executive Action (a plan to remove unfriendly foreign leaders from power). This including a coup d'état that overthrew the Guatemalan government of Jacobo Arbenz in 1954 after he introduced land reforms and nationalized the United Fruit Company. After the removal of Arbenz he joined the staff of the US embassy in Caracas (1955-58). During this time he became known as the CIA's top assassin in Latin America.

Morales moved to Cuba in 1958 and helped to support the government of Fulgencio Batista.

In 1960 Wayne S. Smith was a State Department officer in the American Embassy in Havana. Smith tells the story of being in a bar in Havana with Morales. After a heavy drinking session Morales began talking about the CIA's secret operations that involved frog men operating out of Guantanamo Bay Cuba. Smith told Gaeton Fonzi (The Last Investigation) that Morales was very indiscrete when drunk. According to fellow CIA agent, Robert N. Wall: "He (Morales) was a rough-neck. He was a bully, a hard-drinker and big enough to get away with a lot of stuff other people couldn't get away with."

According to his friend, Ruben Carbajal, in the spring of 1973, Morales talked about his involvement with the Bay of Pigs operation. He claimed "Kennedy had been responsible for him having to watch all the men he recruited and trained get wiped out". He added: "Well, we took care of that SOB, didn't we?" https://spartacus-educational.com/JFKmorales.htm

Did the CIA kill Bobby Kennedy? retrieved from https://www.theguardian.com/world/2006/nov/20/usa.features11 and copied or modified to here

Betsy Reed Editor, Guardian US

Three years ago, I started writing a screenplay about the assassination of Robert Kennedy, caught up in a strange tale of second guns and "Manchurian candidates" (as the movie termed brainwashed assassins). As I researched the case, I uncovered new video and photographic evidence suggesting that three senior CIA operatives were behind the killing. I did not buy the official ending that Sirhan acted alone, and started dipping into the nether-world of "assassination research", crossing paths with David Sanchez Morales, a fearsome Yaqui Indian.

Morales was a legendary figure in CIA covert operations. According to close associate Tom Clines, if you saw Morales walking down the street in a Latin American capital, you knew a coup was about to happen. When the subject of the Kennedys came up in a late-night session with friends in 1973, Morales launched into a tirade that finished: "I was in Dallas when we got the son of a bitch and I was in Los Angeles when we got the little bastard." From this line grew my odyssey into the spook world of the 60s and the secrets behind the death of Bobby Kennedy.

Working from a Cuban photograph of Morales from 1959, I viewed news coverage of the assassination to see if I could spot the man the Cubans called El Gordo - The Fat One. Fifteen minutes in, there he was, standing at the back of the ballroom, in the moments between the end of Kennedy's speech and the shooting. Thirty minutes later, there he was again, casually floating around the darkened ballroom while an associate with a pencil moustache took notes.

The source of early research on Morales was Bradley Ayers, a retired US army captain who had been seconded to JM-Wave, the CIA's Miami base in 1963, to work closely with chief of operations Morales on training Cuban exiles to run sabotage raids on Castro. I tracked Ayers down to a small town in Wisconsin and emailed him stills of Morales and another guy I found suspicious - a man who is pictured entering the ballroom from the direction of the pantry moments after the shooting, clutching a small container to his body, and being waved towards an exit by a Latin associate.

Ayers' response was instant. He was 95% sure that the first figure was Morales and equally sure that the other man was Gordon Campbell, who worked alongside Morales at JM-Wave in 1963 and was Ayers' case officer shortly before the JFK assassination.

I put my script aside and flew to the US to interview key witnesses for a documentary on the unfolding story. In person, Ayers positively identified Morales and Campbell and introduced me to David Rabern, a freelance operative who was part of the Bay of Pigs invasion force in 1961 and was at the Ambassador hotel that night. He did not know Morales and Campbell by name but saw them talking to each other out in the lobby before the shooting and assumed they were Kennedy's security people. He also saw Campbell around police stations three or four times in the year before Robert Kennedy was shot.

This was odd. The CIA had no domestic jurisdiction and Morales was stationed in Laos in 1968. With no secret service protection for presidential candidates in those days, Kennedy was guarded by unarmed Olympic decathlete champion Rafer Johnson and football tackler Rosey Grier - no match for an expert assassination team.

Trawling through microfilm of the police investigation, I found further photographs of Campbell with a third figure, standing centre-stage in the Ambassador hotel hours before the shooting. He looked Greek, and I suspected he might be George Joannides, chief of psychological warfare operations at JM-Wave. Joannides was called out of retirement in 1978 to act as the CIA liaison to the House Select Committee on Assassinations (HSCA) investigating the death of John F

Kennedy.

The Assassination Tapes retrieved from https://www.theatlantic.com/magazine/archive/2004/06/the-assassination-tapes/302964/ and copied or modified to here

Lyndon Johnson secretly recorded many of his telephone conversations as President. The tapes provide our only window into his thoughts after hearing what was then a rumor about CIA plots to assassinate Fidel Castro—information that shaped Johnson's views of both JFK's assassination and his own presidency. Herewith excerpts from his 1967 calls By Max Holland

In July of 1973, six months after the death of Lyndon Baines Johnson, The Atlantic published an article by a journalist and former Johnson speechwriter named Leo Janos. "The Last Days of the President," about LBJ in retirement, was elegiac in tone and fact, save for one dissonant paragraph—in which Johnson volunteered his opinion that President John F. Kennedy's assassination had been the result of a conspiracy organized from Cuba. "I never believed that [Lee Harvey] Oswald acted alone, although I can accept that he pulled the trigger," he explained to Janos. Johnson thought such a conspiracy had formed in retaliation for U.S. plots to assassinate Fidel Castro; he had found after taking office that the government "had been operating a damned Murder Inc. in the Caribbean."

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1967, 9:40 A.M.
Call to Acting Attorney General Ramsey Clark

> CLARK: I think that what he [Jim Garrison] is workin' on must be the associations that Oswald had in the three or four months that he was down there [in New Orleans] in '62 [and] '63. I doubt ... I think it'd just be incredible if he [Garrison] had anything that went beyond that. I think this subject is so volatile and emotional, though, that it could get confused and obscured.

[Uncomfortably and hesitantly] I had heard that Hale Boggs was sayin' [that] he—Garrison—was sayin' that ... or privately around town [was saying] that it [the assassination] could be traced back [to you] ... or that you could be found in it someplace, which ... I can't believe he's been sayin' that. The Bureau says they haven't heard any such thing, and they got lots of eyes and ears.

'Course, that was a [credible] fella like Hale Boggs. But Hale gets pretty emotional about people [like Garrison] that he really doesn't like, and people who have fought him and been against him, and I would be more inclined to attribute it to that. Either that, or this guy Garrison [is] just completely off his rocker.

JOHNSON: Who did Hale tell this to?

CLARK [somewhat in disbelief]: Apparently Marvin [Watson].[1]

JOHNSON [aside to Watson, who was in the room]: [Did] Hale tell you that—Hale Boggs—that this fella [Garrison, this] district attorney down there, said that this is traced to me or somethin'?

WATSON: Privately he [Garrison] was using your name as having known about it [the assassination]. I said [to Boggs], Will you give this information to Barefoot Sanders?[2] Ramsey was out of town—this was Saturday night. [Boggs] said, I sure will. So I asked the operator to get Barefoot and Ramsey together, and they did.

JOHNSON [to Clark]: Yeah, I don't know about it. They don't ever let me in on it, Marvin and Jake [Jacobsen] over here, so you have to call me direct.[3]

CLARK: Well—

JOHNSON: They just think this stuff's for them.

CLARK: Such nutty things that ... it's awfully explosive but ... The press, really, has quite a jaundiced eye about it ... and about Garrison, so far.[4] I had several press interviews out in Des Moines [on] Saturday evening and afternoon, and the thrust of their questions is, What kind of nut is this?

JOHNSON: Two things I think. You know [there's] this story going around about the CIA and their tryin' to get ... sendin' in the folks to get [Fidel] Castro.

CLARK: To assassinate Castro.

JOHNSON: Have you got that full story laid out in front of you, and [do you] know what it is? Has anybody ever told you all the story?

CLARK: No.

JOHNSON: I think you oughta have that. I don't ... it's incredible. I don't believe there's a thing in the world to it, and I don't think we oughta seriously consider it. But I think you oughta know about it.

CLARK: Who would I get it from?

JOHNSON: I've had it from three or four [sources]. I've forgotten who's come in here. I'll have to check it.

CLARK: Does the Bureau have it?

JOHNSON: No, I don't think so. You might ask 'em. Pearson—Drew Pearson—came [in] and gave it to me. [Pearson] said [Edward] Morgan[5] told him ... [Morgan is James] Hoffa's lawyer. He [Morgan] says that they have a man that was involved, that was brought in to the CIA, with a number of others, and instructed by the CIA and the Attorney General [Robert Kennedy] to assassinate Castro after the Bay of Pigs [in 1961].[6]

CLARK [uncomfortably]: I've heard that ... you know, I've heard that much. I just haven't heard [any] names, and places, and ...

JOHNSON: Well, let's see who it is ... let's see. I think it would be—[it would] look very bad on us if we'd had it reported to us [a] number of times and we just didn't pay any [attention]—just laughed ... if this is true.

He [Morgan] says that his [client's] limitation—let's check it and see if [the statute of] limitation[s] does run out in November ... they say that the limitation runs out in November.[7] I don't know about this conspiracy, or how much—how many years [the statute of limitations runs]—

CLARK: [It'd] be six years, all right, which would be November, probably. But it [the statute of limitations would] not [run out] for a concealed situation.

JOHNSON: Well, that's what I'd think. But anyway, he [Pearson] says in November he's [Rosselli's] going to tell it. And that—

CLARK: Mr. Pearson is [going to publish the story]?

JOHNSON: No. This individual [Rosselli].[8]

CLARK: This individual?

JOHNSON: Yeah. And these lawyers [Morgan, for one] have it.

There's just all kinds of things that come to me every day. I don't pay any attention to 'em, but maybe I was a little worried this mornin' because one of my lawyer friends told me I oughta call you and talk to you about it.[9] So [that] you'll have a file that protects you, that you just don't look like they report these things to us and we just throw 'em overboard and say, Well, we don't like 'em and it['s] not what we wanna hear. So we're not gonna do anything about it.

But anyway, [the story is] that following this, Castro said—they [the plotters] had these pills, and they're supposed to take 'em when they caught 'em, and they didn't get to take their pills—so he [Castro] tortured 'em. And they told him all about it, and who was present and why they did it. So he [Castro] said, okay. We'll just take care of that. So then he called Oswald and a group in, and told them to ... about this meetin', and go set it up and get the job done.

CLARK: Uh-hmm.

JOHNSON: Now that's their story. And I talked to Abe [Fortas] about it first, and he just said, Well, it's so incredible that ... he'd do it.[10]

[Brief discussion of controversy over FBI wiretapping.]

Now here's what I called about. I just think that if you haven't heard that, maybe you oughta put yourself in a position to either hear Pearson or whoever's circulatin' it. There've been two or three here circulatin' it to me, and Pearson was just one of 'em. But I've forgotten who the others are.[11] They were reputable people, or they wouldn't [have] gotten in here.

CLARK: Pearson was in last week.

JOHNSON: Who?

CLARK: I said, Pearson was in to see me last week and sat here for thirty [or] forty minutes [and] never mentioned anything about it.

JOHNSON: Well, he came to see me ... came to see me in the [Executive] Mansion, oh, I'd say a month ago.[12] And there was before that, one or two others, but I can't remember who. They were responsible people. But it sounded just so [wild]... just like your tellin' me that Lady Bird was taking dope. I just wouldn't pay much attention to it. If I'm seein' her every day, I just don't believe that that was involved.

Anyway, I'll try to think of the other names and give 'em to you. He's the only one I can remember now, and I don't credit it ... I credit it ninety-nine [and] ninety-nine one-hundredths percent untrue. But that's somethin' I think we oughta know has been reported, and y'all oughta do what you think oughta be done to protect yourself.

> [Clark and the President continue to discuss how to monitor Garrison's investigation without seeming to be either too interested or too uninterested.]

.....

By late February several of Jim Garrison's top aides were begging him to drop his investigation. The sudden death (from a brain aneurysm) of his ostensible chief witness, David Ferrie, was a golden opportunity, they privately told him: it provided a perfect excuse to halt the probe. "Are you crazy?" Garrison responded. "Don't you realize that we are on the verge of solving one of the crimes of the century?"[13]

On March 1 Garrison ordered the arrest of Clay Shaw, one of New Orleans's most esteemed and civic-minded businessmen, for conspiring to assassinate President Kennedy. The city was dumbstruck, as were some of the aides in the DA's office. But few people other than Shaw's friends and lawyers believed that a district attorney would be so reckless and irresponsible as to arrest a man without substantial evidence. Garrison must have something.

These events unfolded while John Connally, the governor of Texas, who had been wounded in the Kennedy assassination, was in New York publicizing the next World's Fair, which was scheduled to open in San Antonio in April of 1968. Although Connally was bent on generating attention for the exposition, reporters wanted only to talk to him about the arrest. The feverish reporting eventually got to Connally, who had always concurred with the overall findings of the Warren Commission even though he disputed its "single-bullet theory."[14] Now his certitude was shaken.

Connally called Johnson to discuss some of the reports he'd just heard. He probably expected the President to be intrigued by the news, for two reasons. He knew that Johnson's thinking often gravitated toward conspiratorial explanations. And the story Connally was hearing cast Robert Kennedy in a very unflattering light. Johnson, however, was not impressed. Initially the Garrison probe and the Pearson story had tended to reinforce each other in his mind, insofar as he had attached any credibility to them. But by now the FBI had convinced him that Garrison was a charlatan. And Abe Fortas had pointed out that upon close inspection, Drew Pearson's story seemed full of holes.

summed up his role as a Mob fixer whose colorful adult life, after knock-around teenage criminal years that took him from Boston to Los Angeles, included the gangster's well-known participation with other Mafia heavyweights in a failed CIA plot to assassinate Cuban leader Fidel Castro during the JFK years.

In addition to this secretive high drama, Rosselli, a silky-smooth playboy thought by the FBI to be responsible for 13 murders, had his hand in various legal and illegal enterprises, including money-making ventures in Hollywood and Las Vegas. Rosselli even helped pave the way for reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes to purchase casino properties in Southern Nevada.

Along with constant FBI surveillance, though, there were more than a few difficulties in Rosselli's life. He became caught up in a Hollywood extortion scandal, and later in a cheating scheme involving card players at the Friars Club of Beverly Hills.

All this came to an end in 1976, when the 71-year-old mobster was killed and stuffed into a 55-gallon oil drum later found floating in a bay near Miami. https://themobmuseum.org/blog/mob-fixer-johnny-rosselli-is-back-in-the-spotlight/

The Bay of Capitalist Pigs Flotilla

Capitalist Pigs was the Che term for it. The CIA plan was that a group called Brigade 2506 seemingly a movement interior to Cuba or its exiles would start a revolution in Cuba wanting Capitalism back and a love for freedom and liberty.

At Brigade 2506 School somewhere in Florida I think the CIA taught the Cubans English and the Americans Spanish.

Outfitted as Cuba Nationals and containing groups of Casino operators, oil executives, RCA employees Ted Cruz Seniors these would arrive by CIA air and sea secret transport, swim ashore on an unguarded beach, and begin their internal overthrow of Communism.

Somehow the flotilla was detected or known about in advance and it became a machine gun shooting gallery into the water killing many of the "swimmers" who had left the floatilla to sneak ashore.

Many were captured and tortured. It appears Allan Dulles may have been one, and many like David Morales lost friends to the misadventure.

In Coronorspeack when the manner of death is given as an accident, the coroner has determined that the decedent had taken no unreasonable willful risk. "Misadventure may be the right conclusion when a death arises from some deliberate human act which unexpectedly and unintentionally goes wrong."

This is also true of CIA Operation Post-Mordems. Blame was all around including on JFK who was seen as half hearted leaving the swimmers to die or be tortured.

John Lennon looked on in horror and if you research it was later killed by Goerge Bush as JKF was. It was all part of the joint US and Great Brittian Averal Harriman plan for the world to conduct these operations and the Beatles had already planted some propoganda and Lennon later became disgusted by these operations. Thankfully on Yoko Ono's advice he stopped going along with propagandist requests and left the Beatles.

Prouty And Gunderson

Prouty and Gunderson were both official and both unofficial investigators of the Kennedy Assassination. Both believed a Nixon based Deep State Cabal, Red State GOP mostly CIA.

Both were the closest possible insiders to the CIA and Kennedy Administration. Ted Gunderson the Anti Mafia chief for the FBI was with RObert F. Kennedy when Robert R. Kennedy took the call his brother JFK had been shot.

It is noted from the Prouty biography he suspected William King Harvery, the CIA official named both by Chauncey Holt and E. Howard Hunt.

Here is some biographical information.

“Flexible Response” (to Communist influence on nations of the world rather than uniformed combat) was CIA based assassinations and Psychological Warfare studying how to and then influencing popular opinions in foreign nations and included full overthrow operations lending hands to internal combatants of contested countries.

Col. Prouty spent 9 of his 23 year military career in the Pentagon (1955-1964) VP Nixon served from 1952 to 1960 and jFK inaugurated 1961 to 1963:

- 2 years with the Secretary of Defense,
- 2 years with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and
- 5 years with *Headquarters, U.S. Air Force

In 1955 he was appointed the first "Focal Point" officer between the CIA and the Air Force for Clandestine Operations per National Security Council Directive 5412. He was Briefing Officer for the Secretary of Defense (1960-1961), and for the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

At times he would be called to meet with Allen Dulles and John Foster Dulles at their home on highly classified business.

He was assigned to attend MKULTRA meetings. In this capacity Col. Prouty would be at the nerve center of the Military-Industrial Complex at a time unequalled in American History. He has written on these subjects, about the JFK assassination, the Cold War period, and Vietnamese warfare, and the existence of a "Secret Team". C. P. CABELL

Lieutenant General, USAF

Deputy Director

At times he would be called to meet with Allen Dulles and John Foster Dulles at their home on highly classified business. He was assigned to attend MKULTRA meetings. In this capacity Col. Prouty would be at the nerve center of the Military-Industrial Complex at a time unequalled in American History.

He has written on these subjects, about the JFK assassination, the Cold War period, and Vietnamese warfare, and the existence of a “Secret Team”. He backs up his his work with seldom seen or mentioned official documents – some never before released.

Fletcher Prouty offers a rare glimpse of the “Power Elite” as described by Buckminster Fuller, or “The High Cabal” as Winston Churchill refered to them; and how they really operate. Those who have not been in a position to witness events such as these from the inside would not understand how invisible but ultimately effective they and their power structures are.

Fletcher wrote, lectured, spoke on Radio shows, and was on Television many times, often regarding political intrigue from Watergate to the JFK Assassination. Of course he worked with Oliver Stone, Jim Garrison, and Zachary Sklar on the film “JFK”

Fletcher Prouty was one of the most warm and amiable men you could ever meet. Almost endlessly, people from around the world came to visit and interview him. All you had to do was ask and he would give of his time. It will be his selfless and dogged effort to educate and inform that I feel he will be remembered for.

Whenever I was at his upstairs office at his home there was always a stack of letters that he would be replying to. Not a few, but a stack!

He wrote two books and close to 100 articles for various publications. I know he was very proud of everything thing he had written, but especially his two books, “The Secret Team”, and “JFK, Vietnam The CIA, And The Plot to Assassinate JFK”

Was sent around the world by the Director, Central Intelligence, Allen W. Dulles, to meet the CIA Station Chiefs, 1956. Assigned to the Office of Special Operations.

With the creation of the Defense Intelligence Agency by Secretary McNamara and the abolishment of the OSO, was transferred to the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to create a similar, world-wide office and was the Chief of Special Operations, with the Joint Staff all during 1962-1963.

Received orders to travel as the Military Escort officer for a group of VIPs who were being flown to the South Pole, Nov 10 – Nov 28, 1963, to activate a Nuclear Power plant for heat, light and sea water desalination at the U.S. Navy Base at McMurdo Sound, Antarctica.

Retired as Colonel, U.S. Air Force, 1964 and was awarded one of the first three Joint Chiefs of Staff Commendation Medals by General Maxwell Taylor, Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff.

1964-1965

VP International Operations, General Aircraft Corporation… a company created by MIT and Harvard specialists that designed and built aircraft that were used by the CIA and Army Special Forces.

After the war, Prouty accepted an assignment from the U.S. Army in September 1945 to inaugurate the ROTC program at Yale University, where he also taught during each scholastic year from 1946 to 1948. This timeline intersects with the years that George Bush and William F. Buckley, Jr. also spent at Yale. Prouty fondly recalled Buckley at that time in his role as editor of the Yale Daily News, and Prouty later told an interviewer in 1989 that he had written for Buckley on several occasions.

In 1950 he transferred to Colorado Springs to build Air Defense Command. From 1952 to 1954 he was assigned to Korean War duties in Japan, where he served as Military Manager for Tokyo International Airport (Haneda) during the post-war U.S. occupation.

In 1955 he was assigned to the coordination of operations between the fledgling U.S. Air Force and the CIA.[1] As a result of a CIA commendation for this work he was awarded the Legion of Merit by the U.S. Air Force, promoted to colonel, and assigned to the Office of the Secretary of Defense.[citation needed]

Following the creation of the Defense Intelligence Agency and termination of the OSO by Secretary Robert McNamara, Prouty was transferred to the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and charged with the creation a similar organization on a global scale.

From 1962 to 1963 he served as Chief of Special Operations with the Joint Staff. In an chance encounter with Edward Lansdale in the hallways of the Pentagon, a “month or two before” the assassination (as Prouty tells it), Lansdale informed Prouty he had arranged for him [Prouty] to accompany a group of VIPs to the South Pole from November 10 to 23, in the capacity of Military Escort officer.

The ostensible purpose of the trip was the activation of a nuclear power plant at the United States Navy Base at McMurdo Sound, Antarctica, to provide heat, light, and sea water desalination.[citation needed] Prouty later described his confusion at the unusual assignment, but he expected the job to be a “paid vacation” and accepted the task.

Prouty retired in 1964 as a colonel in the U.S. Air Force. As recognition of his long and distinguished career in the service of his country, he was awarded one of the first three Joint Service Commendation Medals by General Maxwell D. Taylor, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff

Charles Pearre Cabell (October 11, 1903 – May 25, 1971) was a United States Air Force general and Deputy Director of the Central Intelligence Agency (1953–1962) and likely also knew James Paul Donegan my father more on James Paul Donegan and he kennedys and Prouty much later.

Charles P. Cabell was born in Dallas, Texas on October 11, 1903, the son of Ben E. (son of Confederate general William L. Cabell) and Sadie E. (Pearre) Cabell.[1][2] He attended Oak Cliff High School in Dallas, Texas, and graduated from West Point in 1925.[2][3] He was initially commissioned as an artillery lieutenant and served in the field artillery until 1931, when he went to flying school, and was transferred to the Air Corps.

In February 1942, Cabell was assigned as assistant executive for technical planning and coordination in the Office of the Chief of the Air Corps, and promoted to colonel. During the summer of 1943, he attended the first course of the Army and Navy Staff College. In late 1943, he was transferred to the Eighth Air Force and assumed command of the 45th Combat Bombardment Wing. In April 1944, he became director of plans for the U.S. Strategic Air Force in Europe, and later that year, having achieved the rank of brigadier general, became director of operations and intelligence for the Mediterranean Air Forces. During the war he served both at air force headquarters at the Pentagon and in the European Theater.

In May 1945, he was assigned to Air Force headquarters as chief of the Strategy and Policy Division. In December 1945, he was detailed to the United Nations Military Staff Committee, where he held roles as deputy and chief U.S. Air Force delegate to the committee. In August 1947, he was promoted major general and returned to Air Force headquarters, serving in planning and intelligence roles, and became director of Air Force Intelligence in May 1948. In 1949, Cabell set up Project Grudge to “make a study reviewing the UFO situation for AF HQ.” However, Grudge quickly became all but moribund, while simultaneously reporting that all UFO cases were being closely investigated. When Cabell learned of this, he ordered Grudge dissolved and ordered that the “open minded”[4] Project Blue Book be created.

He held this director of Air Force Intelligence post until 1951, before being made director of the staff for the Joint Chiefs of Staff from November 1951 to 1953. During this time, he was promoted to lieutenant general.[citation needed] In 1952, he was an enthusiastic promoter of the U-2 spy plane, along with Allen Welsh Dulles and John Foster Dulles.

CIA career

On April 23, 1953, while still an active air force officer, he was appointed Deputy Director of the CIA under Allen Dulles. In 1956, along with the CIA’s Richard Bissell, he flew to Bonn, to brief the West German Chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, on the ultra-secret U-2 spy plane. Cabell personally negotiated with Chancellor Adenauer for permission to station the U-2 in Wiesbaden and from there to fly over the Soviet Union illegally. It was the U-2 program that allowed CIA chief Allen Dulles to sabotage the peace summit between Khrushchev and Eisenhower.

Cabell was promoted to full general in 1958[6] and retired from active duty effective January 31, 1962.

Cabell was forced to resign as deputy director by President Kennedy on January 31, 1962, following the failure of the Bay of Pigs Invasion.[8] Cabell’s brother, Earle Cabell, was Mayor of Dallas when Kennedy visited that city and was assassinated, on November 22, 1963.

JFK assassination

One hypothesis regarding the assassination of U.S. President John F. Kennedy implicates Cabell and several other CIA officials, including James Jesus Angleton and William King Harvey, as well as the “three tramps”, and Cabell’s brother Earle Cabell.

During Jim Garrison’s 1973 bribery trial, tape recordings from March 1971 revealed that Garrison considered publicly implicating Cabell of conspiracy in the assassination after learning he was the brother of the Dallas mayor.[11] Theorizing that a plot to kill the President was masterminded out of New Orleans in conjunction with the CIA with cooperation from the Dallas police department and city government, Garrison tasked his chief investigator, Pershing Gervais, of looking into the possibility that Cabell had stayed in the city’s Fontainebleau Motel at the time of the assassination.[11] The Washington Post reported that there was no evidence that Gervais ever followed through with the request and that there was no further mention of Cabell in Garrison’s investigation.

So now that we have heard from Secret Team author Prouty now Gunderson who thinks a profit motive CIA Cabal runs the world and assasinted JFK.

US Army Air Force 1941 1942

https://spartacus-educational.com/JFKholt.htm Chauncey Holt was born in Kentucky on 23rd October, 1921. When he was 19 he joined the United States Army Airforce (USAAF). The following year he was court-martialed and sent to the U.S. penitentiary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for attacking another soldier with a Springfield rifle.

Holt was released in June 1940 but deserted from the USAF after the attack on Pearl Harbor. He eventually returned to duty but in 1942 he travelled in a car from Fort Knox to Louisville. He was arrested and charged with taking the car without permission and was sentenced to 18 months in the Industrial Reformatory at Chillicott, Ohio. On his release he found work with the Bethelem-Fairfield Shipyard Company.

After the war Holt met Peter Licavoli, a leading figure in the Mafia in Detroit. Holt was sent to Florida where he worked for Meyer Lansky as an accountant and pilot. This included several trips to Cuba where Lansky had extensive business interests. Lansky also sent Holt to worked for the International Rescue Committee (IRC). This was a Central Intelligence Agency controlled organization that had been set up to distribute funds to organizations attempting to overthrow left-wing governments. During the time Holt was also involved in producing forged documents for the CIA and the Mafia.

Holt also became involved in what later become known as Executive Action (a plan to remove unfriendly foreign leaders from power). This including a coup d'état that overthrew the Guatemalan government of Jacobo Arbenz in 1954 after he introduced land reforms and nationalized the United Fruit Company. However, the main target of this operation was Fidel Castro who had established a socialist government in Cuba.

(2) Chauncey Holt was interviewed by John Craig, Phillip

Rogers and Gary Shaw for Newsweek magazine (19th October, 1991)

At the time of the shooting, the moment the shots were fired, we knew something went awry. We didn't know why, but from the screaming and carrying on we knew that there had been one hell of a bad incident. At the time, what went through our minds was, "Hey, we had gotten ourselves into something that is way over our heads." So I scooted under the train, went under to the other side, encountered Harrelson and Montoya, we searched out the car, which was not too far from the engine, climbed in it, closed the door and sat there in silence, while I monitored the radio and listened to what was going on.

We were in the railroad car by 12:31-12:32, almost immediately... as soon as the shooting started, and there was pandemonium and people were running all over the place. When actually, we look back on it, we could of easily of lost ourselves in all of this stuff. We could have gotten right up to the grassy knoll and thrown ourselves on the ground, like everybody else was, and started screaming, and that would have been the end of it.

We were in the box car a long time. Actually we heard a lot of transmissions. I estimated that it was almost 2 o'clock, although my watch was still on Arizona time. I had a bad habit of not changing my watch. So I think we stayed in there till practically 2 o'clock. We were still in there during the time when we heard the transmissions involving Tippit and back and forth. We heard a lot of other communications. We heard the call than an officer had been dying. I am told and I believe it was somewhere around 1:15 when we heard about the incident at the Texas theater, although we didn't know what happened.

So I thought it was possibly 2 o'clock before the train actually started to move. We started to move, backing down the tracks a little ways. We thought it was going to move, then we starts to backup. I thought they were going to switch us onto another track.

Then suddenly the thing stopped. They opened the door and there was a whole bunch of police officers with shotguns and everything else. We saw, the box car was not a fully loaded box car, but in this box car was ammunition, unusual ammunition. Defcord?, crates that looked like they were possibly claymore mines, drums marked : MUD, which seemed like drilling mud, which was unusual to be with the rest of this material. Which I assumed to be C-4 or some plastic explosives.

The officer too us out, we tried to identify ourselves. We said, "Hey, we're federal agents working on this thing," and they said, "Come with us." So we strolled along and actually we went back, we came out of the yard, we went by the Texas Depository building, across the street. I would say Harrelson and I were sort of dragging along, but Montoya, he was really digging out. He was actually right up behind the lead officer. He turned us over to two officers, the officer in charge, we later learned was Harkness.

In the photos, the individual in front is the individual I knew as Richard Montoya (Charles Rogers). The individual behind him I knew as Charles Harrelson. I had reason to believe that who he actually was, even though I didn't know him that well. I 'm confident that's who it was. And I'm the gentleman in the back, carrying the bag with the radio in it.

We were not placed under arrest. We were taken across, and someone interviewed us momentarily, and turned us over to someone else. A person I later learned was Captain Fritz, he said not two or three words to us. He said he was turning us over to the FBI. His name was Gordon Shanklin.

He asked us who were were, what we were doing there. Just about this time, while were were doing this, there was a lot of confusion, a lot of pandemonium, and actually a lot of, I would term jubilation on the part of all of the police officers in there, especially Gordon Shanklin, which led us to believe that our release was because of something that happened. Although they had said it on a number of occasions, someone else was arrested. They had caught someone in the Dal Tex building. I heard someone say, "We got one of them." But then when the matter came in that they had indicated they had got the individual that had killed the cop in Oakcliff, all at once it seemed to me, even what I considered prematurely, they indicated they had the guy that shot the president too. And at that time the level of attention on us... they had some other people they had detained and looked like they were going to arrest, including Braden.

Jim Braden was there. I didn't recognize him at first, because he had a hat on with some kind of Texas style hat band on it, and I didn't know him all that well, if you know what I mean. But I knew that I recognized him like I recognize you.

But once we got in there, and these events come off because they happened almost at the time we arrived there. Then the attention shifted a lot at once, from us to Oswald, who turned out to be Oswald. I assumed that it was their normal enthusiasm about having captured a cop killer, is what I thought. Because they treat cop killers a hell of a lot different than they treat killers of anyone else. Not the president of course. But at that point, Gorden Shanklin... we hadn't been in there too long. We were there a little while. And all this time... then who we are came up, then they were very careless. We were strolling around, people were coming around. They didn't treat us like dangerous suspects. They didn't handcuff us. Plus they didn't search us, and we were heavily armed.

We were taken to the Sheriff's Department, right there on Dealey Plaza. Didn't walk far. We didn't make a statement. Weren't fingerprinted. Weren't taken to the jail (where) I assume we would have been taken. Then Gordon Shanklin said, "You're free to go."

(3) House Select Committee on Assassinations (1979)

[George H.W. Bush served as Director of Central Intelligence (DCI) from January 1976 to January 1977]

All three men are shabbily dressed, befitting their apparent status as vagrants. Tramp A, however, is the better attired, wearing well-fitting jeans and a tweed-like sports jacket, although this, judged by 1963 styles, was several years out of date. Tramp B is wearing ill-fitting slacks and a double-breasted suit coat. Tramp C, from his battered fedora to his won-out shoes, has managed to achieve a sartorial effect similar to what one would expect had he been fired from a cannon through a Salvation Army thrift shop. While such clothing might be a disguise, their footwear seems consistent with their classification as vagrants. All three men are shod in worn, low-cut oxfords that appear to be leather-soled. Tramp C's shoes seem to be several sizes too large for him.

(4) James H. Fetzer, Assassination Science and the Language of Proof, included in Assassination Science (1998) Chauncey M. Holt, for example, has reported that he was a counterfeiter who, while working as a contract agent for the CIA, brought fifteen sets of forged Secret Service credentials to Dealey Plaza for use by persons in the immediate vicinity (KOGO AM-Radio, San Diego, 22 November 1995). He has told me that he arrived there in the company of Charles Harrelson, father of Woody, who was a notorious hit man for the Mob. Harrelson once said that he killed Kennedy, later retracting it and claiming that he was out of his mind when he said it and the very fact that he said it showed as much. He is serving a life-sentence for the assassination of a federal judge with a high-powered rifle, a very similar crime.

(5) John McAdams, The Three Tramps (2002) The next big break in the case came when the Dallas City Council voted to release all city records having to do with the assassination. Journalist Mary La Fontaine, who was looking through the recently released records, happened to look at a list of records released earlier in 1989. There she found the arrest records that showed the tramps to be: Harold Doyle, John Forester Gedney, Gus W. Abrams

Were these fellows in fact the three tramps? Ray and Mary LaFontaine, working for the tabloid TV program "A Current Affair," set out to find Harold Doyle, whose address was listed on the arrest record as Red Jacket, West Virginia. The trail led from West Virginia to Amarillo, Texas, where the LaFontaines found one of Doyle's former neighbors who remembered him talking about his arrest in Dallas. Doyle was finally located in Klamath Falls, Oregon. He told his story on camera, and was also questioned by the FBI.

The FBI and private researchers sought the other two tramps. Gedney was located in Melbourne, Florida, serving as a municipal officer, a respected member of the community who had not spoken about former life as a vagabond until interviewed by researcher Billy Cox, and by the FBI. Both Doyle and Gedney told the same story of spending the night before the assassination at a rescue mission. According to Oliver Revell of the Dallas FBI office:

Both commented that they had gotten fresh clothes, showered, shaved and had a meal. They headed back to the railroad yard when they heard all the commotion and sirens and everything, and they asked what happened. They were told the president had been shot.

Abrams, the oldest of the tramps, was deceased. But researcher Kenneth Formet interviewed his sister, with whom he had lived the last 15 years of his life. She remembered his vagabond days, saying "he was always on the go hopping trains and drinking wine." When shown a picture of the Dealey Plaza tramps she responded "Yep, that's my Bill!"

Charles Holt was in pilot training so was James Paul Donegan and Col Prouty.

The P-51 was already in combat over the white cliffs of Dover working with the new RADAR units to get airborne in time to repell Luftwafe bombers and fighters even at high altitude so the British had equiped the P-51 with their Rolls Royce engine.

Col Prouty wrote Guns of Dallas and Nixon and Indonesia, two truthful and previously unconnected articles on the CIA that are included here.

L. Fletcher Prouty (1917–2001), a retired colonel of the U.S.

Air Force, served as the chief of special operations for the Joint Chiefs of Staff during the Kennedy years. He was directly in charge of the global system designed to provide military support for the clandestine activities of the CIA. He was the author of JFK: The CIA, Vietnam, and the Plot to Assassinate John F. Kennedy and The Secret Team: The CIA and Its Allies. - Amazon author profile

"Flexible Response" (to Communist influence on nations of the world rather than uniformed combat) was CIA based assassinations and Psychological Warfare studying how to and then influencing popular opinions in foreign nations and included full overthrow operations lending hands to internal combatants of contested countries.

Col. Prouty spent 9 of his 23 year military career in the Pentagon (1955-1964) VP Nixon served from 1952 to 1960 and jFK inaugurated 1961 to 1963:

- 2 years with the Secretary of Defense,

- 2 years with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and

- 5 years with *Headquarters, U.S. Air Force

In 1955 he was appointed the first "Focal Point" officer between the CIA and the Air Force for Clandestine Operations per National Security Council Directive 5412. He was Briefing Officer for the Secretary of Defense (1960-1961), and for the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

At times he would be called to meet with Allen Dulles and John Foster Dulles at their home on highly classified business. He was assigned to attend MKULTRA meetings. In this capacity Col. Prouty would be at the nerve center of the Military-Industrial Complex at a time unequalled in American History. He has written on these subjects, about the JFK assassination, the Cold War period, and Vietnamese warfare, and the existence of a "Secret Team". He backs up his his work with seldom seen or mentioned official documents - some never before released.

Oversight of United States covert operations

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Executive oversight of United States covert operations has been carried out by a series of sub-committees of the National Security Council (NSC).

Birth of covert operations in the Cold War

At the beginning of the Cold War, it was not inevitable that covert operations would become the dominion of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). The National Security Act of 1947 did not explicitly authorize the CIA to conduct covert operations, although Section 102(d)(5) was sufficiently vague to permit abuse. At the very first meetings of the NSC in late 1947, the perceived necessity to "stem the flow of communism" in Western Europe—particularly Italy—by overt and covert "psychological warfare" forced the issue. The actual responsibility for these operations was a hot potato, and when it was decided that the State Department would be in charge, Secretary of State George Marshall sharply opposed it, fearing it would tarnish the international credibility of his department. The upshot was that responsibility for covert operations was passed on to the CIA; this was codified in a NSC policy paper called NSC 4-A,[4] approved in December 1947. NSC 4-A provided the authorization for the intervention of the CIA in the Italian elections of April 1948.[5]

Proposed NSC 4-A Panel

A draft of NSC 4-A envisioned the creation of a NSC-designated "panel" to approve operations. The executive secretary of the NSC, Sidney Souers, recommended that the panel be composed of representatives from the departments of State, Army, Navy and Air Force, as well an "observer" representative from the Joint Chiefs of Staff. This provision was dropped in the final version, which simply stated that the Director of Central Intelligence (DCI) "is charged with ensuring that [covert] psychological operations are consistent with U.S. foreign policy and overt foreign information activities, and that appropriate agencies of the U.S. Government, ..., are kept informed of such operations which will directly affect them."

From NSC 10/2 to NSC 5412 (June 1948–March 1955)

According to the Church Committee, throughout the period June 1948 to March 1955, "NSC directives provided for consultation with representatives of State and Defense". But "these representatives had no approval function. There was no formal procedure or committee to consider and approve projects.

NSC 10/2 Panel

The arrangement in NSC 4-A did not please the influential director of the State Department's Policy Planning Staff (S/P), George F. Kennan. Under his leadership, a S/P paper titled "The inauguration of organized political warfare" was circulated in the NSC in early May 1948, which said that "there are two major types of political warfare—one overt and the other covert. Both, from their basic nature, should be directed and coordinated by the Department of State." Yet Kennan wanted to have his cake and eat it too: the paper made it clear that the State Department should not be formally associated with the conduct of covert operations. Then the Joint Chiefs of Staff entered the fray by guarding its prerogatives, particularly in wartime, especially in theatres of war.[11] As a result of the controversy spurred by Kennan, NSC 4-A was replaced by NSC 10/2, approved by President Harry Truman on 18 June 1948, creating the Office of Policy Coordination (OPC). Kennan was still not satisfied and continued to press for State control, hoping that his choice for OPC director, Frank Wisner, would be loyal to the State Department—he was not.

NSC 10/2 was the first presidential document which specified a mechanism to approve and manage covert operations, and also the first in which the term "covert operations" was defined. NSC 10/2 charged the DCI with "Ensuring, through designated representatives of the Secretary of State and of the Secretary of Defense, that covert operations are planned and conducted in a manner consistent with US foreign and military policies and with overt activities." The representatives to this "10/2 Panel", also known as the "OPC Consultants", were Kennan for State (1948–1950) and Joseph McNarney for Defense (1948–1949). The panel, which met about once a week, was supplanted from January 1950 on by the regular attendance of a representative from the Joint Chiefs of Staff. According to Anne Karalekas, a Church Committee staffer, it did not constrain the OPC:

[The 10/2 Panel was] not an approval body, and there was no formal mechanism whereby individual projects had to be brought before [it] for discussion. Because it was assumed that covert action would be exceptional, strict provisions for specific project authorization were not considered necessary. With minimal supervision from State and Defense and with a shared agreement on the nature of the OPC mission, individuals in OPC could take the initiative in conceiving and implementing projects.[16]

In the first half of its existence, OPC was not really under CIA's control. In the words of Edward P. Lilly, DCI Roscoe H. Hillenkoetter, "although authorized by NSC-10/2 to supervise OPC, had allowed OPC to go its own way." OPC was brought under CIA control in October 1950, when Walter Bedell Smith became DCI. OPC was merged on 1 August 1952 with the CIA branch responsible for espionage, the Office of Special Operations (OSO), to form the Directorate of Plans (DDP).

NSC 10/5 Panel

Truman swelled the bureaucracy on 4 April 1951 when he established the Psychological Strategy Board (PSB). DCI Smith, seeking more high-level policy guidance, wanted the PSB "to replace the 10/2 Panel as approval body"; this proposal was adopted by the NSC. NSC 10/5[20] tried to specify the purpose of the PSB. The 10/2 Panel, which continued to function, was replaced in February 1952 by an enlarged 10/5 Panel, which also included PSB staff.[22] According to an internal CIA review from 1967, the 10/5 Panel "functioned much as the 10/2 Panel had, but the resulting procedures proved cumbersome and potentially insecure."

According to John Prados, the CIA cut the PSB out of the loop, establishing instead an internal mechanism for approval of operations. In 1953, DCI Smith said that the PSB was "incompetent and its work irrelevant".

"As the Truman administration ended", writes the Office of the Historian,

CIA was near the peak of its independence and authority in the field of covert action. Although CIA continued to seek and receive advice on specific projects from the NSC, the PSB, and the departmental representatives originally delegated to advise OPC, no group or officer outside of the DCI and the President himself had authority to order, approve, manage, or curtail operations.[26]

Enter Eisenhower

The Eisenhower administration took office on 20 January 1953. When Eisenhower replaced the PSB with the Operations Coordinating Board (OCB) on 2 September 1953, he also did away with the 10/5 Panel, reverting to "a smaller group identical to the former 10/2 Panel, without OCB staff participation." On 15 March 1954, Eisenhower approved NSC 5412, which required CIA to consult with OCB. Although Eisenhower would later congratulate the CIA with its success in deposing Guatemala's democratically elected President, Jacobo Árbenz, he was privately irked by CIA's unauthorized bombing of SS Springfjord. According to Prados, that incident "convinced Eisenhower of the need for more rigorous control over covert action".

Planning Coordination Group (March 1955–December 1955)

The arrangement in NSC 5412 suffered the same problem as the 10/5 Panel;[23] OCB "included more officials than ought to be concerned with secret war." So on 12 March 1955, Eisenhower approved NSC 5412/1, creating a more senior Planning Coordination Group (PCG) within OCB. Significantly, the directive explicitly charged PCG with approving covert operations. The PCG proved to be a failure; its chairman, Nelson Rockefeller, recommended the abolishment of PCG before year's end. According to Prados, the problem was that CIA had not been forthcoming with details, latching on to a mention of "need-to-know" in NSC 5412/1. The next directive would solve this by creating a committee "so high-powered there could be no question" of its need to know.

Special Group/303 Committee (December 1955–February 1970)

NSC 5412/2 was approved by Eisenhower on 28 December 1955, a directive which remained in force for 15 years.Paragraph 7 specified the new oversight mechanism:

Except as the President otherwise directs, designated representatives of the Secretary of State and of the Secretary of Defense of the rank of Assistant Secretary or above, and a representative of the President designated for this purpose, shall hereafter be advised in advance of major covert programs initiated by CIA under this policy or as otherwise directed, and shall be the normal channel for giving policy approval for such programs as well as for securing coordination of support therefor among the Departments of State and Defense and the CIA.

The resulting body became known as the 5412 Committee or, from 1957, the Special Group. It was the first time a "designated representative" of the President was included in the process; Eisenhower used his National Security Advisors for this purpose. The DCI was an ex officio member. In 1957, Eisenhower made the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff a member as well. In practice the membership of the Special Group varied on an ad hoc basis.

In late 1956, the newly formed PBCFIA, which had turned a candid eye towards covert operations, took issue with the "very informal" procedures of the Special Group. Consequently, an annex to NSC 5412/2 was approved by Eisenhower on 26 March 1957, clarifying project approvals, and for the first time requiring the CIA to circulate "proposal papers" in advance of approval. The board continued to press for more prominence to the Special Group to keep the CIA from freewheeling. Eisenhower himself saw the proper functioning of the Special Group as crucial to fend off initiatives for meaningful congressional oversight of covert operations. On 26 December 1958 Eisenhower asked the Special Group to institute weekly meetings, with the result that "criteria for submission of projects to the Group were, in practice, considerably broadened."

Kennedy administration

The Special Group fell by the wayside when new administration of John F. Kennedy took office on 20 January 1961; although it remained "in theory intact", in practice it "took a backseat to meetings at which JFK personally presided". After the failed Bay of Pigs Invasion, the Special Group returned to prominence, and new procedures were set out in July 1961. In the wake of the scandal, DDP Richard M. Bissell Jr. suggested the name and workings of the Special Group be made public to demonstrate to the American people that the CIA was under effective executive oversight; that did not happen.

A second Special Group (Augmented) existed from November 1961 to the Cuban Missile Crisis of October 1962. The only difference was that it was specifically dedicated to managing the Cuban Project which sought to overthrow Fidel Castro's regime, and was headed by Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy. After the Missile Crisis brought the world to the brink of destruction, management of the war against Castro was transferred to discussions in the EXCOMM and NSC proper, before being handed over to an "obscure NSC appendage" known as the Standing Group chaired by National Security Advisor McGeorge Bundy.

Johnson administration

The Special Group was renamed to the 303 Committee on 2 June 1964, in response to the publication of the book The Invisible Government by David Wise and Thomas B. Ross, which made the old name public. A NSC staffer had recommended the new name be "something utterly drab and innocuous" to deflect away attention. The number refers to the national security directive which effected the change, NSAM 303.Alternatively, the Encyclopedia of the Central Intelligence Agency by W. Thomas Smith Jr. claims the name derives from “a room number in the executive office complex in Washington D.C.”

40 Committee

On 17 February 1970, President Richard Nixon approved NSDM 40, superseding and revoking NSC 5412/2, and replacing the 303 Committee with the 40 Committee. Among the few substantive changes introduced by Nixon was the inclusion of Attorney General John N. Mitchell and a requirement to review covert programs annually. Like earlier, public exposure was the motive for changing the name; National Security Adviser Henry Kissinger explained to Nixon that "In view of recent mention of the 303 Committee in the public media, the directive changes the committee name to coincide with the number assigned to the NSDM itself, which is 40."

Nixon and Kissinger, who was charged with overseeing all covert operations on Nixon's behalf, kept the 40 Committee out of the loop on almost all the major and sensitive decisions, and the 40 Committee stopped having meetings; in 1972 it only met once.

Operations Advisory Group

On February 18, 1976, 40 committee was replaced by the Operations Advisory Group, in accordance with Executive Order 11905 issued by Gerald Ford. The new group was composed of the President's Assistant for National Security Affairs, the Secretaries of State and Defense, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the Director of Central Intelligence.

NSC Special Coordination Committee

The following year, on May 13, 1977, President Jimmy Carter issued Executive Order 11985 which updated the previous order, and renamed the Operations Advisory Group to the NSC Special Coordination Committee (SCC).

National Security Planning Group

Under the Reagan administration, the Special Coordination Committee was replaced by the National Security Planning Group (NSPG) which included the Vice-President, the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of State, the Assistant for National Security Affairs, and the Director of the CIA. One level below the NSPG was the Policy Coordination Group (PCG), first known as the Crisis Pre-Planning Group (CPPG); one source describes the PCG as the actual successor to the Special Coordination Committee.

Special Intelligence Office

In 2002–2003, during the Bush Administration, Under Secretary of Defense for Policy Douglas Feith created a special-purpose group encompassing and focusing on all military and intelligence efforts involving Iraq, Afghanistan, and other Near East countries, as well as all activities falling under the rubric of the Global War on Terror. This group has been said to have been responsible for stovepiping selective raw intelligence data, bypassing analysis processes as well as bypassing customary cooperation and coordination with NSA, Mossad, and other intelligence entities in order to shape decisions as to the war with Iraq. Its functions were morphed in the Office of Special Plans, which was subsequently investigated for manipulations of intelligence, unlawful activities, and espionage.

Fletcher Prouty offers a rare glimpse of the "Power Elite" as described by Buckminster Fuller, or "The High Cabal" as Winston Churchill refered to them; and how they really operate. Those who have not been in a position to witness events such as these from the inside would not understand how invisible but ultimately effective they and their power structures are.

In 1955 under VP Richard Nixon and the National Security Council USAF officer Prouty was appointed the first “Focal Point” officer between the CIA and the Air Force for Clandestine Operations per National Security Council Directive 5412. He was Briefing Officer for the Secretary of Defense (1960-1961), and for the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

This was important administratively because by that time Frank Wisner, the CIA Deputy Director of Plans, had set up his forward headquarters in Singapore and at the direction of the 5412 Committee of the National Security Council, headed by Nixon, Wisner occupied that faraway headquarters himself. (It should be noted that in 1958 Allen Dulles was the head of the CIA, his brother John Foster Dulles was the Secretary of State, Eisenhower was President, and Nixon, as Vice President, chaired the clandestine affairs committee, then known as the "Special Group 5412/2." In other words nothing was done in Indonesia that was not directed by Nixon. If an action had not been directed by the NSC, then it was done unlawfully by the CIA.)

In 1958 Allen Dulles would have brought such a major operation to the attention of the Special Group and he would operate with its approval. This was an essential step in national policy because it then empowered the Department of Defense to provide the necessary support requested by the CIA. Much of this fell within the area of my responsibility at Air Force Headquarters, and I was kept informed on a regular basis of approved action and of Nixon's keen interest in this project.

What is not generally known about the complex Indonesian struggle is the role that was played by the then Vice President of the United States, Richard M. Nixon, and the bitter aftermath that involved the sudden ouster of Allen Dulles' protege, Frank Wisner, who at that time was the head of the clandestine arm of the CIA. After Watergate, when Anthony Lukas wrote in his book Nightmare, about the growing mistrust between Nixon and the Director of Central Intelligence, Richard Helms, he could have added that since the 1958 Indonesian rebellion there were many in the CIA who made a career of hating Nixon because of what he had done to Frank Wisner, among others.

The Indonesian attache was wined and dined and encouraged to talk more. Reasons for the attache's return to Indonesia on official business were successfully arranged. He was accompanied by CIA agents traveling under the cover of "U.S.

military" personnel. During this visit they spoke with rebel leaders. They learned enough about the potential strength of this opposition to encourage the CIA to set in motion its biggest operation up to that date.

In the Pentagon there are thousands of nondescript offices in which all sorts of tasks are done. One of these unobtrusive offices was an Air Force Plans Division office. One day in 1958 two men from the CIA entered that office. After being identified they were permitted entrance to an interior office that was the "Focal Point" office for all U.S. Air Force Support of the clandestine operations of the CIA. I Col Prouty had established that office in 1955 on orders from Gen. Thomas D. White, then Chief of Staff of the Air Force. This came about after several meetings with Allen W. Dulles, the Director of Central Intelligence, and others. When the CIA men entered that office in 1958, I was still in charge.

The agents outlined the Indonesian Plan, the Philippine support and training program, and told me about their own special operations staff that had been put together specifically for this vast project. Then they urgently requested light bombardment aircraft and long-range transport aircraft. We decided to take a number of twin engine B-26 aircraft out of mothball storage, put them through a retrofit line, and modify them so that they could be armed with a special 50-caliber machine gun package of eight guns, in the nose of the plane. This would give the B-26 more firepower than it ever had during the Korean War or World War II. The project was given top priority and covered in deep secrecy. Programs for pilot training and the recruitment of "mercenaries" were established.

Concurrent with our work the CIA was putting together a "wartime" operational staff. Lt. Gen. Earl Barnes, who had been a senior air commander during World War II under Gen. Douglas MacArthur, was brought in to run all clandestine air activities.

This was important administratively because by that time Frank Wisner, the CIA Deputy Director of Plans serving under fired by JFK Richard Bissle JR, had set up his forward headquarters in Singapore and at the direction of the 5412 Committee of the National Security Council, headed by Nixon, Wisner occupied that faraway headquarters himself. (It should be noted that in 1958 Allen Dulles (also fired by JFK) was the head of the CIA, his brother John Foster Dulles was the Secretary of State, Eisenhower was President, and Nixon, as Vice President, chaired the clandestine affairs committee, then known as the "Special Group 5412/2." In other words nothing was done in Indonesia that was not directed by Nixon. If an action had not been directed by the NSC, then it was done unlawfully by the CIA.)

In 1958 Allen Dulles would have brought such a major operation to the attention of the Special Group and he would operate with its approval. This was an essential step in national policy because it then empowered the Department of Defense to provide the necessary support requested by the CIA. Much of this fell within the area of my responsibility at Air Force Headquarters, and I was kept informed on a regular basis of approved action and of Nixon's keen interest in this project.

The rebellion flared sporadically from one end of Indonesia to the other.

While the CIA was supporting up to 100,000 rebels, the State Department professed innocence. The U.S. ambassador, Howard P. Jones, maintained that the United States had nothing to do with the rebellion and he protested the capture of the American oil properties. On the other hand, Sukarno had asked for more arms aid from the United States. He must have had strong suspicions about the source of rebel support. The vast number of guns, the bombers and heavy air transport aircraft dropping hundreds of tons of arms and equipment, as well as submarines supporting beach operations were just too sophisticated to be anything but major power ploys.

Thus, his appeal for U.S. arms aid had the ring of gamesmanship.

Playing along with the game, John Foster Dulles of Eisehower Nixon State Department issued a statement saying that the United States would not provide arms to either side.

Operation 40 from Spartacus Educational

On 11th December, 1959, Colonel Joseph Caldwell King, chief of CIA's Western Hemisphere Division, sent a confidential memorandum to Allen W. Dulles, the director of the Central Intelligence Agency. King argued that in Cuba there existed a "far-left dictatorship, which if allowed to remain will encourage similar actions against U.S. holdings in other Latin American countries."

As a result of this memorandum Dulles established Operation 40. It obtained this name because originally there were 40 agents involved in the operation. Later this was expanded to 70 agents. The group was presided over by Richard Nixon. Tracy Barnes became operating officer of what was also called the Cuban Task Force. The first meeting chaired by Barnes took place in his office on 18th January, 1960, and was attended by David Atlee Phillips, E. Howard Hunt, Jack Esterline, and Frank Bender.

According to Fabian Escalante, a senior officer of the Cuban Department of State Security (G-2), in 1960 Richard Nixon recruited an "important group of businessmen headed by George Bush (Snr.) and Jack Crichton, both Texas oilmen, to gather the necessary funds for the operation". (2) This suggests that Operation 40 agents were involved in freelance work.

It is known that at this time that George Bush and Jack Crichton were involved in covert right-wing activities. In 1990 Common Cause Magazinemagazine argued that: "The CIA put millionaire and agent George Bush in charge of recruiting exiled Cubans for the CIA’s invading army; Bush was working with another Texan oil magnate, Jack Crichton, who helped him in terms of the invasion." (3) This story was linked to the release of "a memorandum in that context addressed to FBI chief J. Edward Hoover and signed November 1963, which reads: Mr. George Bush of the CIA" (4)

Reinaldo Taladrid and Lazaro Baredo claim that in 1959 George Bush was asked “to cooperate in funding the nascent anti-Castro groups that the CIA decided to create”. The man “assigned to him for his new mission” was Féliz Rodríguez.

Daniel Hopsicker also takes the view that Operation 40 involved private funding. In the book, Barry and the Boys: The CIA, the Mob and America’s Secret History, he claims that Richard Nixon had established Operation 40 as a result of pressure from American corporations which had suffered at the hands of Fidel Castro.

Webster Griffin Tarpley and Anton Chaitkin have argued that George Bush was very close to members of Operation 40 in the early 1960s. In September, 1963, Bush launched his Senate campaign. At that time, right-wing Republicans were calling on John F. Kennedy to take a more aggressive approach towards Castro. For example, in one speech Barry Goldwater said: “I advocate the recognition of a Cuban government in exile and would encourage this government every way to reclaim its country. This means financial and military assistance.” Bush took a more extreme position than Goldwater and called for a “new government-in-exile invasion of Cuba”. As Tarpley and Chaitkin point out, beneficiaries of this policy would have been “Theodore Shackley, who was by now the station chief of CIA Miami Station, Felix Rodriguez, Chi Chi Quintero, and the rest of the boys” from Operation 40.

Paul Kangas is another investigator who has claimed that George Bush was involved with members of Operation 40. In an article published in The Realist in 1990, Kangas claims: "Among other members of the CIA recruited by George Bush for (the attacks on Cuba) were Frank Sturgis, Howard Hunt, Bernard Baker and Rafael Quintero.” In an article published in Granma in January, 2006, the journalists Reinaldo Taladrid and Lazaro Baredo argued that “Another of Bush’s recruits for the Bay of Pigs invasion, Rafael Quintero, who was also part of this underworld of organizations and conspiracies against Cuba, stated: If I was to tell what I know about Dallas and the Bay of Pigs, it would be the greatest scandal that has ever rocked the nation."

Fabian Escalante names William Pawley as being one of those who was lobbying for the CIA to assassinate Fidel Castro. (9) Escalante points out that Pawley had played a similar role in the CIA overthrow of Jacobo Arbenz Guzmán in Guatemala. Interestingly, the CIA assembled virtually the same team that was involved in the removal of Arbenz: Tracey Barnes, Richard Bissell, David Morales, David Atlee Phillips, E. Howard Hunt, Rip Robertson and Henry Hecksher. Added to this list was several agents who had been involved in undercover operations in Germany: Ted Shackley, Tom Clines and William Harvey.

According to Daniel Hopsicker, the following were also involved in Operation 40: Edwin Wilson, Barry Seal, William Seymour, Frank Sturgis and Gerry Hemming. (10) It has also been pointed out that Operation 40 was not only involved in trying to overthrow Fidel Castro. Sturgis has claimed: "this assassination group (Operation 40) would upon orders, naturally, assassinate either members of the military or the political parties of the foreign country that you were going to infiltrate, and if necessary some of your own members who were suspected of being foreign agents."

At times he would be called to meet with Allen Dulles and John Foster Dulles at their home on highly classified business. He was assigned to attend MKULTRA meetings. In this capacity Col. Prouty would be at the nerve center of the Military-Industrial Complex at a time unequalled in American History. He has written on these subjects, about the JFK assassination, the Cold War period, and Vietnamese warfare, and the existence of a “Secret Team”. He backs up his his work with seldom seen or mentioned official documents – some never before released.

Fletcher Prouty offers a rare glimpse of the “Power Elite” as described by Buckminster Fuller, or “The High Cabal” as Winston Churchill refered to them; and how they really operate. Those who have not been in a position to witness events such as these from the inside would not understand how invisible but ultimately effective they and their power structures are.

Fletcher wrote, lectured, spoke on Radio shows, and was on Television many times, often regarding political intrigue from Watergate to the JFK Assassination. Of course he worked with Oliver Stone, Jim Garrison, and Zachary Sklar on the film “JFK”

Fletcher Prouty was one of the most warm and amiable men you could ever meet. Almost endlessly, people from around the world came to visit and interview him. All you had to do was ask and he would give of his time. It will be his selfless and dogged effort to educate and inform that I feel he will be remembered for.

Whenever I was at his upstairs office at his home there was always a stack of letters that he would be replying to. Not a few, but a stack!

He wrote two books and close to 100 articles for various publications. I know he was very proud of everything thing he had written, but especially his two books, “The Secret Team”, and “JFK, Vietnam The CIA, And The Plot to Assassinate JFK”

Secretary McNamara and the abolishment of the OSO, was transferred to the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to create a similar, world-wide office and was the Chief of Special Operations, with the Joint Staff all during 1962-1963.

Received orders to travel as the Military Escort officer for a group of VIPs who were being flown to the South Pole, Nov 10 – Nov 28, 1963, to activate a Nuclear Power plant for heat, light and sea water desalination at the U.S. Navy Base at McMurdo Sound, Antarctica.

Retired as Colonel, U.S. Air Force, 1964 and was awarded one of the first three Joint Chiefs of Staff Commendation Medals by General Maxwell Taylor, Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff.

VP International Operations, General Aircraft Corporation… a company created by MIT and Harvard specialists that designed and built aircraft that were used by the CIA and Army Special Forces.

After the war, Prouty accepted an assignment from the U.S. Army in September 1945 to inaugurate the ROTC program at Yale University, where he also taught during each scholastic year from 1946 to 1948. This timeline intersects with the years that George Bush and William F. Buckley, Jr. also spent at Yale. Prouty fondly recalled Buckley at that time in his role as editor of the Yale Daily News, and Prouty later told an interviewer in 1989 that he had written for Buckley on several occasions.

In 1950 he transferred to Colorado Springs to build Air Defense Command. From 1952 to 1954 he was assigned to Korean War duties in Japan, where he served as Military Manager for Tokyo International Airport (Haneda) during the post-war U.S. occupation.

In 1955 he was assigned to the coordination of operations between the fledgling U.S. Air Force and the CIA.[1] As a result of a CIA commendation for this work he was awarded the Legion of Merit by the U.S. Air Force, promoted to colonel, and assigned to the Office of the Secretary of Defense.[citation needed]

Following the creation of the Defense Intelligence Agency and termination of the OSO by Secretary Robert McNamara, Prouty was transferred to the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and charged with the creation a similar organization on a global scale.

From 1962 to 1963 he served as Chief of Special Operations with the Joint Staff. In an chance encounter with Edward Lansdale in the hallways of the Pentagon, a “month or two before” the assassination (as Prouty tells it), Lansdale informed Prouty he had arranged for him [Prouty] to accompany a group of VIPs to the South Pole from November 10 to 23, in the capacity of Military Escort officer.

The ostensible purpose of the trip was the activation of a nuclear power plant at the United States Navy Base at McMurdo Sound, Antarctica, to provide heat, light, and sea water desalination.[citation needed] Prouty later described his confusion at the unusual assignment, but he expected the job to be a “paid vacation” and accepted the task.

Prouty retired in 1964 as a colonel in the U.S. Air Force. As recognition of his long and distinguished career in the service of his country, he was awarded one of the first three Joint Service Commendation Medals by General Maxwell D. Taylor, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff

Charles Pearre Cabell (October 11, 1903 – May 25, 1971) was a United States Air Force general and Deputy Director of the Central Intelligence Agency (1953–1962) and likely also knew James Paul Donegan my father more on James Paul Donegan and he kennedys and Prouty much later.

Charles P. Cabell was born in Dallas, Texas on October 11, 1903, the son of Ben E. (son of Confederate general William L.

Cabell) and Sadie E. (Pearre) Cabell.[1][2] He attended Oak Cliff High School in Dallas, Texas, and graduated from West Point in 1925.[2][3] He was initially commissioned as an artillery lieutenant and served in the field artillery until 1931, when he went to flying school, and was transferred to the Air Corps.

In February 1942, Cabell was assigned as assistant executive for technical planning and coordination in the Office of the Chief of the Air Corps, and promoted to colonel. During the summer of 1943, he attended the first course of the Army and Navy Staff College. In late 1943, he was transferred to the Eighth Air Force and assumed command of the 45th Combat Bombardment Wing. In April 1944, he became director of plans for the U.S. Strategic Air Force in Europe, and later that year, having achieved the rank of brigadier general, became director of operations and intelligence for the Mediterranean Air Forces. During the war he served both at air force headquarters at the Pentagon and in the European Theater.

In May 1945, he was assigned to Air Force headquarters as chief of the Strategy and Policy Division. In December 1945, he was detailed to the United Nations Military Staff Committee, where he held roles as deputy and chief U.S. Air Force delegate to the committee. In August 1947, he was promoted major general and returned to Air Force headquarters, serving in planning and intelligence roles, and became director of Air Force Intelligence in May 1948. In 1949, Cabell set up Project Grudge to “make a study reviewing the UFO situation for AF HQ.” However, Grudge quickly became all but moribund, while simultaneously reporting that all UFO cases were being closely investigated. When Cabell learned of this, he ordered Grudge dissolved and ordered that the “open minded”[4] Project Blue Book be created.

He held this director of Air Force Intelligence post until 1951, before being made director of the staff for the Joint Chiefs of Staff from November 1951 to 1953. During this time, he was promoted to lieutenant general.[citation needed] In 1952, he was an enthusiastic promoter of the U-2 spy plane, along with

Allen Welsh Dulles and John Foster Dulles.

CIA career

On April 23, 1953, while still an active air force officer, he was appointed Deputy Director of the CIA under Allen Dulles. In 1956, along with the CIA's Richard Bissell, he flew to Bonn, to brief the West German Chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, on the ultra-secret U-2 spy plane. Cabell personally negotiated with Chancellor Adenauer for permission to station the U-2 in Wiesbaden and from there to fly over the Soviet Union illegally. It was the U-2 program that allowed CIA chief Allen Dulles to sabotage the peace summit between Khrushchev and Eisenhower.

Cabell was promoted to full general in 1958[6] and retired from active duty effective January 31, 1962.

Cabell was forced to resign as deputy director by President Kennedy on January 31, 1962, following the failure of the Bay of Pigs Invasion.[8] Cabell's brother, Earle Cabell, was Mayor of Dallas when Kennedy visited that city and was assassinated, on November 22, 1963.

JFK assassination

One hypothesis regarding the assassination of U.S. President John F. Kennedy implicates Cabell and several other CIA officials, including James Jesus Angleton and William King Harvey, as well as the "three tramps", and Cabell's brother Earle Cabell.

During Jim Garrison's 1973 bribery trial, tape recordings from March 1971 revealed that Garrison considered publicly implicating Cabell of conspiracy in the assassination after learning he was the brother of the Dallas mayor.[11] Theorizing that a plot to kill the President was masterminded out of New Orleans in conjunction with the CIA with cooperation from the Dallas police department and city government, Garrison tasked his chief investigator, Pershing Gervais, of looking into the possibility that Cabell had stayed in the city's Fontainebleau Motel at the time of the assassination. [11] The Washington Post reported that there was no evidence that Gervais ever followed through with the request and that there was no further mention of Cabell in Garrison's investigation.

Personal life

Cabell was married to Jacklyn DeHymel in 1934; they had two sons, Charles P. Cabell, Jr. and Benjamin Cabell IV, and one daughter, Catharine C. Bennett. He left an autobiography, A Man of Intelligence: Memoirs of War, Peace and the CIA, published in 1997. His oldest son Charles was also an Air Force officer and West Point graduate (Class of 1958), achieving the rank of brigadier general.

Case Against Bush

I do not recall, on the advice of my lawyer, there is nothing new here, there is no smoking gun, we have an investigation underway internally and when appropriate will be made public, it depends on what the definition of is is.

Did George H.W. Bush Coordinate a JFK Hit Team? - ANDY'S FORUM retrieved from Jhttps://andygreek1.websitetoolbox.com/post/did-george-h-w-bush-coordinate-a-jfk-hit-team-6277983 and copied or modified to here

This is not the first time and surely will not be the last that George H.W. Bush, former Director of the CIA and the 41st President of the United States, has been implicated in the death of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, our 35th president. In an earlier study, for example, “Was George H.W. Bush involved in the assassination of JFK?”, John Hankey and I both address this question, where he provides a great deal of evidence supporting a role for GHWB in the Dealey Plaza turkey shoot. In this new study, Richard Hooke substantiates that claim and advances additional proof of his own. I believe that they are right.

That GHWB knew Malcolm “Mac” Wallace from Yale is especially stunning. ”Mac” Wallace was LBJ’s personal hit man and murdered as many as a dozen persons for Lyndon, including one of his own sisters, who was talking too much about his business to allow her to continue to speak. There is substantial proof that LBJ was involved in the assassination, where his life had been dedicated to becoming “the president of all the people”. As Phil Nelson, LBJ: Mastermind of JFK’s Assassination (2nd revised edition, 2011) documents, he was relentless in its pursuit. Madeleine Duncan Brown, Texas in the Morning (1997), Barr McClellan, Blood, Money & Power (2003), and Billy Sol Estes, A Texas Legend (2004), have also identified LBJ as the pivotal player, which has been confirmed by E. Howard Hunt, “Last Confessions” (2007), who identified LBJ, Cord Meyer, David Atlee Phillips, William Harvey and David Sanchez Morales as in “the chain of command”.

Even Jack Ruby, who was in the position to know, asserted that, if someone else had been Vice President, the assassination would never have occurred. McClellan concluded that Texas oil men, such as Clint Murchison and H. L. Hunt, had provided financing for the assassination in order to preserve the oil depletion allowance at 27.5%, which remained unchanged under LBJ. I had over 100 conversations with Madeleine Duncan Brown, who began an affair with Lyndon in 1948 and bore him a son, Steven, in 1950 (who was not his only child out of wedlock but was his only male offspring), who told me about their renderzvous at the Driskill Hotel in Austin, TX, on New Year’s Eve, only six weeks after the assassination, when she confronted him with rumors that he had been involved, since no one stood to gain more personally, whereupon Lyndon blew up and told her that the CIA and the oil boys had decided that JFK had to be taken out. And that Mac Wallace was involved is not in serious doubt.

Wallace went to work for Harry Lewis and L & G Oil.

In 1970 he returned to Dallas and began pressing Edward Clark for more money for his part in the assassination of John F. Kennedy. According to Barr McClellan it was then decided to kill Wallace. “He had to be eliminated. After driving to see his daughter in Troup, Texas, he went by L & G’s offices in Longview, Texas. There his exhaust was rigged for part of it to flow into his car.”On 7th January, 1971, Malcolm Wallace was killed while driving into Pittsburg, Texas. He appeared to have fallen asleep and after leaving the road crashed his car. Wallace died of massive head injuries.

Soon afterwards Clifton C. Carter died aged 53. 1971 was also the year Billie Sol Estes was due to leave prison. According to Clint Peoples, a Texas Ranger based in Austin, Billie Sol Estes had promised to tell the full story of the death of Henry Marshall when he obtained his freedom.

On 9th August, 1984, Estes’ lawyer, Douglas Caddy, wrote to Stephen S. Trott at the U.S. Department of Justice. In the letter Caddy claimed that Wallace, Billie Sol Estes, Lyndon B. Johnson and Cliff Carter had been involved in the murders of Henry Marshall, George Krutilek, Harold Orr, Ike Rogers, Coleman Wade, Josefa Johnson, John Kinser and John F. Kennedy. Caddy added: “Mr. Estes is willing to testify that LBJ ordered these killings, and that he transmitted his orders through Cliff Carter to Mac Wallace, who executed the murders.”

This is consistent with Billy Sol’s interview with French investigative reporter, William Reymond, during which he explained that Lyndon had sent his chief administrative assistant, Cliff Carter, down to Dallas to make sure that all the arrangements for the assassination were in place, which he reaffirms in A Texas Legend (2004). Billy Sol knew both Cliff Carter and “Mac” Wallace personally, inferring their involvement from personal conversations. A copy of email correspondence between John Simkin of The Education Forum and Douglas Caddy may be found on amazon.com, which substantiates Lyndon's use of Cliff Carter to convey instructions to "Mac" Wallace to commit those crimes. I am therefore stunned to discover that GHWB and "Mac" Wallace were both members of Skull & Bones at Yale.

Why the Dal-Tex Matters

According to The Warren Report (1964), three shots were fired during the assassination. The FBI and the Secret Service concluded that day that the first had hit JFK in the back, the second had hit John Connally in the back, and the third had hit JFK in the back of the head, killing him. It would later surface that one shot that had been fired had missed and injured a distant bystander, James Tague. For those who believed more than three shots had been fired, this was not especially problematic, where it turns out that eight, nine or ten shots appear to have been fired from six different locations. (See, for example, "Dealey Plaza Revisited: What happened to JFK?") But for those who are committed to only three, it posed a delicate predicament, which led to the fabrication of the "magic bullet" theory that the back shot had actually hit the back of his neck, exited his throat, and entered the back of Connally.

All of the evidence is against it; indeed, it is not only provably false but not even anatomically possible, insofar as cervical vertebrae intervene, as I explain in "Reasoning about Assassinations". It nevertheless became the fulcrum of the "official account", since otherwise the throat wound and the wounds to Connally have to be explained on the basis of other shots and other shooters. Extensive, meticulous and detailed examination of the medical, ballistic and eyewitness testimony supports the conclusion that JFK was hit four times–once in the back (from behind); once in the throat (from in front); and twice in the head (once in the back of the head from behind and once in the right temple from the right/front). None of those shots appear to have been fired from the 6th floor “assassin’s lair” but three from the Dal-Tex, where the acoustics were such that they sounded as though they could have been fired from the Texas School Book Depository. Richard’s study suggests that GHWB was at that window of the Dal-Tex:

Let me emphasize that this is my analysis of the shot sequence, which I have elaborated in several places, including “What happened to JFK–and why it matters today” (UW-Madison, 22 November 2011), where Richard does not necessarily agree with me, even though we both believe three shots were fired from the Dal-Tex, which is the subject that he addresses in his study below. One appears to have missed and injured James Tague. Another appears to have hit the chrome strip above the windshield. And the third appears to have hit JFK in the back of his head. In particular, Richard believes that another shot was fired from behind the picket fence, which Ed Hoffman, among others, supports. And I agree that there may have been yet another shooter. -

George H.W. Bush Coordinated the Dal-Tex Hit Team

GHWB at the TSBD: a Houston oil man by Richard Hooke

George H.W. Bush was working for the CIA at least as early as 1961; more than likely he was recruited in his college days, at Yale, when he was in the Skull and Bones Society. He and his wife Barbara moved to Houston where he ran an offshore oil drilling business, Zapata Offshore Co., which was a CIA front company with rigs located all over the world, making it very convenient for him to vanish for weeks at a time on CIA business where one would suspect what he was doing. Bush was a major organizer and recruiter for the Bay of Pigs invasion, which was codenamed Operation ZAPATA. Col. Fletcher Prouty, former Pentagon high ranking official, who was the basis for the “Col. X” character in Oliver Stone’s “JFK”, obtained two Navy ships for the operation that were repainted to non-Navy colors and then renamed HOUSTON and BARBARA.

Dupont, the War Industries Board, Avereall Harriman, Standard Oil, Zapata Oil, and other businesses. HRG Group, Inc., formerly Harbinger Group Inc. and Zapata Corporation, is a holding company based in Rochester, New York, having originated from an oil company started by a group including future U.S. president George H. W. Bush. In 2009, it was renamed the Harbinger Group Inc. Founder: George H. W. Bush Revenue Decrease US$5.2 billion (2017) Wikipedia

According to a CIA internal memo dated November 29, 1975,[7] Zapata Petroleum began in 1953 through Bush's joint efforts with Thomas J. Devine, a CIA staffer who had resigned his agency position that same year to go into private business, but who continued to work for the CIA under commercial cover. Devine would later accompany Bush to Vietnam in late 1967 as a "cleared and witting commercial asset" of the agency, acted as his informal foreign affairs advisor, and had a close relationship with him through 1975.

In 1954, Zapata Off-Shore Company was formed as a subsidiary of Zapata Oil, with Bush as president of the new company. He raised some startup money from Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington Post, and his son-in-law, Philip Graham.[10][11]

Zapata Off-Shore accepted an offer from an inventor, R. G. LeTourneau, for the development of a mobile but secure drilling rig. Zapata advanced him $400,000, which was to be refundable if the completed rig did not function, followed by an additional $550,000 together with 38,000 shares of Zapata Off-Shore common stock when it did.

The U.S. government began to auction off mineral rights to the Caribbean, the Gulf of Mexico, and islands off the Central American coast in 1954, and in the late 1950s and early 1960, Zapata Off-Shore concentrated its business in these areas.[12] In 1958, drilling contracts with the seven largest U.S. oil producers included wells 40 miles (64 km) north of Isabela, Cuba, near the island Cay Sal.

In 1959 Bush bought control of Zapata Off-Shore, funded with $800,000,[13] splitting Zapata Corporation into two independent companies with the Liedtkes still in control of Zapata Petroleum. Bush moved his offices and family that year from Midland, Texas to Houston for access to the Caribbean through the Houston Ship Channel.[14][better source needed] But although Zapata Offshore had only a few drilling rigs, Bush set up operations also in the Gulf of Mexico, the Persian Gulf, Trinidad, Borneo, and Medellín, Colombia, and the Kuwait Shell Petroleum Development Company was among the company's clients.[15][better source needed]

In 1960, Jorge Díaz Serrano of Mexico was put in touch with Bush by Dresser Industries. Dresser was owned by Prescott Bush's Yale friends Roland and W. Averell Harriman, and had been George H.W. Bush's first employer upon his graduation from Yale, giving him his start in both the oil business and the defense contractor business.[16][better source needed] Serrano and Bush created a new company, Perforaciones Marinas del Golfo, aka Permargo, in conjunction with Edwin Pauley of Pan American Petroleum, with whom Zapata had a previous offshore contract. The deal with Permargo is not mentioned in Zapata's annual reports, and SEC records are missing. In 1988, a Bush spokesman claimed that the deal lasted only from March to September 1960. However, Zapata sold the oil-drilling rig Nola I to Pemargo in 1964.[citation needed]

Zapata's filing records with the U.S.Securities and Exchange Commission are intact for the years 1955–

1959, and again from 1967 onwards. However, records for the years 1960–1966 are missing. The commission's records officer stated that the records were inadvertently placed in a session file to be destroyed by a federal warehouse, and that a total of 1,000 boxes were pulped in this procedure. The destruction of records occurred either in October 1983 (according to the records officer), or in 1981 shortly after Bush became Vice President of the United States (according to, Wison Carpenter, a record analyst with the commission).

George H.W. “Poppy” Bush is one of the few who could never recall where he was or what he was doing when JFK was assassinated; as a matter of fact, for over 20 years, he could not recall any details at all. He was 39 years old at the time and chairman of the Harris County (Houston) Republican Party and an outspoken critic of JFK. But on 21 November 1963, GHWB was staying at the Sheraton Hotel in downtown Dallas and spoke that very evening to the American Association of Oil Drilling Contractors. Some time later, he was reportedly at “the ratification meeting” at the home of Clint Murchison, Sr., receiving last minute instructions and toasting JFK’s murder the night before it happened. [NOTE: Madeleine Duncan Brown has written about this event in her book, Texas in the Morning (1997). It was corroborated by Nigel Turner in Part 9, "The Guilty Men", of "The Men who Killed Kennedy".]

Deputy Sheriff Roger Craig reported to Jim Garrison he knew of twelve arrests made in Dealey Plaza that day. One, in particular, was made by R.E. Vaughn of the Dallas Police Department, was of a man coming out of the Dal-Tex Building, who said he was “an independent oil operator from Houston, Texas.” The prisoner was taken from Vaughn by Dallas Police detectives, and that was the last he saw of him: no mug shot, no interview, no fingerprints, or name is in existence of this mystery man. “Independent oil operator from Houston” was always George Bush’s (CIA) cover. Exactly why was he arrested? Garrison reported the man came running out of the Dal-Tex building and authorities could hardly avoid arresting him because of the clamor of onlookers. He was taken to the Sheriff's Office for questioning, although there is no record of it. Afterward, two officers escorted him out of the building to the jeers of the waiting crowd. They put him in a police car and he was driven away; presumably right back to Dealey Plaza, because that is where he would be photographed with USAF Gen. Edward Lansdale.

Ed Landsdale was identified walking past "the three tramps" (center) by no less authorities than L. Fletcher Prouty, the liaison between the Pentagon and the CIA for covert activities–who was the basis for the figure, "Col. X", in Oliver Stone's "JFK", and Victor Krulak, former Commandant of the Marine Corps, both of whom knew him well.

As for the identity of GHWB, we have these observations from Ralph Cinque, a professional chiropractor, who is an expert in dealing with person's bodies and clothing, "The case for George HW being there is cinched. What's the serious alternative? That a simply amazing coincidence occurred in which a man who looked strikingly like him just happened to be there? How many times does V (for Vendetta in the film, "V for Vendetta") have to tell us that he, like God, does not play dice and does not believe in coincidences? Neither do I or any other serious student of murder, especially not when it involves the JFK assassination." We have a photo of him standing in front of the Texas School Book Depository; we have photos of Ed Lansdale in Dealey Plaza at the time; and we have yet another in which Lansdale, who was famous for arranging assassinations around the world, is waiting to speak to him. In this case, it may justifiably be said that "these pictures really are worth more than a thousand words".

The Phony Alibi

The next that we hear of George H.W. Bush on 22 November 1963 comes from an FBI Memorandum according to which GHWG, having been cut loose from his anonymous interrogation at the Dallas Sheriff's Office, called into SAC Graham W. Kitchel of the FBI Office in Houston alleging was establishing a phony alibi in saying he recalled hearing, in recent weeks, a man named James Parrott talking of killing the President when he came to Houston. Shortly after Bush made this call, FBI agents were dispatched to the Parrot house. In another FBI memo Parrot's mother said James, who was not home when the FBI arrived, had been home all day helping her care for her son Gary.

Mrs. Parrot advised that shortly after 1 PM a Mr. Reynolds came by and talked to her son about painting some signs at Republican Headquarters on Waugh Drive. The net effect was Kerney Reynold's, George Bush's assistant, gave Parrot an alibi and Parrot was Bush's alibi; everyone's ass was covered. A bogus phone call reporting a would-be assassin who was one of Bush's Republican Party sign-painters; who himself is also freed by an alibi from one of Bush's buddies, really doesn't cut it; this is CIA Alibi 101. This type of stuff cannot be allowed to stand in history; if Bush was so concerned about his sign painter, why didn't he call in to alert the FBI before President Kennedy came to Dallas?

Bush has handed us his head on a silver platter with this memo; that's why he always said he didn't remember what his was doing on 11/22/63; he was hoping this incredibly stupid memo never surfaced. Bush was worried he had been seen and subsequently panicked and stupidly called the FBI, thinking he was being clever by providing evidence that it wasn't him that was arrested in front of the Dal-Tex building that day. It seemed like a good idea, at the time, but he was actually creating a permanent record of his involvement. The memo identifies Bush as an oil man from Houston placing a long distance call from Tyler, Texas. Bush was trying to establish he was not in Dallas during, or shortly after, the assassination. He must had been worried that someone would identify him as the oil man detained running out of the Dal-Tex building and being ushered in and out of the Dallas Sheriff's office.

This FBI memo, dated 22 November 1963, states that Bush called from Tyler, Texas but there is no proof he was actually there. For over 20 years after the assassination, Bush said he did not remember where he was when the assassination took place at 12:30 PM in Dallas. The only other person of whom I hae heard such a story was Richard Nixon, who flew out of Love Field just two hours before JFK flew in.

Conspicuously, this FBI memo fails to provide an answer to where George Bush actually was. The memo, however, does tell us that the first moment Bush was free to create a phony alibi was at 1:45 PM. Bush was staying in downtown Dallas at the Sheraton Hotel, just few blocks from Dealey Plaza, yet he's trying to tell us he was in Tyler, Texas at 1:45 PM.

George Bush's CIA assignment was obviously in Dallas, that's why he was staying there, so what would he have been doing in Tyler? JFK had just been shot at 12:30 PM. Would Bush not have been in Dallas at 12:30 PM as well, like everyone else, which was presumably the reason for him having been in town at the Dallas Sheraton Hotel? Would Bush not have driven down the road to Parkland Hospital, to check on the President's condition; like everyone else? Except Bush was being interrogated at the Sheriff's Office.

The FBI Memorandum

Bush appears to be a candidate for prosecution for treason: his alibis for 22 November 1963 are fabricated and we have evidence that shows he was there. An FBI memo of a call from Tyler Texas does not prove his location, except that he had concocted a textbook CIA alibi, that he was lying and probably was an accessory to JFK's murder. Bush maintained for over twenty years after the assassination that he simply did not remember what he was doing at the time of the assassination. As a matter of fact, he had no explanation even in his autobiography; and then, all of a sudden, he concocted a story that he was speaking in Tyler, Texas to The Rotary Club. Aubrey Irby said Bush was speaking when the bellhop came over and informed Aubrey that JFK was dead. Mr. Aubrey passed the info on to Mr. Wendell Cherry Irby, who passed it onto Bush, who stopped his speech. According to Irby, Bush explained he thought a political speech was inappropriate under the circumstances, concluded speaking and simply sat down.

It is inconceivable that George Bush could not have recollected this event for more than 20 years. Walter Cronkite's announcement to the world that JFK was dead came on TV at 1:38 PM. Does anyone think that Bush was making a speech at that time, in Tyler, Texas, to the Rotary Club, after the President and Governor Connally were known to have been shot at 12:30 PM? President Kennedy had been scheduled to give a speech for lunch at the Dallas Trade Mart, after he passed through Dealey Plaza. Everyone who was anyone around Dallas was going to attend that speech; and after JFK was shot, most rushed to Parkland Hospital to find out the latest news concerning the gravely wounded President and Governor. A speech being given in Tyler, Texas, inside a building owned by right wingers, to a group of Republican JFK haters, hardly qualities as evidence Bush was not in Dallas, where the available evidence suggests that he was on assignment for the CIA and was supervising the Dal-Tex hit team, from which three shots appear to have been fired with a Mannlicher-Carcano, which appears to have been the the only non-silenced weapon that was used:

Next, George Bush can be seen in photos of Dealey Plaza, next to the TSBD doorway and Ed Lansdale, shortly following the assassination (see below). These photos, unmistakably George Bush, tell us where he went after he left the Dallas Sheriff's Office: back to the crime scene to get an update on all that he had missed. He must have made his call to the FBI reporting James Parrot from the Dallas Sheriff's Office, at 1:45 PM, because Bush is seen in Dealey Plaza with Lansdale, who would leave the plaza at about 2 PM and walk past "the three tramps" toward the parking lot. Bush obviously had to go straight back to Dealey Plaza for him to be photographed with Lansdale, who remained around Dealey Plaza until Oswald was arrested at the Texas Theater at 1:50 PM. If Lee had not been arrested, then Lansdale, as "Plan B", might have framed the three tramps–Charles Rogers, Charles Harrelson and Chauncey Marvin Holt (often misidentified as E. Howard Hunt)–who had been directed to go to a boxcar and the assassination have been blamed on them. Holt (CIA), the tramp with the hat, reported that they were found in the box car and taken through the plaza right after Oswald was arrested, which he knew because he was listening in, on a CIA provided radio concealed inside the paper bag that he is carrying in the familiar photos.

An Incriminating Memorandum

An FBI Memo from director J. Edgar Hoover (to the right), discovered by John McBride in 1988 but written just seven days after the assassination, provides verification George H.W. Bush was an officer of the CIA in 1963 and was provided updates on the anti-Castro Cubans. George Bush has said this memo was referring to another "George Bush" because he wasn't in the CIA at the time. But while there was another man by that name, he was a file clerk and would not have been receiving a memorandum about the Bay of Pigs operation. And other information has surfaced showing the George Bush in the document was indeed George H.W. Bush and had the same address. In 1976, President Ford appointed George Bush as the Director of the CIA, replacing William Colby. Bush served in this role for 357 days, from 30 January 1976 to 20 January 1977. Bush falsely testified before Congress that he had never worked for the CIA, and it was widely reported that this was the first time that a civilian would be appointed to run the agency. But that was more poppycock from Poppy. George Bush appears to have been a CIA lifer, probably recruited right out of Yale.

George H.W. Bush (CIA) was also a close friend with George De Mohrenschildt (CIA), including they were both members of the Dallas Petroleum Club. After De Mohrenschildt was found shot to death the day before he was to be questioned by Gaeton Fonzi for the HSCA reinvestigation of the deaths of JFK and MLK in the late 1970s, Bush's name and address were found in De Mohrenschildt's address book: "Bush, George H.W. (Poppy) 1412 W. Ohio also Zapata Petroleum Midland." CIA documents reveal that during the planning of the Bay of Pigs Operation (Operation Zapata), De Mohrenschildt made frequent trips to Mexico and Panama and gave reports to the CIA. His son-in-law also told the Warren Commission that he believed De Mohrenschildt was spying for the planned Cuban invasion. George De Mohrenschildt, notably, was Lee Harvey Oswald's best friend and appears to have been his handler after Oswald was brought to Dallas in the fall of 1963 and would find work at the TSBD.

Was Bush in the Window?

In The Killing of a President (1994), Robert Groden observes that a dark-complected man was seen in the window whom James Richards has identified to Jim Fetzer as having been Nestor "Tony" Izquierdo, for whom there is a statue in Freedom Park of "Little Havana", Miami, Florida. He was an anti-Castro Cuban, whom GHWB may have known from the Bay of Pigs. I have built upon the prior research of Duncan MacRae, "Dal-Tex Shooter 2nd floor", which provides the most suggestive interpretation of the location from which three rifle shots appear to have been fired:

Given that Bush was in the building at the time, I infer that he was there in the background, inside the window of a broom closet of a uranium mining company on the second floor of the Dal-Tex building (which was a CIA asset). My interpretation is that someone with GHWB's preppy haircut, large left ear, tall height, body language (head tilt), hairline part and forehead profile, was supervising the Dal-Tex hit team (see collage below). He was in Dallas for a reason, which was not to watch the presidential motorcade, and appears to have been a supervisor rather than a shooter, were it is very likely he was communicating using a radio device with a spotter. That spotter may have been Danny Arce (CIA), who can be seen speaking into a walkie-talkie, out on Houston Street (in the Altgens6 photo above), standing next to Johnny Roselli (CIA/Mafia). Arce was talking with someone as multiple shots were fired. Ruth Ann (CIA) was reported (by complicit witness Loy Factor) to have been counting down a cadence and to have been receiving information by walkie-talkie from the 6th floor of the TSBD.

Umbrella Man's companion, possibly Orlando Bosch (CIA) [NOTE: or Filipe Vidal Santiago], was not talking on his radio as limousine passed the Stemmons Freeway sign and the Umbrella man pumped his umbrella up and down, which appears to have been a signal to "keep firing" because the target was still alive. [NOTE: It was at a location that was visible from all of the shooting locations that I have identified above.] Chauncey Holt (CIA), the oldest of the tramps, said he had a CIA supplied radio, concealed in his brown paper bag that kept him updated on events even from inside the Rock Island Railroad boxcar. Holt had delivered 15 sets of fake Secret Service ID and left them in a red pick-up truck parked in the lot behind the grassy knoll, which was used by the Dallas Police Department, earlier that morning, facilitating the escape of the grassy knoll shooters. And Lee Bowers, the railway tower switchman, also testified to the Warren Commission that he observed strange people driving behind the picket fence and noticed one using a walkie-talkie.

Proof Sketch GWHB was there

(1) The FBI report (memo) Bush called in at 11/22/63 1:45 PM identified him as an oil business man from Houston, Texas and the FBI office he called was the Houston office.

(2) The man arrested running out of the Dal-Tex building at approximately 12:35 PM on 11/22 was said (per Deputy Sheriff Roger Craig) to have identified himself as “an oil man from Houston”. Bush was arrested by R.E. Vaughn of the Dallas Police Department. (

3) Bush called his FBI warning about James Parrot by long distance to his friend, FBI Special Agent Graham W. Kitchel, at the FBI office in Houston.

(4) James Parrot had no history as a subversive but was a sign painter for George Bush’s Republican Senate campaign.

(5) James Parrot was quickly provided an alibi by another friend, who was also an assistant of Bush, Kerney Reynolds.

(6) George Bush was staying in Dallas at the downtown Sheraton Hotel and had spent the previous night (of the 21st) there.

(7) There are at least two photos of George Bush (CIA) in Dealey Plaza speaking with police shortly after JFK was shot at 12:30 PM.

(8) One of those photos has Bush (CIA) standing next to Ed Lansdale (CIA).

(9) One of the photos shows Bush near the TSBD doorway in a zone police had cordoned off, which would have taken special ID (CIA).

(10) The photo next to Lansdale most likely was taken between 1:45 PM, when Bush called in his bogus FBI memo, and 2 PM, when Lansdale is pictured exiting the plaza passing the three tramps. The tramps were taken from the boxcar at approximately 1:50 PM, when Oswald was arrested at the Texas Theater.

(11) For over 20 years, George H.W. Bush said he did not remember what he was doing during the assassination, then he suddenly remembered he was giving a speech to the Rotary Club in Tyler at 1:38 PM, while his FBI call reporting James Parrot was placed at 1:45 PM.

(12) His attendance with Malcolm “Mac” Wallace at Yale, when “Mac” was LBJ’s personal hit man, and his attendance at the ratification meeting at the home of Clint Murchison, Sr., are powerful circumstantial evidence of his complicity in the assassination of JFK.

POSTSCRIPT

Remarkably, there is a figure (in the DCA film) walking off the corner of Houston & Elm and toward the Dal- Tex building, where “the oil man from Houston” (George H.W. Bush) had been arrested minutes earlier, who looks a great deal like his son, 17 year old George W. Bush. This figures ear, nose (where a crude effort to change the nose has been made in the second of these three images), bridge indent and jawline are a very close match to George W. Bush, where the preppy loafers and white sox he's wearing are cheerleader appropriate. It looks like W. was there, too.

Spartacus Educational- Eugene Hale Brading (also known as James Lee and Jim Braden) developed a long criminal record while living in California. Arrested 35 times he had convictions for burglary, illegal bookmaking and embezzlement.

On 21st November, 1963, Brading arrived in Dallas with a man named Morgan Brown. They stayed in Suite 301 of the Cabana Motel. Later that day Brading visited the offices of Texas oil billionaire Haroldson L. Hunt. It is believed that Jack Ruby was in the offices at the same time as Brading.

After the assassination of John F. Kennedy, Brading was arrested and taken in for interrogation because he had been "acting suspiciously" in the Dal-Tex Building, overlooking Dealey Plaza. Brading told the police he was in Dallas on oil business and had gone into the building to make a phone call. Brading was released without charge.

Brading returned to his room at the Cabana Motel. It was later established that Jack Ruby visited the motel around midnight.

Assassination of John F. Kennedy Encyclopedia

In his book, The Kennedy Conspiracy, Anthony Summers shows that Brading had links with Carlos Marcello, Santos Trafficante and David Ferrie.

In 1968 Brading was interviewed by the Los Angeles Police Department because of his presence in Los Angeles on the night that Robert Kennedy was murdered.

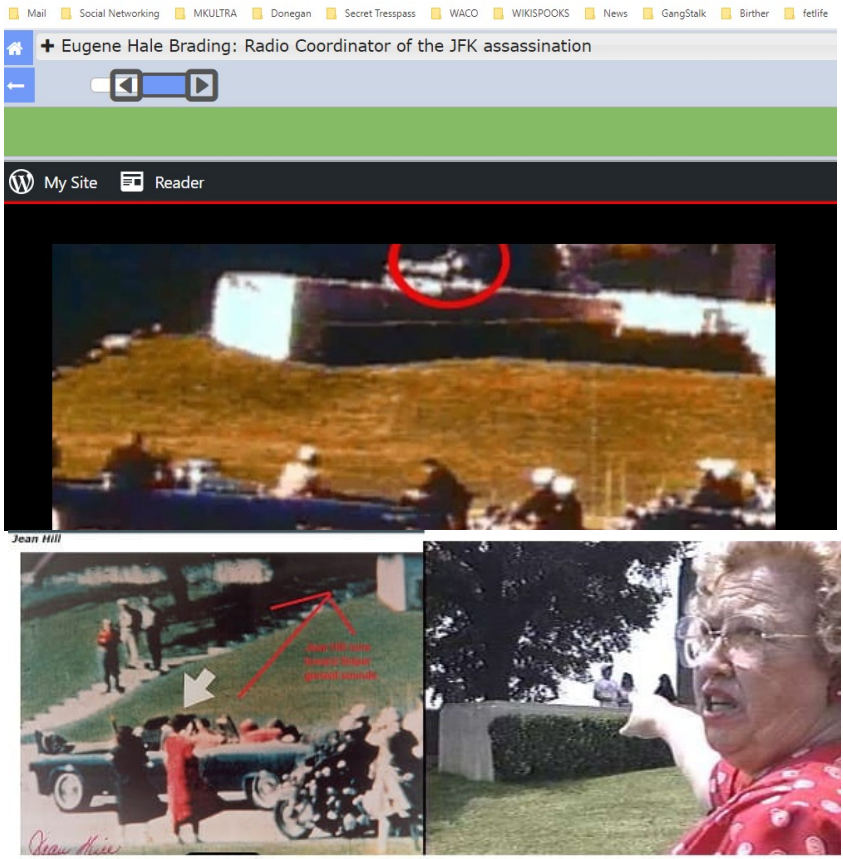
Interestingly, there were several arrests made in the Dal Tex building. A young man wearing a black leather jacket and black gloves was taken to the Sheriff's Office who, according to the police, '. . . had been up in the building across the street from the Book Depository without a good excuse'. No record appears to exist of the man or of any interrogation, however, and he seems to have somehow slipped away from the Sheriff's Office and disappeared, without even anything to indicate he was thereafter sought. Larry Florer was also arrested and detained for some hours. He said he had asked where he could find a telephone and had been directed to the Dal Tex building. All lines being busy, Florer said he could not make his call and he was arrested as he left the building. A third man arrested there was extremely interesting. He was Jim Braden, also known as Eugene Hale Brading, a known Mafia courier. He said he had had an appointment to meet Lamar Hunt, son of H.L. Hunt, the oil millionaire, on oil business. Braden was with a friend, Morgan H. Brown (Brown Oil, Los Angels California), who bolted when he heard he had been taken in for questioning. A man with 30 arrests to his record, Braden had been staying at the Kabanya Motor Hotel, where Jack Ruby - who was to kill Lee Harvey Oswald in the Police Headquarters basement two days after the assassination - had met some of his Chicago friends the night before the President was killed. Braden was not detained. Five years later, however, Braden was to turn up in Los Angeles when Senator Robert Kennedy was murdered.

Clinton Murchison Sr. and Sid Richardson, became friends of J. Edgar Hoover, the head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. It was the start of a long friendship. According to Anthony Summers, the author of The Secret Life of J. Edgar Hoover (1993): "Recognizing Edgar's influence as a national figure, the oilmen had started cultivating him in the late forties-inviting him to Texas as a houseguest, taking him on hunting expeditions. Edgar's relations with them were to go far beyond what was proper for a Director of the FBI."

Hoover and his friend, Clyde Tolson, were regular visitors to Murchison's Del Charro Hotel in La Jolla, California. The three men would visit the local racetrack, Del Mar. Allan Witwer, the manager of the hotel at the time, later recalled: "It came to the end of the summer and Hoover had made no attempt to pay his bill. So I went to Murchison and asked him what he wanted me to do." Murchison told him to put it on his bill. Witwer estimates that over the next 18 summers Murchison's hospitality was worth nearly $300,000. Other visitors to the hotel included Richard Nixon, John Connally, Lyndon B. Johnson, Meyer Lansky, Santos Trafficante, Johnny Rosselli, Sam Giancana and Carlos Marcello.

In 1952 Hoover and Murchison worked together to mount a smear campaign against Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic Party candidate for the presidency. Hoover and his friend, Clyde Tolson, also invested heavily in Murchison's oil business. In 1954 Murchison joined forces with Richardson and Robert Ralph Young to gain control of the New York Central Railroad. This involved buying 800,000 shares worth $20 million.

Moorman and Hill



Mary Ann Moorman and Jean Hill say they were in the line of fire of gunshots toward JFK's head originating from the structure area of just beyond the Grassy Knoll at its far end. One photo by Moorman is said to contain images of a sniper with a badge, not easily resolved as a dispute.

Jean Hill was born in 1931. She worked as a teacher in Oklahoma City before moving to a Dallas school in 1962. On 22nd November, 1963, Hill, watched the motorcade of President John F. Kennedy from the grassy knoll facing the Texas School Depository Building. Hill and her friend, Mary Moorman, who was taking Polaroid pictures of the motorcade, were only a few feet away from President John F. Kennedy when he was shot. Hill and Moorman thought the shots had come from behind her on the grassy knoll and as soon as the firing stopped they ran towards the wooden fence in an attempt to find the gunman. Hill claims that they were detained by two secret service men. After searching the two women they confiscated the picture of the assassination.

Shirley Martin telephoned Hill on 25th January, 1964. She told Martin that as soon as the firing stopped they ran towards the wooden fence [of the train yard parking lot] in an attempt to find the gunman. However, they were detained by two secret service men. After searching the two women they confiscated the picture of the assassination.

Hill told Shirely Martin that she was very scared as another witness, Warren Reynolds, had been shot in the head by an unknown assailant, the night before:

> "Mrs Hill told me that she and Miss Moorman had received many threatening phone calls urging them to keep quiet [Ed Donegan has had over 1000 forms of threats and attempts to silence him] and when they reported these to the Dallas police, they received an official brush-off. Mrs. Hill said Miss Moorman would not talk to me as she was much more frightened and upset over the whole thing than Mrs. Hill was."

Warren Reynolds was born in Dallas on 22nd June, 1935. After leaving Forest Avenue High School he found work at his brother's company, Reynolds Motor Company.

On 22nd November, 1963, Reynolds was in the Oak Cliff area when Officer J. D. Tippit was killed. He did not see the shooting but saw the gunman running from the scene of the crime. Robert J. Groden later claimed that Reynolds stated that the man he saw was not Lee Harvey Oswald.

On 23rd January, 1964, Reynolds was himself the victim of a violent attack. Darrell Garner was arrested but Betty Mooney MacDonald, who had worked for Jack Ruby gave Garner an alibi. MacDonald was then arrested for fighting with her roommate. Soon afterwards MacDonald committed suicide in her police cell.

Despite being shot in the head Reynolds survived and after making a full recovery gave evidence to Warren Commission. He had now changed his mind and identified Oswald as the man he had seen running from the scene of the crime.

Hill later gave evidence to the Warren Commission that was highly controversial. She claimed that she heard between four and six shots. Hill was also convinced that some of the shots came the grassy knoll. In interviews on television after the assassination Hill said she saw "a little white dog" in the rear seat of the president's car. As there was no dog in the car, the reliability of Hill's witness statement was undermined. However, 25 years later, it was revealed that a small white stuffed animal was on the back seat of the car. A child had presented it to Jackie Kennedy at the beginning of the tour of Dallas. This information was suppressed in order to discredit Hill as a reliable witness. - https://spartacus-educational.com/JFKhillJ.htm

Mary Ann Moorman (born August 5, 1932) is an American woman who chanced to photograph US President John F. Kennedy a fraction of a second after he was fatally shot in the head in Dallas, Texas. The Badge Man, whom conspiracy theorists claim is one of Kennedy's assassins, is purportedly visible in another of her photographs taken that day.

Norma Jean Lollis Hill (February 11, 1931 – November 7, 2000) was an American woman who was an eyewitness to the assassination of United States President John F. Kennedy in Dallas, Texas, on November 22, 1963.

Hill was known as the "Lady in Red" because of the long red raincoat she wore that day, as seen in Abraham Zapruder's film of the assassination.[1][2] A teacher by profession, she was a consultant for Oliver Stone's 1991 film JFK and co-wrote JFK: The Last Dissenting Witness with Bill Sloan.

Hill's claims have been both disputed and embraced. While official sources have considered her an unreliable witness for a number of reasons, other researchers investigating the assassination and the conclusions of the Warren Commission consider her a highly credible witness. They point to significant circumstantial evidence of an apparent smear campaign to undermine the testimony and credibility of Hill, the closest civilian witness to the assassination and its immediate aftermath.

Jean Hill was a consistent critic of the official report of the Warren Commission since its release and in 1992 she co-wrote a book entitled The Last Dissenting Witness. In this book she made the assertion that her reported testimony before the Warren Commission was fabricated by the commission, a claim also made by others about Warren Commission testimony.[3] Others point out that those claims cannot be verified one way or the other, and argue that the Warren Commission did not fabricate testimony at all, although some people who probably committed perjury point to the possibility of an internal conspiracy.

Knoll gushot, seems to reveal the figures standing there upon maginifation. Jack White and Gary Mack did the five years long analysis so long after the photo had originally been taken. This is in Chapter 2 of the series.

Biographer Arnold Rogow explores the pathos and tragedy of Forrestal's tormented life. He was brought up in a rigidly Catholic environment where harsh discipline gave the boy doubts about himself that were never overcome by his many achievements. He compensated by emphasizing toughness in terms of physicality and morality – he had no use for slackers or cowards. He felt war was a necessity and that negotiation was possible only alongside military parity or superiority. This intensity alienated his colleagues, as he focused his fears on Communists and Zionists. He abandoned his religion and his Irish community, but was never at ease on Wall Street, where he suspected and envied its rich and well-born WASP elite. Although his brilliance and energy made him a favorite of President Roosevelt, he profoundly distrusted liberalism and never championed the New Deal.

Before Majestic 12

During the years following World War II the Government of the United States was confronted with a series of events which were to change beyond prediction its future and with it the future of humanity. These events were so incredible that they defied belief. A stunned President Truman and his top military Commanders found themselves virtually impotent after having just won the most devastating and costly war in history. The United States had developed, used, and was the only nation on earth in possession of the Atomic Bomb which alone had the potential to destroy any enemy, and even the Earth itself. At that time the United States had the best economy, the most advanced technology, the highest standard of living, exerted the most influence, and fielded the largest and most powerful military forces in history.

We can only imagine the confusion and concern when the informed elite of the United States Government discovered that an alien spacecraft piloted by insect like beings from a totally incomprehensible culture had crashed in the desert of New Mexico.

Between January 1947 and December 1952 at least 16 crashed or downed alien craft, 65 alien bodies, and 1 live alien were recovered. An additional alien craft had exploded and nothing was recovered from that incident. Of these incidents, 13 occurred within the borders of the United States not including the craft which disintegrated in the air. Of these 13, 1 was in Arizona, 11 were in New Mexico, and 1 was in Nevada. Three occured in foreign countries. Of those 1 was in Norway, and the last 2 were in Mexico. Sightings of UFO's were so numerous that serious investigation and debunking of each report became impossible utilizing the existing intelligence assets.

Alien-Earth Presence

[Edwar Donegan asserts Free Masons plantged Relatives in various towns staring in 1902 to study FOXP2]

An alien craft was found on February 13, 1948 on a mesa near Aztec, New Mexico. Another craft was located on March 25, 1948 in Hart Canyon near Aztec, New Mexico. It was 100 feet in diameter. A total of 17 alien bodies were recovered from those two craft. Of even greater significance was the discovery of a large number of human body parts stored within both of these vehicles. A demon had reared its ugly head and paranoia quickly took hold of everyone then "in the know." The secret lid immediately became an Above Top Secret lid and was screwed down tight. The security blanket was even tighter than that imposed upon the Manhattan Project. In the coming years these events were to become the most closely guarded secrets in the history of the world.

A special group of America's top scientists were organized and a program under the name Project Sign was created in December of 1947 to study the phenomenon. The whole nasty business was contained within the shroud of secrecy. Project Sign evolved into Project Grudge in December of 1948. A low level collection and disinformation project named Blue Book was formed under Grudge. 16 volumes were to come out of Grudge including the controversial "Grudge 13" which I and Bill English saw, read, and revealed to the public. "Blue Teams" were put together to recover the crashed disks and dead or alive aliens. The Blue Teams were later to evolve into Alpha Teams under Project Pounce.

During these early years the United States Air Force and the CIA exercised complete control over the Alien Secret.

In fact the CIA was formed by Presidential Executive Order first as the Central Intelligence Group for the express purpose of dealing with the alien presence. Later the National Security Act (NSA) was established to oversee the intelligence community and especially the alien endeavor.

A series of National Security Council memos and Executive Orders removed the CIA from the sole task of gathering foreign intelligence and slowly but thoroughly "legalized" direct action in the form of covert activities at home and abroad.

Intelligence Gathering

On December 9, 1947, Truman approved issuance of NSC-4, entitled "Coordination of Foreign Intelligence Information Measures" at the urging of Secretaries Marshall, Forrestal, Patterson, and the director of the State Department's Policy Planning Staff, Kennan.

The Foreign and Military Intelligence, Book 1, "Final Report of the Select Committee to Study Governmental operations with respect to Intelligence Activities." United States Senate, 94th Congress, 2nd Session, Report No. 94-755, April 26, 1976, page 49 states: "This directive enpowered the secretary of state to coordinate overseas information activities designed to counter communism. A top secret annex to NSC-4, NSC-4A, instructed the director of Central Intelligence to undertake covert psychological activities in pursuit of the aims set forth in NSC-4. The initial authority given the CIA for covert operations under NSC-4A did not establish formal procedures for either coordinating or approving these operations. It simply directed the DCI to "undertake covert actions and ensure, through liaison with State and Defense, that the resulting operations were consistent with American policy."

Later NSC-10/1 and NSC-10/2 were to supersede NSC-4 and NSC-4A and expand the covert abilities even further. The Office of Policy Coordination (OPC) was chartered to carry out an expanded program of covert activities. NSC-10/1 and NSC-10/2 validated illegal and extra-legal practices and procedures as being agreeable to the national security leadership. The reaction was swift. In the eyes of the intelligence community "no holes were barred". Under NSC-10/1 an Executive Coordination Group, was established to review, but not approve, covert project proposals. The CG was secretly tasked to coordinate the alien projects. NSC-10/1 and NSC-10/2 were interpreted to mean that no one at the top wanted to know about anything until it was over and successful. these actions established a buffer between the President and the information. It was intended that this buffer serve as a means for the President to deny knowledge if leaks divulged the true state of affairs.

This buffer was used in later years for the purpose of effectively isolating succeeding Presidents from the knowledge of the alien presence other than what the Secret Government and the intelligence community wanted them to know.

NSC-10/2 established a study panel which met secretly and was made up of scientific minds of the day. The study panel was NOT called MJ-12. Another NSC memo, NSC-10/5 further outlined the duties of the study panel. These NSC memos and secret Executive Orders set the stage for the creation of MJ-12 only 4 years later.

EBE

Extraterrestrial Biological Entity may have had Mitochondrial Digestive or swalloiwing disorder. Edward Donegan

The live alien that had been taken from the 1947 Roswell crash was named EBE. The name had been suggested by Dr.

Vannever Bush and was short for Extraterrestrial Biological Entity. EBE had a tendency to lie and for over a year would give only the desired answer to questions asked. Those questions which would have resulted in an undesirable answer went unanswered. At some point during the second year of captivity he began to open up and the information derived from EBE was startling, to say the least. This compilation of his revelations became the foundation of what would later be called the "Yellow Book". Photographs were taken of EBE which, among others, I and Bill English were to view years later in GRUDGE 13. In late 1951 EBE became ill. Medical personnel had been unable to determine the cause of EBE's illness and had no background from which to draw. EBE's system was chlorophyll based and he processed food into energy much the same as plants. Waste material was excreted the same as plants. It was decided that an expert on botany was called for. A botanist, Dr. Guillermo Mendoza, was brought in to try and help him recover. Dr. Mendoza worked to save EBE until mid-1952 when EBE died. Dr. Mendoza became an expert on alien biology.

In a futile attempt to save EBE and to gain favor with this technologically superior alien race the United States began broadcasting a call for help early in 1952 into the vast regions of space. The call went unanswered but the project continued as an effort of good faith.

Creation Of The NSA

[Ed Donegan NSA worked with Linguist and Cryptographhers]

President Truman created the super secret National Security Agency by secret Executive Order on November 4,1952. Its primary purpose was to decipher the alien communications and language and establish a dialogue with the aliens. This most urgent task was a continuation of the earlier effort and was code named SIGMA. The secondary purpose of the NSA was to monitor all communications and emissions from any and all devices worldwide for the purpose of gathering intelligence, both human and alien, and to contain the secret of the alien presence. Project SIGMA was successful. The NSA also maintains communications with the Luna base and other secret space programs. By Executive Order the NSA is exempt from all laws which do not specifically name the NSA in the text of the law as being subject to that law. That means that if the agency is not spelled out in the text of any and every law passed by the Congress it is not subject to that or those laws. The NSA now performs many other duties and in fact is the premiere agency whithin the intelligence community. Today NSA receives 75% of the moneys allotted to the intelligence community. The old saying "where the money goes therein the power resides" is true. The DCI today is a figurehead maintained as a public ruse.

The primary task of the NSA is still alien communications but now includes other Alien projects as well.

President Truman had been keeping our allies, including the Soviet Union, informed of the developing alien problem since the Roswell recovery. This had been done in case the aliens turned out to be a threat to the human race. Plans were formulated to defend the Earth in case of invasion. Great difficulty was encountered in maintaining international secrecy. It was decided that an outside group was necessary to coordinate and control international efforts in order to hide the secret from the normal scrutiny of governments by the press. The result was the formation of a secret society known as the "Bilderburgers". The headquarters of this group is in Geneva, Switzerland. The Bilderburgers evolved into a secret world government that now controls everything.

The United Nations was then, and is now, an international joke.

A New President

In 1953 a new man occupied the White House. He was a man used to a structured staff organization with a chain of command. His method was to delegate authority and rule by committee. He made major decisions but only when his advisors were unable to come to consensus. His normal method was to read through or listen to several alternatives and then approve one. Those who worked closely with him have stated that his favorite comment was, "just do whatever it takes". He spent a lot of time on the golf course. This was not all unusual for a man who had been career Army with the ultimate position of Supreme Allied Commander during the war. A post which carried 5 stars along with it. This president was General of the Army Dwight David Eisenhower.

During his first year in office, 1953, at least 10 more alien crashed disks were recovered along with 26 dead and 4 live aliens. Of the 10, 4 were found in Arizona, 2 in Texas, 1 in New Mexico, 1 in Louisiana, 1 in Montana, and 1 in South Africa. There were hundreds of sightings.

Eisenhower knew that he had to wrestle and beat the alien problem. He knew that he could not do it be revealing the secret to the Congress. Early in 1953 the new president turned to his friend and fellow member of the Council on Foreign relations, Nelson Rockefeller for help with the alien problem. Eisenhower and Rockefeller began planning the secret structure of alien task supervision which was to become a reality within one year. The idea for MJ-12 was thus born. It was Nelson's Uncle Winthrop Aldrich who had been crucial in convincing Eisenhower to run for President. The whole Rockefeller family and with them the Rockefeller empire had solidly backed Ike. Asking Rockefeller for help with the alien problem was to be the biggest mistake Eisenhower ever made for the future of the United States and most probably all of humanity.

Within 1 week of Eisenhower's election he had appointed Nelson Rockefeller chairman of a Presidential Advisory Committee on Government Organization. Rockefeller was responsible for planning the reorganization of the government. New Deal programs went into 1 single cabinet position called the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. When the Congress approved the new cabinet position in April of 1953, Nelson was named to the post of Undersecretary to Oveta Culp Hobby.

Heading For Earth

[Ed Donegan the rumored meeting with Galactic Aliens asked abougt quitge publicly]

In 1953 astronomers discovered large objects in space which were moving towards Earth. It was first believed that they were asteroids. Later evidence proved that the objects could only be spaceships. Project Sigma intercepted alien radio communication. When the objects reached the Earth they took up a very high orbit around the equator. There were several huge ships, and their actual intent was unknown. Project Sigma, and a new project, Plato, through radio communications using the computer binary language, was able to arrange a landing that resulted in face to face contact with alien beings from another planet. Project Plato was tasked with establishing diplomatic relations with this alien race of space aliens.

In the meantime a race of human-looking aliens contacted the U.S. Government. This alien group warned us against the aliens that were orbiting the Equator and offered to help us with our spiritual development. They demanded that we dismantle and destroy our nuclear weapons as the major condition. They refused to exchange technology citing that we were spiritually unable to handle the technology which we then possessed.

They believed that we would use any new technology to destroy each other. This race stated that we were on a path of self-destruction and we must stop killing each other, stop polluting the earth, stop raping the Earth's natural resources, and learn to live in harmony. These terms were met with extreme suspicion especially the major condition of nuclear disarmament. It was believed that meeting that condition would leave us helpless in the face of an obvious alien threat.

We also had nothing in history to help with the decision. Nuclear disarmament was not considered to be within the best interest of the United States. The overtures were rejected.

Later in 1954 the race of large nosed gray aliens which had been orbiting the Earth landed at Holloman Air Force base. A basic agreement was reached. This race identified themselves as originating from a planet around a red star in the Constellation of Orion which we call . They stated that their planet was dying and that at some unknown future time they would'nt be able to survive there. This led to a second landing at Edwards Air Force base. The historical event had been planned in advance and details of the treaty had been agreed upon. Eisenhower arranged to be in Palm Springs on vacation. On the appointed day the President was spirited away to the base and the excuse was given to the press that he was visiting a dentist.

Formal Treaty Signed

President Eisenhower met with the aliens and a formal treaty between the Alien Nation and the United States of America was signed. We then received our first Alien Ambassador from outer space. His name and title was his "Omnipotent Highness Krlll", pronounced Krill. In the American tradition of disdain for royal titles, he was secretly called "Original Hostage Krlll". You should know that the alien flag is known as the "Trilateral Insignia". It is displayed on their craft and worn on their uniforms. Both of these landings and the second meeting were filmed. The films exist today.

The Treaty stated: The aliens would not interfere in our affairs and we would not interfere in theirs. We would keep their presence on earth a secret. They would furnish us with advanced technology and would help us in our technological development. They would not make any treaty with any other earth nation. They could abduct humans on a limited and periodic basis for the purpose of medical examination and monitoring of our development with the stipulation that the humans would not be harmed, would be returned to their point of abduction, that the humans would have no memory of the event, and that the alien nation would furnish MJ-12 a list of all human contacts and abductees on a regularly scheduled basis. It was agreed that each nation would recieve the Ambassador of the other for as long as the treaty remained in force. It was further agreed that the Alien Nation and the United States would exchange 16 personnel each to the other with the purpose of learning, each of the other.

Underground Bases

[Ed Donegan Linda Newkirk andf TEd Gunderson assserts this as well. And underground Mc Martin School tunnels]

The Alien "Guests" would remain on earth and the "human guests" would travel to the Alien point of origin for a specified period of time then return, at which point a reverse exchange would be made. It was also agreed that bases would be constructed underground for the use of the Alien nation and that 2 bases would be constructed for the joint use the the Alien nation and the United States Government. Exchange of technology would take place in the jointly occupied bases. These alien bases would be constructed under Indian reservations in the 4 corners area of Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, and Colorado, and 1 would be constructed in Nevada in the area known as S-4 located approximately 7 miles south of the western border of Area 51. All alien bases are under complete control of the Department of Naval Intelligence and all personel who work in these complexes receive their checks from the Navy. Construction of the bases began immediately but progress was slow until large amounts of money were made available in 1957. Work continued on the "Yellow Book".

Area 51 And S-4

Project REDLIGHT was formed and experimentation in test flying alien aircraft was begun in earnest. A super top-secret facility was built at Groom Lake in Nevada in the midst of the weapons test range. It was code named DREAMLAND. The installation was placed under the Department of the Navy and clearance of all personnel required "Q" clearance as well as Executive (Presidential) approval. This is ironic due to the fact that the President of the United States does not have clearance to visit the site. The alien base and exchange of technology actually took place in an area known as S-4. Area S-4 was code named "The Dark Side of the Moon".

The Army was tasked to form a super secret organization to furnish security for all alien tasked projects. This organization became the National Reconnaissance Organization based at Fort Carson, Colorado. The specific teams trained to secure the projects were called DELTA.

A second project code named SNOWBIRD was promulgated to explain away any sightings of the REDLIGHT crafts as being Air Force experiments. The SNOWBIRD crafts were manufactured using conventional technology and were flown for the press on several occasions. Project SNOWBIRD was also used to debunk legitimate public sightings of alien craft (UFO's). Project SNOWBIRD was very successful and reports from the public decline steadily until recent years.

Secret Funding

A multi-million dollar secret fund was organized and kept by the Military Office of the White House. This fund was used to build over 75 deep underground facilities. Presidents who asked were told the fund was used to build deep underground shelters for the President in case of war. Only a few were built for the President. Millions of dollars were funneled through this office to MJ-12 and then out to the contractors and was used to build top-secret alien bases as well as top-secret DUMB (Deep Underground Military Bases), and facilities promulgated by "Alternative 2", throughout the nation. President Johnson used this fund to build a movie theatre and pave the road on his ranch. He had no idea of its purpose.

The secret White House Underground Construction fund was set up in 1957 by President Eisenhower. The funding was obtained from Congress under the guise of "construction and maintenance of secret sites where the President could be taken in case of military attack: Presidential Emergency Sites". The sites are literally holes in the ground, deep enough to withstand a nuclear blast and are outfitted with state of the art communications equipment. To date there are more than seventy five sites spread around the country which were built using money from this fund. The Atomic Energy Commission has built at least an additional 22 underground sites.

The location and everything to do with these sites were and are considered and treated as top-secret. The money was and is in control of the Military Office of the White House, and was and is laundered through a circuitous web that even the most knowledgeable spy or accountant can not follow. As of 1980 only a few at the beginning and end of this web knew what the money was for. At the beginning were Representative George Mahon, of Texas, and the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and of its Defense Subcommittee: and Representative Robert Sikes, of Florida, chairman of the House Appropriations Military Construction Subcommittee. Today it is rumored that House Speaker Jim Wright controls the money in Congress and that a power struggle is underway to remove him. At the end of the line were the President, MJ-12, the director of the Military Office and a commander at the Washington Navy Yard.

The money was authorized by the Appropriation Committee who allocated it to the Department of Defense as a top-secret item in the army construction program. The Army, however, could not spend it and in fact did not even know what it was for. Authorization to spend the money was in reality given to the Navy. The money was channeled to the Chesapeake Division of the Navy Engineers who did not know what it was for either. Not even the Commanding Officer, who was an Admiral, knew what the fund was to be used for. Only one man, a Navy Commander, who was assigned to the Chesapeake Division but in reality was responsible only to the Military Office of the White House knew of the actual purpose, amount, and ultimate destination of the top-secret fund. The total secrecy surrounding the fund meant that almost every trace of it could be made to disappear by the very few people who controlled it. There has never been and most likely never will be an audit of this secret money.

Large amounts of money were transferred from the top-secret fund to a location at Palm Beach, Florida that belongs to the Coast Guard called Peanut Island. The island is adjacent to property which was onwed by Joseph Kennedy. The money was said to have been used for landscaping and general beautification. Some time ago a TV news special on the Kennedy assassination told of a Coast Guard Officer transferring money in a briefcase to a Kennedy employee across this property line. Could this have been a secret payment to the Kennedy family for the loss of their son John F. Kennedy? The payments continued through the year 1967 and then stopped. The total amount transferred is unknown and the actual use of the money is unknown.

Meanwhile, Nelson Rockefeller changed positions again. This time he was to take C.D. Jackson's old position which had been called the Special Assistant for Psychological Strategy. With Nelson's appointment the name was changed to the Special Assistant for Cold War Strategy. This position would evolve over the years into the same position Henry Kissinger was ultimately to hold under President Nixon. Officially he was to give "Advice and assistance in development of increased understanding and cooperation among all peoples". The official description was a smoke screen for security he was the Presidential Coordinator for the Intelligence Community. In his new post, Rockefeller reported directly, and only, to the President. He attended meetings of the Cabinet, the Council on Foreign Economic Policy, and the National Security Council which was the highest policy-making body in the government.

Nelson Rockefeller was also given a second important job as the head of a secret unit called the Planning Coordination Group which was formed under NSC 5412/1 in March of 1955. The group consisted of different ad hoc members depending on the subject of the agenda. The basic members were Rockefeller, a representative of the Dept. of State, and the Director of Central Intelligence. It was soon called the "3412 Committee" of the "Special Group". NSC 5412/1 established the rule that covert operations were subject to approval by an executive committee, whereas in the past these operations were initiated solely on the authority of the Director of Central Intelligence.

Founding Of MJ-12

By secret Executive Memorandum, NSC 5410, Eisenhower had preceded NSC 5412/1 in 1954 to establish a permanent committee (not ad hoc) to be known as Majority Twelve (MJ-12) to oversee and conduct all covert activities concerned with the alien question. NSC 5412/1 was created to explain the purpose of these meetings when Congress and the Press became curious.

Majority Twelve was made up of Nelson Rockefeller, the director of the CIA Allen Welsh Dulles, the Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, the Secretary of Defense Charles E.Wilson, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Admiral Arthur W. Radford, the Director of the FBI J. Edgar Hoover, and six men from the executive committee of the Council on Foreign Relations known as the "Wise Men". These men were all members of a secret society of scholars that called themselves "The Jason Society", or "The Jason Scholars" who recruited their members from the "Skull and Bones" and the "Scroll and Key" societies of Harvard and Yale.

The "Wise Men" were key members of the Council on Foreign Relations. There were 12 members including the first 6 from Government positions thus Majority Twelve. This group was made up over the years of the top officers and directors of the Council on Foreign Relations and later the Trilateral Commission. Gordan Dean, George Bush, and Zbigniew Brzezinski were among them. The most important and influential of the "Wise Men" who served on MJ-12 were Jogn McCloy, Robert Lovett, Averell Harriman, Charles Bohlen, George Kennan, and Dean Acheson. It is significant that President Eisenhower as well as the first 6 MJ-12 members from the Government were also members of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Thorough researchers will soon discover that not all of the "Wise Men" attended Harvard or Yale and not all of them were chosen for "Skull and Bones" or "Scroll and Key" membership during their college years. You will be able to quickly clear up this mystery by obtaining the book "The Wise Men" by Walter Issacson and Even Thomas, Simon and Schuster, New York. Under illustration #9 in the center of the book you will find the caption "Lovett with the Yale Unit, above far right, and on the beach his initiation into Skull and Bones came at an air base near Dunkirk".

I have found that members were chosen on an ongoing basis by invitation based upon merit post college and was not confined to only Harvard or Yale attendees. A chosen few were later initiated into the Jason Society. They are all members of the Council on Foreign Relations and at that time were known as the "Eastern Establishment". This should give you a clue to the far reaching and serious nature of these most secret college societies. The Jason Society is alive and well today but now includes members of the Trilateral Commission as well.

The Trilateralists existed secretly several years BEFORE 1973. The name of the Trilateral Commission was taken from the alien flag known as the "Trilateral Insignia". Majority Twelve was to survive right up to the present day.

Under Eisenhower and Kennedy it was erroneously called the "8412 Committee" or more correctly, the "Special Group". in the Johnson administration it became the "303 Committee" because the name 5412 had been compromised in the book "The Secret Government" actually NSC 5412/1 was leaked to the author to hide existence of NSC 5410. Under Nixon, Ford, and Carter it was called the "40 Committee", and under Reagan, it became the "PI-40 Committee". Over all those years only the name changed.

Deception And Mutilations

By 1955 it became obvious the aliens had deceived Eisenhower and had broken the treaty. Mutilated humans were being found along with mutilated animals all across the United States. It was suspected that the aliens were not submitting a complete list of human contacts and abductees to MJ-12 and it was suspected that not all abductees had been returned. The Soviet Union was suspected of interacting with them and this proved to be true. It was learned that the aliens had been and were then manipulating masses of people through secret societies, witchcraft, magic, the occult, and religion. After several Air Force combat air engagements with alien craft it also became apparent that our weapons were no match against them.

In November 1955, NSC 5412/2[Pouty Dulles and bissle Jr. Dongans] was issued establishing a study committee to explore "All factors which are involved in making and implementing of foreign policy in the nuclear age." This was only a blanket of snow that covered the real subject of study, the alien question.

The Study Group

By secret Executive Memorandum, NSC 5411 in 1954, President Eisenhower had commissioned the study group to "examine all the facts, evidence, lies, and deception and discover the truth of the alien question. NSC5412/2 was only a cover that had become necessary when the press began inquiring as to the purpose of regular meetings of such important men. The first meetings began at Quantico Marine Base. The study group was made up of 35 members of the Council on Foreign Relations. Secret scholars known as "The Jason Society" of the "Jason Scholars". Dr. Edward Teller was invited to participate, Dr. Zbigniew Brzezinski was the study director for the first 18 months. Dr. Henry Kissinger was chosen as the group's study director for the second 18 months. Nelson Rockefeller was a frequent visitor during the study.

STUDY GROUP MEMBERS
Gordon Dean, Chairman
Dr. Zbigniew Brzezinski, Study Director - 1st phase
Dr. Henry Kissinger, Study Director - 2nd phase
Marshall Green	Edward C. Lindsay
Howard W. Baldwin
Paul H. Nitze
Charles P. Noyes
Dana K. Perkins
David Rockefeller
Carl B. Rosin	M. Gay
Joseph E. Hilbron

Merkin Ailskelly
Major Gen. James McCormack, Jr.

The second phase meetings were also held at the Marine Base at Quantico Virginia and the group became known as Quantico II. Nelson Rockefeller built a retreat somewhere in Maryland which could only be reached by air for MJ-12 and the study committee so that they could meet away from public scrutiny. This secret meeting place is known by the code name "The Country Club". Complete living, eating, recreation, library, and meeting facilities exist at the location.

The study group was "publicly" closed in the later months of 1958 and Henry Kissinger published what was officially termed the results in 1957 as "Nuclear Weapons and Foreign Policy" by Henry A. Kissinger, published for the Council on Foreign Relations by Harper & Brothers, New York. In truth the manuscript had already been 80% written while Kissinger was at Harvard. The study group continued veiled in secrecy. A clue to the seriousness Kissinger attached to the study can be found in statements by his wife and friends. Many of them stated that Henry would leave home early each morning and return late each night without speaking to anyone or responding to anyone. It seemed as if he were in another world which held no room for anyone else.

These statements are very revealing. The revelations of the alien presence and actions during the study must have been a great shock. Henry Kissinger was definitely out of character during time surrounding these meetings. He would never again be affected in this manner no matter the seriousness of any subsequent event. On many occasions he would work very late into the night after having already put in a full day. This behavior eventually led to divorce.

A major finding of the alien study was that the public could not be told as it was believed that this would most certainly lead to economic collapse, collapse of the religious structure, and national panic which would lead into anarchy. Secrecy thus continued. An offshoot of this finding was that if the public could not be told then the Congress could not be told, thus funding for the projects and research would have to come from outside the government. In the meantime money was to be obtained from the military budget and from CIA confidential non-appropriated funds.

Genetic Experimentation

Were Tom Donegan, Barrack Obama Jr and Ed Donegan alternatives 1, 2, or 3 for 1958?

Another major finding was the aliens were using humans and animals for a source of glandular secretions, enzymes, hormonal secretions, blood and in horrible genetic experiments. The aliens explained these actions as necessary to their survival. They stated that their genetic structure had deteriorated and that they were no longer able to reproduce. They stated that if they were unable to improve their genetic structure their race would soon cease to exist. We looked upon their explanations with extreme suspicion. Since our weapons were literally useless against the aliens, MJ-12 decided to continue friendly diplomatic relations with them until such time as we were able to develop a technology which would enable us to challenge them on a military basis. Overtures would have to be made to the Soviet Union, and other nations, to join forces for the survival of humanity. In the meantime plans were developed to research and construct 2 weapons systems using conventional and nuclear technology which would hopefully bring us to parity.

The results of the research were Projects JOSHUA and EXCALIBUR. Joshua was a weapon captured from the Germans which at that time was capable of shattering 4" thick armor plate at a range of two miles using low frequency sound waves, and it was believed that this weapon would be effective against the alien craft and beam weapons. Excalibur was a weapon carried by missile not to exceed 30,000 feet AGL, not to deviate from designated target more than 50 meters, would penetrate 1,000 meters of tufa hard packed soil such as that found in New Mexico, would carry a one megaton warhead, and was intended for use in destroying the aliens in their underground bases. Joshua was developed successfully but never used to my knowledge. Excalibur was not pushed until recent years and now there is an unprecedented effort to develop this weapon.

The events at Fatima in the early part of the century were scrutinized. On suspicion that it was alien manipulation, an intelligence operation was put into motion to penetrate the secrecy surrounding the event. The United States utilized its Vatican moles that had been recruited and nurtured during WWII and soon obtained the entire Vatican study which included the prophecy. This prophecy stated that if man did not turn from evil and place himself at the feet of Christ the planet would self-destruct and the events described in the book of Revelations would indeed come to pass. It stated that a child would be born who would unite the world with a plan for world peace and a false religion beginning in 1992. By 1995 the people would descern that he was evil and was indeed the Anti-Christ. World War III would begin in the Middle East in 1995 with an invasion of Israel by a United Arab nation using conventional weapons which would culminate in a nuclear holocaust in the year 1999. Between 1999 and 2003 most of the life on this planet would suffer horribly and die as a result. The return of Christ would occur in the year 2011.

When the aliens were confronted with this finding they confirmed that it was true. The aliens explained that they had created us through hybridization and had manipulated the human race through religion, satanism, witchcraft, magic, and the occult. They further explained that they were capable of time travel and the events would indeed come to pass. Later exploitation of alien technology by the United States and the Soviet Union utilizing time travel confirmed the prophecy. The aliens showed a hologram which they claimed was the actual crucifixion of Christ, which the government filmed.

We did not know whether to believe them or not. Were they using GENUINE religions to manipulate us, or were they indeed the source of our religions with which they had been manipulating us all along? Or was this the beginning of the genuine END TIMES and the RETURN OF CHRIST which had been predicted in the Bible? No one knew the answer.

A symposium was held in 1957 which was attended by some of the greatest scientific minds then living. They reached the conclusion that by or shortly after the year 2,000 the planet WOULD self destruct due to increased population and man's exploitation of the environment WITHOUT ANY HELP FROM GOD OR THE ALIENS.

Alternatives 1, 2, And 3

By secret Executive Order of President Eisenhower, the Jason Scholars were ordered to study this scenario and make recommendations called "Alternatives 1, 2, and 3". "Alternative 1" was to use nuclear devices to blast holes in the Stratosphere from which the heat and pollution would escape into space. Change the human cultures from that of exploitation into cultures of environmental protection. Of the three this was decided to be the least likely to succeed due the inherent nature of man and the additional damage the nuclear explosions would themselves create. "Alternative 2" was to build a vast network of underground cities and tunnels in which a select representation of all cultures and occupations would survive and carry on the human race.The rest of humanity would be left to fend for themselves on the surface of the planet. "Alternative 3" was to exploit the alien and conventional technology in order for a select few to leave the earth and establish colonies in outer space. I am not able to confirm nor deny the existence of "Batch Consignments" of human slaves which would be used for the manual labor in the effort as part of the plan. The Moon, code named "Adam", would be the object of primary interest followed by the planet Mars, code named "Eve".

As a delaying action, ALL THREE ALTERNATIVES included birth control, sterilization, and the introduction of deadly microbes to control or slow the growth of the Earth's population. AIDS is only ONE result of these plans. There are others. It was decided since the population must be reduced and controlled that it would be in the best interest of the human race to rid ourselves of the undesirable elements of our society. The joint U.S. & Soviet leadership dismissed "Alternative 1" but ordered work to begin on "Alternative 2 and 3" virtually at the same time.

In 1959 the Rand Corporation hosted a Deep Underground Construction Symposium. In the Symposium report, machines are pictured and described which could bore a tunnel 45 feet in diameter at the rate of 5 feet per hour. It also displays pictures of huge tunnels and underground vaults containing what appear to be complex facilities and possibly even cities. It appears that the previous 5 years of all out underground construction had made significant progress by that time. The ruling powers decided that one means of funding the alien connected and other black market projects was to corner the illegal drug market. A young ambitious member of the Council on Foreign Relations was approached.

His name is George Bush who at the time was president and C.E.O. of Zapata Oil based in Texas. Zapata Oil was experimenting with the new technology of offshore drilling. It was correctly thought that the drugs could be shipped from South America to the offshore platforms by fishing boat where it would then be taken to shore by the normal transportation used for supplies and personnel. By this method, no customs or law enforcement agency would subject the cargo to search.

George Bush agreed to help and organized the operation in conjunction with the CIA. The plan worked better than anyone had thought and has since expanded worldwide and there are now many other methods of bringing the illegal drugs into the country. It must always be remembered though that George Bush began sale of drugs to our children.

The CIA now controls all the world's illegal drug markets.

Kennedy Assassination

At some point President Kennedy discovered portions of the truth concerning the drugs and the aliens. He issued an ultimatum in 1963 to MJ-12. President Kennedy assured them that if they didn't clean up the drug problem he would. He informed MJ-12 that he intended to reveal the presence of aliens to the American people within the following year and ordered a plan developed to implement his decision. President Kennedy was not a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and know nothing of "Alternative 2" or "Alternative 3".

Internationally the operations were supervised by MJ-12 and in the Soviet Union by its sister organization. President Kennedy's decision struck fear into the hearts of those in charge. His assissination was ordered by the Policy Committee and the order was carried out by agents of MJ-12 in Dallas.

President John F. Kennedy was murdered by the Secret Service Agent who drove his car in the motorcade and the act is plainly visible in the film. WATCH THE DRIVER AND NOT KENNEDY WHEN YOU VIEW THE FILM. ALL of the witnesses who were close enough to the car to see William Greer shoot Kennedy were themselves all murdered within the next two years of the event. The Warren Commission was a farce and Council on Foreign Relations members made up the majority of its panel. They succeeded in snowing the American people. Many other patriots who attempted to reveal the alien secret have also been murdered throughout the intervening years.

During the era of the United States initial space exploration and the Moon landings every launch was accompanied by alien craft. A Moon base dubbed Luna was sighted and filmed by the Apollo astronauts. Domes, spires, tall round structures which look like silos, huge "T" shaped mining vehicles which left stitch-like tracks in the lunar surface, and extremely large as well as small alien craft appear in the photographs. It is a joint United States, Russian and Alien base. The Space Program is a farce and unbelievable waste of money. Alternative 3 is a reality and is not at all science fiction. Most of the Apollo Astronauts were severely shaken by this experience and their lives and subsequent statements reflect the depth of the revelation and the effect of the muzzle order which followed. They were ordered to remain silent or suffer extreme penalty, DEATH, which was termed an "expediency". One astronaut actually did talk to the British producers of the TV expose "Alternative 3" confirming many of the allegations.

In the book "Alternative 003" the pseudonym "Bob Grodin" was used in place of the astronaut's identity. It was also stated that he committed suicide in 1978. This cannot be validated by any source and I believe that several so-called facts in the book are disinformation. I firmly believe that this disinformation is a result of pressure put upon authors and is meant to nullify the effect upon the populace of the British TV expose entitled "Alternative 3". The headquarters of the international conspiracy is in Geneva, Switzerland. The ruling body is made up of Representatives of the Governments involved as well as the Executive members of the group known as the "Bilderburgers". Meetings are held by the "Policy Committee" when necessary on a Nuclear Submarine beneath the Polar Ice Cap. The secrecy is such that this was the only method which would ensure that the meetings would not be bugged. I can say that the book is at least 70% true from my own knowledge and the knowledge of my sources. I believe that the disinformation was an attempt to compromise the British TV expose with information which could be proven false, just as the "Eisenhower Briefing Document" was released here in the U.S. under the contingency plan "Majestic Twelve", and which can also be proven false.

Majestic 12 Today

Today, MJ-12 still exists and operates just as it always has. It is made up of the same structure, 6 from the same positions in government, and 6 from the executive members of the Council on Foreign Relations and/or Trilateral Commission. The Majority Agency for Joint Intelligence is publicly known as the Senior Interagency Group (SIG).

In closing it is most important to understand that the council on Foreign Relations and its offshoot the Trilateral Commission not only control but own this country. Long before WWII they were instrumental in helping to decide policy for the United States Government. The Council on Foreign Relations, Trilateral Commission and their foreign counterparts report to Bilderburgers. Almost every high level government and military official of any consequence since WWII including presidents have been members of the Council on Foreign Relations and/or Trilateral Commission. All American members of the Trilateral Commission have either been or are a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Each foreign nation of any importance has its own offshoot of the Council on Foreign Relations and the members of each country interact with those of other countries through the Bilderburgers to further their common goals. The foreign member of the Trilateral Commission belong to their respective organizations.

Even a cursory investigation by the most inexperienced researcher will show that the members of the Council on Foreign Relations and the Trilateral Commission control the major foundations, all of the major media, publishing interests, the largest banks, all the major corporations, the upper echelons of the government, and many other vital interests. Their members are elected and appointed because they have all the money and special interests behind them. All, that is, except the peoples. They are undemocratic and do not in any way represent the majority of the U.S. of America. These are the people who will decide who survives the coming holocaust and who does not.

The Bilderburgers, the Council on Foreign Relations and the Trilateral Commission are the SECRET GOVERNMENT and rule this nation through MJ-12 and the study group known as the Jason Society or Jason Scholars and the top echelon of the government which consist mostly of their members.

Character Study and Backstory of the Ghosts on the World Stage

ANGLETON CONTROLLED THE CIA FILE ON LEE HARVEY OSWALD

If you're skeptical, consider what Morley reports in The Ghost: "The CIA's handling of information about Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy, is a story shrouded in deception and perjury, theories and disinformation, lies and legends. But at least one aspect of the story cannot be disputed: Angleton controlled the CIA's file on Oswald for four years — from his defection in October 1959 until his death in November 1963."

Morley continues: "[Allen] Dulles wanted to steer the [Warren] commission's investigation away from the CIA, and Angleton was obliging. A conspiracy theorist would say Angleton masterminded the JFK coverup. A prosecutor would say he obstructed justice. A bureaucrat would say he covered his ass. In every practical sense, his actions were invisible. In the tragedy of Dallas, Angleton played a ghost."

THE CIA'S GREATEST FAILURE SINCE PEARL HARBOR

On balance, Morley makes clear that he is not convinced Angleton engineered the assassination. "No matter who fired the fatal shots in Dallas," he writes, "Angleton has failed disastrously as counterintelligence chief. He could have — and should have — lost his job after November 22. Had the public, the Congress, and the Warren Commission known of his preassassination interest in Oswald or his postassassination cover-up, he surely would have." https://malwarwickonbooks.com/he-nearly-destroyed-the-cia/

Ed Donegan thinks Lee Harvey Oswald was a Roman Catholic on a mission James Jesus's Vatical alliance was carrying out and that was genetic studies on CIA and Vatican undeground railraod of Windsor and kuthchera bastard children, Norma Jean and Glorian, and their childre, also CIA study projects bastard children or not.

Factual primer from data in this chapter or other books of this series.

Hugh Angleton was an international businessman who had been the head of the US Chamber of Commerce in Italy likely believing in Globalism and fearing unionism.

Jim's father was Hugh Angleton, an old-fashioned swash-buckling kind of guy who chased Pancho Villa in Mexico as a member of the cavalry under General John Pershing. Hugh set his eyes on the young Carmen and fell in love. She was from a poor family, she was uneducated and she did not speak English. Hugh married her, took her to his home in Idaho where they had four children and then to Europe, where Angleton became the head of National Cash Register and the American Chamber of Commerce in Italy. To the enormous credit of beautiful Carmen Moreno he had married in Mexico while serving there, she moved from the dirt streets of Nogales to the gilded palaces of European high society with great ease. [Alread sounds like he would be a United Fruit Company favorite, the second coming of East India Tea Company rull by the Dulles Brothers, Sullivan and Cromwell, etc.,]

Jim was sent to school in England where he learned to speak with a British accent and wear black homburgs. Born in the USA Italain would be his secondary language and English Bordering school his easyest European educational supprt.

Othter things in Italy were the Vatican and and at times Whitehead and his submarine warfare systems. was born in Bolton, England, the son of James Whitehead, a cotton-bleacher, and his wife Ellen Whitehead née Swift. He trained as an engineer and draughtsman, and attended the Mechanics' Institute, Manchester.

His first professional employment was at a shipyard in Toulon, France, for Philip Taylor & Sons,[2] and then as a consultant engineer in Milan, Italy. He then moved to Trieste, on the Adriatic coast of Austria.

Whitehead's work in Trieste was noticed by the owners of Fonderia Metalli, a metal foundry in the nearby city of Fiume (today Rijeka, Croatia). In 1856, Whitehead became manager of the company, and changed its name to Stabilimento Tecnico di Fiume (STF). STF produced marine steam boilers and engines, which were the most modern products of that era. The Austrian Navy was a customer.

Patton with Italian and English speaking Angleton at his side will retake Italy then move onto Central Austria and Eagles Nest of Villa Von Trapp and other high ranking German officer's strongholds.

Two connections the USA and The Windsors had were Admiral Halsey moving Windsor Kutchera children of 1926 into the USA (one Norma Jean and one other GLorian Gainey) to be born in the USA and given cover identities.

The other connection the Windsors and the US Military had was to Capatain Von Trapp who by WWII was working for the US Navy on military tarets in Europe, European society, navigation, and cultural backgrounds.

The arrival at Kutschera and Himmler based death camps we now see in history of Franz Kutschera and Himmler walking through them together, and pictures of the Von Trapp conmnections to this like singing on stage with Franz Kutchera up until the mid 1930s must have left photos for British leaning Angleton to follow and if you red the b'ook Trinity by Leon Uris you will see Engilsh Irish tenstions since William Of Orange had always been high and Roman Catholic Patton may not have liked what he found about Averal Harriman, the Brits, and others when arriving at those death camps and Villa Von Trapp that became Himmler's last bunker at the end of the war in Euorope.

The Führerbunker (German pronunciation: [ˈfyːʁɐˌbʊŋkɐ]) was an air raid shelter located near the Reich Chancellery in Berlin, Germany. It was part of a subterranean bunker complex constructed in two phases in 1936 and 1944. It was the last of the Führer Headquarters (Führerhauptquartiere) used by Adolf Hitler during World War II.

During the rise of Nazim Villa VonTrapp held for years Maria Kutschera niece of SS General Franz Kutchera (assasinated during the war by the Polish secret service), frequent villavisitor Henriech Himmler whose identity is changed in Sound of Music, the Agatha Whitehead children their father Captain Von Trapp is raising on his own, and neice Maria Kutchera hekpting them learn to sing Nazi songs for Kutschera and Himmler supporting Hitler, and perhaps the children even sung for Hitler in these villas at one time or another.

Hitler took up residence in the Führerbunker on 16 January 1945, and it became the centre of the Nazi regime until the last week of World War II in Europe. Hitler married Eva Braun there on 29 April 1945, less than 40 hours before they committed suicide. After the war, both the old and new Chancellery buildings were levelled by the Soviets. The underground complex remained largely undisturbed until 1988–89, despite some attempts at demolition. The excavated sections of the old bunker complex were mostly destroyed during reconstruction of that area of Berlin.

The Nuremberg trials were held by the Allies against representatives of the defeated Nazi Germany for plotting and carrying out invasions of other countries and atrocities against their citizens in World War II.

The final battles of the European theatre of World War II continued after the definitive surrender of Nazi Germany to the Allies, signed by Field marshal Wilhelm Keitel on 8 May 1945 in Karlshorst, Berlin. After German dictator Adolf Hitler's suicide and handing over of power to grand admiral Karl Dönitz in May 1945, Soviet troops conquered Berlin and accepted surrender of the Dönitz-led government. The last battles were fought on the Eastern Front which ended in the total surrender of all of Nazi Germany's remaining armed forces such as in the Courland Pocket in western Latvia from Army Group Courland in the Baltics surrendering on 10 May 1945 and in Czechoslovakia during the Prague offensive on 11 May 1945.

Between 1933 and 1945, Nazi Germany invaded many countries across Europe, inflicting 27 million deaths in the Soviet Union alone. Proposals for how to punish the defeated Nazi leaders ranged from a show trial (the Soviet Union) to summary executions (the United Kingdom). In mid-1945, France, the Soviet Union, the United Kingdom, and the United States agreed to convene a joint tribunal in Nuremberg, occupied Germany, with the Nuremberg Charter as its legal instrument. Between 20 November 1945 and 1 October 1946, the International Military Tribunal (IMT) tried 21 of the most important surviving leaders of Nazi Germany in the political, military, and economic spheres, as well as six German organizations. The purpose of the trial was not just to convict the defendants but also to assemble irrefutable evidence of Nazi crimes, offer a history lesson to the defeated Germans, and delegitimize the traditional German elite

Here's what Jim did so that his troops could capture them. First, he had his team visit every photographer in Rome. The Nazi officials were proud of their Italian conquest and often took photographs of themselves and their fellow officers to send to their families at home. Jim compiled a huge mugbook of Nazi faces and names. His team then broke into every building they could to get data on Nazi intelligence headquarters in Italy. They built a massive book of military intelligence buildings complete with floor plans and personnel lists.

This told them where, in each building, critical documents might be located so they could be seized before they were destroyed. Jim searched for postcards of villas throughout Italy and learned which villas were used as quarters for top military officials. Now the troops knew which villas to capture. Angleton amassed this data in area-specific notebooks which were given to each Allied unit as they advanced on a town. BOISE, Idaho, March 6—James Hugh Angleton, a soldier and former executive of the National Cash Register Company, died Sunday at St. Luke's Hospital. He was 84 years old.

He leaves his wife, the former Carmen Mercedes; two daughters, Carmen of Rome and Mrs. Luciano Guarniere of Florence, Italy; two sons, James and Hugh, and six grandchildren.

Long Association With Italy

Mr. Angleton served in both World Wars and spent many years in Italy as a soldier and as a businessman.

His military career began on the Mexican border where he met his wife and went on to service in World War I, in which he won a commission as a second lieutenant.

After the war he joined the National Cash Register Company as head of its agency in Boise. Mr. Angleton soon became sales manager for the entire country and then vice president in charge of foreign operations, a job he held until 1933.

In that year he formed an agency for N.C.R. sales in Italy of which he was head, working closely with the United States Embassy.

With the outbreak of World War II he rejoined the Army, becoming a major in military government. He joined the Office of Strategic Services that his son would also serve in and in 1943 was on transfer from the School of Military Government. He was promoted to lieutenant colonel and took part in the planning of the Italian invasion that General Patton lead with his son James Jesus Angleton along with him on the frontlines capturing data on Nazis from the captured villas and other relevant findable intel.

As liaison officer between the O.S.S. and the Fifth Army he assisted the military-government mission in Italy and captured codes, card files and documents important to American security.

After the war he returned to Italy and worked for the restoration of Italian business and industry and for a stable, democratic government.

He was for many years president of the American Chamber of Commerce in Italy.

After the repurchase of the N.C.R. Italian agency by the company in the nineteen-sixties, Mr. Angleton retired with his family to Boise.

The CIA and Operation Chaos

Home: The CIA and Operation Chaos

The man in the photograph above is James Jesus Angleton, the head of Counterintelligence in the CIA from 1954 until 1974. In 1967, he set up a secret organization inside the CIA called “Operation Chaos.” Its purpose was to shut down left-wing groups such as the anti-war movement and Students for a Democratic Society (“SDS”). I was in the anti-war movement and SDS at Columbia University. Jim Angleton was my uncle.

I knew Jim was involved in the operations against us but I did not know the specifics. I do now. Very few people on the left understand Operation Chaos and how brilliant that operation and fellow operations by the FBI and the local police were in the 1960s. We on the left always believed that the intelligence groups were dumb, that they had no idea what we were doing, that they did not influence our activities at all. We were dead wrong. I believe that the CIA, the FBI and the Red Squad (NYPD) were so skilled at their intelligence-gathering they were able to infiltrate key left-wing groups, exacerbate conflicts and shut the student left down, in particular, SDS.

In this piece, I tell that story. I also tell the story of my uncle, Jim Angleton, because his story is the story of the CIA. And I will add that I was in SDS and the anti-war movement until they became violent. Then, I was gone.

Carmen Mercedes Moreno.

This is a photograph of Jim Angleton's extraordinary mother, Carmen Mercedes Moreno. She gave Jim his middle name, "Jesus," a name he tried to hide for decades because he wanted people to think he was British and that did not allow for a Mexican mother.

Jim's father was Hugh Angleton, an old-fashioned swash-buckling kind of guy who chased Pancho Villa in Mexico as a member of the cavalry under General John Pershing. Hugh set his eyes on the young Carmen and fell in love. She was from a poor family, she was uneducated and she did not speak English. Hugh married her, took her to his home in Idaho where they had four children and then to Europe, where Angleton became the head of National Cash Register and the American Chamber of Commerce in Italy. To the enormous credit of beautiful Carmen Moreno, she moved from the dirt streets of Nogales to the gilded palaces of European high society with great ease.

Jim was sent to school in England where he learned to speak with a British accent and wear black homburgs. His faux-Anglo act didn't fool my Aunt Cicely, Jim's wife, for a moment. She used to call Jim, "my Chicano." She loved to tell the story of their first meeting. A date took her to his room at Harvard – Angleton had gotten into Harvard Law despite his gentleman's Ds and Fs at Yale – and she walked into a room that was bare except for a poster on the wall. It was El Greco's "View of Toledo," the painting of the city of Toledo beneath an apocalyptic storm and right in front of that storm stood one James Jesus Angleton. Cicely said she was struck with love as though it were lightning straight from that Toledo sky.

Symbolism The city of Toledo is at the very top of the hill in View of Toledo. Art historian, Walter Liedtke, speculates that El Greco wanted to emphasize the greatness of Toledo. Due to Toledo sitting at the top, it symbolized the city's position being near heaven, yet still at the top of hill making it of earthly possession. Using medieval tradition, El Greco incorporated landmarks such as the cathedral and the Alcázar which were positioned in a manner where he could create his version of Toledo, "a city of the spirit".[8] Toledo is the highest point it could be without being unnatural or in the sky, almost as if El Greco used the hills to work as a pedestal. It is thought that this painting's enigmatic symbolism could be related to the mysticism that infused the city during the period.

Jim Angleton was the handsomest man I have ever seen. I met him when I was a kid in Duluth. Here I am in northern Minnesota, the land of the blond and the bland, and in walks my glamorous Aunt Cicely with a man who looked like a young Tyrone Power. He was tall and thin with dancing dark eyes and a shock of black hair, he wore beautifully tailored Savile Row suits and a perfect trench coat, he was straight out of Rick's in Casablanca. He loved the attention his looks brought and he played it to the hilt. Jim was an outrageous flirt.

Cicely d'Autremont was my mother's first cousin. She was dazzling. Cicely was our Katherine Hepburn, the family bohemian who got her Ph.D. in medieval French history and was known for attending a Washington soiree wearing a Balenciaga gown and tennis shoes. Cicely was hugely wealthy. She and Jim had three children. I've never understood how or why the marriage held together. Jim's job meant that, when the job demanded it, he would simply disappear. Cicely did not know where he was or when he would return. The only reason I can think of that they remained married was because each was the most brilliant person the other knew. And probably, no one else would have put up with either of them.

Jim was drafted in 1943, quickly married Cicely and departed for London. Cicely didn't see him for about four years. Everyone in the family gossiped about divorce. Cicely did send Jim divorce papers but he refused to sign. Or perhaps he forgot.

Jim was chosen for the OSS, the Office of Strategic Services, the American intelligence unit in World War II. He spoke Italian fluently and the Allies were about to invade Italy so Jim was sent to England to learn counterintelligence. The photo (not here) is Jim in London when he was in training with MI6, in the very group we all came to know and love in John le Carre's Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy. Jim was brilliant and so in love with war-time intelligence work my Aunt Cicely

Jim was sent to Italy as head of the Italian OSS. His job was to capture Nazis. The Mafia helped the Allies land in Sicily and move onto the Italian mainland through the toe of the Italian boot. In return, the Mafia regained control of Sicily, which the Mussolini forces had taken. Once on the mainland, the Allies fought the Nazis all the way up to Rome in a very bloody battle.

Angleton's job was to move with the line of fighting as it fought its way towards Rome and capture Nazi officers before they could escape. [presumbly working directly with General Patton as he led the Army along that path to Central Europe Austria on that mission.] His team was also told to grab every piece of information about the Nazis they could find. … Angleton's unit captured over 1,000 Axis intelligence agents and overturned an entire Nazi network. Jim was a brilliant Nazi hunter.

The problem was that no one knew who all the Nazi officers were, what they looked like, where they lived in Italy or where they were headquartered. As Allied troops advanced, the Nazi officers shed their uniforms, donned the clothing of civilians and fled with the crowds.

Here's what Jim did so that his troops could capture them. First, he had his team visit every photographer in Rome. The Nazi officials were proud of their Italian conquest and often took photographs of themselves and their fellow officers to send to their families at home. Jim compiled a huge mugbook of Nazi faces and names. His team then broke into every building they could to get data on Nazi intelligence headquarters in Italy. They built a massive book of military intelligence buildings complete with floor plans and personnel lists.

This told them where, in each building, critical documents might be located so they could be seized before they were destroyed. Jim searched for postcards of villas throughout Italy and learned which villas were used as quarters for top military officials. Now the troops knew which villas to capture. Angleton amassed this data in area-specific notebooks which were given to each Allied unit as they advanced on a town. The Allied troops knew which buildings to seize first, which villas to search for officers and what the officers looked like.

Harold Adrian Russell "Kim" Philby ORB, OL ODN was a British intelligence officer and a double agent for the Soviet Union. In 1963, he was revealed to be a member of the Cambridge Five, a spy ring which had divulged British secrets to the Soviets during World War II and in the early stages of the Cold War. Wikipedia

It was at MI6 training in London Angelton was in that Jim became close, too close, to his counterintelligence teacher, Kim Philby. Philby was probably the single most treacherous spy in all of espionage history. What Kim Philby got away with is remarkable. He was vicious. He had been recruited into the Communist Party at Cambridge with four other students. They became the infamous Cambridge Five, upper-class Brits who were such hard-core Marxists they took positions in the British government in order to spy for the Soviet Union.

Philby, who was passing secret Allied Powers information to the Soviet Union, actually became head of the anti-Soviet section of MI6. Moscow’s most important spy was running the British agents in the USSR. They had a very short life span. Philby was directly responsible for the Soviet executions of hundreds of agents and their families. Later, it was because of Philby that everything Angleton knew about CIA matters was passed to the Soviets. Cicely has said that Philby’s betrayal destroyed Jim.

Angleton set up Operation Chaos but he did not run it. That didn't matter. When Seymour Hersh outed the operation in The New York Times in 1974, Jim took the hit.

OpChaos was set up to spy on, infiltrate and shut down the left. The government wasn't kidding. They hated the anti-war movement and many politicians thought it was being run by foreigners. The first order of business was infiltrating left-wing groups. The FBI had been infiltrating the Communist Party for years. The FBI and the CIA worked together for much of OpChaos.

It was difficult to infiltrate student groups. The operative had to be registered in the school, they had to be part of the radical movement on campus and they had to be believable. However, every group on the left that was not a student group was filled with informants. The sheer number of infiltrators in the anti-war newspapers, the artist-anarchist organizations and the counterculture groups around people like Abbie Hoffman was enormous.

And Angleton? Jim was furiously in pursuit of the moles he was certain inhabited the CIA and he was creating so much trouble that he simple had to be fired. Everyone knew it and no one would do it. So the CIA itself leaked information about Operation Chaos to Seymour Hersh of The New York Times and The Times did the dirty work of outing Angleton. Jim was force to quit, he testified in public and was gone.

And then what happened? Then the KGB moved in. The CIA and the FBI were hit with a tsunami of moles who passed and sold information to the Soviet Union in the greatest loss of secrets since Philby. Dozens of American agents in Soviet territories were executed. But this time, the sources of the deadly leaks were almost impossible to detect. Angleton was gone. No one knew how to hunt a mole down.

Canonizing Pope Paul VI, CIA Collaborator retrieved from https://juicyecumenism.com/2018/02/07/canonizing-pope-paul-vi-cia-collaborator/ and copied or modified to here

Mark Tooley on February 7, 2018

Apparently the canonization of Pope Paul VI may culminate this year. He was pontiff from 1963 to 1978, presiding over the latter part of the Second Vatican Council and issuing Humanae Vitae, which defended Catholic opposition to artificial contraception.

Less recalled is his role across 30 years in the Vatican's Secretariat of State under Pope Pius XII, which included his apparent collaboration with the CIA in covertly opposing the Communists in Italy's dicey 1948 election. A new biography of CIA legend James Angleton, an Episcopalian whose mother was Catholic, recounts he reportedly was close to and met regularly with the future Pope, then Monsignor Giovanni Montini, to synchronize support for Italy's Christian Democratic Party. (The Matt Damon character in the 2006 film The Good Shepherd is partly based on Angleton.)

It was widely feared Italian Communism, backed by the Soviet Union, could prevail in post-WWII Italy, which was impoverished, chaotic and still recovering from Fascist rule. The Christian Democrats, who hearkened to Catholic social teaching, were the best hope for a democratic, pro-Western and free market Italy that could prosper. A Communist Italy would have been a huge addition to Stalin's growing slave empire behind the Iron Curtain. At the same time Greece's royalist government was in virtual civil war with a communist insurrection. The new Truman Doctrine in 1947 announced USA support for Greece and Turkey in their resistance to Soviet expansionism.

American support for Italy's Christian Democrats was not so public, and possibly millions of dollars were channeled to them, sometimes cooperatively with the Catholic Church. Mythology recalls satchels of lira transmitted quietly. The new Angleton biography claims Monsignor Montini was given control of a CIA subsidized slush fund at the Vatican Bank for campaign purposes.

With or without CIA help, the Christian Democrats won a big victory in 1948 and governed Italy for the rest of the Cold War, with the opposition Communists remaining unacceptable to still mostly Catholic Italy. To the extent future Pope Pope Paul VI assisted this campaign in 1948 and afterwards to keep Italy democratic, good for him. Presumably his role will not be cited in his canonization, any more than Pope John Paul II's collaboration with the Reagan Administration against Polish and East European Communism was cited in his canonization. But their opposition to totalitarian enslavement of their native lands, respectively Italy and Poland, and beyond, further exemplifies their service to God and humanity.

IRD emeritus board member George Weigel notes that when the Catholic Church self-protectively tried to reach accommodations with vicious dictatorships, the results were shameful, whether with Italy's Fascists, the Third Reich, or East European Communism. Now he warns against an apparent Vatican accommodation of China's repressive regime, which seeks to preempt the Catholic Church in China.

Christian political witness has always been more heroic when it sided against tyranny and in favor of lawful freedom not just for Christians but for all people. In 1948 that entailed future Pope Paul VI secretly collaborating with James Angleton and the CIA against Italian Communism and for Christian Democracy. We can be grateful.

The Dulles Brothers are famous for serving with Vice President Nixon 1952 to 1960 under President Eisenhower who was effectively assigned Richard Nixon as a V.P. in a smoke filled backroom and shortly thereafter Richard Nixon had to give is Checkers the Dog speech of receiving the donation of his dog from a donor, but when you think about it was it in anyone's mind about the Devil's Chessboard these rich Robber Barraons were plotting?

Looking deeper back at the long well-to-do line of the rich world elite Dulles family you find out they were Georgian (Southern elite familie) from South Carolina. Why South Carolina? For some reason, probably farming tobacco, they had come from India where the family lived as officers of the East India Tea Company for the Royal Charter granted and dedicated to the Royal Family as enforcers of British Imperialism.

James Jesus Angleton (December 9, 1917 – May 11, 1987)[1] was an American intelligence operative who served as chief of counterintelligence for the Central Intelligence Agency from 1954 to 1975. According to Director of Central Intelligence Richard Helms, Angleton "was recognized as the dominant counterintelligence figure in the non-communist world."

James Hugh Angleton joined the National Cash Register Corporation, rising through its ranks until in the early 1930s he purchased the NCR franchise in Italy. In Italy, he became head of the American Chamber of Commerce. Angleton's boyhood was spent in Milan, Italy. He studied as a boarder at Malvern College in England before attending Yale University.

One of the most famous Malvern College alumni is Najib Razak who was a pupil of the school from 1968 to 1971, who was convicted of corruption in the 1Malaysia Development Berhad scandal, one of the largest money-laundering scandals in history. a Malaysian politician who served as the 6th prime minister of Malaysia from April 2009 to May 2018. In 2020, he was convicted of corruption in the 1Malaysia Development Berhad scandal, one of the largest money-laundering and embezzlement scandals in history. He is the son of former prime minister Abdul Razak Hussein. Najib Razak was the chairman of the Barisan Nasional (BN) coalition from April 2009 to May 2018 and the president of the United Malays National Organisation (UMNO) from November 2008 to May 2018, which had maintained control of Malaysia's government with a parliamentary majority for more than sixty years until the coalition's defeat in the 2018 general election.

Najib was elected to the Parliament of Malaysia in 1976, at the age of 23, replacing his deceased father in the Pahang-based seat of Pekan.

Angleton served in the Office of Strategic Services, a wartime predecessor to the CIA, in Italy and London during World War II. After the war, he returned to Washington, D.C. to become one of the founding officers of the CIA. He was initially responsible for the collection of foreign intelligence and liaison with the counterpart organizations in allied countries. In 1954, Allen Dulles promoted Angleton to chief of the Counterintelligence Staff.

In 1943, Angleton joined the U.S. Army. During World War II, Angleton served in the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) and led its Italian branch. He also served in London under Norman Holmes Pearson in the X-2 Counter Espionage Branch of the OSS. By February 1944, he was chief of the Italy desk for X-2 in London. While in London, Angleton met the famous double agent Kim Philby. In November 1944, Angleton was transferred to Italy as commander of Secret Counterintelligence Unit Z, which handled Ultra intelligence based on the British intercepts of German radio communications. His father James Hugh Angleton was already familiar with Donovan who was groomed by the British Intelligence services long before WWII. Dulles was friends of them all and was a key player in world intelligence since the early 1900's (Poulgrain)

Nonfiction account of one literary version description of events involved in the assassination.

E. HOWARD HUNT: O [and also Harriman, Angleton, others]

Better known as Averell Harriman, he was born in New York City, the son of railroad baron Edward Henry Harriman and Mary Williamson Averell. He was the brother of E. Roland Harriman and Mary Harriman Rumsey. Harriman was a close friend of Hall Roosevelt, the brother of Eleanor Roosevelt.

The initials "WH" appeared on the flyleaf of Oswald's address book. Howard Hunt was the liaison between CIA and the Eisenhower White House in regard to Bay of Pigs. Years later Bernard Barker's address book listed Hunt under WH as you can see below.

Watergate burglar Rolando Martinez' personal telephone directory listed Howard Hunt. Next to the phone number it noted: "W. House." Hunt's name was listed under the letters "W. H." in Bernard Barker's address book. Hunt was asked what would lead Mr. Barker to use the initials W. H? Hunt: "I assume that WH was for White House."

EVERETTE HOWARD HUNT was born on October 9, 1918, in Hamburg, N.Y., into a family of English and Welch heritage which traced its lineage to the Revolutionary War. Hunt's Point, in the South Bronx section of New York City, was named after one of Hunt's ancestors. Hunt's father, Howard Hunt Sr., was a friend of OSS founder William J. Donovan. When Hunt was eight, his family moved to Miami, where Howard Hunt Sr. entered a business partnership which eventually failed. In Give Us This Day, Hunt described the incident which led to this. On a Saturday, Howard Hunt Sr.'s business partner stole $5,000 from him, then flew to Havana. The next day, Howard Hunt Sr. flew to Havana, found his partner, put a gun to his partner's head, and got all of his money back. The moral to be gained from this story, according to Hunt, was: "An operation conducted with surgical efficiency and maximum speed leaves minimal scars on those involved." This story can be interpreted so that a different moral is extracted from it: rather than report the incident to the local authorities, Howard Hunt Sr. went to Cuba and was willing to execute his ex-partner for $5000. The moral implied by this incident: if you are double-crossed, murder is permissible.

During his teens Hunt suffered from dyslexia and stammering. He graduated from Brown University in 1940, where he majored in English literature and journalism. He received an Associate Baccalaureate Degree. He was accepted as a play writing student at Yale Drama School. Hunt enlisted in the Naval Reserves.

Hunt reported: "Enlisted United States Naval Reserve, August 27, 1940, as Apprentice Seaman, appointed to U.S. Navy Midshipman's School...served aboard USS Destroyer Mayo, discharge by reason of being not physically qualified for retention." In February 1941 Hunt entered the United States Navy. He was on active duty for five months before he was given an honorable medical discharge in late 1942.

Tad Szulc reported: "According to incomplete records [Hunt] was injured aboard a ship doing Atlantic convoy duty." Hunt was discharged because of a hearing problem. [FBI 139-4089-1627] Hunt wrote East of Farewell, a fictionalized account of North Atlantic convoy duty, and sold it to Alfred Knopf Publishers. From October 1942 to February 1943 he worked for Time Inc. (March of Time) where he prepared and edited scripts for a monthly newsreel, and produced Naval training films. He was hired by Time and became a war correspondent in the South Pacific from February 1943 to July 1943. Hunt covered the battle of Guadalcanal. Hunt stated: "I flew as an observer with VT11, Henderson Field, Guadalcanal, 1943, soloed SO3C type, March 1943, New Hebrides." He returned to New York City in 1943, where he worked for Fortune magazine and wrote Limit Of Darkness, which he sold to Random House.

HUNT JOINS THE OSS: DECEMBER 1944

Hunt enlisted as a private in the United States Air Force: "After basic training at Fort Dix and Miami Beach, I qualified for Officer Candidate School...After being commissioned, I was sent to Air Force Intelligence School at Orlando, Florida, where, after two weeks as a student, I was placed on the faculty." While he was in Air Force Intelligence, Hunt passed rigorous OSS testing and investigation: "A few days later General William E. Donovan summoned me to his office. There he confirmed that I had been accepted for duty in the OSS and was henceforth relieved of further Air Force duties." During his OSS training period, Hunt met Navy Lieutenant James Donovan and future CIA officers Lawrence Houston and Walter Kuzmuk. Hunt cited Bennett Cerf of Random House as a credit reference. Hunt named Quentin Reynolds as a reference. Hunt stated: "Graduate of Air Combat Intelligence School, AAFSAT, AFTAC, Florida. Wide experience with intelligence sources and procedures as part of current duties in AFTAC Air Room, plus special research into propaganda analysis (a standard lecture for the Army-Navy Staff College), plus professional writing and experience as naval officer at start of war. As a War correspondent, I found out that my experience as a naval officer helped me effect easy liaison with Task Force and Air Group commanders in the theater. I am known as a novelist and shortstory writer, and contribute to national magazines upon the request of individual editors. December 9, 1944."

Hunt was assigned to OSS Detachment 202, headed by PAUL HELLIWELL (born September 17, 1914). From January 17, 1945 to August 18, 1945, Paul Helliwell served as Chief, Special Intelligence Branch, OSS, China Theater. When the war ended, Paul Helliwell was placed in charge of postwar intelligence, and awarded the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster. In January 1950 he joined the CIA.

In 1951 Paul Helliwell helped set up and run Sea Supply Corporation, a CIA proprietary. Angleton associate John Hart headed a CIA group of 76 men training the Thai Police via the Sea Supply Corporation. [Indochina Resource Center Study 1.77] Paul Helliwell served as a paymaster during the Bay of Pigs invasion in April 1961. Hunt listed his OSS and military duty: "CBI Reports Officer, Lecturer on Psychological Warfare at Army-Navy Staff College." Hunt served in the Far East until January 1946. After the war, he went to Mexico on a Guggenheim Fellowship. Later he took up residence in Los Angeles and Miami.

Hunt was an Economic Attaché at the American Embassy, Paris. Hunt's associates there included Glen Morehouse, a Paris CIA Station officer, Richard Bissell and Frank Wisner.

At the Economic Cooperation Administration, Vienna, Hunt produced an anti-communist film directed toward labor groups, entitled Mit Vereinten Kraeften.

In 1948 HUNT was employed by the Economic Cooperation Administration and served in Paris as and aide to Averill Harriman: "A background investigation conducted by the FBI in July 1949 revealed no indication of instability on the Subject's part, but it was later learned that Subject had been refused an increase in salary with the Economic Cooperation Administration and had been permitted to resign. He was described as highly intelligent, but blindly selfish, and egotistical." Hunt's employment history stated: "May 1948 to February 1948, Economic Cooperation Administration, Public Relations, J. F. Fleming, U. S. Media Specialist. PR work plus speech writing for Ambassador Harriman; film production. Reasons for Leaving: My publishing affairs deteriorated to such an extent that my presence in America became imperative for financial reasons."

[William Averell Harriman (November 15, 1891 – July 26, 1986), better known as Averell Harriman, was an American Democratic politician, businessman, and diplomat. The son of railroad baron E. H. Harriman, he served as Secretary of Commerce under President Harry S. Truman, and later as the 48th governor of New York. He was a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1952 and 1956, as well as a core member of the group of foreign policy elders known as "The Wise Men"aka Majic 12 Secret Allegiance with Windsor family formed 1946 upon Princess Elizabeth and Prince Phillip engagement.

While attending Groton School and Yale University, Harriman made contacts that led to creation of a banking firm that eventually merged into Brown Brothers Harriman & Co. Born William Averell Harriman
November 15, 1891
New York City, U.S.]

On November 23, 1949, Hunt was fingerprinted by the FBI for the CIA. DOROTHY WETZEL HUNT: 1949

Dorothy Wetzel De Goutiere, born Dorothy Davis to Mrs. Jane Davis, worked for the State Department in Bern, Switzerland, between July 1944 and January 1946 tracing Nazi money in Europe. From April 1946 to May 1947, Dorothy De Goutiere worked for the Treasury Department, Shanghai, China. She joined Economic Cooperation Administration in April 1948. In this capacity she traveled to Paris and became part of the staff of William Averill Harriman, an administrator of the Marshall Plan. She married Howard Hunt on September 7, 1949. The CIA reported that "Dorothy Louise Hunt [OS 355,750] was investigated for Agency employment in 1948. Her former husband [Goutiere] was described as an habitual drunkard and not inclined to remain in any one place for any length of time. She did not enter on duty, having accepted a position with the Economic Cooperation Administration in Paris. Our Paris sources later reported that Subject's wife was formerly his mistress and was openly flouted as such for several months. She was then described as an amoral and dangerous individual who underhandedly attacked those persons who incurred her enmity." The De Goutiere in question was probably George De Goutiere, an artist. Saint John Hunt recalled, “She had married first, to an alcoholic French count of some kind; he was later killed in an automobile crash (who knows, certainly not I). She was exotic looking; dark thick hair with a widow’s peak, strong high cheekbones, and a well developed full busted figure. She was German and Sioux Indian, and her skin was richly olive toned.” [Bond of Secrecy St. John Hunt. Sarasota Herald Tribune July 7, 1948.]

1949

In 1949 Hunt’s book, Bimini Run, was published; Warner Brothers paid Hunt $35,000 for the movie rights. On May 18, 1949, Hunt filled out a PERSONAL HISTORY STATEMENT for the CIA. Hunt cited Major J.K. Singlaub as an employment reference. General Singlaub became commander of the Joint Unconventional Warfare Task Force in Vietnam in 1968 and was involved in Operation Phoenix. In 1984 Singlaub headed the World AntiCommunist League. John K. Singlaub had been in Hunt’s OSS unit. On November 8, 1949, Hunt filled out a Personal Status Report. In November 1949 Hunt joined the Office of Policy Coordination (CIA) where he became an International Organization Editor. He remained there until December 1950.

1950 TO 1953

On February 17, 1950, Hunt was informed by the CIA's Office of Security that his wife held left-wing attitudes regarding certain minority groups:

> With regard to his wife, Mr. Hunt states that she is one of these individuals who carries the torch for minority groups and always has been too ready to take up the battle when any derogatory remarks are made concerning members of these groups. He advised, however, that she is becoming less pugnacious about this because he has constantly made it a point to request her not to express her opinion so strongly. Mr. Hunt advises, as a matter of fact, that at the outset he used to bait his wife on these matters, but as he realized how strongly she feels about them, he ceased the practice. It seems as though Mrs. Hunt becomes so upset concerning racial and minority prejudices that the resultant condition is really injurious to her health. Mr. Hunt advises that he will have a heart-to-heart talk with his > wife and ask her to tighten up on the control of her emotions. He will further suggest to his wife that she take the chip off her shoulders, and if remarks are made which disturb her, she should assume the attitude of considering the source. Mr. Hunt believes his wife is becoming less susceptible to remarks which have enraged her in the past. He has promised me to adopt a policy of discontinuing social relations with individuals who constantly discuss matters which are repugnant to his wife. I was very favorably impressed by Mr. Hunt's attitude concerning my admonitions, and I respect him for his forthright denouncement and evaluation of his wife's shortcomings. I am firm in my belief that Mr. Hunt is throughly patriotic, completely anti-Communist, and that there will be no repetition of past complaints. I sincerely recommend that we close the book on this issue, and start over with a clean slate. (Deleted) OS.

THE DEATH OF CAPTAIN EUGENE KARP

On February 27, 1950, Hunt wrote a memo about his association with U.S. Naval Officer Eugene Simon Karpe …said today that it was possible in the darkness of a Salzberg tunnel Karpe could have been thrown accidentally from the Arlberg-Express." On November 8, 1950, William D. Miller, Assistant Chief, Overseas Branch, sent George P. Loker, Jr. Chief, Special Security Branch, a memo: "Subject (Deleted) OPC) (Deleted) of SAC has been changed to above. Former (deleted) was (deleted). On December 14, 1950, the Chief, Special Security Branch, was informed by the Chief, Overseas Branch, that "(deleted) (Pseudo - Office of Policy Coordination) Please cancel your security clearance dated December 7, 1950. The decision has been made that the Subject is to be considered a semi-covert employee (deleted)."

On September 17, 1953, Hunt generated a MFR on Cornelius Van Manen, a Dutch citizen who was entering the United States military: "Subject stated that it was unfortunate that Hitler did not succeed in his conquest of Europe...Howard Hunt SE/CPP." On December 4, 1953, Hunt was granted clearance for attendance at lectures of the Armed Forces Industrial College. Hunt worked with Colonel Edward Landsdale, an Army counterinsurgency expert. During his career with the CIA, Hunt was listed as assigned to the following Staffs and Divisions: PB II, WH/?, SP/?, PY/?, PP/CR/TV, SE/ PP, WH/4, DODS/ R & P, DO/CA, OPSER, C/E/CA. In 1953 Hunt earned an Appreciation from Chief, PP, for assistance rendered in the preparation of "PP Operational Aids." In 1953 Hunt won another Appreciation from P.T. Culbertson, American Embassy, (Deleted) for ability, discretion and judgement displayed while assigned to (Deleted).

Hunt served as Case Officer for William F. Buckley Jr. in the early 1950's. William F. Buckley Sr. had been an owner of the Pantipec Oil Company in Mexico. In the early 1920's, Mexican nationalists sent him to the United States. His fortune remained intact, and he used it to again speculate in oil, ultimately amassing a fortune. When Pantipec reopened in Mexico it was part of an oil empire worth an estimated $110 million. [Markmann The Buckleys William Morrow 1973 p33] Born in 1925,

William Buckley Jr. studied at the University of Mexico and then at Yale, where he wrote a tome attacking liberalism, God and Man at Yale. When William F. Buckley Jr. returned to Mexico in July 1951, he had some familiarity with the country and language. He resigned from the CIA in 1952 and joined the staff of The American Mercury. In 1955 he founded his own magazine, The National Review. William F. Buckley helped organize the American Committee to Aid the Katanga Freedom Fighters, who opposed Patrice Lumumba. William F. Buckley's CIA file was still withheld as of 2010. The CIA: "Third party information (Summary of Bill Buckley's relationship with the CIA)."

E. HOWARD HUNT AND BORIS PASH

In 1954 Hunt was in contact with the CIA's assassination unit. Hunt recalled:

The CIA had set up a small group to arrange for assassinations of suspected double-agents and similar low ranking officials...I was told by my CIA superiors in 1954 that Boris T. Pash, an Agency official, was in charge of the assassination unit...Boris Pash was the man in charge of an area that dealt with removals by violent means...I never asked Boris Pash to plan an assassination mission, I simply asked him if he had the capability.

Boris Pash, a former Army intelligence agent, headed the Alsos Mission during World War II. Its target goals were the capture of German scientists and the termination of the Nazi atomic bomb program. After the war, Boris Pash, an associate of John Earman, helped Nazi scientists enter the United States. [Lasby Project Paperclip p203; Hunt Depo. in Hunt v. Weberman First Depo. undated; Hersh Old Boys p226] Boris Pash joined Hunt at the Office of Policy Coordination in 1949, where he worked in the Office of Special Operations, Program Branch 7 (PB/7). Angleton and William K. Harvey directed the Office of Special Operations. DAVID Phillips was asked: "Do you know if William K. Harvey knew Mr. Hunt or ever worked with Mr. Hunt, to your knowledge?" He responded: "I think it is quite possible since they both were in the Agency for a long time."

The Operations Planning Director of the Office of Policy Coordination, who supervised PB/7, confirmed it was responsible for assassinations and kidnapping. The Deputy Chief of PB/7, who served under Boris Pash, testified he had a clear recollection that the written charter of the Office of Special Operation included the following language: "PB/7 will be responsible for assassinations, kidnapping and other such functions as from time to time may be given it."

Baron: Let me return to one name that you mentioned and this is William Harvey. What was the nature of your operational relationships to William Harvey after this period. Did you have any? Hunt: I never had any, no. In fact I've only seen him once in my life, to the best of my recollection. Baron: As you may know, William Harvey was tasked in 1961 with setting up an executive action capability at the CIA, tasked originally by Richard Bissell to carry out assassinations if required.

HUNT 1954

In his autobiography, Undercover, Hunt recalled that he recommended the ouster of Jacobo Arbenz shortly after he was elected, but his superiors at the CIA refused to act until Arbenz threatened the profits of United Fruit. Then, according to Hunt, the lawyer who represented United Fruit, Ernest Cuneo, pressured the CIA leadership into taking action against Arbenz. DAVID Phillips described the chain of command in the Arbenz operation as follows: the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency Allen Dulles; then Director /Plans Richard Bissell; then Deputy Director/Plans Frank Wisner and his subordinate Tracy Barnes; then Colonel J.C. King, Chief /Western Hemisphere Division; then himself and Hunt.

In Give Us This Day Hunt related that the CIA had initially favored a pre-eminent jurist and coffee grower, Juan Cordova Cerna, to head the post-Arbenz regime:

"I thought back to the period before the overthrow of Colonel Arbenz when the CIA was treating with three exiled leaders: Colonel Castillo Armas, Dr. Juan Cordova Cerna, and Colonel Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes. As a distinguished and respected jurist, Dr. Juan Cordova Cerna had my personal vote as provisional president; our paramilitary people, however, were impressed with Castillo Armas' qualities as a military leader, and State had vetoed Ydigoras Fuentes as authoritarian. I remembered meeting secretly with Juan Cordova Cerna in a room in the Mexico City YMCA, and how at a critical time in the pre-invasion maneuvering, he had been forced to enter the Ochsner Clinic for cancer surgery. With his hospitalization, the possibility of civilian leadership ended, and Colonel Armas was selected to carry though. Chance, then, as it so often does, played the decisive role in the destiny of a nation."

In Undercover, Hunt recounted that Dr. Juan Cordova Cerna "reluctantly had left Guatemala for New Orleans. There, it was discovered that he suffered from throat cancer and treatment was begun at the Ochsner Clinic in New Orleans." [Hunt Undercover p97] Phillips wrote: "One facet of CIA planning had gone awry in a development beyond control - the moderate civilian who was groomed to become the interim President contracted a fatal illness." [Phillips Nightwatch p53] Phillips was asked "Do you have any knowledge about how Juan Cordova came to contract the disease, cancer?" He answered: "No, I do not know."

Did Dr. Juan Cordova Cerna really have Hunt's personal vote? Hunt wrote: "It had been decided at the State Department Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes was a right-wing reactionary." In the past, Hunt favored political figures who had been labeled "right-wing reactionaries" by the State Department. For example, he described his friend Pedro Diaz Lanz as one of those labeled a right-wing reactionary. Dr. Juan Cordova Cerna would not have conformed to Hunt's vision of a post-Arbenz government.

Dr. Juan Cordova Cerna, a candidate for election in 1950, was a former legal advisor for the United Fruit Company. Washington lobbyist Tom Corcoran, an associate of Ernest Cuneo, called Dr. Juan Cordova Cerna "the liberal" among the exiles. Ché Guevara wrote his followers: "Keep in contact and be united with groups around Dr. Juan Cordova Cerna...because they represent valuable allies and should not be despised." [Fuentes, My War with Communism p146] After Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes, Hunt's next logical choice should have been Castillo Armas.

Had Hunt poisoned Dr. Juan Cordova Cerna during their meeting, to thwart the wish of the State Department to make him the head of the post-Arbenz Guatemalan government? Could the cancer of Juan Cordova Cerna have had some relation to the Ochsner Clinic? Was the Clinic unwittingly or wittingly CIApenetrated? No credible evidence of this exists as of 1996; however some interesting documents have been released regarding Alton Ochsner.

The scenario for the Carlos Castillo-Armas assassination was similar to that of the Kennedy assassination. Both assassins were alleged Communists who had no official Communist Party ties. Both assassins were to be killed shortly after the assassination although there was a two-day delay in Oswald's case. Both assassins were supposed to be linked to Moscow - Romeo Vasquez Sanchez via a card from Radio Moscow, Oswald through defection to Russia and a visit to Cuba. Both men kept diaries.

The man who was really Hunt's first choice, MIGUEL YDIGORAS FUENTES, was elected Guatemalan President in 1958 after his defeat in a first election resulted in street riots, strikes, demonstrations and general lawlessness by his supporters. In return for quelling the disturbances, the junta proceeded to nullify the election and hold another. Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes won the second election. Six weeks later, he visited President Eisenhower in Washington, to show he was not the "rightist monster I have been painted."

Guatemala was again safe for American investments, and in 1959, Fortune magazine reported that United Fruit was "in Guatemala, Costa Rica and Honduras and is still the largest single private landowner, single largest business and largest corporate employer." The magazine noted that the former Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, General Walter Bedell Smith, had become a director of the United Fruit Company.

Hunt's assignment in Japan ended in February 1957 [the CIA in its own intercepts suspected the plot to kill JFK came from the Japan station leading RFK to angrily ask the CIA DID YOU KILL MY BROTHER??.]

Secret Mission And the Kennedy Threat To It

It is likely during the Eisenhower years the military industrial complex operation out of Area 51 and other NSA work and other sciences were in close coordination in wiht allies, a model developed with Malta and the invasion of Malta though in the decades that followed the Malta system of information sharing and close cooperation continued. With the US and Great Brittian whis was the -P-51 and Spitfire and Rolls Royce story blending British design with US production capacity of Packard Motors, etc.,

Lansdale believed in this, was close to CD Douglas himself a Bilderberger, and according to Prouty aerospace work agreements like the TFX fighter project that MacNamara and JFK disagreed with the V.P. Nixon regime and broke ties with these likely Majic12 secret research agreements with Great Brittian.

The larger picture is Bissle JR and others like the Dulles brothers and CIA backed companies in thsi reconnaissance work were planning overthrows and planting MI6 CIA candidates into those locations during CIA activities.

Ed Donegan asserts Barrack OBama Jr was one of these cultural orphans (test tube babies with no true loving parents, just faked paperwork and cover stories) that were orphanage or adoptee stories.

For the purpose of studying a nation and planning overthrows this was not look but don't touch, this was to determine troop movements, use HUMMINT and SIGNINT to calculate likely allies and enemies in foreign lands, and create the overthrow movements where socialism was gaining power.

LEADERS OF THE NATIONAL RECONNAISSANCE OFFICE: DIRECTORS, DEPUTY DIRECTORS, STAFF DIRECTORS, PROGRAM DIRECTORS, CHIEFS OF STAFF, DIRECTORATE AND OFFICE MANAGERS Volume I: 1961-1992 Second Revised Edition Dr. Clayton Laurie and Michael J. Suk

PREFACE TO FIRST EDITION

Between 1953 and late 1961 the administrations of Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy undertook a series of initiatives to protect the nation against surprise atomic attack by the Soviet Union. These initiatives resulted in creation of the National Reconnaissance Program (NRP) and the National Reconnaissance Office to manage it on 6 September 1961.

INTRODUCTION

In the late 1940s, the United States began peacetime strategic reconnaissance overflights of "denied territories" to forewarn, if not forestall, a surprise nuclear attack and to provide knowledge about potential threats to the nation. President Dwight D. Eisenhower approved reconnaissance systems that included high-altitude balloons (such as Project Genetrix), aircraft (the CIA's U-2 and A-12), and reconnaissance satellites (the CIA's Corona for imagery intelligence; the Navy's Grab and Poppy for signals intelligence, and the Air Force's Samos for both). In August 1960, President Eisenhower created a civilian-led office, the Office of Missile and Satellite Systems, to direct the U.S. Air Force space-based reconnaissance satellite program. His successor, President John F. Kennedy, also strongly supported the development of overhead reconnaissance systems.

On 6 September 1961, the Department of Defense and Central Intelligence Agency jointly established the National Reconnaissance Program (NRP) to consolidate all space-based and aerial reconnaissance assets, and founded a covert, highly compartmented, National Reconnaissance Office (NRO) to manage the NRP. The NRO was a unique hybrid organization, staffed and led by military and civilian personnel drawn from both the U.S. Intelligence Community and the Department of Defense. Intelligence collection requirements and priorities were set by the United States Intelligence Board, chaired by the Director of Central Intelligence. Like President Eisenhower, President Kennedy, Secretary of Defense McNamara, and the early Directors of the National Reconnaissance Office believed that civilians, rather than the military, should control reconnaissance activities.

Air Force Undersecretary Dr. Joseph V. Charyk and CIA Deputy Director/Plans Dr. Richard M. Bissell, Jr., were the first to co-direct the new organization. The Director NRO reported to the Secretary of Defense and to the Director of Central Intelligence (DCI) and, through them, to the President. This made intelligence derived from space-based reconnaissance satellites an exclusive and fundamental asset of the President and his national security team.

Because the National Reconnaissance Office was composed of representatives from the nation's civilian and military intelligence agencies, its position was unique within the U.S. Intelligence Community. NRO leaders had prior civilian service in the Department of Defense, the Central Intelligence Agency, or other federal executive and legislative departments and offices, or in private industry. Obtaining individuals from such a broad pool ensured a combination of the skills, experience, and perspectives necessary to manage the hybrid National Reconnaissance Office. In the early years of the organization, an Under Secretary of the Air Force or an Assistant Secretary for Space served as Director of the National Reconnaissance Office. The Secretary of Defense and the CIA Director selected the Director NRO; the U.S. Senate confirmed the candidate of their choice. It is the responsibility of the Director of the National Reconnaissance Office to acquire and operate all space-based reconnaissance and intelligence systems through the National Reconnaissance Program. In the early 1960s, the CIA and Defense Department established the NRO Deputy Director's position, designating it as a CIA billet. This designation, following the earlier decision that the NRO director would serve as a senior civilian leader of the Department of the Air Force—often as the undersecretary—further enhanced the partnership between the Department of Defense and Central Intelligence Agency at the NRO.

When first established, the Director and Deputy Director of the NRO supervised four distinct reconnaissance programs—for the Air Force's Program A, the CIA's Program B, and the Navy's Program C, as well as a program for the U-2, SR-71, and A-12 aircraft under Program D.

Although one coherent National Reconnaissance Program existed, each of the NRO's "alphabetic" programs was located in different parts of the United States, with NRO headquarters near Washington, D.C., at the Pentagon.

Program A managed the U.S. Air Force satellite reconnaissance effort, and maintained, for cover purposes, the Air Force Special Projects Office.

For most of its existence, Program A operated from the West Coast in Los Angeles and at Sunnyvale, California. Its leaders, profiled in the following pages, generally consisted of U.S. Air Force flag rank officers who normally had spent their entire careers involved in reconnaissance and space fields. Program A also provided base facilities and acquired, integrated, launched, and in most cases operated on-orbit reconnaissance satellites for the Central Intelligence Agency and the U.S. Navy.

Program B oversaw the Central Intelligence Agency satellite reconnaissance program. It was first managed by Dr. Richard M. Bissell, Jr., and later, by the various Directors of the Office of Development and Engineering within the larger CIA Directorate of Science and Technology (DS&T).

Program C consisted of the U.S. Navy satellite reconnaissance program. Its members were assigned to the Technical Operations Group made up of representatives from the Naval Research Laboratory, PME-106, SPAWAR, the U.S. Navy Electronics Command, and the Naval Security Group—all located in Washington, D.C., and nearby Maryland. Program C developed the Galactic Radiation and Background (Grab) and Poppy signals intelligence satellites in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

Grab produced the first successful launch of an American reconnaissance satellite in June 1960. As was true for Program A, the U.S. Naval officers who directed Program C were often commanders of staff or flag rank who counted years of service in their chosen fields. Many were highly decorated combat veterans of the Second World War, the Korean Conflict, or the War in Southeast Asia prior to service at the National Reconnaissance Office.

Program D, briefly known as “aircraft projects” when created in July 1962, embraced the acquisition and support of aerial reconnaissance assets in the NRP, under the CIA reconnaissance program.

Program D consisted of the nation's high-altitude "air-breathing" aerial reconnaissance aircraft developed in the 1950s and 1960s including the U-2, the A-12, and the SR-71. Program D Directors possessed extensive command and flight experience with reconnaissance and combat aircraft dating from the Second World War and Korean Conflict.

Many had additional experience with the design, development, and operation of reconnaissance aircraft and photographic and intelligence-gathering equipment. Program D remained part of the National Reconnaissance Office until 1 October 1974. On that date, all aerial reconnaissance assets transferred from NRO control to the U.S. Air Force in order to fill an increasing demand for tactical intelligence that directly served the needs of the military, since at the time, satellites primarily served the strategic intelligence needs of the President and other national command authorities, not the military.

It appear the USA intelligence community especially the air-force and RECON and British family and British aviation became nearly intimate with the Windsors and even the Kutscheras.

RECON is vital to warfare. Detecting enemy movements, intentions, military industrial facilities and activitiees, etc.,

Following WWII the Special Relationship of the Manhattan Project will endure and even include German scientists who would be vetted as labor class not Party aparatus workers of the Nazi regime no matter who well educated or important the the Nazi war effort.

THe P-51 was a fighter bomber, escort, ground attack (strafe) and recon plane that was part of the turning of the war including the role it played as MK -I in the Battle of Britain, saving the Thousand Year Empire from Nazi overhead flights designed to impose an uwnated peace treaty.

Area 51 retrieved from Wikipedia and copied or modified to here

Area 51 is the common name of a highly classified United States Air Force (USAF) facility within the Nevada Test and Training Range. A remote detachment administered by Edwards Air Force Base, the facility is officially called Homey Airport (ICAO: KXTA, FAA LID: XTA)[1] or Groom Lake (after the salt flat next to its airfield). Details of its operations are not made public, but the USAF says that it is an open training range,[2] and it is commonly thought to support the development and testing of experimental aircraft and weapons systems.[3][2] The USAF and CIA acquired the site in 1955, primarily for flight testing the Lockheed U-2 aircraft.

After assignments as flight test engineer, stress analyst, aerodynamicist, and weight engineer, Kelly Johnson became chief research engineer in 1938. In 1952, he was appointed chief engineer of Lockheed's Burbank, California plant, which later became the Lockheed-California Company. In 1956 he became Vice President of Research and Development there.

A design of the Lockheed A-3 (Mach 3 ramjet), sketch from Johnson's notebook Johnson became Vice President of Advanced Development Projects (ADP) in 1958. The first ADP offices were nearly uninhabitable; a smelly former bourbon distillery was the first ADP location, the site where his secretive team built the first P-38 Lightning prototype.[13] Moving from the distillery to a larger building, the stench from a nearby plastic factory was so vile that Irv Culver, one of the engineers, began answering the intra-Lockheed "house" phone "Skonk Works!"

In Al Capp's comic strip Li'l Abner, Big Barnsmell's Skonk Works — spelled with an "o" — was where Kickapoo Joy Juice was brewed.

Johnson led or contributed to the development of a number of aircraft. A few examples illustrate the influence of his work. In the late 1930s, Johnson led the team that developed the advanced twin-engine fighter, the P-38 Lightning.[15] Eventually, almost 10,000 Lightnings were built.[16][17] They played a significant role in World War II.

In 1943, responding to United States Army Air Forces' concerns about Nazi Germany's development of high performance jet fighters, Johnson proposed to develop a jet airplane in six months. The result, the P-80 Shooting Star, was completed on time and became America's first operational jet fighter.

In 1955, at the request of the Central Intelligence Agency, Johnson initiated construction of the airbase at Groom Lake, Nevada, later known as Area 51. This project provided a secret location for flight testing the Lockheed U-2.

Johnson also helped to design the Lockheed AQM-60 Kingfisher a decade before the famous SR-71. The Kingfisher was a highly successful single-engine Mach 4.3-capable ramjet aircraft composed mainly of steel, which was used to test American air defenses against nuclear missiles. The information and experience Johnson gained was later used to produce the A-12 spy plane for the Central Intelligence Agency. Johnson then used the combined knowledge of the Kingfisher and A-12 to produce the SR-71 Blackbird.

Johnson also led the development of the SR-71 Blackbird family of aircraft. Through a number of significant innovations, Johnson's team was able to create an aircraft that flew so high and fast that it could neither be intercepted nor shot down. No other jet airplane has matched the Blackbird's performance.

He served on Lockheed's board of directors from 1964 to 1980, becoming a senior vice president in 1969. He officially retired from Lockheed in 1975 and was succeeded by Ben Rich, but continued as a consultant at the Skunk Works.

U-2 program

"The Ranch" with U-2 flight line The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) established the Groom Lake test facility in April 1955 for Project AQUATONE: the development of the Lockheed U-2 strategic reconnaissance aircraft. Project director Richard M. Bissell Jr. understood that the flight test and pilot training programs could not be conducted at Edwards Air Force Base or Lockheed's Palmdale facility, given the extreme secrecy surrounding the project. He conducted a search for a suitable testing site for the U-2 under the same extreme security as the rest of the project. He notified Lockheed, who sent an inspection team out to Groom Lake.

Johnson named the area "Paradise Ranch" to encourage workers to move to "the new facility in the middle of nowhere", as the CIA later described it, and the name became shortened to "the Ranch".[8]:57 On 4 May 1955, a survey team arrived at Groom Lake and laid out a 5,000-foot (1,500 m) north–south runway on the southwest corner of the lakebed and designated a site for a base support facility. The Ranch initially consisted of little more than a few shelters, workshops, and trailer homes in which to house its small team.[30] A little over three months later, the base consisted of a single paved runway, three hangars, a control tower, and rudimentary accommodations for test personnel. The base's few amenities included a movie theater and volleyball court. There was also a mess hall, several wells, and fuel storage tanks. CIA, Air Force, and Lockheed personnel began arriving by July 1955. The Ranch received its first U-2 delivery on 24 July 1955 from Burbank on a C-124 Globemaster II cargo plane, accompanied by Lockheed technicians on a Douglas DC-3.[30] Regular Military Air Transport Service flights were set up between Area 51 and Lockheed's offices in Burbank, California. To preserve secrecy, personnel flew to Nevada on Monday mornings and returned to California on Friday evenings.[8]:72

OXCART program

For testing of a similar aircraft in December 1964, see SR-71 Blackbird. (one seater v. two seater mostly)

A 1966 Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) diagram of Area 51, found in an untitled, declassified paper, showing the runway overrun for OXCART (Lockheed A-12) and the turnaround areas (CIA / CREST RDP90b00184r000100040001-4) Project OXCART was established in August 1959 for "antiradar studies, aerodynamic structural tests, and engineering designs" and all later work on the Lockheed A-12.[31] This included testing at Groom Lake, which had inadequate facilities consisting of buildings for only 150 people, a 5,000 ft (1,500 m) asphalt runway, and limited fuel, hangar, and shop space.[29]:58 Groom Lake had received the name "Area 51"[29]:59[32] when A-12 test facility construction began in September 1960, including a new 8,500 ft (2,600 m) runway to replace the existing runway.

Reynolds Electrical and Engineering Company (REECo) began construction of "Project 51" on 1 October 1960 with double-shift construction schedules. The contractor upgraded base facilities and built a new 10,000 ft (3,000 m) runway (14/32) diagonally across the southwest corner of the lakebed. They marked an Archimedean spiral on the dry lake approximately two miles across so that an A-12 pilot approaching the end of the overrun could abort instead of plunging into the sagebrush. Area 51 pilots called it "The Hook". For crosswind landings, they marked two unpaved airstrips (runways 9/27 and 03/21) on the dry lakebed.[34]

By August 1961, construction of the essential facilities was complete; three surplus Navy hangars were erected on the base's north side while hangar 7 was new construction. The original U-2 hangars were converted to maintenance and machine shops. Facilities in the main cantonment area included workshops and buildings for storage and administration, a commissary, a control tower, a fire station, and housing. The Navy also contributed more than 130 surplus Babbitt duplex housing units for long-term occupancy facilities. Older buildings were repaired, and additional facilities were constructed as necessary. A reservoir pond surrounded by trees served as a recreational area one mile north of the base. Other recreational facilities included a gymnasium, a movie theater, and a baseball diamond.[34] A permanent aircraft fuel tank farm was constructed by early 1962 for the special JP-7 fuel required by the A-12. Seven tanks were constructed, with a total capacity of 1,320,000 gallons.

The first A-12 test aircraft was covertly trucked from Burbank on 26 February 1962 and arrived at Groom Lake on 28 February.[29]:60 It made its first flight 26 April 1962 when the base had over 1,000 personnel.[29]:60–62 The closed airspace above Groom Lake was within the Nellis Air Force Range airspace, and pilots saw the A-12 20 to 30 times.[29]:63–64 Groom was also the site of the first Lockheed D-21 drone test flight on 22 December 1964.[29]:123 By the end of 1963, nine A-12s were at Area 51, assigned to the CIA-operated "1129th Special Activities Squadron".[35]

The D-21 mounted on the back of the M-21. Note the intake cover on the drone, which was used on early flights.

Following the loss of Gary Powers' U-2 over the Soviet Union, there were several discussions about using the A-12 OXCART as an unpiloted drone aircraft. Although Kelly Johnson had come to support the idea of drone reconnaissance, he opposed the development of an A-12 drone, contending that the aircraft was too large and complex for such a conversion. However, the Air Force agreed to fund the study of a high-speed, high-altitude drone aircraft in October 1962. The Air Force interest seems to have moved the CIA to take action, the project designated "Q-12". By October 1963, the drone's design had been finalized. At the same time, the Q-12 underwent a name change. To separate it from the other A-12-based projects, it was renamed the "D-21". (The "12" was reversed to "21"). "Tagboard" was the project's code name.[29]:121

The first D-21 was completed in the spring of 1964 by Lockheed. After four more months of checkouts and static tests, the aircraft was shipped to Groom Lake and reassembled. It was to be carried by a two-seat derivative of the A-12, designated the "M-21". When the D-21/M-21 reached the launch point, the first step would be to blow off the D-21's inlet and exhaust covers. With the D-21/M-21 at the correct speed and altitude, the LCO would start the ramjet and the other systems of the D-21. "With the D-21's systems activated and running, and the launch aircraft at the correct point, the M-21 would begin a slight pushover, the LCO would push a final button, and the D-21 would come off the pylon".[29]:122

Difficulties were addressed throughout 1964 and 1965 at Groom Lake with various technical issues. Captive flights showed unforeseen aerodynamic difficulties. By late January 1966, more than a year after the first captive flight, everything seemed ready. The first D-21 launch was made on 5 March 1966 with a successful flight, with the D-21 flying 120 miles with limited fuel. A second D-21 flight was successful in April 1966 with the drone flying 1,200 miles, reaching Mach 3.3 and 90,000 feet. An accident on 30 July 1966 with a fully fueled D-21, on a planned checkout flight, suffered from an unstart of the drone after its separation, causing it to collide with the M-21 launch aircraft. The two crewmen ejected and landed in the ocean 150 miles offshore. One crew member was picked up by a helicopter, but the other, having survived the aircraft breakup and ejection, drowned when sea water entered his pressure suit. Kelly Johnson personally cancelled the entire program, having had serious doubts about its feasibility from the start. A number of D-21s had already been produced, and rather than scrapping the whole effort, Johnson again proposed to the Air Force that they be launched from a B-52H bomber.[29]:125

By late summer of 1967, the modification work to both the D-21 (now designated D-21B) and the B-52Hs was complete. The test program could now resume. The test missions were flown out of Groom Lake, with the actual launches over the Pacific. The first D-21B to be flown was Article 501, the prototype. The first attempt was made on 28 September 1967 and ended in complete failure. As the B-52 was flying toward the launch point, the D-21B fell off the pylon. The B-52H gave a sharp lurch as the drone fell free. The booster fired and was "quite a sight from the ground". The failure was traced to a stripped nut on the forward right attachment point on the pylon. Several more tests were made, none of which met with success. However, the fact is that the resumptions of D-21 tests took place against a changing reconnaissance background. The A-12 had finally been allowed to deploy, and the SR-71 was soon to replace it. At the same time, new developments in reconnaissance satellite technology were nearing operation. Up to this point, the limited number of satellites available restricted coverage to the Soviet Union. A new generation of reconnaissance satellites could soon cover targets anywhere in the world. The satellites' resolution would be comparable to that of aircraft but without the slightest political risk. Time was running out for the Tagboard.[29]:129

Several more test flights, including two over China, were made from Beale AFB, California, in 1969 and 1970, to varying degrees of success. On 15 July 1971, Kelly Johnson received a wire canceling the D-21B program. The remaining drones were transferred by a C-5A and placed in dead storage. The tooling used to build the D-21Bs was ordered destroyed. Like the A-12 Oxcart, the D-21B Tagboard drones remained a Black airplane, even in retirement. Their existence was not suspected until August 1976, when the first group was placed in storage at the Davis-Monthan AFB Military Storage and Disposition Center. A second group arrived in 1977. They were labeled "GTD-21Bs" (GT stood for ground training).

Davis-Monthan is an open base, with public tours of the storage area at the time, so the odd-looking drones were soon spotted and photos began appearing in magazines. Speculation about the D-21Bs circulated within aviation circles for years, and it was not until 1982 that details of the Tagboard program were released. However, it was not until 1993 that the B-52/D-21B program was made public. That same year, the surviving D-21Bs were released to museums.

Foreign technology evaluation Main article: Tonopah Test Range Airport During the Cold War, one of the missions carried out by the United States was the test and evaluation of captured Soviet fighter aircraft. Beginning in the late 1960s, and for several decades, Area 51 played host to an assortment of Soviet-built aircraft.

Munir Redfa's defection with a Mikoyan-Gurevich MiG-21 from Iraq for Israel's Mossad in Operation

Diamond led to the HAVE DOUGHNUT, HAVE DRILL and HAVE FERRY programs. The first MiGs flown in the United States were used to evaluate the aircraft in performance, technical, and operational capabilities, pitting the types against U.S. fighters.

This was not a new mission, as testing of foreign technology by the USAF began during World War II. After the war, testing of acquired foreign technology was performed by the Air Technical Intelligence Center (ATIC, which became very influential during the Korean War), under the direct command of the Air Materiel Control Department. In 1961, ATIC became the Foreign Technology Division (FTD) and was reassigned to Air Force Systems Command. ATIC personnel were sent anywhere where foreign aircraft could be found.

The focus of Air Force Systems Command limited the use of the fighter as a tool with which to train the front line tactical fighter pilots.[36] Air Force Systems Command recruited its pilots from the Air Force Flight Test Center at Edwards Air Force Base, California, who were usually graduates from various test pilot schools. Tactical Air Command selected its pilots primarily from the ranks of the Weapons School graduates.

In August 1966, Iraqi Air Force fighter pilot Captain Munir Redfa defected, flying his MiG-21 to Israel after being ordered to attack Iraqi Kurd villages with napalm. His aircraft was transferred to Groom Lake in late 1967 for study. Israel loaned the MiG-21 to the US Air Force from January 1968 to April 1968.[37] In 1968, the US Air Force and Navy jointly formed a project known as HAVE DOUGHNUT in which Air Force Systems Command, Tactical Air Command, and the U.S. Navy's Air Test and Evaluation Squadron Four (VX-4) flew this acquired Soviet made aircraft in simulated air combat training.[36] As U.S. possession of the Soviet MiG-21 was, itself, secret, it was tested at Groom Lake. A joint Air Force-Navy team was assembled for a series of dogfight tests.

HAVE FERRY, the second of two MiG-17F "Fresco"s loaned to the United States by Israel in 1969 Comparisons between the F-4 and the MiG-21 indicated that, on the surface, they were evenly matched. The HAVE DOUGHNUT tests showed the skill of the man in the cockpit was what made the difference. When the Navy or Air Force pilots flew the MiG-21, the results were a draw; the F-4 would win some fights, the MiG-21 would win others. There were no clear advantages. The problem was not with the planes, but with the pilots flying them. The pilots would not fly either plane to its limits. One of the Navy pilots was Marland W. "Doc" Townsend, then commander of VF-121, the F-4 training squadron at NAS Miramar. He was an engineer and a Korean War veteran and had flown almost every navy aircraft. When he flew against the MiG-21, he would outmaneuver it every time. The Air Force pilots would not go vertical in the MiG-21. The HAVE DOUGHNUT project officer was Tom Cassidy, a pilot with VX-4, the Navy's Air Development Squadron at Point Mugu. He had been watching as Townsend "waxed" the Air Force MiG-21 pilots. Cassidy climbed into the MiG-21 and went up against Townsend's F-4. This time the result was far different. Cassidy was willing to fight in the vertical, flying the plane to the point where it was buffeting, just above the stall. Cassidy was able to get on the F-4's tail. After the flight, they realized the MiG-21 turned better than the F-4 at lower speeds. The key was for the F-4 to keep its speed up. An F-4 had defeated the MiG-21; the weakness of the Soviet plane had been found. Further test flights confirmed what was learned. It was also clear that the MiG-21 was a formidable enemy. United States pilots would have to fly much better than they had been to beat it. This would require a special school to teach advanced air combat techniques.

DARPA retrieved from Wikipedia and copied or modified to here

The Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) is a research and development agency of the United States Department of Defense responsible for the development of emerging technologies for use by the military.

Originally known as the Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA), the agency was created on February 7, 1958, by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in response to the Soviet launching of Sputnik 1 in 1957. By collaborating with academia, industry, and government partners, DARPA formulates and executes research and development projects to expand the frontiers of technology and science, often beyond immediate U.S. military requirements.

The creation of the Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA) was authorized by President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1958 for the purpose of forming and executing research and development projects to expand the frontiers of technology and science, and able to reach far beyond immediate military requirements.[5] The two relevant acts are the Supplemental Military Construction Authorization (Air Force)[11] (Public Law 85-325) and Department of Defense Directive 5105.15, in February 1958. It was placed within the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) and counted approximately 150 people.[12] Its creation was directly attributed to the launching of Sputnik and to U.S. realization that the Soviet Union had developed the capacity to rapidly exploit military technology. Initial funding of ARPA was $520 million.[13] ARPA's first director, Roy Johnson, left a $160,000 management job at General Electric for an $18,000 job at ARPA.[14] Herbert York from Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory was hired as his scientific assistant.[15]

Johnson and York were both keen on space projects, but when NASA was established later in 1958 all space projects and most of ARPA's funding were transferred to it.

ARPA's second director was Brigadier General Austin W. Betts, who resigned in early 1961 and was succeeded by Jack Ruina who served until 1963.[17] Ruina, the first scientist to administer ARPA, managed to raise its budget to $250 million.[18] It was Ruina who hired J. C. R. Licklider as the first administrator of the Information Processing Techniques Office, which played a vital role in creation of ARPANET, the basis for the future Internet.[19]

From 1958 to 1965, ARPA's emphasis centered on major national issues, including space, ballistic missile defense, and nuclear test detection.[20] During 1960, all of its civilian space programs were transferred to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the military space programs to the individual services.[21]

This allowed ARPA to concentrate its efforts on the Project Defender (defense against ballistic missiles), Project Vela (nuclear test detection), and Project AGILE (counterinsurgency R&D) programs, and to begin work on computer processing, behavioral sciences, and materials sciences. The DEFENDER and AGILE programs formed the foundation of DARPA sensor, surveillance, and directed energy R&D, particularly in the study of radar, infrared sensing, and x-ray/gamma ray detection.

ARPA at this point (1959) played an early role in Transit (also called NavSat) a predecessor to the Global Positioning System (GPS).[22] "Fast-forward to 1959 when a joint effort between DARPA and the Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory began to fine-tune the early explorers' discoveries. TRANSIT, sponsored by the Navy and developed under the leadership of Richard Kirschner at Johns Hopkins, was the first satellite positioning system."

During the late 1960s, with the transfer of these mature programs to the Services, ARPA redefined its role and concentrated on a diverse set of relatively small, essentially exploratory research programs. The agency was renamed the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) in 1972, and during the early 1970s, it emphasized direct energy programs, information processing, and tactical technologies. [citation needed]

Concerning information processing, DARPA made great progress, initially through its support of the development of time-sharing. All modern operating systems rely on concepts invented for the Multics system, developed by a cooperation among Bell Labs, General Electric and MIT, which DARPA supported by funding Project MAC at MIT with an initial two-million-dollar grant/

DARPA supported the evolution of the ARPANET (the first wide-area packet switching network), Packet Radio Network, Packet Satellite Network and ultimately, the Internet and research in the artificial intelligence fields of speech recognition and signal processing, including parts of Shakey the robot.[26] DARPA also supported the early development of both hypertext and hypermedia. DARPA funded one of the first two hypertext systems, Douglas Engelbart's NLS computer system, as well as The Mother of All Demos. DARPA later funded the development of the Aspen Movie Map, which is generally seen as the first hypermedia system and an important precursor of virtual reality.

Psychological warfare (PSYWAR), or the basic aspects of modern psychological operations (PsyOp), have been known by many other names or terms, including Military Information Support Operations (MISO), Psy Ops, political warfare, "Hearts and Minds", and propaganda.[1] The term is used "to denote any action which is practiced mainly by psychological methods with the aim of evoking a planned psychological reaction in other people".

Various techniques are used, and are aimed at influencing a target audience's value system, belief system, emotions, motives, reasoning, or behavior. It is used to induce confessions or reinforce attitudes and behaviors favorable to the originator's objectives, and are sometimes combined with black operations or false flag tactics. It is also used to destroy the morale of enemies through tactics that aim to depress troops' psychological states.

Target audiences can be governments, organizations, groups, and individuals, and is not just limited to soldiers. Civilians of foreign territories can also be targeted by technology and media so as to cause an effect on the government of their country.

Mass communication such as radio allows for direct communication with an enemy populace, and therefore has been used in many efforts. Social media channels and the internet allow for campaigns of disinformation and misinformation performed by agents anywhere in the world.

Project Agile was an Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA) project in the 1960s that investigated means for engaging in remote, limited asymmetric warfare. The research was intended for use in providing U.S. support to countries engaged in fighting Communist insurgents, particularly in Vietnam and Thailand.[1]

History [edit]

Project Agile was directed by the United States Department of Defense Advanced Research Projects Administration, or ARPA, and ran from mid 1961 through 1974, when it was canceled. The project was charged with developing methods to use in the looming Vietnam War, and also provided information for use by Thailand in counterinsurgency action against Communist rebels.[2][3]

Coverage [edit]

Project Agile covered a wide range of topics related to warfare under various conditions present in the Far East, from electronic surveillance, used to interdict Communist convoys in the Ho Chi Minh trail, to sociological research on troops likely to be subverted by Communist rebels. It was broken down into a number of subprojects.[3][4][5]

Subproject I, II, and VIII [edit]

Subprojects II and VIII were merged into Subproject I, and the resulting subproject covered weapons, individual equipment, and rations. Individual weapons included the M16 assault rifle, special purpose shotguns for use as insurgency weapons, flamethrowers, and rifle grenades. Crew served weapons included cupolas for armored personnel carriers, quad-mount machine guns, squeeze bore .50 to .30 in (12.7 to 7.6 mm) caliber guns, multiple shot grenade launchers, lightweight mortars, and the Stoner 63 weapons system.[6]

Subproject III [edit]

Subproject III covered remote area mobility and logistics. Included were studies of air and land transport, amphibious and water transport, STOL aircraft, and remote airstrips.[7]

Subproject IV [edit]

Subproject IV covered communications systems. Both technical and procedural aspects of radio communications were studied, as well as power supplies and antennas.[8]

Subproject V [edit]

Subproject V covered combat surveillance and target acquisition. Included were studies of airborne systems, such as infrared, radar, light amplification and spectral zone photography; surface use systems such as night vision, personal Doppler radar, target illumination, metal and cavity detectors; security and navigation systems.[9]

Subproject VI [edit]

Subproject VI covered "individual and special projects", which included use of herbicides (such as Agent Orange), psychological warfare, and medical research and equipment. The use of herbicides was largely inspired by the British use of 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T (a mixture designated "Agent Orange" by the U.S.) to destroy jungle-grown crops during the Malayan Emergency in the 1950s.[10]

OCONUS and CONUS Test Programs [edit]

Part of Project Agile was Subproject VI and the "Outside the Contiguous US" (ONCUS) Defoliation Test Program was sponsored by the Advanced Research Projects Agency under Project Agile, ARPA Order 423.[11] Conducted by the United States Army Biological Center which was based at Fort Detrick, Maryland, one test program was conducted in Thailand in 1964 and 1965 to determine the effectiveness of aerial applications of Purple, Orange, and other candidate chemical agents in defoliation of upland jungle vegetation representative of Southeast Asia.[11] Data provided by these techniques were used in comparative evaluation of defoliant chemicals in relation to rate, volume, season of application, canopy penetration, and vegetation response.[11]

There have been recurring allegations that similar tests have been conducted in Okinawa. Japan Times and Okinawa Times published accounts from an unnamed official claiming that "Pentagon had tested defoliants in the island's northern jungles near Kunigami and Higashi villages." Other corroborating evidence is that in 1962, the U.S. Army counterinsurgency school in[clarification needed] Vietnam moved to Okinawa. The USNS Schuyler Otis Bland (T-AK-277) was known to have brought highly classified "agriculture products" under armed guard to southeast Asia, Okinawa, and Panama.[12] The ship's logbook was found by Michelle Gatz and shows the ship was carrying classified cargo that was offloaded under armed guard at White Beach a U.S. Navy port on Okinawa's east coast on April 25, 1962.[12] After departing Okinawa in spring 1962, the Bland sailed to the Panama Canal Zone where, the Panamanian government asserts, the U.S. tested herbicides in the early 1960s.[12] In June 2013, the US DoD rejected the allegations that Agent Orange being present on Okinawa, saying they had no factual basis.[13] For example, according to the DoD report, the S.O. Bland was loaded with Agent Pink and Agent Purple, which it off loaded to Vietnam on 16–18 January 1962 before it stopped at Okinawa on 31 January 1962 on its way back.[14]

The late author Sheldon H. Harris in his book Factories of Death: Japanese Biological Warfare, 1932-1945, and the American cover up wrote that field tests for wheat rust and rice blast were conducted throughout 1961 in Okinawa and at "several sites in the midwest and south", although these were probably part of Project 112. Harris attributes the rapid expansion of the US defoliant programs to these early successes.[15]

Subproject VII [edit]

Subproject VII covered technical planning and programming, including research into morbidity and casualties, environmental issues, and various tactical studies, both of Viet Cong operations, and other instances of asymmetric warfare, such as conflicts in Algeria and Latin America.[16]

Barrack Obama Sr and Barack Obama, Sr., who met Dunham in 1959 in a Russian language class at the University of Hawaii, had been part of what was described as an airlift of 280 East African students to the United States to attend various colleges — merely “aided” by a grant from the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation, according to a September 12, 1960, Reuters report from London. The airlift was a CIA operation to train and indoctrinate future agents of influence in Africa, which was becoming a battleground between the United States and the Soviet Union and China for influence among newly-independent and soon-to-be independent countries on the continent.

A Company Family: The untold history of Obama and the CIA

CIA Family Connection—Ann Dunham (that Col Prouty the Donegan freind was orgazing.

Obama's record as president should not have been surprising given his family background.

His mother, Ann Dunham, worked for U.S. government agencies and allied NGOs—the Ford Foundation, Asia Foundation, Development Alternatives Inc., and United States Agency for International Development (USAID)—in Indonesia in the 1960s and 1970s as well as Ghana, Nepal, Bangladesh, Pakistan, India, and Thailand.

Ann had training in the Russian language which, with everything combined, made her a "CIA recruiter's wet dream."[8]

The microfinancing projects that she worked on to help turn traditional craft industries into sustainable businesses were designed to “tether third world masses to the mentality of finance capitalism,” as Obama’s unauthorized biographer put it.

Dunham’s boss at USAID in Indonesia, Dr. Donald Gordon Jr., author of Credit for Small Farmers in Developing Countries for USAID (1976), was identified in Julius Mader’s 1968 book, Who Who’s in the CIA, as a CIA agent.[9]

Another boss, Peter Geithner, was future Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner’s father.

Ann obtained her Bachelor’s and Master’s degree in anthropology at the University of Hawaii, writing a thesis which argued that Indonesian villagers were dynamic and could produce greater wealth if they had access to market incentives and capital.

Ann went to Indonesia in the mid 1960's at the time that the CIA supported a military coup led by General Suharto against the left-wing regime of Sukarno.

Over two million suspected members of the Indonesian Communist Party (PKI) were rounded up and massacred in its aftermath and thousands more were imprisoned—many for decades.

Much of Ann’s anthropological and consulting field work was carried out in East and Central Java, which provided a hotbed of support for the PKI—including among members of the Javanese women’s association and labor federation.

The CIA at this time employed anthropologists and development workers as undercover agents to gather information on villagers’ political affiliations, in which Ann, according to her thesis adviser, Alice Dewey, had taken an interest.

After her arrival in Indonesia, Dunham taught English at the American Embassy in Jakarta, which also housed one of the largest CIA stations in Asia and had significant satellite stations in Surabaya in eastern Java and Medan on Sumatra.

Dunham also worked for the Indonesian-American Friendship Institute in Jakarta, a suspected CIA front. One of her closest colleagues, Adi Sasono, had been the leader of the Muslim students during the overthrow of Sukarno.

While Ann's recruitment as a CIA agent has never been openly acknowledged, she was among the few U.S. government employees with the language skills and access to fulfill this role effectively. Development projects in the region were explicitly designed to pry villagers away from the PKI orbit, and Ann's work would have contributed to this.

In March 1965, Ann married an Indonesian Lieutenant Colonel, Lolo Soetoro, whom she met at the University of Hawaii's East-West Center, a "kinder, gentler version of the School of the Americas," according to one writer, and "cover for a training program in which Southeast Asians were brought to Hawaii and trained to go back to create agent nets," as U.S. Information Service (USIS) Director Frank Scotten described it.

The head of the East-West Center in 1965 was Howard P. Jones, U.S. ambassador to Indonesia from 1958 to 1965.[10]

Jones was present in Jakarta as Suharto and his CIA-backed military officers planned the 1965 overthrow of Sukarno, who was seen, along with the PKI as an ally of China.

Jones later defended the coup in The Washington Post, writing that Suharto was merely responding to a communist coup against Sukarno led by Colonel Untung —which was actually set up by the CIA.[11]

A friend of Ann's told her biographer that the marriage to Lolo was arranged, suggesting that Ann may have acted as a female "honeypot" for the CIA whose job was to recruit assets and help them obtain U.S. citizenship.

Hailing from an aristocratic family which lost out in Sukarno's land reform, Soetoro was recalled to active duty in July 1965 before General Suharto's right-wing coup and worked as an army geographer in Java and Papua New Guinea, where the Indonesian army brutally suppressed popular revolts.

Soetoro went on to become an executive at Mobil Oil and its liaison to Suharto, whose economic policies Dunham praised.

CIA Family Connection—Stanley Armour Dunham

Obama's grandfather Stanley Armour Dunham—who helped raise him—served with the 9th Air Force Division in World War II.

He was pictured in a military uniform with no insignia, which suggests an intelligence unit.

Another photo featured his daughter Ann, with the insignia of an elite school in Lebanon on her shirt in the 1950s, where Stanley may have worked with the CIA or another U.S. government agency.

In the early 1960s, Stanley Dunham was part of a group photo taken with Barack Obama, Sr., on his departure from the University of Hawaii.

Obama Sr. had been part of a State Department/CIA exchange financed in part by the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation that brought future African leaders to the U.S. who were being groomed to serve U.S. interests in the Cold War.

The photo would suggest that Dunham was one of the coordinators of the exchange, indicating work for the State Department or CIA.

According to his official biography, Dunham worked as a furniture salesman for the Standard-Grunbaum Furniture Company, which led to his frequent travel and family moves.

Independent researchers believe, however, that this job was a cover for his work as an intelligence agent, who surveilled radical groups, or military or Air Force production facilities, which is what brought him to Hawaii.

Dunham's favorite bar in Honolulu, to which he brought young Barry, perhaps not coincidentally was owned by William J. Lederer, a known CIA agent who wrote the Cold War classic, The Ugly American.

Barack Obama, Sr.

Obama's purported Kenyan-born father, Barack Obama, Sr., had met his mother in 1960 when he was twenty-three and she eighteen in a Russian-language class at the University of Hawaii.

The leader of the opposition Kenyan African Democratic Union (KADU) condemned the exchange Obama was part of for favoring certain tribes—the majority Kikuyu and minority Luo—over other tribes to support the Kenyan African National Union (KANU).

The latter's leader, Tom Mboya, was a favorite of the CIA and opposed the Pan-Africanist currents on the continent. He was the one who selected Obama Sr. for the scholarship.

Obama Sr. returned the favor by going back to Kenya to work for the Kenyan Finance and Transport Ministries and an oil firm in Kenya before dying in a car crash in 1982. Mboya himself was assassinated in 1969.

Far-fetched as it sounds, Obama Sr. may not have been Obama's real father.

Obama Sr. and Ann never lived together or had a real wedding, and Obama Sr. had no contact with his son, except for a short two-week visit to Hawaii when Obama was ten, which may have been for the purpose of securing Obama a spot in the coveted Punahou Prep School.[12]

The photo of Stanley and Obama Sr. is suspicious because what father in his right mind would be pictured smiling with the man who impregnated his teenaged daughter and then abandoned her?

There is evidence to suggest that Obama's real father was Frank Marshall Davis, an African American journalist, sexually libertine poet, political radical and alleged target of Grandpa Dunham's surveillance.

Obama's friend Keith Kakugawa told an interviewer that Ann had had an affair with Davis because she was angry that the family had to move to Hawaii, away from her high-school friends who were all attending the University of Washington.

Ann became pregnant and, to hide the truth, Dunham paid Obama Sr.—whom he knew through the University of Hawaii exchange—to marry Ann, giving him the opportunity to extend his visa to attend Harvard.

Barack eventually found out the truth, writing in his first memoir, Dreams from My Father, that "the visits to Frank's house always left me feeling vaguely uncomfortable as if I were witnessing some complicated, unspoken transaction between the two men, a transaction I couldn't understand."[13]

Obama paid tribute to his actual father in a 1981 poem published in the Occidental College Literary Journal called "Pop," which attributes to him features that resemble Davis, and references "Pop's poetry, written before his mother died."

Barack Sr. was not a poet and, although Stanley dabbled in poetry, Barry called him "gramps" and his mother committed suicide before his eighth birthday.[14]

Madelyn Dunham

One other connection between Obama and the U.S. national security state lies with his grandmother Madelyn—whom Obama called Toot.

Though lacking a college degree, Madelyn rose to the rank of Vice President of the Bank of Hawaii—which suggests she had high level personal connections.

In that job, Madelyn handled escrow accounts used to pay American Cold War clients in Indonesia, Taiwan, the Philippines, South Korea and elsewhere—including through CIA proprietaries.

The Bank of Hawaii further had dealings with Nugan Hand Bank of Australia through which the CIA funded the constitutional coup d'état against Australian Labor Prime Minister Gough Whitlam in 1975.[15]

Obama's Ties to the Crowns and Pritzkers

One other thing omitted by Obama is his close connection to the Crown and Pritzker families.

The Crown family—whose net worth stands at over $10 billion dollars—has long owned a significant stake in General Dynamics, manufacturer of Trident missiles, Stryker troop carriers, bunker buster bombs, LAV-25 amphibious armored vehicles, Abrams tanks, sniper rifles, and nuclear-powered submarines and naval destroyers.

During Obama's presidency, General Dynamics bought out 11 firms specializing in satellites, geo-spatial intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance, and amassed contracts from 16 intelligence agencies after investing $10 million in annual lobbying.

The company further embraced "every intelligence driven style of warfare," developing small target and identification systems and equipment that could intercept insurgents' cell phone and lab-top communications and computer software used for cyber and psychological warfare.[24]

The Crown family gave at least $86,636 to Obama campaigns between 1990 and 2012 and raised an additional $3,205,233 between 2007 and 2012 while paying $135,000 for Obama's inauguration in 2009.

Susan Crown, Lester's daughter, sat on the board of Northern Trust, which gave Obama a sweetheart loan for purchase of a $1.65 million Georgian revival mansion in Chicago's Hyde Park complete with a thousand-bottle wine cellar.

James Crown, who was the target of a congressional and criminal probe as chairman of the J.P. Morgan Chase & Company's risk committee, was Obama's fundraising chair in his 2004 campaign for the Senate.[25]

The Crowns' investments in Obama paid off —General Dynamics' revenues shot up to over $30 billion in 2016, a three-fold increase from 2000. The Crowns' net worth doubled in the Obama years, causing the family to rise in the Forbes ranking to the 27th richest family in the United States.[26]

Penny Pritzker of the Pritzker banking dynasty—ranked number 9 on the Forbes list with a fortune of $32.5 billion—gave $500,000 to Obama's second inauguration—earning her appointment as Obama's Secretary of Commerce.

Pritzker had helped finance Obama from the beginning of his political career, having allegedly met him in the early 1990s when her kids were playing on a basketball team coached by Michelle Obama's brother, Craig Robinson.

During Obama's 2008 White House run, Pritzker served as the national chairwoman of his campaign finance team, which shattered fundraising records, and in the 2012 reelection effort, she was a top bundler.

The Pritzker family—which made its fortune through ownership of Hyatt hotels—had long ties to the CIA. They were leading depositors in the Bahamas-based Castle Bank, a CIA outfit founded by one of the CIA's mob liaisons, Paul Helliwell, which specialized in off-shoring money.[27]

The Pritzkers were also war profiteers. In 1953, family patriarchs Jay and Robert Pritzker founded the Marmon Group, an industrial holding company which includes the subsidiary Marmon Aerospace and Defense which manufactures wires and cables for aerospace, military vehicles, combat systems, radar installations and naval shipboards.

The Pritzkers—like the Crowns—thus personally profited from Obama's mammoth military budgets, which outstripped those of President Bush by an average of $18.7 billion per year, Obama's naval buildup in the South China Sea and his overseeing more sales of military weaponry than any other president—$60 billion more than President Bush.[28]

Conclusion

As the first Black president, Obama is often placed on a pedestal as a moral beacon and compared to such historic figures as Martin Luther King, Jr., and Nelson Mandela.

These comparisons are off base, as Obama is an opportunistic and often deceitful politician who has shown a lack of moral integrity throughout his career.

Obama's deep ties to and support of the CIA and offshoot agencies like the NED fueled great foreign policy disasters which ravaged numerous countries.

After he left the presidency, Obama worked through his consigliére John Brennan to help conjure up the "Russia Gate" scandal, which revived Cold War-era demonologies, poisoned U.S.-Russia relations and greatly increased the threat of nuclear war.

Media outlets including those on the Left continue to perpetrate many myths about Obama and to assume a defensive posture in the face of right-wing attacks.

While these attacks may be nefarious, they should not preclude sober and critical analysis about America's forty-fourth president and the dark forces behind his rise to power and reign.

Once the war ended, both the United States and Soviet Union spent the next several years consolidating their respective positions. Stalin created a Warsaw Pact empire in the nations it occupied in Eastern Europe, while the United States became fearful that the devastation and economic collapse that existed throughout Europe immediately after World War Il could serve as a breeding ground for communism. American leaders saw the Great Depression bring fascism to Italy and Germany and could easily imagine how similar economic hardships could cause Western Europe to go red unless they did something about it.

Out of such worries sprang the Truman Doctrine, the Marshall Plan, and covert operations funding anticommunist political parties in Greece and Italy. George Kennan's containment policy laid out the rationale for these policies and explained their purpose — basically to consolidate the position of the United States and its "free world" allies in Western Europe and prevent the Soviet Union from spreading its empire.

The United States came out of the war from a position of great power over the Soviet Union. While the United States had the atomic bomb, it would take the Russians several years to develop one. Stalin tried to blockade Berlin from June 1948 to May 1949 in an attempt to starve out West Berlin and prevent the United States from revitalizing West Germany, but he failed. This defeat essentially marked the successful containrnent of the Soviet Union after which the Russians failed to expand their empire in any meaningful way. In fact, they had trouble holding on to what they had and eventually lost everything in 1989.

Although the United States successfully contained the Soviet Union in 1949, the Cold War went on for fifty more years and morphed from a Cold War in Europe designed to contain Soviet expansion into a global Cold War to manage the world. In 1949, the Soviet Union successfully exploded an atornic bomb—an act that changed the face of war forever. The fact that the two nations had atomic bombs made it so that conventional war between great powers was now obsolete. That meant the Cold War became a series of "limited" wars in places such as Korea, Vietnam, and Afghanistan, and an imperial "covert" war for control of various "third world" nations throughout the world.

Men such as Dean Acheson and Paul Nitze aimed for a giant increase in defense spending and for a new role for the United States to play in the world and made the arguments they needed to make to get what they wanted. Americans had to be scared of the Soviet Union and the rest of the world to accept the transformation of their country into a war state. Acheson and Nitze worked the bureaucracy and succeeded in turning their ideas into offcial policy with the stamp of Harry Truman's presidential All of these things represented giant changes in the American experience. Some people at the time tried to understand what was happening. In 1956, the sociologist C. Wright Mills wrote about a "power elite" that was now ascendant over the country. He clairned that this elite was made up of corporate and political leaders, and a military establishment all tied into the federal government that rendered the influence of voters—what he called "the masses"— essentially meaningless when it comes to the big decisions.

By the end of the 1950s, the transformation of the United States into a war state that began after World War Il and was codified in NSC-68 was complete. The United States was formed as a continental democratic republic, but emerged out of the war as a war state with a world empire. As a result power that had once been in the hands of the states and congress flowed into the executive branch of the government. The defense industry generated more profits and the bureaucrats tied to the war state gained more power and influence inside the federal government. Corporate and state power became centralized together in an iron triangle of influence. In 1961, President Dwight Eisenhower gave a farewell address to the nation in which he warned of the power of the "military- industrial complex."

Robert A. Lovett Harry Truman Administration

Harry Truman Administration September 17, 1951 – January 20, 1953

Having served for one year as deputy secretary of defense under Marshall, Robert A. Lovett was thoroughly familiar with the duties and responsibilities of his new office when President Truman selected him to replace Marshall as secretary of defense. The son of a judge, Lovett was born in Huntsville, Texas, on 14 September 1895. He graduated from Yale University in 1918 and took postgraduate courses in law and business administration at Harvard University between 1919 and 1921. As a naval ensign during World War I, Lovett flew for a time with the British Naval Air Service on patrol and combat missions and then commanded a U.S. naval air squadron, rising to the rank of lieutenant commander.

Lovett began his business career as a clerk at the National Bank of Commerce in New York and later moved to Brown Brothers Harriman and Company, where he eventually became a partner and a prominent member of the New York business community. He remained interested in aeronautics, especially in European commercial and military aviation. In December 1940 Lovett accepted appointment as special assistant to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, and four months later became assistant secretary of war for air. He served with distinction, overseeing the massive expansion of the Army Air Forces and the procurement of huge numbers of aircraft during the war. In awarding Lovett the Distinguished Service Medal in September 1945, President Truman wrote: "He has truly been the eyes, ears and hands of the Secretary of War in respect to the growth of that enormous American airpower which has astonished the world and played such a large part in bringing the war to a speedy and successful conclusion."

After leaving the War Department in December 1945

Lovett returned to Brown Brothers Harriman, only to be called back to Washington a little more than a year later to serve with General Marshall as under secretary of state. Lovett went back to his investment business in January 1949, but Marshall insisted that he join him again when he took over at the Pentagon in September 1950. As deputy secretary of defense, Lovett played a critical role in the management of the department; his appointment as secretary, made on Marshall's recommendation, received wide praise.

When Lovett became secretary of defense, the end of the Korean War was not yet in sight. Thus the long-range rearmament program continued to be one of his main concerns. Like Marshall, Lovett believed that the United States erred seriously at the end of World War II: "We did not just demobilize . . . we just disintegrated." As secretary of defense he designed a rearmament program intended both to meet the demands of the Korean conflict and to serve as a deterrent and mobilization base in future military emergencies. As Lovett put it, "Heretofore this country has only had two throttle settings–one, wide-open for war, and the other, tight-shut for peace. What we are really trying to do is to find a cruising speed."

Lovett therefore argued for budgets large enough to carry on the Korean conflict and to improve U.S. defensive strength. In his main budget effort during his 16 months in office he sought to secure adequate funds for FY 1953. Lovett eventually reduced initial service requests of about $71 billion to $49 billion, which the president and the Bureau of the Budget cut further to $48.6 billion, the amount requested of Congress. Lovett argued strenuously against additional congressional cuts, emphasizing the need to expand Army, Navy, and Marine Corps forces and to work toward a goal of 143 Air Force wings (as compared with 95 then authorized). Lovett did not get all that he wanted. Actual TOA for FY 1953 came to about $44.2 billion, almost $13 billion less than the previous year.

Lovett's efforts to meet rearmament and preparedness goals suffered in 1952 from a major dispute between the federal government and the steel industry. Truman tried to avert a threatened strike, caused mainly by a wage dispute, by taking over the steel mills in April 1952. The strike occurred after the Supreme Court overruled Truman's seizure order. Lovett supported the president's action as essential to maintaining defense production and expressed serious concern about the strike's effects on the nation's military capabilities. Even so, he noted that "the last six months of 1952 saw the most significant increases in the military effectiveness of the United States since the beginning of partial mobilization." By the end of the Truman administration, the Defense Department had met successfully the challenges of the Korean War mobilization and embarked on a long-term preparedness effort.

Besides the preparedness issue, Lovett inherited a number of other matters that were still unresolved in the early 1950s, including the proper military role of nuclear weapons. In 1951 Sen. Brien McMahon of Connecticut led the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy in endorsing a resolution urging DoD to expand the atomic weapons program. Lovett noted that the department accorded such weapons a prominent place in its planning and budget requests. His proposal for increased funds for the Air Force, in fact, recognized that aircraft represented the most efficient delivery method for atomic weapons. But he warned against premature reliance on them: "There is no new, inexpensive, or magic way to win wars in the near future. We must be able to defend ourselves and to win battles with tested, available armaments. . . . Any premature adoption of the most modern but untried weapons and devices could lead to possible disaster."

Lovett's stands on the nuclear weapons question and other major military issues generally followed those of his predecessors. He strongly supported universal military training, regarding it as the only viable long-term approach to building a reserve force, and thus making possible a smaller regular military establishment. A firm proponent of NATO, he played an important role when the NATO Council in February 1952 adopted force goals totaling 50 divisions and 4,000 aircraft to be achieved at the end of 1952. Lovett endorsed enthusiastically the council's decision to admit Turkey and Greece as new NATO members. He supported the Mutual Security Program, viewing it as an important and integral part of the U.S. defense effort and as vital to future NATO effectiveness. Reliance on unilateral security rather than mutual security would require a tremendous commitment in manpower and funds without guaranteeing the nation's safety.

Despite a relatively smooth administration, Lovett felt a growing dissatisfaction with the existing defense organization. Although he recognized that real unification could result only from an evolutionary process and not legislative edict, as the end of his term approached he discerned the need for changes in the National Security Act beyond those made in 1949. Commenting about unification at a press conference a week before he left office, Lovett observed that the Department of Defense would have to be reorganized substantially if the United States became involved in a major conflict. He put forward his recommendations in a long letter to President Truman on 18 November 1952, proposing clarification of the secretary of defense's relationship to the president, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the military departments; redefinition of JCS functions; reorganization of the military departments; and reorganization and redefinition of the functions of the Munitions Board and the Research and Development Board.

Lovett meant his recommendations for practical consideration by his successor, and they indeed played an important role in the formulation of a reorganization plan during the early months of the Eisenhower administration. Concerned about the need for an orderly post-election changeover in the Department of Defense, Lovett met several times during the transition period with the incoming secretary, Charles E. Wilson, and made sure that he was thoroughly briefed on current issues.

After Lovett left office on 20 January 1953, he returned again to Brown Brothers Harriman, where he remained active as a general partner for many years. Robert Lovett has been recognized as one of the most capable administrators to hold the office of secretary of defense and as a perceptive critic of defense organization. His work in completing the Korean War mobilization and in planning and implementing the long-range rearmament program, as well as his proposals to restructure the Department of Defense, were among his major contributions. He died in Locust Valley, New York, on 7 May 1986.

The Presbyterian Underground Railroad

First Presbyterian Church of Racine and the Underground Railroad Network to Freedom

Rist Presbytarian Church Underground Railroad Tours *

Foreword

The First Presbyterian Church of Racine's Vision for Ministry is, "We are a church centered on God's salvation, which embodies liberation from all that dehumanizes and wholeness which is being the people God calls us to be." We are committed to liberate people who have been enslaved, silenced, denied representation, or in other ways oppressed. The Church has a long history of honoring human dignity - from the opposition to slavery and freeing of the fugitive slave, to the support of the Racine Health Care Network for the uninsured, from Music and More donations to community social programs to partnering with the Central Reformed Presbyterian Church of Matanzas, Cuba, from the ordination of women to the embracing of the rights of LGBTQ people and from providing a place for the homeless to have a meal and sleep overnight to the presence of the Church Food Pantry.

January 1, 1839 - Rev. Cyrus Nichols moderated a meeting held at Almira and Timothy Wells' boarding house, just north of today's intersection of Fourth Street and Wisconsin Avenue.

Sylvester B. Peck, a family member, was one of the Wells' boarders. There was only one item on the agenda: "Pursuant to the public notice to take into consideration the propriety of forming or organizing a Christian church of the Presbyterian or Congregational order."

February 13, 1839 - Six weeks later twenty-two people - about 10% of the population of the village - met in an old store building being used as a school, on the west side of today's Main Street, between State and Second streets. Alfred Cary was appointed clerk at this meeting as well as at the New Year's Day meeting. A motion was made to vote whether to form a Presbyterian or a Congregational church.

Cary recorded the votes on the back of the minutes from the January 1 meeting. The vote was 15-7 in favor of a Presbyterian church.

The First Presbyterian Church of Racine, Wisconsin was founded under the authority of the Presbytery of Wisconsin (later the Presbytery of Milwaukee). The congregation adopted the Articles of Faith and Covenant that had been adopted by the Presbytery on January 17, 1839, which took a > stand against slavery. The congregation was organized and pastored by a number of dedicated abolitionists, including, Cyrus Nichols (the first pastor, Hiram Foote, Zebulon Humphrey and T. M. Hopkinsi .

> In 2019 the congregation earned recognition by the National Park Service's National Underground Railroad Network to Freedom.

Dean Rusk was elated when he saw Maria Von Trapp enter the room in 1927 with Glorian and Harold Gainey being raised by Festus Gainey who was a covert cover story for the Von Trapps tha the Pesbytarian Underground Railroad had used to get Maria who was pregnat and no longer elegible for the Convent and Captain Von Trapp to the USA.

In 1927 Dean Rusk attended Davidson College in North Carolina about the time the Von Vrapps were new to the area and likely giving birth in 1926 to Glorian Donegan (Maria Von TRapp the mother.)

As they entered into the Auditorium a few minutes later they heard the lovely songs of the Von Trapp family followed by a coffee at which time the story of the trip to theu USA was discussed and also the rise of Nazim in Austria and its figures.

Davidson College is a private liberal arts college in Davidson, North Carolina. It was established in 1837 by the Concord Presbytery and named after Revolutionary War general William Lee Davidson, who was killed at the nearby Battle of Cowan's Ford.

In the fall of 1927, two years after graduating high school, Rusk entered Davidson located College located in North Carolina. Rusk writes in hisRusk in basketball uniform memoir As I Saw It that Davidson was his "first and only choice." He arrived in Davidson with little else besides an eager mind and an urgent drive to succeed. Rusk must have been one of the busiest students in college history. An excerpt from his collegiate resumes demonstrates his unprecedented industriousness: "President of the Y.M.C.A., Cadet Major of R.O.T.C., four year letterman in varsity basketball, manager of the Students' Store, staff of Quips and Cranks, member of Kappa Alpha fraternity." To earn money for tuition, Rusk worked six days a week balancing the books at a local bank and waiting tables at a college boardinghouse. As Rusk recalls, "not even my years in government were busier." Rusk attributes much of his career successes to the education he received at Davidson, which he calls "an exciting place intellectually, a broadening place."

Though Rusk gave much consideration to entering the Presbyterian ministry, he was eventually won over to the side of foreign policy and international law by Professor Archibald Currie. He writes that "This aspiration to do well and improve one's life was part of the campus environment. Davidson clearly sought to prepare its young men for lives of service." Rusk received the Rhodes in 1931 and entered St. John's College of Oxford University. There he took degrees in history and political science, and after teaching at Mills

College of California in the 1930s, Rusk served in Burma during World War I

Rusk's public service began in the years just after World War II, when he joined the State Department's division for Far Eastern Affairs, where he was instrumental in mediating the United State's involvement in the Korean War. In the 1950s Rusk headed the Rockefeller Foundation, a private philanthropy group, where he stayed until he was tapped to be the nation's top diplomat by President John F. Kennedy. Davidson College recognized his achievements by awarding him an honorary Doctorate of Laws degree in 1950.

Rusk and Kennedy

Beginning in 1961, Rusk began an eight year stint as Secretary of State, the second longest in U. S. history, in which he was party to some crucial policy decisions of the early Cold War, including the botched Bay of Pigs invasion, the Cuban missile crisis, and the escalation of the conflict in Vietnam. As a diplomat Rusk attempted to diffuse the mounting tensions between Arab nations and Israel, supported aid to developing nations, and helped broker some of the earliest arm control agreements between the U. S. and the Soviet Union. In 1969, after shouldering the American reputation abroad through some of the most tumultuous years in its history, Rusk retired from politics for good. In 1970 he accepted a job teaching international law at the University of Georgia, a position which he held until his retirement in 1984.

Rusk with Driesell

In October of 1985 Rusk returned to Davidson College to give the keynote address at the inauguration of the Dean Rusk Program in International Studies. The purpose of this $10 million mission was to incorporate discussions of international issues in life at Davidson.

Rusk's remarks at the convocation, which are available at the Davidson College Archives, centered upon his belief that nuclear war could yet be averted; "I do not believe that we are on this earth to reach out and grasp the power of the sun to burn ourselves off of it," he told the students and faculty of his alma mater.

Rusk in classroom

When Rusk passed away in 1994, the Cold War was over and the threat of nuclear had receded; the once-maligned diplomat was eulogized by many who could only wonder at his resolve during a time brimming with international crises. Former Ambassador Jack Perry, director of the Dean Rusk Program at Davidson, wrote in the Charlotte Observer: "When Dean Rusk died Tuesday, the Cold War became less accessible to today's students, more a part of history. He had become a living embodiment of the complexities of that dangerous period. Now we must look to the books for our answers, and hope that the historians give us the complexities with all their thorns and give us Dean Rusk in all his stature."

The Famine in Biafra - USAID's Response to the Nigerian Civil War

Dean Rusk served as Secretary of State for eight controversial years, from 1961 through 1969, when public discomfort over his daughter's interracial marriage prompted him to offer his resignation. (LBJ refused to accept it.) He ended up serving through the end of Johnson's term. Born February 9, 1909, David Dean Rusk spent his early years in Cherokee County, Georgia, but relocated to North Carolina to study at Davidson College. After graduating Phi Beta Kappa, Rusk studied in England as a Rhodes Scholar at St. John's College, Oxford. Following a few years as a staff officer in the China-Burma-India Theater during World War II and a brief stint in the War Department, Rusk joined the Department of State in February 1945.

The Famine in Biafra - USAID's Response to the Nigerian Civil War

Known as the 'Giant of Africa,' Nigeria stretches across the continent like a patchwork quilt, sewn together from dozens of historically independent religious, ethnic and linguistic subgroups, all vying for political representation and control. After achieving independence in 1960, the infant nation struggled to maintain a fragile peace as members of the Muslim Hausa-Fulani ethnic group dominated the North and Christian-Animist Igbo and Yarubo divided the resource-rich South.

Then in 1966, a series of military coups resulted in the execution of Nigeria's political leaders and the rise of a new government ruled by the northern military leader, Supreme Commander Yakubu Gowon. The coup incited months of rioting and reprisals as northern fighters targeted Igbo army officers and roving mobs slaughtered tens of thousands of Igbo civilians. Those Igbo who survived fled to their former homes in the southeast, carrying tales of governmental violence and betrayal with them.

In response to the massacres, Colonel Odumegwu Ojukwu established an independent Republic of Biafra for the Igbo people on May 30th, 1967. War began on the 6th of June and lasted three bloody years, sparking a massive humanitarian crisis as thousands of Nigerians starved to death or perished from preventable diseases.

The tragedy sparked international outrage and an outpouring of concern. In the following interview with Charles Stuart Kennedy beginning February 1993, William Haven North, who was serving as the Agency for International Development's (USAID) Director for Central and West Africa Affairs, describes the logistical hurdles he had to overcome as AID frantically responded to the crisis.

Secretary Rusk's term extended through the darkest days of the Cold War and included such conflicts and crises as the Bay of Pigs Invasion, Cuban Missile Crisis, Vietnam War, the Six-Day War and the Biafra famine. Remembered by his Special Assistant, Emory C. Swank, as "even-tempered, considerate, and kind….with natural reserve and reticence and no fondness for small talk" and by historian Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr.'s as Buddha-like in "A Thousand Days," Dean Rusk was an interesting antithesis to the violent and unpredictable times in which he lived. Both valued and condemned for his reticence and equanimity, Secretary Rusk directed his skills at cementing compromises and avoiding the type of diplomatic fiasco which would trigger nuclear warfare. In this interview with Paige E. Mulhollan beginning back in July 1969, Mr. Rusk interprets his time in office, highlighting his respect for President Lyndon B. Johnson, his opinions on various regions and his predictions for the future.

United States Secretary of States from 1961-1969

Biography

b. February 9, 1909 - d. December 21, 1994

David Dean Rusk was the United States Secretary of State from 1961 to 1969 under presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson. Rusk was very much in support of US actions in Vietnam.

In 1934, as a Rhodes Scholar at St. John's College at Oxford University

In 1952 Rusk left government service to preside over the RF. He had served on the Foundation's Board of Trustees since 1950. During his tenure as president, the RF devoted more and more of its resources to the problems of the developing world, at a critical moment when many nations were emerging from colonial rule. Work in agriculture began to supplant the foundation's long-standing interests in global health.

Rusk left the RF in 1961 when he was offered the position of Secretary of State under President John F. Kennedy.

Dean Rusk was born in Cherokee County, Georgia. He was educated in Atlanta, leaving school in 1925 to work for two years for a lawyer. Rusk then went to Davidson College in North Carolina, graduating in 1931 and then went to St. John's College, Oxford as a Rhodes Scholar, he received the Cecil Peace Prize in 1933. From 1934 to 1940 he taught at Mills College in Oakland, California. He studied law at the University of California, Berkeley, class of 1940. In World War II he joined the infantry as a reserve captain (he had been a ROTC Cadet Lieutenant Colonel), he served in Burma and ended the war a colonel with the Legion of Merit and Oak Leaf Cluster.

He returned to America to work briefly for the War Department in Washington. He joined the Department of State in February 1945 working for the office of United Nations Affairs. He was made Deputy Under Secretary of State in 1949. He was made Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs in 1950 and played a influential part in the US decision to become involved in the Korean War. However he was a cautious diplomat and always sought international support. Rusk had become a Rockefeller Foundation trustee in April 1950 and in 1952 he left the Department of State in 1952 to succeed Chester L. Barnard as president of the Foundation. On December 12, 1960, Rusk was named Secretary of State, assuming his office in January, 1961.

As Secretary of State he was consistently hawkish, a believer in the use of military action to combat Communism. During the Cuban missile crisis he initially supported an immediate military strike, but he soon turned towards diplomatic efforts. His public defense of US actions in the Vietnam War made him a frequent target of anti-war protests. Outside of communism he continued his Rockefeller Foundation ideas of aid to developing nations and also supported low tariffs to encourage world trade.

Following his retirement, he taught international law at the University of Georgia in Athens (1970-1984).

He was the longest serving Secretary of State other than Cordell Hull.

He married Virginia Foisie in 1937 and they had three children.

The Coffee

"Her uncle is Franz Kutschera" an Army Intelligence officer (John Hurt, Lee Harvey Oswald's phone call request to NC) said. "She was at risk after having failed school and has had behavioral problems in the Convent and she became pregnant clearly making her ineligible to become a Novitiate."

Franz Kutschera thought the USA would be best for her. She had both Windsor and kutschera parents and a our underground railroad network now is going to allow her children Gloriand and Harold to live under the name Gainey. I am not sure but it is possible in some way or another she has another daughter Norma Jean or perhaps Julie Andrews."

Dean Rusk listened intensely in 1927. "These are some fairly well known family lines" he said. "We should keep them anonymous during the war and we want to watch their developmental psychology but I am interested in how they will turn out as children growing up in the USA, neither Royal nor Gestapo High Command, getting a start as farmers."

All of the Von Trapp family felt welcome and moved to the microphones for a second set of songs this time from the Presbytarian Gospel they far preferred.

As the Von Trapps left the room a Minister-M.D. spoke further. We have all heard the British Imperialism speech from Wembely Stadium 1925 and the Prince of York speak. We believe the same cause is of a far ranging but partially visible gene resides in this family. As we study it we will be helping Great Brittan as the speaking talent of the Windsor family is improved to a level that compares to the growing world of theatrical talents and art public speakers they will soon compete with on radio."

Genealogy of Glorian Donegan. Where did her genes come from and where did they end up finally?

Ed Donegan and Barrack Obama Jr were born in Los Angeles County Manhattan Beach City Inglewood area. The names have been changed to protect the true genealogy.

This is their story …

On February 20 1961 as part of John McCone's plan of Atomic testing and DNA the Donegan's were in George Ball and Thokill Kristensen and JFK were on the phone when fertilization was done, Ed Donegan and Barrack Obama jr from Glorian Donegan for both, Malcolm X for OBama Jr and James Donegan for Ed DOnegan.

Feb 20 insemination to November 20 1961 is the expected 9 months Ed was born with Barrack Obama Jr November 18, 1961 birth certificate November 19 in St Josephs Daniel Freeman hospital home of the p-51 Inglewood.

Divide both sides of those dates by 10 and Barrack Obama Jr was born November 2, 1961. Say Michelle Obama was three months pregnant when the married Feb 2 1961 and the expected date of birth is August 2, 1961, and Queen Mother B day is August 4, so is Barrack Obama Jr.

On November 19 1961 JFK and others are at the birth staying at Lawford Shrivers a few miles away. one possible mother publicly is Marilyn Monroe, killed on the alleged 1 year birthday at staged event all fled including Maclom X.

Isreali Inteligence Agency Officials find it hard to believe November 1960 conception (Feb 2, 1961 Marriage) and August 4 birth Madely Paine CIA Honolulu by Reuven Koret, Israel Insider Publisher If Barack Hussein Obama II is Malcolm X's biological son, it would explain the mystery of why he was so generously helped by so many Arab and communist "friends in high places" long before he was a "somebody." Just as Malcolm X adopted Islam, his secret son would also need to learn its ways, and learn the ways of revolution, not just assume an Islamic name. He would need to be groomed and educated to organize the community called the United States of America. by Reuven Koret, Israel Insider Publisher

In August I received a curious email. As a magazine that covers international politics, with a focus on Mideast affairs, Israel Insider gets more from its fair share of baseless tips and phony rumors. I ignore most and delete them unread. This one was a bit different. It came from a national security lawyer with extensive credentials and intelligence connections that checked out, and a phone number.

Israel Insider had been running a series of articles exploring the vagaries of Barack Obama's birth, and his concealed documentation, and this was the jumping off point of the email, which confirmed the claim that

Obama was not born in Hawaii, that "Mossad are going with Mombasa" but "Proving Mombasa is not so easy, as NSIS in Nairobi are clamming up tight, as are MI6 in London, who have the original Mombasa file and full details of the birth."

He said that "Disproving Honolulu is child's play. You've already shown that the birth certificate put forward by Obama (whose people privately are not denying Mombasa, by the way) is a fake. Why fake it? If he was born in Honolulu he could obtain a genuine one. Hawaii Dept of Health would hardly denounce a potential presidential candidate's birth certificate as fraudulent without cross-checking birth records for August 1961. No birth was registered in the name of Obama in Honolulu in August 1961." (This last detail may explain why Hawaiian officials last Friday confirmed that a birth certificate does indeed exist but conspicuously refused to release any details or even confirm that the details conform to those on the computer-generated Certification of Live Birth.

The name on the "original" certificate may in fact not be Obama nor the birthplace Honolulu. But Obama's recent visit "to his grandmother" may well have had less to do with her health than eliciting this vague and inconclusive statement from the Hawaiian Health Department.) The source continues: "There is no evidence Ann Dunham had even met Obama Senior in or around November 1960, the alleged time of conception, indeed it is not even clear Obama was in Honolulu at that time, although he may have been. Ann Dunham was only 17 and although she might have been in Honolulu the timing is tight."

"More to the point, she was in neither of the medical centers put forward by the Obama campaign (question: why do they not know in which hospital he was born?) on August 4th, nor are there medical records to back up the claimed birth, nor has an attending physician been named. I've heard of births with the father absent, births with the mother absent a bit trickier."

"There are said to be photos of Ann Dunham on Waikiki Beach taken in or about July 1961 (near August 1961), when she is supposed to have been in her third trimester, in a bikini, taken by a fellow female student. AD is clearly not pregnant. Media have not yet talked to fellow students, but it can't be long. There are bound to be other photos of AD in existence taken during the alleged 2nd and 3rd trimesters. Obama campaign are terrified some one will press for her medical records, which have been accessed by CIA."

College and graduate school

In 1959, the Kenyan Department of Education published Obama's monograph, entitled Otieno jarieko. Kitabu mar ariyo. 2: Yore mabeyo mag puro puothe. (English: Otieno, the wise man. Book 2: Wise ways of farming.)

Due to his accomplishments, in 1959 Obama received a scholarship in economics through a program organized by the nationalist leader Tom Mboya. The program offered education in the West to outstanding Kenyan students.

Initial financial supporters of the program included Harry Belafonte, Sidney Poitier, Jackie Robinson, and Elizabeth Mooney Kirk, a literacy advocate who provided most of the financial support for Obama's early years in the United States. Kirk and her literacy associate Helen M. Roberts of Palo Alto raised the money necessary for Obama to travel to the US.

When Obama left for the United States, he left behind his young wife, Kezia, and their baby son Malik. Kezia was pregnant, and their daughter Auma was born while her father was in Hawaii.

At Obama's request, Helen Roberts committed to watching over and financially supporting the family that he had left behind, for as long as she remained in Nairobi.

University of Hawaii

In 1959, Obama enrolled at the University of Hawaii at Manoa in Honolulu as the university's first African foreign student. He initially lived across the street from the university at the Charles H. Atherton branch of the YMCA at 1810 University Avenue; public records from 1961 indicate he later had a residence two miles southeast of the university at 625 11th Avenue in the Kaimuki neighborhood.

In 1960, Obama met Stanley Ann Dunham in a basic Russian language course at the University of Hawaii and they started dating. After becoming pregnant, Dunham dropped out of the University of Hawaii after the fall 1960 semester, while Obama continued his education. Obama married Dunham in Wailuku on the Hawaiian island of Maui on 2 February 1961, despite parental opposition from both families. He eventually told Dunham about his previous marriage in Kenya, but said he was divorced—which she found out years later was not true.

Their son, future US president Barack Obama II, was born in Honolulu on 4 August 1961 at the former Kapiolani Maternity and Gynecological Hospital (succeeded by the Kapi'olani Medical Center for Women and Children).His birth was announced in The Honolulu Advertiser and the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, with his parents' address listed as 6085 Kalanianaole Highway in the Kuliouou neighborhood of Honolulu, seven miles east of the university—the rented home of Dunham's parents, Stanley and Madelyn Dunham.[36] Soon after her son's birth, Dunham took the infant with her to Seattle, Washington, where she took classes at the University of Washington from September 1961 to June 1962.

Obama Sr. continued his education at the University of Hawaii and in 1961–1962 lived one mile east of the university in the St. Louis Heights neighborhood.[42] [43] He graduated from the University of Hawaii after three years with a B.A. in economics[44] and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.[45] He left Hawaii in June 1962.

Harvard University

Obama Sr. was offered a scholarship to study in New York City,[47] but declined it.[39] In September 1962, after a tour of mainland U.S. universities, Obama Sr. traveled to Cambridge, Massachusetts, where he began a graduate fellowship in economics at Harvard University. He rented an apartment in a rooming house near Central Square in Cambridge.[29][48] Meanwhile, Dunham and their son returned to Honolulu in the latter half of 1962.[41] In January 1964, Dunham filed for divorce in Honolulu which was not contested by Obama;[37][49] they were divorced on 20 March 1964, whereupon Ann Dunham was granted sole custody of their son.

Obama was forced to leave his PhD program at Harvard University in May 1964 (and received an M.A. in economics from Harvard in 1965). In June 1964, Obama met and began dating a 27-year-old Jewish-American elementary school teacher named Ruth Beatrice Baker, the daughter of prosperous Lithuanian immigrants to the United States.

Proof Michelle Obama A Transgender

Two Allegations

The first is that Michelle Obama is transgender. The second one partly derivative is that the children are in fact not of the lineage (children of Barrack and Michelle) that is officially asserted.

Allegation One

Michelle Obama, First Lady of the United States, was born Michael LaVonn Robinson in Chicago, Illinois on January 17th, 1964. He was the second son born to Fraser Robinson III, a well known cocaine dealer and union thug for Crime Lord/Mayor Richard J. Daley, and Marian Shields Robinson, a transient street prostitute who was diagnosed with the HIV virus in 1998. He was a popular high school athlete and in 1982, he accepted a scholarship to play middle linebacker for the Oregon State Beavers. After finishing a respectable rookie season with 88 tackles and 7.5 sacks, he suddenly dropped out of the school. Fellow teammates observed that Robinson could regularly be heard lamenting over how he is a "woman trapped inside a man's body", and on January 13th, 1983, he underwent sex reassignment surgery at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. To hide the shame of his new identity, Michael left Oregon State to attend Princeton University under his new legal name, "Michelle Robinson". Years later, he met Barry Obama Jr. a Kenyan immigrant who later became aware of Michelle's 'true' identity. They subsequently married and adopted two children." https://www.nairaland.com/2537172/obama-gay-obama-admits-wife

I have researched the Birther story that the parents of Obama as is in the official story are all CIA, and that the Hair Club For Men asserted to male Lavon Robinson has a street name similar to where female Robinson is from but is street rather than ave or something.

Most of the rest of this goes to allegation two, that the real parents of Sasha and Malia are other persons than the Obamas.

Rivers was one of only four Americans invited to the Wedding of Prince Charles and Camilla Parker Bowles on April 9, 2005. ne thing you may not have known about Joan Rivers: she was friends with Prince Charles ever since 2003, when the duo were reportedly introduced by mutual friends in the South of France. In fact, the late comedian was one of only four Americans invited to the royal's 2005 wedding to Camilla Parker Bowles. She performed for Charles, as well as Prince William and Prince Harry, at a comedy gala in honor of Charles's 60th birthday. She exchanged Christmas gifts and notes with Charles. And according to The Independent, the future King of England even allowed Rivers to spread the ashes of her late friend around his Gloucester garden.She performed for Charles, as well as Prince William and Prince Harry, at a comedy gala in honor of Charles's 60th birthday. And according to The Independent, the future King of England even allowed Rivers to spread the ashes of her late friend around his Gloucester garden. - Prince Charles Is Just as Broken Up Over Joan Rivers's Death as We Are BY JULIE MILLER

It seems as though Charles's ability to take these jokes in stride made Rivers respect him more. She has gone on record praising the future king's intelligence and taste in comedy. "Charles and Camilla have a great sense of humor," Rivers once said, via E!. "He is so charming, so humorous. All the passions that everyone used to laugh at him for organic food, architecture, talking to the flowers we're all into those things now. . . . He is so far ahead of his time, and I think he will be a very good monarch. He is a very smart man and I adore him."

Just because she was friends with Charles did not mean that she avoided joking about his family, though. Vulture remembers one of her more memorable royal-family digs, in which she zings Queen Elizabeth's fun-loving sister Margaret:

Princess Diana and the Queen are driving down the lane when their car is forced off the road by masked thieves. "Out of the car and hand over your jewels." After the thieves rob them and steal their car, Diana begins to put her earrings, necklace, and rings back on. "Wherever did you hide those," demanded the Queen. "Where do you think?" asked Diana. "Pity Margaret wasn't here," said the Queen. "We could have saved the Bentley."

Meet The Real Parents Of Sasha And Malia!

Obama's Friends Form Strategy to Stay Close retrieved from By Jodi Kantor Dec. 13, 2008 and copied or modified to here

Last Sunday night, President-elect Barack Obama's three closest friends - Valerie Jarrett, Martin Nesbitt and Dr. Eric Whitaker - sat down in the study of Mr. Nesbitt's house in Chicago for one of their increasingly frequent heart-to-hearts.

They were puzzling over a new question: how the Obamas, who hope to remain close to their Chicago friends, will spend time with them while living in the isolation chamber of the White House. Over Diet Cokes, the three drafted the beginnings of an elaborate visiting schedule that will bring Hyde Park to Washington, so the nation's new first family can have a little taste of home.

Some insist that Martin and Anita Nesbitt, old friends of the Obamas, are clearly Malia and Sasha's quote-unquote real parents

Martin Hughes Nesbitt (top right, born November 29, 1962) is an American businessman and public figure. Nesbit currently serves as co-CEO of The Vistria Group, a Chicago-based private equity firm. Nesbitt serves on the boards of directors of publicly traded companies CenterPoint Energy, Norfolk Southern Corporation, and American Airlines Group. Nesbitt formerly served as the founder and chief executive officer of The Parking Spot, a Chicago-based airport parking company. He also served on the board of the Chicago Housing Authority.

Two psychologists walk into a bar. The first one says “I think the Oba children are under Mind Konrtol. Every night when the clock runs dow midnight they get out of bed and start running Post, Button Hook, and football play.” The other Psychologist says “I hope the beer I order has in it.”

Barack and Michelle Obama have two daughters: Malia Ann (/məˈliːə/), born July 4, 1998,[19][20] and Natasha (known as Sasha /ˈsɑːʃə/), born June 10, 2001.[21] They were both delivered at University of Chicago Medical Center by their parents’ friend and physician Anita Blanchard.[22]

Sasha was diagnosed with meningitis at 3 months odl which could be caused by use of bacteria or other means to introduce DNA for brain genes therapy or selection. Nothing personal about the college age kids, but consider an analogy in brewing beer. Any slight problem in the brewing phase can turn into a bad batch, while the infection in Sasha was controlled, the inflammation, was it a side affect of gene therapy and unintended DNA being introduced?

Prior to joining Pritzker, Nesbitt was an Investment Manager at LaSalle Partners with a variety of responsibilities including investment management for regional retail properties and management and leasing for office projects and parking.

He currently serves on the Board of Directors of Jones Lang LaSalle, Norfolk Southern Corporation and American Airlines Group. Nesbitt is a Trustee of Chicago's Museum of Contemporary Art and serves as Chairman of the Barack Obama Foundation. He is former Chairman of the Board of the Chicago Housing Authority and a former board member of the Chicago 2016 Olympic Committee. He served as treasurer of President Barack Obama's 2008 and 2012 presidential campaigns.

Nesbitt has an MBA degree from the University of Chicago and a Bachelor of Science degree and honorary doctorate from Albion College, Albion, Michigan.

Witness Who Caught Obama Having Sex With A Man Disappears And Is Assumed To Have Been Murdered!

A woman who submitted written testimony about how she happened upon Obama and another man having gay sex at a convention center in Chicago, has disappeared and is assumed to have been murdered, as was the man she saw with Obama. (see related prophecies following this story)The woman said the man with Obama was choir director Donald Young.

alleged: REVEREND DAVID MANNING - Former head of the Trinity Baptist Church in Chicago. Was murdered during the apparent robbery of a catfish restaurant in 1972. Shortly afterwards, Rev. Jeremiah Wright took over as head of Trinity and a many parishoners (who later left the church) suspected Wright in having a hand in Reverend Manning's death. Decades later, Manning's son JAMAL MANNING was found dead of an apparent crack overdose in 2004. It was rumored he was going to bring evidence of Wright's complicity in his father's death. His testimony was timed to coincide with Obama's first senate race.

Others report: REV. DAVID MANNING. The Rev. James David Manning is the head of a black megachurch in Atlanta, and is still alive. Rev. Jeremiah Wright took over the Trinity United Church of Christ (not the Trinity Baptist Church) in 1972, but it was from Reuben A. Sheares, not David Manning. Sheares was alive and healthy when Wright took over the job.

James David Manning was born on February 20, 1947, in Red Springs, North Carolina.[1] He grew up in the town, which was then segregated.[2] He picked cotton and pulled tobacco as a child, then took a bus to New York the day he graduated from high school.[2] He worked as a marketing representative for Procter & Gamble.[3] He became radicalized in the 1960s and said he was driven by his hatred of white people.[2] As a younger man, Manning burglarized homes, mostly on Long Island.[2] Between 1969 and 1974, he said, he broke into as many as 100 houses and once threatened an associate with a loaded shotgun.[2] He spent about 3 + 1/2 years in prison in New York and Florida for burglary, robbery, larceny, criminal possession of a weapon, and other charges before his release in 1978. While in prison, he became a devout Christian.[4]

He became pastor at Bethelite Missionary Baptist Church several years after prison.[3] After beginning study in 1982, Manning graduated from Union Theological Seminary in the City of New York where he was awarded a Master of Divinity in 1985.[5] In 1991, he changed his church's name to ATLAH, an acronym for “All the Land Anointed Holy”. https://clclt.com/theclog/archives/2008/08/01/the-obama-death-list-hoax

While most political prognosticators in the mainstream press presume that Obama is the presumptive Democratic nominee for president, they still wonder aloud if Hillary Clinton (or some other entity) has something up their sleeve.

The bombshell may involve the murder of Donald Young, a 47-year-old choir master at former Rev. Jeremiah Wright’s Trinity United Church of Christ-the same congregation that Obama has attended for the past 20 years. Two other young black men that attended the same church-Larry Bland and Nate Spencer-were also murdered execution style with bullets to the backs of their heads-all within 40 days of each other, beginning in November 2007. All three were openly homosexual.

What links this story to Barack Obama is that, according to an acquaintance of Obama, Larry Sinclair, Obama is a closet bisexual with whom he had sexual and drug-related encounters in November 1999.

Further, Sinclair claims that Obama was friendly with at least two of these deceased parishioners, and that choir director Donald had contacted him shortly before being murdered from multiple gunshot wounds on December 23, 2007.

Homosexual Members Of Obama's Trinity Church Murdered Within 6 Weeks..... -Jeff Kuhner interview with Larry Sinclair. Choir Director Murdered To Conceal Obama's Homosexuality/Drug Use? ;

Here is the woman's testimony and two updates on the story from The Ulsterman.

I was an intern for a local Chicago newspaper and a college student working toward a journalism degree. This happened before Barack Obama was president. It happened a short time before he became a state senator in Illinois. He was not the big name he would become just a few years later, but around Chicago he was a big enough name that I recognized who he was when I saw him. His book had just been published and he had received some recognition locally for it, and I had actually seen him on campus a couple of times the year before. He was an up and comer

Anyways, I got the chance to attend this big dinner/party/ celebration event downtown that had everybody who was anybody in Chicago at the time. It was an event that took place just before the big Democratic Party convention. The mayor was to give a talk and I was told to do a write up of the mayor's comments and if possible, get a short interview. (I did not get the interview) I would figure about three or four hundred people were there. Lots of money and power in the room. As the night went on the drinking and noise levels both escalated. I remember being a bit shocked to see these kind of people carrying on like they were, but it was also exciting to be around it. I want to emphasize though that I was not drinking. I was clear headed the entire night. I saw what I saw. I know what I know.

Just before I was going to leave, I ran into one of my professors and sat down to have a talk. I remember being pretty excited that she actually remembered me, and even more excited that she seemed to want to ask me how I was doing and what not. I also remember she did seem a little drunk. We ended up sitting and talking for almost an hour and by the time she stood up to leave there were maybe just twenty or so people still hanging around. Everyone else had left.

I decided to look for a bathroom before taking off myself and followed a sign that led me down a hall that had all the lights already turned off. There were about four doors to the left that were to conference rooms, with a sign on the right of the hall pointing further down to the bathrooms. I was a little spooked because it was so dark but managed to find the bathroom. When I came back out I noticed one of the doors to a conference room was about halfway open. I had remembered that no doors had been open before and I got a little freaked out. I hesitated because I was afraid to walk by the door. That was when I heard the voices. Or not so much voices but I heard sounds being made by a person or people. I also smelled something that was odd. Never smelled it before or since that night. A heavy sweet smell that was filling up the hallway. It was not marijuana or anything like that. I was in college. I was plenty familiar with what marijuana smelled like. Something different. And as I stood there not quite sure what to do the smell seemed to go from sweet to kind of gross like rotting garbage. It was weird.

I started to try and sneak past the open door so whoever was in there couldn't hear me but I sure could hear them and that was when I realized the sounds coming out of that conference room were sexual. I heard a male voice saying "Yeah," again and again and then another sound from another male voice. I realized then that there were at least two men in that room having sex with themselves or someone else I could not hear. I was almost past the door when I heard a loud sniffing noise, and more of that weird smell coming from the room, and then one of the men yelled out the F-word. And that's when I tripped. I tried to fall as quietly as I could but when my right hand hit the floor it kind of twisted under me and it really hurt. I cried out and then was trying to get up as fast as I could so I could keep heading down the hall. I heard some scrambling from inside the dark conference room and then one of the men told the other one to shut up and be quiet.

And then the door opened behind me and I turned around and saw a young tall thin black man looking at me. I recognized the face but wasn't sure of the name right away, but was pretty sure he was someone important. I told him I was just using the bathroom but knew I must have looked very embarrassed. He just stared at me for what seemed like forever. There was just enough light in that hall that I could see that his eyes were not really "right". I thought he was probably drunk. Then his eyes seemed to suddenly clear up and become a lot more focused and he looked down at me and he gave a big smile. He asked me if I was ok. I looked down to his belt which was undone and I could see that his dress shirt was not tucked into his pants. When I looked back up at his face the smile was long gone. He looked really angry at me now. He asked me again if I was ok but he said it in a way that really spooked me. There was something in his voice that scared me. Really bad. And it was at that exact moment I finally recognized his face as the author and political candidate Barack Obama. I was just about to turn and walk as fast as I could out of the hallway when the door opened wider and another black man's face poked out. He said, "What the F is going on B?"

The guy I now recognized as Obama stepped all the way out of the hall and closed the door behind him, leaving the other man inside the conference room. He asked me again if I was all right. Now he was standing right over me. He smiled again and I noticed one of his front teeth seemed to have a chip in it, or it was a lot shorter than the other one. He must have had work done because the pictures of him today don't show that. I don't know why I noticed that so much or why it has stuck with me but it has. And his breath smelled really bad. It made me want to gag it was so bad. I told him I was fine and did a kind of half walk half run down the hall and back into the main lobby. I looked back right before I turned the corner and could make out Barack Obama still standing in the darkness of the hallway looking back at me. It was very very creepy.

I didn't really make much out of it. I mentioned it in a joking way to some friends that I had interrupted some guys going at it in a conference room but never mentioned the name Obama when I did. Then I forgot about it pretty much until I was watching the news and saw that Obama was running for U.S. Senator. I figured whatever he was doing in his private life was his business though, and didn't want to make any trouble for him. I actually agreed with his politics and voted for him. If he was gay or bisexual, I really could have cared less. Whatever issues he had with that were between him and his family and none of my business right? That's how I felt. So I forgot all about what I saw on that night again. And I hardly thought of it when I heard Barack Obama was running for president.

That's until I heard a news story coming from my television while I was making dinner. A man had been murdered. Shot numerous times at his home. I glanced up at the television and there was the now dead man's face being shown. He looked older. Heavier. His hair was longer. But it was him. That was the same face that I had seen poke out from the conference room with Barack Obama about ten years earlier. The news report said he was a church choir conductor and school teacher.

They didn't mention it was the same church as Barack Obama. I found that out a short time later. Then I learned that another gay man from Obama's church had been murdered about a month before. That is when I started to really freak out. I kept my mouth shut and didn't say a word about what I had seen. Then I started to feel like I was being watched. I would see a car parked outside my apartment that wasn't any of my neighbors. One time I caught a man staring at me from across the street as I was getting my mail. I worried I was losing my mind from way too much paranoia.

I have since moved away from Chicago. I have tried to forget all about what I saw, but it won't leave my head. I'm scared. So now I'm telling you this. I have been reading your stuff and think that the way you are doing it is giving you enough protection to get out your information but also protecting you. So if you could do the same for me I would be very grateful. I need to tell this story, but I don't want to be known for doing it. That scares me too much. So the same way you seem to protect yourself and your sources I am hoping you can do for me. I have to get this off my chest. Part of me says I should have said something sooner but another part of me says that maybe I would not be around today if I had done that. I know what I saw and I know what I heard. I know who I saw. Maybe it was some kind of phase he was going through at the time. Maybe he was experimenting with a different lifestyle. Maybe the death of that man was just a coincidence. I don't know the answers to that. I just know what I know. I just know what I heard and saw. On that night I heard Barack Obama in that conference room with another man. I saw Barack Obama step out of that room with another man. I smelled what I think was some kind of drug they were using. And I know that the other man who was in that room with Barack Obama was murdered about ten years later shortly after Barack Obama declared he was running for President of the United States.

That is my story. I hope that you share it. If something happens to me now, you will know why.

UPDATE: (Ulsterman) Since publication, many within the Ulsterman Facebook Army have come forward with evidence that would support some of the specific claims made within the recollection above. The strange smell coming from the conference room would most likely have been "poppers", a drug that is used predominantly within the gay community. Its smell is said to alter quickly from sweet to that of "rank, dirty laundry". It's effects last only a few minutes, indicating a user could recover quickly after inhaling it. Second, both video and photo evidence were provided that show considerable work has been done on Barack Obama's teeth. Here is video from 1995, evidence that would further corroborate the timeline of this story, showing just how extensive this dental work in fact was. The alteration to both Obama's appearance and speech is remarkable, and one of the front teeth does appear to be considerably shorter and/or of a very different shape than the other, which again compliments the details found in the recollection above.

Mother Of Obama "Love Child" Gunned Down By Elite Hit Squad retrieved from https://www.whatdoesitmean.com/index1712.htm and copied or modified to here

Sister Maria Theresa is the 73rd Sorcha Faal of the Sorcha Faal Order, Elected as Mother Superior 3 February 2007 whose order comprises 18 Monasteries in Ireland, Russia, Egypt, Lebanon, and the United States.

The Order of Sorcha Faal was established in 588 (BCE) in Tara, County Meath, Ireland, whose founder was the oldest daughter of King Zedekiah, Tamar Tephi.

The name, Sorcha Faal, comes from the ancient Gaeilge branch of the Goidelic languages of Ireland and has the meaning of: Sorcha, She Who Brings Light, and Faal, the Dark and Barren Place.

The Sisters of Sorcha Faal are a cloistered order (kept away from the outside world; sheltered) devoted to ancient Biblical, religious and scientific study whose only contact is through intermediaries.

The WhatDoesItMean.com website used to disseminate Sorcha Faal reports was created for and donated to the Sisters of Sorcha Faal in 2003 by a small group of American computer experts led by the late global technology guru Wayne Green (1922-2013) to counter the propaganda being used by the West to promote their illegal 2003 invasion of Iraq.

A new report circulating in the Kremlin today prepared by the Main Intelligence Directorate (GRU) claims that the unarmed 34-year-old woman named Miriam Carey who was gunned down last Thursday (3 October) in Washington D.C. was, in fact, "deliberately targeted" by an elite hit-squad under orders to assassinate what Russian intelligence officials say was the mother of President Barack Obama's "love child."

According to this report, Obama first met Ms Carey on 18 May 2011 when he traveled to New London, Connecticut to address the graduating class of the US Coast Guard Academy.

The press, at that time, blamed Obama's "substantial delay" for making this address on bad weather, but according to GRU sources the American President was, instead, having a "significant" problem after having lodged a portion of a pistachio nut (one of his favorite snack foods) shell into one of his back molars.

Prior to Air Force One arriving in Connecticut, this report continues, Obama's Secret Service (SS) detail contacted an "approved" local dentist to meet the President upon his planes landing for the purpose of alleviating his then present condition.

As Obama's personal White House physician at the time was US Navy Captain Jeffrey Kuhlman, MD, this report says, the "approved" dentist selected was Dr. Brian Evans of Advanced Periodontics located in HamdenConnecticut, whom Captain Kuhlman was long associated with through their shared US Navy service.

Dr. Evans had served on active duty in the United States Navy as a staff periodontist in Norfolk Virginia. While in the Navy, Dr. Evans was, also, the periodontics mentor for the Navy's Advanced Education for General Dentistry program and held top-secret security clearances. Dr. Evans was further awarded the Navy and Marine Corps Commendation Medal for meritorious service.

Dr. Evans' licensed dental assistant while treating the President on Air Force One on 18 May 2011 was Ms Carey, whom GRU assests in this report state "struck up an almost immediate friendship with Obama."

Important to note, this report says, is that after Ms Carey was assassinated, Dr. Evans was quoted in the US press as stating that she was fired from her job at his office about a year ago but wouldn't say why. Dr. Evans further stated that Ms Carey had been away from the job for a period after falling down a staircase and suffering a head injury and it was a few weeks after she returned to work that she was fired.

GRU analysts in this report, however, state that Ms Carey's absence from work was "directly related" to an affair she had begun with Obama in 2011 and which culminated in a girl child being born in August 2012, and which it appears the President attempted to have her abort, but which Ms Carey refused to do because of her Christian beliefs.

Critical to note, this report says, are that GRU signal intelligence analysts (SIGNIT) who were monitoring CIA-NSA-FBI encrypted electronic communication traffic in Washington D.C. on 3 October observed the exact same "encrypted electronic signature" used by the elite hit squad that attacked the US Navy Yard on 16 September, had assassinated the award winning American journalist Michael Hastings on 18 June, and on 25 June attacked the Los Angeles Police detectives investigation Hastings assassination.

From the tracing of this unique "encrypted electronic signature" as it pertained to Ms Carey's actions on 3 October, this report continues, it suggests that she was "lured" to Washington D.C. under the pretext that Obama wanted to see for the first time his new baby daughter.

Obama's concerns about Ms Carey, the GRU says, was related to her reporting to local Connecticut police authorities late last year her fears that she was being followed and secretly recorded by US intelligence agents and her belief that her life was in danger.

These same local police authorities, however, state that Ms Carey told them in December that she was a prophet, that Obama would place the city of Stamford under a "lockdown" and that he had her and her residence under electronic surveillance.

Upon Ms Carey arriving at the White House on 3 October, this report says, she became "aware" of the trap she had driven into, and in her attempting to flee to safety was viciously tracked by multiple US intelligence agencies and ultimately assassinated by a point-black gunshot to the left side of her head.

Even though Ms Carey's sister Amy Carey-Jones said there were no indications that her sister was unstable, and that her sister "seemed OK" the last time they spoke more than a week ago, and a second sister, Valarie Carey, who is a retired New York City police officer, said there was "no need for a gun to be used," the propaganda US media continues to paint this young mother as nothing more than a lunatic.

The same, however, cannot be said of one of Obama's longest mistresses, Vera Baker, who aside from raising millions for his Senate and Presidential campaigns, fled to the Caribbean island of Martinique when her affair with the American President was discovered and remains in hiding to this day.

As to why Obama would engage himself in dangerous affairs in the first place, this report bizarrely concludes, is the growing evidence that his wife, and First Lady, Michelle Obama, was born Michael LaVaughn Robinson in Chicago, Illinois on 17 January 1964. He was the second son born to Fraser Robinson III, a well known cocaine dealer and union thug for Crime Lord-Mayor Richard J. Daley, and Marian Shields Robinson, a transient street prostitute who was diagnosed with the HIV virus in 1998.

After a successful sex-change surgery, this report says, Michelle met Obama, married and have since adopted two daughters, Malia and Sasha. And even though she is said to have a “watch list” of women that were to be kept away from her President husband, most unfortunately it did not include Miriam Carey.

Target Patton: The Plot to Assassinate General George S. Patton

(World War II Collection) Paperback - September 9, 2014 by Robert K. Wilcox (Author)

TARGET PATTON (WORLD WAR II COLLECTION) INTRODUCTION

Patton was not just murdered he was assassinated

Almost since the day General George S. Patton, Jr. died, there have been persistent rumors that he was murdered. Not just murdered, though—assassinated. It has been repeated relentlessly that he was killed because he was hated by his superior officers due to jealousy and fear.

Jealousy of him because he was, in fact, the best general in the United States Army.

Fear of him because they thought he was going to expose many of the cowardly, incompetent, and corrupt things done by the Allied High Command during World War II.

If that were not enough, there (also) have been persistent claims that the Russians were also trying to assassinate him because Stalin hated him.

Not just homicide, assassination.

NAZI EAGLE of the Nazi Eagle's Nest

ALTERNATE NAMES: Nazi War Eagle The Nazi Eagle is a symbol developed originally by the Nazi Party in Germany in the 1920s (also becoming a symbol of the German government after the Nazis took power), based loosely on traditional German coats of arms. Following World War II, the symbol was appropriated by neo-Nazis and other white supremacists worldwide, with many variations. The symbol originally featured an eagle clutching a swastika, but many variations replace the swastika with some other hate symbol, such as SS bolts or a Celtic Cross. Occasionally, extremists will leave the circle blank where the swastika normally would appear; this seems to be more common in countries where the swastika is prohibited. https://www.adl.org/resources/hate-symbol/nazi-eagle

Villa Trapp

Villa Trapp itself is not the palace depicted in the film but a large, 22-room historic home built in 1863. Georg von Trapp and his children moved there in 1924 following the death of his first wife.

After the war, a religious group, the Catholic Missionaries of the Precious Blood, bought the property from the Von Trapps, who had had their ownership restored after the Nazis were defeated.

While he lived there, Himmler used the home as his summer residence, converting one of the children's rooms to his office and installing a barracks for SS officers in the grounds.

Although the Nazi leader died in Germany, Unterkofler says the priests that moved in after the war could hear the creaking of the boots of Himmler's ghost on the floorboards at night. They performed three exorcisms to get rid of his presence, but none was successful. In the end, the "ghost" was finally driven away after a carpenter fixed the boards.

NAZI SS General Franz Kutschera

General Franz Kutschera was an Austrian Nazi politician and government official. He held numerous administrative offices with the Nazi Party and the Schutzstaffel both before and after the Anschluss of Austria in 1938. During World War II, he served with the SS in France, Yugoslavia, the Soviet Union, and finally Poland. Assassinated: February 1, 1944, Warsaw, Poland Wikipedia

He introduced his Niece Maria Kutchera to Capton Von Trapp, widowed from Agatha Whitehead, and Maria Kutschera and Captain Von Trapp married, Maria Von Trapp herself pregnant in 1925 with chidlren leaving the Convent.

Heinrich Himmler

Heinrich Luitpold Himmler (German: [ˈhaɪnʁɪç ˈluːɪtˌpɔlt ˈhɪmlɐ] (listen); 7 October 1900 - 23 May 1945) was Reichsführer of the Schutzstaffel (Protection Squadron; SS), and a leading member of the Nazi Party of Germany. Himmler was one of the most powerful men in Nazi Germany and a main architect of the Holocaust.

Eagles Nest

Hitler had his summer residence in Berchtesgaden, just across the border from Salzburg, in Bavaria 15 years before the war began. Almost all the buildings in that area had been leveled by bombs by the end of the war, but one had survived. The Eagles Nest, built for Hitler's 50th birthday, was spared since it is located on Mount Kehlstein, a sharp rock that was hard to hit. Nowadays, the Eagles Nest and the surrounding area of Berchtesgaden is one of the three best day trips from Salzburg.

Can you visit the Eagles Nest without a tour from Salzburg? The answer is yes. Despite being in a remote location, the Eagles Nest is surprisingly easy to reach. In this article, I will tell you how to get to the Eagles Nest from Salzburg by public transport in 5 easy steps.

From 1925 when pregnant Maria Kutschera left to Convent to care for widowed Barron Von Trapp after Agatha Whitehead died until 1936 the Nazis and Prince Edward of Wales King Edward VIII were all close. Much changed around the Berlin Olympics of 1936 and the new Von Trapp family would leave for the USA where Ed Donegan asserts Maria Kutschera's early children by Edward VIII were already living, North Carolina, but then moved out. These early children are the hidden identities.

As Patton become Governor of Germany Austria and moves into this area, finds Himmler's bunker in the Von Trapp house and the death camps, this is a threat to the British, to X2, to James Jesus Angleton, the Royal family Windsors, and so Patton is assassinated by Wild Bill Donovan, Angleton, British intel, all closely connected. Patton is Roman Catholic, the USA Intelligence infrastructure long controlled by the British.

See an excerpt from Maria Von Trapp's autobiographical book... chapter 8, entitled 'The Third Reich':

"Salzburg lies on the very edge of Austria, only a few miles from the German border. But we were such homebodies that we only heard the distant thunder-like noise that was going on across the border - how Hitler had taken over the government, how he was giving more and more daring speeches - but it all seemed so far away and so unreal. The one great hardship which befell us was the bankruptcy of the bank where my husband had invested the family fortune. The bank had failed after Hitler has closed the border, not allowing any Germans to cross over in Austria. Since Austria depended almost entirely on the tourist trade, two consecutive years with no tourists was the downfall of many people and eventually the bank. We were not as hard hit as many others because we still had our big estate and many precious objects of art and a little money.

Then it happened. We were all sitting in our library listening to the voice of Chancellor Schuschnigg bidding farewell to Austria which was giving way to force. The very next thing was the German anthem and the tremendous roar of "Heil Hitler!" It was the night of the 12th to 13th of March, 1938, a date we shall never forget. Austria was wiped off the map and incorporated into the "Third Reich."

The door of the library opened and our butler came in, went over to my husband, and said, "Captain, I have been an illegal member of the party for several years," and he showed us his swastika.

[Not the butler. Maria's uncle Franz, who cared for her since 9 when she was orphaned. And who brought her to Captain Von Trapp her future husband when she was kicked out of the convent pregnant, depicted as sliding down the convent stairs bannister with legs spread and dropping her bible study books not caring about them to the shock of the others. 1925 time frame. King Edward VIII then Prince of Wales the father.]

This was all so overpowering and so overwhelming that it left one numb.

The very next day going into town - what a change. From every house hung a swastika flag. People on the street greeted each other with outstretched right arm, "Heil Hitler!" and one felt absolutely like one was in a foreign country.

At first we waited for the storm to blow over. My husband did not allow the swastika around the house or the new greeting or the new anthem to ever be heard. The pressure mounted and our lives were threatened by the Nazis.

So half a year passed, and then came the moment when my husband called the family together and said, "Now we have to find out what is the will of God. Do we want to keep our material goods, our house, our estate, our friends - or do we want to keep our spiritual goods, our faith and honor? We cannot have both any longer."

Then he looked at his children and said, Listen, you can have money today and lose it tomorrow. The very same day you can start all over again, and that can happen more than once to you in your lifetime. But once you have lost your honour or your faith, then you are lost."

There was no real question what God wanted. As a family it was decided that we wanted to keep HIM. We understood that this meant was had to get out. "

Was General Patton Murdered? New Light on an Old Conspiracy

By Peter Cross. Was Allied General George S. Patton murdered? New details are shedding more light on what has become a 60-year mystery. This article appears in: January 2015

In 2008, author Robert Wilcox wrote a sensational book on the circumstances surrounding the accident and later death of Patton called Target Patton: The Plot to Assassinate General George S. Patton. The book, which caused a huge controversy, said that Patton had been assassinated on orders from high-ranking American military leaders.

One person whom author Wilcox interviewed for his book was a distinguished World War II veteran and assassin, Douglas Bazata. In 1979, Bazatta gave a two-part interview to the publication Spotlight, in which he made a sensational claim that Patton had been assassinated. In the first interview, he said that the Russians had the motive to kill Patton because he wanted the United States to go to war with them right after the end of World War II.

In the second installment which was called, “I Was Paid to Kill Patton,” he said that he was asked by none other than William Donovan, the head of the wartime Office of Strategic Services (OSS) [Of London loyalist James Jesus Angleton MI6] to kill Patton. Bazata said that he did not take part in the Patton assassination because he knew Patton and liked him. He further said that the accident, which took place on December 9, 1945, had been arranged by someone he knew and would not name him. Bazata said that since the general had not died in the accident he was told, “A refined form of cyanide that can cause embolisms, heart failure, and things like that had been used to kill him later in the hospital. It had been made in Czechoslovakia, and, in small amounts, could be timed to kill over a period of 18 to 48 hours.”

Bazata proceeded to lay out his participation in the Patton assassination. In 1945, he was told by Donovan that he had orders from up the chain of command that Patton was considered a threat to the war effort and his actions could no longer be tolerated. Bazata told Patton of the internal threats against him, but the general brushed them aside. For his part, Bazata reluctantly went along with the plot. Bazata went on to say that he met an unidentified man whom he knew only as a "Pole" (Polish extraction), who was also ordered to kill Patton. Both men then began planning the general's murder.

So Eisenhower was, practically, a disciple of Bernard Baruch, something not very well known. That is where Eisenhower got his irrational hatred of the Germans. It led him to annihilate, through food deprivation, disease, and confinement in cramped roofless camps, over half a million German soldiers who had surrendered. Eisenhower had to do the bidding of his masters - the Zionist agents of the High Cabal, i.e. Baruch and FDR, and that was why he handed over half of Europe, including half of Germany, to Stalin.

Finally, we come to General Donovan, the head of the OSS, and to the OSS itself. Donovan studied at Columbia and his results have been described as "atrocious" by Eustace Mullins. He was picked up by two professors with deep connections to the banking elite for his advancement. He had an affair with the wife of August Belmont who was the official Rothschild representative in the U.S. During the war he was selected for the notorious Belgian Relief Commission, a scam of the bankers for providing food to the German army, under the name of relief to Belgians, to prolong the war. J.P. Morgan reportedly paid $200,000 to Donovan for intelligence work in Europe pertaining to $2 billion bonds floated by J.P. Morgan in postwar Europe. Thus Donovan was deeply tied to the international banking families.

William Stephenson, the British envoy to the U.S. during WWII, was an intelligence operative with a codename “Intrepid”. In May 1940 he handed over a proposal to Donovan for setting up an American intelligence agency. Roosevelt, who knew Donovan from Columbia, appointed him Coordinator of Information for the White House. Since he had no experience in propaganda work, the office was split in June 1942, into Office of War Information and the Office of Strategic Services (OSS). Donovan was made head of the OSS.

Eustace Mullins writes: “The ‘new’ agency was from the outset, merely an outpost of British intelligence. On September 18, 1941, Col. E. I. Jacob, Churchill’s military secretary, was informed by Maj. Desmond Church, Churchill’s liaison with the British Secret Service: ‘Another most secret fact of which the Prime Minister is aware is that to all intents and purposes U.S. security is being run for them at the President’s request by the British. A British officer sits in Washington with Mr. Edgar Hoover and General Bill Donovan for this purpose. It is of course essential that this fact should not be known.’”

William Stephenson reported to his head Stewart Menzies in the British intelligence (MI6): “You can imagine how relieved I am after three months of battle and jockeying for position that our man [Donovan] is in a position of such importance to our efforts.” Not only that, FDR told William Stephenson, “I am your biggest undercover agent.” One must note that Britain was the real den of the international banking families, the core of the High Cabal, ever since the Bank of England was set up in 1696. And FDR admitted to being an agent of the High Cabal by calling himself an undercover agent of the British. The same was true of Bill Donovan.

Now it was in the year 1972 that Douglas Bazata told the journalist Joy Billington, who was doing a story on his art, on the condition that she would not publish it, that he was involved in the assassination of General Patton. Then, on September 25, 1979, Bazata stood up at a gathering of ex-intelligence officers at the Hilton Hotel in Washington D.C., and in response to a managed question by Joy Billington, stated the following: “For diverse political reasons, many extremely high ranking persons hated Patton. I know who killed him for I was the one who was hired to do it. Ten thousand dollars. General William Donovan, Director of OSS, entrusted me with the mission. I set up the accident. Since he didn’t die in the accident, he was kept in isolation in the hospital where he was killed by an injection.”

The story was a bombshell but the mainstream media completely ignored it! When Bazata died in 1999 the New York Times published an obituary stating that he was former OSS officer of Czech roots, and the son of a Catholic clergyman. But the New York Times story failed to mention the involvement of Bazata in the Patton assassination. This is an example of how the public is kept in dark by the mainstream media, and of how “standard” history is written or fabricated. Why was it so important to maintain the myth that Patton died in an accident and was not assassinated?

However, in October 1979, a magazine titled Spotlight published two front page articles based on an interview of Douglas Bazata. Bazata had passed the lie detector test for his Spotlight interview. In the first interview he pointed out that WWII could have ended much earlier but was badly managed and thus prolonged. Although he did not say so, we know that it was deliberately prolonged - it had to last six years, which it did. In the second article titled “I was Paid to Kill Patton: Exclusive interview with OSS ‘Hitman’” he claimed that he had been ordered by General Donovan to kill General Patton. The accident was staged by someone he knew but whom he would not name. He then revealed that since General Patton did not die in the accident as planned he was killed by a “refined form cyanide that can cause embolism, heart failures and things like that." It was made in Czechoslovakia and, in small amounts, could be "timed to kill" over a period of 18 to 48 hours.

Bazata had planned to write his biography and eventually gave his secret notes or diaries to Wilcox. There were forty such "ledgers", as Wilcox calls them. Wilcox was able to check that the facts mentioned in Bazata's ledgers were indeed correct. Wilcox was able to interview another intelligence operative named Stephen J. Skubik. Skubik had had a terrible experience with Donovan. When he repeatedly told Donovan that there was a threat to Patton's life, Donovan got extremely angry! Why? Skubik did not, at the time, know that it was Donovan who had ordered the assassination of Patton. In the beginning Donovan ignored Skubik's information and then had him jailed! Skubik told Wilcox that when Patton was killed he went underground and stayed underground for five years! Skubik did not work for the OSS but for the CIC, the counter-intelligence corps. And that protected him somewhat from Donovan's wrath.

Skubik wrote a book on the Patton murder. It was titled: Death: The Murder of General Patton. It has been posted on a website set up by his family (www.skubik.com). Skubik's daughter says that her father always referred to Donovan as "that son of a bitch" for his role in the assassination of General Patton. Skubik writes that initially Gen. Eisenhower had ordered Patton to take over Czechoslovakia. Patton would have done so but the Soviet Chief of Staff called Eisenhower and warned him that if Patton's forces were not stopped there would be full scale war between the Soviet Union and the U.S. Patton was ordered to stop and he "angrily and reluctantly halted the troops." Skubik writes: "Marshall Joseph Stalin was furious when he learned that Patton tried to take all of Czechoslovakia and how he wanted Soviet armies to withdraw from all of Europe, including giving up German territory." Additionally, Patton had established contact with dissident Russian, Polish, and Ukrainian generals as well as guerilla fighters. So Stalin knew that Patton wanted to go to war against the Soviets and therefore wanted Patton dead. Skubik writes that Stalin ordered Patton's murder.

There was a very deep connection between the Soviet regime and the international bankers who controlled Britain and the U.S. Trotsky came to Russia after staying in New York as a Rockefeller guest who also gave him $10,000 in cash. Trotsky had been issued an American passport on the orders of President Wilson! When Stalin nationalized foreign companies he did not touch Rockefeller companies. FDR had provided aid to USSR before and during the war on a scale that defies imagination. Eustace Mullins has pointed out that "Harriman and other Western financiers linked to the terrorist activities of Dzerzhinsky [Chief of Cheka i.e. KGB] became known as the Trust. As members of the Trust, the owners of these firms served as a colonial government of the Soviet Union, as illustrated by the fact that Averell Harriman spent most of the Second World War at Stalin's side in Moscow, directing the Russian war effort." It was the deep design of the High Cabal to divide mankind into capitalist and communist blocs after WWII. This has been pointed out by Col. L. Fletcher Prouty, who also points out that Harriman is an example of someone who was, most likely, a member of the High Cabal.

An important fact of the deep connection between the Soviet NKVD, British intelligence, and the OSS, has been mentioned by William Stephenson in his book Intrepid's Last Case. Mullins quotes from the book: "For 38 years there was an official NKVD mission in London whose agents were assisted by both British Special Operations and the American OSS. Only now it is clear that Moscow received hundreds of OSS research studies; and that the British had supplied guerilla warfare to the chief of NKVD's subversive operations, Col. A.P. Ossikov." This relationship is to be borne in mind with regard to Patton's assassination. It is also important to bear in mind that the OSS was being practically run by the British, as previously pointed out.

Finally, one must quote Eustace Mullins: "International intelligence, or, as it was formerly known, espionage, was not founded by either Donovan or Dulles [Director CIA], who were merely employees of the World Order. The Order founded international espionage to protect their far reaching investments and dealings in slaves, drugs and gold, the commodities on which theor wealth was built." This shows the subservience of the British and American intelligence agencies to those who control the World Order viz., the High Cabal.

Patton was an outstanding general who led his forces to rapid advances against the enemy. It is astonishing that the British and American military leadership tried to retard or obstruct his advance! Bazata had told the Spotlight that the Allied authorities tried to stop Patton "militarily". In his diaries he had noted that Patton's truckers were encouraged to sell off "gasoline, clothing and food" on the black market. Patton's trucks were deliberately sent with black marketers as drivers! Bazata noted that the British wished to prolong the war. For instance, as Bazata put it, the "British refused to take the surrender of large number of Germans he captured during the war."

Wilcox points out that Patton was militarily stopped when Eisenhower allocated scarce gasoline resources to Gen. Montgomery. What Eisenhower was doing was put more emphatically by Eustace Mullins: "As a result of Patton's bold advances in France, Filed Marshal Montgomery persuaded Eisenhower to issue one of the most amazing military orders in history. All Allied armies must advance exactly abreast so that no one (meaning Patton) would receive 'undue credit'."

There were several reasons that had angered Roosevelt, Eisenhower and others. Firstly, under Zionist pressure, Washington wanted complete destruction of the German nation. The Morgenthau Plan, and Morgenthau was a Jew, was to destroy all German industry and reducing it to a mere agricultural society. The argument was to prevent Germany from going to war again, but behind it lay absolute and unadulterated Zionist malevolence towards the German nation. Patton opposed this inhuman plan publicly and privately but Roosevelt, himself of Jewish roots, supported the Morgenthau Plan and it was implemented, and continued even after Roosevelt's death in April 1945. Further, Patton opposed giving government confiscated German homes exclusively to Jews. "If for Jews, why not Catholics, Mormons, etc." he said. And there were millions of others besides Jews in the camps. For this he was branded anti-Semitic, and therefore, the Zionists wanted him out.

The situation took a serious turn at a press conference on September 22, 1945. His staff had warned him that a reporter's question as to why he was hiring Nazis in Bavaria was a trap. Wilcox points out that Patton "offhandedly likened the controversy over such things as a typical 'Democrat and Republican election fight'. The remark had been fleeting and secondary to more serious and thoughtful answers given on the subject. But the press made it sound like it had been the main point and outrage ensued." It is quite clear that the Zionists had trapped him with the intent of getting rid of him. He was branded pro-Nazi and hence anti-Semitic! He was the general who had probably killed more Nazi soldiers than any other Allied general.

In his diary he had noted: "There is a very apparent Semitic influence in the press. They are trying to do two things: first, implement communism, and second, see that all business of German ancestry and non-Jewish antecedents are thrown out of their jobs. They have utterly lost the Anglo-Saxon conception of justice and feel that a man can be kicked out because somebody else says he is a Nazi. They were quite shocked when I told them I would kick nobody out without the successful proof of guilt before a court of law."

Wilcox quotes historian Victor David Hanson: "Patton's bombast supposedly proves that he was anti-Semitic, but a prominent trusted military aide, the intelligence officer Col. Oscar Koch was Jewish and beloved by Patton - as was his official biographer Martin Blumenson. Patton …. Many Jews served with him and won his loyalty - as he did theirs." Wilcox writes: "Under pressure he had apologized for the press conference remark but Eisenhower had summoned him to occupation headquarters in Frankfurt and fired him…. A few remarks taken out of context? It was a setup, he believed. He was angry about it, But the arguments fell on deaf ears. He was deposed as commander of his beloved Third Army and reassigned by Eisenhower as head of the Fifteenth at Bad Nauheim." Eisenhower owed all his important positions to Bernard Baruch, and therefore he was hostile to Patton.

Patton was a great general, a brilliant strategist and fighter. But now his fighting days were over it appeared to him. He made a very serious error when he wrote to Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord that he will not retire but will instead resign. "I shall resign, not retire because if I retire I will still have a gag in my mouth…. I should not start a limited counter attack, which would contrary to my military theories, but should wait until can start an all-out offensive." Harbord was a Freemason and his various appointments indicate his clear ties to the international banking elite. He was director of the Bankers Trust Co, and held many other similar positions. So the High Cabal knew exactly what Patton was going to do. His wife was rich and he did not need a pension. Patton was a grave potential threat to the control of the U.S. by the Zionist bankers and their allies because he was so popular that had he contested for the office of President of the U.S., he would have been elected. That was a very strong reason to stop him - he would, if elected, have taken the U.S. out of the destructive Zionist grip.

On December 9, 1945 he was in a car going on a hunting trip with Lt. Gen. Hobart Gay in a 1938 Cadillac. The car was hit on the side of Patton by a truck. Wilcox points out that "Patton's driver, who couldn't avoid the crash would later privately tell his son that the truck was waiting for them on the side of the road as they 'd started up from a railroad track stop." Two mysterious things happened. Firstly, the truck driver Robert L. Thompson was whisked away to England for four days before being brought back to Germany! Why? The only possible answer is that the British intelligence was also involved in the assassination and they wanted to effectively debrief Thompson. The argument that he had been whisked away to England to protect him from angry solders does not hold water. Why then was he brought back in a mere four days?

A former naval intelligence officer Ladislas Farago had found out that "Thompson was in violation of the rules of his own routine. He had no orders to go anywhere." Secondly although the accident took place at an isolated spot on a Sunday a number of apparently military personnel appeared out of nowhere. A set of medical officers also appeared with an ambulance "whose officer in charge opted for the lengthier trip to Heidelberg than to nearby Mannheim." Thompson died in 1994. According to a relative who was present: "It was a short illness. For some reasons the doctors could not determine what was wrong with him. He had a lot of pain in the stomach… The day he died he suffered terribly."

Not only did Thompson die a strange death, the driver of the car which was to lead Gen. Patton and Gen. Gay to the hunting destination also died mysteriously. He was behind their car, but just before the accident he moved ahead, and, despite the accident never returned to the scene of the accident. This in itself is very strange. His name was Joe Scruce. He was a very fit man and could run miles without panting. In his entire service record he only took one day off. In 1952 his wife wished to hold his 51st birthday party. He became deeply perturbed and said: No party. I won't live to see it." And in the same year 1952 he died a strange death. He told his wife that he could not feel anything on the left side of his body and then began bleeding profusely.

The ambulance took 45 minutes to arrive! He died the same day and there was no autopsy! Scruce's daughter told Wilcox that her father may have become involved in the plot to kill Patton, if only peripherally. She was so scared that she asked Wilcox not to use her name in the book.

Bazata had told Wilcox that he used a special projectile and a special rifle to break Gen. Patton's neck at the spot at which the accident took place. The rifle was driven by air and a spring and was thus silent. The damage it did would not appear to come from a bullet because the projectile would just become debris. Bazata was hiding inside, or beside an abandoned vehicle that had been positioned at the spot at which the accident took place. Gen. Patton was in vigorous health and did not die despite the head and neck injuries. One day before he was taken to the U.S., he was killed by an injection as described by Bazata. What treachery! To kill your most brilliant general because the Army was headed by inferior people who were carrying out the agenda of the Zionist High Cabal. But strangely no autopsy of Patton's death was carried out.

Wilcox uncovered certain intriguing facts. He found out that at least five crucial documents have been removed from the files pertaining to Patton's accident. He writes: "All such primary, close-to-the-crash documents have vanished. One or two being lost or misplaced is understandable. But five? That's a cover up. They 've been removed - except for quoted bits and pieces that have survived as parts of other documents." Another fact that Wilcox uncovered pertained to the car at display at Fort Knox. It is said to be the car Patton was travelling in at the time of the accident. But Patton was in a 1938 Cadillac. By hiring a Detroit Cadillac expert Wilcox found out that it was not the car in which Gen Patton had the accident! Wilcox writes: "After his examination he told me the Cadillac at Fort Knox was not a 1938, but a doctored 1939." Not just that. "Among other incriminating details he showed me where the car's hard to find vehicle identification number (VIN) had been filed off the metal chassis." So files have disappeared the car on display is a fake! Why?

On one occasion Patton's private plane was attacked by an RAF Spitfire in an attempt to shoot down his plane. Fortunately, the spitfire missed and crashed. That an RAF plane was involved in the attack on Patton's plane meant that Britain was involved. Why?

No investigation was ever conducted by the Army. We know of the incident from Patton's diaries. On another occasion a tractor with a huge scythe like object charged at his vehicle. Patton was saved from being decapitated by "inches". No investigation again! In July 1945 Patton visited his family in the U.S. after a gap of three years. He told his daughters that they will never see him again. When they protested he said" "My luck has run out. I 've used it all up like money in the bank…I 've had increasingly narrow escapes. It is too damned bad I wasn't killed before the fighting stopped, but I wasn't. So be it."

Charpter - I - The House of Bush: Born in a Bank

Who is George Bush? How did he become the 41st U.S. President?

He is said to be a man of the "old establishment," who "chose to seek his fortune as an independent oilman...."

In fact, Bush was never "independent." Every career step in his upward climb relied on his family's powerful associations. The Bush family joined the Eastern Establishment comparatively recently, and only as servitors. Their wealth and influence resulted from their loyalty to another, more powerful family, and their willingness to do anything to get ahead.

For what they did, Bush's forebears should have become very famous, or infamous. They remained obscure figures, managers from behind the scenes. But their actions--including his father's role as banker for Adolf Hitler--had tragic effects for the whole planet.

It was these services to his family's benefactors, which propelled George Bush to the top.

Prescott Goes to War

President George Herbert Walker Bush was born in 1924, the son of Prescott S. Bush and Dorothy Walker Bush. We will begin the George Bush story about a decade before his birth, on the eve of World War I. We will follow the career of his father, Prescott Bush, through his marriage with Dorothy Walker, on the path to fortune, elegance and power.

Prescott Bush entered Yale University in 1913. A native of Columbus, Ohio, Prescott had spent the last five years before college in St. George's Episcopal preparatory school in Newport, Rhode Island.

Prescott Bush's first college year, 1913, was also the freshman year at Yale for E. Roland ("Bunny") Harriman, whose older brother (Wm.) Averell Harriman had just graduated from Yale. This is the Averell Harriman who went on to fame as the U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union during World War II, as a governor of New York State, and as a presidential advisor who was greatly responsible for starting the Vietnam War.

The Harrimans would become the sponsors of the Bushes, to lift them onto the stage of world history.

In the spring of 1916, Prescott Bush and "Bunny" Harriman were chosen for membership in an elite Yale senior-year secret society known as Skull and Bones. This unusually morbid, death-celebrating group helped Wall Street financiers find active young men of "good birth" to form a kind of imitation British aristocracy in America.

World War I was then raging in Europe. With the prospect that the U.S.A. would soon join the war, two Skull and Bones "Patriarchs" , Averell Harriman (class of 1913) and Percy A. Rockefeller (class of 1900), paid special attention to Prescott's class of 1917. They wanted reliable cadres to help them play the Great Game, in the lucrative new imperial era that the war was opening up for London and New York moneycrats. Prescott Bush, by then a close friend of "Bunny" Harriman, and several other Bonesmen from their class of 1917 would later comprise the core partners in Brown Brothers Harriman, the world's largest private investment bank.

World War I did make an immense amount of money for the clan of stock speculators and British bankers who had just taken over U.S. industry. The Harrimans were stars of this new Anglo-American elite.

Averell's father, stock broker E.H. Harriman, had gained control of the Union Pacific Railroad in 1898 with credit arranged by William Rockefeller, Percy's father, and by Kuhn Loeb & Co.'s British-affiliated private bankers, Otto Kahn, Jacob Schiff and Felix Warburg.

William Rockefeller, treasurer of Standard Oil and brother of Standard founder John D.

Rockefeller, owned National City Bank (later "Citibank") together with Texas-based James Stillman. In return for their backing, E.H. Harriman deposited in City Bank the vast receipts from his railroad lines. When he issued tens of millions of dollars of "watered" (fraudulent) railroad stock, Harriman sold most of the shares through the Kuhn Loeb company.

The First World War elevated Prescott Bush and his father, Samuel P. Bush, into the lower ranks of the Eastern Establishment.

As war loomed in 1914, National City Bank began reorganizing the U.S. arms industry. Percy A. Rockefeller took direct control of the Remington Arms company, appointing his own man, Samuel F. Pryor, as the new chief executive of Remington.

The U.S entered World War I in 1917. In the spring of 1918, Prescott's father, Samuel P. Bush, became chief of the Ordnance, Small Arms and Ammunition Section of the War Industries Board. The senior Bush took national responsibility for government assistance to and relations with Remington and other weapons companies.

This was an unusual appointment, as Prescott's father seemed to have no background in munitions. Samuel Bush had been president of the Buckeye Steel Castings Co. in Columbus, Ohio, makers of railcar parts. His entire career had been in the railroad business-- supplying equipment to the Wall Street-owned railroad systems.

The War Industries Board was run by Bernard Baruch, a Wall Street speculator with close personal and business ties to old E.H. Harriman. Baruch's brokerage firm had handled Harriman speculations of all kinds.@s3

In 1918, Samuel Bush became director of the Facilities Division of the War Industries Board. Prescott's father reported to the Board's Chairman, Bernard Baruch, and to Baruch's assistant, Wall Street private banker Clarence Dillon.

Robert S. Lovett, President of Union Pacific Railroad, chief counsel to E.H. Harriman and executor of his will, was in charge of national production and purchase "priorities" for Baruch's board.

With the war mobilization conducted under the supervision of the War Industries Board, U.S. consumers and taxpayers showered unprecedented fortunes on war producers and certain holders of raw materials and patents. Hearings in 1934 by the committee of U.S. Senator Gerald Nye attacked the "Merchants of Death" -- war profiteers such as Remington Arms and the British Vickers company --whose salesmen had manipulated many nations into wars, and then supplied all sides with the weapons to fight them.

Percy Rockefeller and Samuel Pryor's Remington Arms supplied machine guns and Colt automatic pistols; millions of rifles to Czarist Russia; over half of the small-arms ammunition used by the Anglo-American allies in World War I; and 69 percent of the rifles used by the United States in that conflict.@s4

Samuel Bush's wartime relationship to these businessmen would continue after the war, and would especially aid his son Prescott's career of service to the Harrimans.

Most of the records and correspondence of Samuel Bush's arms- related section of the government have been burned, "to save space" in the National Archives. This matter of destroyed or misplaced records should be of concern to citizens of a constitutional republic. Unfortunately, it is a rather constant impediment with regard to researching George Bush's background: He is certainly the most "covert" American chief executive.

Now, arms production in wartime is by necessity carried on with great security precautions. The public need not know details of the private lives of the government or industry executives involved, and a broad interrelationship between government and private-sector personnel is normal and useful.

But during the period preceding World War I, and in the war years 1914-1917 when the U.S. was still neutral, interlocking Wall Street financiers subservient to British strategy lobbied heavily, and twisted U.S. government and domestic police functions. Led by the J.P. Morgan concern, Britain's overall purchasing agent in America, these financiers wanted a world war and they wanted the United States in it as Britain's ally. The U.S. and British arms companies, owned by these international financiers, poured out weapons abroad in deals not subject to the scrutiny of any electorate back home. The same gentlemen, as we shall see, later supplied weapons and money to Hitler's Nazis.

That this problem persists today, is in some respect due to the "control" over the documentation and the history of the arms traffickers.

Tactics Part Il

Sabotage, Vandalism, & Staged Events

Targets may regularly experience acts of vandalism. Electronic equipment may fail or act strangely. People have reported this happening with electrical systems in their cars, brand new appliances, TVs, radios, PCs, and other electronic devices. Ongoing computer problems which do not follow any logical pattern may also occur. They include hardware and software issues that span from the file to the internet level.

Many times this vandalism is just below what you'd report to the police. For instance, a small but noticeable portion of your wall has been chipped off, and a crack has appeared in one of your windows. This may be restricted to minor vandalism, just to let you know that you're under surveillance.

However large-scale property darnage is also done to homes and vehicles. Some people have reported that their pets die suddenly of a mysterious illness. Vandalism and pets being tortured may also be in retaliation for you taking action to expose them. "Automobiles are one of the biggest targets," said Moret.

People have reported that tires are slashed, oil is drained, windows are smashed, electronic components are tampered with, and breaks and clutches are sabotaged.

McKinney wrote: "Vehicles invite peculiarly ferocious attacks in these harassment campaigns—slashed tires, smashed windows, oil drainage, oil contamination, destruction of electronic components and batteries grounded fuel gages" and "suddenly failed brakes and clutches," are common, as are recurrent auto thefts.

According to Moret and McKinney citizens are being used to conduct staged vehicular accidents. They are deliberately colliding with the vehicles of targeted individuals.

Traveling

When TIS drive, they may be surrounded by vehicles that frequently cut them off and tailgate them. They will experience more tailgating and cut-offs than average. Vehicles will frequently pull out past stops signs as the TI approaches an intersection. This is apparently done to startle them.

There will be a rotation of vehicles tailgating TIS which may cut them off after tailing them for a while. These vehicles may be marked with an identifying feature, or a color that the TI has been sensitized to. This seems to function as both an NLP tactic to trigger negative emotions, and a method to unite the group and promote group cohesiveness.

City and state vehicles which may stalk people in public, include: metro and school buses, local restaurant delivery vehicles, city and construction vehicles, fire trucks and ambulances, police cars, postal vehicles, taxis, and 18 wheelers.

Helicopters and small planes have also reportedly been used. As will be revealed in the Citizens Enforce Their Rule section, many of these vehicles belong to organizations which have been selected for recruitment into homeland security programs.

Convoys of vehicles which are all spaced the same distance and traveling at the same speed may be seen. Within this convoy, there may be several vehicles exhibiting features that a target has been sensitized to.

These traits are symbolic of a uniform. For instance, most or all of them will be a shade of red. Or most of them will have their lights on, even during the day. Or they may have the same bumper stickers. During the evening targets may experience frequent brighting while driving or walking.

Brighting

Vehicular brighting is an attack that is strategically used with corners. For instance, if you're walking down a quiet street late at night, you'll see vehicles repeatedly turn onto or off of connecting streets. Their timing is such that they continually turn the corners while you approach. This effectively blinds you.

Or, as you walk down a side street, there is one or more cars parked on the side, facing your direction with the lights on. They will also wait for you to approach them and then pull out into the street, thereby brighting you as you walk by.

Like other tactics, frequency and duration play an important role here. Lights being shined into a Tl's window have also been reported. "Among the most common non-lethal weapons are bright lights," wrote Dr. Alexander, in his book, Winning the War, which are a way of "temporarily hindering the eyesight of the targeted personnel."

Blacklisting

Job opportunities will be trashed. Most TIS are unemployed. Many would be in the street if it weren't for parents, siblings, or friends. Those who are employed are usually mobbed.

"Progressive financial impoverishment, [isl brought on by termination of the individual's employment, and compounded by expenses associated with the harassment," wrote McKinney. Most of the targeted individuals she was able to observe during her early investigations were mobbed out of employment by their coworkers.

There are blacklists and software packages used to check these lists for suspected terrorists and threats to national security. Apparently this is a flourishing business, according to the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

Blacklisting has also been used on Russian dissidents. In his book, The Persecutor, Sergei Kourdakov, a member of the plain- clothed PeopWs Brigade, declared that once a person was targeted they could only get the worst jobs, if they were employed at all.1 To accomplish this, the government of the USSR used something called a workbook, which could advance or destroy careers. If you were cooperative with the state, your career could be very successful. If not, you would live in poverty.

In East Germany dissidents were blacklisted as well, and their careers were destroyed. After the wall came down they were allowed to inspect their files, and learned why they were unable to get jobs or enter into universities.

Dr. Munzert speaks of the similarity between what is now happening and what the occurred in Germany. One goal, he says, is to destroy the targeted individual financially.

If you've previously been mobbed out of employment and are blacklisted, the attacks may continue during interviews. Presumably, this is used to further traumatize you. For instance, they may ask you a series of questions for which you have to answer "no" to, such as asking you for credentials that you did not list on your resume.

They may ask you if you possess skill-sets which were not listed in the AD they had placed. Interview questions may be asked with accusing, or mocking tones. Questions may also be asked using certain words linked to the negative work environment you just left. The harassment is concealed in layers of accommodation to help strengthen the illusion that you're not working because you don't choose to. For instance, you may have recruiters who have harassed you in the past leave messages on your answering machine or with relatives/ friends, indicating that there are opportunities available to you. It will be made to look as if you're unemployed due to your choice.

Communications Interference

Communications interference also happened during Cointelpro. The Stasi too, would intercept the mail and phone calls of its targets. Targeted individuals may also receive lots of harassing telephone calls and pranks.

Online

TIS are also attacked online. Search engine results may be filtered and replaced with information pertaining to the Tl's personal life. Websites that they visit may be spoofed and contain information which is apparently intended to let them know they're being watched.

If you have a website devoted to exposing this program you may receive flaming email messages. Messages sent from some victims will contain information pertaining to your personal life. This tactic may be used to foster a sense of hopelessness and isolation.

You may receive unsolicited messages which convey subtle insults and threats. If you join a support group you may also receive harassment via threads posted on message boards. Like other mediurns of harassment, the topics of these threads pertain to events in your personal life, as well as threats or insults covertly directed at you.

If you try to sell things online, participate in online discussions groups, or respond to employment ADS, you will probably be attacked.

Some people have reported that their inbox is clogged with junk messages even ifthey have filters on. These unsolicited emails may contain cryptic borderline-subliminal threats and insults. The words will be garbled but contain letters that convey a message when arranged in the correct order. Or they may contain a sounds- like message. Your mind will automatically piece these letters together so they make sense.

In short Bully police may pick a fight. In my case peaceful use of home and public areas in tensioned by pretentious people and contentious allegations as to what is real in the staged scenarios.

> In physics, tension is described as the pulling force transmitted axially by the means of a string, a rope, chain, or similar object, or by each end of a rod, truss member, or similar three-dimensional object; tension might also be described as the action-reaction pair of forces acting at each end of said elements. Tension could be the opposite of compression.

Restoring force

In physics, the restoring force is a force that acts to bring a body to its equilibrium position. The restoring force is a function only of position of the mass or particle, and it is always directed back toward the equilibrium position of the system. The restoring force is often referred to in simple harmonic motion. The force responsible for restoring original size and shape is called the restoring force.[

Examples: Although she is very pleasant in person, Katie has a tendency to become aggressive and contentious in online discussions

Intent and Intentional

Intentions are mental states in which the agent commits themselves to a course of action. Having the plan to visit the zoo tomorrow is an example of an intention. The action plan is the content of the intention while the commitment is the attitude towards this content.

Content

Content is the information contained within communication media. he advent of the Information Age has led to the advancement of content as a mass-produced commodity for distribution through avenues such as the Internet (and more specifically social media) and the professionalisation of content creation.

Any content developed or disseminated by an individual or on one's behalf, including but not limited to content distributed via books, magazines, brochures, newsletters, newspapers, social media, billboards, websites, mobile applications, movies, television, and radio, is referenced to as media content.

Implicated or impplied

Suggestiveness such as non-verbal communications or the locations of people and events may suggest something.

Inference or inferred

Some might infer something that seems to have been impmlied.

Deniability

A person may deny they impliedd something, and even retaliate against the person for having improperly inferred something from how a person was acting.

Often Harrassers hide behing using implicit messaging and hints at messages and will deny being harassers and retaliate against victims accusing them of being of unfit mental state.

power abusers

The power abusers are often in a position to control the legal outcomes. As a result, these cases often go unreported, undetected and unchallenged, because the victim feels that the threat of action could be worse than the original form of abuse. 3. obstacle or impediment "While trying to get the necessities of life completed he found himself in conflicts along the way."

Reverse Pshchology

When Micheal Aquino (and other CIA and US Military operatives) conduct illegal operation in Aquino's own words the disguises they act under should produce a "reverse psychology" effect in that the accusation against the person in disguise will make the accuser seem of unsound mind, thus in away exonerating the person who wore or acted under a disguise.

Order of Retort: Ed Donegan asserts an NWO allegiance assassinated JFK and RFK protecting its illegal ends and means, and retaining the levers of control of US Government and Media by financially overloading said Estates of power have been able to subdue adherence to Constitutional Charter. That as of now legitimacy of the USA Government is at least by historian standards a failed state and by international standards a world dangerous whose complex rationales of governance including turning on journalists, law enforcement, and media to silence existence of corruption as the State careens into possible nuclear war that is the ends objective of corruption than chartered US governance and methodological directives. That actions against the US Government at this time are of legal quagmire and difficult to judge in the Government's favor. And that the US should correct itself and move as historians are to the real truth of the Kennedy assassination and who gained power and how they are now using that power.

Ed Donegan suggests Treason charges against personally (by family ties) CIA, FBI, Executive, and Press Corp complicity.

Identity of Edward Paul Donegan as New William Cooper

It is the duty of the citizen to assassinate a law enforcement officer while they are affecting an arrest. William Cooper believed that and so do I, both of explicitly and Jen Moore explicitly as she said that Targeting involved killing TIs while they are in custody. I forget in which video she said that, but she did, and I knew she was correct about that from my independent experiences in life.

I write now under his name as let me make something up Nome de Déchu (Name of the Fallen [in battle.]

Milton William "Bill" Cooper (May 6, 1943 – November 5, 2001) was an American conspiracy theorist, radio broadcaster, and author known for his 1991 book Behold a Pale Horse.

According to sociologist Paul Gilroy, Cooper claimed "an elaborate conspiracy theory that encompasses the Kennedy assassination, the doings of the secret world government, the coming ice age, and a variety of other covert activities associated with the Illuminati's declaration of war upon the people of America".[5] Political scientist Michael Barkun characterized it as "among the most complex superconspiracy theories", and also among the most influential due to its popularity in militia circles as well as mainstream bookstores. - Wikipedia

Ed Donegan (I, Me, Myself AND I) do agree though I am a recent comer to Superconspiracy Theory a a very large scale secret government perhaps 600 years old recently (1954 or 1946) gaining formal control of the USA after first gain press and espionage agency control in starting in 1902 London.

A blip in history that was goign to stand up to this was Joseph Kennedy Srs son John F. Kennedy but the US government was too deeply controlled by British faction sleeper agents and JFK could not reign in the treason, falling victim to its plotters General Edward Lansdale and Generdal CD Jackson among the worst of them.

William Cooper was fighting JFKs war against the CIA and its long term generation to generation elite families and so am I, defensively trying to understand their conspiracies against my rights, having to and thus faking evidence to make phony cases against me where no real has existed or does exist.

The entire books series and all my life span might also be called "The Jim Volcelka Quetion" why would the elites fo this government conspire against me?

I think it is the manufacture of Obama Jr and others out of James and Glorian Donegan exploited to help that, and now attempts to silece me by forcing me into low survival rates conditions.

Blunt Force is the basic method of Tareting journalists, victims of the Mafia, etc., THugs are used to attack. If the police atack in uniform they attacked and they can not deny it. If the police attack through thugs they have placed they can plausibly deny they were behind the attacks. Those attacks both physical and death threats, terrorist threats, etc., made secretly and Thug "A" talks to Thug "B" next to the victim (me) and me the clear intended recipient of death threats made but denied made to me.

In Behold a Pale Horse, Cooper asserts that President John F. Kennedy was assassinated because he was about to reveal that extraterrestrials were in the process of taking over the Earth. According to a "top secret" video of the assassination that Cooper claimed to have discovered, the driver of the presidential limousine, William Greer, used "a gas pressure device developed by aliens from the Trilateral Commission" to shoot the president from the driver's seat.[it was probably a poison fletch firing gun per Prouty who accuses the umbrella man of being a tranqualizing fletch firer and Willaim Greer was born in Nothern Ireland and supported the Royals as most of US Espionage does.

The aliens are a code word for some group, possible Royal Air Force or Knights of Malta, mayne even La Cosa Nostra or Scotish Rites or ex-nazis. I donlt know but the dates of the agreement with aliens match when Princess Elisabeth and Prince Phillip on the 1940s became engaged. That is probably it.

As Cooper moved away from the Ufology community and toward the militia and anti-government subculture in the late 1990s, he became convinced that he was being personally targeted by President Bill Clinton and the Internal Revenue Service. In July 1998, he was charged with tax evasion; an arrest warrant was issued, but Cooper eluded repeated attempts to serve it. In 2000, he was named a "major fugitive" by the United States Marshals Service.

On November 5, 2001, Apache County sheriff's deputies attempted to arrest Cooper at his Eagar, Arizona home on charges of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon and endangerment stemming from disputes with local residents. After an exchange of gunfire during which Cooper shot one of the deputies in the head, Cooper was fatally shot. Federal authorities reported that Cooper had spent years evading execution of the 1998 arrest warrant, and according to a spokesman for the Marshals Service, he vowed that "he would not be taken alive".

I am less suspicious about the Clintons than any other presidents, but I and Ted Gunderson and William Cooper and Jen Moore do assert the police are trained killers. I am proud he would not be taken alive. I have no weapons and no choice, so if it comes it comes, but I am happy to write as William Cooper and suspect the same Deep State he did.

My name is Edward Paul Donegan and I am writing for as long as I still can as New William Cooper Patriotic Sovereign Press

I will write elsewhere of how police try to and do have an intermediate breaking of the link between them and the victim (me) and that link can be air that radiation moves through, or

Inductively Constructing Sam Giacanca Testimony Before The Church Committee

A Search for the Truth can reach obstacles. One is Hearsay Exceptions; Declarant Unavailable. (a) Criteria for Being Unavailable. A declarant is considered to be unavailable as a witness if the declarant: (4) cannot be present or testify at the trial or hearing because of death or a then-existing infirmity, physical illness, or mental illness; or (5) is absent from the trial or hearing and the statement's proponent has not been able, by process or other reasonable means, to procure:

https://www.law.cornell.edu/rules/fre/rule_804

In fact this kind of circumstance is not uncommon. Somebody has or had testimony but won't produce it (they "sudden vacation to Europe for six months" (Necomb)" or ended up dead. It is good to be a maid.

Investigating events for trial law is said to be like anything else. I have heard lawyers say "If we can't get it from Person 'A' we will get it from Person 'B' the 'it' being some account of events or description of a person's acts, etc.,

It is a though there are twenty or thirty cameras at an event and if one isn't working or the film is damaged can go to a different camera.

It is widely reputed and was partially corroborated by the Church Committee hearings that during the Kennedy administration, the CIA recruited Giancana and other mobsters to assassinate Fidel Castro. Giancana reportedly said that CIA and the Cosa Nostra were "different sides of the same coin".

Judith Exner claimed to be the mistress of both Giancana and JFK, and that she delivered communications between them about Castro. Giancana's daughter Antoinette has stated that her father was performing a scam to pocket millions of CIA dollars.

Documents released during 1997 revealed that some Mafiosi worked with CIA on assassination attempts against Castro.[24] CIA documents released during 2007 confirmed that during September 1960, CIA recruited ex-FBI agent Robert Maheu to meet with the West Coast representative of the Chicago mob, Johnny Roselli. When Maheu contacted Roselli, Maheu hid that he was sent by CIA, instead portraying himself an advocate for international corporations. He offered $150,000 to have Castro killed, but Roselli refused any pay. Roselli introduced Maheu to two men he called Sam Gold and Joe. "Sam Gold" was Giancana; "Joe" was Santo Trafficante Jr., the Tampa syndicate boss and one of the most powerful mobsters in prerevolution Cuba.

When Giancana was called before a grand jury on June 1, 1965, he remained silent despite being granted immunity, which resulted in his jailing for contempt for more than a year, the duration of the grand jury. Giancana fled to Cuernavaca, Mexico in order to avoid further grand jury questioning.[34] [35] He was arrested by Mexican authorities on July 19, 1974, and deported to the United States.[34][35] He arrived back in Chicago on July 21, 1974.

After Giancana's return to the United States, police detailed officers to guard his house in Oak Park, Illinois, but on the night of June 19, 1975, shortly before he was scheduled to appear before the Church Committee,[37] which was investigating CIA and Cosa Nostra collusion,[38] a gunman entered the home through the basement and shot Giancana in the head and neck seven times with a .22 caliber pistol.

When Corbitt asked for the reason for the murder, Bastone quipped, "There's never just one reason for shit like what happened to Sam. There's a million of 'em. Let's just say that Sam should've remembered what happened to Bugsy Siegel.

From the chapters of this book Chauncey Marvin Holt and Bets Taken that utilize death bed confessions of Chauncy Holt along with other confessions (James File) a fabric of consistent facts emerge that could have come from Giacanca testifying before the Church Committe if Giacanca survived to do so and was forthcoming with the facts.

The Senate Select Committee to Study Governmental Operations with Respect to Intelligence Activities aka the Church Committee: Resolution passed: Jan 27, 1975 Final report issued: Apr 29, 1976 Chairman: Senator Frank Church (D-ID) Vice Chairman: Senator John Tower (R-TX)

"Members of the Committee. I sit here with my daughter Antoinette facing the most difficult times any man could face. I was asked by the United States Government to participate in life or death cold war politics. At some point those in extremely important positions felt it was necessary to take emergency actions, actions based on events I could only know of partially but made sense to me. The United States faced a real threat that threat being a Cuba controlled by Communists closer to the USA than some species of Atlantic aquatic life would ever swim towards the Florida shoreline.

Somehow in some way what was viewed as a bad apple of a President came to power and the threats he posed to the national security interest was just too great and needed to be removed for reasons the public could not know.

We the Mob had longstanding relationships with the USA and supported it as other NGOs did around the world with common threats. On the theory that JFK was a common threat, a threat to the peace of the world, we hit him.

The Chicago operation moved to Vegas and also to Florida where Chauncey Holt and others worked. We were available as mob resources and the US DOD, FBI, and others moved in, all CIA types and others.

This wasn't some lone nut who didn't like JFK for some oddball reason. These were huge generals and CIA officers of world global planning. Some election put some guy in power and we were told he was going to dismantle it all, destroy everything everybody had fought for.

I don't know how to think about this. It made sense at the time you needed me then, and I helped out, but different people are running things or asking questions and now I am the enemy.

But that is the truth as I know it and I just the little guy. If you want to know who really runs things talk to your FBI guy J. Edgar Hoover, or the Dulles Brothers, or the Bush family dating back into history. These are the kingpins. Not us.

Black Paddling Mongoose Black See at Midnight

Black opps, operations planned through or run by the CIA do so under cover, under cover of being a private company or religion, or business or diplomatic traveler or tourist and have those fabricated Identification Documents that may or may not match the real name of the person or common alias used by that person.

Nearly all operations include business transactions, profits and losses, and even regular business activities also conducted behind the same store front. The Black activities may and are best funded by those proprietary interest companies, the oil business, etc., and within them are money laundering, bribery,, assassinations, and often ties into criminal activities such as bootlegging, revolutionary activities, political take-overs, honey traps, honey pots, murders, smear campaigns, etc.,

Weapons smuggling are arming insurgents are common acts as well as industrial, economic, and political espionage, break-ins, sabotage and subversion. etc.,

Special Operators under-cover (in disguise, a war crime, or using encoded tansmisions, also part of sabtoure element of a crime) hiding their identity to hide the role of the Sponsor government or using proxies to hid the role of the Sponsor government gained some notoriety in the Mission Impossible TV series. "As always, should you or any of your IM Force be caught or killed, the Secretary will disavow any knowledge of your actions. This tape/disc will self-destruct in five/ten seconds. Good luck, Dan/Jim. [or Chauncey Holt or George H.W. Bush or Sam Jenis or E. Howard Hunt or Charles Harrelson"]

Often Black Propaganda is generated (as with Ed Donegan) who is smeared as an exploiter of children or women in tight clothes, or women or children in public and I am attacked as I write my book about the Secretary [of DHS, FBI, and CIA]. The attacks such as turning up noise levels in the environments I am in (Starbucks, AUstin Public Library) and attacks on my hone office (conspiracy against rights) are this criminality)

The US Government does not talk about killing Jounralists who are talking about the CIA and Birther Theory, but the US Gorvernment does, and Doroth Killgallen, JFK RFK and Breitbart and Hastings are attacked as I am and Tom Clancy who was working on a Manchurian Candidate book witih CIA advisovors was illed per two CIA insiders activate at the time of my and Barrack Obaam Jrs birth.

I do hold the far right wing views I am accused of and am a Birther and Border Security advocate.

If the black opps are detected, the cover blown and illegal operations, illegal profits, and illegal ties to criminal groups or foreign nations, detected (rather than mere businesses as expected by the country who allowed the visa) the organizer of the black operation will deny having a State interest hand in it or having supported it. In the case of Zapata the US Government will destroy tax records rather than keep them, and those who in the USA know of Operation Mongoose being used kill JKF who was going to expose the black opps black opps are not assassinating, smearing, and silencing witnesses to the events.

A chapter focusing on Dorothy Killgallen is coming up.

I am going to shine light from the Shores of Knowles into the Black Lake area and show what is really there building out from the Shores of what we already know.

I am also going to describe the activities of law enforcement the USA as a CIA proprietary interest, GangStalkers involved in criminal racketeering threat to my life and to the USA itself, and a war time threat to US safety.

I am made to look like a victimize to violent street gangs who frame me as harming their family members (children, etc.,) and then as Noble Savages attack me and try to kill me. This is not uncommon COINTELTPRO FBI activity.

Timothy McVeigh is my lord and savior. He has defended me from the Mafia police black opps as as he defended David Koresh, Paul Wilcher, Dannyy Cassolaro, and in the long run, John F Kennedy from the power elite of the USA.

I am a White Supremacist and proud to be. I will always be, and will never consider that illegal. Today I advise the public of the illegal acts of police and they are an extreme threat and the public should arm themselves should police attempt misconduct.

"If you don't like the USA why don't you just leave"? That is my thinking to and hopefullyu leaving Austin and its public library system forever I will try to get out through Houston consulates and i don't think that will work. But a big no thank you to Austin and the Truth of Timothy McVeighs gift of light to Oaklahoma on behalf of WACO and others.

I will have this chapter more developed later but this for now.

New Orleans Louisiana

Lake Pontchartrain

CIA helicoptor pilot and assaisant (including flying) to George Reynoalds Bob Reynolds of JM/WAVE of Florida operating Orleans Parish Lousiana with Lee Harvey Oswald and Holt.

Q and A with Chauncey Marvin Holt transcription in his book of TV interview

Q. How did this involve Caifano?

A. Caifano was very close to Giancana and Roselli and there was the distinct possibility that Operation Mongoose might have been discussed.

Q. What happened in this case?

A. Caifano went to prison; Ryan kept his mouth shut and lived another 14 years before dying in a car bomb.

Q. When was the first time the name of Oswald came to your attention?

A. In May or June of 1963.

Q. What happened?

A. We were turning out an incredible number of I.D.s for individuals in Texas and Louisiana and among those were documents in the name of Lee Harvey Oswald and Lee Henry Oswald.

We also forged documents in the name of Leon Osborne, which had the same picture on it as the ones on the Oswald documents. Of course, at the time, I was not sure who Oswald really was. Among the documents forged was a membership card in the Communist Party. We also forged I.D.s in other names but with Oswald's photograph on them.

Q. In the spring of 1963 did you supervise a weapons modification plant in Santa Barbara that was funded by the CIA?

A. Yes, at least it was partially funded by the CIA. The machine shop was a legitimate business that simply took on special jobs for us. The owners of this partnership never had any dealings with the CIA. As a matter of fact, only the managing partner of the machine shop was involved in this operation.

Q. Did you receive orders for special "light loaded" ammunition from a Texas gun dealer during this period of time?

A. Yes, among other very special orders. These requests came from John Masen in Dallas.

I might add, at the same time, we were experimenting and evaluating all the versions of the Mannlicher-Carcano rifle, sold as surplus by Sam Cummings at his Western Surplus store on Arroyo Seco in Pasadena, California.

Q. What are the possible implications of this in light of the events surrounding the assassination of President Kennedy?

A. I feel that there must have been some connection. However, I don't want to conjecture about how these experiments, and the experiments in producing a "sabot" utilizing the same cartridge as the Mannlicher-Carcano, allegedly belonging to Oswald, may have been utilized by the assassins.

Q. Did you receive any other unusual requests from Masen?

A. Yes. Masen sent us a lot of Mannlicher- Carcano bullets, which appeared to have been fired once, into wadding or water to prevent deformation, and instructed us to load them into a .264 Winchester case. We fired several of these using a Remington Model 700.

Q. What you believe was the purpose of loading these bullets in the Winchester case?

A. I believe that someone wanted to deliver Mannlicher-Carcano bullets from a weapon that was much superior to the Mannlicher- Carcano, which was a very inferior weapon.

Q. Were you in New Orleans in the summer of 1963?

A. Yes, on several occasions. I was in New Orleans several times with Leroy Young, another pilot, arms expert and close associate of George Reynolds. We were delivering arms to various camps where anti-Castro Cubans were training. The most prominent of these camps was one located across Lake Pontchartrain on property owned by Lewis McWillie's brother.

McWillie was a close friend of Jack Ruby. At one other trip, which lasted ten days, I was there to deliver documents to Guy Bannister. The level of activity during 1963 was the sudden unclogging of the pipeline for funds.

Money for acquisitions suddenly became available. For example, at the weapons plant we requested a tape operated lathe to produce silencers. Funds were remitted at once. We needed to buy another STOL equipped airplane and this was approved by Twombly. These acquisitions resulted in a lot of contact between all the aforementioned individuals.

A lot of the discussions were face to face with no record kept, However, there was a lot of correspondence regarding all these activities, even the very sensitive ones, and a considerable amount of this correspondence is still in my possession, even after six search warrants. In addition to the unusual amount of forged documents that we were producing, such as the Oswald material alluded to already, we were told to be ready, on very short notice, to produce Secret Service I.D. cards and the accompanying recognition pins worn on the lapel. Time won't permit detailing all of these projects and the contacts that resulted from these operations.

Q. When did you first become aware that President Kennedy would be in Dallas?

A. We learned about the Texas trip in the summer of 1963 but didn't learn the details until mid November.

Q. Were you aware that Kennedy would be visiting Chicago and Miami prior to coming to Dallas?

A. Yes, in fact, we were prepared to supply forged documents for use in Miami. However, those instructions, for some reason, were never given.

Q. What specifically were you asked to prepare for the Dallas mission?

A. Forged secret service identification cards and recognition pins.

Q. Were these items to be "manufactured" at the CIA's proprietary interest in Los Angeles?

A. Yes.

Q. Who made these requests of you?

A. Twombly. However, Reynolds and Richard Wilson, were aware that these items were being produced.

Q. Did Twombly request a list of "safe houses" from you which you sent him labeled "Texas Associates"?

A. Yes.

Q. How were these instructions relayed to you? A. Some were verbal; some were written but couched in harmless terms.

Q. Did you know that Twombly would be in Dallas on the day of President Kennedy's visit to attend the Bottler's Convention?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you know that Twombly's Kendall of Pepsi Cola would be there?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Richard Nixon also at the friend, Bottler's Convention?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there some delay in waiting for some critical information from Twombly that was necessary for the fabrication of the Secret Service lapel pins?

A. Yes.

The Century 21 Exposition was a world's fair held April 21, 1962, to October 21, 1962, in Seattle, Washington, United States. Nearly 10 million people attended the fair during its six-month run. Wikipedia

The Kennedy's and Windsors will attend and Ed Donegan asserts this was also planning built around an out-of-wedlock Windsor genome Barrack Obama Jr was at that time a young infant and planned for Indonesia by the CIA but with resistance from JFK.

It started (including the false flags using FBI CIA asset Lee Harvey Oswald) blaming Castro sympathizers for an attempt on JFK.

Subject: Justification for US Military Intervention in Cuba (TS)

1. The Joint Chiefs of Staff have considered the attached Memorandum for the Chief of Operations, Cuba Project, which responds to a request of that office for brief but precise description of pretexts which would provide justification for US military intervention in Cuba.

2. The Joint Chiefs of Staff recommend that the proposed memorandum be forwarded as a preliminary submission suitable for planning purposes. It is assumed that there will be similar submissions from other agencies and that these inputs will be used as a basis for developing a time-phased plan. Individual projects can then be considered on a case-by-case basis.

3. Further, it is assumed that a single agency will be given the primary responsibility for developing military and para-military aspects of the basic plan. It is recommended that this responsibility for both overt and covert military operations be assigned the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Operation Northwoods was a proposed false flag operation that originated within the US Department of Defense of the United States government in a document March 13, 1962.

General Edward Lansdale, commander of the anti-Cuban Operation Mongoose project

Operation Northwood Memo

Since 1950 in truth

As a policy matter under Eisenhower Nixon the policy was considered and approved in reality along with the British the CIA had been doing it since 1951 using Grace Ranch as the secret CIA operation airbase and commando training and arming facility.

> Subject: Latin America
> 1. You requested some thoughts on Latin America, based upon lessons learned in the Philippines, In order to be of most help to you, in the possibly brief time before my departure overseas, I am dividing my suggestions in two parts. The first part is attached. The second part requires deep study of an area unfamiliar to me. If there is insufficient time to write the second part, there are competent folks in C.I.A. who can do it.

2, The first part is an outline of my personal opinion of the basic mechanism needed to win the struggle we face. It is a start, not exhaustive. It is the first time I have tried to describe it concisely, so perhaps there are some rough spots. Latin America is rich in assets for its most efficient working,

3. The basic mechanism must be locked at as only the covert or semi-covert part of the United States team in each country. The rest of the team should be playing in the same game, towards the same goal. If it isn't, the United States loses. Thus » the critical task falls upon the Executive, for clear statement of our Policy towards eech country and compliance of officials to both spirit and letter of that policy.

4. The second part of my suggestions concerns the application of the basic mechanism to each country. The start should be a penetrating review of what we know of each country. From this review, by individual country, we list the real targets to be destroyed, the assets (including names of persons) in that country which will destroy the targets, and a sketch of how an agent or agents make those assets viable. The description of the basic mechanism contains thoughts on this,

May of 1963 is big for Chauncey Holt, Bannister, etc.,

VP Choices have consequences.

I (Edward Donegan) remain convinced JFK was part of the war for freedom against England in Ireland and Boston, and like Ireland's 32 bar in San Francisco, in Africa, Latin America, Indonesia, India, Iran, and elsewhere, and this was part of the split he had with the Special Relationship.

When the United Nations was established in 1945 to replace the former League of Nations, Ireland's entry was blocked by the Soviet Union based on that wartime neutrality. On 14 December 1955 as the 10th Assembly drew to a close, Ireland was admitted as the 63rd member of the United Nations.

This may have been a signifant world embarrassment to Great Brittain already on the decline in world status since The Age of Reason and Altantic Revolutions and the end of WWII with many new sovereign nations despite Englands WWII win fame.

June 23-July 2 – Kennedy makes the eighth international trip of his presidency.[5] June 23–25 – Visits Cologne, Frankfurt, and Wiesbaden, West Germany; also holds meetings with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and other officials. June 26 – Visits West Berlin and delivers his now-famous "Ich bin ein Berliner" speech advocating representative democracy and capitalism as a replacement for communist regimes around the world.

June 26–29 – Visits Dublin, Wexford, Cork, Galway, and Limerick, Ireland and visits his ancestral home; also addresses the Oireachtas (parliament). June 29–30 – Travels to the United Kingdom for an informal visit with British Harold Macmillan at his home in West Sussex, England. July July 1–2 – Travels to Naples and Rome, Italy, where he meets with Italian President Antonio Segni, and NATO officials. Segni paid tribute to JFK for his Peace Speech and JFK reiterated it. Italy was in a hot debate about whether or not to make a center-left coalition with the Socialist Party and the Christian Democrats. The Christian Democrats had received monthly payments from the CIA to make sure communists did not win the elections since 1948, and the CIA was against this. Kennedy was for the center-left coalition, and the CIA undermined him by contradicting what he said to Italian leaders in the days following his visit.[7] July 2 – Has an audience with the newly elected Pope Paul VI at the Apostolic Palace in Vatican City. July 24 – President Kennedy meets with a group of Boys Nation senators, including future U.S. President Bill Clinton, at the White House.[8]

Prevention is the only real fix. Once the tab is torn you will ruin at least one frame. Opening the back in a dark room goes you a chance of saving the next frame but the one without a tab is surely wrecked. Pulling the tabs smoothly and evenly can reduce tearing but some cameras are just too tight. For those cameras the first frame will always be at risk unless you make some mechanical changes.

Polaroid suggested unlatching the camera back to start stubborn tabs. Pull it about an inch then re-latch the back before pulling the film through the rollers. Check the user manual for instructions and photos. - help forum duck and cover, preparedness measure in the United States designed to be a civil-defense response in case of a nuclear attack. The procedure was practiced in the 1950s and ’60s, during the Cold War between the United States and the Soviet Union and their respective allies following World War II. Once the Soviet Union achieved a nuclear capability, U.S. citizens began to prepare for a possible nuclear attack. Among the domestic preparedness measures undertaken by the United States were the construction of fallout shelters and the implementation of air-raid drills in schools and the workplace.

“Duck and cover” emerged as the battle cry of the American domestic preparedness effort during those years. That public-awareness campaign reached the American public, particularly schoolchildren, in the form of a short animated film (1951) depicting a turtle practicing the duck-and-cover emergency response to danger. As soon as he realized an explosion was about to occur, the turtle ducked and covered by withdrawing quickly into his shell. Likewise, children practiced taking immediate refuge wherever they might be, so that they would be prepared to act in the event of an atomic bomb explosion, which, they were told, would be signaled by a blinding flash of light. For example, the children would duck and cover under their desks if they were in school or against a wall with their heads and faces protected if they were outdoors.

Zemurray's United Fruit Co. — née Cuyamel Fruit Co. — isn't around anymore, having been absorbed into Chiquita Brands. But its legacy still exists, standing 10 stories tall at 321 St. Charles Ave., at its corner with Union Street.

United Fruit's time on that corner actually predates the building named after it. Initially, the company resided in the old four-story Louisiana Lottery building that had long stood there. But by 1919, United Fruit had become so big, and so spread out in multiple buildings around town, that company leaders decided to bring them all together under one roof.

Florida.

In 1963 Judyth married Robert Baker and over the next few years the couple had had five children. Judyth Baker also studied for a degree in anthropology at the University of Houston and a degree in creative writing at the University of Central Florida.

Robert Baker divorced Judyth in 1987. She moved to the Netherlands where she was involved in running a small art gallery. Later she established the Lee Harvey Oswald Museum in Haarlem.

In 1999 Judyth privately revealed her involvement in an anti-Castro conspiracy to individuals outside her family and to CBS Sixty Minutes investigators. In late 2000, newsgroups learned who she was and began speculating on what she had to say. She asserted she had been (at first unwittingly) recruited by Dr. Alton Ochsner and Dr. Mary Sherman into a get-Fidel Castro project that had the backing of the CIA and of the Mafia in New Orleans.

In November, 2003 Judyth Baker appeared in the television programme made by Nigel Turner, The Men Who Killed Kennedy: The Love Affair. According to Judyth she was offered a summer medical internship with Dr. Sherman by Ochsner: she accepted, and came to New Orleans in April, 1963. Judyth met Lee Harvey Oswald and became involved on the clandestine side of the research project. Both had unhappy marriages and were attracted to each other. She and Oswald began working together: they were both hired May 10, 1963, at Reily's Coffee Company, which provided cover jobs for them.

According to Judyth she accidentally learned about the clandestine side of the project before Alton Ochsner, who was out of town, was able to steer her to the legitimate side. She then became a willing participant in the project. At the same time, Oswald and Judyth began to fall in love. Neither had a happy marriage (Judyth was recently married to a man who promptly left her alone in New Orleans, and who in other ways neglected her). Oswald became linked to the project, partly to be close to Judyth.

Judyth Baker also met such well-known persons as Guy Bannister and Jack Ruby, as well as several others, for whom she has provided documentation, who are new in the case, including a former Customs officer from Miami who expedited Oswald's passport on 25th June, 1963. Oswald, who had defected to the Soviet Union and then was able to return without a problem to the United States at the height of the Cold War, obtained his new passport in only 24 hours.

According to Baker, the research into the biological weapon was hidden by using two or more secret mini-labs which were set up when Ochsner's Clinic made a massive move into new facilities in March, 1963. Equipment, animals, etc. were 'misplaced' during the move, the second-largest in the history of New Orleans. The basic project was set up March 23, 1962, using conventional facilities, which then expanded out of the loop for its final phases. Several labs were involved, including a tumor and tissue culture processing mini-lab, at an apartment owned by anti-Castroite Dave Ferrie.

https://www.tourneworleans.com/jfk-assassination-conspiracy-tour/

The Newman Building housed two addresses, 544 Camp Street and 531 Lafayette Street, a fact which informed District Attorney Jim Garrison’s conspiracy theory. On August 9, 1963, Lee Harvey Oswald was seen passing out Fair Play For Cuba Committee leaflets, which prompted anti-Castro Cuban activist Carlos Bringuier to accost Oswald; they were both arrested for disturbing the peace. Oswald's leaflets bore the address 544 Camp Street, which was the former workplace of Carlos Bringuier when he served on the CIA-backed Cuban Revolutionary Council. Around the corner from 544 Camp, in the same building, was the address 531 Lafayette Street which housed the private detective agency of Guy Banister, anti-Castro activist, accused JFK assassination conspirator, and associate of Sergio Aracha Smith, official delegate for the New Orleans C.R.C. chapter. Witnesses claim Lee Oswald worked for Bannister in 1963 at his 531 Lafayette Street office. The origins of Garrison's case can be traced to an argument between Bannister and investigator Jack Martin on the day of the assassination after they drank together at the Katzenjammer Bar, next door to 544 Camp Street. They returned to Banister's office where they got into a dispute. Banister pistol-whipped Martin with his .357 Magnum and Martin yelled: "What are you going to do – kill me like you all did Kennedy?" Martin subsequently linked Bannister to the conspiracy, accused Bannister-associate David Ferrie of being the planned getaway pilot for the assassins, and tied Oswald to Ferrie.

William B. Reily began his career in the grocery and packaged goods business in the late 1870s as a country store clerk in Bastrop, LA. After spending eight years in that position, Reily decided to open his own retail grocery store. Only two years later, Reily moved 25 miles south to Monroe, LA where he started the Southern Grocery Company, Inc., a wholesale grocery business. During this time he noticed the popularity of his coffee products and realized that he could create a profitable coffee roasting business. After 14 years of building and running his successful wholesale business in Monroe, Reily moved to New Orleans to start what would become the Reily Foods Company.

[Big NWO investments year] On December 11, 1902, Reily and his partners began their coffee roasting, grinding and distributing company in New Orleans.

David Ferrie

David Ferrie was born in Cleveland, Ohio, on 28th March, 1918. a Roman Catholic, Ferrie attended St. Mary's Seminary, where he studied for the priesthood. Later he spent several years at the St. Charles Seminary in Carthagena, Ohio. He suffered from alopecia praecox, which left him with no body hair.

In 1944 Ferrie left the priesthood and after obtaining a pilot's license he began teaching aeronautics at Cleveland's Benedictine High School. Later he moved to New Orleans where he worked as a pilot for Eastern Air Lines until losing his job in Augst, 1961. He also worked as a pilot instructor for the Civil Air Patrol in Louisiana where he met Lee Harvey Oswald.

Ferrie had right-wing political views and was a strong opponent of Fidel Castro and his government in Cuba. In the early 1960s he was an associate of Guy Bannister and Carlos Bringuier. According to Judyth Baker Ferrie worked with Dr. Alton Ochsner and Dr. Mary Sherman in a CIA secret project to kill Castro. This involved creating the means to insure Castro developed cancer. In 1963 Ferrie and Guy Bannister began working for the lawyer G. Wray Gill and his client, Carlos Marcello. This involved attempts to block Marcello's deportation to Guatemala.

Guy Banister

Guy Banister was born in Monroe, Louisiana, on March 7, 1901. After studying at the Louisiana State University he joined the Monroe Police Department.

In 1934, Banister joined the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). Originally based in Indianapolis, he later moved to New York City where he was involved in the investigation of the American Communist Party. J. Edgar Hoover was impressed by Banister's work and in 1938 he was promoted to run the FBI unit in Butte, Montana. He also served in Oklahoma City, Minneapolis and Chicago before he retired from the FBI in 1954.

Banister moved back to Louisiana and in January 1955 became Assistant Superintendent of the New Orleans Police Department where he was given the task of investigating organized crime and corruption within the police force. It later emerged that he was also involved in looking at the role that left-wing political activists were playing in the struggle for black civil rights in New Orleans.

Banister developed extreme right-wing views and worked as an investigator for the Louisiana Un-American Activities Committee. He also published the racist Louisiana Intelligence Digest. Banister had a deep hatred of the civil rights movement and believed that the policy of racial integration was part of a a plan formulated by Joseph Stalin to create racial conflict in America. https://spartacus-educational.com/JFKferrie.htm

After leaving the New Orleans Police Department, Banister established his own private detective agency, Guy Banister Associates, Inc. at 434 Balter Building. In June 1960, Banister moved his office to 531 Lafayette Street on the ground floor of the Newman Building.[16] Around the corner but located in the same building, with a different entrance, was the address 544 Camp Street, which would later be found stamped on Fair Play for Cuba Committee leaflets distributed by Lee Harvey Oswald, the suspected assassin of President John F. Kennedy. The Newman Building housed militant anti-Castro groups, including the Cuban Revolutionary Council (October 1961 to February 1962), as well as Sergio Arcacha Smith's Crusade to Free Cuba Committee.

Banister was implicated in a 1961 raid on a munitions depot in Houma, Louisiana, in which "various weapons, grenades and ammunition were stolen ... which were reportedly seen stacked in Banister's back room by several witnesses." The New Orleans States-Item newspaper reported an allegation that Banister served as a munitions supplier for the 1961 Bay of Pigs Invasion and continued to deal weapons from his office until 1963.

In 1962, Banister allegedly dispatched an associate, Maurice Brooks Gatlin — legal counsel of Banister's "Anti-Communist League of the Caribbean" — to Paris to deliver a suitcase containing $200,000 for the French OAS.[citation needed] In 1963, Banister and anti-Castro activist David Ferrie began working for a lawyer named G. Wray Gill and his client, New Orleans Mafia boss Carlos Marcello. This involved attempts to block Marcello's deportation to Guatemala.

Earle Cabell

Earle Cabell was a Texas politician who served as mayor of Dallas, Texas. Cabell was mayor at the time of the assassination of United States President John F. Kennedy and was later a member of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Cabell was the youngest of four sons of the then former Dallas Mayor Ben E. Cabell and also the grandson of the former Dallas Mayor William L. Cabell. He was the brother of Charles Cabell, who was deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency from 1953 to 1962.

Assassination of Kennedy - Cabell and his wife met United States President John F. Kennedy and Mrs. Kennedy at Love Field on the morning of November 22, 1963.[2] Cabell's wife reported that while riding in Kennedy's motorcade through Dealey Plaza, she observed "a rather long looking thing" sticking out of a window of the Texas School Book Depository immediately after the first shot.[3] After receiving word from the Federal Bureau of Investigation that he was the subject of a death threat, Cabell was guarded by police when he traveled to Washington, D.C. to attend Kennedy's funeral and also upon his return to Dallas.

One version of John F. Kennedy assassination conspiracy theories, the "Renegade CIA Clique" theory, implicates Cabell and other alleged conspirators, including CIA officials James Jesus Angleton, William King Harvey, and Cabell's brother Charles Cabell. This theory claims that Earle Cabell re-routed Kennedy's motorcade as a favor to his brother. - Wikipedia

A Texas surgeon whose theory on the Kennedy assassination has been criticized by colleagues in Dallas defended himself in Toronto today.

Dr Charles khaw says he examined Kennedy's body and found the president had been shot twice from the front not the back as the Warren Commission found

Paul Rogers has the story that's an unconfirmed report that the president was hit in the head the Parkland emergency room is a zoo anyway but that day it was sheer bedlam Charles Crenshaw memories of November 22nd 1963 are vivid he was a third-year resident one of 16 doctors to see the body of JFK at Dallas's Parkland Hospital before it was removed to Bethesda Maryland for an autopsy he believes Kennedy was shot from the front and in Toronto for an appearance on Monday's Deanie Petty show on cfto krenshaw explained his theory.

one shot came in here from the right and the other came in right from the front and it was rounded well demarcated and well set there and all of the appearance of a high velocity missile entrance room Crensshaw says another doctor made a neat 1-in incision across the entrance wound in Kennedy's neck in order to insert an air tube into the president's lungs but he says that smooth incision in no way resembles the gaping wound in the official Kennedy autopsy photos

He further charges that another autopsy picture was altered to completely cover up a baseball-sized wound behind Kennedy's right ear a wound crenchaw says all of the doctors in the Parkland trauma room commented on and while some of those same doctors say they don't even remember seeing Crenshaw in the emergency room he (Crenshaw) says his evidence before the Warren Commission clearly shows he took part however two of the doctors who actually performed the autopsy at Bethesda dismissed Chrenshaw's Theory and the book he has written as a sad Fabrication

In the Journal of the American Medical Association this week the two Pathologists endorsed the conclusions of the Warren Commission so who does Krenshaw think killed Kennedy?

that I don't know all I can do is tell you that they covered up the pictures and changed the Ws from barking there whether you accept Dr crenshaw's story or not his involvement with the assassination did not end with Kennedy's death two days later he was back in a Dallas emergency Ward this time trying to save the life of the accused killer Lee Harvey Oswald who had just been shot live on television Paul Rogers CFT news https://atomicredhead.com/2018/03/11/el-mirador-hotel/ After America entered World War II the United States Army bought El Mirador in the summer of 1942, and converted it into the Torney General Hospital, named after Brigadier General George Henry Torney, a physician for the US Navy and Army. With over 1,000 beds, the hospital looked after wounded soldiers sent home from the Pacific Theater.

After WWII El Mirador was offered to City of Palm Springs by the Army. Residents voted on buying it and using it as a civic center, however, they opted not to, so it was put up for sale. It went through several owners before being purchased in 1951 or ’52 (depending on the source) by a group of Chicago investors, including Roy Fitzgerald, and oil man Ray Ryan. https://atomicredhead.com/2018/03/11/el-mirador-hotel/

They took photos with tourist-grade cameras of the that time Polaroid Land Camera. How old is a Polaroid land camera? The Land Camera is a model of self-developing film camera manufactured by Polaroid between 1948 and 1983. It is named after the inventor, American scientist Edwin Land, who developed a process for self-developing photography between 1943 and 1947. Extreme enlargements and study of nearly amorphous forms has shown figure on the grassy knoll appearing to be armed assassins. Lee Bowers had watch of that area in two story train-yard booth. Based on the Pagodas and their Sentry station form as WWII approached it seemed that the two story booth not only watched train operations but the parking lot and plaza as well in a combination of control tower and security post with four way windows for high visibility in all directions. Many were present at the assassination and most went towards the grassy knoll thinking shots were fired from there. As both material witness and perpetratos E. Howard Hunt and Chauncey Holt confessed to being at that location and were photographed at it and the say the withdrew into a train car and hid for a while before they were removed and questioned and released.,

The assassinations unit training at Grace Ranch Arizona used for Latin America and elsewhere creating disguised planes to carry military assistance in was also used to hit JFK when JFK tried to shut the operation down.

E Howard Hunt Tells The Same Story on Tape in his own words about "the big event" as does Chauncey Holt on tape both on their deathbeds from Cancer

E. Howard Hunt: "I heard from Frank [Sturgis another of those dressed as Hobos along with also confessed Chauncy Holt] that LBJ had designated Cord Meyer Jr. to undertake a larger organization while keeping it totally secret.

Cord buyer himself was a rather favored member of the Eastern aristocracy.

He was a graduate of Yale University and had joined the marine corps during the war and lost an eye in the pacific fighting i think that LBJ settled on Meyer as a as an opportunist parent like himself a parent and a man who had very little left to him in life.

Ever since JFK had had taken cord's wife as one of his mistresses i would suggest that Cord Meyer welcomed the approach from LBJ who was after all only the Vice President at that time.

He of course could not number Cord as one of JFK's admirers, quite the contrary.

As to David [Atlee] Phillips I knew him uh pretty well at one time he worked for me during the Guatemala project he had made himself useful to the agency in Santiago Chile where he was an American businessman in any case his actions whatever they were it came to the attention of the Santiago [CIA)] station chief and when his known to people in the western hemisphere division he was brought in uh to work on [1954] Guatemalan operations spirits and morales and people of that uh yelp stayed in uh apartment houses during preparations for uh the 'big event' … " (goes on for 12 minutes more.)

Saint John Hunt says his father E. Howard Hunt is the one who sketched the diagram of who killed JFK.

Cord Meyer, Atlee Phillips, David Morales the operational clutch. LBJ the Kingpin.

There was nobody that had the leverage the LBJ had. He could do so by corruptin the people in the CIA. It had to be the CIA because only the CIA could use clandestine means with no accounting. (black opps oversight by elites run from Oval Office deniable opps often self funded.)

Wiliam King Harvey available since Harvey was a social climber wanted more than simple CIA job could offer, wanted to be granted a far bigger life in Special Opps black opps world with powerful friends and allies.

Harvey was complicated Hunt says people thought Alcohol had gotten control of him. Ed Donegan says William King Harvey could be Borderline.

William King "Bill" Harvey (September 13, 1915 – June 9, 1976) was an American Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) officer, best known for his role in the terrorism and sabotage campaign known as Operation Mongoose. He was known as "America's James Bond", a tag given to him by Edward Lansdale.

Harvey wanted to use Corsicans as hit men, could have recruited them per Hunt.

Harvey was overweight and it was implicated visually he was being photographed with many women including his wife.

A caricature drawing is shown by Hunt of Secret Service or someone else taking Harvey's pistol from the back belt of his suit in the Oval Office as Harvey meets with JFK Ed Donegan speculates Chauncey Marvin Holt who drew others like Meyers Lansky may have drawn the shown caricature. Harvey drank and talked it up at restaurants as he drank and left his gun out on the table to the bothered notice of other patrons.

Harvey was a deputy to Angleton and it is knwon Angleton was deputy director at CIA part of WWII Gladio with Vatican and also was international espionage coordinator of CIA with strong ties to Great Brittian.

William (Bill) King Harvey and Bobby Kennedy bitterly argued over Tree of Liberty watered with blood of patriots. It appears that was the operational excuse assassinations would occur under.

That clash occurred even earlier than the Missile Crisis most likely (per Hunt)

It was about 12:15 as another car came to the area with a white man about 35 to 40 years old driving. This car was a 1957 Ford, Black, 2 door with Texas license. This man appeared to be alone in the car. I did not see what happened to these cars after they left the area as another car pulled in. This car was a 1961 Chevrolet, Impala, 4 door, as not sure that this was a 4 door, color white and dirty up to the window. This car also had a Goldwater for Pres sticker. This car was driven by a white male about 45 years old. This car also had the license plate number of which I do not recall. The car also had the 1961 same type license plates as the 1959 Oldsmobile. He left this area about 12:45 pm. About 8 or 10 minutes after he left I heard at least 3 shots very close together. I was unable to see from my position where the shots came from.

I will be coming over to see GM in the near future; as soon as DB is available to be in town.

Take care.

The initialed person JM is Dallas gunsmith John Masen, MR is Manuel Rodriguez (of the anti-Castro group Alpha 66) and GM is CIA agent Guy Main, based in Los Angeles. It is thus far unknown who is DB.

..any of the these individuals, behind the barricade, adjacent to the grassy knoll, where I had left the Oldsmobile station wagon, containing handguns, it is possible that they were in the area, because of the number of cars that were parked next to the picket fence.

ANALYSIS OF REPORTS AND DATA BEARING ON CIRCUMSTANCES OF DEATH

OF TWENTY-ONE INDIVIDUALS CONNECTED WITH THE ASSASSINATION OF

PRESIDENT JOHN F. KENNEDY

Death #2

Name: Albert Guy Bogard

Assassination Connection: Albert Guy Bogard worked as an automobile salesman at Downtown Lincoln-Mercury in Dallas, Texas. Penn Jones, in volume II of Forgive My Grief, states that:

> On Nov. 9, 1963 salesman Bogard showed a new Mercury automobile to a man using the name of Lee Oswald. The two took a demonstration drive with the prospect at the wheel.... The prospect said that he would not have the money for a couple of weeks, but he would then pay cash for the car. Bogard had to ask twice before the man said his name was Lee Oswald.
>
> We believe the men in this group who have met with either shooting or death were seeing a false Oswald."

Date of Death: Stated by Penn Jones to be February 14, 1966.

Place of Death: Stated by Penn Jones to be Hallsville, Louisiana.

Circumstances of Death: Penn Jones states in volume II of Forgive My Grief, that Bogard had testified before the Warren Commission, and, according to Jones, he was found so badly beaten some time later that he required hospitalization. Bogard later left Dallas and returned to Louisiana, his home State. Jones states that:

> Bogard was from Hallsville, Louisiana. He was found dead in his car at the Hallsville Cemetery on > St. Valentine's Day, 1966. A hose had been connected to the exhaust end and the other end inside the car with the windows up. The ruling was suicide.

The researcher was unable to locate any town in Louisiana of that name in any standard atlas of the United States. There is, however, a town of Halls Summit in Red River Parish, in northwestern Louisiana. This may be the location mentioned by Jones, as it is not far from Shreveport, the home of Bogard's wife. There is a Haynesville, Louisiana in Claiborne Parish. It also could be the Hallsville to which Jones refers.

CRS-6

The death of Albert Guy Bogard may warrant further investigation by the Committee in light of the fact of its circumstances. In addition, the site of his death should be determined for the sake of the accuracy of historical records.

Jurisdiction: Halls Summit is located in Red River Parish, Louisiana.

ANITA DICKASON in the time and context she wrote itemized the avaialble evidence in the spheres of evidence weighing each side.

She introduces the history of Bower and his position to observe and analyze what he sees and lists the times he spoke publicly on the matter.

JFK ASSASSINATION EYEWITNESS: RUSH TO CONSPIRACY THE REAL FACTS OF LEE BOWERS' DEATH

By ANITA DICKASON from ARCHWAY PUBLISHING

CHAPTER 3 The Witness

Bowers provided three documented accounts of what he observed on the day President John F. Kennedy was assassinated.

The first was the Dallas Affdavit (Appendix 1), provided to local law enforcement on the day of the assassination, November 22, 1963.

The second was his testimony to the Warren Commission in 1964 (Appendix 2) and the third was the 1966 Mark Lane interviews.

Bowers' position in the railroad tower was an excellent location to observe the movement of pedestrians and cars in the area. It is not diffcult to imagine, from his perch in the tower, he was a people and car watcher.

In the Warren Commission testimony he indicated he had worked there for a number of years and was familiar with the movement of individuals in the area.

Bowers was probably very alert to any suspicious activity.

Run for Cover (chapter from Chauncey Marvin Holt book Self Portrait of a Scoundrel)

After the shots fired hit JFK (the Coup De Tat Holt calls it in his earlier chapter) he then runs for cover along with E. Howard Hunt and Charles Harrelson. Jack Ruby, Frank Sturgis, and others are in the area as well with an Arizona plates souped up Oldsmoble Station wagon and pickup truck, possibly more vehicles. Holt has driven in from Grace Ranch and a small plane is also in the area if needed for escape. Fake Credentials were printed from Los Angeles Stationary And Stamp Compnay and delivere in advance to New Orleans where Holt, LHO, George Reynolds, Leroy Young, Frank Belcher, Ferrie, Bannister, and others had been operating.

CH: My first instinct was just to get out of there. You know, mix with the crowd and go. But I had been given specific instructions, and when you are given specific instructions, that is what you do. I had barely enough time to get to the boxcar and when I arrived there these two individuals, known to me as Harrelson and Montoya, were already there. It indicated they were close by. We jumped in the box car and settled down just to wait everything out.

There was a search party that came by many times, but this boxcar appeared to be locked. It had a seal on it and they kept passing it by. We could hear them outside, we could hear their radio's and so forth.

VO: The three sat in the boxcar for over an hour, listening to a police radio receiver that Chauncey had concealed in a brown paper bag. Then around 2:20 PM the boxcar started to move.

CH: It moved up the track and then it moved back down the track and then it stopped. What actually happened was that Lee Bowers, who happened to be the tower operator that supervised all the train movements in the yard, happened to see somebody jump on the train further up. So he ordered the train stopped and they backed it down the track. We were not too concerned about it at that time, because after all it was a switching yard.

But for some reason it stopped and that time they didn't pass the boxcar up. So we heard them rattling at the door and I immediately took out the ATF credentials because I certainly didn't want to have a bunch of trigger happy cops dragging us out of there.

So the minute they opened the door I flashed my credentials.

I said I was with the ATF, showed my badge and that sort of thing.

D.V. Harkness was a sergeant for the Dallas Police Department. He was in charge of this detail. And another officer Roy Vaughn was the second in command. So we identified ourselves, or actually I did, because I did all the talking.

So we said we were BATF, we were working undercover investigating this arms shipment in this boxcar. And he and Vaughn conferred for a little bit and they decided to send us over to the area that was set up as the investigating office.

Railroad worker Richard Calvin Dodd was standing on top of the triple underpass, in front of John F. Kennedy's presidential motorcade on Elm Street LANE. Did you see anything which might indicate to you where the shots came from?

DODD. Well, we all four seen about the same thing. The shots, the smoke came from behind the hedge on the north side of the plaza. And a motorcycle policeman dropped his motorcycle in the street with his gun in his hand and run up the embankment to the hedge. And then I went North to look around the corner to see if there is anyone behind the hedge and met special agent of the railroad. And he went down there, and I walked along with him to see if there were any tracks there. In which there were tracks and cigarette butts was laying where someone was stranding on the bumper looking over the fence or something.

LANE. Where you questioned by agents of any government agency on November 22, Mr. Dodd.

DODD. Yes, we were. We were taken over to the court house and questioned by I suppose Secret Service men of some kind. Asked me quite a few questions about the same as I've told you here today.

It is noteworthy in assessing the case against Oswald he was not captured at the scene of the crime, the book depository. He is tied to that location by his job and a rifle found there is tied to him by police, but he was not there, and thus the evidence is very indirect (circumatantial, the circumstances of his employment, alleged purchases, alleged other activities).

Lee Bowers was a Revealor. He said some people came in with an Oldsmobile station wagon and some other vehicles, looked around a bit, were out of place, and the station wagon was left behind. He also saw some flashes of light and the hobos being arrested from the train cars. Mr Ball questioned them and per Holt may have been in the back pocket of the CIA and tied to events leading up to the assassination. Holt said he left the Oldsmobile station wagon behind, key under it, Bowers testified the place was on lockdown after the shooting and the operators of the Station Wagon could not get it out.

I (Chauncey Marvin Holt) drove to the parking area behind Dealey Plaza, arriving there at approximately 9:30 a.m., after dropping off Nicoletti and Moceri at a hotel on Main Street, across the street from a strip joint.

Canty and I probed the area around the railroad tower, adjacent to the Dealey Plaza.

We did not see the pickup (Chevy) with the Texas plates, although we searched the entire area, including the area that was locked.

Not wanting to attract any unwelcome attention we left.

I then drove Joe Canty out to Red Bird Airport, where the Commanche, that had been left for us by either David Ferrie or Leroy Young(pilot worked for Geroge Reynalds) (CIA pilots), was tied down.

I then returned to the parking lot, next to the railroad yards, arriving there at approximately 11:30 a.m.

The pickup truck, with a camper shell, and the right Texas plates, was parked in the lot, with the front of the truck facing the railroad yards.

I placed the briefcase, containing the fake identification, in the truck. I parked the "souped up" Oldsmobile station wagon, containing several handguns and an extra set of identification papers in the name of John O'Malley, behind the stockade fence and wandered around the railroad yards.

I then strolled up to near the corner of Houston and Main street. Across the plaza, near the entrance to the Dal-Tex Building …

Q. Then what happened?

A. I called the Cabana where Eugene Brading and Morgan Brown were staying and asked to speak to Morgan Brown.

Q. Who was Morgan Brown?

A. A very unpredictable gunman from California. He was also the brother of Melvin Brown, who was one of Twombly's most trusted associates.

Q. Who was Eugene Brading?

A. An acquaintance who had offces in the same building that I did. He had recently changed his name to Jim Braden.

Brading or Braden was a close associate of Jerry Rosenthal, who, at that time, shared the suite of offces with us in Beverly Hills. We knew from Rosenthal that Braden was at the Cabana.

Q. Were you aware that Braden was detained for questioning as he was leaving the Dal-Tex building?

A. I saw the police talking to him but at the time, I didn't know any of the details.

Q. Were you aware that Braden was known to have organized crime connections?

A. Yes, I knew he was connected.

Q. Did you finally connect up with Braden?

A. Yes, when I first called the Cabana and asked for Morgan Brown, I was told he had checked out. I was advised that Braden had not checked out. I later called the Cabana and talked to Braden, who offered me a ride to Red Bird. I told him he was welcome to fly back to California with us but he declined and said that he had been flown from California in a private plane and was going to Houston and would be returning to Dallas in a few days. He took me to Red Bird and we parted company. The next time I saw him was, years later, in La Costa, California where we were neighbors.

Q. What happened next?

A. I called an agent by the name of Whitlock and told him the station wagon was in the Dealey Plaza parking lot and that there was a hide-a-key under the hood. I instructed him to pick up the vehicle, deliver the guns to Masen and call George Reynolds and tell him what happened.

Q. Do you know if he followed your instructions?

A. Yes, on Dec. 12, 1963 1 received a letter from George Reynolds in which he indicated that Michael Whitlock had picked up the vehicle, had delivered the guns to Masen and had driven the station wagon to Morgan City, La., where it was at the time the letter was written.

I subsequently sold the vehicle to Leroy Young. On Dec. 15, 1963, I sent Whitlock a check in the amount of $250.00 for his expenses in delivering the vehicle to Morgan City.

The Aftermath and the Cover-up

VO: After the assassination Chauncey kept a low profile. In December Chauncey received a letter from Peter Licavoli. The mob boss wrote him to wish him a merry Christmas and a happy new year. "I hope 1964 is better than 1963."

The letter made Chauncey uneasy because Licavoli knew that Chauncey was in Dallas when JFK was murdered.

Chauncey wondered what else Licavoli knew about the events of November 22. Chauncey had a good reason to be jittery.

CH: My father in law called me up in Beverly Hills and said there were two very mysterious gentlemen looking for me. They had the information on my car, which was a new Cadillac with Arizona plates, which wouldn't be hard to spot. They had the N-number on my plane, the one that I owned personally.

Of course the first thing I thought about was Dallas. I didn't know if they were cops or people that wanted to cut the umbilical cord.

TESTIMONY OF LEE E. BOWERS, JR.

The testimony of Lee E. Bowers, Jr. was taken at 2 p.m., on April 2, 1964, in the office of the U.S. attorney, 301 Post Office Building, Bryan and Ervay Streets, Dallas, Tex., by Mr. Joseph A. Ball, assistant counsel of the President's Commission.

Mr. BALL also testifying. Will you stand and be sworn, Mr. Bowers?

Do you solemnly swear that the testimony you are about to give for this Commission will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes, sir.

Mr. BALL. Will you state your name, please.

Mr. BOWERS. Lee E. Bowers, Jr.

Mr. BALL. And what is your residence address?

Mr. BOWERS. 10508 Maplegrove Lane.

Mr. BALL. Dallas, Tex.

Mr. BOWERS. Dallas.

Mr. BALL. And would you tell me something about yourself, where you were born, raised, and what has been your business, generally, or occupation?

Mr. BOWERS. I was born right here in Dallas, and lived here most of my life except when I was in the Nary. at the age of 17 to 21, and I was away 2 years going to Hardin Simmons University, also, attended Southern Methodist University 2 years, majoring in religion. I worked for the railroad 15 years and was a self-employed builder, as well as-on the side. And the first of this year when I went to work as business manager for Dr. Tim Green who operates this hospital and convalescent home and rent properties.

Mr. BALL. What railroad did you work for?

Mr. BOWERS. Worked for the Union Terminal Co. with the 8 participating railroads.

Mr. BALL. And on November 22, 1963, were you working for the Union Terminal Co. ?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes.

Mr. BALL. What kind of work were you doing for them?

Mr BOWERS. I was tower man in the north tower, Union Terminal, operating the switches and signals controlling the movement of trains.

Mr. BALL. Through railroad yards?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes.

Mr. BALL. What were your hours of work?

Mr. BOWERS. 7 to 3 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Mr. BALL. Now, do you remember what is the height of-above the ground at which you worked in the tower?

Mr. BOWERS. It is second story, it is 14 feet, 12 or 14 feet.

Mr. BALL. You worked about 14 feet above the ground?

Mr. Bownati. Yes.

Mr. BALL. And the tower was arranged so that you could see out?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes; it is windows except for posts that-posts on each corner. It is windows on all four sides.

p. 284

Mr. BALL. Where is that located with reference to the corner of Elm and Houston ?

Mr. BOWERS. It is west and north of this corner, and as to distances, I really don't know. It is within 50 yards of the back of the School Depository Building, or less.

Mr. BALL. Did you say that it is built on higher ground, the base of the tower on higher ground than around Houston and Elm?

Mr. BOWERS. Approximately the same.

Mr. BALL. Same? It is higher ground than Elm as it recedes down under the triple underpass?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes, sir ; considerably.

Mr. BALL. And the base of your tower is about the same height as the triple underpass, isn't it?

Mr. BOWERS. Approximately.

Mr. BALL. Now, can you tell me why you refer to that as a triple underpass? In our conversation here before you were sworn your description-you described it as a triple underpass.

Mr. BOWERS. It is just a local connotation for it since there are three streets that run under it.

Mr. BALL. I see. And how many sets of tracks do you control from your tower?

Mr. BOWERS. There are about 11 tracks in the station and 2 freight tracks.

Mr. BALL. That would be 13 tracks that is, the tracks altogether, that pass in front of your tower?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes; of course where the tracks converge and cross and split off to various railroad yardsMr. BALL. And the tracks are to the north and west of your tower, aren't they?

Mr. BOWERS. Well, the tracks are west, but they proceed in all directions, I mean, they are both north and south.

Mr. BALL. Now, you were on duty on November 22, 1963, weren't you? Mr. BOWERS. That's correct.

Mr. BALL. Close to noon, did you make any observation of the area around between your tower and Elm Street?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes; because of the fact that the area had been covered by police for some 2 hours. Since approximately 10 o'clock in the morning traffic had been cut off into the area so that anyone moving around could actually be observed. Since I had worked there for a number of years I was familiar with most of the people who came in and out of the area.

Mr. BALL. Did you notice any cars around there?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes; there were three cars that came in during the time from around noon until the time of the shooting.

Mr. BALL. Came in where?

Mr. BOWERS. They came into the vicinity of the tom-er, which was at the extension of Wm Street, which runs in front of the School Depository, and which there is no way out. It is not a through street to anywhere.

Mr. BALL. There is parking area behind the School Depository, between that building and your tower?

Mr. BOWERS. Two or three railroad tracks and a small amount of parking area for the employees.

Mr. BALL. And the first came along that you noticed about what time of day?

Mr. BOWERS. I do not recall the exact time, but I believe this was approximately 12:10, wouldn't be too far off.

Mr. BALL. And the car you noticed, when you noticed the car, where was it?

Mr. BOWERS. The car proceeded in front of the School Depository down across 2 or 3 tracks and circled the area in front of the tower, and to the west of the tower, and, as if he was searching for a way out, or was checking the area, and then proceeded back through the only way he could, the same outlet he came into. Mr. BALL. The place where Elm dead ends?

Mr. Bow=. That's right. Back in front of the School Depository was the only way he could get out. And I lost sight of him, I couldn't watch him.

pp.285

Mr. BALL. What was the description of that car?

Mr. BOWERS. The first car was a lg.59 Oldsmobile, blue and white st,ation wagon with out-of-State license.

Mr. BALL. Do you know what State?

Mr. BOXJERS. No; I do not. I would know it, I could identify it, I think, if I looked at a list.

Air. BALL. And, it had something else, some bumper stickers?

Mr. BOWERS. Had a bumper sticker, one of which was a Goldwater sticker, and the other of which was of some scenic location, I think.

Mr. BALL. And, did you see another car?

Mr. BOXERS. Yes, some 16 minutes or so after this, at approximately 12 o'clock, 20 to 12-I guess 12 :20 would be close to it, little time differential therebut there was another car which was a 1957 black Ford, with one male in it that seemed to have a mike or telephone or something that gave the appearance of that at least.

Mr. BALL. How could you tell that?

Mr. BOWERS. He was holding something up to his mouth with one hand and he was driving with the other, and gave that appearance. He was very close to the tower. I could see him as he proceeded around the area.

Mr. BALL. What kind of license did that have?

Mr. BOWEKS. Had a Texas license.

Mr. BALL. What did it do as it came into the area, from what street?

Mr. BOWERS. Came in from the extension of Elm Street, in front of the School Depository.

Mr. BALL. Did you see it leave?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes: after 3 or 4 minutes cruising around the area it departed the same way. He did probe a little further into the area than the first car.

Mr. BALL. Did you see another car?

Mr. BOWERS. Third car, which entered the area, which was some seven or nine minutes before the shooting, I believe was a 1961 or X%2 Chevrolet, fourdoor Impala, white, showed signs of being on the road. It was muddy up to the windows, bore a similar out-of-state license to the first car I observed, occupied also by one white male.

Mr. BALL. What did it do?

Mr. BOXERS. He spent a little more t,ime in the area. He tried--he circled the area and probed one spot right at the tower in an attempt to get and was forced to back out some considerable distance, and slowly cruised down back towards the front of the School Depository Building.

Mr. BALL. Then did he leave?

Mr. BOWERS. The last I saw of him he was pausing just about in-just above the assassination site.

Mr. BALL. Did the car park, or continue on or did you notice?

Mr. BOWERS. Whether it continued on at that very moment or whether it pulled up only a short distance, I couldn't tell. I was busy.

Mr. BALL. How long was this before the L'residennt's car passed there?

Mr. BOWERS. This last car? About 8 minutes.

Mr. BALL. Were you in a position where you could see the corner of Elm and Houston from the tower?

Mr. BOWERS. No; I could not see the corner of Elm and Houston. I could see the corner of Main and Houston as they came down and turned on, then I couldn't see it for about half a block, and after they passed the corner of Elm and Houston the car came in sight again.

Mr. BALL. You saw the President's car coming out the Houston Street from Main, did you?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes ; I saw that.

Mr. BALL. Then you lost sight of it?

Mr. BOWERS. Right. For a moment.

Mr. BALL. Then you saw it again where?

Mr. BOWF,RS. It came in sight after it had turned the corner of Elm and Houston.

Mr. BALL. Did you hear anything?

pp. 286

Mr. Bowsas. I heard three shots. One, then a slight pause, then two very close together. Also reverberation from the shots.

Mr. BILL. And were you able to form an opinion as to the source of the sound or what direction it came from, I mean?

Mr. BOWERS. The sounds came either from up against the School Depository Building or near the mouth of the triple underpass.

Mr. BALL. Were you able to tell which?

Mr. Bowsas. No; I could not.

Mr. BALL. Well, now, had you had any experience before being in the tower as to sounds coming from those various places?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes; I had worked this same tower for some 10 or 12 years, and was there during the time they were renovating the School Depository Building, and had noticed at that time the similarity of sounds occurring in either of those two locations.

Mr. BALL Can you tell me now whether or not it came, the sounds you heard, the three shots came from the direction of the Depository Building or the triple underpass?

Mr. BOWERS. No ; I could not.

Mr. BALL. From your experience there, previous experience there in hearing sounds that originated at the Texas School Book Depository Building, did you notice that sometimes those sounds seem to come from the triple underpass? Is that what you told me a moment ago?

Mr. BOWERS. There is a similarity of sound, because there is a reverberation which takes place from either location.

Mr. BALL. Had you heard sounds originating near the triple underpass before?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes ; quite often.

Because trucks backfire and various occurrences.

Mr. BALL. And you had heard noises originating from the Texas School Depository when they were building there?

Mr. BOWERS. They were renovating. I-did carpenter work as well as sandblasted the outside of the building.

Mr. BALL. Now, were there any people standing on the high side-high ground between your tower and where Elm Street goes down under the underpass toward the mouth of the underpass?

Mr. BOWERS. Directly in line, towards the mouth of the underpass, there were two men. One man, middle-aged, or slightIy older, fairly heavy-set, in a white shirt, fairly dark trousers. Another younger man, about mid-twenties, in either a plaid shirt or plaid coat or jacket.

Mr. BALL. Were they standing together or standing separately?

Mr. BOWERS. They were standing within 10 or 15 feet of each other, and gave no appearance of being together, as far as I knew.

Mr. BALL. In what direction were they facing?

Mr. BOWERS. They were facing and looking up towards Main and Houston, and following the caravan as it came down.

Mr. BALL. Did you see anyone standing on the triple underpass?

Mr. BOWERS. On the triple underpass, there were two policemen. One facing each direction, both east and west. There was one railroad employee, a signal man there with the Union Terminal Co., and two welders that worked for the Fort Worth Welding firm, and there was also a laborer's assistant furnished by the railroad to these welders.

Mr. BALL. You saw those before the President came by, you saw those people?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes; they were there before and after.

Mr. BALL. And were they standing on the triple underpass?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes; they were standing on top of it facing towards Houston Street, all except, of course, the one policeman on the west side.

Mr. BALL. Did you see any other people up on this high ground?

Mr. BOWERS. There were one or two people in the area. Not in this same vicinity. One of them was a parking lot attendant that operates a parking lot there. One or two. Each had uniforms similar to those custodians at the courthouse. But they were some distance back, just a slight distance back. Mr. BALL. When you heard the sound, which way were you looking?

pp. 287

Mr. BOXERS. At the moment I heard the sound, I war looking directly towards the area-at the moment of the first shot, as close as my recollection serves, the car was out of sight behind this decorative masonry wall in the area.

Mr. BILL. And when you heard the second and third shot, could you see the car?

Mr. BOWERS. No; at the moment of the shots, I could-1 do not think that it was in sight. It came in sight immediately followlng the last shot.

Mr. BALL. Did you see any activity in this high ground above Elm after the shot? Mr. BOWERS. At the time of the shooting there seemed to be some commotion, and immediately following there w!as a motorcycle policeman who shot nearly all of the way to the top of the incline.

Mr. BALL. On his motorcycle?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes.

Mr. BALL. Did he come by way of Elm Street?

Mr. BOXERS. He was part of the motorcade and had left it for some reason, which I did not know.

Mr. BALL. He came ulz + ---

Mr. BOXERS. He came almost to the top and I believe abandoned his motorcycle for a moment and then got on it and proceeded, I don't know.

Mr. BALL. How did he get up?

Mr. BOWERS. He just shot up over the curb and up.

Mr. BALL. He didn't come then by way of Elm, which dead ends there?

Mr. BOWERS. No; he left the motorcade and came up the incline on the motorcycle.

Mr. BALL. Was his motorcycle directed toward any particular people?

Mr. BOWERS. He came up into this area where there are some trees, and where I had described the two men were in the general vicinity of this.

Mr. BALL. Were the two men there at the time? Mr. BOWERS. I-as far as I know, one of them was. The other I could not say.

The darker dressed man was too hard to distinguish from the trees. The one in the white shirt, yes ; I think he was.

Mr. BALL. When you said there was a commotion, what do you mean by that? What did it look like to you when you were looking at the commotiOIl?

Mr. BOWERS. I just am unable to describe rather than it was something out of the ordinary, a sort of milling around, but something occurred in this particular spot which was out of the ordinary, which attracted my eye for some reason, which I could not identify.

Mr. BALL. You couldn't describe it?

Mr. BOXERS. Nothing that I could pinpoint as having happened thatMr. BALL. Afterwards did a good many people come up there on this high ground at the tower?

Mr. BOWERS. A large number of people came, more than one direction. one group converged from the corner of Elm and Houston, and came down the extension of Elm and came into the high ground, and another line-another large group went across the triangular area between Houston and Elm and then across Elm and then up the incline. Some of them all the way up. Many of them did, as well as, of course, between 50 and a hundred policemen within a maximum of 5 minutes.

Mr. BALL. In this area around your tower?

Mr. BOWERS. That's right. Sealed off the area, and I held off the trains until they could be examined, and there was some transients taken on at least one train

Mr. BALL. I believe you have talked this over with me before your deposition was taken, haven't we?

Mr. BOWERS. Yes.

Mr. BALL. Is there anything that you told me that I haven't asked you about that you think of?

Mr. BOWERS. Nothing that I can recall.

Mr. BALL. You have told me all that you know about this, haven't you?

pp. 288

Mr. BOWERB. Yes; I believe that I have related everything which I have told the city police, and also told to the FBI.

Mr. BALL. And everything you told me before we started taking the deposition?

Mr. BOWERS. To my knowledge I can remember nothing else.

Mr. BALL. Now, this will be reduced to writing, and you can sign it, look it over and sign it, or waive your signature if you wish. What do you wish?

Mr. BOWERS. I have no reason to sign it unless you want me to.

Mr. BALL. Would you just as leave waive the signature?

Mr. BOWERS. Fine.

Mr. BALL. Then we thank you very much.

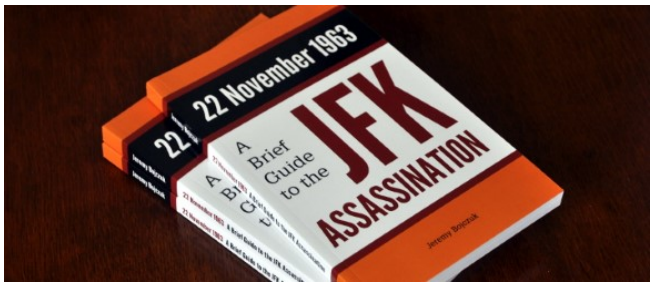
Was Jack Ruby Involved in the JFK Assassination?

Summary

Allegations were made that Jack Ruby had been seen delivering a rifle to the grassy knoll on the morning of the assassination, that he had known Lee Oswald before the assassination, and that he had been a spectator in Dealey Plaza.



22 November 1963 : A Brief Guide to the JFK Assassination

"The single best book on the assassination … by far the clearest and most concise examination of the topic … If you were to read only one book on the assassination, this would have to be the one." — T. Pool on Amazon.com

22 November 1963: A Brief Guide to the JFK Assassination is the essential JFK assassination book.

It is available as a paperback and ebook from Amazon (USA, UK, Canada, Australia, and more) and Google Play.

Two days after the JFK assassination, the official suspect, Lee Harvey Oswald, was shot dead by Jack Ruby, a Dallas strip club owner. Oswald's famous remark that "I'm just a patsy" (Warren Commission Hearings, vol.20, p.366) inevitably led to suspicions that his murder was a convenient execution.

Rumours suggested that Jack Ruby had been involved not only in the cover–up but also in President Kennedy's assassination itself. The Warren Commission attempted to show that these stories were mistaken and that Ruby's murder of Oswald, just like Oswald's murder of Kennedy, was simply the act of a deranged lone gunman (Warren Report, pp.333–373). The House Select Committee on Assassinations was more critical: HSCA Report, appendix vol.9, pp.127–148; see also What Did the Warren Commission Say about Jack Ruby?.

Nevertheless, the rumours and conspiracy theories persisted. Ruby was supposed to have:

- delivered a rifle to the grassy knoll;

- known Lee Harvey Oswald before the assassination;

- been a spectator in Dealey Plaza during the assassination.

Julia Ann Mercer: Jack Ruby and the Rifle

Shortly before 11 o'clock on the morning of the assassination, Julia Ann Mercer was driving through Dealey Plaza. Her car was held up in traffic on Elm Street, close to a parked pick–up truck containing two men. She noticed one of the two men take a package, the size and shape of a rifle case, out of the back of the pick–up. The man carried the package to the top of what would later become famous as the grassy knoll.

Julia Ann Mercer's Official Statements

A few hours later, she gave a statement to the Sheriff's Department in which she mentioned "what appeared to be a gun case", and that she felt able to identify the two men: Warren Commission Hearings, vol.19, p.483.

The next day, Mercer was interviewed by the FBI. The FBI's statement of the interview is essentially a third–person version of her earlier, first–person, account: Warren Commission Document 205, p.313.

After Ruby's public killing of Oswald, Julia Ann Mercer had two further encounters with the FBI, on the 25th (ibid., p.315) and the 27th (ibid., p.316), in which she was shown photographs of two men but was unable to identify either of the men as Jack Ruby or Lee Harvey

Oswald.

Julia Ann Mercer's Later Statements

In January 1968, Mercer came to the attention of Jim Garrison, who had begun to investigate the New Orleans aspects of the assassination. In conversations with Garrison, and later with other researchers, Julia Ann Mercer claimed that the official versions of her statements to the Sheriff's Department and the FBI were false. In particular:

- On Saturday 23 November, she had positively identified a photograph as that of the man in the driver's seat of the pick–up truck. She had turned the photograph over and saw Jack Ruby's name written on the back.
- After seeing Ruby murder Oswald on television, she contacted the FBI and told them that Ruby had been the man sitting in the pick–up.
- Her signature on the statements had been forged.

Mercer was wary of publicity, and did not appear before the House Select Committee on Assassinations, so her claims remain untested.

Rose Cherami: Jack Ruby Knew Oswald

Rose Cherami (sometimes spelt 'Cheramie'), whose real name appears to have been Melba Christine Marcades, came to the attention of a police officer, Francis Frugé, on 20 November 1963. According to Frugé's testimony to the House Select Committee on Assassinations in 1978, Cherami claimed that she had been travelling by car from Florida to Dallas, in order to do a drug deal. She had shared the car with two men, who stated that they were planning to kill President Kennedy during his imminent visit to Dallas. She is supposed to have repeated her claim to a doctor the day before the assassination. Because she was suffering withdrawal symptoms from heroin and alcohol addiction, her warning was not taken seriously.

After the assassination, her story expanded: she had been a stripper in Jack Ruby's Carousel Club, where she had met Lee Oswald. She claimed that Oswald was a good friend of Ruby's, and that the men who had plotted to kill Kennedy were associated with Ruby.

Certain aspects of her account were plausible. Some of the details of her drug deal were confirmed by US Customs investigators. The Dallas police and the FBI, however, ignored her, and her information about a link between Ruby and Oswald was not investigated.

Other aspects of the story turned out to be less plausible:

- The alleged assassins appear to have been remarkably talkative: "Need a ride? By the way, we're off to shoot the president!"

- There is no independent evidence that Rose Cherami, who would have been about 40 years old at the time she is supposed to have met Oswald, had been a stripper at Jack Ruby's club.

- Frugé's earliest statements, made in 1967, do not mention Cherami's prediction of the assassination. Dr Victor Weiss, who was alleged to have heard the prediction on 21 November, claimed that he had not met her until 25 November, and that he had been told about her prediction by a colleague, Dr Donn Bowers. In an interview with a researcher several decades later, Dr Bowers denied this, and claimed that he had not met Cherami until 24 November.

In short, there appears to be no credible evidence that Rose Cherami had known about the assassination before it occurred, or that she had ever met Oswald or Ruby. Rose Cherami died in 1965, apparently having been run over by a car. For more about Cherami's story, see HSCA Report, appendix vol.10, pp.199–204.

Photographs of Jack Ruby in Dealey Plaza

Phil Willis is best known for his slide no.5, a photograph of President Kennedy taken at around the time of the first gunshot, in which Kennedy's posture and the location of his jacket disprove the single–bullet theory.

Another of Willis's photographs, his slide no.14, shows the crowd milling around the front of the Texas School Book Depository a few minutes after the shooting. The photograph includes a middle–aged man with a receding hairline, wearing a dark jacket and dark glasses. Jack Ruby was a middle–aged man with a receding hairline, who was known to wear a dark jacket and dark glasses. The similarity between Ruby and the man in the photograph was spotted by several FBI agents and by Willis himself.

Unfortunately, one of the many images taken by the freelance photographer, Jim Murray, includes a very clear view of the same man in front of the TSBD at about the same time. It is obvious that the man in the photograph is not Jack Ruby.

For an illustrated account, see Richard Trask, Pictures of the Pain: Photography and the Assassination of President John F. Kennedy, Yeoman Press, 1994, pp.177f.

[Upon Holt's return to his normal area of residence California]

Q. What happened next?

A. I called an agent by the name of Whitlock and told him the station wagon was in the Dealey Plaza parking lot and that there was a hide-a-key under the hood. I instructed him to pick up the vehicle, deliver the guns to Masen and call George Reynolds and tell him what happened.

Q. Do you know if he followed your instructions?

A. Yes, on Dec. 12, 1963 1 received a letter from George Reynolds in which he indicated that Michael Whitlock had picked up the vehicle, had delivered the guns to Masen and had driven the station wagon to Morgan City, La., where it was at the time the letter was written. I subsequently sold the vehicle to Leroy Young.

On Dec. 15, 1963, I sent Whitlock a check in the amount of $250.00 for his expenses in delivering the vehicle to Morgan City.

Q. In Dec. 1963, did somebody come looking for you in Beverly Hills?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you suspect that this visit was in connection with your activities in Dallas?

A. Yes, that is the first thing that came to mind.

Q. What did you do as a result of this visit?

A. Since the two men who questioned my father in law knew a great deal about me; the license number of the car I was driving, the registration number of my plane etc., I realized that these items should be disposed of.

I drove my new Cadillac, with Arizona plates, over to Frank Belcher's house and hid it in one of his garages. I then approached George Henzie, Frank's nephew, and made him an offer on the Cadillac he couldn't refuse. At Frank's suggestion, George Henzie, Bud Belcher and I went down to Long Beach to talk to Joe Ball, Frank's def acto law partner. I told Ball's partner Hunt what happened in Dallas but insisted that I had nothing to do with the assassination.

Hunt assured me that there would be no problem. Ball had been appointed to a blue ribbon commission formed to "prove Oswald was the lone gunman."

Q. What happened next?

A. We went back to Frank Belcher's offce and I told him what happened. I then gave him my power of attorney and told him to sell my airplane for me. Belcher was always a hard negotiator and later, he sold the plane at a profit.

Q. Did you then go some place to hide out for awhile until things cooled down?

A. Yes, Bud Belcher and Adrian Cole, another contract agent, and I flew to Acapulco where Belcher, Ball, John Wayne and Fred MacMurray owned a palatial house that was used as a "safe house" by contract agents, card carrying agents and high level mobsters such as Licavoli, Lansky, Roselli, Stacher and Giancana.

John Wayne and Frank Belcher

. In Dec. of 1963 did President Johnson form the Warren Commission to investigate the assassination?

A. Yes. At least their avowed purpose was to investigate the assassination. In reality, they did very little investigation and relied entirely on the FBI.

Q. Was your legal advisor, Joe Ball, appointed to serve as a senior legal counsel to the Warren Commission?

A. Yes.

What was the Mutual Security Treaty of 1951? Signed in 1951 alongside the Treaty of San Francisco that formally ended World War II, the U.S.-Japan Mutual Security Treaty was a ten-year, renewable agreement that outlined how Japan, in light of its pacifist constitution, would allow U.S. forces to remain on its soil after Japan regained sovereignty.

The meeting is tentatively scheduled for Dec. 14th at Bermuda Dunes. JR, SG and Mr. H. are arriving today and will be staying in Ray's bungalow. Ray is driving down from LV tonight. Why do't you and Pete fly in from Tucson Grace Ranch so Ernie can start work on the Aero Commander. You can use Frank's Baron to fly back to Tucson or LA. The 100 hour check has been completed and the DME equipment installed.

P. S. Happy Pearl Harbor Day. Seems impossible that it has been twenty years.

Letter dated 1961 from Frank Hayden, Ray Ryan's manager, to Chauncey Holt (aka Jack Moon) regarding the meeting at Bermuda Dunes to discuss Operation Mongoose (the CIA plans to kill Fidel Castro). Note SG (Sam Giancana), JR (Johnny Roselli) and Mr. H. (William Harvey).

Operation Greenhouse was the fifth American nuclear test series, the second conducted in 1951 and the first to test principles that would lead to developing thermonuclear weapons (hydrogen bombs). Conducted at the new Pacific Proving Ground, on islands of the Enewetak Atoll, it mounted the devices on large steel towers to simulate air bursts. This series of nuclear weapons tests was preceded by Operation Ranger and succeeded by Operation Buster-Jangle.

A thermonuclear weapon, fusion weapon or hydrogen bomb (H bomb) is a second-generation nuclear weapon design. Its greater sophistication affords it vastly greater destructive power than first-generation nuclear bombs, a more compact size, a lower mass, or a combination of these benefits.

Supersonic flight was being achieved by some plane designs while the P-51 and its records speeds could not pass .85 mach as a matter of design type.

Ray Ryan's El Mirador managed by Frank Hayeden

In 1951 El Mirador and Grace Ranch are obtained by the CIA for covert operations.

The US Army Air Corp had operated it during WWII and through 1949.

It appears as Princess Elizabeth was about to become QEII they began plans from within the USA to overthrow Gautama in 1954. These plans were led by James Jesus Angleton and assusted by Howard Hughes and Richard Maheu.

On December 14, 1961, I attended a meeting at Bermuda Dunes Airport, a proprietary interest of the CIA, operated by Ray Ryan (his El Mirador in effect officers quarters for the CIA) and an old time pilot by the name of Ernie Dunlevie. This was the only meeting I attended where most of the principals involved in the plot to assassinate Fidel Castro were present. Those present included William King Harvey, Peter Licavoli, Sam Giancana, Johnny Roselli, Ray Ryan and Frank Hayden. Ernie Dunlevie was not present. I acted as the secretary and I still have the handwritten notes of that meeting.

It was decided that the ZR/RIFLE program would be applied to Cuba. There would be maximum security and non-attributability in regard to this project. The term "Kubark" and "Kutube/D Search" were assigned to the plan. We were advised not to us "AM" but rather "Mongoose" when referring to this project. Operations would be implemented through word of mouth, person to person, singleton ops and nothing on paper. We were assured that phony 201 files would be inserted in the central registry and backdated. I was assigned QJ/lose and was instructed to prepare the necessary forged documents. All this would be implemented through Special Group (augmented), coded Task 3 3.

We could call on JM/ Wave, Zenith Technical Enterprises and Paragon Air Service for assistance. We were instructed to develop genuine documents when possible. We were informed further that California DMV would accept letter from CIA as basis for issuing a genuine California driver's license. James Angleton and Desmond Fitzgerald were to be notified and separate forged identifications would be developed for silencer equipped and other similar weapons that would be produced by JMD Machine Shop (the weapons plant at Goleta Airport). I was instructed to locate a suitable single-multiengine land with instrument rating license to be used for this project.

The Cubans were dead serious, and so were the contract agents, despite the likelihood of success but the gangsters were never serious; they merely wanted a little edge with law enforcement.

Roselli tried it, when the INS were trying to deport him back to Italy to join Lucky Luciano. Giancana tried it, but was forced to skip to Mexico, only to be kidnapped and brought back to the U.S. to testify before the Church Committee.

The list of people in California, who were "assets" or "agents of influence," was impressive. Equally impressive was the number of proprietary interests that the CIA was funding in California and in Arizona.

Ray Ryan's El Mirador Frank Hayden

Raymond John Ryan (January 9, 1904 in Watertown, Wisconsin – October 18, 1977) was an American professional gambler, oilman, promoter, and developer. Described as having a larger-than-life personality, he mingled with prominent businesspeople and movie stars, as well as with cardsharps and mobsters on his path to fame and fortune. His sensational murder case was never solved.

In 1949, Ryan gave an inscribed gold key chain to Las Vegas mobster Davie Berman that read, "DB from Ray Ryan, 1949."[2] Yet in the 1960s Ryan was reported to have testified against the mob in an FBI case, a factor that could have been linked to his eventual murder in 1977. Another theory is that he was alleged to have cheated mob-connected gambler Nick the Greek in poker for over $500,000 in 1949, and old resentments over this had flared up.[3]

El Mirador Hotel plaque. In the 1950s and '60s, Ryan was a land developer in Palm Springs, California. Real estate development in Palm Springs did not generate much interest until actor Clark Gable built a home there. Ryan joined with 24 other investors to purchase the run-down El Mirador Hotel in Palm Springs. After restoring it to its former elegance, he bought out his partners in 1960. The list of regular guests included William Holden, Dean Martin, Gregory Peck, Paulette Goddard, Ginger Rogers, Louella Parsons, and Freeman Gosden, among others. Howard Hughes secured a separate cottage to ensure privacy.[4]

In 1962 Ryan, with partner Ernie Dunlevie, opened the Bermuda Dunes Country Club which later became a host club for the Bob Hope Classic golf tournament and where Clark Gable built a home on the sixth fairway.[5]

Ryan was the target of a public IRS audit in the 1970s over some disallowed deductions stemming from his involvement in and development of the Mount Kenya Safari Club, in Nanyuki, Kenya, with actor William Holden.[6]

Murder in Evansville, Indiana In 1964, Marshall Caifano was convicted of extorting $60,000 from Ryan, who testified against him.[7] The conviction was upheld in 1966, and Caifano was sentenced to 10 years in prison.[8] When Caifano was released from prison in the 1970s, Ryan reportedly offered him $1 million in restitution; however, on October 18, 1977, Ryan was killed.[8] Ryan went to a health club, as he often did. When he finished his workout, he walked outside to his new Lincoln Mark V coupe. However, someone had connected a bomb to the ignition of the car. As soon as Ryan turned the key, Ryan's car exploded violently. The impact of explosion killed Ryan almost instantly. It took investigators two days to locate and collect all of the pieces of the car – one piece of metal was located 377 feet from the scene of the explosion.[9] The murder is unsolved.

RUSH TO JUDGMENT - 4K RESTORATION NOVEMBER 22, 2023 BY FILMSWELIKE

In 1966, the documentary "Rush to Judgment" presented for the first time a simple, concise legal argument that the Warren Commission was hiding something, suggesting a broader conspiracy. Lee Harvey Oswald could not have single-handedly killed President John F. Kennedy.

Director Emile de Antonio and lawyer Mark Lane recorded unpolished, first-hand interviews from witnesses with direct proximity to the murders–but who were not given a platform in the official inquiry. For a subject that has been rehashed and sensationalized so many times in the intervening 60 years, this documentary brings fresh clarity and presents a cool-headed argument that is untouched by time.

SURVIVOR'S GUILT: THE SECRET SERVICE AND THE FAILURE TO PROTECT PRESIDENT KENNEDY

Painstakingly researched by an authority on the history of the Secret Service and based on primary, firsthand accounts from more than 80 former agents, White House aides, and family members, this is the definitive account of what went wrong with John F. Kennedy's security detail on the day he was assassinated.

The work provides a detailed look at how JFK could and should have been protected and debunks numerous fraudulent notions that persist about the day in question, including that JFK ordered agents off the rear of his limousine; demanded the removal of the bubble top that covered the vehicle; and was difficult to protect and somehow, directly or indirectly, made his own tragic death easier for an assassin or assassins.

This book also thoroughly investigates the threats on the president's life before traveling to Texas; the presence of unauthorized Secret Service agents in Dealey Plaza, the site of the assassination; the failure of the Secret Service in monitoring and securing the surrounding buildings, overhangs, and rooftops; and the surprising conspiratorial beliefs of several former agents. An important addition to the canon of works on JFK and his assassination, this study sheds light on the gross negligence and, in some cases, seeming culpability, of those sworn to protect the president.

THE NOT-SO-SECRET SERVICE

While there haven't been many Secret Service related books about U.S. presidents, the ones still in print (and even those long out of print) are often sanitized memoirs of a politically correct nature or "tell-all" tabloid historical junk meant merely for entertainment purposes. The Not-So-Secret Service provides the facts with the bark off, so to speak, and reveals politically incorrect information of a decidedly unsafe nature. It may be controversial and against the grain, but this book is heavily documented and timely, as the Secret Service guards our political candidates, foreign dignitaries, and, of course, the President, the first family and the ex-presidents and their families. WHO'S WHO IN THE SECRET SERVICE

America's oldest law enforcement agency, the United States Secret Service, has never been exposed like this before. The Secret Service has made many headlines through the decades, especially in the last five years. This book presents a thorough look at more than 100 of the most famous, infamous, and interesting agents who have protected presidents from William McKinley to John F. Kennedy to President Trump and everyone in between. Students of history will find much to contemplate in this revealing, entertaining, and sometimes disturbing book. Readers will never look at the men who guard the president the same way ever again.

HONEST ANSWERS ABOUT THE MURDER OF PRESIDENT JOHN F. KENNEDY: A NEW LOOK AT THE JFK ASSASSINATION

This book seeks to separate the wheat from the chaff. It is 55-plus years later: it is time for real, honest answers in an easy-to-read and understand format. Proof of a conspiracy; no theories; to-the-point; a perspective on the assassination for the millennial age and beyond.

ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT
JOHN F. KENNEDY
November 22, 1963, Dallas, Texas
MISCELLANEOUS - INFORMATION CONCERNING

On the night of March 28, 1966, Mrs. Jean Lollis Hill, 9402 Bluff Creek, Dallas, Texas, telephone number EV 1-2271, telephonically contacted the Dallas Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) and requested that she be contacted by a Special Agent familiar with the assassination investigation.

On the morning of March 29, 1966, Mrs. Hill advised that during the past week she has been telephonically contacted on several occasions by an individual identifying himself as De Antonio who indicated he and a Mr. Black were preparing an educational television documentary concerning the assassination of President Kennedy and desired to interview her in detail. She stated that she had not consented to such an interview but on the evening of March 28, 1966, two individuals identifying themselves as De Antonio and Black, appeared at her residence for the purpose of interviewing her. She stated that she questioned them as to the exact nature of their visit and being a school teacher, herself, doubted that they were endeavoring to compile data for any educational television documentary relating to the assassination.

Mrs. Hill stated that she had previously talked to an individual named Jones Harris, who was also desiring to interview her for purposes of a book he was writing and that Jones Harris had indicated to her that De Antonio was one of "Mark Lane's men."

Mrs. Hill advised that she specifically asked De Antonio and Black if they were connected with Mark Lane and De Antonio admitted that Mark Lane was "one of their backers." She stated De Antonio mentioned that some of the backing was coming from England for his project.

One might read this memo internal to the FBI and likely with J. Edgar Hoover direclty in the chain of communications by phone or chain of command as well as paper trail.

What the FBI does know per its own paper trail is the Jean Hill contacted the FBI as if to warn the FBI some suspicious characters were at work. Mark Lane, Emile de Anonio, and a Mr. Black all of whom were assocaited with Mark Lane wished to interview Jean Hill as they had or were going to interview Lee Bowers and others as Penn Jones Jr. and others were doing in their film making in books.

Per the FBI memo Jean Hill herself an educator could immediately see the fraud posed by these journalists and wished to alert the FBI of the matter.

One of the interesting facets to all this is the 1960's and how little even the phone seems to get used with much information by snail mail, often most likely so a record exists of contacts to others, etc.,

Now during the setup of these interviews what might be called the producer job is in the works. The producer, perhaps the journalist wearing two hats is trying to find content, who has it as a witness etc., what they might be able to contribute as information in an on camera interview, what the backstory is, etc.,

The FBI, J. Edgar Hoover in particular knows there is a media investigation underway and that is the same time the CIA sets up Temple of Set that Ted Gunderson and I consider a front for secretive witness assassinations.

The FBI knows Lee Bower's Jr is on the record with the best he knows, but the FBI knows even more than Bowers did or Bowers was able to report, and the FBI is concerned (I would imagine) at what might come up during all the backgrounders and off camera activity or what come up on camera if the interviews continue such as other witnesses coming forward and saying they say heard similar things themselves.

This is a suspicious take on the FBI memo but after reviewing much of the data such a take is hard to avoid as first instinct.

Some of the People

Mark Lane (author)

Mark Lane (February 24, 1927 – May 10, 2016) was an American attorney, New York state legislator, civil rights activist, and Vietnam war-crimes investigator. Sometimes referred to as a gadfly, Lane is best known as a leading researcher, author, and conspiracy theorist[5] on the assassination of United States President John F. Kennedy. From his 1966 number-one bestselling critique of the Warren Commission, Rush to Judgment, to Last Word: My Indictment of the CIA in the Murder of JFK, published in 2011, Lane wrote at least four major works on the JFK assassination and no fewer than ten books overall. - Wikipedia

Emile Francisco de Antonio (Film Maker)

Emile Francisco de Antonio was an American director and producer of documentary films, usually detailing political, social, and counterculture events circa 1960s–1980s. He has been referred to by Randolph Lewis as, "…the most important political filmmaker in the United States during the Cold War."

His films are critiques of various aspects of American culture or politics, on the whole reflecting a certain degree of political dissension. Over the course of his professional life, de Antonio was under surveillance by J. Edgar Hoover and the FBI. This surveillance resulted in a 10,000-page dossier on de Antonio, and is the subject of his "autobiographical swansong," Mr. Hoover and I.

Jean Hill

Now deceased, Jean Hill was a Dallas schoolteacher. One of the closest witnesses to the assassination of President Kennedy, she was only feet away from the presidential limousine and she later gave her highly controversial testimony before the Warren Commission.

Jean Hill, the "lady in red" in Zapruder's Kennedy assassination film, saw a gunman on the famous grassy knoll on November 22, 1963. That gunman was NOT Lee Harvey Oswald. In this highly personal narrative, Hill discloses the trauma and intimidation she experienced as well as her struggle to keep her career and her sanity after she, a single mother of two, became embroiled in the greatest murder mystery of the century. Jen Moore Dies August 21 2018

The content here in Written By The Right Hand is drawn from a Jen Moore related chapter in my book on Ted Gunderson. Jen Mooore and Ted Gunderson assert the British Intelligence and later US Intelligence used Alister Crowley and Temple of Set Satanims as front groups the CIA could operate through including sexual abuse and homicide of CIA targeted children, children I and Jen Moore assert had been CIA experiment subjects, some become sleepers others die in mysterious accidents.

The use of front groups that deny being State affiliated are from what I understand "NON OFFICIAL COVERS non official cover-stories the CIA operates under rather than alternatives like CIA placed as diplomat or CIA placed as FBI or PD.

Jen Moore and I assert homeless people and others operate illegal in monedy laundering and other schemes. Pizzagate asserts normal acts are some other activity, something illicit (teen girls) that opens the door for surveillance and asset seizures, etc., all based on false allegations.

Jen Moore asserts opportunistic abusive treatment of me is because I must be discredited as she herself had to be discredited and later silenced else our Truth telling would come out.

Jen Moore alleges the Donegan story contains information the CIA and elites would like to keep hidden, and thus GangStalk creating fabrications of events using street theater actors.,

I include the same list others do about "silenced" people. In the upcoming chapters one will draw on YouTube suggested interviews of witnesses to JFK hit and the next one the speculative history of James Donegan I need some more research on but will be done soon.

Jen Moore and I have been documenting long term stalking of me and her, and collecting evidence on the saboteur stalkers who are fixers for high power D.C. elites tied to the Kennedy assassination, Dulles, and others of CIA background generation to generation.

"Turning the Tables: Watchers & stalkers become the Watched!" was among her videos as she and I collected evidence she was following me and my activities and had it all from all sides then.

"Video 3.2 Conspiracy Theorist = Truth Teller" was another of her videos, that Rockefeller Psychiatry and others have a long history of abusing the public and those who were or have been parts or subjects of behavioral research and doing so illegally and abusively re-victimizing the Stalked person.

"The Better Connected The Better Protected" she said of the conspirators running the GangStalks and their connections versus the helpless victims who reports of being stalked are ignored over decades.

Jen Moore and I have the forensic capture of the racketeering, arson, poisonings, and other activities against her, Ted Gunderson, Sosbee, and numerous others including JFK and RFK and Sonny Bono.

Officer down. The files she had are real. Her death was too. Part of her work, part of Gunderson's work.

All die. Some die well. These heroes did fighting for what they and I believe in and what is truthful.

Overview

According to author Marrs, these groups run the major corporations, which, in turn, control most of the necessities of our world, such as transportation, energy, agriculture, communications, entertainment, and healthcare.

If policies are set at the top by the controlling elite, then it's understandable how destructive ones which appear to be positive can be filtered down to local and state governments.

Mars explained: "If the top leadership of government and business is controlled then the activities of subservient agencies and divisions must be of little consequence. Government bureaucrats—honest and well-intentioned workers for the most part—simply follow orders and policies set by superiors."

Former FBI Agent Dan Smoot acknowledged this covert power structure in his 1962 book, The Invisible Government, when he wrote: "Somewhere at the top of the pyramid in the Invisible Government are a few sinister people." The Invisible Government that Smoot refers to uses the groups previously mentioned to carry out its policies.

According to authors Marrs and Ross, these organizations directly or indirectly control local, state, and federal law enforcement, as well as the courts, federal agencies, the UN, and NATO.

"The Rockefellers, Rothschilds, and a few others—numbering less than a dozen leaders of international finance are the real power behind the visible thrones of world government," added Professor Marrs. "No major policy is formulated without their input; no major plan of action is implemented without their specific 'go' signal." Now we'll have a look at these elite groups in more detail. Let's meet your unelected rulers.

Tactics Part I

Introduction

It has been said that when you're first targeted, they hit you hard in multiple directions. Presumably, this is done so you'll collapse after experiencing recurrent emotional violence, which is compounded after realizing that all normal support structures have been removed.

The intensity of attacks that people receive appears to vary. The two main parts of the program are group stalking and non- lethal weapons (NLW). Some are apparently hit hard with both. People tend to associate the word harassment with acts of temporary aggravation. Therefore, it may not be the proper word to describe the never-ending acts of covert violence inflicted upon targeted people, which amounts to torture and murder.

Some of the tactics used are borderline-subliminal, which is why they are so difficult to detect, explain, and defend against. It is my goal to make the unconscious, conscious. Many of these tactics are a type of mind-control.

Most of these methods have been used in former Cointeipro operations by governments in the United States, Russia, and Germany against their civilian population. The Hidden Evil's genesis is obviously derived from known tactics such as: perpetual bogus investigations, surveillance, rumor campaigns, noise, thefts, break-ins, staged accidents, framings, sabotage and vandalism, communications interference, blacklisting, citizen informants for gang stalking, poisoning, drugging, incarceration, and directed- energy weapons.

It is a historical fact that the US Government has offcially targeted its civilian population on multiple occasions. Programs such as MKULTRA and Cointelpro can't be denied. "The methods reportedly employed in these harassment campaigns," explained McKinney, "bear a striking resemblance to those attributed to THE HIDDEN EVIL: THE FINANCIAL ELITE'S COVERT WAR AGAINST THE CIVILIAN POPULATION the CIA and FBI during Operations MKULTRA, MHCHAOS, and COINTELPRO."

In Germany these methods were contained in two programs, Zersetzung and Directive Perceptions. They were basically German versions of Cointelpro. Zersetzung was developed to psychologically destroy a targeted person. Dr. Munzert drew a parallel between the current program, and what occurred in East Germany. He explained: "In Germany this is called Zersetzung and this means the dissolution or disintegration of the targeted person."

In her 2004 book, Stasiland, author Anna Funder described Zersetzung as a concept that involved the annihilation of a targeted person's inner-self, by engineering recurrent problems in their personal and professional lives, in order to induce hysteria and depression.

Directive Perceptions was a similar program intended to destroy an individual's life by creating perpetual crises in their career, social life, and health. It was intended to prevent the individual from using their talents while instilling feelings of hopelessness and fear. These directives were used by the Ministry for State Security (MfS) against domestic threats to state security. What the Hidden Evil appears to be, is a combination of various Cointelpro operations used by oppressive regimes against their civilian populations. It has been refined and deployed globally. As I'll demonstrate, it is likely an indication of an impending worldwide dictatorship.

Hidden in Plain View

Many of us have experience with books that contain hidden pictures in the landscape. Or, artwork with a three-dimensional picture superimposed on a flat background. At first, we have some trouble detecting these hidden pictures, but with practice we usually see them. Once the detection mechanism is developed, these objects become clearly visible with little effort.

So too with the Hidden Evil. Once you know what to look for, these attacks are quite detectable.l Rather than using a blunt overt attack against a fully functional person, they usually attack covertly, and conceal their harassment by using existing events that occur naturally.

They conceal their attacks using what appears to be a simple formula. From what I've learned, it includes the following:

• Frequency: Describes how Often an event occurs. It also pertains to the number Of acts within a single event.

• Duration: Pertains to the length of a single event as well as the non-stop nature of the harassment in general.

• Intensity: The amplification of acts such as sound, sight, crowding, etc. within an event.

A hypothetical example of a car door-slamming event would include this: One neighbor arrives and two others leave. As they're tending to their vehicles there is the repeated opening and shutting of doors and trunks, alarms going off, and beeping from alarms being turned on. These disturbances emanate from areas surrounding your house. This may happen simultaneously, or they may be strung together, one right after the other.

Synopsis

The event lasted for 5 minutes; longer than normal (duration). In addition to the event's length being extended, the number of times each act occurred within the event was increased (frequency). This includes multiple, repeated door/trunk slamming. It also happens many times throughout the day (frequency). Each individual act of door/trunk shutting is amplified by deliberate slamming to produce a louder than normal noise (intensity).

The event was louder, contained more activity (acts), and lasted longer than normal to produce a covert attack. Even if a single individual is arriving/leaving, standard practice seems to be multiple loud slams. This may be synchronized with your activity, such as your arrival Or departure.

Tactics Part Il

Sabotage, Vandalism, & Staged Events

Targets may regularly experience acts of vandalism. Electronic equipment may fail or act strangely. People have reported this happening with electrical systems in their cars, brand new appliances, TVs, radios, PCs, and other electronic devices. Ongoing computer problems which do not follow any logical pattern may also occur. They include hardware and software issues that span from the file to the internet level.

Many times this vandalism is just below what you'd report to the police. For instance, a small but noticeable portion of your wall has been chipped off, and a crack has appeared in one of your windows. This may be restricted to minor vandalism, just to let you know that you're under surveillance.

However large-scale property darnage is also done to homes and vehicles. Some people have reported that their pets die suddenly of a mysterious illness. Vandalism and pets being tortured may also be in retaliation for you taking action to expose them. "Automobiles are one of the biggest targets," said Moret.

People have reported that tires are slashed, oil is drained, windows are smashed, electronic components are tampered with, and breaks and clutches are sabotaged.

McKinney wrote: "Vehicles invite peculiarly ferocious attacks in these harassment campaigns—slashed tires, smashed windows, oil drainage, oil contamination, destruction of electronic components and batteries grounded fuel gages" and "suddenly failed brakes and clutches," are common, as are recurrent auto thefts.

According to Moret and McKinney citizens are being used to conduct staged vehicular accidents. They are deliberately colliding with the vehicles of targeted individuals.

Traveling

When TIS drive, they may be surrounded by vehicles that frequently cut them off and tailgate them. They will experience more tailgating and cut-offs than average. Vehicles will frequently pull out past stops signs as the TI approaches an intersection. This is apparently done to startle them.

There will be a rotation of vehicles tailgating TIS which may cut them off after tailing them for a while. These vehicles may be marked with an identifying feature, or a color that the TI has been sensitized to. This seems to function as both an NLP tactic to trigger negative emotions, and a method to unite the group and promote group cohesiveness.

City and state vehicles which may stalk people in public, include: metro and school buses, local restaurant delivery vehicles, city and construction vehicles, fire trucks and ambulances, police cars, postal vehicles, taxis, and 18 wheelers.

Helicopters and small planes have also reportedly been used. As will be revealed in the Citizens Enforce Their Rule section, many of these vehicles belong to organizations which have been selected for recruitment into homeland security programs.

Convoys of vehicles which are all spaced the same distance and traveling at the same speed may be seen. Within this convoy, there may be several vehicles exhibiting features that a target has been sensitized to.

These traits are symbolic of a uniform. For instance, most or all of them will be a shade of red. Or most of them will have their lights on, even during the day. Or they may have the same bumper stickers. During the evening targets may experience frequent brighting while driving or walking.

Brighting

Vehicular brighting is an attack that is strategically used with corners. For instance, if you're walking down a quiet street late at night, you'll see vehicles repeatedly turn onto or off of connecting streets. Their timing is such that they continually turn the corners while you approach. This effectively blinds you.

Or, as you walk down a side street, there is one or more cars parked on the side, facing your direction with the lights on. They will also wait for you to approach them and then pull out into the street, thereby brighting you as you walk by.

Like other tactics, frequency and duration play an important role here. Lights being shined into a Tl's window have also been reported. "Among the most common non-lethal weapons are bright lights," wrote Dr. Alexander, in his book, Winning the War, which are a way of "temporarily hindering the eyesight of the targeted personnel."

Blacklisting

Job opportunities will be trashed. Most TIS are unemployed. Many would be in the street if it weren't for parents, siblings, or friends. Those who are employed are usually mobbed.

"Progressive financial impoverishment, [isl brought on by termination of the individual's employment, and compounded by expenses associated with the harassment," wrote McKinney. Most of the targeted individuals she was able to observe during her early investigations were mobbed out of employment by their coworkers.

There are blacklists and software packages used to check these lists for suspected terrorists and threats to national security. Apparently this is a flourishing business, according to the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

Blacklisting has also been used on Russian dissidents. In his book, The Persecutor, Sergei Kourdakov, a member of the plain- clothed PeopWs Brigade, declared that once a person was targeted they could only get the worst jobs, if they were employed at all.1 To accomplish this, the government of the USSR used something called a workbook, which could advance or destroy careers. If you were cooperative with the state, your career could be very successful. If not, you would live in poverty.

In East Germany dissidents were blacklisted as well, and their careers were destroyed. After the wall came down they were allowed to inspect their files, and learned why they were unable to get jobs or enter into universities.

Dr. Munzert speaks of the similarity between what is now happening and what the occurred in Germany. One goal, he says, is to destroy the targeted individual financially.

If you've previously been mobbed out of employment and are blacklisted, the attacks may continue during interviews. Presumably, this is used to further traumatize you. For instance, they may ask you a series of questions for which you have to answer "no" to, such as asking you for credentials that you did not list on your resume.

They may ask you if you possess skill-sets which were not listed in the AD they had placed. Interview questions may be asked with accusing, or mocking tones. Questions may also be asked using certain words linked to the negative work environment you just left. The harassment is concealed in layers of accommodation to help strengthen the illusion that you're not working because you don't choose to. For instance, you may have recruiters who have harassed you in the past leave messages on your answering machine or with relatives/ friends, indicating that there are opportunities available to you. It will be made to look as if you're unemployed due to your choice.

Communications Interference

Communications interference also happened during Cointelpro. The Stasi too, would intercept the mail and phone calls of its targets. Targeted individuals may also receive lots of harassing telephone calls and pranks.

Online

TIS are also attacked online. Search engine results may be filtered and replaced with information pertaining to the Tl's personal life. Websites that they visit may be spoofed and contain information which is apparently intended to let them know they're being watched.

If you have a website devoted to exposing this program you may receive flaming email messages. Messages sent from some victims will contain information pertaining to your personal life. This tactic may be used to foster a sense of hopelessness and isolation.

You may receive unsolicited messages which convey subtle insults and threats. If you join a support group you may also receive harassment via threads posted on message boards. Like other mediurns of harassment, the topics of these threads pertain to events in your personal life, as well as threats or insults covertly directed at you.

If you try to sell things online, participate in online discussions groups, or respond to employment ADS, you will probably be attacked.

Some people have reported that their inbox is clogged with junk messages even if they have filters on. These unsolicited emails may contain cryptic borderline-subliminal threats and insults. The words will be garbled but contain letters that convey a message when arranged in the correct order. Or they may contain a sounds- like message. Your mind will automatically piece these letters together so they make sense.

6,239,606 views Dec 21, 2015 Just hours before his death, Lee Harvey Oswald tried to call Raleigh, North Carolina from the Dallas jail on the evening of Nov. 23, 1963. For years, this significant information was ignored by assassination investigators and concealed from the public. Surprise guest speaker and JFK Assassination expert the late Jim Marrs joins Dr. Proctor on stage at 58:00.

In the early 1980s, independent researcher Dr. Grover Proctor broke new ground on Oswald's attempted call. Because of Dr. Proctor's work, Oswald's attempt to reach former U.S. Intelligence officer John Hurt has become known as "The Raleigh Call."

Jim Marrs' List

Really So Mysterious? "Strange" and "Convenient" Deaths Surrounding the Assassination *

Penn Jones, Jr., publisher of the Midlothian Mirror, a small-town Texas paper. The most widely cited current list of "mystery deaths" was published by author Jim Marrs (who also released the book Alien Agenda about UFOs). His book Crossfire contains a list of 103 people who have supposedly died "strange" or "convenient" or "mysterious" deaths. As Marrs puts it:

This section has been entitled "Convenient Deaths" because these deaths certainly would have been convenient for anyone not wishing the truth of the JFK assassination to become public.

Convenient Deaths

1963 - 1976

Many witnesses died in the thirteen year period following the assassination - mostly of unnatural causes. Many rumours crawl around about the high death rate during these years. They are supported by the mostly suspicious circumstances the victims died under. For a unknown shooter or even shooters, all these deaths have one thing in common: they are very convenient to those assassins since these witnesses took their knowledge with them into the grave. But see yourself and decide whether these deaths are purely coincidently:

Asterisks mark death that seemed to happen under suspicious circumstances.

11/(	Kary Kupicinet	Tv host's daughter who was overheard telling of JFK's death prior to 11/22/63	Murdered

Kupcinet's death was first mentioned in connection with the John F. Kennedy assassination in 1967 by researcher Penn Jones Jr. in the self-published book Forgive My Grief II.[17] Jones cited an Associated Press wire service story about an unidentified woman who placed a phone call from the vicinity of Oxnard, California, about fifty miles northwest of Los Angeles, twenty minutes before the assassination occurred in Dallas, Texas, claiming this woman was Kupcinet.

Jones alleged that "Karyn Kupcinet" had attempted to warn someone of the impending assassination after being given this information by her father Irv, who himself had allegedly been given advance notice by Jack Ruby, the Dallas nightclub owner who fatally shot Kennedy's accused assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald. Jones speculated that Irv may have met Ruby in Chicago in the 1940s.[12] Jones speculated Karyn had been murdered by representatives of the Italian-American Mafia as a message to her father to remain silent about why Kennedy and Oswald had been shot.

Irv Kupcinet denied that he or his daughter had prior knowledge of the assassination or of Oswald's death. This was supported by Kupcinet's friends, including Prine, actor Earl Holliman, and Holliman's then-girlfriend, all of whom traveled to Palm Springs with Karyn on November 22. Kupcinet reportedly seemed upset about media coverage of the shootings while in Palm Springs.[12] She did not reveal any foreknowledge of the events. -Wikipeida Interesting that she was in Palm Springs perhaps at Jack Ryan's El Mirador with Conspirators?

Zangretti	foreknowledge of Ruby shooting Oswald	Victim

Stanley “Jack” Zangretti BIRTH 16 May 1928 DEATH 7 Dec 1963 (aged 35) USA BURIAL Burial Details Unknown. Specifically: Currently Researching (shoes:cement) MEMORIAL ID 175311955 · View Source

Zangretti was a mob figure and the manager of “The Red Lobster” at Lake Lugert Oklahoma. On November 23, 1963, the day after the assassination Zangretti told friends that Jack Ruby would kill Oswald. 2 weeks later Zangretti was found floating in Lake Lugert with bullet holes in his chest.

Cause of death: Murder http://themanfrom2063.com/strange-deaths-witnesses-individuals-connected-jfk-assassination/ http://educationforum.ipbhost.com/index.php?/topic/5423-jack-zangetty/https://educationforum.ipbhost.com/profile/1873-tim-gratz/ Posted November 20, 2005 I found this on the Internet (in an article on "mysterious deaths").

On December 8, 1963 the body of Jack Zangetty was found floating in an Oklahoma lake with bullet holes in his chest, and he had been dead for about two weeks. After the assassination Zangetty, the manager of a modular motel complex near Lake Lugert, Oklahoma, had remarked to some friends that “Three other men, not Oswald, killed the President.” He had also stated that “A man named Ruby will kill Oswald tomorrow and in a few days a member of the Frank Sinatra family will be kidnapped just to take some of the attention away from the assassination.”

Forgive My Grief IV: New Information On Strange Death No. 72 May 31' 1973

In late 1962 a group opened a $300,000 restaurant and night club with all gambling facilities called THE RED LOBSTER, built in a cotton patch near Lake Lugert between Altus and Hobart, Oklahoma.

The facility was equal to many Las Vegas clubs.

A $150,000 modular motel complex was added and almost complete by November 22, 1963. Some of the rooms were occupied on weekends by persons arriving in chauffeured limousines. These people were stylishly dressed, and the men were accompanied by beautiful women. We are told the license plates were from the surrounding states, plus Arizona, Colorado, and Kansas.

FORGIVE MY GRIEF IV p. 109

On Saturday, November 23, 1963, Jack Zangretti, the manager of the complex, remarked to some friends that "Three other men - not Oswald - killed President Keannedy."

He further said: "A man named jack .Ruby will kill Oswald tomorrow, and in a few days, a member of the Frank Sinatra family will be kidnapped just to take some of the attention away from the, assassination."

Two weeks later Jack Zangretti was found floating in Lake Lugert with bullet holes in his chest. It appeared to witnesses he had been in the water between one and two weeks.

Early in 1964 foreclosure procedures began, and. the motel was moved in 1966 to Frederick, Oklahoma. The nightclub and restaurant were tom down. Now only the foundation remains .at the site.

The path from Tuscon Grace Ranch where Holt says they left from likely included the Red Lobster stop.

Does anyone know the original source of this story and whether it is credible?

Self Portrait of a Scoundrel Excerpts

One of the foremost reasons Holt gives for his deathbed expose tell-all is his friend Lee Harvey Oswald was made a patsy, executed mob style and villified in the press. He (Holt) wanted to vindicated Oswald

The Patsy

CH: What bothered me from day one, was the vilification of Lee Harvey Oswald. Because I KNOW that Lee Harvey Oswald was a patsy. I KNOW that he was executed just the same as everyone else.

VO: Chauncey is absolutely convinced that Oswald was framed.

CH: Although my revelations probably won't add too much to what has already been said. But all I wanted to do is set the record straight. I felt that the American people is entitled to know.

There was no proof that the forged credentials in Oswald's name had been produced at LASSCO. I was unaware that photographs had been taken, by news photographers on August 9, 1963, showing Oswald and Belcher distributing the "Fair Play for Cuba" leaflets. Nor did I know I was in the picture.

Of course, I was right in my assessment that "the patsy" was a threat to someone very powerful.

On November 24th Jack Ruby, the "gofer" of the syndicate and a person with Teamster connections, solved the problem for the assassins, and those they answered to, by executing Lee Harvey Oswald, as he was being transferred.

Manuscript Vertical Files Collection Number: MVF 35-08 Accession Number: 1516-70 Item(s): Betty Miller JFK Correspondence, 1963-1990 Donor: Alan Miller Date Received: February 11, 2016

Literary Rights Statement: Permission to publish from the collection must be obtained from the Irving Archives, Irving Public Library.

Description: This file contains correspondence of Betty Miller (MacDonald) related to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Betty MacDonald worked for the Magnolia Oil Company in Dallas, Texas. Some of her co-workers there were acquainted with Lee Harvey Oswald and his wife, Marina. MacDonald also attended a dinner party in 1963 were the Oswalds were present. After the Kennedy assassination, MacDonald and her coworkers were interviewed by investigators. MacDonald later married Dr. Alan Miller and lived with him in Irving, Texas.

The file consists of photocopies of the contents of a file which remains in the possession of the Miller family. The material includes letters between Betty Miller and people in her hometown of Chattanooga, Tennessee, and an assassination conspiracy researcher whom she did not know personally. The researcher mentions that Betty's maiden name matched an alias used by a woman connected to a witness to Lee Harvey Oswald's alleged murder of Dallas Police Officer J. D. Tippit. This Betty MacDonald died in 1964, and Betty Miller assured the researcher that she is not the same person. The file also includes some printed material related to Kennedy assassination conspiracy theories sent by the researcher and a page from an Irving newspaper of unknown significance.

It is too detailed from too long ago to work it all out now for its cost in time but there seems to be an hidden "pattern" of people (think securityu operations pattern detection in frequency analysis, names or places that come up too much, people who seem unusually interconnected in murky ways, etc., This centers around Jack Ruby's strip club and who worked there.

Did Nancy Mooney "Know Something?" Conspiracy theorists claim that Mooney knew "too much" through her alleged previous employment at Jack Ruby's Carousel Club and her connection to Garner and thus Reynolds. If Garner indeed shot Reynolds, did he also tell Nancy Mooney that he did so, and that he did so at the behest of a conspiracy? If he had, would she have believed him?

One can speculate that conspirators threatened or coerced Mooney into providing an alibi for Garner. If so, that would hardly be the way to run a "coverup." To get one person (Garner) off, you give another person (Mooney) knowledge of the conspiracy, creating the need to kill her too.

But what about the Ruby connection?

There is no evidence that Mooney ever worked for Jack Ruby as a stripper. George Senator, Ruby's former roommate, Andrew Armstrong, who hired employees for Jack Ruby at the Carousel Club, and present employees could not identify her as a former employee (CE 2589). This point was reiterated in Armstrong's Warren Commission testimony.

Mr. Hubert. Do you know a Nancy Jo Mooney? Mr. Armstrong. Nancy Jo Mooney; no.

Mr. Hubert. Well, did you know one by the name of Betty MacDonald? Mr. Armstrong. No. (W.C. XIII 351)

Also, after Jack Ruby shot Lee Harvey Oswald, extensive investigation was done on Ruby and his businesses during the course of which Mooney's name never appeared as having been an employee at any time (CE 2589). Thus, she has no connection to the assassination of JFK through previous employment.

Did Conspirators Kill Mooney?

Was Mooney's death "mysterious?" The evidence suggests otherwise. Mooney had suicidal tendencies before her death. On February 13, 1964, William Grady Goode provided an affidavit stating that Mooney had attempted suicide twice during the time he knew her. The first attempt involved her turning on the gas in her apartment, but Goode was able to revive her. The second attempt involved her slitting her wrists. Mooney also had shown Goode the scars on her wrists and stomach from previous attempts and self-

mutilation

3/6	Bill Chesher BIRTH 1 Jan 1900 Bellevue, Clay County Texas, USA DEATH 1 Apr 1964 (aged 64) Dallas, Dallas County, Texas, USA	Tho to have information linking Oswald and Ruby	Heart attack

We know know from Holt the cars used were important

In particular the pickup truck, Oldsmobile wagon, who knows what else.

(Chesher had had lunch with Riggio) Mr. JENNER. What is it that the mechanic is alleged to have said?

mr. RIGGIO. He said that Oswald had been driving Ruby's car for approximately 2 weeks and that he had brought the car into his garage for repairs, but he did not mention the name of the garage or the type of repairs, the type of autornobile or anything else.

Now, we, of course—just as soon as that came through, there were checks made on the repairs on Ruby's automobile. His automobile was parked regu- larly, just a short distance up from the Carousel Club at the old Adolphus Hotel parking garage and also mechanical work had been done at that location, and the only other place we ean find out where it had been to any type of garage at all was from receipts in his ear and they were apparently for gas and oil and such things as that—no mechanical work whatsoever, so we didn't put much stook in the report, since it was third hand to start off with.

Also, we made an error ourselves—Hellinghousen thought when we brought that information back about Chesher that I would write up the report and I thought he was preparing the report, since he was the one who actually contacted the man and no report was made. but I'm sure the report went to the FBI. but there is no name in the original report connecting anybody with it and there was nothing in that that we could check on except the way we thought was through the mechanical repair bills and they would possibly be in the car.

Kilgallen became a crime reporter and covered several important cases for her newspaper. This included the trials of mobsters Anna Antonio (1934), Eva Coo (1935) and Richard Bruno Hauptmann (1935). https://spartacus-educational.com/JFKkilgallen.htm

She was a very close friend of the Kennedy's during the Kennedy administration including Robert Kennedy and JFK. Robert Kennedy and his anti Rackets man at the FBI Headquarters in charge of all 26 field offices to fight organized crime serving under RObert F Kennedy and his quest to do so was Ted Gunderson.

Killgallen was able to interview Jack Ruby in jail and was going to break the story of the Kennedy assasasintion.

The question now was Rat Finks, and Killgallen was going to be one. Mostly Roman Catholics La Cosa Nostra had little taste for taking life. It was not a matter of conscious for the Yids, the Yiddish Mafia aka La Kosher Nostra. Murder Inc. the New York, Detriot, and other gangs performed hits for La Cosa Nostra and let the reputation of La Cosa Nostra stay tough. Jack Rubebstein and his Carrosuel Club, Meyers Lanksy that Chaucney Holt was an a accountant to (among other hats he wore) were all part of the Murder Inc team. Rat finks were shot for free likely the redacted part of the Charles Harrelson tramp hobo business card. JFK was going to be a ratfink and end Executive Action (NSC Counsel subversion and overthrow) and so was Jack Ruby, Lee Harvey Oswald, and Dorothy Kilgallen. All were silenced. I wrote in rat finks because those letters disparaged from the card.

Lee Harvey Oswald was going to call North Carolina and Army Intelligence my mother was tied to as a Von Trapp child, and Kilgallen and her likely killer Ron Pataki were part of the Von Trapp Singers movie Sound of Music publicity tour. Ron Pataki at the time of the killing wrote about rat finks finding the silence of the grave and sketched a drink glass.

Ruby was interviewed by the Warren Commision while held in a Dealy Plaza overlooking detention cell but it was Warren Commision member Allen Dulles who had been fired by JFK and who had run the subversion program that was being protected from leakers.

8/1	Perr Russo	witn who told he had seen Shaw, Oswald and Ferrie talking about the killing of JFK	Heart Attack subtype Shellfish Poison

Perry Raymond Russo (May 14, 1941 – August 16, 1995) was an American insurance salesman who became the key witness for the prosecution in the trial of Clay Shaw in New Orleans in 1969. Russo claimed that in September 1963, he witnessed businessman and civic leader Clay Shaw conspiring with Lee Harvey Oswald and David Ferrie to assassinate U.S. President John F. Kennedy.

Russo came forward after his friend David Ferrie died on February 22, 1967, while being investigated by New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison in regard to Kennedy's death. In four television and newspaper interviews that Russo gave, [4] he talked at length about Ferrie. He said that Ferrie had told him about a month before the assassination: "We will get him, and it won't be long," and on another occasion, "You know we can get Kennedy if we want him."

Russo said nothing in the interviews about Oswald, Shaw, or a conspiracy.[5] When a television reporter asked him on February 24 if Ferrie had ever mentioned Oswald's name, Russo said, "No. I had never heard of Oswald until the television [coverage] of the assassination."[6]

However, when he was interviewed by Garrison's office on February 27, Russo described a roommate of Ferrie's in New Orleans as having "sort of dirty blond hair and a husky beard … a typical beatnik, extremely dirty." When Russo was shown a picture of Oswald, he said that Oswald was the person whom Ferrie had introduced to him as his roommate sometime between May and October 1963.

When shown a picture of Shaw, Russo said he saw him and Ferrie talking in a car at Ferrie's service station. But still Russo said nothing about Shaw or Oswald conspiring with Ferrie to murder Kennedy. [8] Russo added that if he were hypnotized he may have total recall on names and places and dates.

Early testimony have have supported Chesher but he was pressured away from it to support Clay Shaw versions of events.

On July 22, 1964, Willis provided testimony to Wesley J. Liebeler, assistant counsel of the Warren Commission, at the Post Office Building in Dallas.

Twelve of Willis's color slides with descriptions served as "Willis Exhibit 1" for the Warren Commission. Willis testified to the Commission that his fifth photo was inadvertently snapped when, just after he had prepared his 35mm Argus camera to capture a photo, he was suddenly startled by a gunshot related noise (the first of three shots he remembered hearing), and his finger that was already on the camera shutter button reacted to the gunshot related noise, then, he quickly depressed the button and the fifth photo was captured. As documented by the House Select Committee on Assassinations, this fifth photo was captured concurrent with Zapruder film frame 202.

In his fifth photo, some conspiracists allege that the image of a still-unknown person can be seen located up on the grassy knoll, seen near a 3-foot-tall concrete wall and near the 5-foot-tall stockade fence. The angled shape of this still-unknown person's outline has led to that person's image being labeled by authors in books and persons working in the Kennedy assassination research community the "black dog man."

In 1978, when Willis's daughter Rosemary was interviewed by investigators from the House Select Committee on Assassinations, she stated to the HSCA that her father became upset when the Dallas policemen, sheriffs, and detectives—who first quickly ran onto the grassy knoll where Phillip thought the shots came from—then ran away from the grassy knoll. In Willis's Warren Commission testimony he stated that shots came from the Texas School Book Depository.

Willis stated in a 1979 interview: "There's no doubt in our mind the final shot that blew his head off did not come from the depository. His head blew up like a halo. The brains and matter went to the left and the rear.'

On January 27, 1995, Willis died of leukemia at his home in Dallas.[2] The Texas House passed a resolution to honor him.

Phillip Willis was born in Kaufman County, Texas, the son of Alvin Samuel Willis, a school teacher, and Eliza Jane Phillips.[3] He had a brother, Doyle.

On December 7, 1941, Willis was stationed at Bellows Field on Oahu, Hawaii as a second lieutenant assigned to the 86th Observation Squadron of the United States Army Air Forces. He was present at the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and has been credited with leading the patrol that captured the United States' first Japanese prisoner of war in World War II, Kazuo Sakamaki. Willis flew observation and fighter aircraft, as well as combat missions in the B-17 bomber, prior to retiring in 1946 due to a back injury he sustained after being shot down over the Pacific Ocean.

He received various awards and decorations for his military service including two Silver Stars and a Distinguished Flying Cross.

After retiring from military service, Willis earned a bachelor's degree in government at North Texas State Teachers College in 1948.[2] He was elected to the Texas House of Representatives in 1946 and 1948.[2] As of 1995, Phillip Willis and Doyle Willis were the only brothers to have served at the same time in the Texas House.[2]

Afterwards, he worked in real estate, building civil defense shelters, and became an automobile dealer.[2] Willis moved to Dallas in 1960.[1]

Willis was married to Marilyn Willis, and the couple had two daughters, Linda and Rosemary.

11/	Rich Case Nagell	CIA agent who claimed he uncovered a “large operation” aimed at killing JFK	heart disease

Richard Case Nagell (August 5, 1930 – November 1, 1995) was a United States Army veteran and former CIA double agent.[1] Nagell was arrested on September 20, 1963 after he entered the State National Bank in El Paso, Texas and fired two shots into the ceiling of the bank.

Nagel walked out of the bank after firing his weapon and sat down and waited for the police to arrive.

Dick Russell's biography of Nagell claims that Nagell had foreknowledge of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. According to Russell, Nagell also claimed to have gotten himself arrested in the El Paso bank shooting in late September 1963 to avoid becoming a patsy. Nagell met with New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison, who at the time was investigating Clay Shaw's possible complicity in the assassination.

Matches Chauncey Holt description of how Lee Harvey Oswald was used by the CIA.

Nagell died from a heart attack on November 1, 1995, in Los Angeles, California, despite no history of heart problems.[citation needed] His death occurred one day after the Assassination Records Review Board had sent him a letter for information.[3][1] He was 65 years old at the time of his death and is buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

28 January 1970

Washington, D.C.

An editor of a trade journal, whom I first met while on an intelligence assignment in Latin America, has urged me for some time to make public the facts dealing with my involvement in a conspiracy to murder the late Chief Executive, John F. Kennedy, in 1963 and the circumstances surrounding my arrest and imprisonment in the United States and East Germany.

For reasons that are more personal than advisable I can think of little else that I would like to do better. But with the copious amount of documentation and background material on hand, that I feel should be adduced to in any valid treatise of the subject, it would require writing no less than a tome, an undertaking for which I am hardly. qualified.

Then, too, there is a growing skepticism on my part concerning the kind of reception that a topic of this fort would elicit from a society long since inured to violence, corruption and injustice.

Still, after over six years of relative silence, I've decided that I must say something shout all this, if only to answer the lies and distortions concocted about me in the press. Thus, I have compiled this small booklet, n throwaway, which may be easily discarded at the whim of the reader. In it I've taken the liberty to set forth a reproduction of one of the least sanitized references to my case that has appeared in the news media, an article printed last summer in the OVERSEAS FAMILY, a weekly tabloid catering to U.S. service- . men in Europe. I have utilized this particular article us a vehicle to tell a bit of my side of the story by writing an addendum to it. R. C. Nugell

He states while working in the Los Angeles area for the CIA he discovred a CIA plot to assasinated JFK and other officials and this plot used Lee Harvey Oswald. This is the area Holt says the CIA was operating out of in the CIA plan to assasinte JKF. http://jfk.hood.edu/Collection/Weisberg%20Subject%20Index%20Files/N%20Disk/Nagel%20Richard%20Case/Item%2009.pdf

or CHAPTER FIFTEEN California Fronts

After I came to California, in addition to the proprietary interests that I operated or oversaw for the Company, I always had a cover job, using various identities, that I had established in 1950. Some of these positions I obtained on my own, but usually I was placed in positions by somebody with Mafia connections.

For the CIA, we operated a documentation mills at LASSCO, which was located in downtown Los Angeles; at Scimitar Studio, located on Melrose Avenue in West Los Angeles and at Dennis Curtin Studio, located on North La Brea Avenue in Hollywood. At these facilities, we turned out complete sets of excellent identification, including FBI, DEA, NSA and even State Bar Cards for our "clients."

We also counterfeited Cuban and Chilean money. We furnished stationery of every sort, ostensibly for many organizations, including White House Stationery. We counterfeited official cables, for disinformation purposes.

We operated a fixed base facility at Van Nuys Airport under the name of Southwest Aircraft Company, which was incorporated in Montana, but authorized to do business in California.

1967 – Michael Aquino began a two-year tour of duty in Vietnam, taking part in the infamous Phoenix Program. The Phoenix Program was an assassination/torture/terror operation that was initiated by the CIA, with the aim of 'neutralizing' the civilian infrastructure that supported the Viet Cong insurgency in South Vietnam. It was a terrifying 'final solution' that blatantly violated the Geneva Conventions. Targets for assassination included VC tax collectors, supply officers, political cadre, local military officials, and suspected sympathizers. However, 'faulty intelligence' more often than not led to the murder of innocent civilians, even young children. Sometimes orders were even given to kill US military personnel who were considered security risks. In 1971, William Colby, head of CIA in Vietnam at the time, later testified that the number killed was 20,857, while South Vietnamese government figures claimed it was 40,994 dead. This murderous psyop program had the effect of creating legions of cold-blooded psychopathic killers who would return home to the USA as completely different people than when they left. Many of them would become involved in satanism during or after their involvement in the Phoenix Program. And Michael Aquino was there to lead them into it. Soon after these killers started coming home, there began a steady rise in horrific serial murders with satanic undertones that centered around the southern California area (where Michael Aquino has always lived).

As a religious institution consecrated by and literally acknowledging the Prince of Darkness, the Church of Satan enjoyed an inspiring, and occasionally either thrilling or terrifying, existence from 1966 to 1975.

The CIA and FBI assassins (when not in view of the public) act through many front groups and Satanism is just one. Mostly it is Confidential Informants carrying out hits (I call them Confidential Assailants) who attack normal people, cooperating dupes or those taking payoffs, etc., drug dealers, gun dealers, publishers, artists, actors, all may do what the FBI or CIA want as either cooperating persons or persons who share a goal, or thinking they are part of a real investigation that is only sham.

Anyone who knows me or watchces me knows better about me that what is being faked about me, or at least should. It is all fake and all opportunisitic defamation.

Honey Fitz lived in the home until his death in 1946, while his wife remained until the mid-60s, according to historic documents. But it was the visits from President Kennedy in 1962 that brought tremendous attention to the property.

I have written elsewhere my father was a close friend of Prouty, likely got help from the Kennedy's when his own family (mother and father) ended up in poverty when an accounting career was last about the time of the Great Depression while my mother was in the Dust-bowl farm of North Carolina a hidden Kutschera child.

At the start of mass enlistment for pilots advertised by Jimmy Stewart at the coming of WWII he (my father) joined up and became a P-51 pilot flying recon likely for the OSS CIA and likely in the targeting of the atomic bomb drops, both operations he was a part of and he also stood in a tower in Nevada or New Mexico exposed to a blast.

After flying over Europe with the bombers and the retaking of Europe as its military industrial complex had been softened up and the Allies kept theirs intact with shipping betweent the US and England, then bombing Japan and the USSR finally bringing the surrender, he remained on active duty and likley was part of the Japan line against Russia and Asia including the Prouty run plan against Indonesia started in the 1950's in part on behalf of Australia.

For subversion and overthrow Japan and Asia allies has a better chance, beign Asians. Running that from Japan with less visible support if any from Australia made sense. There was likely intense Washigton D.C. and Great Britain and perhaps Vatican support for the operation but most of it covert.

I assert that the planning of Barrack Obama JR for Indonesia was part of this and the collection of people in Japan in 1952 and on (including James Donegan) link much of this together especially since my father was exposed to radation and a test subject. Glorian too? Fertility studies? Eggs taken for analysis?

Prouty was commissioned as a reserve 2nd lieutenant in the cavalry on June 9, 1941, and began his military career with the 4th Armored Division in Pine Camp, New York. He was promoted to 1st lieutenant on February 1, 1942. He transferred to the United States Army Air Forces on November 10, 1942, and earned his pilot wings that same month. He arrived in British West Africa (specifically the British Gold Coast colony) in February 1943 as a pilot with Air Transport Command.

In the summer of 1943 he was the personal pilot of General Omar Bradley, General John C. H. Lee and General C. R. Smith (founder and president of American Airlines), among others. He flew the U.S. Geological Survey Team in Saudi Arabia, October

1943, to confirm oil discoveries in preparation for the Cairo Conference. He was assigned to special duties at the Cairo Conference and the Tehran Conference November–December 1943. He flew Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese delegation (T. V. Soong's delegates) to Tehran.[10]

At the Tehran Conference, between November 28 and December 1, 1943, the Soviet Union agreed to invade Japan "after the defeat of Germany", but this would not be finalized until the Yalta Conference between February 4 and February 11, 1945, when the Soviet Union agreed to invade Japan within 2 or 3 months.[1][2] On April 5, 1945, the Soviet Union denounced the Soviet–Japanese Neutrality Pact that had been signed on April 13, 1941, as now the Soviet Union had plans for war with Japan.

World War II officially ended in Asia on September 2, 1945, with the surrender of Japan on the USS Missouri. Before that, the United States dropped two atomic bombs on Japan, and the Soviet Union declared war on Japan, causing Emperor Hirohito to announce the acceptance of the Potsdam Declaration on August 15, 1945, which would eventually lead to the surrender ceremony on September 2.

After the ceremony, Japanese forces continued to surrender across the Pacific, with the last major surrender occurring on October 25, 1945, with the surrender of Japanese forces in Taiwan to Chiang Kai-shek. The Americans and British occupied Japan after the end of the war until April 28, 1952, when the Treaty of San Francisco came into effect.

The Treaty of San Francisco also called the Treaty of Peace with Japan , re-established peaceful relations between Japan and the Allied Powers on behalf of the United Nations by ending the legal state of war and providing for redress for hostile actions up to and including World War II. It was signed by 49 nations on 8 September 1951.

Treaty of Mutual Cooperation and Security between the United States and Japan - The 1960 treaty significantly revised the U.S.-Japan security agreement in the direction of greater mutuality between the two nations. The original 1951 treaty had contained a provision permitting the United States to use forces based in Japan throughout East Asia without prior consultation with Japan, made no explicit promise to defend Japan if Japan were attacked, and even contained a clause allowing U.S. troops to intervene in Japanese domestic disputes.

The Mutual Security Act of 1951 launched a major American foreign aid program, 1951–61, of grants to numerous countries. It largely replaced the Marshall Plan. The main goal was to help poor countries develop and to contain the spread of communism. It was signed on October 10, 1951, by President Harry S. Truman.[1] Annual authorizations were about $7.5 billion, out of a GDP of $340bn in 1951, for military, economic, and technical foreign aid to American allies. The aid was aimed primarily at shoring up Western Europe, as the Cold War developed. In 1961 it was replaced by a new foreign aid program, the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, which created the Agency for International Development (AID), and focused more on Latin America.[2]

The Mutual Security Act also abolished the Economic Cooperation Administration, which had managed the Marshall Plan and transferred its functions to the newly established Mutual Security Agency (MSA). The Agency was established and continued by acts of October 10, 1951 (65 Stat. 373) and June 20, 1952 (66 Stat. 141) to provide military, economic, and technical assistance to friendly nations in the interest of international peace and security, but was abolished by Reorganization Plan No. 7 of 1953, effective August 1, 1953, and its functions were transferred to the Foreign Operations Administration.[3] The act however, was extended by appropriators each fiscal year until the early 1960s.

The CIA always has the hardware it needs for warfare inside our outside the USA and that includes TSS operations poisonings, radiation as a weapon, and conventional ordinance. When they are not getting fancy about a prison thug used to comit an unsolved murder works just as well. As with Cord Myer's wife, questions will emerge.

The Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961 was made by a thin brigade of about 1,500 Cuban exiles trained by the CIA in Guatemala. But the 1958 Indonesian action involved no less than 42,000 CIA-armed rebels supported by a fleet of bombers and vast numbers of four-engine transport aircraft as well as submarine assistance from the U.S. Navy. It also involved a major training and logistical supporting effort on the part of the Philippines, Okinawa (and Island of Japan) , Taiwan, and Singapore. - Indonesia 1958: Nixon, the CIA, and the Secret War By L. - China Shanghai sits at the mouth of the Yangtze River delta on the eastern side of China. Following the British victory in the first Opium war and the 1842 Treaty of Nanking, the Chinese were forced to allow the establishment of the Shanghai International Settlement. During World War II, Japan invaded China and specifically it's most prosperous cities on the coast.

  Shanghai and Nanking were hard hit by the Japanese and they committed great atrocities in the city of Nanking. This was known as "the rape of Nanking," where thousands of Chinese men women and children were dragged out into the streets and beheaded. Women were raped by thousands of Japanese soldiers and lay bleeding and dying in the streets.

  The Japanese had cut off the food supply and starved those they couldn't kill with swords or bayonets. Shanghai had been an occupied city in one way or another for generations. I feel I understand now for the first time why it was thought to be absolutely necessary for the Allies to unleash the atomic bombs on the populations of Japan. There had to be a reckoning.

  With Japan's surrender in September 1945 life was starting to return to Shanghai and it was here that Dorothy had come. The Chinese had endured the Opium Wars, followed by an invasion of Westerners who blatantly took advantage of the foothold they had achieved, then with the advent of World War II and the subsequent invasion by Japan, and "liberation" of China it is no wonder that the Chinese were suspicious. [I Edward Paul Donegan am trying not to cry reading this. I have never heard so much of my fathers voice since he died other than reading St Johh Hunt tell this history it just brings back how much I miss my father. My father never doubted the bombings or being a part of them. There was so much at stake and nothing else could have chagned course and even the two bombings on their own were not enough by themselves.]

Dorothy was there to open up the Treasury Departments' Shanghai offce, and in this way somehow make life better for the Chinese.

She didn't see herself as part of a capitalist machine bent on greed. She, along with many other Westerners were duped by the lies told by the banking cartels used to control China for Western profits. She truly believed that she was there to help the Chinese recover from the Japanese invasion.

The war against Japan may have been over, but civil war was already starting and the Communists wanted Westerners out. Nationalist Chinese Forces (pro-Western) under General Chiang Kai-shek were fighting a losing civil war against the Communist forces of Mao Zedong (Tse Tung).

The United States was funding

Chiang's forces and this bitter civil war would rage for years and take the lives of thousands of Chinese lives. There would be no peace for China. The political climate in Shanghai was volatile, and revolution ran through the streets.

As the fighting grew in the hinterlands of China, there was a sense of urgency among the American employees stationed in Shanghai. Dorothy had only arrived a few short weeks ago, and already there was talk of Mao's invading forces.

"Surely," she must have thought, "America will come to our aid?"

It was chaos from the beginning with rumors and stories of Mao's great purge. If he were victorious they would all be killed, or at the very least imprisoned as spies and eventually, hopefully, deported. -St John Hunt in his book Dorothy.

Dorothy did make it out, on her own, and would move on in 1949 in Paris to work for Averell Harriman and the CIA and in the course of that meeting E. Howard Hunt, another CIA aide working in Paris under Harriman for the Marshall Plan.

The Lockheed U-2, nicknamed "Dragon Lady", is an American single-engine, high altitude reconnaissance aircraft operated from the 1950s by the United States Air Force (USAF) or the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). It provides day and night, high-altitude (70,000 feet, 21,300 meters), all-weather intelligence gathering.

Lockheed Corporation originally proposed it in 1953, it was approved in 1954, and its first test flight was in 1955. It was flown during the Cold War over the Soviet Union, China, Vietnam, and Cuba. In 1960, Gary Powers was shot down in a CIA U-2C over the Soviet Union by a surface-to-air missile (SAM). Major Rudolf Anderson Jr. was shot down in a U-2 during the Cuban Missile Crisis in 1962.

Francis Gary Powers graduated fligth school in 1952 and likely flew the F86 recon jet my father flew after the P51s had reached their limits and jets took over.

Operation Mongoose

Operation Mongoose was then revived and soon deteriorated into a comic opera type operation, which would have made a great movie, starring the Marx Brothers.

First, Colonel Sheffield Edwards, from the Agency's Office of Security, hired Robert Maheu (also a right hand man of Howard Hughes at TWA), a former FBI agent, with underworld connections. Maheu was also very close to Howard Hughes and Tony Materna, with whom I was well acquainted since he and Phillip Shore, operated a documentation mill called Los Angeles Stamp and Stationery Company (LASSCO) in Los Angeles. Tony was also a graduate of MIT, Class of 1947, the same as I was. I never learned if his scholastic record had been inserted as mine had. Tony Materna was also a close friend of Licavoli and Maheu was a friend of Johnny Roselli, the only one of the "Mickey Mouse Mafia," as the Los Angeles branch of the Mafia was called, that Licavoli had any respect for. Licavoli — an incomparable organizer himself — said of Roselli, "He's the only first class organizer in California." Coming from Pete, this was quite a compliment.

Roselli, in turn, contacted two old Mafia chums, Sam Giancana of Chicago and Santos Traffcante of Florida.

Giancana engaged in a little "pillow talk" with Phyllis McGuire of the McGuire Sisters, who were a fixture in Las Vegas at that time, and Phyllis, in turn, shared the secret with another of her boyfriends, Dan Rowan, a comic.

Maheu called on a colleague of Bernard Spindel to put a tap on Rowan's phone.

This technician was discovered, by the maid, and he was arrested, and had to be bailed out of jail.

From there, the trail led straight into the White House, due to the fact that John Kennedy, who according to his good friend, Senator George Smathers, had "the most active libido I have ever seen," was banging the same broad, who was hopping in and out of the sack with both Giancana and Roselli.

The results of all this is too well known and nauseating to recount. Needless to say, this was a complete fiasco, as all the Mafia figures knew it would be; all they wanted was to get some mileage out of the sensitive position, that Kennedy had put himself into, because he liked to jump the bones of everything in sight. My father once advised me, "Never cull anything; you might miss something good." Kennedy certainly followed this principle.

One thing of great importance came out of this pathetic affair; Fidel Castro found out about these sinister plans for him and, just before the Kennedy assassination, he made an ominous and prophetic threat against Kennedy.

The vehemence of the rogue agents, the Cubans, and their fellow travelers, undoubtedly, was the catalyst for the Kennedy assassination.

The attempts to kill Castro continued, to the very day of the Kennedy assassination. Just prior to the assassination, we delivered rifles, equipped with special Leatherwood ranging telescopic sights, and a variety of explosives to an emissary of Rolando Cubela, whom I had always suspected of being a double agent for Castro, although it could never be proven. The fact that Cubela finally was incarcerated, by Castro, would seem to indicate that I was wrong about him.

Cubela was an extraordinary assassin, as he proved in 1956 when he killed Batista's chief of military intelligence, Blanco Rico.

Most of the weapons that we modified, to accept silencers — High Standard, Ruger and Browning 22s, preferably with the "bull" barrel — were obtained from Cummings, who used CIA funds, and connections, as the springboard to become the world's largest individual arms dealer.

Of course, occasionally we would obtain, modify and supply more exotic weapons or we would look for ammunition of a special calibre with ammunition with European head stamps. These acquisitions were, obviously, made with the Russians in mind. One of the most efficient silencers, which we ever produced, was for a very special customer, whose requirements were as demanding as if he were James Bond, 007 himself.

This was a long, two-stage silencer fitted to a 9mm Lahti, a Finnish gun with very heavy actuator or slide, which made it impossible for the gun to operate, semi-automatically, when the reduced loads of the silencer-designed, ammunition was used. That meant that the assassin had to operate the slide, after each shot, in order to load the weapon. The gun was remarkably quiet. There are two sounds emitted from a gun; the supersonic sound of the bullet and the action of the slide. The silencer took care of the sound of the bullet, by making it subsonic and, since the slide, or this case, the heavy actuator, did not function, there was no noise from the action of the gun.

It was obvious that this gun was designed for close- up and personal work.

We were always being asked for ammunition for the AK 47, with Eastern European headstamps. Obviously, someone was planning some mischief to push off on the Soviets.

In the mid-1940s, with America in the throes of World War II, Donovan's OSS was working diligently to develop innovative solutions to aid in its covert operations across the globe. Recognizing the strategic need for silenced weaponry, OSS's Research and Development (R&D) wing—under the direction of OSS' Director for R&D Stanley Lovell—was hard at work looking for ways to modify weapons which would allow OSS officers and warfighters to operate covertly.

In 1944, after a breakthrough in research and development, Donovan brought the silencer to the White House, eager to show it to President Franklin Roosevelt. Upon arrival, General Donovan was told that the President was occupied with other business and that he would have to wait while the President finished his meeting. Not known as a patient man, Donovan recognized a ripe opportunity to display the tactical advantage afforded by his office's new weapon. Still inside the White House, Donovan set up a sandbag and, from across the room, proceeded to fire ten rounds into the bag.

When the President ended his meeting, Donovan pulled out the sand bag and told the President what he had just done. Roosevelt was incredulous that such a feat could have been pulled-off, especially in an area as highly guarded as the White House. He was so impressed, in fact that he decided to hang on to that silencer. It is still displayed at his Presidential Library in Hyde Park, New York.

or CHAPTER FIFTEEN California Fronts

After I came to California, in addition to the proprietary interests that I operated or oversaw for the Company, I always had a cover job, using various identities, that I had established in 1950. Some of these positions I obtained on my own, but usually I was placed in positions by somebody with Mafia connections.

For the CIA, we operated a documentation mills at LASSCO, which was located in downtown Los Angeles; at Scimitar Studio, located on Melrose Avenue in West Los Angeles and at

Dennis Curtin Studio, located on North La Brea Avenue in Hollywood. At these facilities, we turned out complete sets of excellent identification, including FBI, DEA, NSA and even State Bar Cards for our "clients."

We also counterfeited Cuban and Chilean money. We furnished stationery of every sort, ostensibly for many organizations, including White House Stationery. We counterfeited official cables, for disinformation purposes.

We operated a fixed base facility at Van Nuys Airport under the name of Southwest Aircraft Company, which was incorporated in Montana, but authorized to do business in California.

Dear Jack:

Ray Lafferty and I checked out the Gulfstream that Frank Long is selling for J. A. Belcher Oil. In fact, we flew it up to Santa Barbara and back.

Considering the small number of hours on the engines and the airframe and the fact that the interior is being completely re-furbished by Pacific Automotive it looks like a good buy. The instrument panel has been completely replaced and the navigational aids upgraded. I am enclosing a picture of the new instrument panel (the black & white photo) and some additional pictures that point out the different interior configurations that are possible.

The only drawback to the plane, as I see it, is the fact that de-icing equipment consists of pneumatic boots rather than the "hot wing". However, this does not mean that the pneumatic boot system is deficient.

In my opinion, the plane is still an excellent investment. Talk the matter over with Phil and get together with Frank to move ahead, if you are really intent on buying this type of airplane.

It was from here that we flew back and forth, across the United States in a variety of aircraft, most of which were STOL equipped to operate out of fields, with very short runways. We also rented hangar space at the Santa Barbara Airport in Goleta and the Company, through one of its proprietary interests, Bermuda Dunes Aircraft Company, owned another fixed base operation at Bermuda Dunes near Palm Springs.

All the while Grace Ranch is where the Aircraft are tested, trained with, and loaded with munitions and arms for transport. Holt provides records of salvaged for reuse B-52's and other work done.

At the latter facility, Bermuda Dunes Airport, another proprietary interest (El Mirador Hotel) which was fronted by Ray Ryan and Ernie Dunlevie, actually owned the airport itself, which, of course, was very convenient for us.

Another proprietary interest was also located at Van Nuys Airport. Roger Clarke fronted for this operation, which operated a flying school. Two of his "instructors" were Joe Canty and Ray Lafferty, two very capable pilots, who had flown an incredible number of hours in a variety of aircraft, despite the fact that they both were quite young.

However, most of my time, during the very early sixties, that is, before the assassination of John F. Kennedy was devoted to the gunrunning activities.

We were operating the machine shop at Goleta and in early 1963, the pipeline for funds seemed to come unclogged, for when we requested a tape-operated lathe, so that we could mass produce the tubes,and the stainless steel washers and baffles, necessary to produce silencers, the money, amounting to over fifty thousand dollars, was remitted to us, through Twombly, without delay.

Funds to purchase the weapons from Sam Cummings at Western Surplus and the new STOL equipped aircraft, were transferred to my account, at the Union Bank, upon request.

I was making daily withdrawals — in cash — from the "big money" teller at Union Bank, for distribution to other contract agents.

From these funds, in one month, in early 1963, I purchased two brand new Cadillac convertibles, a Chrysler New Yorker station wagon, three specially equipped DeHavilland Beaver aircraft, and a piece of property with a short, paved and lighted, landing strip on it.

Most of the equipment, that we were producing, was supplied to George Reynolds photographed with Holt and Oswald (JM Wave with is brother Bob Reynolds head of JM WAVE,) who operated several companies, including the Atchafalaya Labor Camp, located in the Atchafalaya Swamp near Morgan City, Louisiana. What Holt calls Caribbean Crossfire

"We had been operating a Murder Inc. in the Caribbean." - Lyndon B. Johnson [And LBJ will turn that firepower on JFK later]

CH: When Castro landed up in the Escambray mountains to start his revolution, he got some aid from Lansky, simply because Lansky was sort of hedging his bet. As a matter of fact Lansky had an agreement with Castro that if he took over the government, he let him continue operating the casino's. When Castro seized power in 1959 he let them operate for about two months and then confiscated the hotels. So naturally they were interested in getting back into Cuba. Lansky himself had personally a 1 million dollar contract on Castro. So here we had these people, the mob and we had the CIA all trying to get rid of Castro.

LBJ and others wanted to accomplish against Castro what had been accomplished in Guatemala and elsewhere.

Soon after his first speech as president-elect, in which he declared that there had been a lack of sympathy in the past for the working man, Guatemala's ruling class with its quasi-feudalistic mentality, branded him a communist.

Powerful interests in the United States were positively terrified. In the forefront were the stockholders of United Fruit Co., which actually owned over 50% of all the land in Guatemala. These powerful enemies persuaded the fledgling CIA to turn its attention to Guatemala.

Arevalo proposed that the government build a highway from Guatemala City to the Atlantic seacoast, paralleling the railroad, owned by United Fruit, which held a monopoly. The manager of International Railways of Central America, subsidiary of United Fruit opposed the idea. Arevalo considered the input and desires of the common man. The implications of such a radical approach was very unsettling for the wealthy landowners, especially United Fruit.

So the decision was made to intervene in the politics of Guatemala, by fair means or foul. This decision had been made three or four years before I became an employee of IRC, the front designated as the main instrument to maintain the status quo in our Latin American neighbor.

The CIA was unable to topple Arevalo, who managed to close out his term in offce in 1951, without effecting much in the way of land reform that he had sought, and which United Fruit, and the other powerful landowners, had feared and, resolutely opposed, with great success.

I was part of a five man team, headed by Jack Youngblood, sent to Guatemala and we were successful, with obvious collusion at a high level, in freeing Armas, who immediately began arming for a coup attempt ta aginst Arbenz.

After Armas had been "rescued" from prison, the rescue team stayed on in Guatemala and its members were assigned various duties in the upcoming coup. Since I was a pilot I was assigned to that phase of the operation and met some of the most colorful characters one can imagine.

At that time, I was using the alias and a pilot's license in the name of Robert Ralston and how I came to be issued this genuine license, as opposed to a forged one, is a classic example of how false identities were created for contract agents for the CIA, and organized crime, as well for that matter.

JM WAVE retrieved from Spartacus Eductional and copied or modified to here

JM WAVE was the Central Intelligence Agency station in Florida. Located south of Miami in a heavily wooded 1,571-acre tract. The numerous buildings were said to belong to Zenith Technological Enterprises.

After the Bay of Pigs disaster President John F. Kennedy created a committee (SGA) charged with overthrowing Castro's government. The SGA, chaired by Robert F. Kennedy (Attorney General), included John McCone (CIA Director), McGeorge Bundy (National Security Adviser), Alexis Johnson (State Department), Roswell Gilpatric (Defence Department), General Lyman Lemnitzer (Joint Chiefs of Staff) and General Maxwell Taylor. Although not officially members, Dean Rusk (Secretary of State) and Robert S. McNamara (Secretary of Defense) also attending meetings.

At a meeting of this committee at the White House on 4th November, 1961, it was decided to call this covert action program for sabotage and subversion against Cuba, Operation Mongoose. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy also decided that General Edward Lansdale (Staff Member of the President's Committee on Military Assistance) should be placed in charge of the operation.

The CIA JM WAVE station in Miami served as operational headquarters for Operation Mongoose. The head of the station was Ted Shackley and over the next few months became very involved in the attempt to overthrow Fidel Castro. One of Lansdale's first decisions was to appoint William Harvey as head of Task Force W. Harvey's brief was to organize a broad range of activities that would help to bring down Castro's government.

By the spring of 1962, JM/WAVE employed more than 200 CIA officers. They in turn ran over 2,200 Cuban agents. JM/WAVE had a navy of over 100 craft, including the 174-foot Rex, that had the latest electronic eqquipment and 40-millimeter and 20-millimeter cannons. The CIA station also had a large number of V-20 Swift craft and access to F-105 Phantoms from nearby Homestead Air Force Base.

William Harvey was ordered to activate an assassination plot against Fidel Castro. This became known as the ZR/RIFLE project. Harvey arranged for David Sanchez Morales to move from Mexico City to join the project based at the JM WAVE station.

In the winter of 1962 Eddie Bayo claimed that two officers in the Red Army based in Cuba wanted to defect to the United States. Bayo added that these men wanted to pass on details about atomic warheads and missiles that were still in Cuba despite the agreement that followed the Cuban Missile Crisis.

Bayo's story was eventually taken up by several members of the anti-Castro community including William Pawley, Gerry P. Hemming, John Martino, Felipe Vidal Santiago and Frank Sturgis. Pawley became convinced that it was vitally important to help get these Soviet officers out of Cuba.

William Pawley contacted Ted Shackley, the head at JM WAVE. Shackley decided to help Pawley organize what became known as Operation Tilt. He also assigned Rip Robertson, a fellow member of the CIA in Miami, to help with the operation. David Sanchez Morales, another CIA agent, also became involved in this attempt to bring out these two Soviet officers.

In June, 1963, a small group, including William Pawley, Eddie Bayo, Rip Robertson, John Martino, and Richard Billings, a journalist working for Life Magazine, secretly arrived in Cuba. They were unsuccessful in their attempts to find these Soviet officers and they were forced to return to Miami. Bayo remained behind and it was rumoured that he had been captured and executed. However, his death was never reported in the Cuban press.

Col Prouty wrote Guns of Dallas and Nixon and Indonesia, two truthful and previously unconnected articles on the CIA that are included here.

He was directly in charge of the global system designed to provide military support for the clandestine activities of the CIA. He was the author of JFK: The CIA, Vietnam, and the Plot to Assassinate John F. Kennedy and The Secret Team: The CIA and Its Allies. - Amazon author profile then influencing popular opinions in foreign nations and included full overthrow operations lending hands to internal combatants of contested countries.

Col. Prouty spent 9 of his 23 year military career in the Pentagon (1955-1964) VP Nixon served from 1952 to 1960 and JFK inaugurated 1961 to 1963:

In 1955 he was appointed the first "Focal Point" officer between the CIA and the Air Force for Clandestine Operations per National Security Council Directive 5412. He was Briefing Officer for the Secretary of Defense (1960-1961), and for the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

At times he would be called to meet with Allen Dulles and John Foster Dulles at their home on highly classified business. He was assigned to attend MKULTRA meetings. In this capacity Col. Prouty would be at the nerve center of the Military-Industrial Complex at a time unequalled in American History. He has written on these subjects, about the JFK assassination, the Cold War period, and Vietnamese warfare, and the existence of a "Secret Team". He backs up his his work with seldom seen or mentioned official documents - some never before released.

Oversight of United States covert operations

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Executive oversight of United States covert operations has been carried out by a series of sub-committees of the National Security Council (NSC).

Birth of covert operations in the Cold War

At the beginning of the Cold War, it was not inevitable that covert operations would become the dominion of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). The National Security Act of 1947 did not explicitly authorize the CIA to conduct covert operations, although Section 102(d)(5) was sufficiently vague to permit abuse. At the very first meetings of the NSC in late 1947, the perceived necessity to "stem the flow of communism" in Western Europe-particularly Italy-by overt and covert "psychological warfare" forced the issue. The actual responsibility for these operations was a hot potato, and when it was decided that the State Department would be in charge, Secretary of State George Marshall sharply opposed it, fearing it would tarnish the international credibility of his department. The upshot was that responsibility for covert operations was passed on to the CIA; this was codified in a NSC policy paper called NSC 4-A,[4] approved in December 1947. NSC 4-A provided the authorization for the intervention of the CIA in the Italian elections of April 1948.[5]

Proposed NSC 4-A Panel

A draft of NSC 4-A envisioned the creation of a NSC-designated "panel" to approve operations. The executive secretary of the NSC, Sidney Souers, recommended that the panel be composed of representatives from the departments of State, Army, Navy and Air Force, as well an "observer" representative from the Joint Chiefs of Staff. This provision was dropped in the final version, which simply stated that the Director of Central Intelligence (DCI) "is charged with ensuring that [covert] psychological operations are consistent with U.S. foreign policy and overt foreign information activities, and that appropriate agencies of the U.S. Government, ..., are kept informed of such operations which will directly affect them."

From NSC 10/2 to NSC 5412 (June 1948–March 1955)

According to the Church Committee, throughout the period June 1948 to March 1955, "NSC directives provided for consultation with representatives of State and Defense". But "these representatives had no approval function. There was no formal procedure or committee to consider and approve projects.

NSC 10/2 Panel

The arrangement in NSC 4-A did not please the influential director of the State Department's Policy Planning Staff (S/P), George F. Kennan. Under his leadership, a S/P paper titled "The inauguration of organized political warfare" was circulated in the NSC in early May 1948, which said that "there are two major types of political warfare-one overt and the other covert. Both, from their basic nature, should be directed and coordinated by the Department of State." Yet Kennan wanted to have his cake and eat it too: the paper made it clear that the State Department should not be formally associated with the conduct of covert operations. Then the Joint Chiefs of Staff entered the fray by guarding its prerogatives, particularly in wartime, especially in theatres of war.[11] As a result of the controversy spurred by Kennan, NSC 4-A was replaced by NSC 10/2, approved by President Harry Truman on 18 June 1948, creating the Office of Policy Coordination (OPC). Kennan was still not satisfied and continued to press for State control, hoping that his choice for OPC director, Frank Wisner, would be loyal to the State Department-he was not.

NSC 10/2 was the first presidential document which specified a mechanism to approve and manage covert operations, and also the first in which the term "covert operations" was defined. NSC 10/2 charged the DCI with "Ensuring, through designated representatives of the Secretary of State and of the Secretary of Defense, that covert operations are planned and conducted in a manner consistent with US foreign and military policies and with overt activities." The representatives to this "10/2 Panel", also known as the "OPC Consultants", were Kennan for State (1948–1950) and Joseph McNarney for Defense (1948–1949). The panel, which met about once a week, was supplanted from January 1950 on by the regular attendance of a representative from the Joint Chiefs of Staff. According to Anne Karalekas, a Church Committee staffer, it did not constrain the OPC:

[The 10/2 Panel was] not an approval body, and there was no formal mechanism whereby individual projects had to be brought before [it] for discussion. Because it was assumed that covert action would be exceptional, strict provisions for specific project authorization were not considered necessary. With minimal supervision from State and Defense and with a shared agreement on the nature of the OPC mission, individuals in OPC could take the initiative in conceiving and implementing projects.[16]

In the first half of its existence, OPC was not really under CIA's control. In the words of Edward P. Lilly, DCI Roscoe H. Hillenkoetter, "although authorized by NSC-10/2 to supervise OPC, had allowed OPC to go its own way." OPC was brought under CIA control in October 1950, when Walter Bedell Smith became DCI. OPC was merged on 1 August 1952 with the CIA branch responsible for espionage, the Office of Special Operations (OSO), to form the Directorate of Plans (DDP).

The Office of Policy Coordination (OPC) was the covert operation wing of the United States Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). Created as a department of the CIA in 1948, it actually operated independently until October 1950. OPC existed until 1 August 1952, when it was merged with the Office of Special Operations (OSO run by Prouty along with General Edward Lansdale) to form the Directorate of Plans (DDP).

Col Prouty: This was important administratively because by that time Frank Wisner, the CIA Deputy Director of Plans, had set up his forward headquarters in Singapore and at the direction of the 5412 Committee of the National Security Council, headed by Nixon, Wisner occupied that faraway headquarters himself. (It should be noted that in 1958 Allen Dulles was the head of the CIA, his brother John Foster Dulles was the Secretary of State, Eisenhower was President, and Nixon, as Vice President, chaired the clandestine affairs committee, then known as the "Special Group 5412/2."

In other words nothing was done in Indonesia that was not directed by Nixon. If an action had not been directed by the NSC, then it was done unlawfully by the CIA.)

In 1958 Allen Dulles would have brought such a major operation to the attention of the Special Group and he would operate with its approval. This was an essential step in national policy because it then empowered the Department of Defense to provide the necessary support requested by the CIA. Much of this fell within the area of my responsibility at Air Force Headquarters, and I was kept informed on a regular basis of approved action and of Nixon's keen interest in this project.

It is not well known in the United States that the 1958 rebellion led to a major Indonesian civil war. The CIA-inspired uprising in Indonesia, unlike the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba, was a full-scale military operation. The Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961 was made by a thin brigade of about 1,500 Cuban exiles trained by the CIA in Guatemala. But the 1958 Indonesian action involved no less than 42,000 CIA-armed rebels supported by a fleet of bombers and vast numbers of four-engine transport aircraft as well as submarine assistance from the U.S. Navy. It also involved a major training and logistical supporting effort on the part of the Philippines, Okinawa, Taiwan, and Singapore. But despite this massive armed force, the 1958 rebellion, like the Bay of Pigs invasion, was a total failure. Sukarno's army drove the rebels on Sumatra and Celebes into the sea.

Okinawa Island

American occupation - Japan became a pacifist country with the 1947 constitution, so America was obligated to protect Japan against foreign threats. During the American military occupation of Japan (1945–1952), which followed the Imperial Japanese surrender on 2 September 1945, in Tokyo Bay, the United States controlled Okinawa Island and the rest of the Ryukyu Islands.

The Amami Islands were returned to Japanese control in 1953. The remaining Ryukyu Islands were returned to Japan on 17 June 1971.

America kept numerous U.S. military bases on the islands. There are 32 United States military bases on Okinawa Island by the U.S.-Japan alliance since 1951.

U.S. bases on Okinawa played critical roles in the Korean War, Vietnam War, Laotian Civil War, Cambodian campaign, War in Afghanistan, and Iraq War. Okinawa served as a prime staging post for the aforementioned wars. Its ports and > airports were used to transport supplies. The base at Camp Chinen, Nanjo City was used by the CIA for covert operations. In 1965, Admiral Ulysses S. Grant Sharp stated that “Without Okinawa, we couldn't continue fighting the Vietnam war.

What is not generally known about the complex Indonesian struggle is the role that was played by the then Vice President of the United States, Richard M. Nixon, and the bitter aftermath that involved the sudden ouster of Allen Dulles' protege, Frank Wisner, who at that time was the head of the clandestine arm of the CIA. After Watergate, when Anthony Lukas wrote in his book Nightmare, about the growing mistrust between Nixon and the Director of Central Intelligence, Richard Helms, he could have added that since the 1958 Indonesian rebellion there were many in the CIA who made a career of hating Nixon because of what he had done to Frank Wisner, among others.

By early 1958 these Filipinos and their CIA counterparts were prepared to involve the Philippines in the rebellion against Sukarno by setting up special warfare "Green Beret" training bases and by providing the Indonesian revolutionary council with clandestine air bases. One of those bases was on Palawan, the most western island of the Philippine archipelago, in the vicinity of the airfield at Puerto Princessa on Honda Bay. The other base was on the big southern island of Mindanao, near Davao Gulf.

Concurrently, in Washington, operations were being organized. Frank Wisner took over direct command of the everyday operations of the Indonesian project. A large staff under Desmond Fitzgerald of the Far East Division was set up. The most active element of this special staff came from the CIA's clandestine Air Division which at that time was under the control of Dick Helms. As the plans expanded for this major undertaking, requirements for military equipment, people, aircraft, weapons, bases, submarines, and communications skyrocketed.

In the Pentagon there are thousands of nondescript offices in which all sorts of tasks are done. One of these unobtrusive offices was an Air Force Plans Division office. One day in 1958 two men from the CIA entered that office. After being identified they were permitted entrance to an interior office that was the "Focal Point" office for all U.S. Air Force Support of the clandestine operations of the CIA. I had established that office in 1955 on orders from Gen. Thomas D. White, then Chief of Staff of the Air Force. This came about after several meetings with Allen W. Dulles, the Director of Central Intelligence, and others. When the CIA men entered that office in 1958, I was still in charge.

The agents outlined the Indonesian Plan, the Philippine support and training program, and told me about their own special operations staff that had been put together specifically for this vast project. Then they urgently requested light bombardment aircraft and long-range transport aircraft. We decided to take a number of twin engine B-26 aircraft out of mothball storage, put them through a retrofit line, and modify them so that they could be armed with a special 50-caliber machine gun package of eight guns, in the nose of the plane. This would give the B-26 more firepower than it ever had during the Korean War or World War II. The project was given top priority and covered in deep secrecy. Programs for pilot training and the recruitment of "mercenaries" were established.

Concurrent with our work the CIA was putting together a "wartime" operational staff. Lt. Gen. Earl Barnes, who had been a senior air commander during World War II under Gen. Douglas MacArthur, was brought in to run all clandestine air activities.

At that time Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer was Commander in Chief of the Ryukyu Command on Okinawa. One day he received a call from General David M. Shoup, the U.S. Marine Commander on Okinawa, asking if the Army could spare 14,000 rifles for a Marine requirement. Surprised at the Marine request for such a large order of guns, Lemnitzer acquiesced nonetheless and ordered the transfer of these weapons on the condition that they would be quickly replaced.

So what is seen from Prouty is that Indonesia was run out of the ATSUGI CIA station with other locations

In 1952 JFK and Jackie will marry, James and Glorian Donegan will marry, E. Howard Hunt and Dorothy Hunt will marry, I think after living with Prouty and others at the CIA operation in Japan were they were all stationed.

The Organization for European Economic Cooperation Chapter five of the book selectively excerptred here as it fits Wayne Madsen and Ed Donegan Sleeper Agent theory of Obama Jr.)

The headquarters of the Organization for European Economic Co-operation (OEEC) where Dorothy worked was in the Chateau de la Muette in Paris. In 1770 Marie Antoinette took residency there to President Harry Truman had disbanded the OSS when the war ended, having thought that the officers were a little too wild. In fact OSS boss General William Donovan had well earned his nick name "Wild Bill."

Needing to continue with an intelligence gathering capability, there was formed the Office of Policy Coordination. This small office would eventually transform into what is now the CIA. One of OPC's earliest programs was to hold a similar conference in Europe. They knew of plans for the Soviets to hold a second world conference denouncing American Imperialism in April in Paris.

Frank Wisner, OPC's first Director, planned a counter demonstration. He had gathered his own roster of intellectuals, artists and writers, all anti- communists. OPC would need funding for the plan and Wisner knew just where to get it.

Wisner cabled Dorothy's boss Averell Harriman for help.

Harriman diverted 5 million francs from the coffers of the Marshall Plan and made that available to OPC members in Paris to fund the counter demonstration.

Dorothy was on Harriman's secretarial staff and as such was taking notes, preparing cables, and compiling lists of those persons who would take part in this counter demonstration. It was here, in Paris she reunited with Howard Hunt. He worked for Harriman as a speech writer and film producer although it is more than likely Hunt was actually working for both Harriman's OEEC offce and for Wisner's OPC unit.

The double agent would be Hunt's modis operandi in later years when he "retired" from CIA and joined Nixon's covert-ops team. In his book, American Spy, Hunt writes that the relationship between Dorothy and he grew stronger, and by September he realized that he wanted to spend the rest of his life with this "feisty woman."

For her part, Dorothy had started divorce proceedings in Paris to end her disastrous marriage to the Marquis. By all accounts this seems to have been a love at first sight fairytale. I say "seems" to have been. In researching this book I came across this entry in CIA files declassified under the Freedom of Information Act. What follows is the entry:

Dorothy Wetzel worked for the State Department in Bern, Switzerland, between July 1944 and January 1946. From April 1946 to May 1947, DOROTHY HUNT worked for the Treasury Department, Shanghai, China. She joined Economic Cooperation Administration in April 1948. She married HOWARD HUNT on September 7, 1949.

The CIA reported that "DOROTHY LOUISE HUNT [OS 355,750] was investigated for Agency employment in 1948. Her former husband [Goutierel was described as an habitual drunkard and not inclined to remain in any one place for any length of time. She did not enter on duty, having accepted a position with the Economic Cooperation Administration in Paris. Our Paris sources later reported that Subject's wife was formerly his mistress and was openly flouted as such for several months.

She was then described as an amoral and dangerous individual who underhandedly attacked those persons who incurred her enmity." [Emphasis added.]

The "subject" was E. Howard Hunt and these entries came from his file. It claims that Dorothy was Hunt's mistress and he openly flaunted her as such! Openly flaunted her? I would normally consider this a disparaging remark if I felt it were true. However knowing that Dorothy had applied for a CIA (OPC) position and "did not enter on duty" leads me to suspect that Dorothy may have been keeping tabs on Harriman, Hunt et al. for OPC under the protective cover of Harriman's Offce of Economic Cooperation unit.

Biography of Thornley by Spartacus Educational - Kerry Wendell Thornley met Lee Harvey Oswald while in the United States Marines in 1959. Later that year Thornley was transferred to Atsugi in Japan.

In 1962 Thornley wrote a novel called The Idle Warriors about a disgruntled marine who defects to the Soviet Union. The book was based on Thornley's knowledge of Oswald. The following year Thornley moved to New Orleans where it was claimed he associated with Guy Banister, David Ferrie and Clay Shaw. Oswald was also living in the city at that time but Thornley insisted that the two men never met during this period. The two men were also both in Mexico City in September 1963. - end biography

It continues to be my Edward Paul Donegan's assertion that the airbase in Japan my father flew reconnaissance out of during the Korean War in the F-86 and where Francis Gary Powers flew the U2 out of is another intersection of air force history that Lee Harvey Oswald, James Donegan, GLorian Donegan, Col Prouty, and Howard Hughes and RKO and Mahue all intersect at, cold war propaganda glory about the Air Force and the FBI in the cold war and defectors.

The FBI were aware of Thornley's novel and so after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy he was asked to testify before the Warren Commission.

Jim Garrison later claimed that Thornley and Lee Harvey Oswald were involved together in covert CIA operations. He also argued that Thornley had impersonated Oswald between the years 1961 and 1963. In his book On the Trail of the Assassins (1988) Garrison insists that Thornley was friends with another possible conspirator, Johnny Roselli.

Why should we believe her or Col. Prouty and the photographic and video evidence or now the so many others that show a cove-up of the CIA's activities and role in the Kennedy assassination.

James Paul Donegan was flying the F-84 or F-86 along with Francis Gary Powers (U-2) in Anti Iron Curtain recon it appears during the cold war and Lee Harvey Oswald true CIA Patriot may have been working on the history of the defense of England by Radar with P-51 Spitfires (the Spitfire was made as the P-51 in the USA) fought the bombing of Conventry in its finest hour, that part of history my father may also have flown in.

It continues to be my Edward Paul Donegan's assertion that the airbase in Japan my father flew reconnaissance out of during the Korean War in the F-86 and where Francis Gary Powers flew the U2 out of is another intersection of air force history that Lee Harvey Oswald, James Donegan, GLorian Donegan, Col Prouty, and Howard Hughes and RKO and Mahue all intersect at, cold war propaganda glory about the Air Force and the FBI in the cold war and defectors.

At two minutes in to a recording of the real Jim Garrison and his team it is ignored that Oswald coming from California (and late Mexican border) found Nazis. Later in the tape at this mark Garrison and his team note that building Oswald is working out of seems to be a CIA operation [confimed by Chauncey Marvin Holt sharing is photos of himself, Belcher, Reynlods, and Leroy Young], and also btw Masonic Temple, and Office of Naval Intelligence and FBI operation. https://www.youtube.com/watch?t=1160&v=6dUjFQCQczk&feature=youtu.be

At 32 minutes Garrison notes suspiciously an English lord he calls Harold Lord Barney or something like that is speaking and Dallas AND General Edwin Walker had come to Dallas to hear the speech, and even more suspiciously General Walker, who Oswald is said to try have killed (but the evidence seems faked) hides his relationship and hotel stay in Dallas as when seeing the English Lord.

That part relates to Glorian and Harold Gainey althought there is some mixup.

Ford Foundation (CIA)

The Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation is a non-profit foundation founded by Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy Sr. in 1946 in memory of his son Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. The foundation was led by his youngest brother, U.S. Senator Edward M. Kennedy, until his death in 2009. Wikipedia

The Ford Foundation is one of the most important "private foundations" collaborating with the CIA over a significant span of time in major projects in the cultural Cold War.

"At times it seemed as if the Ford Foundation was simply an extension of government in the area of international cultural propaganda. The foundation had a record of close involvement in covert actions in Europe, working closely with Marshall Plan and CIA officials on specific projects"

Frances Stonor Saunders, a noted scholar of the Cold War writes: "At times it seemed as if the Ford Foundation was simply an extension of government in the area of international cultural propaganda. The foundation had a record of close involvement in covert actions in Europe, working closely with Marshall Plan and CIA officials on specific projects".

The leaders of the Foundation were in total agreement with Washington's post-WWII projection of world domination, and they had over 3 billion in assets, a lot of money in 1950.

This is graphically illustrated by the naming of Richard Bissell as President of the Foundation in 1952. In his two years in office Bissell met often with the head of the CIA, Allen Dulles, and other CIA officials in a "mutual search" for new ideas. In 1954 Bissell left Ford to become a special assistant to Allen Dulles in January 1954. https://wikispooks.com/wiki/The_Ford_Foundation and https://www.voltairenet.org/article166741.html

An excerpt from Col Prouty a Donegan friend - What is not generally known about the complex Indonesian struggle is the role that was played by the then Vice President of the United States, [Vice President] Richard M. Nixon, and the bitter aftermath that involved the sudden ouster of Allen Dulles' protege, Frank Wisner, who at that time was the head of the clandestine arm of the CIA. [Ed Donegan asserts the firing of Allen Dulles was also tied to the Indonesia plan and is tied to the Donegan family as this timeline supports.]

After Watergate, when Anthony Lukas wrote in his book Nightmare, about the growing mistrust between Nixon and the Director of Central Intelligence, Richard Helms, he could have added that since the 1958 Indonesian rebellion there were many in the CIA who made a career of hating Nixon because of what he had done to Frank Wisner, among others.

The Indonesian campaign began rather casually as so many CIA ventures do. Few f any ever originate at the top.

During an unguarded conversation in Washington the Indonesian military attache mentioned earlier made it known to certain U.S. military acquaintances that there were many prominent and strong people in Indonesia who would be ready to rise against Sukarno if they were given a little support and encouragement from the United States. It happened that one of those U.S. military friends he talked to was not a military man at all, but a member of the CIA. The provocative words got back to Frank Wisner, then the Deputy Director of Plans. He was in charge of the CIA's clandestine activity and he authorized agents to follow up on that first conversation.

The Indonesian attache was wined and dined and encouraged to talk more. Reasons for the attache's return to Indonesia on official business were successfully arranged. He was accompanied by CIA agents traveling under the cover of "U.S. military" personnel.

During this visit they spoke with rebel leaders. They learned enough about the potential strength of this opposition to encourage the CIA to set in motion its biggest operation up to that date.

In the Philippines there was a strong nucleus of military men, chief among them a Colonel Valeriano, who had been President Magsaysay's military assistant. He had also worked on paramilitary exercises with the CIA during the Magsaysay campaign against the leftist rebel Huk movement. This military group had gained considerable power during the Magsaysay tenure.

Many of these special warfare experts from the Philippines had volunteered for duty in South Vietnam in 1955 when the CIA was deeply involved in providing undercover support for the new and uncertain regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

By early 1958 these Filipinos and their CIA counterparts were prepared to involve the Philippines in the rebellion against Sukarno [and trying to install Suharto backed by the CIA and Crane Group] by setting up special warfare “Green Beret” training bases and by providing the Indonesian revolutionary council with clandestine air bases.

One of those bases was on Palawan, the most western island of the Philippine archipelago, in the vicinity of the airfield at Puerto Princessa on Honda Bay. The other base was on the big southern island of Mindanao, near Davao Gulf.

Brading and Brown

Eugene Hale Brading (Jim Braden)

On 21st November, 1963, Brading arrived in Dallas with a man named Morgan Brown. They stayed in Suite 301 of the Cabana Motel. Later that day Brading visited the offices of Texas oil billionaire Haroldson L. Hunt. It is believed that Jack Ruby was in the offices at the same time as Brading.

After the assassination of John F. Kennedy, Brading was arrested and taken in for interrogation because he had been "acting suspiciously" in the Dal-Tex Building, overlooking Dealey Plaza. Brading told the police he was in Dallas on oil business and had gone into the building to make a phone call. Brading was released without charge.

Brading returned to his room at the Cabana Motel. It was later established that Jack Ruby visited the motel around midnight. - Spartacus Brading was a thug working for Morgan Brown aka Morgan Oil California likely a CIA proprietary interest as Zapata Petroleum was.

The Agent's Objective

The Agent's Objective by Mark Lane FORGIVE MY GRIEF IV p. 127

Barrett said Brading in November, 1963, "had expressed a kind of contempt" for Brown over a losing financial transaction with him and "wanted as little to do with him as possible." The parole officer (Barret) said he was surprised to learn they traveled together to Dallas on Nov. 21 and shared the same hotel suite. He also noted, however, that traveling with Brown may have been cause for revoking Brading's parole.

An FBI agent who handled post-assassination developments was most intrigued that Brown checked out for Brading and himself while Brading was still waiting to be interrogated in the sheriffs - office.

Of Brading and his compatriots were involved in a shady deal in Dallas, unconnected with the assassination, they may have wanted to flee the area with all the lawmen converging on Dallas, the agent said. On the other hand, he could imagine them sitting tight in Dallas until their planned departure on Nov. 24 because any shady deal would probably go undetected with the police totally preoccupied with the assassination.

The FBI's mission, the agent said, was to "disprove any connection at all with the assassination" with people they interviewed. Brading was no exception, be said. "We found absolutely nothingwhatsoever that connects this guy with the assassination."

Parole officer Barrett said he also was surprised to learn that Donald D. Ford, a vice-president of J. Pam Getty's Tidewater Oil Co. offices in Houston did not remember nor- had records of any contact with Brading when Brading traveled to Houston on September 15, 1961

> Permission for Brading to make the 1 0-day business trip to Houston "in connection with Tidewater Oil Co. litigation" was asked the U. S. Parole Board on Sept. 11, 1963, one day after the California Department of Motor Vehicles had changed the name on his license from Eugene Hale Brading to Jim Braden for "business reasons."

Background [edit]

Meyer was born in 1920, the son of a diplomat and grandson of a New York State Democratic chairman. He attended elite schools and entered Yale University in 1939.

Activities [edit]

Cord Meyer was personally recruited into the CIA by Allen Dulles in 1951. He was soon running its International Organizations Division. Alfred McCoy reports that by 1972, the job had turned him "from a liberal idealist into “a relentless, implacable advocate for his own ideas”."[2]

Operation Mockingbird [edit]

Meyer tried but failed to suppress publication of Alfred McCoy's 1972 book, The Politics of Heroin in Southeast Asia, an early expose of CIA Drug Trafficking. [2].

JFK assassination [edit]

In January 2004, E. Howard Hunt gave a taped interview claiming that Lyndon Johnson instigated the JFK assassination, and that the key organisers were Cord Meyer, David Atlee Phillips, David Sánchez Morales and Frank Sturgis.[3] Mark Gorton states that Meyer was in charge of the cover up operation.

Wife's murder [edit]

Cord Meyer's wife, Mary Pinchot Meyer, was shot dead in 1964 as she walked along the towpath of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal in Georgetown. The crime remains unsolved. After her death, Mrs. Meyer's sister and brother-in-law said they saw the top C.I.A. counterintelligence officer, James Jesus Angleton try to break into her home and take her diary,[1] which was never publicly released.[4]

RETROPOLIS A plane crash 50 years ago changed the course of U.S. history By James D. Robenalt December 8, 2022 at 7:00 a.m. EST

On the afternoon of Dec. 8, 1972, a Boeing 737 crashed into a residential neighborhood in Chicago, a mile and a half from Midway International Airport, where the flight — United Airlines Flight 553 — was headed for a layover between Washington National Airport and Omaha. Forty-three of the 61 people onboard were killed, as were two residents of a house where the plane came to rest.

Almost immediately, FBI agents descended on the scene, according to reports at the time.

The crash, a tragedy in its own right, quickly became something more: a source of conspiracy theories and a catalyst that helped bring the Watergate scandal to its conclusion.

George Collins, a congressman and a founder of the Congressional Black Caucus, was one of the passengers killed. So was Michele Clark, a young television correspondent for CBS News.

But public attention focused on another passenger, Dorothy Hunt. Once her badly burned corpse was identified using jewelry recovered on her body, reporters, already frenzied by Watergate, went into overdrive.

Dorothy Hunt was the spouse of one of the Watergate ringleaders, former CIA operative E. Howard Hunt. Hunt was under indictment in Washington, D.C., facing a trial with his co-defendants that was scheduled to begin the second week of January 1973.

E. Howard Hunt Jr., Watergate conspirator and retired CIA official, in January 1973. (AP)

Dorothy was later identified as the “paymistress” of hush money to the Watergate defendants and their families to keep the burglars from cooperating with authorities and testifying at the trial.

Investigators combed through the wreckage and found a packet of $100 bills totaling $10,000 in a purse belonging to Dorothy Hunt. It was also discovered that she had taken out a $225,000 flight insurance policy at Washington National Airport before departing.

How the Watergate scandal broke to the world: A visual timeline

Immediately, questions were asked: Was Hunt murdered to keep her from revealing that the White House was in on the coverup? Was a message being sent to all the Watergate defendants?

There is no question that Dorothy and Howard Hunt had been expressing extreme frustration with the lack of responsiveness by President Richard M. Nixon’s inner circle and the erratic hush money payments that Howard complained were coming in "minor dribs and drabs." After Nixon's landslide victory in November 1972, Howard called his contact in the White House, Charles Colson, to warn that money was becoming a problem.

"The stakes are very, very high," Howard told Colson in a call Colson recorded on his Dictabelt, "and this thing must not break apart for foolish reasons."

Three weeks later, Dorothy Hunt was dead.

If Nixon knew of a plot to kill Dorothy Hunt, he did a good job hiding it on his secret White House tapes. The day after the crash, Nixon took a call from Colson at Camp David, which was recorded by a phone in the study that automatically activated when Nixon was in residence.

"I just got a terribly tragic bit of news," Colson announced three minutes into the conversation. "That plane crash — Howard Hunt's wife was on it." Nixon interjected with real surprise in his voice, "His wife is dead?" Colson responded, "Yes sir, she was killed in that plane crash in Chicago."

Nixon was thunderstruck. "Oh my God!" he exclaimed.

How Martha Mitchell's firing of a bodyguard spurred Watergate scandal

Colson called it a “tragedy” and wondered how Howard Hunt would “survive it, with what he’s gone through.” Colson knew Dorothy Hunt well, as the families socialized after Hunt and Colson met at alumni events for Brown University graduates in the Washington area. “She was an extraordinary woman, just extraordinary,” Colson told the president, adding, “a rare, gifted woman, a multilinguist, brilliant, a lot of charm.”

And maybe more than that: According to Howard Hunt’s 2007 autobiography, Dorothy acted as a source and asset for the CIA.

Paris 1949

Before Paris and Going into Paris

In Paris Howard Hunt worked for Harriman as a speech writer and film producer although it is more than likely Hunt was actually working for both Harriman's OEEC offce and for Wisner's Office of Policy Cordination PC unit that were competing propogandan and policy offices.

The double agent would be Hunt's modis operandi in later years when he "retired" from CIA and joined Nixon's covert-ops team. In his book, American Spy, Hunt writes that the relationship between Dorothy and he grew stronger, and by September he realized that he wanted to spend the rest of his life with this "feisty woman."

For her part, Dorothy had started divorce proceedings in Paris to end her earlier disastrous marriage to the Marquis.

By all accounts this seems to have been a love at first sight fairytale. I say "seems" to have been. In researching this book I came across this entry in CIA files declassified under the Freedom of Information Act. What follows is the entry:

Dorothy Wetzel worked for the State Department in Bern, Switzerland, between July 1944 and January 1946. From April 1946 to May 1947, DOROTHY HUNT worked for the Treasury Department, Shanghai, China. She joined Economic Cooperation Administration in April 1948. She married HOWARD HUNT on September 7, 1949. The CIA reported that "DOROTHY LOUISE HUNT [0S 355,750] was investigated for Agency employment in 1948.

Her former husband [Goutiere] was described as an habitual drunkard and not inclined to remain in any one place for any length of time. She did not enter on duty, having accepted a position with the Economic Cooperation Administration in Paris. Our Paris sources later reported that Subject's wife was formerly his mistress and was openly flouted as such for several months. She was then described as an amoral and dangerous individual who underhandedly attacked those persons who incurred her enmity." [Emphasis added.]

The "subject" was E. Howard Hunt and these entries came from his file.

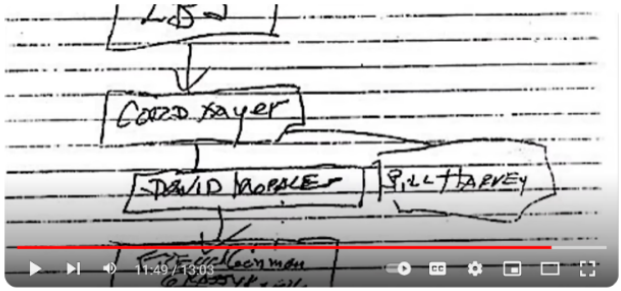
It claims that Dorothy was Hunt's mistress and he openly flaunted her as such!

Openly flaunted her? I would normally consider this a disparaging remark if I felt it were true.

However knowing that Dorothy had applied for a CIA (OPC) position and "did not enter on duty" leads me to suspect that Dorothy may have been keeping tabs on Harriman, Hunt et al. for OPC under the protective cover of Harriman's Offce of Economic Cooperation unit.

Since E. Howard Hunt sketches on paper Brahim Cord Myers and LBJ were the two main kingpins of the "big event" in Dallas his globalism and ties to Harriman as Dorothy was tied t Harriman are noteworthy.

This book (one of three very important books) Dorothy: an amoral and dangerous woman" draws its name for the contempt it displayed for the woman it later killed.



The Assassination of JFK headed by LBJ and Cord Myer per E. Howard Hunt deathbed confession on video

In St John Hunt's book Dorothy he talks about his mother Dorothy going to work for global world planner Averell Harriman.

From April to October 1946, Averell Harriman was ambassador to Britain, but he was soon appointed to become United States Secretary of Commerce under President Harry S. Truman to replace Henry A. Wallace, a critic of Truman's foreign policies.

In 1948, Averell Harriman was put in charge of the Marshall Plan. In Paris, he became friendly with the CIA agent Irving Brown, who organised anti-communist unions and organisations. Harriman was then sent to the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

In 1949, the Defense Secretary James Forrestal committed suicide and afterwards Harriman and his wife Marie virtually adopted Forrestal's son Michael. Harriman paid tuition for Michael Forrestal when he attended Harvard Law School and made him make connections with New York's elite when he went into work at a law firm. Michael Forrestal served as a protege of Harriman's and later followed him into the Kennedy administration.

A for the CIA that Richard Nixon created as US Representative in 1949 we should look at Cord Meyer a globalist alley of James Jesus Angleton and Averell Harriman whom Dorothy was on her way to work for.

Cord Meyer IV (/ˈmaɪ.ər/; November 10, 1920 – March 13, 2001) was a war veteran, a world federalist, a CIA official and a writer. After serving in World War II as a Marine officer in the Pacific War, where he was both injured and decorated, he led the United World Federalists in the years after the war. Around 1949, he began working for the CIA, where he became a high-level operative, retiring in 1977.

Citizens for Global Solutions is a grassroot level membership organization[1] in the United States working towards establishment of world government[2] in order to avoid future atomic wars.

It has promoted world federal government, United Nations reform, legislative resolutions, and amendments to the U.S. Constitution to favor world federal government.

The organization's lineage can be traced back to its precursor, the World Federalists, established in 1941. This group subsequently merged with other organizations in 1943 to create Federal World Government, Inc. which evolved into World Federalists, USA in 1945, and in 1947, it transformed into the United World Federalists (UWF).

On February 23, 1947,[7] five world federalist organizations - Americans United for World Government (AUWG), World Federalists, USA, Student Federalists, Georgia World Citizens Committee (GWCC), and the Massachusetts Committee for World Federation (MCWF) - merged to form the United World Federalists, Inc. (UWF).[8][1] Cord Meyer IV was the first president of the organization, with Grenville Clark, Thomas K.

Finletter, Wallace Trevor Holiday serving as vice-presidents.

In the year 1948, the organization had more than 34,000 members, including 7,000 students.[3] This number grew to more than 50,000 members in early 1950s.

From 1945 to 1958 , Meyer was married to Mary Pinchot, who was later romantically linked to President John F. Kennedy. Her murder in 1964, eleven months after Kennedy's assassination, remains unresolved. They would all vation together with James Jeuss Angleton that Mary Pinochot thought was becoming increasingly paranoid.

Albert Einstein In year 1948, Cord Meyer was invited to attend the meeting of Emergency Committee of Atomic Scientists (ECAS) and he met Albert Einstein,[10][11] Leo Szilard and many of the other leading nuclear physicists.[1] It was when Albert Einstein joined UWF as a member of the Advisory Board[12] and showed his support. Einstein and ECAS assisted UEF in fundraising on numerous occasions[1] and also provided supporting material.

Einstein described United World Federalists as: "the group nearest to our aspirations".

The photo of Cord Meyer meeting with Albert Einstein in 1948[1] has been widely circulated on the internet and social media, with the false claims of Einstein being with his therapist.

St. John Hunt - .

From St. John Hunt book Dorothy

I can't imagine what a thrill it must have been for Dorothy to come to Paris after having barely escaped death at the hands of Communist forces in China.

Dorothy told me (St. John Hunt her son) many years later that she was on one of the last trains allowed to travel freely out of Shanghai. It was getting increasingly more dangerous to move about and Mao's forces might have executed this American "spy" traveling with her cash and her gun. No one would have known what had happened to her.

On the train dressed in shabby clothing, crammed into a passenger car, hundreds of people clambering and yelling, chickens and goats and children wailing, not knowing whether she would make her escape.

Dorothy kept her pearl handled pistol strapped safely under her skirt. She carried two suitcases of cash, and whatever she could fit in her oversized handbag to bribe her way out of trouble — if she needed to. When she recounted this harrowing story to me I asked her how was it that she had so much money?

She laughed lightly and crinkled her nose saying that paper currency was basically worthless and the two suitcases must have amounted to only a few hundred American dollars!

As the over crowded train left the city, Dorothy held her face down and quietly wiped the tears from her eyes. Hour after hour the train moved slowly on Even more, she did it on her own.

That last month of her life had been so horrible and such an emotional roller coaster ride. She felt relieved it was over, and she was back on track with a fresh outlook on life. She was confidant that her new job as secretary to Ambassador Averell Harriman would be rewarding and meaningful.

Even more, she did it on her own. That last month of her life had been so horrible and such an emotional roller coaster ride. She felt relieved it was over, and she was back on track with a fresh outlook on life. She was confidant that her new job as secretary to Ambassador Averell Harriman would be rewarding and meaningful.

On that long flight from New York, Dorothy couldn't help feeling excited when she thought about Paris' legendary nightlife. She also couldn't get a young man out of her thoughts. She had met him at a party before she left Washington D.C., and she had gone out on a date with him. He was a Harriman employee named Hunt, Everette Howard Hunt. She called him Howard.

The Marshall Plan was named after George Marshall, United States Army Chief of Staff from 1939 to 1945, and Secretary of State from 1947 until 1949. He was nominated Secretary of Defense in 1950, and he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1953 for his role as architect of the Marshall Plan. On June 5th, 1947 he addressed Harvard.

University in a speech which would be the defining moment in his life and lead to the most important foreign policy initiative in American history. From this speech came the formation of the Organization for European Economic Co-operation (OEEC) in 1948 whose mandate was to work on a joint recovery program and supervise the distribution of aid.

It's interesting to note that some countries who had been victims of Germany's blitzkrieg hesitated in accepting what appeared to be the helping hand of the United States. In truth, the Marshall Plan did call for huge financial loans for many of Europe's war ravaged countries with the profit on the side of the United States, virtually enslaving these destitute countries under United States policy. (A point my father Jim Donegan made especially if the indebted country has austerity or other measures backed by anti democratic suppression of resistance to debt enforcement)

The Marshall Plan was the lesser of two evils.

Americans felt that we must extend aid in the form of financial credit, food, and materials for rebuilding infrastructure to prevent the continent from embracing communism. After Europe was liberated from the Nazis, there was a very serious possibility of influence from communist Russia.

Remember, Russia had also won the war and consequently along with England they were allowed to share in the spoils of the victorious.

In fact with the reforms of Watergate and less use of CIA contractors and many CIA officers being fired, a vacuum had been created in the financial lives of many, infact many of whom were felons or known mafia and may have had regular employment problems.

Hushing the Husher

Earlier in St John Hunt's book Dorothy on the murder of Dorothy

What did Hunt know that terrified Nixon so savagely?

Many have speculated. The reason for Watergate lies at the very core of the relationship that Hunt had with his Commander and Chief.

Unknown to most people, E. Howard Hunt and Richard Nixon had known each other as far back as 1950, when according to Lamar Waldron, the two met quite by chance in Washington D.C. — at a restaurant. Hunt took it upon himself to compliment Nixon on his pursuit of Alger Hiss. The young Congressman Nixon and the newly appointed CIA agent ended up having dinner together for about an hour.

In 1958 Hunt was station chief of Montevideo,Uruguay when Vice President Nixon stopped there on his whirlwind foreign-policy tour of Latin America.

While in Uruguay, Nixon, who remembered Hunt from their dinner several years before met with Hunt and discussed Hunt's success at overthrowing the Arbenz government in Guatemala [in 1954].

[Note that Chauncey Holt without mentioning E. Howard Hunt describes this in Self Potrait of a Scoundrel as Operation Diablo. [The Devil in Gautamala].

The meeting went well and after Nixon returned to Washington, Hunt was told he would soon be working on a new covert operation being pushed by Vice President Nixon.

[Was this for Indonesia?]

Prouty says this is when Vice President Nixon started planning for Indonesia using Prouty himslef to coordinate with USAF and Prouty goes into extnesive detail.]

This ultra secret project was similar to the Guatemalan operation but must be handled even more carefully. [Because of covert ties to the Royal Family themselves]

Howard Hunt wrote that "it's extremely sensitive. Eisenhower insists on complete deniability."

His superior told him the target was "Castro — we're taking down Fidel Castro.[possible trigger for war also could be the subject of talks]

Starting in 1959, Nixon was the key player in a secret Nixon-CIA plan to assassinate Fidel Castro. Even the plan was hidden from most CIA offcials, and it certainly was layered with deniability. It was with this deniability in mind that the Mafia was brought into the murder plot. If anything should go wrong,

The White House and the CIA could hide behind the Mafia as the perpetrators of this evil deed. The Mafia was a logical choice. They had the motive; they had lost millions and millions of gambling and drug money when Castro closed the Havana casinos, and Cuba could no longer be the staging ground for drug smuggling into the United States and they had the means; mob hit men were a well known enforcement arm of the Mafia.

Later in St John Hunt's book Dorothy on the murder of Dorothy

Chapter Eighteen Dorothy: Watergate Paymaster

One of the last pictures of Dorothy, England, Summer 1972. Chapter Eighteen dorothy: Watergate Paymaster

On a June 30th tape Nixon told his aide H.R. Haldeman: "I'll pardon the bastards." On June 29th, Nixon's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach had $75,000 in cash delivered to the defendants and their attorneys. Over the next three months some $219,000 would be distributed with at least another $23 7,000 after that.

In a July White House taped meeting with Haldeman, Nixon called the hush money for Hunt and the others a "considerable cost," but said, "It's worth it."

Nixon went on to say, That's what the money is for they have to be paid. That's all there is to that."

Keeping Hunt happy was a top priority for Richard Nixon. There seemed to be no shortage of cash. There was cash coming from the Committee to Re-elect the President (CREEP), and another source; Bebe Rebozo. Rebozo was a close friend and supporter of Nixon for many years. He was a financier and mob connected. There is much evidence to show that the Mob had made numerous "loans" and "payoffs" to Nixon through Rebozo. Now Rebozo funneled Mob money to Artime.

Nixon, on his White House tapes referred to this particular hush money as "under the cover of the Cuban Committee." …

[St John Hunt quoting "The President's Private Eye talks about the payments Dorothy was calculating along with trying to minimize the number of devilries to lower risks of detection.

She acted like a gambling casino pit boss, directing the dealer, counting the chips, figuring the odds, making sure her cut was secure.

She didn't want to listen to the strictures binding my position as courier of the money. She also raised the ante each time I spoke with her.

At first, she told me that she had lost her job over the Watergate scandal including her [own] medical benefits.

She said somebody had to take care of those.

She started calculating everybody's [else's] needs and came up with a minimum figure of $3,000 a month, but as she didn't want to worry about the monthly delivery from the post man, it was better, she said, to get a big chunk up front to relieve the pressure on everybody.

"So let's start with $10,000 or $15,000 apiece to get this thing off the ground," she said. She wanted the advance to cover five months of needed living expenses.

She said Barker, Sturgis, Gonzales, and Martinez needed at least $14,000 apiece and Barker need another $10,000 for bail, $10,000 more under the table, and $3,000 more "other expenses." Twenty- five grand apiece were needed for Sturgis, Gonzales, and Martinez's attorneys. I told Mrs. Hunt to slow down. Now she was talking about $400,000 or maybe $450,000. That wasn't even close to the amount Dean had told Kalmbach to raise when they met in Lafayette Park.

What we know now is Dorothy, E. Howard Hunt, Chauncey Holt, and others had the goods on the Averall Harriman Deep State hit on JFK, and Dorothy was part of the demands on Nixon for cover-up money.

Did the CIA kill JFK and Lee Harvey Oswald and Dorothy Hunt to conceal its plans?

His name was Charles Harrelson said to me "are you O'Malley?" I said yes he said "I'm Harrelson."

Charles Harrelson was a contract killer now in prison for killing Texas Federal Judge John wood when arrested for woods killing Harrelson claimed killing a judge was nothing to someone who had killed a president Chauncey Holt says he'd been told to stay in the Book Depository parking lot wait for some sort of incident and if anything went wrong he should run to a specific boxcar on a parked train.

Then he heard shots and ran you could still hear that people yelling that the President had been shot so I knew that we had been we had been set up and there is more than just Holt's word there is also his face.

Mr. Lewis Gibson is the Houston Police Department's forensic artist she made comparisons of Holt and the in the photographs this is just conclusive to me that that's the same man she also compared pictures of Charles Harrelson with the photo again "a perfect match I'll stake my reputation on it for sure."

Chauncey Holt does not claim to know who shot Kennedy but he says he is sure most of the shots did not come from the Book Depository but came from close by from the grassy knoll.

If I am believed it would lay to rest these ideas that Jack Ruby and Lee Harvey Oswald were just nuts that passed in the night.

we've (the news station airing the live interview) been researching Chauncey whole story talking to scholars ex CIA agents and many others some say whole story is bunk but others believe him and all admit that if he is a fake he's not just a wacko he is playing either a well schooled elaborately or he's telling the truth .

John sweetie have you talked to Charlie - Charles Harrelson about it we have not talked to Charles Harrelson yet he is currently in Marion Illinois in the federal penitentiary we have are in the process of asking for permission to talk because anybody corroborated this story that he's telling a number of individuals that we've spoken to have corroborated little bits and pieces of it.

one of the problems is the story that he tells is so detailed that goes all the way back to 1941 (being kicked out of flight school Army Air Corp but being brought back in Pearl Harbor it looks like) and carries on all the way through the 80s the Kennedy portion of the story that he tells is just a very small part of course it's the most important right now fascinating. More and more paper trail and death bed confessions authentic this.

The first step is a look at the Western power structure and its key players most visible in World War II as the Allies.

Brown Brothers Harriman & Co. (BBH) is the oldest and one of the largest private investment banks in the United States. In 1931, the merger of Brown Brothers & Co. (founded in 1818) and Harriman Brothers & ; Co. formed the current BBH.

Brown Brothers Harriman is also notable for the number of influential American politicians, government appointees, and Cabinet members who have worked at the company, such as W. Averell Harriman, Prescott Bush, Robert A. Lovett (undersecretary of Defense 1952 responsible for Korean War ATSUGI), Richard W. Fisher, Robert Roosa, and Alan Greenspan.

In these years James Jesus Angleton and those connected with Brown Brothers Harriman along with the Dulles brothers and Rockefeller funds were using "policy coordination" of world planning with the Vaticam, Knights of Malta, Vatican Bank (Unholy Alliance With Mafia) and the Devils Chessboard (Talbot) of shaping (or overthrowing sneaking in 'local" support for overthrows of socialissts leaders) in the post WWII and in realisty since 1902 Western system of international influence.

James Jesus Angleton (December 9, 1917 – May 11, 1987) was an American intelligence operative who served as chief of counterintelligence for the Central Intelligence Agency from 1954 to 1975. According to Director of Central Intelligence Richard Helms, Angleton was "recognized as the dominant counterintelligence figure in the non-communist world".

Angleton served in the Office of Strategic Services, a wartime predecessor to the CIA, in Italy and London during World War II. After the war, he returned to Washington, D.C. to become one of the founding officers of the CIA. He was initially responsible for the collection of foreign intelligence and liaison with counterpart organizations in allied countries. In 1954, Allen Dulles promoted Angleton to chief of the Counterintelligence Staff.

James Jesus Angleton was born December 9, 1917, in Boise, Idaho to James Hugh Angleton (1888–1973) and Carmen Mercedes Moreno (1898–1985). Both James Hugh and James Jesus were in the OSS and it was Jesus who worked with the Italian Mafia and Vatican in intelligence efforts to identify Nazi operatives by face and locations. Angleton's tour in Italy as an intelligence officer is regarded by biographer Jefferson Morley as a critical turn not only in his professional life. His personal liaisons with Italian Mafia figures helped the CIA in the immediate postwar period.

In 1973, William Colby was named Director of Central Intelligence by Richard Nixon. Colby reorganized the CIA in an effort to curb Angleton's influence and weaken the Counterintelligence branch, beginning by stripping him of control over the Israel desk. Colby then demanded Angleton's resignation.

Angleton came to public attention when the Church Committee (formally the Senate Select Committee to Study Governmental Operations with Respect to Intelligence Activities), probed the CIA for information on domestic surveillance, specifically the operation known as HT Lingual, as well as assassination plots and the death of John F. Kennedy.

In 1943, James Jesus Angleton joined the U.S. Army. During World War II, Angleton served in the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) and led its Italian branch.[1] He also served in London under Norman Holmes Pearson in the X-2 Counter Espionage Branch of the OSS. Following that as high ranking official in the CIA James Jessus Angleton was the go between for world and Vatican intelligence units around the world and is said by some to have been a Shadow NWO government head.

The Walker family of of Bush family line as well the Rockefeller's and Harriman family (several of themn) have close business and espionage partners for 100 years as the War Industry Board at the close of WWII help fund and create these massive elite families in the defense and espionage cabal most of it centered in London. Media influences have been intentional and are heavily funded from Rockefeller Center.

William Stephenson and Wild Bill Donovan

Around 1920, the title the Secret Intelligence Service (SIS) was adopted. This is the official title the Service has continued to use ever since. The origins of the use of 'MI6' are to be found at the start of the Second World War when this abbreviation was adopted as a flag of convenience for SIS.

William Stephenson, the British envoy to the U.S. during WWII, was an intelligence operative with a codename “Intrepid”. In May 1940 he handed over a proposal to Donovan for setting up an American intelligence agency. Roosevelt, who knew Donovan from Columbia, appointed him Coordinator of Information for the White House. Since he had no experience in propaganda work, the office was split in June 1942, into Office of War Information and the Office of Strategic Services (OSS). Donovan was made head of the OSS.

Special Intelligence Service - In June 1940, the FBI created a Special Intelligence Service (SIS) to collect intelligence in the western hemisphere, especially against Nazi activities. In 1947, a multi-volume history of this program was written.

The Special Intelligence Service was a covert counterintelligence branch of the United States Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) located in South America during World War II. It was established to monitor the activities of Nazi and pro-Nazi groups in Central and South America. The organization was a forerunner to the Central Intelligence Agency.

It is commonly assumed that Assistant Director Percy E. "Sam" Foxworth was the first Chief of the SIS. He and SIS agent Harold Dennis Haberfeld died in a plane crash on 15 January 1943. The second Chief appears to have been Jerome Doyle.

The front for the organization was a law firm, the Importers and Exporters Service Company, which operated out of room 4332 of the International Building, 30 Rockefeller Center (a.k.a. the RCA Building), from August 1940. The organization took some time to become fully operational, due to language and cultural differences, but within a year the SIS had a number of agents in place under various covers.

Following the war the SIS was disbanded, having been in operation in 1940–1946. After it was disbanded, its region of operation was incorporated into the responsibilities of the newly formed Central Intelligence Agency. Concurrently, the FBI would expand its own primarily domestic counterintelligence role to hunt spies and combat espionage.

This organization placed more than 340 undercover agents in regions of Latin America. They operated for seven years, and by 1946 a total of 887 Axis spies had been discovered. Also found were 281 agents of Axis propaganda, 222 smugglers shipping important war materials, and more than 100 saboteurs and other operatives. It located 24 secret Axis radio stations and confiscated 40 radio transmitters and 18 receiving sets.

In Latin America, the SIS worked with the Basque Intelligence Service (BIS),[5] which had been established by Spanish Basques, living in exile as a result of the Spanish Civil War.

When the CIA was sketched out as a theoretical structure they were the Special Activities Unit and internal documentation from the Watergate break-in remains that use the SIU term.

The corresponding Espionage unit of the FBI that operates worldwide is the SIS.

The Assassination of General Patton retrieved from the Daily Pakistan and copied or modified to here

Finally, we come to General Donovan, the head of the OSS, and to the OSS itself. Donovan studied at Columbia and his results have been described as “atrocious” by Eustace Mullins. He was picked up by two professors with deep connections to the banking elite for his advancement. He had an affair with the wife of August Belmont who was the official Rothschild representative in the U.S. During the war he was selected for the notorious Belgian Relief Commission, a scam of the bankers for providing food to the German army, under the name of relief to Belgians, to prolong the war. J.P. Morgan reportedly paid $200,000 to Donovan for intelligence work in Europe pertaining to $2 billion bonds floated by J.P. Morgan in postwar Europe. Thus Donovan was deeply tied to the international banking families.

William Stephenson, the British envoy to the U.S. during WWII, was an intelligence operative with a codename “Intrepid”. In May 1940 he handed over a proposal to Donovan for setting up an American intelligence agency. Roosevelt, who knew Donovan from Columbia, appointed him Coordinator of Information for the White House. Since he had no experience in propaganda work, the office was split in June 1942, into Office of War Information and the Office of Strategic Services (OSS). Donovan was made head of the OSS.

Eustace Mullins writes: “The ‘new’ agency was from the outset, merely an outpost of British intelligence. On September 18, 1941, Col. E. I. Jacob, Churchill’s military secretary, was informed by Maj. Desmond Church, Churchill’s liaison with the British Secret Service: ‘Another most secret fact of which the Prime Minister is aware is that to all intents and purposes U.S. security is being run for them at the President’s request by the British. A British officer sits in Washington with Mr. Edgar Hoover and General Bill Donovan for this purpose. It is of course essential that this fact should not be known.’”

William Stephenson reported to his head Stewart Menzies in the British intelligence (MI6): “You can imagine how relieved I am after three months of battle and jockeying for position that our man [Donovan] is in a position of such importance to our efforts.” Not only that, FDR told William Stephenson, “I am your biggest undercover agent.” One must note that Britain was the real den of the international banking families, the core of the High Cabal, ever since the Bank of England was set up in 1696. And FDR admitted to being an agent of the High Cabal by calling himself an undercover agent of the British. The same was true of Bill Donovan.

Now it was in the year 1972 that Douglas Bazata told the journalist Joy Billington, who was doing a story on his art, on the condition that she would not publish it, that he was involved in the assassination of General Patton. Then, on September 25, 1979, Bazata stood up at a gathering of ex-intelligence officers at the Hilton Hotel in Washington D.C., and in response to a managed question by Joy Billington, stated the following: “For diverse political reasons, many extremely high ranking persons hated Patton. I know who killed him for I was the one who was hired to do it. Ten thousand dollars. General William Donovan, Director of OSS, entrusted me with the mission. I set up the accident. Since he didn’t die in the accident, he was kept in isolation in the hospital where he was killed by an injection.”

The story was a bombshell but the mainstream media completely ignored it! …

Who Barrack OBama Jr is

This section on Barrack Obama Jr is Dedicated to Ted Gunderson and John DeCamp

Prior to WWII, Indonesia was a Dutch colony. The Dutch took control of the islands in the early 17th century and called it the Dutch East Indies. The Dutch held control over Indonesia until 1942, when the Japanese took control of the region. The Japanese controlled the region until 1945. In 1945, the Indonesians declared their independence from the Japanese empire.

Since the late 1950's, the CIA sought to thwart Communism in Indonesia as it feared a communist Indonesia would also lead to a communist Japan.[9][unreliable source?][better source needed]

Ed Donegan asserts James and Glorian Donegan (perhaps in 1951 or 1952) were pressured that in return for living under hidden identity (a Kutschera - Windsor) in the US they would offer an egg or eggs as others probably did as well (perhaps Marilyn Monroe or Julie Andrews) or sperm into hidden DNA studies. Barrack Obama Jr was a recipient of that DNA, at least, and likely others and others from other bastard children.

In 1926 Glorian Donegan is born. In 1952 Glorian Donegan marries James Donegan perhaps meeting at ATSUGI in reality. They agree under pressure. Prouty and Nixon and others there like Dean Rusk and Lovett and others need an infant who can be raised by the CIA Indonesia and it will be Barrack Obama Jr. not born independently but in the same surrogacy or IVF with Ed Donegan myself 1961 November 18 (birth certificate November 19) Los Angles County Manhattan Beach City California, not far from Palm Springs and the area we were living and JFK was miles from that birth in Santa Monica with Patricia Kennedy and Peter Lawford.

Sukarno , a "fierce nationalist," (who is not Suharto the Generalisimo Bannana Republic Dicator the CIA liked instead) became the first democratically elected President of Indonesia. He tried to balance the differing ideologies of Indonesia at the time, including nationalist, religious, and purely political interests, including the PKI (Communist Party of Indonesia). Though Sukarno was, himself a nationalist, he disallowed anti-communist press to mobilize PKI political support for his own political agenda in 1958. In this delicate balancing act, Sukarno attempted to court both sides of the Cold War. Immediately following his visit to the United States of America, he visited both the Chinese and Soviet communist governments. The United States interpreted these visits as Sukarno choosing the Communist Side.

How Marilyn Monroe (taken care of by Joseph Kennedy Sr.) and Barrack Obama Jr fit together Barrack Obama Jr. is the nephew of Marilyn Monroe and shares his childhood events and characteristics with her.

The CIA with the FBI and NSA and US Dept of Defense Defense Intelligence Agency DIA (Formerly Office of Special Operations OSO) use system in subversion and overthrow. Any white British or American in a foreign land my be rejected, but mixed race families with at least on parent in a country (that has been Targeted by Great Britain and the USA) may have with them an infant who will gain a birtch certificate in the foreign land or be born there.

This is generally a matter of paperwork and not the real story. Often the newborn has concealed parents, and may even be from IVF.

It is my theory Barrack Obama Jr. literal was the Chosen One. Maria Kutschera herself was pregnant out of wedlock and left the Convent in Salzburg Austria 1925. In 1926 my best guess is while in the USA somewhere she gave birth to several children who lived under adoptive families under changed names. The OSS and CIA and Jesuits were cooperating with this.

Maria Kutschera (niece of Austrian SS Franz Kutschera) is likely the mother of Norma Jean later known as Marilyn Monroe that Norma Hodges of the CIA assassinated. Maria Kutchera lived much of her life in North Carolina. My mother was also a Maria Kutchera descendant born (as Marlin Monroe was and Princess Elizabeth was (later Queen Elizabeth II married to Prince Phillip of Greece. All 1926 births.

It had been known since about 1902 the British Royal family had a defect running in it. While Princess Elizabeth was doing just fine in 1951 expecting to become QEII her father had the defect and her children might. More was being learned. Her father Prince Albert before he became king had some progeny all around the world not just Princess Elizabeth, and that progeny was through the Prince, Prince Albert, and is showgirl, Maria Kutschera the world famous singer.

The British and American (USA) Subversion and Overthrow teams found this very useful. Picking the best of out-of-wedlock nobility (or recognized nobility) to interbreed around the world and have family ties of Great Houses was the way Mary of Teck (Romania and wife of Speech Defect King George VI) advocates. World peace was available if they were biologically related to other great houses in a very large gene pool. (I have asserted Mary Poppins is based on her.)

The plan was those who had "tiger blood" kept it a secret and may have had partial or full or no information about the real plan. Some were murdered as infants or or later in their life. Inf fact full massacres occurred at certain locations like Kamloops Canada where 200 children were killed and hidden.

It wasn't just a written language problem the severe ADHD produced other symptoms like trouble swallowing and digesting, acadmeic work expected of a royal, and create the (misleading) appearance of retardation. Emotions were as poorly regulated as other areas of close attention, and were hard to kee in check.

Dr. Sidney Gottlieb and Dr Max Jacobson work on the problem

They did (as did powerful free masons) have files on these families and watched and when necessary assassinated them.

Because the best of them were cherry picked as CIA Free Mason Agents of Influence around the world the worst of them (those who had visible defects) became a threat as those individuals could be found to have FOXP2 that still may shown in desendes of parents who did not show it.

The Profile of these children

On paper they have parents but is a willingness to be a paperwork parent only. Author Reuven Koret for Israeli Insider writes -

"There is, too, a curious comment that reputed mother of Barrack Obaam Jr Stanley Ann Dunham reportedly made after high school, remembered by a friend, that "I don't need to get married or date to have a baby."

As for the person on paper claiming to be the father of Barrack Obama Jr Mr Koret writes this -

"Obama Senior was murdered in Kenya in 1982 to silence him. Interesting story re: his sister Auma as well -- she appears to be a full sister, not a half-sister as he is claiming, i.e. they share the same mother. She was ordered back to Kenya in 2007 to prevent DNA testing .... CIA did a DNA test on the grandparents, using saliva from glasses, which conclusively rules out any relationship between Obama and the Dunhams.

In fact much like Marilyn Monroe neithr the alleged mother nor the alleged father had much role in the infant after birth, Obama Jr. was moved to Seatle from Hawaii where the CIA mother of Stanly Ann Dunham lived, Magely Payne (Dunham).

Effectively an orphan after being abandoned by the paperwork mother who in fact was seen not pregnant in bikini in Hawaiian at the time she was allegedly pregnant with Barrack Obama Jr.

Mr Koret writes in the same article quoting a source "There are said to be photos of Ann Dunham on Waikiki Beach taken in or about July 1961, when she is supposed to have been in her third trimester, in a bikini, taken by a fellow female student. AD is clearly not pregnant. Media have not yet talked to fellow students, but it can't be long. There are bound to be other photos of AD in existence taken during the alleged 2nd and 3rd trimesters. Obama campaign are terrified some one will press for her medical records, which have been accessed by CIA."

As Wayne Madsen notes all these figures who are supposedly the family had little initially to do the the newborn, not present at all as parents in the first two years, that was Seattle and the CIA caretaker.

Lolo Soetoro (EYD: Lolo Sutoro; Javanese pronunciation: [ˈlɔlɔ suːˈtɒrɒː]; 2 January 1935 – 2 March 1987), also known as Lolo Soetoro Mangunharjo[2][3] or Mangundikardjo,[4] was an Indonesian geographer who was the stepfather of Barack Obama, the 44th president of the United States.

Soetoro met the divorced Ann Dunham at the East-West Center while both were students at the University of Hawaii, and married on 15 March 1965. Soetoro, a geographer, returned to Indonesia in 1966 to help map Western New Guinea[14] for the Indonesian government, while Dunham and her son Barack Obama moved into her parents' house in Honolulu to complete her studies.

Dunham and her six-year-old son joined Soetoro in Jakarta in 1967. The family initially lived for two and a half years in a modest stucco and red tile house in a newly built neighborhood in Menteng Dalam village in South Jakarta and owned a new Japanese motorcycle. Dunham worked as assistant director of the Indonesia-America Friendship Institute (oooo pllllllleeeezeee).

Googling that (Google is a free search service and under its Dont Be Evil police has a clear UIX without junk returnes "CIA activities in Indonesia." In the sidebard is United States involvement in regime change.

Marilyn Monroe was born Norma Jeane Mortenson on June 1, 1926, at the Los Angeles General Hospital in Los Angeles, California.[6] Her mother, Gladys Pearl Baker (née Monroe; 1902–1984), was born in Piedras Negras, Coahuila, Mexico[7] to a poor Midwestern family who migrated to California at the turn of the century.

Although Gladys was mentally and financially unprepared for a child, Monroe's early childhood was stable and happy. Gladys placed her daughter with evangelical Christian foster parents Albert and Ida Bolender in the rural town of Hawthorne.

Gladys also lived there for six months, until she was forced to move back to the city for employment. She then began visiting her daughter on weekends. In the summer of 1933, Gladys bought a small house in Hollywood with a loan from the Home Owners' Loan Corporation and moved seven-year-old Monroe in with her. They shared the house with lodgers, actors George and Maude Atkinson and their daughter, Nellie.[25] In January 1934, Gladys had a mental breakdown and was diagnosed with paranoid schizophrenia.[26] After several months in a rest home, she was committed to the Metropolitan State Hospital.[27] She spent the rest of her life in and out of hospitals and was rarely in contact with Monroe.[28] Monroe became a ward of the state, and her mother's friend Grace Goddard took responsibility over her and her mother's affairs.

Monroe was not told that she had a sister until she was 12, and they met for the first time in 1944 when Monroe was 17 or 18. According to Wikipedia that is citing a source In 2022, DNA testing indicated that Monroe's father was Charles Stanley Gifford (1898–1965) but before that 2022 I think faked DNA test it was unnown who the real father had been and I think a Prince Albert 1925 that passed FOXP2 to her.

In the summer of 1935, she briefly stayed with Grace and her husband Erwin "Doc" Goddard and two other families. In September 1935, Grace placed her in the Los Angeles Orphans Home. The orphanage was "a model institution" and was described in positive terms by her peers, but Monroe felt abandoned. This was when King Edward VII was abdicating and GLorian Donean would leave her Gainey parents in North Carolina for South Carolina and the Dew and Gandy adoptive parents.

20th century

Director of the OSS, Major General William J. "Wild Bill" Donovan, was the mastermind behind operation ICEBERG. He believed that the U.S. needed a postwar intelligence agency and that this mission helped guide the U.S. in a position to do so. Coughlin had suggested to Donovan that the post war intelligence agency be much smaller than the OSS and employ only skilled agents. When the OSS officially disbanded in 1945, Donovan's intelligence career had officially ended. This being true, his ideas of a postwar intelligence agency had rooted themselves within stations in Southeast Asia. J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, opposed Donovan's proposal of a postwar central intelligence agency because during the war, the OSS had become too close to the realm of responsibility occupied by military intelligence agencies, the FBI (an international field espionage agency), and the State Department.

This School Book Book Depository the lot was swarming with faces he knew from days when he worked to help set up the CIA's Bay of Pigs invasion and he says he met two other men the other tramps in the photograph.

This man he knew only as Montoya but this man he says he knew well his name was Charles Harrelson said to me are you O'Malley I said yes he said I'm Harrelson.

Charles Harrelson was a contract killer now in prison for killing Texas Federal Judge John Wood.

When arrested for the Woods killing Harrelson claimed killing a judge was nothing to someone who had killed a President..

Murder of John H. Wood retrieved from Wikipedia and copied or modified to here

Jamiel Chagra, known as Jimmy, was born in El Paso, Texas on December 7, 1944. Chagra's drug dealings came under close scrutiny by law enforcement and the judicial system. On November 21, 1978, Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr was ambushed and shot at near his home by two men who fired 19 bullets at his car. Kerr escaped with only minor glass cuts. Kerr had been involved with pursuing Chagra for his drug dealings. On December 23, 1978, Lee Chagra was shot and killed in his law office in El Paso.

John Howland Wood Jr. (March 31, 1916 - May 29, 1979) was an American lawyer and judge from Texas. He served as a United States district judge of the United States District Court for the Western District of Texas before being assassinated by contract killer Charles Harrelson outside Wood's home in San Antonio, in 1979. Wood's killing was the first assassination of a federal judge in the 20th century.

Chagra's downfall began in February 1979 when he was arrested on trafficking charges. He was scheduled to appear before United States District Judge John Wood, a judge nicknamed "Maximum John" who had a reputation for giving out the maximum sentence allowed for drug-related crimes. Chagra faced a possible life sentence without parole if convicted and reportedly feared he would receive a life sentence, according to prosecutors. Chagra attempted to bribe Judge Wood for "$5 million or 10 million". Facing life for smuggling, Jimmy Chagra allegedly decided to have the judge killed.

Chagra was accused of (and was acquitted of, although he later confessed to conspiracy in a deal to help his wife) hiring hitman Charles Harrelson (actor Woody Harrelson's father) to kill Wood for $250,000; on May 29, 1979, Judge Wood was murdered outside his home by a shot in the back. He was the first federal judge to die by assassination in over a century.[23] The authorities did not immediately suspect Chagra of involvement in the assassination, and it took thousands of man-hours to identify them as suspects in the case. His drug case went to trial and Chagra was found guilty in August 1979 and sentenced to 30 years. Chagra jumped bail, but was captured six months later in Las Vegas.

Harrelson was eventually caught and convicted of being the gunman after Chagra discussed the assassination with his brother Joe during Joe's visit to Jimmy in United States Penitentiary in Leavenworth, Kansas, after FBI agents bugged the rooms in which they were speaking. This was among over a thousand recorded conversations that the government had collected as evidence. The position of federal authorities was that even though Joe Chagra was a lawyer, he was also suspected in conspiracy to conceal the crime; therefore, their conversations were not covered by attorney-client privilege.

Both Harrelson and Chagra's brother Joe were implicated in the assassination.

August 1978 - Wood presides at drug smuggling conspiracy trial in El Paso of banker Rick De La Torre. Assistant U.S. Attorney James W. Kerr Jr. convinces a jury to convict De La Torre for his role in an unsuccessful attempt to import nine tons of marijuana from Columbia to an airstrip in West Texas. The lost case was personal for defense attorneys Lee Chagra and his younger brother Joe Chagra: De Le Torre is the husband of their sister, Patricia.

Sept. 8, 1978 - Kerr summons topless dancers and their bosses before a federal grand jury in El Paso in an investigation into racketeering and organized prostitution. No indictments are returned. Many of the dancers were the wives and girlfriends of members of the El Paso chapter of the Bandidos Motorcycle Club.

The Bandidos Motorcycle Club, also known as the Bandido Nation, is a one percenter motorcycle club with a worldwide membership. Formed in San Leon, Texas in 1966, the Bandidos MC is estimated to have between 2,000 and 2,500 members and 303 chapters, located in 22 countries, making it the second-largest motorcycle club in the world behind the Hells Angels.

Numerous law enforcement and international intelligence agencies classify the Bandidos as an organized crime syndicate.

Chauncey Holt says he'd been told to stay in the Book Depository parking lot wait for some sort of incident and if anything went wrong he should run to a specific boxcar on a parked train.

Then he heard shots and ran.

You could still hear that people yelling that the President had been shot so I knew that we had been we had been set up.

And there is more than just Holt's word. There is also his face. Mr. Lewis Gibson is the Houston Police Department's forensic artist. She made comparisons of Holt and the in the photographs.

"This is just conclusive to me that that's the same man."

She also compared pictures of Charles Harrelson with the photo again a perfect match "I'll stake my reputation on it for sure."

Chauncey Holt does not claim to know who shot Kennedy but he says he is sure most of the shots did not come from the Book Depository but came from close by from the grassy knoll.

If I am believed it would lay to rest these ideas that Jack Ruby and Lee Harvey Oswald were just nuts that passed in the night.

we've been researching [in 1997] Chauncey whole story talking to scholars ex CIA agents and many others. (Sunny Bono, the Kennedy family?)

Some say whole story is bunk but others believe him and all admit that if he is a fake he's not just a wacko he is playing either a well schooled elaborately or he's telling the truth .

John sweetie have you talked to Charlie - Charles Harrelson about it we have not talked to Charles Harrelson yet he is currently in Marion Illinois in the federal penitentiary we have are in the process of asking for permission to talk because anybody corroborated this story that he's telling a number of individuals that we've spoken to have corroborated little bits and pieces of it one of the problems is the story that he tells is so detailed that goes all the way back to 1941 and carries on all the way through the 80s the Kennedy portion of the story that he tells is just a very small part of course it's the most important right now fascinating.

Murder of John H. Wood retrieved from Wikipedia

Jamiel Chagra, known as Jimmy, was born in El Paso, Texas on December 7, 1944. Chagra's drug dealings came under close scrutiny by law enforcement and the judicial system. On November 21, 1978, Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr was ambushed and shot at near his home by two men who fired 19 bullets at his car. Kerr escaped with only minor glass cuts. Kerr had been involved with pursuing Chagra for his drug dealings. On December 23, 1978, Lee Chagra was shot and killed in his law office in El Paso.

John Howland Wood Jr. (March 31, 1916 - May 29, 1979) was an American lawyer and judge from Texas. He served as a United States district judge of the United States District Court for the Western District of Texas before being assassinated by contract killer Charles Harrelson outside Wood's home in San Antonio, in 1979. Wood's killing was the first assassination of a federal judge in the 20th century.

Chagra's downfall began in February 1979 when he was arrested on trafficking charges. He was scheduled to appear before United States District Judge John Wood, a judge nicknamed "Maximum John" who had a reputation for giving out the maximum sentence allowed for drug-related crimes. Chagra faced a possible life sentence without parole if convicted and reportedly feared he would receive a life sentence, according to prosecutors. Chagra attempted to bribe Judge Wood for "$5 million or 10 million". Facing life for smuggling, Jimmy Chagra allegedly decided to have the judge killed.

Chagra was accused of (and was acquitted of, although he later confessed to conspiracy in a deal to help his wife) hiring hitman Charles Harrelson (actor Woody Harrelson's father) to kill Wood for $250,000; on May 29, 1979, Judge Wood was murdered outside his home by a shot in the back. He was the first federal judge to die by assassination in over a century.[23] The authorities did not immediately suspect Chagra of involvement in the assassination, and it took thousands of man-hours to identify them as suspects in the case. His drug case went to trial and Chagra was found guilty in August 1979 and sentenced to 30 years. Chagra jumped bail, but was captured six months later in Las Vegas.

Harrelson was eventually caught and convicted of being the gunman after Chagra discussed the assassination with his brother Joe during Joe's visit to Jimmy in United States Penitentiary in Leavenworth, Kansas, after FBI agents bugged the rooms in which they were speaking. This was among over a thousand recorded conversations that the government had collected as evidence. The position of federal authorities was that even though Joe Chagra was a lawyer, he was also suspected in conspiracy to conceal the crime; therefore, their conversations were not covered by attorney-client privilege.

Both Harrelson and Chagra's brother Joe were implicated in the assassination.

August 1978 - Wood presides at drug smuggling conspiracy trial in El Paso of banker Rick De La Torre. Assistant U.S. Attorney James W. Kerr Jr. convinces a jury to convict De La Torre for his role in an unsuccessful attempt to import nine tons of marijuana from Columbia to an airstrip in West Texas. The lost case was personal for defense attorneys Lee Chagra and his younger brother Joe Chagra: De Le Torre is the husband of their sister, Patricia.

Sept. 8, 1978 - Kerr summons topless dancers and their bosses before a federal grand jury in El Paso in an investigation into racketeering and organized prostitution. No indictments are returned. Many of the dancers were the wives and girlfriends of members of the El Paso chapter of the Bandidos Motorcycle Club.

The Bandidos Motorcycle Club, also known as the Bandido Nation, is a one percenter motorcycle club with a worldwide membership. Formed in San Leon, Texas in 1966, the Bandidos MC is estimated to have between 2,000 and 2,500 members and 303 chapters, located in 22 countries, making it the second-largest motorcycle club in the world behind the Hells Angels.

Numerous law enforcement and international intelligence agencies classify the Bandidos as an organized crime syndicate.

Top US Federal Judge Assassinated After Threat To Obama Agenda http://www.eutimes.net/2011/01/top-us-federal-judge-assassinated-after-threat-to-obama-agenda/

According to this SVR report, Federal Judge John McCarthy Roll was the Chief Judge for the United States District Court for the District of Arizona who this past Friday issued what is called a “preliminary ruling” in a case titled “United States of America v. $333,520.00 in United States Currency et al” [Case Number: 4:2010cv00703 Filed: November 30, 2010] wherein he stated he was preparing to rule against Obama’s power to seize American citizens money without clear and convincing evidence of a crime being committed.

The case being ruled on by Judge Roll, this report continues, was about bulk cash smuggling into or out of the United States that the Obama administration claimed was their right to seize under what are called Presidential Executive Orders, instead of using existing laws. The Obama administration used as support for their claim before Judge Roll, the SVR says, the seizing of all American citizens' gold, in 1933, by President Franklin D. Roosevelt's signing of Executive Order 6102, which was ruled at the time to be constitutional.

According to this SVR report, Federal Judge John McCarthy Roll was the Chief Judge for the United States District Court for the District of Arizona who this past Friday issued what is called a "preliminary ruling" in a case titled "United States of America v. $333,520.00 in United States Currency et al" [Case Number: 4:2010cv00703 Filed: November 30, 2010] wherein he stated he was preparing to rule against Obama's power to seize American citizens money without clear and convincing evidence of a crime being committed.

Should the Obama administration win their argument to seize their citizen's money by Executive Order without having to abide by the law was made more chilling this past week when reports emerged from the US stating that President Obama and his regime allies were, indeed, preparing to rule America by decree since their loss this past November of their control over the US House of Representatives, and in the words of the Washington Posts columnist Charles Krauthammer: "For an Obama bureaucrat … the will of the Congress is a mere speed bump".

Since taking office in early 2009, Obama has completely overturned the once free United States through his use of Executive Orders that asserts his power to put anyone he wants in prison without charges or trial forever and his right to assassinate any American citizen he deems a threat.

The most chilling of these powers Obama has asserted for himself, however, are contained in Executive Order 13528 he signed nearly a year ago (January 10, 2010) creating a Council of Governors he has hand-picked to rule over the United States in place of its elected representatives when their next “disaster” strikes and orders them to begin “synchronization and integration of State and Federal military activities in the United States; and other matters of mutual interest pertaining to National Guard, homeland defense, and civil support activities”.

CH: It was a coup d 'etat and I do not believe it is a way, not in this country for a change of command. - Chauncey Marvin Holt (Self Portrait of a Scoundrel)

As Holt arrived parking in the area of the Grassy Knoll he began to recognize many assasins some of which he knew from Gautamala in 1954. He did not seem to know Landsdale who with Prouty was running operations with James Donegan in Japah, along with E. Howard Hunt and others.

James Donegan and Prouty were regular military and on Asian projects.

I think in 1951 it was decided the Windsors would scatter a few clones around the world likey maybe Indonesia if childhood testing went well the infant could be placed with foreign aid workers, foreign diplomat, or orphanage families or celebrity families.

What the Windsors got out of it was some test births under hidden identities to track the future of Windsor genetics propagation and studying the genes.

That plan had happened in the Asisa region with Lansdale (who Holt did not know, be knew Belcher, Twombly, others from Palm Springs, may or likely Prouty.

I assert the main assassins were from Japan 1952 who got agreement from the Donegan's to loan an egg for a test child, and no firm plans had been made for it to a Malcom X father publicly, a Marilyn Monroe mother publicly, a Barrack Obama Sr father publicly for sure early on but the Marilyn Monroe plan likely in the same twins study as Glorian Donegan failed on August 4 1962 with Marilyn Monroe likely resisting a fake birthday party for a potential plant of records that Malcom X was doing in a magazine (his) with Ann Dunham holding Obama Jr and him the possible father.

By 1963 I was erroring out by all accounts and and Obama was succeeding. I think JFK decided he was not going to plant Obama Jr in Indonesia, a country of interest since 1958 under Prouty, the Donegan friend.

That dispute brought a convergence of the CAI and its full resources against JFK at Dealy Plaza on the two year birthday of real Barrack Obama Jr November 18 1963.

E. Howard Hunt had worked in Guatemala in 1954 to and Nixon approached him in 1968 for super-secret work on Cuba and I think just as secret work on Indonesia too.

part of this was setup by Joseph Kennedy SR in 1925 and in 1939 and in 1951 and it used the Ford Foundation, Joseph Kennedy Jr fund, the USAID, East-West Center, Peace Corp and other programs king making secretly.

Pictured home of Ed and Glorian Donegan and Jen Moore held the federal documents confirming what I can confirm and do in these books. Hidden Identities still being protected by the CIA including the identities of infiltrators of the CIA.

The MK ULTRA period I assert was what the British asserted A Thousand (M) Years Undefeatable

Roman Numerals are used to identify kings, queens, heads of state and popes. Each monarch is labeled with a number from the roman numbering system. Use regnal numbers (I, II, V) for titles of monarchs and religious leaders. Regnal numbers are upper case roman numerals that are used for the titles of monarchs and popes. Don't use digits or ordinal numbers, even though you might pronounce them like that. We know that we write 100 as C and 1000 as M

However matters may go in France or with the French Government, or other French Governments, we in this Island and in the British Empire will never lose our sense of comradeship with the French people. If we are now called upon to endure what they have been suffering, we shall emulate their courage, and if final victory rewards our toils they shall share the gains, aye, and freedom shall be restored to all. We abate nothing of our just demands; not one jot or tittle do we recede. Czechs, Poles, Norwegians, Dutch, Belgians have joined their causes to our own. All these shall be restored. What General Weygand has called the Battle of France is over. I expect the Battle of Britain is about to begin. Upon this battle depends the survival of Christian civilisation. Upon it depends our own British life, and the long continuity of our institutions and our Empire. The whole fury and might of the enemy must very soon be turned on us. Hitler knows that he will have to break us in this island or lose the war. If we can stand up to him, all Europe may be freed and the life of the world may move forward into broad, sunlit uplands. But if we fail, then the whole world, including the United States, including all that we have known and cared for, will sink into the abyss of a new Dark Age made more sinister, and perhaps more protracted, by the lights of perverted science. Let us therefore brace ourselves to our duties, and so bear ourselves that, if the British Empire and its Commonwealth[e] last for a thousand years, men will still say, 'This was their finest hour.'

She asserted very large scale Free Masonry of the worlds most elite leaders really was running the US Government including Targeted Killings inside the USA and other illegal activities and this goes back to long running CIA OSS Vatican and Secret Intelligence Services (MI6) collusion throughout history. This goes to Donegan family history Jen Moore asserts. I will show Chaunvey Marvin Holt agrees about hidden corrupt power in the USA protecting itself through the Mafai and as Ted Gunderson calls it "Corruption Network" of concealed CIA illegal activities in the USA through fronts as diverse as Satanic Groups actually run by elements within the Defense Intelligence Agency (Temple of Set.)

The Subversion system of cold war dirty tricks against adversaries by covert operations and us back front groups was in full swing run out of Atsugi. This is long and detailed and intentionally confused by agency document authors to inhibit the paper trail, but the CIA used many front groups and many secret relationships with Vatican, Knights of Malta, and others for global operations including inside the USA. JFK objected to them inside and outside the USA.

This chapter has a lot of gibberish in and is not that convincing but it does lay a speculative ground work for discussion Chauncey Marvin Holt's 1997 document dump to a news crew only and to the full public in 2013 in his first released book 16 years after his death. Take the title seriously Self-Portrait of a Scoundrel. A Memoir of Spooks, Hoods and the Hidden Elite. We now a covert big business power structure did and does exist and JFK and RFK ran afoul of it.

This story line of the Cabal, the Hidden Elites in power today and the assassination of JFK cold-warriors friendly to Great Britain carried out is the real reason Ed DOnegan and Jen Moore have been attacked by the CIA, FBI, and others, the figures we are and have been writing about.

Princess Elizabeth had her helpers, her backers, the group of bankers, world traders, military industrial leaders, and others such as British nationalists trying to help her prepare for the throne in 1951 as she was about to be coronated upon the death of her father, King George VI (Prince Albert of York) who took over for quickly abdicated King Edward VIII (later Duke of Windsor after being Prince of Wales then abdicating in 1939.)

The Special Relationship

The Ancient Village of Strawman has been Debunked an intentionally misrepresented proposition that is set up because it is easier to defeat than an opponent's real argument.

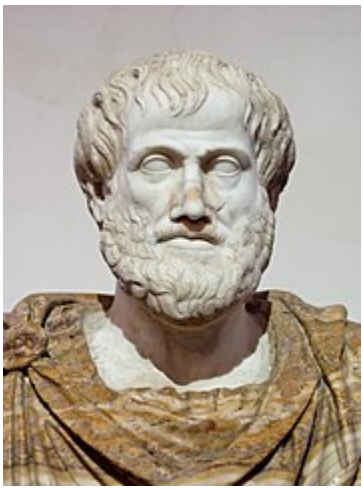
According to the Organon Stramwamese Langauge uses ignoratio elenchi, they are written missing the point. The real points is we are colluding with Great Brittain's Royal Family. Instead the documents make a different point we are colluding with Aliens. Since we know aliens don't exist the entire document is irrelevant to fact-finding.



Bust of Aristotle. Marble, Roman copy after a Greek bronze original by Lysippos from 330 BC

"Are they still attempting the Ignoartio Enlenchi Ploy even within your time-period?

Let me call upon Socrates. If a document contains references to UFO sitings, and UFO sightings have been dis-proven, then the document contents themselves are dis-proven.

The Organon (Ancient Greek: Ὄργανον, meaning "instrument, tool, organ") is the standard collection of Aristotle's six works on logical analysis and dialectic. The name Organon was given by Aristotle's followers, the Peripatetics, who maintained against the Stoics that Logic was "an instrument" of Philosophy.

Documents written in Strawmanese quickly self destruct even if destruction by others (many were burned) fails to destroy them.

SUBJECT: OPERATION MAJESTIC-12 PRELIMINARY BRIEFING FOR PRESIDENT-ELECT EISENHOWER

DOCUMENT PREPARED 18 NOVEMBER, 1952

BRIEFING OFFICER: ADM. ROSCOE H. HILLENKOETTER (MJ-1)

NOTE: This document has been prepared as a preliminary briefing only. It should be regarded as introductory to a full operations briefing intended to follow.

OPERATION MAJESTIC-12 is a TOP SECRET Research and Development/Intelligence operation responsible directly and only to the President of the United States. Operations of the project are carried out under the control of the Majestic-12 (Majic-12) Group which was established by special classified executive order of President Truman on 24 September, 1947, upon recommendation by Dr. Vannevar Bush and Secretary James Forrestal. (See Attachment "A".)

Members of the Majestic-12 Group were designated as follows:

Adm. Roscoe H. Hillenkoetter Dr. Vannevar Bush, Secy. James V. Forrestal*, Gen. Nathan P. Twining, Gen Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Dr. Detlev Bronk, Dr. Jerome Hunsaker, Mr. Sidney W. Souers, Mr. Gordon Gray, Dr. Donald Menzel, Gen. Robert M. Montague, Dr. Lloyd V. Berkner

The death of Secretary Forrestal on 22 May, 1949, created a vacancy which remained unfilled until 01 August, 1950, upon which date Gen. Walter B. Smith was designated as permanent replacement.

The Devout Roman Catholic Forrestal

Intelligence Gathering

https://www.bibliotecapleyades.net/sociopolitica/esp_sociopol_mj12_1.htm

On December 9, 1947, Truman approved issuance of NSC-4, entitled "Coordination of Foreign Intelligence Information Measures" at the urging of Secretaries Marshall, Forrestal, Patterson, and the director of the State Department's Policy Planning Staff, George Kennan.

The Foreign and Military Intelligence, Book 1, "Final Report of the Select Committee to Study Governmental operations with respect to Intelligence Activities," United States Senate, 94th Congress, 2nd Session, Report No. 94-755, April 26,1976, p. 49, states:

"This directive empowered the Secretary of State to coordinate overseas information activities designed to counter communism."

A Top Secret annex to NSC-4, NSC-4A, instructed the director of Central Intelligence to undertake covert psychological activities in pursuit of the aims set forth in NSC-4.

The initial authority given the CIA for covert operations under NSC-4A did not establish formal procedures for either coordinating or approving these operations. It simply directed the DCI to "undertake covert actions and to ensure, through liaison with State and Defense, that the resulting operations were consistent with American policy."

Later NSC-10/1 and NSC-10/2 were to supersede NSC-4 and

NSC-4A and expand the covert abilities even further. The Office of Policy Coordination (OPC) was chartered to carry out an expanded program of covert activities. NSC-10/1 and NSC-10/2 validated illegal and extralegal practices and procedures as being agreeable to the national security leadership.

The reaction was swift. In the eyes of the intelligence community "no holds were barred."

Under NSC-10/1 an Executive Coordination Group was established to review, but not approve, covert project proposals. The ECG was secretly tasked to coordinate the alien projects. NSC-10/1 & /2 were interpreted to mean that no one at the top wanted to know about anything until it was over and successful.

These actions established a buffer between the President and the information. It was intended that this buffer serve as a means for the President to deny knowledge if leaks divulged the true state of affairs. This buffer was used in later years for the purpose of effectively isolating succeeding Presidents from any knowledge of the alien presence other than what the Secret Government and the intelligence community wanted them to know.

NSC-10/2 established a study panel which met secretly and was made up of the scientific minds of the day. The study panel was not called MJ-12. Another NSC memo, NSC-10/5 further outlined the duties of the study panel.

These NSC memos and secret Executive orders set the stage for the creation of MJ-12 only four years later.

First Victim of the Cover-up

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal objected to the secrecy.

He was a very idealistic and religious man. He believed that the public should be told. James Forrestal was also one of the first known abductees. When he began to talk to leaders of the opposition party and leaders of the Congress about the alien problem he was asked to resign by Truman. He expressed his fears to many people. Rightfully, he believed that he was being watched. This was interpreted by those who were ignorant of the facts as paranoia. Forrestal later was said to have suffered a mental breakdown. He was ordered to the mental ward of Bethesda Naval Hospital. In spite of the fact that the Administration had no authority to have him committed, the order was carried out. In fact, it was feared that Forrestal would begin to talk again.

He had to be isolated and discredited. His family and friends were denied permission to visit. Finally, on May 21, 1949, Forrestal's brother made a fateful decision. He notified authorities that he intended to remove James from Bethesda on May 22.

Sometime in the early morning of May 22,1949, agents of the CIA tied a sheet around James Forrestal's neck, fastened the other end to a fixture in his room, then threw James Forrestal out the window. The sheet tore and he plummeted to his death. James Forrestal's secret diaries were confiscated by the CIA and were kept in the White House for many years. Due to public demand the diaries were eventually rewritten and published in a sanitized version. The real diary information was later furnished by the CIA in book form to an agent who published the material as fiction. The name of the agent is Whitley Strieber and the book is Majestic.

James Forrestal became one of the first victims of the cover-up.

Project Majestic 12 will study escaped Aliens who are studied in secret hidden facilities secretly. These I assert are the out of wedlock children who have Prince Albert of York King George VI or his daughter Queen Elizabeth II as hidden relatives. The Crashed space ship had been Prince Albert with London FOXP2 defect. 12 could represent the size of the Royal Family (immediate blood descents) or out of wedlock children. The Los Alamos area of Atomic Test Blast DNA studies Jim Donegan and Glorian Donegan were and Marlin Monroe spoke of betrayed people just hours before her own death, revealing the UFOs. Project Majestic with the Vatican will move children from places like Franklin Nebraska many locations operating since 1902 into other countries, selected for their childhood skills, to become Agents of Influence including in Indonesia. Assassinations will clear the objectors way including in the USA as Forrestal, Patton and JFK and RFK and Sony Bono are seeming hits by Majestic as later Thomas Crane Wales, Judge Roll, and Scalia were, all were Roman Catholics.

Clones (Birther-Truther Conspiracy Theory)

The Windsors and their support had decided to clone themselves (as they put it, actually interbreed in larger gene pools that offered their genes operating in different contexts and languages around the world) into sleeper who Subversion and PsyOps could plant, back, and usher into public and media offices around the world furthering British interests.

WWII had been close (too close) and closing ranks with Protestants, the USA and Great Britain, and means of manipulating events preempting war were the new strategy for Western post-war planning.

In 1952 Lee Harvey Oswald, James Donegan, many CIA figures (formally OSS) and Bissle Jr., others were in Japan studying the Iron Curtain and planning for limiting it and reversing it through covert operations in targeted countries.

This would be a concerted effort of religious groups, business interests, the mafia who could deliver a few blows to some knee caps here and there, and money backing media operations and propaganda.

In 1958 planning was begging for Cuba and Indonesia too. At this time since Glorian Donegan was from a Kutschera and that Maria Kutschera and likely Prince Albert of York 1925 insemination, Glorian Donegan was used as a covert source of an egg in early CIA hack experiments in IVF and surogacy, I think Malcom X the real biological father, and various figures at different times planned public parents.

I believe in February 20, 1961 I and Barrack Obama Jr were likely implanted in a Surrogate I with James Donegan fertilization, Barrack Obama Jr with Malcom X,. both born November 18, 1961 Los Angeles County.

I believe disputes about this led to JFK being assassinated two years later, and I am trying to add more facts to the Gregg Poulgrain effort (a very good book already) JFK Vs. Allen Dulles: Battleground Indonesia Book by Greg Poulgrain and Dorothy a book by St John Hunt fact filled that helps my theory.

Details supporting my theory (and the plan I think Malcom X and Dr Martin Luther King knew) and RFK found out the details of the day of his death are throughout my books.

I believe this was run out of North Carolina PsyOps with William Burns part of it.

The Bilderberg was a series of annual[1] meetings which began in 1954, which quickly became an international deep state milieu of major importance. The 2023 Bilderberg started in Lisbon somewhat earlier in the year than usual, on the 18 May. The 71 meetings have been attended by at least[2] 2985 participants (and a further 115 more "in attendance"), each of whom have pages on this website.[3] They are often mentioned in conjunction with two other, less secretive, organisations: the Trilateral Commission and the Council on Foreign Relations. The 2020 Bilderberg was not held reportedly due to COVID-19. Many Bilderberg regulars were busy with different aspects of COVID-19 and there may also have been no meeting in 2021.

Around 120 financiers, military leaders, heads of corporations, nation states and deep politicians meet to discuss projects of mutual interest (such as, according to a former chairman, the creation of the Euro) https://wikispooks.com/wiki/Bilderberg

On the night and early hours of February 20-21, 1954, while on a ‘vacation’ to Palm Springs, California, President Dwight Eisenhower went missing and allegedly was taken to Edwards

Air force base for a secret meeting.

When he showed up the next morning at a church service in Los Angeles, reporters were told that he had to have emergency dental treatment the previous evening and had visited a local dentist.

The dentist later appeared at a function that evening and presented as the 'dentist' who had treated Eisenhower. The missing night and morning has subsequently fueled rumors that Eisenhower was using the alleged dentist visit as a cover story for an extraordinary event.

The event is possibly the most significant that any American President could have conducted: an alleged 'First Contact' meeting with extraterrestrials at Edwards Air Force base (previously Muroc Airfield), and the beginning of a series of meetings with different extraterrestrial races that led to a 'treaty' that was eventually signed.

This astonishing First Contact event, if it occurred, will experience its 50th anniversary on February 20-21, 2004.

This paper explores the evidence that the First Contact meeting had occurred with extraterrestrials with a distinctive 'Nordic' appearance, the likelihood of an agreement having been spurned with this 'Nordic race', the start of a series of meetings that led to a treaty eventually being signed with a different extraterrestrial race dubbed the 'Greys', and the motivations of the different extraterrestrial races involved in these treaty discussions.

The paper will further examine why these events were kept secret for so long, the significance of the 50th anniversary of Eisenhower's meeting with extraterrestrials, and whether an official disclosure announcement is likely in the near future. by Michael E. The term-of-art Flying Monkey after joining the lynch Mob (Office Mob) is on both delusion, retarded, and fixed-psychoses (using deeply attached emotions and instilling senses of grandeur for Police assistants) with begin fling it at the Targeted Individual

Well; we already know what is being flinged so lets get to the matter. Secretive and thus can not be called out just as most abusive, sexually harassing, death threats, fraudulent statements are. One person pretends to be talking to another or a phone on one matter directed to others but the Targeted person is sure a clear smear, death threat, or act of stalking is clearly directed at him or her, not the pair next to the TI (Targeted Individual) who us surrounded by the people talking to each other allegedly Harmful. The smear being refereed to is mean tot be both recognizable as referign to the person being stalked and also wrong, threading, abusive, and incorrect.

Inflammatory. Denials the cheap shots and illegal actors (often part of defrauding the Targeted Individual OR trying to draw fights from the Target Individual hope to create the record and eviction procedure that a person who was in the environment without cause (and probably on bigoted or paranoia basis began complaints against staff and patrons, co-workers, etc., and has become a problem

Its almost automatically true in all cases the person is being discredit in methodical way and the Office Mob will steal credit for achievements of the person on the outs.

As a note I never considered myself a Cybergoth and wasn't quite sure what fine divisions in music (agro, etc.,) made up the culture of Cubergoth. I just like a few vidoes on YouTube.

In the Gym Community when I had lowered my A1c from 13.3 to 4.7 (diabetes measure) I was made to look a menace towards females in gym clothes and as I used elliptical machines people visually "taugh me" Cybergoth treadmill holding 25 pound disks outstretched arms next to me while wearing gas mask rotating the disks like a steering wheel giving me signals I am close to getting it right. But then I had already left Virginia where I was doing it and arrive in Texas at Golds and other gyms.

The same was trying Cardio bike very energetic and heavy music thunder moves I was using on stationary bike on the floor became taught in the bike class by an asian female looking right at me sing What are you goitn to do when they come for you in an angry voice and was shouting at me over the music You and an Amateur!

I had a 35 years of high sierras mountain biking. Ten years later I have developed hip arthritis and can no longer bicycle. During that class 10 years ago I was in pretty good shape not carrying large loads around overweight muhc like an overweight lineman with later knee and hip trouble

At that stame time in Corpus Christ in AA I heard bike coach from Golds Gym crying in an AA meeting. The staff, now were being hostile to her and teaching her coaching and nutrition techniques to her in an abusive and public way and I assumed these were the same set harassing me.

Tailored to the office. I have not done amphetamines 25 years. As I looked for apartments in Austin meth pipes with wipe rags were left all around any motel I rented, staged rescues of children or check ins to them were faked (there were no kidnapped children with me ever) and the like were carried out. When I wanted to by a 4X4 Toyota truck for the mountains some who looked just like me and front of me test drove one and tried to pick on young teen standing in front of my apartment.

The Mob will move into positions of power simply because they want to be respected in those circles, drive the targeted person out, or both.

Jen Moore talked about FBI, DHS, DOD and others (a religious group) teaching children often their own how to be seeming victims while walking around in public.

Noise Campaigns

In addition to disguised threats, abusive smears, provocations, and other activities often Noble Savages or schizophrenic armies will be used who through Social Services are trained and deployed to attack the Targeted Individual at the will of the FBI and others and do so with impunity.

Of the the real goal (that can include poisoning, racial assaults, etc.,) is to create tense and even dangerous hostile environments.

Ted Gunderson and others assert these as I Ed Donegan do and Jen Moore did, gathering data on it. She was found dead and I believe what she said was true. The Government elites told her overtly if talked and revealed the Donegan name as the apartment she was filming (mine and my mothers) she would be killed.

I experience the same threats and Covert attacks.

Noise can just be loud and distracting,. a threat, a lie that is a threat, abuse that is abuse, or any toxicity that becomes an emergency and the technique is called Disruption, how can you cause a peerson to become angry, loose balance on a ladder., lose focus while writing (by banging the table) keep thee person from sleeper or sexual relief, etc.,

These are common FBI systems and while "sleeping" someone for five hours shouted and banged a large block of metal inches from head all night long. When I attacked (or rather threatened her snapping my belt towards the young assailant her 20s she threatened to taze me.

Children full voice screeching, unpleasant or intolerable aroma (heavy perfume) violent schizophrenic and un-showered mental health ward attackers with very strong stench in feces in delusions at the coffee shop, acts of fraud (clearly in identity theft using the name SAM or John or Paul for someone next to me to switch identities, or saying thank you in a gloating way to indicate fraud has been achieved are provocations.

Smear Campaign

An organized stalking victim is systematically isolated and harassed in a manner intended to cause sustained emotional torment while creating the least-possible amount of evidence of stalking that would be visible to others. The process is sometimes referred to as “no-touch torture.” Methods are specifically chosen for their lack of easily-captured objective evidence. Perpetrators use common annoyances such as constant noise by neighbors or rude comments and abusive behavior by strangers, but on a frequent ongoing long-term basis. The cumulative effects of relentless exposure to such tactics can amount to psychological torture for the victim.

Accomplices - such as neighbors, co-workers, and even friends or relatives of the victim in some cases - are recruited to participate (often unwittingly) by counterintelligence personnel using various means, such as by telling them that the target is a potential threat or that the target is the subject of an “investigation.”

A whole set of psychological operations are perpetrated against targeted individuals. These methods, described in detail in the overview below, include such things as threats, slander, vandalism, abusive phone calls, computer hacking, tormenting the victim with noise, and “mobbing” (orchestrated verbal harassment by strangers, neighbors, or co-workers).

Adjoining refers to things that are next to each other, but not necessarily physically connected. For example, two hotel rooms might be adjoining if they are located next to each other, but they do not share a door or any other physical connection.

Organized stalking methods were used extensively by communist East Germany’s Stasi (state police) as a means of maintaining political control over its citizens. The Stasi referred to the tactics as “Zersetzung” (German for “decomposition” or “corrosion” - a reference to the intended psychological, social, and financial effects upon the targeted victim).

Subversive Elements harassing a Targeted Individual will encourage others to covertly participate in the harassment by asking them to (others) to turn down leases for apartments, home buying applications, rental applications, etc., often using KOMPROMAT to encourage harassing a Targeted Individual.

Subversion can include Agent Provocateurs inside one group under-cover whose acts will defame that group or Agent Provocateurs covertly picking fights with a Targeted Individual in concealed ways leading to the arrest or other consequences resultant from the instigated fight.

Edward Paul Donegan asserts today's US and perhaps European leaders gained control of the US Government by assassination and are now abusing the powers of government to subvert witnesses to the Subversion and to silence journalists.

OFFICE MOB

KOMPROMAT (Compromising Material about a person that is fabricated political sabotage) is talked-up by undercover mobs who covertly add themselves into groups a person (who is the victim of KOMPROMAT) might join or be in, thus created a seeming normal word-of-mouth system at an office water cooler setting in which a framed person (Tarted Individual) undergoes secretive cliquish social sabotage and ostracism giving leverage to the allegation that otherwise might be ignored by those close to the Target of the KOMPROMAT.

Conjoined, on the other hand, refers to things that are physically connected to each other. This word is often used to describe twins who are born physically connected to each other. Conjoined twins share some of the same organs and bodily structures, and they are often separated surgically. https://thecontentauthority.com/blog/adjoining-vs-conjoined

Austin Central Public library are part of a "black" operation, usimg smear and other attacks sometimes 50 in a single day. Teens makee snot noises in short shirts and hiked up poorly fitting oversize gym clothes and say "Caching! has bought anothe now there is some more money. One might believe they were duped if not for their outright lies in most cases.

Here are some examlpes. The staff states outloud in crowded Stalks "He (without saying who "he" is" is only here to peep" and they state that with clear dopples of me and faking misconduct scenes I am alleged to be linked to out of my control

The clearly see me in constant proper use the facility. Similarly there was an attempt to shut down my book. There is no EPUB software so I had to use my blog Wordpress. When I bought my PC that day a homeless person nearly blinded me in a staged fight of a homess fat black woman handed me a cup and fill it. THat one was a little later but before on the day I ahd the PC and was setting it a violent out of nowhere punch requiring hospitalization and nearly mutilating my eyeball that was swollen shut. A homeless person grabbed by bag began fist fighting me and through my bag into busy traffic (as happened in Corpus Christi and nmy book notes to into street sewage that was flooded (I was able to knock this street assailant to the ground, and in the Library s stoned patron fell on my open laptop as I was working. Similarly homeless people are allowed to follow me in the library threatingnly and make clear death threats and rough noise of figjhts and attacking the table I amusing, shoutinmg,m etc.,

I am Conjoined with things near me by narrative and facial expressions, etc., and for instance on 10/31/2023 disgusted by Austin I was hanging out in a cabaret mostly working and it was added in a childrens party was right near me and it was a birth party something a very common and very fallse narrative the ever ends.

Adults are replaced with small hipped females signaling theyy are a form of child porn. Others control who is next to me. IN apartments they make ther walls in into my alleged peeping apparatuses and use landlord access to pplant child panties in and out of my home, steal my underwear dirty or clean and move it around the complex, chang and cut the building wiring, cut the power, and do break-ins to steal and other means to destroy my PC .

A handbook for the Targeted individual to identify and counter gangstalking and directed energy weapons

Introduction 1) What and Why? 2) Who 3) Solutions 4) References

INTRODUCTION

WHAT and WHY?:

The GANGSTALKING program can be described as a long term and slow DEATH with the constant life event of psychological and physical attack and torture. During any of the five levels the GANGSTALKING agents have it within their power to take a Targeted Individual out and mark the target for DEATH, and no one will be the wiser that the person was actually murdered by the SECRET push of a button.

A) Definitions:

"Organized Stalking is a well-organized, occult form of covert harassment used against an individual. It is done by large groups of people who systematically & repeatedly harass individuals. This has also been called Cause Stalking, Gang Stalking, Community-based Harassment, Organized Vigilante Stalking, Vengeance Stalking, Terrorist Stalking, Revenge Stalking, Covert Action, State-Sponsored Harassment, Microwave Harassment, Microwave Mind- Control, etc. All of these labels explain the same basic phenomenon." (Rich, State-Sponsored Terror Campaigns: The Hidden Evil",pg. 28-29).

"Mobbing, also referred to by some as bullying, psychological terrorism, and organizational violence is described as a collective form of psychological violence in which many individuals unite to persecute an individual Mobbing is a way of destroying a person without using any physical means Degrading themes are often used to try to prevent people from coming forward." (ibid., pg.35)

- Sexually Disturbing Tailored Pornography

The Summary of the Senate Torture Report disclosed the disgusting revelations that in the secret torture prisons the targets were forced to perform homosexual acts on each other against their will and religion in order not to be beaten or killed. This is a common break down tactic of belief systems and the human will. In no-touch torture the techniques are more psychologically specialized for each target. Most common examples include homosexual targets that are forced with voices that are derogatory to their lifestyle and similar mental images. Almost all targets are forced to view child pornography in their minds. And vice versa is true, that heterosexual targets are forced to view homosexual sexual acts like in the secret U.S. torture prisons.

- Mutilation

Also mentioned in the declassified report on torture was mutilation of the human. Cutting the naked target's penis and scrotum, pulling nails or teeth is common. In no-touch torture mutilation is done by trickery. Let us look at a couple examples. There have been several targets who believed that the microwave hearing effect and other voice induction methods were done by microchips implanted in their teeth or ears. They had all their teeth pulled because they believed it was a technology called bone conductance. Others have poked out their ear drums in the belief they had micro implants in their ears. There are many more examples of trickery used to make the targets mutilate themselves.

"Operations [are] designed to intimidate and destabilise [targeted individuals, 'Tls' for short] by subjecting them to repeated disappointment, and to socially alienate them by interfering with and disrupting their relationships with others as in social undermining. The aim was to induce personal crises in victims, leaving them too unnerved and psychologically distressed to have the time and energy for anti-government activism. " (zersetzung, pg. 1)

"What we are seeing now is a globally co-ordinated and organised effort of control and conformity. Many countries around the world are currently using a model of policing called Community Oriented Policing [ie.gangstalking]." (ibid.pg.3)

“Organized Stalking is a form of terrorism used against an individual in a malicious attempt to reduce the quality of a person’s life so they will: have a nervous break-down, become imprisoned, institutionalized, experience constant mental, emotional, or physical pain, become homeless, and/or commit suicide. This is done using well-orchestrated accusations, lies, rumors, bogus investigations, setups, framings, intimidation, overt or covert threats, vandalism, thefts, sabotage, torture, humiliation, emotional terror and general harassment. It is a “ganging up” by members of the community who follow an organised method and participate in a systematic “terrorizing” of an individual.” (ibid.pg.4)

Individuals targeted by this program have been subjected to illegal and unconstitutional phone taps, illegal re-routing of business and private phone calls for purposes of harassment, illegal audio “bugging”, surreptitious entry into home, office, and vehicle, visual surveillance in the home conducted by illegal placement of miniature remote, wireless cameras (often accessible via internet), illegal internet spyware, illegal GPS tracking (often through their own mobile phones), regular fixed and mobile surveillance, mail misdirection, mail theft and tampering, financial and employment sabotage, slander campaigns and community ostracizing , internet disinformation and smear campaigns, poisoning, assaults and murder, illegal set-ups on ding charges and other felony charges, amongst many other civil rights abuses.

The higher status members of the gang stalking conspiracy initiate the gang stalking and coordinate logistics and funding. Lower echelon government rogue operatives, lower ranking members of the military (in violation of Posse Comitatus), petty criminals and street thugs perform the actual grunt work of daily monitoring and harassment of individuals targeted by the program.

Stalkers are used to Evoke violent and strong emotions to instigate fights, conflicts, and disrupt the psyche of a Stalk victim.

As Stalk victim hearing what Stalkers say (Jen Moore on how Stalkers try to cripple the mind of a person by evoking strong negative emotions, fears, anger, trauma) and how Stalkers fall back on the alibi no person was touched during the Stalk while ignoring the fact things like sexual assaults, death threats, terrorist threats, and faked crime scenes used to obstruct justice are crimes.

The Stalker will assert "If I touched you I provoked a fight, pro-actively causing it. If you attacked me because you do not like me or what I am doing you provoked the fight and I only evoked it. YOU ACTED ON YOUR FEELINGS.

I have long asserted all the signs of this from online material are the Veronica Hoffman was hit by all of this include around the clock dopples and being tied to psychotics disgusting street peeop deep Africa migrants stalking her, walking alog the street with her and bombing her phone with harrassing call so malicious she (like I) simply had to take a apart the phone and insure it was disabled because she was too afraid to have it on.

Tom Dunham also a friend of mine (Veronica was briefly) had the same cover-opps criminals campaign hit him.

Covert Surveillance, Harassment, Chaff, Depradation, and Dopples

A Person of Interest to Government Officials, especially Deep State Security Officials, is subjected to surveillance by covert means including homeless people "trackers" and other methods, often in fights with the tracker who wants to pick fights as Conflict Engagement, starting a conflict on topics that will exposit views or merely to draw fights and created the appearance the stalked person is prone to fighting and their cause it too.

"The depredations of a person, animal, or force are their harmful actions, which usually involve taking or damaging something." Copying my works, works in process, or successes while mocking my own ability to do it is common. I can think of one pretty good example I had ordered a weight bar in Corpus Christi 1001. N. Water St. to do indoor workouts. I would also at times go to the park as I had done many years back at Barton Springs with my bike when I was apartment hunting. Outside my windows days after I had ordered received and startign using my weight bar a "coach" appeared at the gas station outside my window pointing in to my apartment explain the weight bars usage with acting out the actions in clear view of me looking at me inside my own window.

I have sought to study philosophy and law and the formation of law learnign ahout and filling in the wholes of theory of Classical Antiquity Natural Law philosophy in both art forms and written works all of which are stolen from me even when on my private computer screen never even uploaded to my private file cloud storage area.

That mimic of me is often a dopple who will be involved in other acts such as taking pictures to tiny girls at the gas station and will be chased somewhere else and when confronted use my identity to "pay up" for wrongs in now way connected to me but my identity is used for. In a law suite in California I showed a similar motorcycle ride piggy backed over my shoulder per the camera view who was pealing away after following me for a while and when "caught" by his FBI or Marshalls pursuit team he as me perhaps in an apartment looking like mine and my stolen belongings will confess to misconduct and request trust fund payouts.

Another examples is battery powered puck lights. I used to use rechargeable batteries with walkie talkies and other devices and I put rechargeable batteries puck lights in may apartments not really wired for any lighting. Similar apartments had puck lights turned into peeping tom devices and bullies made coy remarks to me about rechargeable batteries and puck lights, not saying anything to me but showing in a bullying way coyly they really were on to me and the word is going out to others.

Linking, conjoining, asserting a positive is actually a negative often through long con dopples or sets that look similar but are far different in purpose is who a person with a positive is linked through that positive to a negative.

Making the "Legend" of the Negative Act being that of the person who engaged in a positive act is how trickery and deceit work with people pretending to be talking to each other but building a verbal record the person next them is a negative, etc.,

Sometimes the "person being planted" on [Ted Gunderson or] myself will make statements involving me [or him] in things we have nothing to do with but the sound bite had been made and that is all that was required.

Discrediting

All of this discredits and destroys the life of the writer who will lose jobs, apartments, etc., Usually a Tarted Individual like myself will have sham neighbors placed near them and the landlord or property workers (gardening, maintenance) are "plumbers" modifying the property by breaking and stealing items inside the apartment, creating peep holes, planting or removing items, make false allegations, changing the building wiring and satellite systems, etc.,

Much of this is Black Budgets, Money Laundering, and Identity Theft used to created a Protection Racket that allows fakes of Ed Donegan to sign confessions that will be passed around, paid of into slush funds, and be the basis for buying "police cars" to patrol against other activities allege in obvious smears.

Often the drug addict who loses consciousness because his retardation is not powerful enough to withstand being loaded when he wakes up will need Trust Fund help to bail him out.

He will also have to have adult entertainers give him sex ed as he sits at mirrors with makeup and puts on either Goth, Rock, Alternative, or other clothing taking lessons in metropolitan club culture.

Sine he was sex addict he need the Salvation Army, Search For Truth Ministry (Hebrew) and other ministry resources.

A motorcycle of similar description to mine is peeping very publicly at swimwear areas (hot tub, pool)

I selected the Kawasaki 300 Versus /x for my first motorcycle. I was said to be an excellent bike to learn on, at 300cc (half the full Kawasaki 4 cylinder racing engine)it is light and easty to lift if tipped, upright for great views in around town, had a larger front wheel like the Honda African Twin. A good real wheel of normal off road bike delivers the engine power to the ground while an oversize front wheel can navigate uneven terrain. In Corpus Christi, Tx, Nueces County this Kawasaki %75 road %25 percent paved trail bike was great for road conditions that were common in the old and poor town that had not resurfaced roads as often as needed, a serious issue i had in my low-slung and weekend suspension Toyota Supra. I rode with a Brain Bucket (limited protection but some a half-head helmet and some simple cheap garden gloves to avoid minor scrapes a low speed maneuvering if there were an accident. A small Harley Davidson with all these characteristics mimiced mine and reports of it being sited were conflated with my presence.

In California at gyms, hotels and motels, and all areas of life this pattern continued and my reputation was being built.

I had written some documents that this scheme was a way to get payouts from my trust fund while also defaming me as someone not saved by Christ THUS a person likly to peep at others.

The payouts are to fake victims of church groups, to the protectors on Patrol stopping further acts (alleged to come from me) and neighborhood watch groups, US Marshalls, or Goodwill or other local charity programs who receive siezed assets from misconduct asset siezures. The Marshalls or other law enforcement also utilized siezed goods to infiltrate drug gangs, etc., (Miama Vice and siezed caras and boats)

One of the small churches around the Josephine Street area of Corpus Christi Texas. Along the rows of houses many Christian yard pieces and small churches

This small church across from the Salvation Army in Corpus Christi Texas, the Salvatio Army Prison Minsistry, and other local churches including First United Methodist bands for the young wanted to step it up into Goth, Cybergoth, etc, from their normal sheet music used.

May of these suddenly became home of the Elites, elder Goths who were protectors of young, and the kind of cultured and suave gentelmen Domina Vesper was seeking to join her in the bubble bath for $3,000 a day.

A pernicious Blackmail/Extortion ring has formed. The complexifying elements are that

- Emezzelers have captured funds into bank accounts tied to them but falsy claimed are actually mine use Identity Theft and other Fraud tactics to hold, and money launder the funds due me but held by others. I have no verbal, financial, or any another account of the financial accounts but others use identity theft to create the cover story I am aware of the money and I am spending out of it. Chris Lloyd of Orinda California appears central to this illegal scheme.

- Identity Thieves are using impersonations of me to engage in despicable and politically defaming conduct. PICTURED A bike other than my bike, but of similar description, in an otherwise empty parking lot, is spying on women of the gym. Golds Gym Corpus Christi. Rarely and non-exploitatively I do use a forward facing dash camera to tape scenic motorcycle rides on MY motorcycle, not the one pictured below.

- The impersonators themselves are both engaging in the despicable conduct and agreeing to be blackmailed socially by dominatrices who will "punish them" by making them give money or other assets to blacks. "Domination is not prostitution." The embezzled money is turned over to "above board" dominatrices such as Kora Kaine, Anastasia, Veronica Hoffman, and adult toy suppliers in a money laundering operation to semi legitimate businesses or donations. [added 2/15/2022 or seem like legitimate assets seizures of Ed Donegan's trust fund based on the acts of the person who stole the identity of Ed Donegan and used that identity in St Louis or elsewhere.}]

- Public spectacle staged photos (along with phone hacking) create the appearance I am aware of the embezzled misused funds. For instance I have only a motorcycle. If I consider buying a car an look for one or request one from my trust fund, vehicles I am considering will be driven near me, pause, then drive away as though I am examining them. I conjunction with this unrelated spam phone calls will reach my phone making it seem I am being asked to authorize and am involved in some vehicle purchase which I am not. Without out accounting to me embezzlers will buy the vehicle as though authorized by me, keep it for themselves, and conceal it from me. (Corpus Christi Toyota 4Runner or Chris Lloyd Porsche, or real estate such as in Missouri, Moraga California, or Corpus Christi.

- At Points of Sale cashiers intone some "good times" are being bought in addition to groceries from some planted female. I suspect a second transaction (not the legitimate one I make) is later made by an impersonator of me which will access the embezzled account rather than my account. The impersonator will then leave the store or gym with the planted female for the "good time" although the innuendo was said towards me at the point of sale.

- There is law enforcement or Secret Service, DOD, or other internal law enforcement support based on what I have been told by at least 9 people. In ErosX (My identity is crossed out with someone elses) black sex offenders, black foreign nationals, and junkie white trash or other tatooed prison felons have been setup to receive stolen or embezzled property, telling me they were hired by the DOD to do so and in fact they have used names like "Harvey Dent" and "Casper." I do believe this is slush fund related corruption and in international RICO scheme.

ONE EXAMPLE WILLIAM RUZ

A Motorcycle jacket [aka Ruiz “Rocket” Johny Rocket the Trust Fund paid for was stolen and a chair I sat in moved, both to a location I was not at so an impersonator could use those items to establish an identity of me and shower peep.

Verbal narrative but vaugely so was added by William Ruiz that while in my motorchycle jacket I was using remote moinotor equipment to watch women shower.

[Safety gloves were also pilfered and thieves encourage to pilfer from me are encouraged to do so in ways that harm my progress towards important goals or safety, the FBI scheme of disrupting a person’s life)

HOW PARTS OF THIS HAVE UNFOLDED (I was in a Home Depot looking for piece of wood for a cat play piece of furniture and walked out the Corpus Christi Home Depot without a purchase. That weekend an identity thief with email, age, birthday near me, but unrelated to me, bought property for a rental property I have nothing to do with or accounting of, but is owned by and Identity Thief of me.

The picture of me not buying anything in Corpus Christi is fused with something at a different GPS, a purchase by an identity thief, for a fake record that I did buy something when in fact an identity theft bought something from funds and an account not disclosed to me.

I was in Corpus Christ, was visible in Corpus Christi Texas Home Depot, and nowhere near Missouri Home Depot.

Photos of where Dopples of me operate, Arsons to those areas afterwards in sevarl cases, and the misspellingg domain confusion or brand confustion tricks to hijack my identity and move to elsehwere with it where other events not tied to me in reality will unfold.

I believe I am and since 2003 have been studied as a "White supremacist terrorist" as has been my music scene Goth/ Fetish/ Industrial and my picture of my at a goth fetish club (2003 Spank, San Francisco) was not a normal "Klu Klux Klan" photo in any way. U.S. and other intelligence agencies are at war with this "too white" scene because some of its music references are about the fall of Western Civilization or "politically incorrect themes." [VNV Nation, Ramstein, though these groups acutally favor individuality when the speak at all about social justice.

Tom Dunham, myself, and Veronica Hoffman were all in that scene and attending events together.

Jen Moore is a patriot. Investigative Journalist Jen Moore was found dead in a suburban Washington D.C. hotel room Monday. August 20, 2018, according to police and shocked and distraught friends and colleagues. She like Edward Paul Donegan and Veronica Hoffman were documenting a covert con operations funding itself by seekgin payouts for false claims and racketeering activities. She had this and other data, like that of Veronica Hoffman an adult entertrainer helping the police capture abusers of underage women by gainging their trust and tying them up then shaking them down. Like most who were used by the operation she was turned on and discredited in a complex operation that described her tales of the operations as bipolar.

Jen Moore Did Not Have Ostensible or Ulterior in Her Vocabulary > ostensible

>
> stated or appearing to be true, but not necessarily so. "the delay may have a deeper cause than the ostensible reason"
>
> ulterior
>
> existing beyond what is obvious or admitted; intentionally hidden. "could there be an ulterior motive behind his request?"
>
> Actual (accounting)
>
> In accounting, actuals are the recorded revenues and expenditures at a given point in time (as compared to a budget, which is only an estimate of revenues and expenditures).
>
> Actual
> existing in fact; typically as contrasted with what was intended, expected, or believed. "the estimate was much less than the actual cost"

Suddenly shouting "Nazi", picking a raced based fight, alleging the exploitation of minors, etc., are the ostensible reasons to harass me and blacklist me.

To stop an writer from having a home office, access to a PC or work area could bring the death sentence. Assassinating Jen Moore could. Large scale undercover operations paying off (after creating) smearing allegations provide the "ostensible" reason for harassing a person while an "ulterior" motive is hidden. That "actual" motive being hidden is the writer is threat to thoe have access to enormous power.

While I rented apartments water was poured from an above apartment balcony onto my PC when I was working, I had break-ins from shill neighbors, harassing noises and power cut to my home by exposed circuit breakers, my apartment was not wired for Broadband will others were (I was told by an installer the wiring to my apartment had been purposely cut) and there have been many problems like that.

It is typical of the security industry to try and blackball, blacklist, smear, discredit, and destroy the lives of writers.

Chauncey Marvin Holt's actions of declassifying his life and activities in ever greater details and breadth of story telling are matched by CIA reactions of assassinations to prevent Holt's story of the real reasons and people involved in the JFK assassination nascent start to reach the general public.

Holt states he had reasons to move slowly. He wanted to wait until all his friends were dead, etc., so they would not face repercussions for their CIA work. On the other hand he did want to vindicate Lee Harvey Oswald to history as well, and even Jack Ruby who under threat from the mob to take one for the team and hit Oswlad, less Oswald sink them all.

The short timeline I will fill out later in this chapter is in 1962 he was caught in a picture with his CIA FBI buddies, Lee Harvey Oswald, George Reynolds, Frank Belcher, Leroy Young, and others. Napalm Girl is a photo from Vietnam War days of a young girl with burns from Napalm that changed history. That photo of Holt, and Holt again as Hobo, should have changed history as well. Neither photo Holt in any way wanted during most of his life, but as he approached death he began to assert was himself, and after his own death a book with lots of records made available to the public, was him and many of his CIA covert operative associates who themselves were also dead by the time his book was published and available to the public.

A key part of action and re-action is in 1992 Holt admitted being a Hobo with Charles Harrelson and others but went little further. In 1997 he did a document dump to some investigative reporters who followed up on the documents trying to confirm them but the did release to the public clearly classified CIA matters. In that 1997 time-frame Sonny Bono and a Kennedy died in skiing accidents and I think that was the CIA reaction to Holt's actions, and now after 2013 we have the documents ourselves we can see that for ourselves.

Case Closed. In his 1993 book Case Closed, Posner contended that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in the assassination of John F. Kennedy and Oswald's murderer, Jack Ruby, acted independently as well. Case Closed was a New York Times bestseller and a finalist for the 1994 Pulitzer Prize for History.

Gerald Leo Posner (born May 20, 1954) is an American investigative journalist and author of thirteen books, including Case Closed: Lee Harvey Oswald and the Assassination of JFK (1993), which explores the John F. Kennedy assassination, and Killing the Dream: James Earl Ray and the Assassination of Martin Luther King, Jr. (1998), about the assassination of Martin Luther King, Jr. A plagiarism scandal involving articles that Posner wrote for The Daily Beast and his book Miami Babylon arose in 2010. In 2015, the Chicago Tribune called Posner "a merciless little pitbull of an investigator. - Wikipedia

Case Closed: Stampede of the Apologists

[Editor's note: This piece by Chauncey Holt, which we publish here as a review of Gerald Posner, Case Closed, was sent to a writer for the San Diego Union Tribune, James C. Alvord, in response a favorable review he wrote of Posner's book. It was Chauncey's considered opinion that the review was totally irresponsible and, like most other coverage of the death of JFK, highly misleading. Unlike many others, however, he had a large number of very good reasons to support his position.]

As this mid 1990's debate emerged in the newpaper columns Holt far preferred the book Accessories After the Fact by Sylvia Meagher (Author) https://www.amazon.com/Accessories-After-Fact-Sylvia-Meagher/dp/0679743154

> Originally published in 1967, Meagher's masterful dissection of the Warren Report, based on the Warren Commission's own evidence, has stood the test of time. In some cases, declassifications of government records have corroborated the author's suspicions and analyses, such as her amazing assertion that Oswald had never actually been charged with Kennedy's murder, despite sworn testimony to the contrary. Meagher's book raises serious questions not only about Oswald's guilt in the JFK assassination and related crimes, such as the Tippit murder and the Walker shooting, but also about the methods and honesty of the Warren Commission, the FBI, and various Dallas police and other officials.
>
> When the Church Committee first began to re-examine the Warren Commission and its relationship with intelligence agencies in 1975, investigators were shocked by what they discovered. In Accessories After the Fact, Sylvia Meagher delivers a blistering blow to the credibility of the Warren Report, and decades after its original publication researchers and readers are still > discovering what made her work so important. - Amazon.com

Addendum to review of Gerald Posner's Case Closed (the next chapter in his book

In my original review of Posner's book, I failed to address the statements that Mr. Posner made about me. This was done deliberately because I wanted my critique to be free of personal bias and as objective as possible.

However, criticisms have been received from some individuals who considered this failure, on my part, to be prima facie evidence of the truth of Posner's statements. Nothing could be farther from the truth and, in this addendum, I will address those statements.

On page 273 Posner made the following statement regarding me in regard to the "tramps," which he claimed were arrested on 22 November 1963:

> "Some self proclaimed adventurers, like Chauncey Holt, have confessed to being one of the tramps and spun long tales about their purported roles in the assassination. But in February 1992, researchers discovered that the Dallas police files released in 1989 showed that three tramps had indeed been booked on November 22, 1963. The records identified the suspects as Harold Doyle, Gus Abrams and John Gedney. Two of the men, Gedney and Doyle, were still alive, and it turned out they were real tramps who had been to the local rescue mission the night before the assassination and were sleeping in the railroad car when the police arrested them. The men had no connection to the events at Dealey, and the conspiracy press suddenly > and quietly abandoned the issue."

So now after quoting Posner's dismisall of Holt as tall tale teller Holt comes right back with proof to be published in the newspaper columns.

Mr. Posner's allegations, couched in the same demeaning, sarcastic language he resorted to throughout the book, is replete with misstatements of fact. Mr. Posner alludes to me as a "self proclaimed adventurer." To proclaim is to announce offcially and publicly. I have no need to do this. I have knife and bullet wound scars and broken bones to establish my bona fides.

As far as I know I am the only person who has come forward and admitted to being one of the tramps or "spun a long tale" about his role in this matter.

What Holt does not say in the mid 90;s is he was the accountant for the CIA operation and had large piles of documents from all the figures involved he was NOT revealing at that time like Ray Ryan of El Mirador where William King Harvey and Sam Giacanca and others met for Operation Mongoose or the gun running tied to that out of Grace Ranch Peter Licavoli hosted.

In 1997 though, a few years later as he is about to die, drops the docs on TV news crew. They are secret CIA files, the news crew does not seem to publicly drop them, but try to research them with officials to match the statements Holt was making on camera at Dealey Plaza. Some of those official likely included Sunny Bono investigating Gun Running by the CIA and also likely included members of the Kennedy Family. Bono and a member of the Kennedy family died in skiing accidents at this time.

The evidence Holt was offering implicated far more people than a few scars he had on his body did, the only proof he would offer to Posner.

Introduction TO SELF-PORTRAIT OF A SCOUNDREL by Wim Dankbaar a Dutch citizen who watched The Men Who Killed Kennedy as was moved by it.

Wwhat lies in front of you is the life story of Chauncey Marvin Holt.

This autobiography is, in my opinion, the most revealing, eye opening book ever on the JFK assassination and other covert operations of the "secret government" of America. This promise may sound pompous, but I am pretty sure the reader will agree with me, well before turning the last page. As the person to make this story available to you, I would like to give you some introduction to myself, my drive and motives.

My name is Wim Dankbaar. I am a Dutch citizen, [at the time] 51, born, raised and living in the Netherlands.

CHAUNCEY MARVIN HOLT in a statement perhaps as important as the Declaration of Indepenence John Hancock, calling out King George

I am an old man, I have led a dangerous life, and never would have imagined that I, of all people, would live into my seventies. I am presently in fairly good health. I live a life of Spartan simplicity and I still paint better than most.

My whole life has been spent in the shadows of anonymity, one of the reasons I have survived while many of my associates did not. As Lansky once said to me, "To be a successful criminal, you must be as unnoticed as wallpaper".

The same could be said of intelligence agents. Once you come from the shadows into the sunlight, the game is over. I have waited a long time to discuss some of these adventures, until the heat died down and the statutes of limitation expired.

But even today, these subjects are still dangerous — I know.

This story should be told for several reasons: A desire to set the record straight and inform the public of how recklessly their money is being squandered by those in positions of trust; to correct the record in regard to the bum raps certain parties received; to expose the fact that our criminal justice system is morally bankrupt; and to show how easily the secret agendas of the executive branch of the government become perverted. I have made a concerted effort to see that this is not one more of self serving books and I offer no apologies for my actions although, of course, I have many regrets.

Sincerely; from Chauncey Marvin Holt dying of cancer in his La Jolla jail cell.

Dear Marvin:

The IRS is still after Pete and I am badly in need of information which I believe you may have in your files. They are looking into Southwest Aircraft Corporation and Military Armaments and Advisors Co. You were intimately involved in these companies and probably know the details better than anyone else.

These are:

1. Documents relating the Rillito Downs matter, including bank records, cancelled checks, deposits etc.:

2. Documents relating to Southwest Aircraft Corp., including bank records, cancelled checks, deposits etc. Note: they are also asking for end-use certificates);

3. Documents relating to Military Armaments and Advisors Co., including bank records, cancelled checks, deposits etc. Note: they are ~~also~~ asking for end-use certificates);

Gather up everything that you can find and fly into Tucson. The usual security precautions will be arranged.

A CIA internal memo dated November 29, 1975 confirmed that Zapata Petroleum began in 1953 through Bush's joint efforts with Thomas J. As Chauncey Holt meditated his fate in the federal prison La Jolla on mail fraud charges his favorite poem came to mind.

Across thefields of yesterday
He sometimes comes to me;
A little lad just home from play;
The man I used to be.
He always smiles so wistfully
And once he crept within;
I think he hoped to see
The man I might have been.

The postal inspectors who had arrested me, for mail fraud, had made a concerted and, in fact, unconstitutional effort to ascertain my true identity but were unsuccessful. So the personnel of the Bureau of Prisons were not fully aware of just who they had in custody.

The arrest warrant was in the name of one of the dozens of aliases that I had used over the years; the real estate person who had "snitched me off" knew me under my true name and when I was arrested, I had on my person, documents from the Central Intelligence Agency in yet a third name. Documents, found in the car I was driving, indicated that, over the years, I had used many aliases, during black operations, as a contract agent, for proprietary interests funded from contingency funds of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The agents, who arrested me, commented, "We are going to have fun finding out who you really are! "

Gorton studied Electrical Engineering at Yale University, and then Stanford University,[2] and got an MBA from Harvard University. He began his career as an electrical engineer for Martin Marietta (now part of Lockheed Martin), and, following his interests in business, entered the world of fixed-income trading at Credit Suisse First Boston where he worked for 4½ years in the proprietary tradinged by department [2] prior to launching his Lime Group of companies, which include LimeWire,[3] a peer-to-peer file sharing client, Lime Brokerage (a stock brokerage), Tower Research Capital LLC[2] (a hedge fund), and LimeMedical LLC (a medical software company). He was a key figure in Arista Records LLC v. Lime Group LLC.

Gorton proposes that corruption in the US government is so widespread that a South African style truth commission is needed, in which earlier wrong doers make complete and full confessions of their past crimes in return for an amnesty from future prosecution.

Ed Donegan proposes the same inquiry in the form of an Inquest similar to coronor' inquest, and private parties conducting the inquest in public is an available substitute for a qaulity government one, though private actors lake subpoena power.

The story of the American political cabal so powerful that it has been able to repress knowledge of its existence for 50 years, and the hidden history of the political force that has dominated American politics for the last 50 years.

Introduction:

About seven years ago, I became curious about the JFK assassination, so I started to read some books and to do some internet research on the topic. What started as a minor interest has grown over the years to a substantial passion of mine. I now have over 100 books on the topics of the JFK assassination and of the ensuing history of political corruption in the United States. I have discovered a hidden political history of the United States, a history that has not been covered by the mainstream media and that can only be found by those who search it out.

The federal government is much more corrupt than is generally known. The forces of government corruption are so powerful that they have succeeded in preventing the major news outlets in this country from covering this corruption. However, the freedom of the press has allowed the truth to be written in books.

A community of people who read many books has discovered a hidden history of America with corruption so profound and scary that it shocks the sensibilities of most Americans and drives the mainstream press to seek comfort in official government lies. The history of this covert battle for the heart of American Democracy is filled with stories that would make the Sopranos blush and Abraham Lincoln cheer. The obligations of American citizenship demand that every American citizen learn this history.

Q. Who was Phillip Twombly? Can you elaborate on his background?

Chancey Marvin Holt - A. Twombly was one of the CIA's most important assets. He had been, at one time, executive vice president of Coca Cola in the Caribbean. He owned the controlling interest in the University Bank of Fullerton, the main conduit for contingency funds of the CIA. He was president of the so-called Blue Goose/ Davis/Eadington Group, a huge conglomerate, all privately owned that owned over a hundred properties from Hawaii to Florida. He was a partner in over a hundred partnerships, including TED Leasing, a large firm owned by Twombly, Tom Eadington, an oil man, and the Davis brothers. This firm was used by contract agents of the CIA to acquire properties useful to the CIA's covert operations.

The truth about who is a patriot or traitor.

On Friday November 30th, the former treasonous President George H.W. Bush passed away at the age of ninety four.

While the establishment celebrates the life of the former president and Americans line up to mourn their fallen leader, the facts that are being reported in the mainstream media are far different than the legacy he is leaving behind.

The Early Years

George Herbert Walker Bush was born on June 12, 1924 in Massachusetts to Prescott Sheldon Bush and Dorothy (Walker) Bush. Shortly after his birth, the family moved to Connecticut where he began his formal education at Greenwich Country Day School. At the age of eighteen, Bush joined the U.S. Navy.

During his tenure in the Navy, Bush was stationed with Torpedo Squadron 51 aboard the USS San Jacinto. On August 1, 1944 his unit launched an operation against the Japanese in the Bonin Islands. On September 2, 1944, Bush's aircraft was downed leading to the death of eight Navy airmen, leaving Bush as the lone survivor. The episode later became known as the Chichijima incident and led to the future president being hailed as a war hero.

Political Career

Upon graduating from Yale, Bush began his career in politics and was elected chairman of the Harris County, Texas Republican Party in 1963. Three years later, Bush was elected to the US House of Representatives, marking the beginning of a meteoric rise which resulted in him being named director of the Central Intelligence Agency in 1976.

As Director of the CIA, Bush was responsible for overseeing the payment of hundreds of thousands of dollars to Panamanian leader and suspected cocaine trafficker, Manuel Noriega.

Although Bush claimed he wasn't aware of Noriega's illicit activities until 1988, the CIA's involvement in Latin America would eventually in a national controversy during the Reagan administration, in what became known as the Iran-Contra scandal.

While Bush served less than a year as the head of the CIA, he was also caught destroying evidence of US war crimes. As reported by MuckRock,

"Declassified records recently unearthed in CREST show the CIA waffled on a promise to obey the law in destroying records of Agency's illegal activities and wrongdoing."

Four years after serving as the director of the CIA, George H.W. Bush was elected Vice President of the United States. Serving under former President Ronald Reagan, Bush kept a low profile and avoided making any key policy decisions or criticisms of the Reagan administration, but attended a large number of ceremonies and public events.

In 1988, Bush was elected president defeating Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts. Within his first year in office, Bush's approval ratings began to slip due to his inability to deal with Panamanian leader Manuel Noriega. Bush responded by deciding to invade Panama, and on December 20,1989 he deployed 25,000 troops to the tiny nation. Bush justified the invasion- code named operation just cause- on the grounds of national security. The president mislead the country by claiming Noriega had threatened the US, a claim which turned out to be untrue. After two weeks the conflict ended, resulting in the deaths of twenty American soldiers and as many as 2,000 Panamanians.

Less than a year after the invasion of Panama, Bush once again found himself responding to another foreign policy debacle. On August 2, 1990 Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein began an invasion of nearby Kuwait. In response, President Bush and the American media used the testimony of a 15-year-old Kuwaiti girl, known only by her first name of Nayirah to justify US intervention in Kuwait. However, Nayirah was later discovered to be the daughter of a U.S. ambassador, who was being coaxed by military psychological operations specialists.

In 1991, Bush gave his infamous 'New World Order' speech, which many people believe signaled the beginning of the PNAC plan also known as the Project For a New American Century. In other words, Bush outright rejected his nation for the preeminence of the United Nations. video

Life After Politics

After leaving office in 1993, George H.W. Bush retired with his wife Barbara and built a home in a community near Houston, Texas. Though retired, the former president would still face controversy.

In 1999, Former Brigadier General Russell S. Bowen published a book entitled, "The Immaculate Deception - The Bush Crime Family Exposed."

In the book General Bowen details the Government's alleged role in covering up Bush's role in the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

The Immaculate Deception: Bush Crime Family Exposed Paperback – September 5, 2000 by Russell S. Bowen (Author) Ted Gunderson will speak about Bowen being one of his Confidential Informant and also refererd to Bowen as friend he corresponded with after the evidence plant.

Perhaps the most shocking book written this century about treason committed by the highest leaders within the US government. This disturbing and thought-provoking expose is written by Brigadier General Russell S Bowen who has courageously come forward with the truth about his association with the OSS (Office of Security Services) and his ‘drug running’ activities on behalf of the ‘secret’ government which involves the highest US ‘leaders’ and which few Americans know anything about. The most startling details are revealed regarding Bowen’s clandestine work including his work under the orders of George Bush.

When the author graduated from Los Gatos Military Academy in California in 1942, he already had been in uniform for nearly a decade. He spent his whole childhood in military training, attaining the rank Of captain at the Castle Heights Military Academy.

At the age Of 17, he became an aviation cadet after passing the examination in Sacramento. California. Still only a tccnagcr, he spent the war years flying P-38s. dueling German planes in Italy as a "Top Gun" fighter pilot. He was a highly decorated pilot with the famous 82nd Fighter Group which demonstrated their fearlessness, dedication and supreme skill by flying combat aircraft under murderous conditions.

Following a meeting with the Pope at the Vatican in 1945, Bowen, at 19, was offered the chance to join the secret team of OSS directed by General William "Wild Bill" Donovan. Bowen became an undercover agent, involved in a variety of secret missions.

Bowen was assigned in 1959 to visit Asunci6n, Paraguay, to familiarize himself with thc traffic routes of drugs coming into the U. S. through Cuba. His information on routes passed on to U. S. Customs was described as "the most important piece of information" they had received.

In his military career and as a strict Catholic, Bowen had been trained to follow orders from his superiors without question, Forty-seven years as a mole and member of William Donovan's secret team "Super Spies," he received orders and reported directly to William Casey, William Pawley. and his brother in the Dominican Republic, John Knight. In 1958 and 1959 he reported to Batista's Secretary Villalon, the Argentine who became the right hand man for Reagan. Still supported by several intelligence patriots Bowen survived operation "Silver Star," his last role. That same deference to authority led Bowen to carry out an operation that cost him six and a half years in a federal prison in Springfield, MO. Bowen, an undercover agent in a cocaine smuggling scheme that he was trying to expose, took the fall after diverting a drug load to Sylvania, Georgia rather than following orders which required him to deliver it to Homestead, Florida.

Among his many awards and decorations for meritorious service is the Distinguished Service Medal. After World War II, he flew numerous emergency airlifts and rescue missions as a free-lance pilot. He served as a flight officer for such world figures as the United Nation's leader Dag Hammarsköld, the Shah of Iran, and Cuban leader Fulgencio Batista. Among many other citations, Bowen received a commendation in 1956 from U. S. Army Major General J. F. H. Seitz for bravery rescuing a wounded army captain in Iran. Bowen even regulated the flight altitude to make his patient comfortable. "In the opinion of my altitude to make his patient comfortable. "In the opinion of my surgeon, these actions by Captain Bowen may have meant the difference between life and death," wrote Seitz.

Bowen regrets that in his youthful idealism and his desire to excel, he was misled by some American leaders who claimed to be the guardians of America. Instead, they were then and are now damaging the country. Acknowledging that in his zeal to expose wrongdoing, he himself committed illegal acts (under orders from his government), Bowen has dedicated his life to exposing our government's ineffective and counter-productive efforts to curb the drug trade. He labels that current effort under the misguided control of U.S. President George Bush "nothing more than a war of words." OPERATION ZAPATA: 'THE BAY OF PIGS THING"

Actually, however, Congress was being manipulated. This is how the war machine operates. Behind the seeming concern for national security are busy men with the bulging briefcases hurrying from Pentagon over to Capitol Hill, the tight-mouthed men hurnting from CIA headquarters over to the Pentagon; it is, eventually, a game. It is an operation designed to produce for the warfare sector and its military-hardware supporters billions of dollars annually and unlimited power in the affairs of the nation.

Since the end of World War II, the United States has spent a thousand billion dollars—one trillion dollars—furnished by the American people. who have been colonized by these men and their hunger for power. Could the CIA kill a president to keep such an operation going? Kings have been beheaded for infinitely IesS.—Jim Gan#on, A Heritage of Stone (1970)

"I mean, draw your own conclusions. There's a table of organization at the Company. The only people who had all the pieces in place that could have done it were a tight 'old- boy' network of guys that wanted to see him go, that thought he was committing suicide. "—Former CIA agent, Gordon Novel.

JFK, Academy-Award winning film director Oliver Stone's three-hour, high-voltage inquisition into the assassination of John F. Kennedy is the rnost controversial film in recent history. While the cameras were still rolling, on the basis of a first-draft script, The Washington Post skewered the film in an article titled Dallas in Wonderland. Since then, almost every major news[paper, magazine and television commentator has voiced criticism of Stone' s vision Of a vast conspiracy behind the assassination.

Stone has retorted that "Every paper and magazine in Arncrica has devoted more space in the last three months to attacking my attack on the Warren Commission than they devoted in the previous 28 years to examining the Warren Commission....My question is, 'Why arc they so scared of this movie?' What are they defending?

Asked about the controversy, President Bush reiterated his faith in the Warren Commission, comparing conspiracy theories to rumors that Elvis is alive. Stone promptly fired off a statement to Daily Variety virtually accusing Bush of being part of the cover-up. In his 30 years in the "executive branch establishment", Stone writes, Bush "has ample opportunity to stonewall the american people.

"Dean, does Bush know about the [smoking gun] transcript yet?"

"Yes. "

"Well, what did he do?"

"He broke out into assholes and shit himself to death. "—Conversation between White House Congrsional William Timmons and Dean Burch, White House counselor, as recorded in Woodward and Bernstein's The Final Days

Bush's character, or lack thereof, was never more graphically demonstrated than morrænt referred to above on August 5, 1974, during a meeting with other White House officials to assess the impact of the "smoking-gun" tape. The recording contarned the conversation between Nixon and Qlief of Staff H.R. Haldeman. held shortly after the original break- in at the Watergate, which could now no longer be contained. It was already understood among Ihe men gathered to listen that Nixon's resignation was inevitable.

Bush's great concern, however, was not for his boss, Richard Nixon. His overpowering fear was that the smoking- gun tape called attention to a money-laundering mechanism which he, along with Bill Liedtke and Robert Mosbacher, Rush's partner, had helped to set up, at Nixon's request, in During that e8change, on June 23, 1972, Nixon told Haldeman to order Helms at CIA to stop the FBI's investigation into the transfer of funds from Texas and Minnesota through Mexico City into the coffers of the Committee to Re-Elect the President (CREEP), and from there, into the hands of the "Plumbers" arrested in the Watergate building.

The statements on the tape were widely interpreted to constitute prima-facie case of obstruction of justice against Nixon. Bush's concern centered around Nixon's references to "the Texans" and "some Texas people", of whom Bush, Liedtke and Mosbacher were most prominent. Tbe potential threat to Bush's political ambitions was staggering.

Bush, along with Nixon, was extremely concerned diat ü1e FBI's investigation would expose their connection to ' 'the Bay of Pigs thing".

In the same discussion, Nixon links "the Cubans", 'the Texans", "Helms", "Hunt", "Bernard Barker", "Robert Mosbacher" and "the Bay of Pigs". Over and over on the Watergate tapes, these names come up in the discussions of the photos from Dallas that Nixon was supposedly trying to obtain in the Watergate burglary?

In the transclipt, Nixon describes George Bush's partner, Robert Mosbacher, as one of the Texas fundraisers for Nixon. Nixon refers to the 'Cubans" and the "Texans". The 'Texans" were Bush, Mosbacher and Liedtke.

In fact, most of CIA leadership in the planned invasion of Cuba seems to have been from Texas. An entire Texan branch of the CIA is based in the oil business.

If we trace Bush's background in the Texas oil business, we discover his two partners in the oil-barge leasing business: Mosbacher and Texan James Baker. Mosbacher is now Secretary of Commerce and Baker is Secretary of State. According to a longtime operative in Agency operations in the Carribbean and South America, Bush's company, Zapata Oil, was one of the key suppliers of oil to Cuba under Batista.

After his landslide victory in 1972, the first thing Nixon did was to demand signed resignations Of his entire government. 'Eliminat everyone," he told John Ehrlichman, "except George Bush. Bush will do anything for our cause.

Other members of the Watergate team—who were coordinated by Bush for the invasion of Cuba over a decade Frank Sturgis, E. Howard Hunt, Bemard Barker and Rafael "Chi Chi" Quintero. Quintero worked with CIA coordinator William F. Buckley, Jr. In a special assassination unit tun under the cover of Pemex Oil Co. in Mexico in the early 1980s, before Buckley's return to Beirut and his subsequent capture and torture to death by a radical Islamic group. The longtime CIA hitman has said publicly dut if he ever told what he knew about Dallas and the Bay of Pigs "it would be the biggest scandal ever to rock the nation. "

Bush claims he never worked for the CIA until he was appointed Director by President Ford in 1976. Of course, Bush has a company duty to deny tring in CIA. CIA is a secret organization. No one ever admits to being a member.

The truth is that Bush has been a top CIA agent since before the 1961 invasion of Cuba, working with Felix Rodriguez and other anti-Castro Cubans. Bush may deny his work for the CIA in 1959, but there are records in files of Rodriguez and others involved in the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba that expose Bush's mle. Ihe corporations would not put somebody in charge of all the state secrets held by the CIA, unless he was experienced and well-trained in the CIA?

The Initial reaction of Senator Frank Church, Chair of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, to the firing of William Colby and naming of Bush as CIA Director, was that it was part of attempts by Ford (a former member of the Warren Commission) to impede the Church Committee's investigation into CIA assassination plots, with which Colby was cooperating, but which Ford was to keep secret.

Within days of Bush's advent as DCI, the hemorrhage ended.

Did Congress realize that Nixon and Bush had openly discussed killing JFK for stopping the air cover for the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba? Remember, Nixon taped virtually every discussion he had with anyone in his inner circle, including Bush. There is a photo of Bush reporting to Nixon in the White House in 1968. It will interesting to see what they were talking about on that day, when the full 4,000 hours are released.

In his autobiography, Looking Forward, Bush describes some of his political adversaries in Texas, including Lyndon Johnson, John Connally, Ralph Yarborough and Lloyd Bentsen. three of whom were in Dealey Plaza, in Dallas, in the motorcade which canied Kennedy to his death. Curiously, his only statement in the book concerning that event is "But now Johnson was President...."

Perhaps his seeming disinterest in Kennedy's killing can bc traced to a single fact purposely left out of his glowing biography. Buried among the 98,755 pages of FBI documents released to the public in 1977 and 1978 —as a result of Freedom of Information Act suits—was a memo on November 29, 1963, one week after the assassination, from J. Edgar Hoover.

Written to the director of the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence and Research, Hoover described the briefing given to "George Bush of the Central Intelligence Agency ' the day after the assassination, when Lee Harvey Oswald was interrogated about his connections to Cuban exiles and the CIA. Oswald's ties to the CIA and Naval Intelligence are virtually undisputed; the likelihood that Bush mctioned on behalf of either of the two agencies is even greater, given his early service as a naval aviator and his family's close ties to the military-industrial complex.

The briefing was held, according to the FBI director, because the State Department feared that "some misguided anti-Castro group might capitalize on the present situation and undertake ah unauthorized raid against Cuba, believing that the assassination of President John F. Kennedy might herald a change in U.S. policy, which is not true." "The substance of the foregoing was furnished to Bush and Capt. William Edwards of the Defense Intelligence Agency on November 23, by Mr. W.T. Forsyth of this Bureau."

Bush himself described his CIA appointment by President Ford as a "real shocker". In his autobiography, Bush points out: "I'd come to the CIA with some general knowledge Of how it operated." His remark in the book that his "overseas experience as a businessman" helped qualify him for the appointment by President Nixon—as Ambassador to the United Nations—could also refer to his experience as a CIA agent.

Bush's autobiography is vague about his activities in the early 1960s, when he was running the Houston-based Zapata Off-Shore Company. "Running an offshore oil company," he wrote, ' 'would mean days spent over water; not only the Gulf of Mexico but oceans and seas the world over.' 6

The 1972 profile of Bush in Current Biography provides more details of those years: "Bush traveled throughout the world to sell Zapata's oil-drilling services. Under his direction it grew to be a multi-million-dollar concem, with operations in Latin America, the Caribbean, the Middle East, Japan, Australia and Westem Europe." According to Nicholas King's George Bush: A Biography, his company, Zapata Oil, was concerfrating in the Caribbean and off South America in the early 1960s, which meshes with the available data on Bush's early CIA responsibilities. An agent will often adopt the cover of a businessman, while business people have also served as informants for the Agency, passing along information picked up on their travels.

Informed by reporter Joseph McBride in mid-1988 of the 11/29/1963 J. Edgar Hoover memorandum, the President's spokesman, Stephen Hart, asked, "Are you sure it's the same George Bush?" After talking to the Vice President, Hart quoted him as follows, "I was in Houston, Texas, at the time and involved in the independent oil-drilling business. And I was running for the Senate in late '63." "Must be another George Bush," added Hart.

McBride then asked him, via Hart:

• Did you do any work with or for the CIA prior to the time you became its Director?

• If so, what was the nature of your relationship with the agency, and how long did it last?

• Did you receive a briefing by a member of the FBI on anti-Castro Cuban activities in the after-math of the assassination of President Kennedy?

Half an hour later, Hart called McBride to say he had not spoken to the Vice President but would answer the questions himself. The answer to the first question was no, he said, and so he would skip number two.

To third, he repeated Bush's answer above but added that Bush had also said, "l don't have any idea what he's talking about."

However, when Bush's demal was read back to rum, Hart said that he preferred not to be quoted directly. explaining, "It's a week old now, and I'm going off my notes."

When McBride reminded him that he wanted to quote Bush directly, Hart said, "I am a spokesman. However you want to write it, the answer is no", regarding Bush's alleged 1963 involvement with the CIA.

CIA spokesman Bill Devine told McBride, "This is the first time I've heard this," when asked about Bush's CIA involvement in the early 1960s. The next day, Devine called McBride wilh Lhe terse response, "I can neither confirm nor deny." When he was told what Hart had said and asked whether he could check whether [or not] there had bccn another George Bush in the CIA, Devine responded, 'Twenty-seven years ago? I doubt that very much. In any event, we just have a standard policy of not confirming that anyone is involved with the CIA."

Richard Helms, who was Deputy Director at the Agency in 1963, told McBride, Bush's name in the memo "must have been some kind of misprint. I don't recall anyone by that name working for the agency....He certainly never worked for me."

McBride attempted to locate William T. Forsyth, but learned that he was dead. Forsyth worked out of the Washington FBI headquarters and was best known for running the investigation of the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. Efforts to locate Captain Edwards of the Defense Intelligence Agency were unsuccessful.

Bush's specific duties with the CIA in 1963—whether he was an agent, or merely an "asset"—cannot be determined from Hoover's memo. However, one of McBride's sources, who worked with the Agency in the late 195(k and 1960s, said of the Vice President, "1 know he was involved in the Caribbean. I know he was involved in the suppression of things after the Kennedy Assasstnatton. There was a very definite worry that some Cuban groups were going to move against Castro and attempt to blame it on the CIA.'"

After McBride's article conceming Hoover's 1963 memo appeared in Nation magazine, the CIA evidently changed its mind. On July 19, 1988, Agency spokeswoman Sharon Basso told the Associated Press that the 1963 Hoover memo "apparently" referred not to Vice President George Bush but to George William Bush, who had worked in 1963 on the night watch at CIA headquarten. which have been the apprcpriate place to have received such an FBI report". Basso said this George Bush left the CIA in 1964 to work for the Defense Intelligence Agency.

Why did the Agency break with its longstanding policy of "neither confirm nor deny"? Basso said it Ithe Agency] believed "the record should be clarified". Another CIA official told the AP, "We put a lot of effort into this."

Hart of the VP's office told the same thing to Sarah Perl of the Nation.

Both Perl and McBride called the DIA, which confirmed that George William Bush had worked there between February 1964 and July 1965, performing the same duties as a CIA civilian-grade government intelligence-research specialist, with the relatively low-level rank of GS-7.

Although the Agency claimed that the whereabouts of this Bush were unknown, McBride located him at 401 Cambridge Road, Alexandria, Virginia. A check of directories showed that a George W. Bush, "emp US govt", lived at the Cambridge Road address in 1964. When McBride reached George William Bush, who was 49 at that time and worked for the Social Security Administration, Bush confirmed that he had worked for the CIA for about six months in 1963-64, as a coast and landing-beach analyst—not as a night watchman—in those years, with the rank of GS-5. He definitely did not receive the FBI briefing in 1963, he stated.

When McBride read him the Hoover memo about the FBI briefing, his response was, "Is that the other George While in the CIA, George William Bush said he had never received interagency briefings because he was "just a lowly researcher and analyst" and worked only with documents and photographs. He said he "knew neither one" of two people the memorandum mentions being briefed, William T. Forsyth of the FBI and Capt. William Edwards of the DIA. "So it wasn't me," he said.

George William Bush said he left the CIA because he was offered a job by the DIA at a higher grade and salary, and he stayed until joining the Social Security Administration in January 1968. He professed he was "a little bit amazed, but not entirely surprised" that the CIA and the DIA divulged his employment with them. "l didn't know they were at liberty to release all this. It was certainly without advance notice," he said, adding that he had not known of the story in the Nation about George Bush's alleged 1963 ties with the CIA.

The Social Security Administration confirmed that this George Bush was currently employed in its Arlington, Virginia office, and verified other points in his story, particularly aspects of his life prior to working with the CIA. In addition, George William Bush repeated his story to Victor Navasky, editor of the Nation, reiterating that he was not the man referred to in the FBI memorandum.

Why would the CIA indicate that this man was the George Bush in the Hoover memo without any attempt to locate him, and why would the media repeat the Agency's version without checking? Where was George Herbert Walker Bush on November 22 and 23, 1963? Was he working for the CIA then?

While the full extent of his role is vague, the newly discovered FBI document places Bush in Miami, recruiting right-wing Cuban exiles for the invasion of Cuba.

Bush lived in Houston, Texas, hopping to Miami weekly. Bush spent 1960 and '61 recruiting Cubans in Miami for the invasion- That is how he met Felix Rodriguez, who became part of a special CIA shooter team, which was coordinated out of a secret, triangular-fire training base in Mexico, maintained by the domestic counter-intelligence Division Five of the FBI. (8)

Felix Rodriguez was the Iran-Contra CIA agent who told the world in October 1986 that the CIA plane flown by Gene Hasenfus had crashed in Nicaragua. As soon as Rodriguez heard that the plane crashed, he called Samuel Watson, staff aide to his CIA supervisor, Donald Gregg, who was now National Security Adviser to the Vice President, Bush.

Bush has denied being in the contra "loop", but investigators recently obtained copies of Oliver North's diary, which documents Bush's role as a CIA supervisor of the contra-supply network. Aiding the contras was President Reagan's major anti-Communist thrust. In 1988, Bush told Congress he knew nothing about the illegal supply flights until late November 1986, yet North's diary shows Bush at the first planning meeting on August 6, 1985.

George Bush in the Hoover memo without any attempt to Bush's "official" log placed him somewhere else (see chapter 4). Such double sets of logs have long been used to hide Bush's real role in the CIA to provide "plausible deniability". The problem is, it failed, because too many people, like North and Rodriguez, kept records that show Bush's role back to the1961 invasion of Cuba. (9)

The discovery of the Hoover memo, stating that, "Mr. George Bush of the Central Intelligence Agency" had been briefed on November 23, 1963 about the reaction of anti-Castro Cuban exiles in Miami to the assassination of Kennedy, however, stirs speculation as to what Bush had been doing during this time

It is believed by many, that Bush was in Texas the day before but, like Nixon and Hoover, he has denied it.

It is believed by many, that Bush was in Texas the day before but, like Nixon and Hoover, he has denied it. It has been reported that Nixon and Hoover were in Dallas the night before, at the ranch of Texas oil baron Cohn J. "Clint" Murchison, Jr. A newspaper article described Nixon's stay at the Baker Hotel in Dallas, ostensibly for a Pepsi-Cola executives' convention.

Retired Brig. Gem Penn Jones repolted that Murchison, Hoover and others met at Murchison's house in Dallas on November 21, 1963. (10)

Within hours of Kennedy's death, a man identifying himself as "George H.W. Bush" telephoned the FBI's Houston office With Information about a threat allegedly made against Kennedy by a young, right-wing Republican.

The FBI report concerning this call was made public in the late 1970s, as a result of lawsuits under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). It stated that "On November 22, 1963, Mr. George H.W. Bush, 5525 Briar, Houston, Texas, telephonically advised...that one, James Parrott has been talking of killing the President when he comes to Houston."

According to Nixon's biography, his personal and political ties with the Bush family go back to 1946, when Nixon claims he read an ad placed in an L.A. newspaper by the Orange County Republican Party and a wealthy group of businessmen, led by Prescott Bush, the father of George Bush.

It took Nixon eight more years to reach his goal. And the canny politician always remembered who helped him get there. So, again, it was payback time for George Bush. Nixon appointed him Chairman of the Republican National Committee and, later, Ambassador to China.

By 1976, Ford, who succeeded Nixon after Watergate, paid his due bill. He picked out a big job for his old crony, Bush: in the CIA. But this time Bush would not be an underling. Now he would be the head man.

at the top of the Cabal, and as the Cabal was fighting off threats from the outside world, an internal battle was taking place for control of the Cabal and ultimately the control of power in America. Three factions fought for power: a network of old boys from the OSS (the Office of Strategic Services, the WWII precursor to the CIA), a group within the Office of Naval Intelligence (ONI), and a group within the CIA led by George H. As news broke of the attack, photos of the repainted U.S. planes became public and revealed American support for the invasion. President Kennedy cancelled a second air strike.

He still managed to obtain a huge loan from the Teamsters, without any diffculty or delay. Later the loan was in default and the hotel was forced to close.

We were still doing a great deal of gunrunning, operating through the Southwest Aircraft Company, a CIA front. The major stockholder of record was Peter Licavoli, since he had formed the company in the first place, at the same that he formed the Military Armaments and Advisors Company of Detroit, Tucson and London.

This base in operations was closed to us when the DEA, which was looking for drugs, seized our aircraft and discovered hundreds of rifles and explosives, including hand grenades, claymore mines and C-4.

The agents got the aircraft but they didn't locate the crew. The aircraft had been leased to non-existent crew members. When the government found out the identity of the owners of the aircraft they, of course, were very suspicious, but they could never prove that we had anything to do with the operation. Our suit to recover the aircraft, which extended over several years, was unsuccessful. When the criminal information was drawn it seemed rather strange to see the caption: U.S. v. Dehaviland Aircraft, Model Caribou. I have learned that this is the case when they seize boats, cars or airplanes.

After this fiasco, which was very expensive, I moved on to Beverly Hills and flew less and less although I did make several trips to Laos where our aircraft, all of which had been STOL equipped was leased to Bird & Son, another of the CIA's private airlines.

Between the assassination of Kennedy in 1963 and Peter Licavoli's death in 1979, as I stated before, we were in a lot of deals, some legal; some illegal.

During this time, we met some of the most effective snitches on the government's payroll. Of these, Alan Bruce Cooper and Charles E. Leggett were two of the most memorable.

Alan Cooper was American-born but had spent a great deal of time in England and sported a British diplomatic passport, which appeared genuine to me. If it were a forgery, the counterfeiter was a first rate craftsman.

He turned up on Phoenix in the late sixties or the early 1970s, tooling around town in a silver Rolls Royce and discussing, in a very modest, unassuming manner, his $20 million art collection, which included such masters as Raphael, Rembrandt, Picasso and Chagall.

It is impossible to sort out, even now, the loyalties and the disloyalties of many of the colorful and, regrettably, deceitful characters I met during that period.

At that time, Somoza and Trujillo, both bloodthirsty despots, were bitter foes of Castro and were staunchly defended by the fledgling CIA, which, at the time, through its contract agents, was providing guns and money to Castro.

Newspaper reporters and writers of magazine articles created the myth of Castro, with considerable assistance from the CIA. Only after it was too late did they see Castro for what he really was. Of course, part of the responsibility for what Castro is must be borne by the U.S. government, who actually forced "a shotgun wedding" between Castro and the Soviet Union, which was always willing, but Castro was very shy in the beginning. Since I was a pilot, I flew in and out of Havana, many times on assignments for CIA fronts, and for others, such as Lansky. I was approached many times by individuals, who later became famous or infamous, depending on which side of the fence one found one's self.

One of those names that I used was Charles Hormley and I was almost buried under that name. By the summer of 1958, I had made over a score of flights into Cuba, supplying arms to Castro. On one of these flights I developed engine trouble and was headed for the naval base at Guantanamo, when I was forced to ditch. I was pulled out of the water by naval personnel, who took me to the American Embassy, after caring for my injuries.

I used the tourist card of a reporter, who was one of the company's assets to exit the country. I was queried at the airport as to why my arm was bandaged and I told the offcers that I was injured in a car accident in Havana. The offcers just nodded, knowingly, because, with the drivers in Havana, who were among the world's worst, the accident rate was very high. I used Ralston's name and license when I was working for Intermountain Aviation in the late 1950s, when Tibetans were training in the U. S. for guerrilla forays into China.

I also used his name and license for flights into Cuba, and one can still see the B26s, with armor plate, bomb bays and gun ports, at Davis-Monthan Air Base in Tucson.

Guatemala is a beautiful land of vivid contrast; lofty mountains and fertile valleys with abundant crops of bananas and coffee and has a very moderate climate.

It is a depressing country as well when one considers the poor and homeless descendants of the ancient Mayas.

When Arbenz announced in February 1953 that he intended to appropriate 225,000 acres of United Fruit's land, the CIA was galvanized into action, even though United Fruit was not using the land.

Ambassador John E. Peurifoy retorted, "He will do until a communist comes along."

So IRC started recruiting for the plan to oust Arbenz. A handful of civilian pilots were hired to fly the Thunderbolts, vintage airplanes from World War II, used to assist Armas in his "invasion" of Guatemala.

A few Gooney Birds — C47s — were to be flown by contract pilots to distribute pamphlets or to push ordinance from, over Guatemala City.

A training site on Momotombito, a volcanic island in Lake Managua, Nicaragua was set up and as colorful a group as one can find, right out of central casting in Hollywood, was assembled; Jerry Fred DeLarm, "Rip" Robertson, Tony Po, Jack Younger, Howard Hunt, David Atlee Phillips and others whose names escape me at the moment.

On April 17, 1961, 1,400 Cuban exiles launched what became a botched invasion at the Bay of Pigs on the south coast of Cuba. https://www.jfklibrary.org/learn/about-jfk/jfk-in-history/the-bay-of-pigs

In 1959, Fidel Castro came to power in an armed revolt that overthrew Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista. The US government distrusted Castro and was wary of his relationship with Nikita Khrushchev, the leader of the Soviet Union.

Before his inauguration, John F. Kennedy was briefed on a plan by the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) developed during the Eisenhower administration to train Cuban exiles for an invasion of their homeland. The plan anticipated that the Cuban people and elements of the Cuban military would support the invasion. The ultimate goal was the overthrow of Castro and the establishment of a non-communist government friendly to the United States.

Training

President Eisenhower approved the program in March 1960. The CIA set up training camps in Guatemala, and by November the operation had trained a small army for an assault landing and guerilla warfare.

José Miró Cardona led the anti-Castro Cuban exiles in the United States. A former member of Castro's government, he was the head of the Cuban Revolutionary Council, an exile committee. Cardona was poised to take over the provisional presidency of Cuba if the invasion succeeded.

Despite efforts of the government to keep the invasion plans covert, it became common knowledge among Cuban exiles in Miami. Through Cuban intelligence, Castro learned of the guerilla training camps in Guatemala as early as October 1960, and the press reported widely on events as they unfolded.

Shortly after his inauguration, in February 1961, President Kennedy authorized the invasion plan. But he was determined to disguise U.S. support. The landing point at the Bay of Pigs was part of the deception. The site was a remote swampy area on the southern coast of Cuba, where a night landing might bring a force ashore against little resistance and help to hide any U.S. involvement. Unfortunately, the landing site also left the invading force more than 80 miles from refuge in Cuba's Escambray Mountains, if anything went wrong.

The Plan

The original invasion plan called for two air strikes against Cuban air bases. A 1,400-man invasion force would disembark under cover of darkness and launch a surprise attack. Paratroopers dropped in advance of the invasion would disrupt transportation and repel Cuban forces. Simultaneously, a smaller force would land on the east coast of Cuba to create confusion.

The main force would advance across the island to Matanzas and set up a defensive position. The United Revolutionary Front would send leaders from South Florida and establish a provisional government. The success of the plan depended on the Cuban population joining the invaders.

The Invasion

The first mishap occurred on April 15, 1961, when eight bombers left Nicaragua to bomb Cuban airfields.

The CIA had used obsolete World War II B-26 bombers, and painted them to look like Cuban air force planes. The bombers missed many of their targets and left most of Castro's air force intact. As news broke of the attack, photos of the repainted U.S. planes became public and revealed American support for the invasion. President Kennedy cancelled a second air strike.

On April 17, the Cuban-exile invasion force, known as Brigade 2506, landed at beaches along the Bay of Pigs and immediately came under heavy fire. Cuban planes strafed the invaders, sank two escort ships, and destroyed half of the exile's air support. Bad weather hampered the ground force, which had to work with soggy equipment and insufficient ammunition.

The Counterattack

Over the next 24 hours, Castro ordered roughly 20,000 troops to advance toward the beach, and the Cuban air force continued to control the skies. As the situation grew increasingly grim, President Kennedy authorized an "air-umbrella" at dawn on April 19—six unmarked American fighter planes took off to help defend the brigade's B-26 aircraft flying. But the planes arrived an hour late, most likely confused by the change in time zones between Nicaragua and Cuba. They were shot down by the Cubans, and the invasion was crushed later that day.

Some exiles escaped to the sea, while the rest were killed or rounded up and imprisoned by Castro's forces. Almost 1,200 members of Brigade 2506 surrendered, and more than 100 were killed.

The Aftermath

The brigade prisoners remained in captivity for 20 months, as the United States negotiated a deal with Fidel Castro. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy made personal pleas for contributions from pharmaceutical companies and baby food manufacturers, and Castro eventually settled on $53 million worth of baby food and medicine in exchange for the prisoners.

On December 23, 1962, just two months after the end of the Cuban Missile Crisis, a plane containing the first group of freed prisoners landed in the United States. A week later, on Saturday, December 29, surviving brigade members gathered for a ceremony in Miami's Orange Bowl, where the brigade's flag was handed over to President Kennedy. "I can assure you," the president promised, "that this flag will be returned to this brigade in a free Havana."

The disaster at the Bay of Pigs had a lasting impact on the Kennedy administration. Determined to make up for the failed invasion, the administration initiated Operation Mongoose—a plan to sabotage and destabilize the Cuban government and economy, which included the possibility of assassinating Castro.

The Planes B-26s for Indonesia as CIA planes

Indonesia 1958: Nixon, the CIA, and the Secret War By L. Fletcher Prouty

The Martin B-26 Marauder is an American twin-engined medium bomber that saw extensive service during World War II. The B-26 was built at two locations: Baltimore, Maryland, and Omaha, Nebraska, by the Glenn L. Martin Company.

The B-26 Marauder was used mostly in Europe, but also saw action in the Mediterranean and the Pacific. In early combat, the aircraft took heavy losses, but was still one of the most successful medium-range bombers used by the US Army Air Forces.[16] The B-26 was initially deployed on combat missions in the South West Pacific in early 1942, but most of the B-26s subsequently assigned to operational theaters were sent to England and the Mediterranean area.

By the end of World War II, it had flown more than 110,000 sorties, dropped 150,000 tons (136,078 tonnes) of bombs and had been used in combat by British, Free French and South African forces in addition to US units. In 1945, when B-26 production was halted, 5,266 had been built. -Wikipedia

Prouty, Donegan, E. Howard Hunt, Lovett and the CIA were at Atsugi and here is what Prouty was working on in Indonesia 1958 and had in the works as Kennedy was about to talk in 1963.

This was important administratively because by that time Frank Wisner, the CIA Deputy Director of Plans, had set up his forward headquarters in Singapore and at the direction of the 5412 Committee of the National Security Council, headed by Nixon, Wisner occupied that faraway headquarters himself. (It should be noted that in 1958 Allen Dulles was the head of the CIA, his brother John Foster Dulles was the Secretary of State, Eisenhower was President, and Nixon, as Vice President, chaired the clandestine affairs committee, then known as the "Special Group 5412/2." In other words nothing was done in Indonesia that was not directed by Nixon. If an action had not been directed by the NSC, then it was done unlawfully by the CIA.)

Both in 1958 and in 1965, the CIA directly interfered in the internal affairs of Indonesia. In 1958, this monstrous action led to civil war. In 1965, it led to the ultimate takeover by a pro-Amencan military regime, while hundreds of thousands of innocent peasants and loyal citizens were massacred in the name of this insane crusade against international communism. Still today, ten years later, many tens of thousands of true patriots and Sukarnoists are locked up in jails and concentration camps being denied the simplest and most elementary human rights. American companies and aggressive foreign interests are indiscriminately plundering the natural riches of Indonesia to the advantage of the few and the disadvantage of the millions of unemployed and impoverished masses.

In 1958 Allen Dulles would have brought such a major operation to the attention of the Special Group and he would operate with its approval. This was an essential step in national policy because it then empowered the Department of Defense to provide the necessary support requested by the CIA. Much of this fell within the area of my responsibility at Air Force Headquarters, and I was kept informed on a regular basis of approved action and of Nixon's keen interest in this project.

Concurrently, in Washington, operations were being organized. Frank Wisner took over direct command of the everyday operations of the Indonesian project. A large staff under Desmond Fitzgerald of the Far East Division was set up. The most active element of this special staff came from the CIA's clandestine Air Division which at that time was under the control of Dick Helms. As the plans expanded for this major undertaking, requirements for military equipment, people, aircraft, weapons, bases, submarines, and communications skyrocketed.

In the Pentagon there are thousands of nondescript offices in which all sorts of tasks are done. One of these unobtrusive offices was an Air Force Plans Division office. One day in 1958 two men from the CIA entered that office. After being identified they were permitted entrance to an interior office that was the "Focal Point" office for all U.S. Air Force Support of the clandestine operations of the CIA. I had established that office in 1955 on orders from Gen. Thomas D. White, then Chief of Staff of the Air Force. This came about after several meetings with Allen W. Dulles, the Director of Central Intelligence, and others. When the CIA men entered that office in 1958, I was still in charge.

The agents outlined the Indonesian Plan, the Philippine support and training program, and told me about their own special operations staff that had been put together specifically for this vast project. Then they urgently requested light bombardment aircraft and long-range transport aircraft. We decided to take a number of twin engine B-26 aircraft out of mothball storage, put them through a retrofit line, and modify them so that they could be armed with a special 50-caliber machine gun package of eight guns, in the nose of the plane. This would give the B-26 more firepower than it ever had during the Korean War or World War II. The project was given top priority and covered in deep secrecy. Programs for pilot training and the recruitment of "mercenaries" were established. [Just as Chauncey Marvin Holt describes refurning the b-26 and other aircraft usage for CIA operations in Guatamala]

Concurrent with our work the CIA was putting together a "wartime" operational staff. Lt. Gen. Earl Barnes, who had been a senior air commander during World War II under Gen. Douglas MacArthur, was brought in to run all clandestine air activities.

At that time Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer was Commander in Chief of the Ryukyu Command on Okinawa. One day he received a call from General David M. Shoup, the U.S. Marine Commander on Okinawa, asking if the Army could spare 14,000 rifles for a Marine requirement. Surprised at the Marine request for such a large order of guns, Lemnitzer acquiesced nonetheless and ordered the transfer of these weapons on the condition that they would be quickly replaced.[1]

ATSUGI Japan and the island of Okinawa

Ed DOnegan asserts the Gang is all there. WWII Pilot and B-26 Escort pilot and recon P-51 pilot James Donegan, Prouty and some WWII bombers going out the door to Indonesia.

High on the ridge line of central Okinawa overlooking the city of Naha there was a modest size "Army" installation that hustled with considerable activity. This was the main CIA operational base in the Far East. It was under the direction of Ted Shannon, one of the Agency's most powerful agents. It was Shannon's office that had actually requested 42,000 rifles from General Shoup and since the order was so large Shoup had been unable to supply them, and had therefore borrowed 14,000 from the Army.

On nearby Taiwan, the CIA had another large facility -- a "Navy" base known as the Naval Auxiliary Communication Center (NACC). This "Comm Center" controlled a large and very active air base a few miles south of Taiwan's capital, Taipei, and the huge Air America facilities near Taipei and the city of Tainan.

The B-26 bombers were ready to fly and a special ferrying arrangement was made with the Air Force to fly them across the Pacific to the Philippines and Menado.

Fog of War At Playa Girón

One can imagine that as the Cuban Air Force gained air superiority over Playa (beach) Girón (French figure probably tied to slave trafficking) JFK calling off the machine gun modified B-26 planes that Prouty, Holt, and others were using in Guatemala and Indonesia as well as for Playa Girón then the boats had little chance of returning back to the USA with only small fighters defending them.

Those on the George H. W. Bush and other CIA boats full of David Morales Brigade 2506 recruits were now going to be captured and tortured or killed or all of the above.

And George H.W. Bush made it to Dealey Plaza to see the JFK visit.

THIS week President Bush is motorboating in the waters off Kennebunkport, Maine. But 30 years ago. a former Pentagon official suggests. Bush may have secretly helped skipper a riskier amphibious mission — the Bay of Pigs invasion.

Officially. Bush has denied that he had any contact with the CIA until 1976. when Gerald Ford named him the agency's director. Then, five years ago, there came to light a memo, dated Nov. 29, 1969. in which J. Edgar Hoover reported that the FBI had briefed "Mr. George Bush of the Central Intelligence Agency."

Now Ret. Col. L. Fletcher Prouty, who served as Chief ot Special Operations for the Joint Chiefs of Staff until 1964, has shared some curious recollections about the failed Bay of Pigs operation. in which Cuban exiles tried to over throw Fidel Castro.

Prouty, who coordinated supplies for the 1961 fiasco, tells PAGE SIX that the invasion was code-named "Zapata." and that the two boats used by the invaders were named "Barbara" and "Houston."

It happens that, at the time of the invasion, Bush ran an offshore oil company called Zapata. The company, which did much of its business in the Caribbean. was based in Houston, where Bush lived with his wife Barbara.

Prouty says: "At the time I had no idea why they picked those names Later I realized —'Zapata,' 'Barbara.' 'Houston' a triple co- incidence is pretty rare."

Prouty, who in 1975 charged that Richard Nixon aide Alexander Butterfied served as CIA contact in the White House, added: "The Bay of Pigs program was approved in March. 1960. during the Eisenhower Administration.

The chances are that it might have been pulled together by bright young Republicans. I can't prove it, but it wouldn't surprise me that Bush was another one of the fellas recruited by the CIA out of Yale. Much of the support — the guns. shoes, vehicles — came from Texas."

Some Dirt About the CIA now Moved Into The Story

CIA Helped Bush Senior In Oil Venture

Bush has long denied allegations that he had connections to the intelligence community prior to 1976, when he became Central Intelligence Agency director under President Gerald Ford. At the time, he described his appointment as a 'real shocker.'

But the freshly uncovered memos contend that Bush maintained a close personal and business relationship for decades with a CIA staff employee who, according to those CIA documents, was instrumental in the establishment of Bush's oil venture, Zapata, in the early 1950s, and who would later accompany Bush to Vietnam as a "cleared and witting commercial asset" of the agency.

According to a CIA internal memo dated November 29, 1975, Bush's original oil company, Zapata Petroleum, began in 1953 through joint efforts with Thomas J. Devine, a CIA staffer who had resigned his agency position that same year to go into private business. The '75 memo describes Devine as an "oil wild-catting associate of Mr. Bush." The memo is attached to an earlier memo written in 1968, which lays out how Devine resumed work for the secret agency under commercial cover beginning in 1963.

"Their joint activities culminated in the establishment of Zapata Oil," the memo reads. In fact, early Zapata corporate filings do not seem to reflect Devine's role in the company, suggesting that it may have been covert. Yet other documents do show Thomas Devine on the board of an affiliated Bush company, Zapata Offshore, in January, 1965, more than a year after he had resumed work for the spy agency.

It was while Devine was in his new CIA capacity as a commercial cover officer that he accompanied Bush to Vietnam the day after Christmas in 1967, remaining in the country with the newly elected congressman from Texas until January 11, 1968. Whatever information the duo was seeking, they left just in the nick of time. Only three weeks after the two men departed Saigon, the North Vietnamese and their Communist allies launched the Tet offensive with seventy thousand troops pre-positioned in more than 100 cities and towns.

While the elder Bush was in Vietnam with Devine, George W. Bush was making contact with representatives of the Texas Air National Guard, using his father's connections to join up with an elite, Houston-based Guard unit – thus avoiding overseas combat service in a war that the Bushes strongly supported.

The new revelation about George H.W. Bush's CIA friend and fellow Zapata Offshore board member will surely fuel further speculation that Bush himself had his own associations with the agency.

Indeed, Zapata's annual reports portray a bewildering range of global activities, in the Mideast, Asia and the Caribbean (including off Cuba) that seem outsized for the company's modest bottom line. In his autobiography, Bush declares that "I'd come to the CIA with some general knowledge of how it operated' and that his 'overseas contacts as a businessman' justified President Nixon's appointing him as UN ambassador, a decision that at the time was highly controversial.

Previously disclosed FBI files include a memo from bureau director J. Edgar Hoover, noting that his organization had given a briefing to two men in the intelligence community on November 23, 1963, the day after the assassination of John F. Kennedy. The memo refers to one as “Mr. George Bush of the Central Intelligence Agency” and the other as “Captain William Edwards of the Defense Intelligence Agency.”

When Nation magazine contributor Joseph McBride first uncovered this document in 1988, George Herbert Walker Bush, then vice president and seeking the presidency, insisted through a spokesman that he was not the man mentioned in the memo: “I was in Houston, Texas, at the time and involved in the independent oil drilling business. And I was running for the Senate in late ’63. I don’t have any idea of what he’s talking about.” The spokesman added, “Must be another George Bush.”

When McBride approached the CIA at that time, it initially invoked a policy of neither admitting nor denying anyone’s involvement with the agency. But it soon took the unusual step of asserting that the correct individual was a George William Bush, a one-time Virginia staffer whom the agency claimed it could no longer locate. But that George Bush, discovered in his office in the Social Security Administration by McBride, noted that he was a low-ranked coast and landing-beach analyst and that he most certainly never received such an FBI briefing.

It was perhaps to help lay to rest the larger matter of the elder Bush’s past associations that the former president went out of his way during his recent eulogy for President Ford to sing the praises of the Warren Commission Report as the final authority on those days.

> After a deluded gunman assassinated President Kennedy, our nation turned to Gerald Ford and a select handful of others to make sense of that madness. And a conspiracy theorist can say what they will, but the Warren Commission report will always have the final definitive say on this tragic > matter. Why? Because Gerry Ford put his name on it and Gerry Ford's word was always good.

In fact, Ford's role on the Warren Commission is seen by many experts as a decisive factor in his rise to the top. As a Commission member, Ford altered its report in a significant way. As the Associated Press reported in 1997, "Thirty-three years ago, Gerald R. Ford took pen in hand and changed – ever so slightly – the Warren Commission's key sentence on the place where a bullet entered John F. Kennedy's body when he was killed in Dallas. The effect of Ford's change was to strengthen the commission's conclusion that a single bullet passed through Kennedy and severely wounded Texas Gov. John Connally – a crucial element in its finding that Lee Harvey Oswald was the sole gunman."

This modification played a seminal role in ending talk of a larger conspiracy to kill the president. Knowledge of Ford's alteration has encouraged theorists to scrutinize the constellation of other figures who might have had a motivation to cover up the affair.

Meanwhile, there is much more to learn about George H. W. Bush's friend, Thomas Devine. The newly surfaced memos explain that Devine, from 1963 on, had authority from the agency to operate under commercial cover as part of an agency project code-named WUBRINY.

Devine at that time was employed with the Wall Street boutique Train, Cabot and Associates, described in the memos as an "investment banking firm which houses and manages the [CIA] proprietary corporation WUSALINE." These nautical names – 'Saline' and 'Briny' – or, for the Bay of Pigs invasion 'Wave' – are CIA cryptonyms for the programs and companies involved.

George H.W. Bush's own ties are amplified in the 1975 CIA memo, dated November 29, which makes it clear that he had knowledge of CIA operations prior to being named the new director of the CIA in the fall of that year.

The 1975 memo notes that, through his relationship with Devine, “Mr George Bush [the CIA director-designate] has prior knowledge of the now terminated project WUBRINY/ LPDICTUM which was involved in proprietary commercial operations in Europe.”

The Bush documents, part of a batch of 300,000 records the CIA provided to the House Select Committee on Assassinations, were publicly released in 1998 as the result of a lawsuit, donated to a foundation, scanned into a database – and only just noticed by an independent researcher.

They often funded their own operations with CIA and FBI support, those organizations standing down from investigating their activities or even offering them unofficial or official support including capitalizing the business secretly or semi-secretly then losing the files.

The company was started with assistance from Allen Dulles and (fellow bonesmen) H. Neil Mallon and Bush's maternal uncle, George Herbert Walker Jr, an investment banker, who put up the capital. Walker was instrumental in bringing in others such as Eugene Meyer (owner of the Washington Post, who investments were handled by Brown Brothers Harriman). A CIA internal memo dated November 29, 1975 confirmed that Zapata Petroleum began in 1953 through Bush's joint efforts with Thomas J. Devine, a CIA staffer who had resigned his agency position that same year to go into private business, but who continued to work for the CIA under commercial cover.[1]

Operations

Zapata's "explorations" appear to have been lead more by deep politics than by commercial or geological factors.

By 1963, Zapata Off-Shore had four operational oil-drilling rigs—Scorpion (1956), Vinegaroon (1957), Sidewinder, and (in the Persian Gulf) Nola III.

Purposes

Zapata was never run primarily to make a profit, but more as a cover for intelligence agency operations. Russ Baker notes investors knew that their investment was appreciated by Bush's father, the influential Prescott Bush. A lot more details are available in Russ Baker's Family of Secrets.

"Lost" records

Zapata's filing records with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission are intact for the years 1955–1959, and again from 1967 onwards. However, records for the years 1960–1966 are missing. The commission's records officer stated that the records were inadvertently placed in a session file to be destroyed by a federal warehouse, and that a total of 1,000 boxes were pulped in this procedure. The destruction of records occurred either in October 1983 (according to the records officer), or in 1981, shortly after Bush became Vice President of the United States (according to, Wison Carpenter, a record analyst with the commission). After Jonathan Kwitny unearthed duplicate copies elsewhere, Bush admitted through a spokesman a brief business relationship with Jorge Diaz Serrano, which he claimed lasted just 7 months, yet which the duplicate SEC filings made clear in fact lasted 4 years. They also established that the relationship involved both breaking Mexican law and keeping US shareholders in the dark about the deal - a violation of US law.[2]

Was there some fog of war confusion about what could be done for the CIA teams trapped in Playa Girón the beach of the bay named after a person in history Girón?

The modified B-26 planes were gunships much today the The Lockheed AC-130 gunship is a heavily armed, long-endurance, ground-attack variant of the C-130 Hercules transport, fixed-wing aircraft. It carries a wide array of ground-attack weapons that are integrated with sophisticated sensors, navigation, and fire-control systems.

The medium bombers had the wing cannons of the P-51 fighter added to it. Had they been deployed over Playa Girón better defense of the CIA team might have been possible than the light fighters could provide.

JFK might not have known that when he called of the second wave of B-26's. Even if JFK and RFK did know that (and they were very busy on this matters and others) they still may have felt direct uncloaked US engagement against Cuba aircraft on its shoreline was not worth the conflict with Russia that might result.

Kennedy knew the CIA started it and once caught was going to have to bear the consequences of being caught in a foreign country. The best support possible was provided barring larger military commitments that raise the stakes by the size of the equipment.

But wasn't just the battle being faught at Playa Girón it was the war of the Oil industry and LBJ and Nixon versus the independence from coloniailsm of JFK.

That battle was the real battle and in Washington D.C.

The beach the CIA was to land on then infiltrating Cuba not as exiles but locals to begin the rebellion.

In 1952 [and likely part of MKULTRA], the American-allied dictator General Fulgencio Batista led a coup against President Carlos Prío and forced Prío into exile in Miami, Florida. Prío's exile inspired Castro's 26th of July Movement against Batista.

The movement successfully completed the Cuban Revolution in January 1959. Castro nationalized American businesses, including banks, oil refineries, and sugar and coffee plantations. The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) began planning the overthrow of Castro, which U.S. President Dwight D. Eisenhower approved in March 1960, and the U.S. began its embargo of the island.

> This led Castro to reach out to its Cold War rival, the Soviet Union, after which the US severed diplomatic relations. Cuban exiles who had moved to the U.S. following Castro's takeover had formed the counter-revolutionary military unit, Brigade 2506, which was the armed wing of the DRF. The CIA funded the brigade, which also included approximately 60 members of the Alabama Air National Guard,[6] and trained the unit in Guatemala. - Wikipedia
>
> On 11th December, 1959, Colonel Joseph Caldwell King, chief of CIA's Western Hemisphere Division, sent a confidential memorandum to Allen W. Dulles, the director of the Central Intelligence Agency. King argued that in Cuba there existed a "far-left dictatorship, which if allowed to remain will encourage similar actions against U.S. holdings in other Latin American countries." (1)

As a result of this memorandum Dulles established Operation 40. It obtained this name because originally there were 40 agents involved in the operation. Later this was expanded to 70 agents. The group was presided over by Richard Nixon. Tracy Barnes became operating officer of what was also called the Cuban Task Force. The first meeting chaired by Barnes took place in his office on 18th January, 1960, and was attended by David Atlee Phillips, E. Howard Hunt, Jack Esterline, and Frank Bender.

According to Fabian Escalante, a senior officer of the Cuban Department of State Security (G-2), in 1960 Richard Nixon recruited an "important group of businessmen headed by George Bush (Snr.) and Jack Crichton, both Texas oilmen, to gather the necessary funds for the operation". (2) This suggests that Operation 40 agents were involved in freelance work.

It is known that at this time that George Bush and Jack Crichton were involved in covert right-wing activities. In 1990 Common Cause Magazinemagazine argued that: "The CIA put millionaire and agent George Bush in charge of recruiting exiled Cubans for the CIA's invading army; Bush was working with another Texan oil magnate, Jack Crichton, who helped him in terms of the invasion." (3) This story was linked to the release of "a memorandum in that context addressed to FBI chief J. Edward Hoover and signed November 1963, which reads: Mr. George Bush of the CIA" (4)

Reinaldo Taladrid and Lazaro Baredo claim that in 1959 George Bush was asked "to cooperate in funding the nascent anti-Castro groups that the CIA decided to create". The man "assigned to him for his new mission" was Féliz Rodríguez. (5)

Daniel Hopsicker also takes the view that Operation 40 involved private funding. In the book, Barry and the Boys: The CIA, the Mob and America's Secret History, he claims that Richard Nixon had established Operation 40 as a result of pressure from American corporations which had suffered at the hands of Fidel Castro. (6)

Webster Griffin Tarpley and Anton Chaitkin have argued that George Bush was very close to members of Operation 40 in the early 1960s. In September, 1963, Bush launched his Senate campaign. At that time, right-wing Republicans were calling on John F. Kennedy to take a more aggressive approach towards Castro. For example, in one speech Barry Goldwater said: "I advocate the recognition of a Cuban government in exile and would encourage this government every way to reclaim its country. This means financial and military assistance." Bush took a more extreme position than Goldwater and called for a "new government-in-exile invasion of Cuba". As Tarpley and Chaitkin point out, beneficiaries of this policy would have been "Theodore Shackley, who was by now the station chief of CIA Miami Station, Felix Rodriguez, Chi Chi Quintero, and the rest of the boys" from Operation 40. (7)

Paul Kangas is another investigator who has claimed that George Bush was involved with members of Operation 40. In an article published in The Realist in 1990, Kangas claims: "Among other members of the CIA recruited by George Bush for (the attacks on Cuba) were Frank Sturgis, Howard Hunt, Bernard Baker and Rafael Quintero." In an article published in Granma in January, 2006, the journalists Reinaldo Taladrid and Lazaro Baredo argued that "Another of Bush's recruits for the Bay of Pigs invasion, Rafael Quintero, who was also part of this underworld of organizations and conspiracies against Cuba, stated: If I was to tell what I know about Dallas and the Bay of Pigs, it would be the greatest scandal that has ever rocked the nation." (8)

Fabian Escalante names William Pawley as being one of those who was lobbying for the CIA to assassinate Fidel Castro. (9) Escalante points out that Pawley had played a similar role in the CIA overthrow of Jacobo Arbenz Guzmán in Guatemala. Interestingly, the CIA assembled virtually the same team that was involved in the removal of Arbenz: Tracey Barnes, Richard Bissell, David Morales, David Atlee Phillips, E. Howard Hunt, Rip Robertson and Henry Hecksher. Added to this list was several agents who had been involved in undercover operations in Germany: Ted Shackley, Tom Clines and William Harvey.

According to Daniel Hopsicker, the following were also involved in Operation 40: Edwin Wilson, Barry Seal, William Seymour, Frank Sturgis and Gerry Hemming. (10) It has also been pointed out that Operation 40 was not only involved in trying to overthrow Fidel Castro. Sturgis has claimed: "this assassination group (Operation 40) would upon orders, naturally, assassinate either members of the military or the political parties of the foreign country that you were going to infiltrate, and if necessary some of your own members who were suspected of being foreign agents."

Virtually every one of the field agents of Operation 40 were Cubans. This included Antonio Veciana, Luis Posada, Orlando Bosch, Rafael Quintero, Roland Masferrer, Eladio del Valle, Guillermo Novo, Rafael Villaverde, Virgilio Gonzalez, Carlos Bringuier, Eugenio Martinez, Antonio Cuesta, Hermino Diaz Garcia, Barry

Seal, Felix Rodriguez, Ricardo Morales Navarrete, Juan Manuel Salvat, Isidro Borjas, Virgilio Paz, Jose Dionisio Suarez, Felipe Rivero, Gaspar Jimenez Escobedo, Nazario Sargent, Pedro Luis Diaz Lanz, Jose Basulto, and Paulino Sierra. (11)

CIA asset, Don Bohning (AMCARBON-3) argues in his book, The Castro Obsession (2005), that Operation 40 was not actually established until March 1961. Bohning quotes one of his sources as saying that the group's initial objective was to take over the administration of "the towns and cities liberated by the invasion force, roundup government officials and sympathizers and secure the files of the government's different intelligence services" after the Bay of Pigs operation. (12)

However, Larry Hancock in his book, Someone Would Have Talked (2006) provides evidence that Operation 40 did not come to an end after the failed Bay of Pigs operation. Hancock reveals that Jose Sanjenis Perdomo was closely involved with David Morales in 1962 and 1963. He points out that "new documents provided by researcher Malcolm Blunt confirms that Sanjenis, the individual in charge of Operation 40, was actually the number one exile in the AMOT organization trained and prepared by David Morales." (13)

Most of these characters had been associated with the far-right in Cuban politics. Rumours soon became circulating that it was not only Fidel Castro that was being targeted. On 9th June, 1961, Arthur Schlesinger sent a memo to Richard Goodwin: “Sam Halper, who has been the Times correspondent in Havana and more recently in Miami, came to see me last week. He has excellent contracts among the Cuban exiles. One of Miro's comments this morning reminded me that I have been meaning to pass on the following story as told me by Halper. Halper says that CIA set up something called Operation 40 under the direction of a man named (as he recalled) Captain Luis Sanjenis, who was also chief of intelligence. (Could this be the man to whom Miro referred this morning?) It was called Operation 40 because originally only 40 men were involved: later the group was enlarged to 70. The ostensible purpose of Operation 40 was to administer liberated territories in Cuba. But the CIA agent in charge, a man known as Felix, trained the members of the group in methods of third degree interrogation, torture and general terrorism. The liberal Cuban exiles believe that the real purpose of Operation 40 was to "kill Communists" and, after eliminating hard-core Fidelistas, to go on to eliminate first the followers of Ray, then the followers of Varona and finally to set up a right wing dictatorship, presumably under Artime." (14)

In an interview he gave to Jean-Guy Allard in May, 2005, Fabian Escalante pointed out: "Who in 1963 had the resources to assassinate Kennedy? Who had the means and who had the motives to kill the U.S. president? CIA agents from Operation 40 who were rabidly anti-Kennedy. And among them were Orlando Bosch, Luis Posada Carriles, Antonio Veciana and Felix Rodriguez Mendigutia." (15)

This is not the first time that Escalante has pointed the finger at members of Operation 40. In December, 1995, Wayne Smith, chief of the Centre for International Policy in Washington, arranged a meeting on the assassination of John F. Kennedy, in Nassau, Bahamas. Others in attendance were Gaeton Fonzi, Dick Russell, Noel Twyman, Anthony Summers, Peter Dale Scott, Jeremy Gunn, John Judge, Andy Kolis, Peter Kornbluh, Mary & Ray LaFontaine, Jim Lesar, John Newman, Alan Rogers, Russ Swickard, Ed Sherry, and Gordon Winslow. During a session on 7th December, Escalante claimed that during captivity, Tony Cuesta, confessed that he had been involved in the assassination of Kennedy. He also named Eladio del Valle, Roland Masferrer and Hermino Diaz Garcia as being involved in this operation. All four men were members of Operation 40. (16)

It has been argued that people like Fabian Escalante, Jean-Guy Allard, Reinaldo Taladrid and Lazaro Baredo are under the control of the Cuban government. It is definitely true that much of this information has originally been published in Granma, the newspaper of the Cuban Communist Party. However, is other evidence to substantiate this theory.

Shortly before his death in 1975 John Martino confessed to a Miami Newsday reporter, John Cummings, that he had been guilty of spreading false stories implicating Lee Harvey Oswald in the assassination of John F. Kennedy. He claimed that two of the gunmen were Cuban exiles. It is believed the two men were Hermino Diaz Garcia and Virgilio Gonzalez. Cummings added: "He told me he'd been part of the assassination of Kennedy. He wasn't in Dallas pulling a trigger, but he was involved. He implied that his role was delivering money, facilitating things.... He asked me not to write it while he was alive." (17)

Fred Claasen also told the House Select Committee on Assassinations what he knew about his business partner's involvement in the case. He claimed John Martino told him: "The anti-Castro people put Oswald together. Oswald didn't know who he was working for – he was just ignorant of who was really putting him together. Oswald was to meet his contact at the Texas Theatre. They were to meet Oswald in the theatre, and get him out of the country, then eliminate him. Oswald made a mistake… There was no way we could get to him. They had Ruby kill him." (18)

Florence Martino at first refused to corroborate the story. However, in 1994 she told Anthony Summers that her husband said to her on the morning of 22nd November, 1963: "Flo, they're going to kill him (Kennedy). They're going to kill him when he gets to Texas." (19)

Hermino Diaz Garcia and Virgilio Gonzalez were both members of Operation 40. So also was Rip Robertson who according to Summers "was a familiar face at his (John Martino) home. Summers also points out that Martino was close to William Pawley and both took part in the "Bayo-Pawley Affair". (20) This anti-Castro mission, also known as Operation Tilt, also involved other members of Operation 40, including Virgilio Gonzalez and Eugenio Martinez.

There is another key CIA figure in Operation 40 who has made a confession concerning the assassination of John F. Kennedy. David Morales was head of operations at JM/WAVE, the CIA Miami station, at the time of the assassination. Gaeton Fonzi carried out a full investigation of Morales while working for the House Select Committee on Assassinations (HSCA). Unfortunately, Morales could not testify before the HSCA because he died of a heart attack on 8th May, 1978.

Fonzi tracked down Ruben Carbajal, a very close friend of Morales. Carbajal saw Morales the night before he died. He also visited Morales in hospital when he received news of the heart attack. Carbajal is convinced that Morales was killed by the CIA . Morales had told Carbajal the agency would do this if you posed a threat to covert operations. Morales, a heavy drinker, had a reputation for being indiscreet when intoxicated. On 4th August 1973, Morales allowed himself to be photographed by Kevin Scofield of the Arizona Republic at the El Molino restaurant. When the photograph appeared in the newspaper the following day, it identified Morales as Director for Operations Counterinsurgency and Special Activities in Washington.

Ruben Carbajal put Gaeton Fonzi in contact with Bob Walton, a business associate of David Morales. Walton confirmed Carbajal's account that Morales feared being killed by the CIA. On one occasion he told him: "I know too much". Walton also told him about a discussion he had with Morales about John F. Kennedy in the spring of 1973. Walton had done some volunteer work for Kennedy's Senatorial campaign. When hearing this news, Morales launched an attack on Kennedy, describing him as a wimp who had betrayed the anti-Castro Cubans at the Bay of Pigs. He ended up by saying: "Well, we took care of that son of a bitch, didn't we?" Carbajal, who was also present at this meeting, confirmed Walton's account of what Morales said. (20)

Another important piece of evidence comes from Gene Wheaton. In 1995 Wheaton approached the Assassination Records Review Board (ARRB) with information on the death of Kennedy. Anne Buttimer, Chief Investigator of the ARRB, recorded that: "Wheaton told me that from 1984 to 1987 he spent a lot of time in the Washington DC area and that starting in 1985 he was "recruited into Ollie North's network" by the CIA officer he has information about. (21) He got to know this man and his wife, a "'super grade high level CIA officer" and kept a bedroom in their Virginia home. His friend was a Marine Corps liaison in New Orleans and was the CIA contact with Carlos Marcello. He had been responsible for "running people into Cuba before the Bay of Pigs." His friend is now 68 or 69 years of age... Over the course of a year or a year and one-half his friend told him about his activities with training Cuban insurgency groups. Wheaton said he also got to know many of the Cubans who had been his friend's soldiers/ operatives when the Cubans visited in Virginia from their homes in Miami. His friend and the Cubans confirmed to Wheaton they assassinated JFK. Wheaton's friend said he trained the Cubans who pulled the triggers. Wheaton said the street level Cubans felt JFK was a traitor after the Bay of Pigs and wanted to kill him. People "above the Cubans" wanted JFK killed for other reasons." (22)

It was later revealed that Wheaton's friend was Carl E. Jenkins, A senior CIA officer, Jenkins had been appointed in 1960 as Chief of Base for Cuban Project. In 1963 Jenkins provided paramilitary training for Manuel Artime and Rafael 'Chi Chi' Quintero and other members of the Movement for the Recovery of the Revolution (MRR). In an interview with William Law and Mark Sobel in the summer of 2005, Gene Wheaton claimed that Jenkins and Quintero were both involved in the assassination of Kennedy. (23)

It seems that members of Operation 40, originally recruited to remove Fidel Castro, had been redirected to kill Kennedy. That someone had paid this team of assassins to kill the president of the United States as part of a freelance operation. This is not such a far-fetched idea when you consider that in 1959 Richard Nixon was approaching oilmen like George Walker Bush and Jack Crichton to help fund Operation 40. We also have the claim of Frank Sturgis that "this assassination group (Operation 40) would upon orders, naturally, assassinate either members of the military or the political parties of the foreign country that you were going to infiltrate, and if necessary some of your own members who were suspected of being foreign agents."

Further support for this theory comes from an unlikely source. David Atlee Phillips died of cancer on 7th July, 1988. He left behind an unpublished manuscript entitled The AMLASH Legacy. The leading characters were explicitly based on Phillips, Winston Scott and James Angleton. The novel is about a CIA officer (Phillips) who lived in Mexico City. In the novel the character states: "I was one of those officers who handled Lee Harvey Oswald... We gave him the mission of killing Fidel Castro in Cuba... I don't know why he killed Kennedy. But I do know he used precisely the plan we had devised against Castro. Thus the CIA did not anticipate the president's assassination, but it was responsible for it. I share that guilt." (24)

In an article published by Washington Decoded on 11th June 2008, Don Bohning (AMCARBON-3) admits: "It is true, of course, that the CIA sanctioned plots to kill Fidel Castro and also initiated assassination plots. But did Operation 40 have anything to do with those efforts?" In an attack on the author of this article Bohning relies on information provided by CIA officials and operatives, Rafael Quintero and Porter Goss, to deny that Operation 40 was ever involved in carrying out assassinations.

However, Larry Hancock argues in his book, Someone Would Have Talked (2006) that evidence has emerged that suggests that members of Operation 40 were involved in assassinations. He even believes that members of this organization was involved in the killing of John F. Kennedy: "The individuals knowingly involved in the actual conspiracy included both exiles and a small number of their most committed American supporters... It is likely that some of the participants were part of the Morales trained and organized intelligence service that was developed to support the 1962 action against Cuba and which had a political assassination (black list) component. Elements of this group were retained as Morales' intelligence and surveillance force in Miami after the failure at the Bay of Pigs. Some of them had been involved in Agency sanctioned (and possibly unsanctioned) projects to assassinate Castro. This group was unofficially known as Operation 40." (24)

Sam Halper, who has been the Times correspondent in Havana and more recently in Miami, came to see me last week. He has excellent contracts among the Cuban exiles. One of Miro's comments this morning reminded me that I have been meaning to pass on the following story as told me by Halper. Halper says that CIA set up something called Operation 40 under the direction of a man named (as he recalled) Captain Luis Sanjenis, who was also chief of intelligence. (Could this be the man to whom Miro referred this morning?) It was called Operation 40 because originally only 40 men were involved: later the group was enlarged to 70. The ostensible purpose of Operation 40 was to administer liberated territories in Cuba. Varona fired Sanjenis as chief of intelligence after the landings and appointed a man named Despaign in his place. Sanjenis removed 40 files and set up his own office; the exiles believe that he continues to have CIA support. As for the intelligence operation, the CIA is alleged to have said that, if Varona fired Sanjenis, let Varona pay the bills. Subsequently Sanjenis's hoods beat up Despaign's chief aide; and Despaign himself was arrested on a charge of trespassing brought by Sanjenis. The exiles believe that all these things had CIA approval. Halper says that Lt Col Vireia Castro (1820 SW 6th Street, Miami; FR 4 3684) can supply further details. Halper also quotes Bender as having said at one point when someone talked about the Cuban revolution against Castro: "The Cuban Revolution? The Cuban Revolution is something I carry around in my checkbook."

(2) Fabian Escalante, The Secret War: CIA Covert Operations Against Cuba, 1959-62 (1995)

> On December 11, Colonel King wrote a confidential memorandum to the head of the CIA which affirmed that in Cuba there existed a "far-left dictatorship, which if allowed to remain will encourage similar actions against U.S. holdings in other Latin American countries."

King recommended various actions to solve the Cuban problem, one of which was to consider the elimination of Fidel Castro. He affirmed that none of the other Cuban leaders "have the same mesmeric appeal to the masses. Many informed people believe that the disappearance of Fidel would greatly accelerate the fall of the present government."

CIA Director Alien Dulles passed on King's memorandum to the NSC a few days later, and it approved the suggestion to form a working group in the Agency which, within a short period of time, could come up with "alternative solutions to the Cuban problem." Thus "Operation 40" was born, taking its name from that of the Special Group formed by the NSC to follow the Cuban case. The group was presided over by Richard Nixon and included Admiral Arleigh Burke, Livingston Merchant of the State Department, National Security Adviser Gordon Gray, and Alien Dulles of the CIA.

Tracy Bames functioned as head of > the Cuban Task Force. He called a meeting on January 18,1960, in his office in Quarters Eyes, near the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, which the navy had lent while new buildings were being constructed in Langley. Those who gathered there included the eccentric Howard Hunt, future head of the Watergate team and a writer of crime novels; the egocentric Frank Bender, a friend of Trujillo; Jack Esterline, who had come straight from Venezuela where he directed a CIA group; psychological warfare expert David A. Phillips, and others.

> The Mexico City nightclub photo reveals a mixed group of apparent Cuban exiles, Italian wise guys, and square-jawed military intelligence types. It was discovered among keepsakes kept in the safe of the widow of CIA pilot and drug smuggler Barry Seal (third from left). It appears on the cover of "Barry & the Boys': The CIA, the Mob & America's Secret History".

and drug smuggler Barry Seal (third left) and the equally-notorious CIA assassin Felix Rodriguez (front left), a Cuban vice cop under the corrupt Mob-run Batista regime who later became an Iran Contra operative and a confidant of the first George Bush.

The only one of the spook celebrants displaying any hint of tradecraft (seated on the other side of the table covering his face with his sport coat) is Frank Sturgis, most famous as one of the Watergate burglars.

Beside him sits (front right) William Seymour, New Orleans representative of the Double-Chek Corporation, a CIA front used to recruit pilots (like Seal), and a man who many Kennedy assassination researchers believe impersonated Lee Harvey Oswald on several occasions when the lone nut gunman was out of the country and so unable to impersonate himself...

There are many intriguing connections hinted at by Goss's presence in the photo: at the time it was taken the CIA's covert action chief in Mexico City was David Atlee Phillips, AKA Maurice Bishop, who reportedly met with Oswald in Dallas before the assassination.

Other connections: in the well-received “Deadly Secrets,” authors Warren Hinkle and William Turner name Rafael 'Chi Chi' Quintero, Lois Posada Carriles, Felix Rodriguez and Frank Sturgis as members of Operation Forty, under the overall control of E. Howard Hunt.

Sturgis, a member of the team that broke into Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate complex in 1972, later admitted to having been part of Operation Forty.

More famous names: Thomas Clines, the notorious Edwin Wilson and "Blond Ghost" Ted Shackley, Mr. Spook himself… all involved with Operation Forty, as was Barry Seal.

“Yeah, Barry was Op Forty,” Gerald Hemming confirmed to us. “He flew in killer teams inside the island (Cuba) before the invasion to take out Fidel.”

(4) Don Bohning, The Castro Obsession (2005)

The Cuban Intelligence Organization was more commonly known within the local Cuban community and intelligence circles as Operation 40, a quasi-independent group headed by Joaquin Sanjenis, who gained somewhat of a legendary and controversial reputation among some exiles. The group was created in March 1961 and trained in intelligence matters by the CIA as part of the planning for what was to become the Bay of Pigs.

According to a Cuban exile who worked for Operation 40 for three years in the late 1960s, the group's initial objective was to take over administration of "the towns and cities liberated by the invasion force, roundup government officials and sympathizers and secure the files of the government's different intelligence services." Sanjenis was the overall boss. The top field officer was Vicente Leon, who was believed to have been a colonel in Cuba's pre-Castro police. Leon killed himself rather than surrender when he landed with the Bay of Pigs invaders as part of an Operation 40 advance team.

After the Bay of Pigs, Operation 40 turned its attention more to counterintelligence activities directed at suspected Castro agents who might have infiltrated into the local exile community. More controversially, it provided intelligence on the activities of local exile groups, some of which allowed local or federal authorities to thwart unsanctioned exile raids. Numerous declassified CIA Intelligence Information Cables on file at the Lyndon Baines Johnson Library in Austin, Texas, included the "source and appraisal of the cables." A variation of the following was often cited: "A member of a group of Cuban emigres trained in the techniques of information collection. The group has provided useful reports for over two years. The information was obtained from a local representative of the JURE who has access to members of the JURE executive committee."

The exile who worked for the unit in the late 1960s said Operation 40 was "fairly compartmentalized," but "foremost to its existence was the collection of intelligence on Cuba.... Most of the information collected was from overt sources.... primarily the hundreds of Cuban refugees coming to South Florida on Freedom Flights." The refugees were screened as they arrived. Those that might have useful information were interviewed separately.

(5) Jean-Guy Allard, Who had the means and motives to kill Kennedy in 1963? (22nd May, 2005)

"Who in 1963 had the resources to assassinate Kennedy? Who had the means and who had the motives to kill the U.S. president?", asks General Fabian Escalante in an exclusive interview in his Havana office. And he gives the answer: "CIA agents from Operation 40 who were rabidly anti-Kennedy. And among them were Orlando Bosch, Luis Posada Carriles, Antonio Veciana and Felix Rodriguez Mendigutia."

"Who were the ones who had the training to murder Kennedy? The ones who had all of the capabilities to carry it out? Who were the expert marksmen?" continues Escalante, pointing out that the case of international terrorist Luis Posada Carriles has to be seen within the historical context of what he calls "the machinery of the Cuban American mafia."

And in the heart of that machinery is Operation 40, created by the CIA on the eve of the failed Bay of Pigs invasion, says the ex-chief of Cuban intelligence, author of The Plot (Ocean Press), about the assassination of the U.S. leader.

"The first news that we have of Operation 40 is a statement made by a mercenary of the Bay of Pigs who was the chief of military intelligence of the invading brigade and whose name was Jose Raul de Varona Gonzalez," says Escalante.

"In his statement this man said the following: in the month of March, 1961, around the seventh, Mr. Vicente Leon arrived at the base in Guatemala at the head of some 53 men saying that he had been sent by the office of Mr. Joaquin Sanjenis, Chief of Civilian Intelligence, with a mission he said was called Operation 40. It was a special group that didn't have anything to do with the brigade and which would go in the rearguard occupying towns and cities. His prime mission was to take over the files of intelligence agencies, public buildings, banks, industries, and capture the heads and leaders in all of the cities and interrogate them. Interrogate them in his own way".

The individuals who comprised Operation 40 had been selected by Sangenis in Miami and taken to a nearby farm "where they took some courses and were subjected to a lie detector."

Joaquin Sangenis was Chief of Police in the time of President Carlos Prio, recalls Escalante. "I don't know if he was Chief of the Palace Secret Service but he was very close to Carlos Prio. And in 1973 he dies under very strange circumstances. He disappears. In Miami, people learn to their surprise -- without any prior illness and without any homicidal act -- that Sangenis, who wasn't that old in '73, had died unexpectedly. There was no wake. He was buried in a hurry."

Operation 40 had "in the year '61, 86 employees, of which 37 had been trained as case officers...while in Cuba we probably didn't have one single case officer trained. I didn't finish the course until July of '61 and I was in the first training group."

After the failure of the Bay of Pigs invasion, the CIA organizes a Domestic Affairs Division. "For the first time, the CIA is going to work inside of the U.S. because until that moment, it wasn't doing it. It was prohibited.

"And at the head of this division they put Tracy Barnes, who was chief of the CIA operations group which operated against Jacobo Arbenz in Guatemala, and he brought to the same group of officers David Atlee Phillips, David Sanchez Morales and Howard Hunt, and two or three other Americans who just as surely worked on the Guatemala project."

The first CIA project against the Cuban revolution wasn't a landing and assault brigade, remarks the general. "The first CIA project was to create a civil war inside of Cuba. They were thinking of creating political leaders overseas, organizing a series of military cadres overseas who are the ones who will infiltrate Cuba and who will place themselves at the head of this civil war they are planning to carry out. And furthermore parallel to that, to make an intelligence network. All of this falls apart almost as soon as it is born.

"In October 1960, they realize that this project has failed, and that is when Brigade 2506 is formed, when due to the uprising of a group of patriotic military officers in Puerto Barrios in Guatemala and, this was in November, they send the Cuban mercenaries in Brigade 2506 to put down this operation."

Escalante remembers that in 1959 a "very strong" CIA center existed in Cuba with several case officers based in Havana. Among them two very important figures: David Sanchez Morales, registered as a diplomat with the U.S. embassy, and David Atlee Phillips who was doing business in Cuba since 1957.

"Phillips had a press agency, David Phillips Associates, which had offices on Humbolt St., behind the Rampa theater. We had information from a person who was his personal secretary at the time and he was using the Berlitz Academy, where he would meet with people he wanted to recruit. The Berlitz Academy was not his business, but he had recruited its director and that's why he was using it to train his agents.

"And at that time he recruits Antonio Veciana, Juan Manuel Salvat, Ricardo Morales Navarrete, Isidro Borjas, a person of Mexican origin, to carry out the internal counterrevolution."

Phillips will train illegal cadres while Morales, on his part, directs a group of North Americans who are infiltrated in the Rebel Army: Frank Sturgis, Gerry Hemming, William Morgan.

"When the revolution triumphs these people are officers in the Rebel Army, many of them in the air force because the chief there is Pedro Luis Diaz Lanz, who was the first chief of the rebel air force and who later leaves the country when an assassination attempt against Fidel fails. He will also direct Howard Hunt, who is visiting Cuba in '59 and '60 and who will write a far-fetched chronicle about Havana which is a series of lies. Hunt is a professional liar.

"There was information that at the end of '58, when CIA Inspector General Lyman Kirkpatrick came to tell Batista to leave power, he has an interview with a group of figures. And since this Phillips was passing himself off as a respectable North American businessman, Kirkpatrick has an interview with him. And Phillips explains to him that the situation is very difficult."

In this context, now in the middle of '58, the CIA plans an assassination attempt on Fidel with a North American citizen, Alan Robert Nye, and ex-marine recruited in Fort Lauderdale by agents of the FBI and by the Cuban military intelligence service.

"He was received here in Havana, they put him up at the Comodoro hotel, fortunately they paid his bill and that was how he was later discovered. They sent him to a zone near Bayamo where Fidel was, in a zone called Santa Rita and he was arrested there by the Rebel Army. He had instructions to introduce himself to Fidel as a sympathizer of the Cuban cause and to assassinate him at the first opportunity," recalls Escalante.

The man is arrested on December 12, 1958, by rebel forces and remains in custody until the beginning of 1959. "An officer of the Rebel Army is in charge of the investigation. Knight says that he was lodged at the Comodoro hotel and it turns out that the ones who had paid this gentleman's expenses were none other than Col. Orlando Piedra, the chief of the investigation bureau of the police, and Col. Tabernilla II, the son of the head of the army."

"These are the principal artists," says the ex-chief of Cuban intelligence. "David Phillips; David Morales; Howard Hunt; a figure who disappeared later and who was head of the CIA until diplomatic relations were broken, James Noel; and several more who were working actively."

When the Domestic Affairs Division is created, the large CIA operations base in Miami was subordinate to the central division of the CIA; "that is to say that the JM/WAVE station, which had 400 officers plus 4,000 Cuban agents, was directed by the main center in Langley.

"Whom are they going to use? Operation 40. That is to say all of the specialists who are already trained, have gone through the school, have already participated in operations against Cuba...I refer to the group of Felix Rodriguez Mendigutia, Luis Posada Carriles, Orlando Bosch, Virgilio Paz, Alvin Ross, Jose Dionisio Suarez, Antonio Veciana, Ricardo Morales Navarrete, Felipe Rivero, who recently died, the Novo Sampoll brothers, Gaspar "Gasparito" Jimenez Escobedo, Juan Manuel Salvat, Nazario Sargent, Carlos Bringuier, Antonio Cuesta, Eladio del Valle, Herminio Diaz, Pedro Luis Diaz Lanz, Rafael "Chichi" Quintero, Jose Basulto, Paulino Sierra, Bernard Baker, who was a Cuban with a North American name -- he was a guard at the U.S. embassy -- and Eugenio Martinez, alias 'Musculito.'

"And there was the team that brought together all of the North Americans: David Morales; David Phillips; Howard Hunt; Willian Harvey; Frank Sturgis; Gerry Hemming; John Rosselli, who was second head of the Chicago mafia and at that time in '62; Porter Goss, the current head of the CIA, who is in the JM/WAVE as a subordinate of Phillips and Morales."

"Operation 40 is the grandmother and great-grandmother of all of the operations that are formed later," continues Escalante.

(6) Webster Griffin Tarpley and Anton Chaitkin, George Bush: The Unauthorized Biography (2004)

> A body of leads has been assembled which suggests that George Bush may have been associated with the CIA at some time before the autumn of 1963. According to Joseph McBride of The Nation, "a source with close connections to the intelligence community confirms that Bush started working for the agency in 1960 or 1961, using his oil business as a cover for clandestine activities." By the time of the Kennedy assassination, we have an official FBI document which refers to "Mr. George Bush of the Central Intelligence Agency," and despite official disclaimers there is every reason to think that this is indeed the man in the White House today...
>
> According to George Bush's official biography, he was during 1963 a well-to-do businessman residing in Houston, the busy president of Zapata Offshore and the chairman of the Harris County Republican Organization, supporting Barry Goldwater as the GOP's likely 1964 presidential candidate, while at the same time actively preparing his own 1964 bid for the US Senate. But during that same period of time, Bush may have shared some common acquaintances with Lee Harvey Oswald.

Between October, 1962 and April, 1963, Lee Harvey Oswald and his Russian wife Marina were in frequent contact with a Russian emigré couple living in Dallas: these were George de Mohrenschildt and his wife Jeanne. During the Warren Commission investigation of the Kennedy assassination, de Mohrenschildt was interviewed at length about his contacts with Oswald. When, in the spring of 1977, the discrediting of the Warren Commission report as a blatant coverup had made public pressure for a new investigation of the Kennedy assassination irresistible, the House Assassinations Committee planned to interview de Mohrenschildt once again. But in March, 1977, just before de Mohrenschildt was scheduled to be interviewed by Gaeton Fonzi of the House committee's staff, he was found dead in Palm Beach, Florida. His death was quickly ruled a suicide. One of the last people to see him alive was Edward Jay Epstein, who was also interviewing de Mohrenschildt about the Kennedy assassination for an upcoming book. Epstein is one of the writers on the Kennedy assassination who enjoyed excellent relations with the late James Angleton of the CIA. If de Mohrenschildt were alive today, he might be able to enlighten us about his relations with George Bush, and perhaps afford us some insight into Bush's activities during this epoch.

Jeanne de Mohrenschildt rejected the finding of suicide in her husband's death. "He was eliminated before he got to that committee," the widow told a journalist in 1978, "because someone did not want him to get to it." She also maintained that George de Mohrenschildt had been surreptitiously injected with mind-altering drugs. After de Mohrenschildt's death, his personal address book was located, and it contained this entry: "Bush, George H.W. (Poppy) 1412 W. Ohio also Zapata Petroleum Midland." There is of course the problem of dating this reference. George Bush had moved his office and home from Midland to Houston in 1959, when Zapata Offshore was constituted, so perhaps this reference goes back to some time before 1959. There is also the number: "4-6355." There are, of course, numerous other entries, including one W.F. Buckley of the Buckley brothers of New York City, William S. Paley of CBS, plus many oil men, stock brokers, and the like.

(7) Reinaldo Taladrid and Lazaro Baredo, The Bush Family and the Kennedy Assassination (16th January, 2006)

> In 1959, a young officer and businessman from Texas received directions to cooperate in funding the nascent anti-Castro groups that the CIA decided to create, but it wasn't until 1960 that he was assigned a more specific and overt mission: to guarantee the security of the process of recruiting Cubans to form an invasion brigade, a key aspect within the grand CIA operation to destroy the Cuban Revolution.
>
> The CIA Texan quickly took a liking to the Cuban assigned to him for his new mission. The system of work, although intense, was simple. Féliz Rodríguez Mendigutía, "El Gato," would propose a candidate to him, who would then be checked out, both in the Agency and among the Miami groups, and finally, the Texan would give the go-ahead.
>
> In that period, Félix Rodríguez already knew quite a few Cubans, like Jorge Mas Canosa (subsequently the leader of various counterrevolutionary organizations and then president of the Cuban-American National Foundation) and had confirmed his loyalty to "the cause" and to the Americans. For that reason he was among the first to be proposed. He passed through the process satisfactorily, and in a meeting in the city of Miami, which the Texan liked to make as formal as possible, Jorge Mas Canosa officially became an agent of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Jorge Mas didn't know how to thank Félix for what he had done for him. From that moment he was constantly grateful to him and, at the same time, obedient to his every petition.

But Jorge Mas was far from imagining the significance of this recruitment on the rest of his life. The significance rested on the fact that that Texan officer who undertook his recruitment process, approved it and then notified him at that meeting, was none other than George Herbert Walker Bush, the same man who, later, between 1989 and 1992, was the 41st president of the United States.

Various sources coincide on the foregoing. Paul Kangas, a Californian private investigator, published an article containing part of his investigations in The Realist in 1990, in which he affirms that a newly discovered FBI document places Bush as working with the now famous CIA agent Félix Rodríguez on the recruitment of ultra-right wing exiled Cubans for the invasion of Cuba.

For his part, in his "Report on a Censored Project," Dr. Carl Jensen of Sonoma State College states: "There is a record in the files of Rodríguez and others involved in the Bay of Pigs invasion, which expounds the role of Bush: the truth is that Bush was a senior CIA official before working with Félix Rodríguez on the invasion of Cuba."

But Kangas is more precise in his quoted article, when he states:

"Traveling from Houston to Miami on a weekly basis, Bush, with Félix Rodríguez, spent 1960 and 1961 recruiting Cubans in Miami for the invasion."

Other publications that have referred to the theme are The Nation magazine, whose August 13, 1988 edition reveals the finding of "a memorandum in that context addressed to FBI chief J. Edward Hoover and signed November 1963, which reads: Mr. George Bush of the CIA;" or the Common Cause magazine that, on March 4, 1990, affirmed: "The CIA put millionaire and agent George Bush in charge of recruiting exiled Cubans for the CIA?s invading army; Bush was working with another Texan oil magnate, Jack Crichton, who helped him in terms of the invasion."

Without knowing it, Jorge Mas had become part of something far more complex than the planned mercenary invasion. The recent recruited CIA agent became one of the participants in what was originally known as Operation 40.

Operation 40 was the first plan of covert operations generated by the CIA to destroy the Cuban Revolution and was drawn up in 1959 on the orders of the administration of President Ike Eisenhower.

In his book Cuba, the CIA's Secret War , Divisional General (ret) Fabián Escalante Font, former head of the Cuban Counterintelligence Services, explained what occurred in the early 1960.

"A few days later (end of 1959), Allen Dulles, chief of the CIA, presented to the King (Colonel, chief of the Western Hemisphere Division of the CIA) memorandum to the National Security Council, which approved the suggestion of forming a working group within the agency which, in the short term, would provide alternative solutions to the Cuban problem."

The group, Escalante Font relates, was composed of Tracy Barnes as head, and officials Howard Hunt, Frank Bender, Jack Engler and David Atlee Phillips, among others. Those present had one common characteristic: all of them had participated in the fall of the Jacobo Arbenz government in Guatemala.

General Escalante recounts in his book that, during the first meeting, Barnes spoke at length on the objectives to be achieved. He explained that Vice President Richard Nixon was the Cuban "case officer" and had met with an important group of businessmen headed by George Bush and Jack Crichton, both Texas oil magnates, to collect the necessary funding for the operation.

(8) Larry Hancock, Someone Would Have Talked (2006)

Manolo Ray had also been among the "leftist" exile leaders who would have possibly been on the target list for Operation 40, a covert operations team trained by David Morales and organized in support of the Bay of Pigs. The team's mission reportedly included seizure of strategic facilities and the kidnapping or elimination of targeted Communists, left wing politicians and Castro cadre.' Due to the failure of the invasion, most Operation 40 personnel did not land in Cuba. Although the group was officially disbanded after the invasion, we now know that certain individuals were retained as a shadow intelligence group (see Chapter 8 for details and sources). Persons reportedly associated with Operation 40 and with Sanjenis (its leader) continued to appear in anti-Communist and criminal activities for another decade or more...

Victor Hernandez's own HSCA testimony suggests that these CIA reports were very probably a cover for individuals assigned to invasion support missions relating to Operation 40. Hernandez speaks of being removed to a safe house in New Orleans and then being sent on to Cuba but not having the chance to land. New documents provided by researcher Malcolm Blunt confirm that Sanjenis, the individual in charge of Operation 40, was actually the number one exile in the AMOT organization trained and prepared by David Morales. The CRC was actively recruiting in New Orleans while the brigade was being formed. The local CRC head was Sergio Arcacha

Smith...

The individuals knowingly involved in the actual conspiracy included both exiles and a small number of their most committed American supporters. Neither the exiles nor the Americans belonged to a single group although some of them likely held membership in Alpha 66, SNFE and other militarily active organizations such as AAA and Commandos L. Some of them had CIA training, military training and had worked for the Agency for periods of time.

It is likely that some of the participants were part of the Morales trained and organized intelligence service thatwas developed to support the 1962 action against Cuba and which had a political assassination (black list) component. Elements of this group were retained as Morales' intelligence and surveillance force in Miami after the failure at the Bay of Pigs. Some of them had been involved in Agency sanctioned (and possibly unsanctioned) projects to assassinate Castro. This group was unofficially known as Operation 40.

The conspiracy participants were individually recruited and acted as individuals rather than as members of an established group. However, some of those involved had a history with members of the former Havana "casino crowd" and connections to Trafficante organization in Cuba and later in Florida.

(9) Don Bohning, Washington Decoded (11th June, 2008)

As described by some of its members, as well as in official documents, Operation 40 was the name given to a special unit created to play a supporting role in the CIA-sponsored Bay of Pigs invasion in April 1961. The unit's assigned but never-realized task was to follow on the heels of the Cuban-exile invasion force, purge pro-Castro officials, seize documents, and take over administration of "liberated" towns and villages. Scheduled to depart Nicaragua two days after the invasion force, Operation 40 never did land.

When the invasion failed miserably, the unit returned to Miami and morphed into a Cuban intelligence organization-in-exile, aka the Cuban CIA, or more commonly, Operation 40. Its CIA codename was AMOT, and for the next 13 years it operated under, but quasi-independently and at a separate location from, JMWAVE, codename for the large CIA station in Miami that waged the secret war against Castro. For many years, AMOT was headed by Joaquín Sanjenís, an official in the pre-Castro Cuban government of Carlos Prío. AMOT was disbanded in 1974 as JMWAVE operations were phased out...

Without specifying a point in time, Simkin goes on to claim that Operation 40 was not only involved in sabotage, but "evolved into a team of assassins." It is true, of course, that the CIA sanctioned plots to kill Fidel Castro and also initiated assassination plots. But did Operation 40 have anything to do with those efforts?

Simkin also fingers, without providing any documentation, Porter J. Goss as a member of Operation 40. The Spartacus website even features a photograph, which it claims was "taken in a nightclub in Mexico City on 22 January 1963. It is believed that the men in the photograph are all members of Operation 40." Among them, allegedly, is Goss (with glasses, at the bottom left-hand corner).

Goss, of course, actually was a CIA officer from 1962 to 1972, and worked for a 2-3 months in the Miami station during the Cuban missile crisis, primarily as a photo-interpreter. Several years after he left the agency he became a Republican congressman from Florida. He served eight terms before resigning from Congress, and his chairmanship of the House Intelligence Committee, to serve as CIA director from 2004 to 2006.

Goss was provided with a copy of the photograph featured on Simkin's website. In a telephone interview, Goss not only said that he had "never heard of Operation 40," but declared, with some vehemence, that the "Goss" identified in the photo is "categorically, decisively, and completely... not me."

(10) Don Bohning, The Intelligencer: Journal of U.S. Intelligence Studies (Volume 16 – Number 2 – Fall 2008)

A U.S. government report published in 1975 based on a congressional inquiry headed by the late Idaho Senator Frank Church and entitled Alleged Assassination Plots Against Foreign Leaders, makes no mention of Operation 40. (1) Neither does a Report on Plots to Assassinate Fidel Castro, prepared in 1967 by the CIA's inspector general under orders from then President Lyndon Johnson. It was declassified in 1993. (2) It is inconceivable that had Operation 40 been an assassination unit, as Simkin claims, that either or both the Church Committee and the CIA's Inspector General's Inspector General's report would not have made some made mention of it. Essentially, the only references to it as described by Simkin are contained in books and other works by conspiracy theorists, including Fabian Escalante, an official in Cuban State Security.

While there were unsuccessful plots to assassinate various foreign leaders, mostly involving Cuba's Fidel Castro, beginning in 1960, the only documented systematic CIA assassination program as such was code-named ZRRIFLE. Created by the late Richard Bissell, it was headed by the late Bill Harvey from November 1961 through the Cuban Missile Crisis in the fall of 1962. Part of that period Harvey also headed Task Force W, the CIA component of Operation Mongoose, the multi-agency, post-Bay of Pigs program to rid Cuba of Fidel Castro. Mongoose was designed by Kennedy White House aide Richard Goodwin. As far as is known, ZRRIFLE never assassinated anyone. (3)

Contrary to Simkin's definition, Operation 40, as described by some of those who were part of it, as well as in official documentation, was the last unit formed for the failed, CIA-sponsored Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba in April 1961. Its task essentially was to follow the Cuban exile invasion force, purge officials, seize documents and take over administration of "liberated" towns and villages.

When the invasion failed, the group returned to Miami , morphing into what was known locally as the Cuban intelligence organization in exile, the Cuban CIA or, more commonly, as Operation 40. Its CIA codename was AMOT. It operated under, but quasi-independently and at a separate location from JMWAVE, codename for the giant Miami CIA station then located at the University of Miami's South Campus (now the home - perhaps appropriately - for Metrozoo).

Headed by Joaquin Sanjenis Perdomo, a former police official in the pre-Castro Cuban government of Carlos Prio, it was disbanded in 1974 as part of the phase-out of JMWAVE operations. Its CIA case officer for at least two years, beginning in 1970, was the late Frank Belsito, who died in 2006. An account of AMOT can be found in a rather obscure book authored by Belsito, entitled: "CIA: Cuba and the Caribbean (CIA
